Immediately upon taking control, the committee secured the service of Eva Watson (daughter of John M. and Eliza Watson), a graduate of one department of Earlham, having also taken a special course of three summers at Ohio Central Normal, and a four years' Chautauqua reading course. Her experience as instructor in Ohio for several years, as also her introduction to the Indian work as teacher at the Quapaw Indian Agency, fully qualified her for this important field. She has been constant and untiring in her devotion to this work, and is at present the principal of the school.

In 1889 John M. and Eliza Watson—who had been sent at the close of the Civil War to superintend a mission amongst the negroes in Mississippi, afterward filling similar positions amongst the Wyandotte, Modoc and Cherokee Indians in the Territory—were called to fill the vacancy at Skiatook occasioned by the voluntary removal of John Mardock to another field. To these Friends is largely due the credit for inaugurating and carrying forward the many and important improvements of the past twelve years.

The true history, however, of this work cannot be portrayed on paper, but is written in the hearts, homes and lives of those throughout this country who have received an uplift from its ministrations. Between 300 and 400 Indian children, the men and women of the future, have been under the influence of this institution for a period of time varying from one month to eight years; thus it is impossible to compute the benefits that have gone out in these years, in elevating the Indians socially and spiritually.

A more interesting company of children than that which greets one in coming into the home would be difficult to find. Their dusky faces, black hair, and bright eyes, and unique antics drawing one involuntarily to them.

One is impressed with the systematic regulations of the household affairs, and the quiet, orderly deportment of the children, who, of course, are children. Also with the high esteem in which Christianity is held, not only in the home, but in the community.

Cleanliness is another marked feature of this work here, observed not only in the home and school-room, but in the public meetings. Whiskey drinking, tobacco spitting and the rudeness so common in many parts of the Territory—attributable largely to the whites—seems to have slunk away before the light of culture and refinement. And herein lies a hint for the most successful missionary to the Indian: culture should give him stature, and love should enable him to bend.

A very interesting Bible School is maintained and much Scripture memorized by the pupils. The Y. P. S. C. E. is an important factor in the religious training of the young.

We believe this is a work that commends itself to the church it so faithfully represents amongst those whom God has given her as a special charge, and to whom, by a solemn contract of our fathers, we are pledged to faithful friendship, "while the creeks and rivers run, and while the sun, moon, and stars endure." The workers whom the Lord has supplied are worthy of confidence and support. The possibilities are as broad as these prairies.

The needs of the work are peculiar. We are not able to recommend changes or suggest any in that which already exists. But would say more ditto.

The probability of a speedy settlement of the country and consequent introduction of free schools, indicate the necessary addition of an academic department. A school must be sustained in order to retain the property. An academy at the present would meet the needs of many who have been sent out from the school, and in the event of free schools, receive a support from a vast territory in which such an institution is not found. Plans are being drafted for a suitable building for such an institution, and operations for its construction will probably begin immediately.

This country is peculiar in that, not only must one "seize opportunity by the forelock," but run to meet him.

One advantage of this location is its proximity to different tribes, the last term being attended by pupils from the Shawnees, Delawares, Osages and Cherokees. A lady present at the closing of the term told us there was a school only twelve miles from the home, but she preferred to bring her children here, for she "knew they were safe." We believe, in our efforts for the Indian, a good motto to keep before us is "Christianize" him and he has a fine manhood. He is imitative; give him the best models. He is aspiring; tell him of the one perfect Man, Jesus the Christ.

The life of the Lord Jesus Christ upon the earth was the working out and development of the song of the angels. It was "Glory to God," illustrated in His obedience, in His personal sacrifice, in His prayers and teachings, in His consecration and death. It was "peace" in all the utterances of His life, peace beaming from His gentle eye, peace spoken by His daily acts, peace in His bearing humbly and patiently the buffetings, strokes, and insults and injuries that were put upon Him. It was "good will to man," for every thought, word, and act of that blessed life was the translation of God's infinite love into forms visible to the mortal eyes that saw Him.—John McClintock.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

MORE ABOUT KEOKUK.

BY EMELINE H. TUTTLE.

I have just read with interest the account given by President Rosenberger of the venerable Keokuk, the Sax and Fox Indian chief. I knew him well in the years gone by. My husband and I visited him, and he visited us, and finally he married an Ottawa woman, in whom we had long been interested. On the occasion of one of these visits we conversed together concerning the good things of the Kingdom. He said when he first heard the Gospel preached, and it was interpreted into his language, he thought that if it was true he would like to get religion in his heart. He prayed as best he knew how, but could not get any light. After awhile he began to get discouraged, and was almost ready to give up the struggle. While in this condition a friend visited him, who before retiring (without knowing anything about his spiritual condition) asked for a season of devotion, and while in vocal prayer uttered these words, as nearly as I can remember, "Oh! Lord! open my dear brother Keokuk's heart that he may understand the mysteries of the Kingdom. That his eyes may be opened to see the salvation of God, and that his heart may be cleansed by faith in the redeeming blood of Christ, and made a fit temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit," and Keokuk said that when he heard his own name called he knew the Great Spirit heard it, too, and he accepted Christ in the pardon of his sins, and his heart was filled with light and peace and joy. He was very anxious for a long time to have Friends furnish them a missionary, and we did what we could to bring it about, but the Conference could see no way at that time to support another mission, and the work passed out of our hands. It has always been a source of sadness when I have thought of it, for I still believe the cause of Christ suffered loss, and our own church was weakened thereby.

May God grant that such a wave of consecration and blessing may come upon the church that in future, when similar calls come, one by one, that we may with joy be permitted to enter in a labor, and in the end join in the anthem, "For Thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood out of every kindred and tongue, and people and nation, and hast made us unto our God, kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth."

A PRAYER.

Not in some cloistered cell
Dost thou Lord bid me dwell,
My love to show,
But 'mid the busy marts
Where men with burdened hearts
Do come and go.

Lord make me quick to see
Each task awaiting me,
And quick to do;
O grant me strength, I pray,
With lowly love each day,
And purpose true.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

LIFE AND WORK OF DAVID J. LEWIS.

BY HERMON D. WILLIAMS.

The life and Gospel labors of David J. Lewis, who passed to his heavenly rest at Long Beach, Cal., Second month 16th, 1899, are a conspicuous illustration of the blessed and abounding fruits of the Spirit in a consecrated and faithful Christian, and signally magnify the Grace of God which made him what he was.

He was born at Pittsburg, Pa., Fifth month 20th, 1859. He was converted in childhood, but early deprived of a Christian mother's care, he drifted into sin and infidelity, following the life of a commercial traveler for years. But followed by the prayers of a devoted sister, Rosanna A. Lewis, who still resides at the family home in Wheeling, W. Va., and to whom he often said he owed all he was under God, he returned, through instrumentalities we shall presently mention, in a full consecration of all his powers, and entered at once upon the work of soul saving, which now became the passion of his devoted life.

The providence of God was beautifully manifested in turning young David Lewis, with his teeming energy and his vivacious disposition, from the fascinations of the world to be an humble messenger of the Gospel. During the year 1884, while trying to assist to better ways a young associate that was given to drink, he took him away from temptation to the Quaker neighborhood of Short Creek, Ohio., twenty miles from Wheeling. While making his temporary home here with William and Judith Johnson, beloved ministers of the Gospel, David was led through their influence and personal work to a complete consecration of heart, and a precious experience of the joys of perfect love; and from that moment he threw himself into the work of God with all the intensity of his nature.

Opportunities for theological training, with flattering prospects beyond, were open to him; but he felt that the King's business required haste, and that he must immediately enter the harvest field before him, caring more for the salvation of souls and for God's glory than for the allurements of prominence or the favor of men. His apprehension of duty was especially in the line of evangelistic work, in the exercise of which gift wherever way opened for it God gave to his labors the seal of fruitful results in the conversion of souls from the very beginning.

Another event in the chain of circumstances which through this period so completely and so happily changed the current of his life, was his marriage, on Eighth month 24th, 1886, to Ella Johnson, daughter of William and Judith Johnson, named above, who was to him a devoted wife and efficient co-worker. She survives to mourn his loss, but four children born to them were laid away in infancy during the intervening years.

The first public ministry of David J. Lewis was in the M. E. Church at Dallas, W. Va. A little later he entered upon pastoral labors in the Friends' Meeting at East Richmond, Ohio, before he was a member of the church. Friends soon recognized in him a true shepherd, and formally acknowledged his gift in Fifth month, 1886. He successively served as pastor at Winona, Ohio, and at Raisin Valley and Tecumseh, Mich., and for brief periods at Cleveland, Maple Grove and Columbus, Ohio. He was superintendent of evangelistic work in Adrian Quarterly Meeting, and held successful revivals throughout its limits. He gave instruction at intervals in homiletics in the Christian Workers' Training School at Cleveland, for which his extensive and discriminating reading, and his close and systematic study of the Bible, especially qualified him. Following his acceptable attendance of Philadelphia and New England Yearly Meetings, he engaged in Gospel tent work in Maine during the summers of '95 and '96, a part of the time in association with John Henry Douglas. Seven days in the week he would preach to large congregations, and several new churches, where before there were none, bear witness to the fruitfulness of these labors.

All this dear brother's labor was performed not only with the haste and energy of one who felt that he must do the work of Him that sent him while it was day, but with reverent carefulness and thoroughness, as well. He never even went to prayer meeting without a season of communion with his Saviour, and his prayerful study of God's Word in preparation for the First-day service showed that he felt that God demanded his best, and that "beaten oil" was necessary for the sanctuary. The chief elements of his remarkable efficiency in ministry were his habitual dependence on the leading of the Spirit, his diligent study of the Bible, and his consistent and steadfast Christian character. His week-days were but the sequel to his First-days, and what his people found him in the meeting-house they found him in his study, by the wayside, or mingling with his fellow-men. He was everywhere the man of God.

His power with God was no accident; he dealt truly with God, and God dealt truly and bountifully with him. By his humble and heartfelt confession, both in public and private prayer, and by his endearing communion with a reconciled God, he pressed so close to the Throne that he seemed lost to everything earthly; so definite, so urgent, so hopeful were his supplications that he seemed to be within the veil, his hands on the Mercy Seat, and his eyes fixed on things invisible.

With his strong hold on God, supplemented by a wonderful familiarity with the Written Word, and a diligent improvement of his fine natural endowments by every means that could contribute to his burning purpose of saving souls, his preaching could not fail to be impressive and fruitful. His sermons were pervaded by a seemingly inspired earnestness, and abounded with illustrations that flashed the many sided truths of Scripture with stereoscopic suddenness and prismatic beauty. They were punctuated with wit and satire that gave keener point to the arrows of the Gospel, reached flights of eloquence betimes, and drew upon the love of the receding ages; but in the midst of these features, and above them all, was ever to be seen the illuminated Cross of Calvary, as the objective point of every line of thought and as the Shining Star of a lost world's sure and only hope. His wealth of information, his instinctive taste and his happy power of language were with this man of God but means to an end, and he seemed wholly oblivious to the honors and the admirations they commanded; his eye was single, his aim was souls—souls for Jesus' sake.

To make a just estimate of his self-denial and earnest purpose it must be remembered that his arduous work for years was performed under the disability of a catarrhal ailment that was slowly sapping his physical life; but under this constant pressure he maintained his intense activities, sustained by Him whose "strength is made perfect in weakness." So far was he from willingly relinquishing work under this difficulty, that in penciling his last entry in his diary he wrote on New Year's Day as follows:

God being my helper I hope to make this the best year of my life. I shall pass the fortieth milestone in my life's journey this year, should my life be spared to see it. I shall have preached fifteen years, and Oh! how I am reminded of how little I have accomplished in comparison to my hope and early dreams. Yet I am all the Lord's, and, health and grace given, shall be delighted to redouble by diligence and make full proof of my ministry and show myself a faithful workman and minister of the New Testament in the spirit and love."

For over a year David Lewis served as pastor in the Friends' Meeting at Long Beach, Cal., and labored regularly until within three weeks of his decease. His hope of gaining in health by coming to this coast was not to be realized, and God now kindly gave him to see that his release was approaching. His sufferings were not severe, but he was prostrated by extreme weakness, referring to which, he said: "When I get to glory I shall want to sit at Jesus' feet and rest for twenty years." His mind was clear and calm as he gave parting messages to loved ones and to the church, and he fell asleep with the joyous and unclouded assurance of acceptance with God in Jesus Christ. With distinct utterance and a spirit of sweet resignation he said just before the close: "I die with a hearty good will to all brother ministers with whom I have labored, and a feeling of universal benevolence to every man, woman and child, and a sincere Christian fellowship with all God's people; and if God now takes me to Himself I'll praise Him forevermore; not for any good I ever did, no sermon I ever preached, no books I ever read, but all through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ. And in the morning of the resurrection, when Christ shall appear, my bones shall rise from the coast of the Pacific."

A service in memory of the departed was conducted at Long Beach at 9.30 a.m., Second month 19th, by Thomas Armstrong, following which many of the the members accompanied the funeral cortege to Whittier, where the interment was made. Here a second service, attended by a very full house, was held at 3 p.m., at which Thomas Armstrong, Professor Andrew F. Mitchell and Rhoda M. Hare spoke impressive and fitting words. A long procession passed by the casket, and many eyes were suffused with tears as they viewed the silent form of the departed in the shadow of the desk from which a few months before he had preached with such unction and power.

David J. Lewis has entered into his eternal reward, and a multitude who have been saved and helped through his instrumentality rise up to call him blessed, and to praise God who made him a polished shaft in His hand.

Whittier, Cal.

ANNALS OF OUR BIBLE CLASS.

BY ONE OF US.

NO. XII.

We have made long strides in our course since the last "Annals" were written, and this week's lesson will take us into the events of Passion week. But there remains much land yet to be possessed, and the robin's note is already heralding the coming spring, admonishing us to hasten if we would get through before the heated term begins.

It is beautiful to see how the members of the class are bringing up the journeys and connecting events with places; some of them can begin at Bethlehem and go straight through to the middle of the year of rejection, a thread which we are expected to continue right on up to the hour of the Ascension.

Our teacher was delighted to hear two of the older pupils say that already whenever they hear a sermon on the words of our Saviour, they are able at once to recall the circumstances under which they were spoken and to summon the scene like a picture. She had been telling us this would be the result and that it would well repay the labor of memorizing. You should have seen Jessie's bright eyes glow as she followed the recitation of a fellow pupil at the map—Jessie knows the journeys like a book, and so does Sallie. Kate said she "never could," when asked to take the pointer, and Martha hesitated, but our teacher insisted, saying it was better to try and fail, then not to make the effort, so they each in turn took the floor, and of course succeeded.

We are all beginning to realize the benefit of our temple study, and in every way our grasp upon the course is growing stronger. But this we find: it is impossible to get the most out of this kind of Bible study without regular attendance and faithful, prayerful application. The lessons are long, and when even one is missed the connection is in measure broken and the interest flags. One of our number is a matronly woman of many cares, who entered the class in presence of almost insuperable difficulties, but who has so far mastered circumstances that her place is never vacant, and besides, she is putting her talent out to usury, teaching a Friday evening class in Genesis on the south side. Frances did a similar work last winter, going six miles for three months to repeat our lessons in the last period of the Judaean Monarchy. It would be lovely if our dear class, now in its fifth year, should turn out to be a banyan tree multiplying itself for the promotion of this most profitable and fascinating of all pursuits, the study of the Word.

In no previous course have we found it so difficult to get a realistic view of persons and scenes. Especially is this true of the chief figure, that of the incomparable One. No other life or character helps us to understand His except by way of contrast. In this the ever-present Pharisee serves for the best of foils: subtle, self-seeking, crafty, proud, ambitious of titles and religious recognition, hard-hearted and hide-bound, caring less for a man than for a tradition of the elders, and nothing concerned for the salvation of publicans and sinners; treacherous and murderous, making the highest claims to sanctity and in the name of religion pursuing to His death the holiest being that ever lived; saying, "we see" and yet the blindest of the blind, always laying the emphasis on that which is secondary and sacrificing that which is vital; binding the consciences of believers by oppressive legislation, holding the penalty of excommunication over the confession of Christ, and bringing many even of the chief rulers into the bondage of fear (John 12: 42). They are in evidence, negatively, to prove the holiness of the spotless One, and this study of Pharisaism and our Lord's estimate of it, is making us more than ever desirous to be absolutely rid of it ourselves. How foreign to every feature of it was the pure and guileless and discerning spirit of the Master! His was the tenderest heart that ever beat, the freest from prejudice, the most accessible, the most benevolent; the most intolerant of sin, and the most compassionate for the sinner; the nearest allied to humanity in sympathy with its woes and in holy self-sacrifice for its weal; the embodiment of perfection and the divine expression of the greatness of true humility. He was utterly beyond the highest Jewish ideals of that day,—beyond those even of the Twelve whose standards of greatness and honor were still earthly standards, and who had yet to learn that in the measurements of the kingdom the "mountain would become a valley, and the valley a mountain." His was an incomparable balance of powers,—moral greatness evenly laid on, and no lack of proportion in the figure. And just because of this His character is the hardest possible to analyze. It is like a vast tableland with no visible depression by which to measure its altitude. In its all-roundness there are no irregularities, no jutting points to take of. If one may be allowed, in this connection, to quote the lines of Dryden on Cromwell, they contain a hint of the difficulty:

"But how shall I begin or where conclude
To draw a fame so truly circular?
For in a round what order can be showed,
Where all the parts so truly perfect are?"

Certainly in no study has the student such need to constantly invoke the presence of the revealing Spirit, the importance of which is kept ever before our class.

I may add as a matter of interest to any who have been following the history of our work through the "Annals," that there are hours in which the atmosphere of this class-room grows sacredly solemn, and the foundations of our Christian faith seem like rock beneath our feet; when the vital truths that make up what is termed "evangelical beliefs" are justified to our understanding, beyond a doubt, in the nature of the case. To one of our pupils—a rarely gifted woman—this gospel of the kingdom was altogether new, as she had never even so much as touched a New Testament until she got one for the class. It has been to us a new and intensely interesting experience to note the impressions made by this fresh disclosure upon her keen Semitic mind. Through her eyes the New Testament is now seen to be the fulfilment of the Old without a missing link, and, further, it is inexplicable to her how any one can accept the Bible as an inspired book, and profess Christianity, and at the same time reject the doctrine of the deity of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

THE QUIET HOUR.

Would you come into His Presence,
E'er the busy life of day
Wakens from its nightly slumber,
Takes again its onward way?
Then enter once the silence
Of that hour before the dawn,
When e'en Nature waits His Spirit,
In the hush of early morn.

And ye then shall learn the sweetness
Of abiding in the Lord;
You shall know the blest infilling,
That His coming shall afford.
Then is recognized His whisper
Of approval or dismay,
When thy soul is hushed before Him,
E'er the break of coming day.

For oh, who can tell the blessing
That the quiet hour brings home
To all eager, earnest seekers,
Who thus wait the Lord alone?
All the tests of days most trying,
Here He tells you how to meet;
There is comfort, grace and solace,
In his tones so low and sweet.

So then why not seek the sweetness,
Of the presence of the Lord,
In the hush of early morning,
E'er day's failures are deplored?
He is waiting for your coming,
Longs to fill with joy your heart;
You will miss the words He's keeping
If you linger still apart.

NELLIE CATHERINE BORING.

The art of knowing when one is needed is more difficult than that of helping.—George Macdonald.

If ever you are tempted to waste an hour go and ask a dying man what he would give for that hour, which you are throwing away, and according as he answers, so do you act.—Shepherd of Salisbury Plain.

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson IV.

Fourth month 23, 1899

JESUS, THE WAY AND THE TRUTH AND THE LIFE.

John 14: 1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth and the life.—John 14: 6.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fourth mo. 17.—Jesus the Way, the Truth, and the Life.—John 14: 1-14.

Third-day, Fourth mo. 18.—The Life. John 17: 1-10.

Fourth-day, Fourth mo. 19.—The Truth. John 17: 11-19.

Fifth-day, Fourth mo. 20.—The Way. John 17: 20-26.

Sixth-day, Fourth mo. 21.—Way to the Father. Eph. 2: 13-22.

Seventh-day, Fourth mo. 22.—The Only Way. Acts 4: 1-12.

First-day, Fourth mo. 23.—The Living Way. Heb. 10: 11-22.

The 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th chapters of John are the most spiritual of any in the Bible; to them more than any others, the despondent, the discouraged, the doubting, the sorrowing turn for instruction, for hope, for consolation. In them Christ is revealed as himself the revealer of God the Father; as the source of faith, hope and love; as the Life, the Truth, the Way. In them the mission of the Holy Spirit is declared most completely, and they set forth with clearness the union which should exist between Christ and the believer. The lesson is closely connected with the preceding chapter, the latter part of which should be read.

1. "Your heart." The seat of the affections and emotions. "Troubled." A strong word implying a trouble mixed with anxiety for the future. The reference seems primarily to chapter 13: 33. "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." The American Revisers would make the verb imperative in both cases, and this is to be preferred, through the original may be read either way. The contest seems to give the following meaning, "Believe in God, and yet more than this, let your faith find in me one on whom it can rest."

2. "In my Father's house." Heaven. As the earthly temple included many rooms (Ezek. 42: 6; 1 Kings 6: 5, 6, 10), so the heavenly temple has many places of abode. "If it were not so?" etc. Christ appeals to his sense of justice; he could not have been with them and taught them and loved them, and not have told them, unless there had been room for all. The Revised Version says, "For I go," etc., an additional reason.

3. "And if I go." The "if" does not express any doubt, but simply indicates a result to follow. "I come again and will receive you with myself." Revised Version. This promise should not be limited to any one "coming." This will be seen by reading the whole discourse where several comings are distinctly referred to: (1) in the Resurrection (verse 18 and 16: 16); (2) in the gift of the Comforter (verses 17, 25, 26; 16: 7); (3) in the intimate relations which should exist between Christ and the believer (verses 18, 23); besides these, there is the coming at the Last Day, and possibly the coming to each individual when called away by death.

4. "And whither I go, ye know the way." Revised Version. As if to say, if ye do not understand much about the place ye at least know the way I am going.

5. The question was characteristic of Thomas; he blurted out what others thought, but dared not express: "Can we know the way unless we know the place to which thou are going?" The idea of an earthly kingdom was still uppermost.

6, 7. To the proper understanding of the passage, verses 6 and 7 must be taken together.

The order of thought is the Truth, the Life, the Way, but Thomas had spoken of the way, and hence that is mentioned first. Christ does not only reveal the way, He is the way; he does not only reveal the truth, He is the truth; he does not only bestow life, He is the life. "Without the way there is no going; without the truth there is no knowing; without the life there is no living." If they had really learned to know Christ, they would have known the father; from this time, after this declaration, they should know that he was the revelation of the Father which they could understand—God revealed in terms of humanity.

8. Philip seems to have felt that these words could not apply to him. He wished some such sight as Moses had. Exodus 33: 17-23. He wished to walk by sight, not by faith.

9. Christ makes a personal appeal. Philip was one of the earliest disciples (John 1: 43), but the reference is doubtless to the three years of constant intercourse. "Hath seen the Father." It is only when the Father is seen in the Son that Christ is truly known. "Know me." Revised Version. That is "learned to know me."

10. Christ's teaching showed the close communion he had with the Father, and his works how the Father wrought through him. Compare John 10: 28.

11. "Believe me." In the original the verb is in the plural which shows that Christ now addressed all the disciples. "You have been with me long enough to believe what I say, but if not, at any rate believe what I do."

12. "Greater works." There is some obscurity in these words. They cannot mean miracles, for no miracle was performed greater than the raising of Lazarus. The reference must be to spiritual works as conversion, and teaching and preaching; such as the preaching on the day of Pentecost, the spread of the gospel over most of the world.

13, 14. To ask in the name of Christ is not to use His name in the prayer; it is to be so full of His spirit that what is asked is in accordance with His will, and in some degree for the petitioner to represent Him. In all true prayer "Not my will, but Thine be done" accompanies the petition.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. Christ has opened a new and loving way to the Father.

2. "We faintly hear, we dimly see,
In differing phrase we pray,
But, dim or clear, we own in Thee
The [Life], the Truth, the Way."

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FOURTH MONTH 23d, 1899.

HOW CHRIST MAKES USE OF COMMON LIVES. THE MAN WITH THE PITCHER.

Mark 14: 12-16.

Second-day, Fourth mo. 17.—The fishermen of Galilee. Matt. 4: 18-22.
Third-day, Fourth mo. 18.—The tax-gatherer of Capernaum. Matt. 9: 9-13.
Fourth-day, Fourth mo. 19.—The women of Galilee. Matt. 27: 55, 56.
Fifth-day, Fourth mo. 20.—The lad with fishes. John 6: 5-14.
Sixth-day, Fourth mo. 21.—The widow in the temple. Mark 12: 41-44.
Seventh day Fourth mo. 22.—The goodman of the house. Luke 22: 7-24

Darwin's experiments were performed with the most simple appliances consisting of a few boxes, cans, bits of glass, and odds and ends. It was the greatness of the man and not the elaborateness of the apparatus that produced such famous results. Yet the greatness of the man lay chiefly in painstaking thoroughness and careful noting of every result of his investigations. It is the power to make the right use of common things, to bring to their use the right motives, and to appreciate their significance, that makes every true life a Mount of Transfiguration. It was only the common, every-day garments of Jesus that were "exceeding white, as no fuller on earth could whiten them" in that marvelous transfiguration. Earthly kings must put on royal robes when they would shine, but he only needed to let shine forth the glory that was in him, and straightway every common thread, spun with weary toil doubtless in the home at Nazareth, assumed a glorious appearance because of its relation to that inner glory. The miracles of Jesus constantly suggest the same lesson of the use of common things. It was only such water as the servants had drawn every day from the fountain at Cana, that in the presence of Jesus was turned into wine. It was only Peter's old net, already patched here and there, that the Master used to enclose the miraculous draught of fishes. The simple lunch of a boy was the starting point for the meal for five thousand men. Not only was this true, but it appears that Jesus was ever recognizing what men could do, and linking it with his own doing in the performance of miracles. The disciples could not multiply the loaves, but they could pass them out; they could not raise Lazarus, but they could roll away the stone and loose him when he came forth. The man bearing the pitcher could not utter one word of the marvelous Passover night discourse of Jesus, but he could furnish the room where it was to be spoken.

Strictly speaking there is no such thing as a "common life," for those who have learned the art of setting common things in right relations to Jesus Christ. He who holds a prism before his eyes sees every object in the range of vision fringed with all the glory of the rainbow. This transfiguration of common life in the light that comes from the face of Jesus Christ is the sublime secret of happiness. Jesus said He came to give life and to give it more abundantly. The life which He gives is not only an inner spiritual thing having certain relations to an existence hereafter, but it is a power of appreciation of the things that now are. When one man walks abroad, every stone, hill, and valley has its lesson for him; the process of world building is written upon them, and he reads the records of all the past millenniums. Every shrub and plant speak to him, not only of beauty, but of order and species, of development and modification by environment. Stretches of landscape and changing sky are one great canvas upon which nature's hand throws colors with a titanic brush. But another man walks over the same ground and sees only dust, dirt and mud, weary climbing over jagged rocks, tangled weeds, threatening skies, and approaching darkness, and returns with weary disgust. Just so are men with reference to that which constitutes common life. To one it is drudgery, toil, disappointment, association with disagreeable people, weariness, lack of opportunity, desire to get out of the world. To another with the Christian power of appreciation, and the transfiguring light from the face of Jesus Christ, it is full of opportunity, compensation, and spiritual significance. Contentment is not the lack of ambition to get on in the world; it is rather the discovery of the value of the things that we now possess.

"There is a legend of an artist who long sought for a piece of sandal wood out of which to carve a Madonna. At last he was about to give up in despair, leaving the vision of his life unrealized, when in a dream he was bidden to shape the image from a block of wood which was destined for the fire. Obeying the command he produced from the log of common fire-wood a masterpiece. In like manner many people wait for great and brilliant opportunities for doing the good things, the beautiful things, of which they dream, while through all the common days the very opportunities they require for such deeds lie close to them in the simplest and most familiar events. They wait for the sandal wood out of which to carve Madonnas, while far more lovely Madonnas than they dream of are hidden in the common logs of oak which they burn in the open fireplace or spurn with their feet in the wood-yard."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PARAGRAPHS.

The first bulletin of the Detroit committee of arrangements is at hand. The dominant rule is the desire for a convention of spiritual power. Let us go with that thought supreme. Our bigness is our peril, our popularity a possible snare. It requires a mighty spiritual force at the heart to inspire this great army. Let us go up to inquire of God, and to worship him in His holy temple.

The Friends' Endeavor Society at Portland, Maine, has been making a steady growth the past year. They have recently organized an Intermediate Society with twelve active charter members.

Brooklyn Friends' Society promises fairly to repeat its missionary offering of last year, and to raise $325 for the work in China at Luh-Hoh, under care of Dr. French and Margaret Holme.

MISSIONARY MUSEUM.

All persons who have any curios for the Penn College Missionary Museum, may bring or send them to the Marion W. F. M. A. Conference, May 18-21, and place them in charge of Sarah J. King.

On behalf of Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. Missionary Committees.

GILBERT BOWLES.

Spiceland Quarterly Meeting Christian Endeavor Union held its first quarterly session Seventh-day evening of Quarterly Meeting, Third month 11th, 1899.

The meeting was opened by song service and devotional exercises.

Our Yearly Meeting Christian Endeavor President, Richard Haworth, of Marion, Ind., gave a very interesting and instructive address on "True to All My Duties." He said that we as Endeavorers must not put all our strength and ability in our Society, but we must save some of it for the church work. That the Endeavor Society is just preparing us to do better service for the church. He suggested organizing our committees and dividing the duties among the different members for a month, and then exchanging the work with other members of the committee until the six months are over.

Each committee should be posted on the literature of the United Society. He emphasized the need of each member having the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Without this we cannot do the work God intended us to do.

In the Quiet Hour we should get the knowledge and strength to do the duty that lies before us, of whatever character it is.

The Tenth Legion also holds an important place. We should at least lay aside a tenth of every dollar to use only for the Lord's word. When He has prospered us as much as He has, we should be willing to let Him spend a tenth of it as His own.

It is often asked, "What is the best method of studying the Bible?" Mr. Haworth said the first thing was to get the baptism of the Holy Ghost, and then let Jesus be our teacher.

Ella Applegate of Knightstown, our Yearly Meeting Junior Superintendent, gave a short talk on the Junior work. She said this is the most important work. That the child faith is the most perfect faith, and that the earliest impressions are the most lasting.

MARY E. LAWRENCE, Secretary.

"'Tis often darkest just before the day."

A little more persistence, courage, vim!
Success will dawn o'er fortune's cloudy rim.
Then take this honey for the bitterest cup:—

"There is no failure, save in giving up,
No real fall as long as one still tries,
For seeming setbacks make the strong man wise,
There's no defeat, in truth, save from within;
Unless you're beaten there, you're bound to win."

—Henry Austin.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

EASTER IN A HOSPITAL.

BY M. Z. KIRK.

I am temporarily shut in the Pennsylvania Hospital and unable, on account of a quinsy throat, to talk to Friends who do not take THE AMERICAN FRIEND, so I will write to those who do. Hundreds of poor, sick patients are deprived of many of the pleasures of such days as Easter and Christmas. The same generous spirit which prompts men to build and furnish and support such excellent hospitals, also prompts fond fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, and benevolent friends to send the suffering children, some of whom have not been out of their wards for weeks, and even months, many little tokens of love in the form of playthings, flowers, decorations, etc. At Christmas time especially the officers and nurses spare no pains in making the wards as beautiful and pleasant as possible.

To those who live where they can see thousands of acres of green grass and wild flowers, and to others who raise great gardens of flowers, it is almost impossible to conceive how much pleasure the sight and smell of a few bunches of flowers will bring to a ward of patients, languishing with fever or suffering with acute pains from a fracture. Those of us who pay for a private room usually have friends enough to look after all such things, but in all the hospitals there are scores of sick and afflicted ones whose pains are enough to thoroughly try the strength of most men. Perhaps they have lived for years in a lowly hovel and have been scantily fed upon poorly cooked food; the father's illness may remove the breadwinner from the home, and, being an honest, hard working man, he almost despairs all hopes in life, as he wrestles with disease; or, perhaps, the widowed mother has overworked, in caring for her family of children. Many of these men, women and children have always lived in the densely populated portions of the city, and have never known what it was to have a flower bed or garden.

Should not we all enjoy our walks through the fields more if we would gather some of nature's richest and most perfect flowers, or wouldn't our flower gardens bring us more pleasure if occasional bunches went to cheer the hearts of those who have unfortunately met with accidents, or have been overtaken with disease. How often we speculate on the thousands we will give to hospitals, churches, colleges, etc., when we get rich, but we neglect a great many smaller, but just as important duties. The wealthy men give the thousands to erect buildings and endow the institution, thus providing for all running expenses. The nurses give from twelve to fourteen hours a day to the suffering ones almost free of charge. The ministers gladly preach to the convalescents. Young men and women here in the city kindly provide music, not only for the devotional services, but they come to the wards and sing a few songs. The ordinary visitor fails to appreciate the joy this brings to all, whether they have been here a few days or many weeks. The man with money supplies the absolute essentials, the officers and nurses attend to the physical needs, the ministers the spiritual, but it remains for the young people to supply the music and flowers, which really bring gladness to the hearts.

If you are a hundred or more miles from any large city with hospitals see if your express company does not intend to carry flowers free this summer for benevolent purposes. If you are near a large city read the article in a recent AMERICAN FRIEND regarding the flower work in Indianapolis.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

Bishop Dwangee, a South African ecclesiastic, is in this country trying to raise funds to establish a theological seminary in his diocese in the Dark Continent. He is of heathen parentage and ran wild in the jungle until he came under Christian influence.

In view of the present vitality of the Zionistic movement, the following item from the report of the United States consul at Baireut is of interest: "Out of a total population in Palestine of some 290,000 souls, about 40,000 are Jews, as against 14,000 twenty years ago. In Jerusalem there are 22,000 Jews, half of whom have immigrated from Europe and America and are called Ashkenazim to distinguish them from the Oriental Israelites, the Sephardists."

The religious oppression of Russia from which so many Doukhobors have escaped is strongly emphasized by certain laws against the Stundists. The two following clauses are part of an enactment which is still in force in Russia: "The children of Stundists are to be taken from their parents and are to be confided to the care of such relatives as belong to the Orthodox church, and if such are not to be found, then the children are to be given into the care of the Orthodox clergy of the place." "Every Stundist who is found reading the Bible or praying with others will be arrested and without further warning will, by 'administrative measures,' be transported to Siberia, or some other distant part of the empire. Every minister of this sect is to be sentenced to penal servitude in the mines."

English newspapers have hitherto showed a fair degree of conservatism in their policy, and they have happily failed to emulate the yellow journalism of our side of the Atlantic, but now the wedge is entering in the form of the Sunday newspaper. The "Daily Telegraph" has recently announced its purpose to publish a Sunday edition, and, not to be outdone by its rival, the "Daily Mail" is following in a similar course.

A study of the statistics of missions in Japan for the year 1898, shows a very interesting condition to exist in the Mikado's Empire. At the close of the year there were in Japan 40,981 Protestants, 53,427 Roman Catholics, and 24,531 Greek Catholics. During the year the Protestant bodies baptized 4,400 persons, the Roman Catholics 4,982 and the Greek Catholics 970. There were heavy losses by death and excommunication in all three bodies, so that the net gains of the year are not great—Protestants, 403; Roman Catholics, 631; Greek Catholics, 675.

The total number of Protestant missionaries, including wives and single women, is 692. This is an increase of 33 over the previous year. The Roman Catholic missionaries number 110 and the nuns 102. The Greek Catholics have only three missionaries.

The spirit of toleration is abroad in the land, and Japan in her present mood towards evangelization is a hopeful field for missionaries' effort.

News from the Field.

The Half-Yearly Meeting of Friends in the South of France was held on the 26th of Third month. Benjamin Combe, a minister, is clerk of the meeting. The meeting for worship in the morning was attended by thirty-six, though only eleven were present at the business meeting in the afternoon. Anna Vally, of Saint Giles, who has spent ten years in California, was not able to be present. Most of the Friends who are left live at Congenies and Fontanes. Marie Bernard, who for years held a school for girls in the city of Nimes, still lives in this city, where she is active in good works. The editor of THE AMERICAN FRIEND spent five months in the South of France some years ago, and he then learned to love the good people who have kept up this meeting under great difficulties and discouragements. They should have our interests and prayers.

Prince D. Hilkoﬀ writes under recent date that the money appropriated by the Canadian Government and otherwise available for his fellow countrymen, is about exhausted.

They want horses and plows at once to begin farming on their several reserves. Some purchases have been made, but as the funds are so limited, immediate action on the part of interested friends will be most timely and greatly appreciated.

All donations of farm utensils, seeds, potatoes, clothing or other articles designed for the Doukhobors, may be forwarded to Joseph S. and Thomas Elkinton, 817 Miﬀin Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Olive Branch Monthly Meeting was held at Walnut Corner, Ind., Fourth month 1st.

The disagreeable weather and bad roads made the attendance smaller than would otherwise have been.

Steps are being taken to fully organize Walnut Corner Meeting, which has heretofore been what English Friends call "an allowed meeting."

Two of the Walnut Corner members were granted letters, three were discontinued, and four were given certificates of removal. One received on request from Winona, making seventeen or eighteen additions to that meeting since the opening of their new house of worship recently. Also eight or ten have been added to Olive Branch Meeting through the labors of our Quarterly Meeting Superintendent and others.

E. C. T.

Portland, Ind.—Friends had the acceptable company of Della Johnson, of Lynn, Superintendent of Christian Endeavor work in Winchester Quarterly Meeting, on Easter at Bible School, Meeting, Christian Endeavor, and the Easter entertainment by members of the school in the evening. A large crop of measles materially reduced the attendance on these services.

Wabash Quarterly Meeting was held Third month 24th, 25th and 26th.

Enos Harvey, of Fairmount Quarterly Meeting, and Ella Davis, the Superintendent of Bible School work in Indiana Yearly Meeting, were in attendance with us.

Enos Harvey preached to the select body very acceptably from the words of Paul to Timothy, "Stir up the gift of God which is in thee by the putting on of my hands, for God has not given us the Spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind," and on Seventh-day the subject was "Christ, the Bread of Life and Spiritual Growth."

Jennie Ridgway, the Superintendent of Bible School work in this quarter, conducted a very profitable Quarterly Conference on Seventh-day evening, in which the papers read and the discussions that followed were very helpful. On Second-day, following the Quarterly Meeting, Ella J. Davis conducted a Bible institute of two sessions, in which the different departments of First-day School work were discussed, and proved very interesting and inspiring. This is the beginning of this good work that she proposes to follow up in all the different Quarterly Meetings, and may the Lord bless her, and may the work prove helpful to all as it has to us.

FRANK MOORMAN.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

Robert L. Kelly, of Plainfield, Ind., has been awarded a fellowship in Philosophy by Chicago University. He has been studying in the University during the present year.

Hamilton County, Indiana, is the banner county for large Quarterly Meetings. West Grove has a membership of 700, Westfield 1701, Carmel 906. It has been my privilege to visit with a minute the above meetings, and some of the Monthly Meetings. I first attended Friends' Meeting in Noblesville (a place of about 12,000 population.) In nine year's time, from a few families, the membership has risen to 240, and there is built a fine house for worship, costing $7,000. The Friends hold a place of influence equal to any of the churches in the town.

Hinkle Creek was the next meeting in line of my visit, and from there I went to Providence Monthly Meeting. At West Grove I found a revival in progress, conducted by Leroy Jay and wife. The meeting was remarkable in power; several had been converted, and now there was deep conviction on the unsaved and unsanctified, followed by victory for many. I also attended Westfield and Carmel Quarterly Meetings, which were very interesting occasions.

PARKER JAMES.

Vandalia, Cass County, Mich.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

James Wood addressed a Parlor Meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry C. Potter, in New York City, the 11th inst., on "The Navajo Indians of Arizona."

Glen's Falls, N. Y.—In First month James Adams, of New Jersey, held a series of meetings for two weeks. On account of much sickness in the vicinity the attendance was small. The work was continued through the adjoining meetings, with good results.

In Third month our former pastor, Luke Woodard, from Indiana, came on a visit. The weather proved stormy and unfavorable most of the time. During his short stay, however, a few special meetings were held, in which his teachings cheered our hearts, as coming from one whom we had learned to love in years gone by. And we realized anew that the "Old, old story of Jesus and His Love," does not grow old, but as we advance in years, it gives added grace and wisdom to our understanding. J. L. H.

CANADA YEARLY MEETING.

Wellington, Canada.—Our Father in Heaven has again remembered us and very much encouraged our hearts by sending Eli G. Parker among us. After attending West Lake Quarterly Meeting he held three meetings at Wellington. The Lord allowed us to see some of the fruit of his labor. One soul was brought into the fold and some hearts were touched, who had long been resisting the Spirit of Truth, and we expect the seed sown will bring forth fruit to His glory who has led His servant in this direction and helped him to declare the truths of the Gospel.

Our Brother went from here to Moscow, where the church was much strengthened through his ministry.

LILLIE CRONK.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Woolson, Iowa.—The Friends at Woolson commenced holding cottage prayer meetings Third month 6th. James Pickard, of Pleasant Plains, a minister, was present at the second meeting, and assisted in meetings. On Seventh-day evening the meeting was held at the meeting-house, where they were continued until fifteen meetings were held. The ministry was very helpful to the church, being characterized by earnestness and plain practical teaching. As a result of the meetings a number are taking their part in the active service of the Master.

FRED COMFORT.

Wessington Springs, S. Dak.—Mount Vernon Quarterly Meeting of Friends was held in this village on Third month 25th and 26th. Ministers in attendance were: John F. Hanson and wife, Blanche Ford, Carrie Butler and Mary Hunt. The Gospel was preached in demonstration and power to large congregations on First-day morning and evening. The meetings were very quiet and good attention was given to all the services. These are the first Friends' meetings ever held in the town, and we are not ashamed of them. The public press says, "Come again." John F. Hanson held a Peace meeting at 3 p.m. on First-day, which was large, and much interest was manifested, and there was a unanimous expression of thanks by the audience standing.

The Quarterly Meeting liberated Alice Hanson to accompany her husband on his return visit to England, Norway and Sweden, and possibly other countries.

Mount Vernon Quarterly Meeting is composed of four monthly meetings: Mount Vernon, Aurora, Pleasant Valley and Harmony, all small meetings, wide'y scattered. There are only two small families here, located in the Springs, and thirteen miles from our Monthly Meeting of Harmony.

CLAYTON BROWN.

OHIO YEARLY MEETING.

Ironville, Ohio.—A series of revival meetings has been held at this place, under the auspices of the National Evangelistic Association of Christian Workers or Friends of Jesus, which have resulted in the conversion of many souls to Christ and the awakening of a deep religious interest.

The meetings were conducted principally by Evangelist N. C. McLean, aided a part of the time by his wife, C. E. McLean, S. H. Jones and others. As a result Christian people have been brought into a closer feeling of sympathy and unity of Spirit. Some gave their names for church fellowship in different societies, also a new society of more than thirty members was formed. The Easter service, conducted last First-day evening by Brother and Sister McLean, was one of great interest, the house being crowded to overflowing.

C. F.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Hoisington, Kan.—The Friends' Meeting-house, at Prairie Centre, Barton County, Kan as, was dedicated at 11 o'clock a.m., Third month 12th, with a full house and good interest. A very helpful sermon was preached by L. D. Barr, and a good collection taken. Revival services followed for two weeks, conducted by L. D. Barr. Martha Carr also assisted for one week. The meetings were hindered somewhat by bad weather. Good interest was manifested with some renewals.

This is not a large meeting, but the Friends are well united and very earnest. There is great opportunity for Gospel labor.

The pastor of Hoisington Monthly Meeting travels thirty miles each First-day and attends three meetings.

H. M. DAVIS.

Isaac A. Woodard has accepted the pastoral charge of Haviland Meeting.

Abija Cox has located at Antioch in the limits of Haviland Quarterly Meeting, and will probably take charge as pastor.

The Yearly Meetings Executive Committee on Evangelistic, Pastoral and Church Extension Work met at the University in Wichita on Third month 28th and 29th, and transacted a large amount of business in the interest of the work.

Bevan Binford is still unable to resume his duties as professor in Biblical work, and will spend the spring and summer in the plains and mountains West. His father will accompany him.

Mary C. Woody takes Professor Binford's Biblical work in his absence.

Eusebia Couch has consented to take the work of Superintendent of Evangelistic and Pastoral Work in Hesper Quarter for the remainder of the year, kindly relieving Stella F. Jenkins on account of her very pressing school work.

Frances Jenkins will spend the summer in Boise, Idaho, assisting Amanda Way, who is located as pastor of the church in that city.

Elizabeth Butler, of Barclay, is still suffering from the effects of a fall occasioned by stepping on a porch one of those sleety mornings some weeks since.

Friends of Ezra Lamborn were pleased that he was able to attend some of the sessions of Buffalo Quarterly Meeting. He represents the "K. C. Journal."

The university opens the Spring term with quite a number of new students enrolled.

The winter term of Stella Friends' Academy, Cherokee, O. T., closed Third month 2d, with a very interesting "Public," given by the Mirage Literary Society.

Through the efforts of Annie Ray, of Washington Friends' Meeting, Kansas, and Susie Allen, a most successful revival was held at the Academy last term. Nearly all of the students accepted Christ as a present and all satisfying portion. The students are proving faithful in testimony and daily living.

The Spring term opened Third month 7th, with the largest attendance of any one term in its history. Over sixty have been enrolled so far, and others yet to enter. The annual enrollment has reached nearly ninety.

Pupils are in attendance from a territory one hundred and twenty miles east to eighteen miles northwest, and from twenty-six miles northeast to forty miles southeast. Thirty-five are boarding themselves or in private families, and attending school. The Academy being entirely removed from the evil influences of the town, parents from all over the surrounding country are sending or looking towards sending their children to a place where they can be cared for as in a home, and receive the best of high school instruction under the direction of Christian teachers.

Sixteen are taking the special work in Methods of Teaching and Pedagogy, with a view of teaching next winter.

We hear that there is likewise a grand opening for the establishment and maintenance of a good Friends' Academy of high grade in Tecumseh, Oklahoma Territory.

An excellent building, which will be splendidly equipped for school purposes, and a nice living residence will be furnished, all free, for use by some experienced collegiate graduate who is a member of Friends, and desires to work in this new and interesting educational field. It is desirable that a minister and his wife apply for the position at Tecumseh.

Those desiring can correspond with Superintendent George N. Hartley, of the Indian Work, Tecumseh, Oklahoma Territory.

We are glad to welcome Brother and Sister Hester back from their work at Harmony, Pawnee County.

FOREIGN NEWS.

We have received the following letter from Theophilus Waldmeier:

Dear Friends: Asfuriyeh, Syria, Third month 10th, 1899.

It is now over a year since my wife and myself had the great pleasure of being among you. We do think with loving remembrance of you all, and we shall never forget your kindness and Christian love by which you received us. We also thank you very heartily for your sympathy and help which you extended to us in our arduous work (Hebrew 6: 10), for alleviating the cruel condition of the mentally afflicted sufferers of Bible Lands. We believe that our heavenly Father has given us this work to do for Him, and we rejoice that He has prospered it so far. An excellent site of good land of thirty-three acres in the Lebanon district of "el Metn," with fine climate and plenty of water which is very good and pure. There are many olive, fig and almond trees, and a great deal of vine; this whole property is put in the hands of English and American trustees. The administration building is quite finished now, and we are engaged in the erection of the two pavilions, one for twenty male, and the other for twenty female patients, and hope that they will be finished at the beginning of the fall so that we shall soon be able to receive patients.

Our desire is that that our American Friends should also have their pavilion among other nations, and that they should have a share in this pioneer work so urgently needed in this country. The small country of Switzerland has asked it as a favor to have a hand in this "Bethesda," and they have collected nearly the half of the amount required for one pavilion, and are doing their best to raise the whole sum of £1,000. I have calculated that one pavilion for twenty patients will cost this amount. You have already very nobly contributed £700, more than half, there remains only £300 more to raise. Besides this we should like you to do your best to secure annual subscriptions in order to help us to defray the current expenses. We shall of course take in paying patients. Surely we shall work the property well, and to try and get an income from the land, and try and do our best to get annual subscribers in Syria itself, and also in England and Europe. The annual expenses will amount to about £1,600. The doctor, a specialist of mental diseases and a distinguished M.D., is an earnest Christian young man from Switzerland, and will render his service gratis in our hospital, out of love for his Master, who himself has chosen him to work among the poorest of the poor, or the "dead who cannot be buried." This noble service will of course lessen our expenses a great deal. Since our return to this country we have seen and heard heart-rendering stories about the deplorable state and cruel treatment of these poor, mentally afflicted people, and have been laboring ever since to erect this "Bethesda," a refuge for the poor, forsaken ones, who cannot plead their cause. Many, many applications we have already received, and we are very anxious to get the two houses ready as soon as possible. We therefore need your sympathy, prayers and help in order to bring relief to those who cannot help themselves, but become a victim of cruelty and superstition through ignorance. For this Christ-like work you have already become fellow-workers, and have a share in its noble purpose.

With much love to you all, we remain, your affectionate Friends and fellow-workers,

THEOPHILUS AND FAREDA WALDEMEIER.

CORRECTION.

The name of the author of the article, "Life Laid Down," in last issue is Reba E. Jenkins. It was incorrectly printed "Rita."

Married.

COALMAN—ELLIS.—Married, on the 25th of Second month, 1899, at the home of the bride's parents, William J. and Emma C. Ellis, near Belmont, Kingman County, Kansas, Rosalie Ellis to Edwin Coalman, of Harper County, Kansas.

Died.

ALLEN.—Emma Samira Allen, daughter of Joseph Milton and Charity Kersey Allen, died in Chicago, Ill., Second month 21st, of pneumonia, aged 45 years. She was a member of Whitewater Monthly Meeting, her home being at Richmond, Ind.

ALMY.—Died First month 13th, 1899, Susan H. Almy, an elder and member of Rhode Island Monthly Meeting, in the eighty-fifth year of her age. Between her life and the life of her husband, Levi, a minister, who died some years before, there was ever manifest a beautiful and divine correlation. Sharing with him his spiritual exercises, she adorned the doctrine with the meekness and the gentleness of Christ her Saviour. When near the close, she said, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

BARKER.—Joseph E. Barker, son of Joseph and Jemima Barker, died at Rose Hill, Kansas, Third month 4th, 1899, aged 26 years. He was a member of Rose Hill Monthly Meeting. He was converted in 1892. His friends have the comforting assurance given by seven years of Christian life that all was well.

CARTER.—Amy E. Carter, daughter of William P. and Lydia M. Briggs, and wife of Oliver C. Carter, died suddenly of heart disease, First month 23d, 1899, aged 38 years, 9 months and 12 days. She leaves a husband and three children, with numerous other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She was a member of North Branch Monthly Meeting, Kansas. We have the consoling evidence that her end was peace.

DOAN.—Died near Laton, Kansas, Third month 7th, 1899, Ebenezer Doan, son of David and Ruth Doan (both deceased), aged 64 years, 3 months and 9 days. He was a member and an elder of Chalk Mound Monthly Meeting of Friends. As a devoted Christian and a pillar in the church he will be greatly missed. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn their loss, which we believe to be his eternal gain.

HALLETT.—Died Second month 21st, aged 55 years, Sarah Louise Hallett. The last words on her patient lips were, "Father help me!" and she passed into the heavenlies. Always dove-like and humble, yet full of loving ministry for others, not only in the beautiful home of her girlhood, where many eminent ministers and servants of the Lord found rest, and refreshment, but in the late years of her widowed life, when all with whom she came into contact felt the simplicity of her faith and the sincerity of her love for the Master, was she greatly helped to adorn the doctrine of God her Saviour.

HORNADA.—Caroline E. Hornada, an old resident of Ridge Farm, Illinois, died Eighth month 20th, 1898, aged 66 years. She was born Eleventh month 17th, 1832, and was the daughter of Thomas and Margaret Haworth. She was married to William H. Hornada, Eleventh month 11th, 1854. She embraced the Christian faith in early life, and has been a life-long Friend. She was a faithful wife, an affectionate mother, and always lived a faithful and blameless life before her family and those about her.

MOTE.—Died on the evening of Eleventh month 29th, 1898, at the home of his daughter in West Milton, O., Luke Smith Mote, in the eighty-seventh of his age. He was the oldest son of David and Mariam Mote, and a member and elder of West Branch Monthly Meeting. Possessing enlarged views of the leading doctrines of the church, he much desired that these should ever be upheld. At the same time he recognized as his brother, every believer in the Lord Jesus. His interest and zeal for the cause of Christ remained strong during his declining years, and the close of his life was characterized by calmness and trust.

STUBBS.—Beulah Ann Stubbs died at the home of her daughter in Fruitland, Kansas, on the 23d day of Third month, 1899, aged 68 years, 7 months and 29 days. She was the widow of Elijah M. Stubbs (deceased in Third month, 5th, 1887). They with their family moved to Kansas from West Elkton, Ohio in Eleventh month, 1879. She was a life-long member with Friends, and at her death belonged to Fruitland Monthly Meeting of Cottonwood Quarterly Meeting. She was prepared for the change and to meet her Saviour.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

AT EVENTIDE.

At eventide its shadows fall
O'er daily toil, enfolding all
With kindly grace; and gathered there
Around the firelight's cheering glow,
Where loving hearts dispel the care,
On each our tender thought bestow—
Our words and acts in kindness meant—
Each face reflects the sweet content.

A house of stone or wood we build,
A home within ourselves is found,
A home with choicest treasures filled,
Where love and faith and joy abound.

—WILLIAM N. HOLWAY.

To hate the Devil and all his works is one thing.
To say who is the Devil, and what are his works, is another.—Miss Thackeray.

News and Events.

Thirteen ringleaders of the Lake City, South Carolina mob of lynchers were placed on trial at Charleston on the 10th inst. It is gratifying to all lovers of good order that these ruffians will at least have to answer before the law for their lawlessness, though it is doubtful whether a South Carolina jury can be found to convict them. The Lake City tragedy occurred on Second month 22d, 1898, only a week before the destruction of the Maine. On account of this national misfortune the attention of the country was diverted from the importance of the former event, and justice has dragged slowly for over a year. Baker, it will be remembered, was postmaster at Lake City, and innocently incurring the displeasure of the whites, he was attacked in his home at night. He was instantly killed while attempting to escape from the house, and with him was also killed a baby which he carried in his arms. His wife and five other children were shot again and again, but narrowly managed to escape with their lives. Hardly ever has a more unspeakable and absolutely inexcusable atrocity taken place since the war. Some strong warning against all such acts of violence is vitally needed, and especially at this time, when the craze for lynching is so widespread.

Some isolated attempts at forwarding messages by wireless telegraphy have been recorded in the press during the past year, but what seems to have been the most successful effort of this kind was the sending, week before last, of a despatch from France to England by electricity without the intermediary of any wire. The message was printed in the London "Times." The method consists of the transmission of electric waves from one delicately adjusted and sensitive instrument to another exactly adjusted to the same kind of vibration. A vertical conductor is used; that employed in the recent experiments was over one hundred feet high. It cannot be foretold to what extent this method will supersede the present system, but it seems pretty certain that it is eventually to play an important part in our material progress.

The representatives of the United States to the disarmament Congress, to meet at The Hague on Fifth month 18th, were appointed last week by the President. The men chosen are exceptionally able, and will undoubtedly prove themselves strong in their coming mission. They are Andrew D. White, our present Ambassador to Germany; Mr. Newell, United States Minister to the Netherlands; Seth Low, President of Columbia University; Captain William Crozier, of the United States Army Ordinance Department; Captain A. T. Mahan, lately retired from the United States Navy, and Frederick Hollis, of New York. The last will be the secretary of the delegation. The cause of the conference, we may be sure, will be well served in a pre-eminent measure by Andrew D. White, than whom there is no more ardent advocate of peace among all our public men. Others of the delegation in several instances are considerably less to be depended upon than he, but as the object of the conference is primarily for the lessening of Europe's armaments and not the disbanding of her armies, it is well perhaps that there should be those in the delegation who have a more practical knowledge of modern warfare.

The United States Philippine Commissioners issued on the 4th a proclamation to the people of those islands. It expressed the President's good will, promised needful reforms in all departments of the government, asserted the aim of the United States to be the welfare and the elevation of the Filipinos. It says the supremacy of the United States must and will be enforced throughout every part of the archipelago, and those who resist it can accomplish no end other than their own ruin. The most ample liberty of self-government will be granted to the Philippine people which is reconcilable with the maintenance of just, stable and economical administration of public affairs and compatible with the sovereign and international rights and obligations of the United States.

During the past week little news of an important character has come from the scene of the late activities in the islands, and it is thought that General Otis is waiting for the above proclamation to become thoroughly disseminated, and to give the Tagalos an opportunity to thoroughly understand the aims of this country before continuing the aggressive campaign, already begun with such force. Perhaps the most important item of information is that General Lawton started on the night of the 8th across the Lake Laguna de Bay with 1,500 men, in order to carry forward the war in the region east of the lake. The campaign will be conducted on the order of Indian warfare in small squads, General Lawton being a past master in such tactics.

THE GIRARD TRUST CO.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

LIFE INSURANCE
ANNUITY AND

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer.
HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, JR.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,
ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

A LIST OF MEETINGS APPOINTED TO BE HELD IN TWELFTH STREET MEETING HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA.

(Twelfth Street, below Market.)

During Yearly Meeting Week, 1899.

All interested are cordially invited to attend and to take such part in the discussions as may seem to them right.

Second-day, Fourth month 17th.

Peace.—Afternoon 4 o'clock. Annual Meeting of the Philadelphia Peace Association of Friends, in the Committee Room. After the reading of the usual report and the routine business the following addresses are expected:

"Present Outlook with Special Reference to the Work of Friends."—Dr. Richard Henry Thomas, of Baltimore.

"Individual Work for Peace."—Jno. D. Carter.

"Lessons from the Spanish War."—Isaac Sharpless.

Freedmen.—Evening 7.45 o'clock. Annual Meeting of the Friends' Freedmen Association of Philadelphia, Charles L. Marshall, Principal of the School at Christiansburg, Va., will be present with specimens of the work of the Scholars in the Industrial Department. It is also expected that Booker T. Washington, who feels a deep interest in the school will address the meeting in its behalf. There will be report of the purchase of a farm to be used in connection with the school as directed at the last Annual Meeting. A most interesting occasion is expected and all will be welcome.

Third-day, Fourth month 18th.

Bible Schools.—Afternoon 4 o'clock. Thirty-seventh Annual Meeting of the Friends' First-day School Association of Philadelphia and its vicinity. Reports from the various schools and classes and remarks suggested by the same.

Tea from 6 to 7.15 o'clock.

Bible Schools (Continued.)—Evening 7.45 o'clock. Addresses by Dr. Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore, who comes by request of the Executive Committee. Subject: "What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer."

Fourth-day, Fourth month 19th.

Foreign Missions.—Afternoon 4 o'clock Special Meeting of the Foreign Missionary Association of Friends of Philadelphia Margaret W. Leitch, of Ceylon, will address the meeting on "The Joys and Successes of Mission Work."

Gilbert Bowles, of Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa, is expected to be present.

Tea from 6 to 7.15 o'clock.

Temperance.—Evening 7.45 o'clock Annual Meeting of the Temperance Association of Friends of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting.

The work of the past year will be reviewed and a synopsis given of the various reports for the year. An address will be delivered by Charles H. Mead, of New York city, Secretary of the National Temperance Association.

Fifth-Day, Fourth month 20th.

Indian Aid.—Evening 7.45 o'clock Annual Meeting of the Philadelphia Indian Aid Association in the Committee Room.

The annual report will be read. A report of the school at Skiatook, Indian Territory, will be presented, and some account given of the more general work of the Association during the past year.

JOTTINGS.

Admiral Dewey, upon being interviewed by a reporter regarding the suggestion that the Admiral be made a candidate for the Presidency next year is credited with saying that he could not and would not be a candidate, his entire life having been devoted to a calling which has in no wise fitted him for responsibilities such as would devolve upon him in such a position.

The formal declaration of the termination of the Spanish-American War will be a matter of only a few days. At this writing the treaty is on its way to Washington from the Queen Regent, and the ceremony of its ratification will follow immediately upon its arrival.

A terrible disaster occurred in New York city on the 7th, when the houses of Wallace C. Andrews and Albert J. Adams, in the most aristocratic section of the town, was destroyed by fire. The entire family of the former perished in the flames. An explosion of gas is believed to have started the flames.

The contract for building a bridge over the Atabara River in Egypt has been awarded by the British Government to the Pencoyd Bridge Works, of Philadelphia. The English manufacturers are greatly dissatisfied and charge favoritism, though they were unable to compete, as the specifications showed, either in time or price with the American manufacturers.

An agreement has been reached between the United States, Germany and Great Britain for the appointment of a Joint High Commission for Samoa. Unanimity will be necessary upon all decisions of the commission.

The Attorney General has decided that Section 17 of the act "increasing the efficiency of the army" does not prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors through the canteen system as heretofore organized, except that no officer or enlisted man can be detailed for duty in the canteen to sell liquor. This decision is being actively protested by the W. C. T. U. and other organizations and it is to be hoped that there will be no evasion of the evident intentions of the framers of the law.

General Rios, Spain's chief commander in the Philippines, has cabled his government that it is hopeless to expect the liberation of the Spanish prisoners while the war between the Americans and the Tagalos continues.

TO OLD POINT COMFORT, RICHMOND, AND WASHINGTON UNDER PERSONAL ESCORT.

The next six-day personally-conducted tour to Old Point Comfort, Richmond, and Washington via the Pennsylvania Railroad will leave New York and Philadelphia on Saturday, April 15th.

Tickets, including transportation, meals en route in both directions, transfers of passengers and baggage, hotel accommodations at Old Point Comfort, Richmond, and Washington, and carriage ride about Richmond will be sold at rate of $34.00 from New York, Brooklyn, and Newark; $32.50 from Trenton; $31.00 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other stations.

GETTYSBURG, LURAY, AND WASHINGTON.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged for a five-day Personally-Conducted Tour to Gettysburg, Luray, and Washington on May 6th. A full day will be spent at Gettysburg, three hours at Luray, affording ample time to make the tour of the wonderful caverns, and two days at Washington.

The party will be under the guidance of one of the company's experienced tourist agents. A chaperon, whose especial charge will be unescorted ladies, will also accompany the party throughout. Round-trip tickets, including transportation for the round trip, hotel accommodations at Gettysburg and carriage drive over the battlefield, luncheon, transfer, and admission to the Luray Caverns, luncheon, transfer, and hotel accommodations at Washington, and dinner going and supper returning, at Broad Street Station in connection with tickets from Trenton and points east thereof, will be sold at the extremely low rate of $25 from New York, $24 from Trenton, $22 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1193 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

NOTICE.

California Yearly Meeting will be held at Long Beach, California, beginning Sixth month 13th, 1899. Meeting of Ministry and Oversight at 2.30 p. m., the 12th, to which we will welcome any of our Friends who can come.

M. M. BROWN,
Cor. Sec. of Entertainment Com.

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance, par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.
Call or address
INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

EDUCATIONAL.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.
A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both mineral and College Preparatory courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Vapo-Cresolene.

Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma, Colds

Hundreds of thousands of mothers use Vapo-Cresolene. Do You? Cresolene cures Whooping Cough every time; stops Croup almost immediately, and if used at once will cure a Cold before any complications can arise. I. N. Love, M.D., of St. Louis, says: "I have instructed every family under my direction to secure it." Mrs. Ballington Booth, says: "I recommend that no family where there are young children should be without it." W. R. Chichester, M.D., of New York, says: "As a vehicle for disinfecting purposes Cresolene is immediately successful." Anthony Comstock, says: "Malignant Diphtheria in my house; Cresolene used; cases recovered in two weeks; no others were affected." Descriptive booklet with testimonials free. Sold by all druggists.

VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 68 Wall St., New York.
Schieffelin & Co., New York, U. S. Agents.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

NOTICE.

The Box Committee of the Friends' Foreign Missionary Association invites thee to the Friends Institute, 20 S. Twelfth Street, on the occasion of their first Donation Day, Fourth month 26th.

Boxes are to be sent to Tokyo, Japan; Hoshangabad, India; Brumana and Ramallah, Syria.

Gifts of muslin, calico, flannel, woolen goods, books, black-haired dolls, furnished work bags, text cards, toilet soap, stationery, household articles, scrap books, etc., will be gratefully received.

The Committee requests that articles should be marked with the donor's name and the destination desired.

The Japan box will be closed on Eighth month 31st, 1899; the others immediately after Donation Day.

Money should be sent to the Superintendent,

EMILY B. STOKES,
1719 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

"I HOPE I AM."

Frequently we hear the above as an answer to the question, "Are you a Christian?"

Scarcely any other word is so often misused as "hope." I am surprised that Caleb Cobweb has not blacklisted such misuse of it. Hope refers to the future, and to an uncertain future. Why should there be any uncertainty as to our status as Christians?

The apostle says, "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." The Lord Jesus says, "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life." If we love the brethren, if we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, why not joyfully and confidently exclaim, "Yes, I am a Christian, praise the Lord!"

Any—even a seeming—uncertainty as to our standing in the Christian life has a most unhappy effect, not only upon the doubtful Christian himself, but upon the worldling who might be influenced to walk in the ways of righteousness if he could hear our glad and hearty acknowledgement of loving allegiance to the Lord Jesus.—S. M. Allen in "Christian Endeavor World"

OUR BIBLICAL CHART, a beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight in every Christian family, first Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 52 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. MCGEE & CO.,

1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE OLD STANDBY!

DELAVAL'S REMEDY

A Sure Cure for
Whooping Cough
Croup and
Ordinary Colds

AT DRUGGISTS.

The Wonderful
Golden Rambler Rose

Hardy and bears all the time. A glorious profusion of gold and white roses at same time on same bush. Blooms all summer from June till December. Finest, hardy ever-blooming rose for garden, trellis or veranda. Strong plants on own roots. 15c. each, 2 for 25c. New Floral Guide 124 pages, tells all about 400 other choice flowers. Free. CONARD & JONES CO., Dept. S. West Grove, Pa.

A want advertisement in "The American Friend" will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

Soak your bicycle lamps and chains in Pearline and hot water. Lamps will give more light; chains run easier. Dirt's to blame when they bother you—and Pearline is death on dirt.

A little box or bottle of Pearline ought to be in every tool-bag. Takes little or no room; is the best thing in the world for mud or grease stains. 579

Millions ^{NOW} USE Pearline Beware of imitations

WENDELL PHILLIPS AND THE MOB.

I recall now a scene in Tremont Temple just before the breaking out of our civil war, says Julia Ward Howe, in the March "Atlantic." An anti-slavery meeting had been announced, and a scheme had been devised to break it up. As I entered, I met Mrs. Chapman, who said, "These are times in which anti-slavery people must stand by each other." On the platform were seated a number of prominent abolitionists. Mr. Phillips was to be the second speaker, but when he stepped forward to address the meeting, a perfect hubbub arose in the gallery. Srieaks, howls, and catcalls resounded. Again and again the great orator essayed to speak. Again and again his voice was drowned by the general uproar. I sat near enough to hear him say, with a smile, "Those boys in the gallery will soon tire themselves out." And so, indeed, it befell. After a delay which appeared to some of us endless, the noise subsided, and Wendell Phillips, still in the glory of his strength and manly beauty, stood up before the house, and soon held all present spellbound by the magic of his speech. The clear silver ring of his voice carried conviction with it. From head to foot he seemed aflame with the passion of his convictions. He used the simplest English, and spoke with such distinctness that his lowest tones, almost a whisper could be heard throughout the large hall. Yerrinton, the only man who could report Wendell Phillips' speeches, once told my husband that it was like reporting chain lightning.

THE LAMB OF GOD

OR THE

Scriptural Philosophy of the Atonement

By WILLIAM P. PINKHAM.

A simple, clear, forcible statement of the great primary truths of Christianity, showing The Necessity for Atonement, The Conditions which Determined its Nature and Character, Who and What is Christ, His Vicarious Offering, How it Reconciles Us to God, and The Benefits (conditional and unconditional) which Flow from it.

Twelve brief appendices treat of deeply interesting related subjects: Hell, Satan, Divine Wrath, Divine Fatherhood, Divine Passibility, Immortality, Total Depravity, Three in One, An Early Revelation, The Unpardonable Sin, Errors About the Blood, Christ and the Children.

The book is believed to be Purely Scriptural, Thoroughly Evangelical, Strictly Undenominational, and adapted to the need of those seeking light on these great themes.

"Interesting and instructive."

"A gold mine of precious truths."

"Many things which I never thought of."

"I can and do most heartily endorse it."

"I wish every one (in our meeting) had this book."

Price, $1.00, by mail, postage paid, or five copies for $4.00, postage paid.

Address THE AUTHOR, or

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 CEDAR AVENUE,
Cleveland, O.

Correspondence Course in Bible Study

This is a provision for the successful study of the Bible at home.

In preparing this course the instructors have endeavored to avoid, as far as possible, the mistakes which have made some similar courses a failure. This course is confined to Bible Study, no books being required except the Bible, a Concordance, and a Bible Dictionary.

The plan is unique, leading the pupil to discover, and to become skillful in discovering, the inestimable treasures of the Bible, historical, prophetic, typical, moral and spiritual, and making Bible study a continual feast.

One dollar and fifty cents a year, in advance, or five dollars for the four years' course, entitles the pupil to ten sets of lesson papers per year, covering a full year's work; to examinations at least twice in the year; to the BIBLE STUDENT Monthly, or for ten months in the year; to the first five class lessons at the opening of any one term in the Training School, and to the privilege of asking questions, to be answered by letter or in the columns of the BIBLE STUDENT.

Each pupil can take his own time for completing the course or any part of it.

Send applications, with check or money order, to

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 CEDAR AVENUE,
Cleveland, O.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF IMPORTANCE OF PUNCTUATION.

Epitaph in Saratoga graveyard. "Erected to the memory of John Phillips, accidentally shot as a mark of affection by his brother."

Or this: 'The following lines were written fifty years ago by one who has slept in his grave for many years simply for his own amusement.'

Or this: "The gentleman who took the umbrella from the young lady with whalebone ribs will return it at once and avoid trouble."

A paper records a smart reply of a Scotch student to his professor. As a rule the professor has the best of it, but in this case the tables were turned. An enthusiastic professor had been advocating the advantages of athletic exercise. "The Roman youths," he cried, "used to swim three times across the Tiber before breakfast." The Scotch student smiled, at which the irate professor exclaimed: "Mr. McAllister, why do you smile? We shall be glad to share your amusement." The canny Scot replied: "I was just thinking, sir, that the Roman youths must have left their clothes on the wrong bank at the end of their swim."—"The Bookman."

WANTS.

[We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS of any kind to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Advertisements will be inserted in this column at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.]

FOR SALE. General stock of merchandise. A good location, Friends' neighborhood, Twenty rods of church; Academy building in process of erection. Reason for selling, poor health. Write for terms to H. S. McCLELLAN Chapel, Mo.

WANTED.—By a young man, a position as teacher in Business Department. Would prefer a Friend's school in Central or Western State. Address B, care of AMERICAN FRIEND.

A FRIEND wants position as teacher. He is a graduate of a Friend's College. Nine years' experience; three as Prin. of Friends' Academies. Address V, care of AMERICAN FRIEND.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Corcoran St., Wash., D. C.

A FRIEND of intelligence and refinement wishes position as companion, mother's help, or to do any light work not menial. Address M., care of American Friend

YOUNG LADY, Friend (A. B.), experienced teacher, who has made a special study of the German language and literature, at home and abroad, under instructors of recognized authority, and who has given much attention to method, wishes a position in college or school. Best references. Address A, American Friend.

A YOUNG MAN, nineteen years old, desires a situation to learn a trade (plumbers' preferred) in the vicinity of Friends' Meeting. Address George E. Peaslee, Gonic, N. H.

ACTINA AND MAGNETIC CONSERVATIVE APPLIANCES.

We have numerous testimonials as to the value of these articles in curing Chronic Catarrh, Hay Fever, Asthma, Cataract, Deafness, Rheumatism, Gout, and various other ills humanity is heir to. For sale by the

PHILADELPHIA MAGNETIC CO.,
1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and
Heals all
Inflamed Surfaces, Cures
Sore Throat,
Coughs, Colds,
Bronchitis,
Asthma,
Catarrh and

Relieves
Pain

TRUE, AS FAR AS IT WENT.

This story is told of a venerable gentleman who, while he had a high regard for the truth, was also given to exploiting an occasional jest:

"I spoke the truth, and the literal truth," said the old gentleman, impressively. "Believe me or not, as you may, I am not more than sixty years of age, and yet for more than fifty of those years I have eaten nothing." The elegant young man looked rather uneasy. "I don't want to be offensive," he observed, "but really are you sure that you're feeling well in your mind?" The hale and hearty old gentleman laughed outright. "No, I am not crazy, if that's what you mean," he returned; "but see here. I'll explain. Out of the twenty-four hours of the day I never spend more than three, all told, for my breakfast, lunch and dinner, and often not as much as that. But let us say three. That leaves twenty-one during which I take no food; that is to say, seven-eighths of my time. Seven-eighths of sixty years is fifty-two and one-half; so, you see, it is literally true that for more than fifty years I haven't eaten a thing, and—" But the elegant young man had gone off as fast as his legs could carry him.

LAST TWO TOURS TO WASHINGTON UNDER PERSONAL ESCORT.

The last two of the present series of Pennsylvania Railroad three-day personally-conducted tours to Washington, D. C., will leave April 20th and May 11th. The rate, $14.50 from New York, $11.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points, includes transportation, hotel accommodations, and Capitol guide fees. An experienced Chaperon will also accompany the party.

For itineraries, tickets, and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

OLD POINT COMFORT ONLY.

Tickets to Old Point Comfort only, including luncheon on going trip, one and three-fourths days' board at that place, and good to return direct by regular trains within six days, will be sold in connection with this tour at rate of $15.00 from New York; $13.50 from Trenton; $12.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

THE EFFECT OF ROYALTY UPON THE LOYAL SUBJECT.

In an entertaining article on English characteristics by Julian Ralph in "Harper's Magazine," we are given a number of sidelights on English thought, manners, customs, and character. Among the illustrations furnished is this, showing the curious effect that the presence of royalty has upon some people. Mr. Ralph says:

On jubilee day I stood so near the procession that I could have touched the door of her majesty's carriage with my walking stick.

When she had ridden by, the lady next to me said:

"O dear, now she's gone, and I didn't see her."

"Didn't see her?" I repeated, in astonishment.

"I couldn't," she replied. "I was so excited I could not look at her. This is the third time I've tried, but something always comes up and blinds me."

Once I was walking in Hyde Park with a little English lady, who suddenly cried out:

"O, there's the princess" (meaning the Princess of Wales), "and Princess Victoria! Do hurry and let us get near the road to see them!"

"Well, there, they have gone," said she, after the royal carriage had passed, "and I shall be in a flutter for half an hour. I suppose you'll never understand it, but I go perfectly silly whenever I see royalty."

No one who knows Macbeth lamp-chimneys will have any other — except some dealers who want their chimneys to break.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary

THE PEARL-DIVER.

The Christian is like the pearl-diver, who is out on the sunshine for a little, spending his short day amid rocks and weeds and dangers at the bottom of the ocean. Does he desire to spend his life there? No, but his master wants him to. Is his life there? No, his life is up above. A communication is open to the surface, and the fresh, pure life comes down to him from God. Is he not wasting time there? He is gathering pearls for his Master's crown. Will he always stay there? When the last pearl is gathered, the "Come up higher" will beckon him away, and the weights which kept him down will become an exceeding weight of glory, and he will go, he and those he brings with him, to his Father.—Professor Drummond.

If you Lack Energy,

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It vitalizes the nerves, helps digestion, feeds the brain, makes life worth living. It is a medicine, a food and a delicious beverage.

GOOD FOR "GENERAL LOWNESS."

If in every case where alcohol is prescribed a mistake should be made similar to that related in the following anecdote, the world would be the healthier.

The other day a distracted mother brought her daughter to see a physician. The girl was suffering from "general lowness." The doctor prescribed for her a glass of claret three times a day, with her meals. The mother was somewhat deaf, but apparently heard all he said, and bore off her daughter. In ten days' time they were back again, and the girl was rosy-cheeked, smiling, and the picture of health. The doctor congratulated himself upon the keen insight he had displayed in his diagnosis of the case. "I am glad to see that your daughter is so much better," he said.

"Yes," exclaimed the grateful mother; "thanks to you, doctor! She has had just what you ordered. She has eaten carrots three times a day since we were here, and sometimes oftener,—and once or twice uncooked,—and now look at her!"

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN }
ATLANTIC }
BRADLEY }
BROOKLYN } New York.
JEWETT }
ULSTER }
UNION }
SOUTHERN } Chicago.
SHIPMAN }
COLLIER }
MISSOURI } St. Louis.
RED SEAL }
SOUTHERN }

JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO Philadelphia.
MORLEY Cleveland.
SALEM Salem, Mass.
CORNELL Buffalo.
KENTUCKY Louisville.

FRESH coat of paint and change of color will make your house look fresh and bright. If you want to sell it will enhance the value of your property, or enable you to rent it quicker, to better tenants and for more money; is therefore a good investment if properly painted. To paint it properly have Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil applied by a competent, practical painter.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.

ASA S. WING, Vice-President.

JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.

SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.

DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.

J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.

C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

A preacher had better work in the dark, with nothing but mother wit, a quickened conscience, and a Saxon Bible to teach him what to do and how to do it, than to vault into an aerial ministry into which only the upper classes shall know or care anything about him. You had better go and talk the Gospel in the Cornish dialect to those miners who told the witnesses summoned by the committee of the English Parliament that they "had never heard of Mister Jesus Christ in these mines," than do the work of the Bishop of London. Make your ministry reach the people in the forms of purest doctrine if possible, but reach the people. The great problem of life to an educated ministry is to make their culture a power instead of a luxury. Our temptations are all one way. Our mission is all the other way.—Professor Austin Phelps.

DON'T CUT

your corns. It's dangerous. Use A-Corn Salve instead. Sure and safe. No pain, no poison, and the Corn goes—that's a strong point.
 15c.—druggists or by mail.

GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
 305 Cherry Street, Phila.

BOARDING.

Friends will find a good, comfortable boarding place with Friends at M. E. WISTAR'S, 1725 Arch St., Phila., only three blocks from Broad St. Station.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.
 Near Omaha.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - - $25.00 each.
Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.
Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,
E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.
 Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

"Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S

Absolutely Pure 25c.
& 39c. Bon Bons.

Fresh Daily. Made in our own Manufactory.
Lowest prices in the world for Candies of equal quality. Packed in $\frac{1}{2}$, 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 lb. boxes.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son,
WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.
Window Shades Made to Order.
902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,
118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

Friends wishing to seek positions or to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion.

Non-alcoholic Flavoring Powders,
The Boston Perfection Pie Rim,
and other Household Novelties

For sale by

M. P. GIFFORD,

1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

"A PERFECT FOOD—as Wholesome as it is Delicious."

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S BREAKFAST COCOA

"Has stood the test of more than 100 years' use among all classes, and for purity and honest worth is unequalled."
—Medical and Surgical Journal.

Costs less than ONE CENT a Cup.
Trade-Mark on Every Package.

WALTER BAKER & CO. LTD.,
Established 1780. DORCHESTER, MASS.

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.
A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.
The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.
Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.
Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West.
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

Spring and Summer Fabrics now ready.

GUSTAVUS GOLZE,
Merchant Tailor,
123 N. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

The Union Trust Co.,

715-717-719 CHESTNUT STREET, PHILA.

$500,000.00.
250,000.00.
101,002.32.
CAPITAL,
SURPLUS,
UNDIVIDED PROFITS,

Buy and Sell Real Estate, collect rents, interest, dividends, and incomes.

Executes trusts of all kinds at moderate charges.
Pays three per cent. interest on Saving Fund and time deposits, and two per cent. on check. Rents boxes in safe-deposit vaults at $3.00 and upward per annum.

OFFICERS.

J. SIMPSON AFRICA, President.
THOMAS R. PATTON, Vice-President.
GEORGE A. FLETCHER, 2d Vice-President.
WILLIAM J. CLARK, Treas. and Sec.
PERCY B. METZGER, Trust Officer.

DIRECTORS.

J. Simpson Africa, Thomas G. Hood, Oscar B. Meyers, Edward Bailey, Wm. B. Irvine, Thos. R. Patton,
William J. Clark, Joseph I. Keefe, Edward L. Perkins,
George A. Fletcher, Chas. A. Lagen, Wm. C. Stoeber, Fred. Monroe, Jno. P. McGrath, Joseph Thomas.

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA:

Insurance in Force, - - - - $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE
AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

The American Friend

EARLHAM COLLEGE
LIBRARY.

Vol. VI

FOURTH MONTH 20th, 1899

No. 16

ARCH STREET MEETING-HOUSE, where Philadelphia Yearly Meeting is being held.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❁ ❁ ❁ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.
Call or addressINTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, PaPlease mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our advertisements.THE GIRARD CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
LIFE INSURANCE SURPLUS, $2,000,000.
ANNUITY AND TRUST CO.Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer.
HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, JR.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,
ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON B. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.*THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,
Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.Jackets, Reefers and Dresses

For the stately Miss of 14 or 16, her irrepressible sister of 6, 8, 10 or 12, or the wee tottler from 2 to 5 years, in the most engaging styles and of fashion's chosen fabrics for Spring.

Misses' Reefers in navy, gobelin, tan and brown Cloths, new shaped collar nicely braided, and pearl buttons, sizes 4 to 12 years, at $4 75.

Misses' Reefers in navy, tan and red Cloths, very latest collar, lined with Silk and handsomely braided, sizes 6 to 12 years, at $6.50.

Misses' Fly-front Jackets of Covert Cloths, lined throughout with Silk Serge, sizes 12 to 18 years, at $6 50.

Misses' Fly front Jackets of beautiful Venetian Cloth, in blue, tan and brown, lined throughout with best Taffetas Silk, sizes 14 and 16 years, at $10 00.

Misses' fine Dresses and Sailor Suits, in Serge, Cheviot and all the newest materials, made and finished in the most approved styles, sizes 4 to 14 years. Prices range from $3 75 to $15 00.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTYBought, sold and handled for non-residents.
ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.WICHITA, KANSAS.JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.
All inquiries concerning our city and country have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick BuildingPlease mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our advertisements.PENN MUTUAL LIFE

INSURANCE COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

ALL the best forms of Life Insurance, in a Company conducted by members solely for members, at a lower cost than elsewhere.

HOME OFFICE,

921 Chestnut Street

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, FOURTH MONTH 20, 1899.

No. 16.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
EDITORIALS.—Kadesh-Barnea and Afterwards.—Penn College.—John R. Harris.—Richard Cadbury.—Editorial Note	363-365
Him or It	Stephen Merritt 365
God's Kindness to Lame Souls	Theodore L. Cuyler 366
Poem.—No Need For Them to Go Away	Samuel L. Haworth 366
"Realism" in Preaching	M. M. Binford 367
INTERNATIONAL LESSON.—Fourth month 30th, 1899.	368

	PAGE
Sixteenth Annual Report of the "Earnest Workers"	369
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	370
Foreign Mission Work	373
Woman as a Public Speaker	George W. Hoss 374
Serious Reflections	E. O. Ellis 375
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	376
DEATHS	378

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side.
Then it is the brave man chooses, while the coward stands aside, Doubting in his abject spirit, till his Lord is crucified.

—James Russell Lowell.

KADESH-BARNEA AND AFTERWARDS.

THERE are times in the life of all men, and in the history of all peoples, when the Divine Voice says, as at Kadesh-Barnea: "You have encompassed this mountain long enough; go forward." These periods of definite advance are always critical epochs, and they are times which try men's souls, for new experiences and new milestones on the way bring unexpected problems, and dangers and trials which were unknown in the steady round of "the old paths." Such Kadesh-Barnea* experiences we have had, and such clear and unmistakable calls to advance we have heard.

But there come, none the less certainly and clearly, times when the Voice says: "Go deeper and build more solidly. Remove the rubbish, and find the rock-bottom for the structure."

Such a call is coming just now to our branch of the church, and it is as disastrous to disobey one of these calls as the other. Enthusiasm and earnestness are all very well, and they have their right place, but the things that stand in God's world are the things that are patiently, painfully and solidly builded squarely on a genuine foundation, and raised by a careful plumb-line test. The things that last are not thrown together hit-or-miss; they are jointed and fitted wisely and well. No great, permanent thing ever was done on the hurrah plan and by throwing caps in the air. The great constructive forces of nature are not revolutionary. They move stealthily, quietly, but mightily toward their end.

We belong among the oldest of the Protestant denominations. For more than two hundred and fifty years we have professed to have "the mind of Christ," and to be led and empowered by His Spirit. We have, as a people, held that Christ dwells in the hearts of those who believe on Him and unites their lives with His life, so that the individual becomes spiritualized and "charged" with a power not his own.

Christians of such a sort as that could no more be hidden than an electric arc lamp can, nor could they fail to have a transforming power.

But our two hundred and fifty years of history indicates that there is somewhat of a gap between this great ideal and the real facts, though it is no mean record to have produced even a few of these dynamic Christians. But we keep forgetting what we stand for. At one time we conclude that our main business is to uphold a certain set of "testimonies" which become almost as sacred in our eyes as the ten commandments on the tables of stone in the ark. Then, again, we let down our hands, tired of holding up "testimonies," and we bend all our energies to the work of "saving souls" at home or abroad. Evangelistic and missionary work become the end of our existence. We show much more interest in repentant sinners than we do in historic testimonies, and there is probably good Scripture authority for this preference.

* Deuteronomy, Chapters 1 and 2.

But in neither case,—whether upholding testimonies or working for the salvation of souls,—ought we ever to forget the ground of our existence, the foundation rock on which we build, the very life-blood of our religious body.

The principle to which we refer is this: Christ is the life of our life. He imparts His spirit and His power to those who believe on Him. He dwells within those who come to Him, and unites them with Himself, and He permeates the whole man until he is spiritualized from within, out. Out of such material He will build a church, and the gates of Death shall not prevail against it.

Our belief is that we need to get down to this foundation principle—it is the seed principle of early Quakerism—and build upon it. There will be no trouble about upholding testimonies, and there will be no doubt about saving souls if we are true to this fundamental thing.

Some of us are timid, and some of us are rash, and some of us are headstrong and opinionated. Let the timid man become united with Christ, and he will be bold; let the rash man go deeper down into that life, and he will become calm and stable; let the headstrong person learn the mind of Christ, and he will become heartstrong instead of opinionated.

We have a great constructive work now before us. Many things are weak and shaky. We have pushed ahead with enthusiasm, and cut down much good timber, but how to build—is our question. How shall we make our denomination a mighty spiritual force within and without? There is only one way. Nobody can create force. We can only utilize it. But there is power enough. God is not dead, and Jesus Christ is not withdrawn from the world. He is only invisible, but certainly present. Let us cease to hope that power will come through shouting like Baal's priests, or through dead and traditional machinery, or through the few channels which the church has marked out as "sacred," but let us learn by first-hand experience that power always comes when a soul really "puts on Christ," and let us endeavor to produce a body of members all united to this one Head.

PENN COLLEGE.

DR. WILLIAM L. PEARSON, after more than five months' work in the East in the interest of Penn College, has returned to his home in Oskaloosa where he will again take up his work in the college. He has succeeded in securing many gifts to the college, and his patient work has materially increased the resources of that institution, but it can be said in a general way that Friends do not yet realize the importance of the work done at Penn College, or its real bearing upon the future of Quakerism. The plea that has been made this winter has much more in it than anybody has seen, and personally we prefer the little group of heroes who have stood unflinchingly by this institution to the men who manned the "Merri-mac" at Santiago, knowing, as we do, the inner history of this struggle during these hard financial years, and the determination of these men not to surrender a holy trust and responsibility; we have been surprised that it appealed so little to those who might lift its financial burdens.

In this work of educating the untrained and uncultured, in the great task of giving new ideas, and of widening the horizon of life, the struggle at the best is a hard one. It is impossible to enlighten the world without treading a wine-press and bearing unspeakable burdens. The world never will see how much a man has to pay for the privilege of being the world's helper!

These Penn College men have burdens enough to keep them steady without this financial one, and it ought to be lifted, and it ought to be done at once if we really are members one of another.

JOHN R. HARRIS.

DURING the past year Canada Yearly Meeting has lost two of its foremost members—William Wetherald and John R. Harris. The death of the latter, after a two weeks' illness, is a sad blow to Canadian Friends, for their small body could not well spare a man of his type and character. He has been one of the props in sustaining Pickering College in its long financial struggle. He has for a long time been Clerk of the Yearly Meeting, and he conducted its business with rare tact and ability. He was one of the oldest secretaries of the Bible Society of Canada, and he was a noble Christian man of business, whose religion permeated all the transactions of his life. His death should rouse the young Friends of Canada to a new sense of their responsibility.

RICHARD CADBURY.

ENGLISH Friends have suffered a great loss in the death of Richard Cadbury, of Birmingham, who passed away on the 22d of Third month, while on a visit in Jerusalem. His life was in an unusual degree fruitful of good, and he will have a large circle of true mourners among the working classes of Birmingham. In a quiet, unostentatious way he has been reaching and influencing thousands of lives, and at the same time he has been building up institutions, and systems of philanthropy, which will survive him. He was a typical product of true Quakerism, and those who knew him felt that the spirit of the Master was on him, as he went about doing good.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

THE article, "Him or It?" by Stephen Merritt, of New York, which we print this week, is a clear statement of an exceedingly important truth. We have again and again said this same thing in our editorial articles, and we have never presented anything less than a PERSON as the source of salvation and the higher spiritual life.

HIM OR IT ?

BY STEPHEN MERRITT.

This seems to be the question. John Fletcher, so I read, lost "it" five times because he did not profess "it," and anything that is lost so easily is not the adequate thing for these times and His purposes. In fact "it" is so loseable that we do not know exactly when we have "it" and when we have "it" not; so we find it so necessary to go forward every good opportunity, and seek "it" again with strong cries and tears, and this must be done to hold our own, and to remain in and retain "it." In fact, it becomes our business to keep "it" and see that we lose "it" not.

Our sanctification is such a valuable thing that we must watch and guard and keep "it," so we have no time or room for any other work, and we become religiously selfish in our endeavors to keep "it." To keep "it" we must talk, preach and write it." We must correctly pronounce our Shibboleth, we must associate only with those who profess "it," and denounce those who place "the one" in place of "it." I speak in love. I have no controversy; I bear no ill-feeling. I tried the It life for many, many hard and weary and unsatisfactory years. I received "it." Plainly, clearly, satisfactorily received "it." "It" was what I sought, and according to my faith "it" was done. As I received so I walked, as I was taught so I did. I prayed. No Romanist could have been more punctilious in doing duty than I. No monk ever counted his Hail Marys, his Ave Marias, his Paternosters, more zealously than I prayed my secret and public prayers. Every meeting I had to rise and profess "it" or lose "it;" and I professed "it" and kept "it." I prayed and I prayed aloud. Baal's priests' plan was mine. I shouted and made a noise. I was happy and blest. In fastings I was faithful, for this was necessary to keep "it;" and years of Friday fastings were mine. Prayer and profession and fasting were not enough to keep "it," for "it" was slippery and would slide, and I thought I would die. Works, good works, were brought into play, and I preached for nothing and built churches and fed the poor and established and maintained missions. I never read a novel, never caught a fish nor snared a bird, never shot an animal, nor saw a play, nor a dance, nor a race, nor a game. I gave my money and time and talents freely to secure "it." I did not laugh. I separated myself and ostracized and condemned others. I wore plain clothes and lived a plain life. I kept the rules, attended class and band and prayer and preaching meetings continually. I went to camp meetings and took hundreds, paying their way, so that they might receive "it." I held continuous meetings for years on this line day and night in the churches of which I was pastor, and saw thousands receive "it." In all things I was a Methodist, and a Pharisee, and verily believed I was doing God's will, and that in securing the blessing of sanctification I had all there was for me; and to think of anything more or better was a delusion and a snare, and I had better just keep what I had or I would lose it all.

I must beware of fanaticism—for this was the bane and poison of "it." It was a hard life that I had to live under the bondage of "it." "It" did not measure up. The people that had received the blessing of it, lost it by hundreds; there was no real or general strength imparted. I and they became clannish and would only go to Holiness meetings and hear Holiness preachers. We became narrower and narrower until we crowded each other out, and said mean things one of another. "It" was requisite, so I thought, to keep "it." I wore out my voice. I broke down my health, and my strength, in my endeavors to keep and spread "it;" and my life was a failure and my efforts fruitless. In this time of dilemma, when my heart and flesh failed me, and I was on the point of abandoning "it" as uncertain and unsatisfactory, a PERSON came to my rescue.

I was alone; none were near, none were interested. "He" quieted me, hushed by murmurings and complainings, whispered to me in love that "it" could not, but "He" could. "He" communed with me, and gently suggested that I take Him as Husband, and evermore call Him Ishi. I acquiesced, said Yes to Him, that is all. No new blessing—a thousand would not meet the exigencies of the case. Blessings are "its," only things. The Blesser came. He, Him, a Person, my Ishi, and my life altered. He abides. He satisfies; my doing is now done. He does it all. I rest and rejoice, the hardness of my life is all gone. His sweetness has come in, His gentleness has made me great. He and His are mine. I am His. Married. Never to be separated. He never leaves me.

He cannot. It is against the law, wedded forever. He loves me, and though I may do or miss doing, He does not repulse me, but caresses and loves me. He does not berate, He never condemns, but ever comforts, strengthens and blesses me. The HIM life is a thousand times better than an IT life. I know, I have tried both. Beloved, receive ye Him.

GOD'S KINDNESS TO LAME SOULS.

BY THEODORE L. CUYLER.

After David had been firmly seated on the throne he inquired whether any of the house of Saul were yet living; for if so, he would like to show them kindness for the sake of his beloved friend Jonathan. An old family steward named Ziba reports to the King that there is a son of Jonathan yet living, who is "lame on his feet." This is about the only fact known in regard to the poor waif of a dethroned royal family. He is a cripple. Ever since his nurse had fled from the house at the tidings of Jonathan's bloody death, and had dropped the little five-year-old in her panic, he had been incurably lame in both his feet. And so he had been sheltered in the house of one Machir, over on the eastern side of the Jordan.

As soon as David learns that a child of his bosom friend is still in the land of the living, he remembers that he had once made a covenant with Jonathan to show the "kindness of the Lord" to his house forever. He promptly sends one of the royal chariots to Lodebar with orders to bring the poor lame Mephibosheth up to court. When the abashed cripple reaches the palace and hobbles into the King's presence chamber, he is perfectly overwhelmed. He falls on his face, and exclaims, "What is thy servant that thou shouldst look upon such a dead dog as I am?" Mephibosheth seems to have been a shy and gentle creature, like many others who suffer from bodily infirmities; but there is nothing which so soon lays one flat on the face as a volley of unexpected kindness. No artillery kills an enemy like a broadside of love. If Mephibosheth had been taught from his childhood to regard David as the destroyer of the dynasty of Saul, all his early prejudices must have melted at once when the monarch receives him so graciously. Not only receives him, but adopts him "for Jonathan's sake" into the royal household! He sits at the King's board every day, and finds a royal table "a good hiding-place for lame legs." In that wild age of war and violence, when revenge was so constantly practiced, this little cabinet-picture of the fugitive cripple seated at the imperial banquets has in it the lineaments of the New Testament Gospel. It is a very pretty parable of God's mercy to crippled souls.

Every sinner is lamed by sin and is wholly impotent to restore himself. When the Holy Spirit awakens a sinner to a deep conviction of his own guilt, he is ready to confess his utter unworthiness in language as strong as that used by Mephibosheth. The godly Rutherford, of Scotland, describes himself in the same impassioned language as having once been a "dead carcase not able to step over a straw." John Bunyan uses quite as vehement expressions in his "Grace Abounding." Pungent convictions of personal guilt do not appear to be as common in these days; but I doubt whether any man can rightly appreciate the wonderful mercy of God in Jesus Christ, and the infinite preciousness of atoning love, unless he has broken down in penitent self-abasement. The lowliest convictions of guilt are usually the prelude to the loftiest attainments in godliness. The repentant and restored cripples are those whose feet become "like hinds' feet" in running in the pathway of God's commandments.

God's kindness to the lame is not only manifested in the atonement, or in the pardon to the penitent sinner, or in converting grace; it is shown in His patient forbearance and compassion to stumbling Christians. For Christians do stumble, and some of them shockingly. Peter was not the first or the last to catch a disgraceful fall; he never would have healed a cripple in the "Gate Beautiful" if his own spiritual lameness had not been cured by his forgiving Saviour a short time before. God's ambulances are kept pretty busy. The difference between an impenitent sinner and a Christian is that the one is willing to continue weak and wicked; the other, when he slips and sprains himself, is not content to lie on his face, but repents and seeks recovery, and walks most circumspectly. God is very forbearing towards the feeble Christians, who, like Bunyan's "Ready-to-halt," hobble on crutches; but such slay no giants, reap no harvests, and win no crowns. They are not models. When a soul has once been healed by divine grace of its lameness, it ought, like the cured cripple at the temple gate, to be walking and leaping and praising God.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

"NO NEED HAVE THEY TO GO AWAY."

A desert place; night comes apace;
No food supply; shall souls thus die
When God has sent the heavenly bread?
"No need have they to go away";
God's manna sweet give them to eat
And let the multitude be fed.

The multitude in want of food—
Shall one depart with longing heart,
In hunger seeking to be filled?
"No need have they to go away";
Conditions meet; give them to eat
That famine's craving may be stilled.

At home, abroad, on lonely road,
Or crowded street where many greet,
Perchance they hunger for life's food.
"No need have they to go away";
In love discreet give them to eat
And feed the suffering multitude.

Beyond the seas are feeble knees,
In distant lands are trembling hands,
The multitude is dying there.
"No need have they to go away";
Yet time is fleet; give them to eat;
The bread of life with them now share.

Maryville, Tenn.

SAMUEL L. HAWORTH.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

"REALISM" IN PREACHING.

BY M. M. BINFORD.

Realism in literature,—the delineation of life just as it is, with no regard for moral significances, the serving up of the repulsive, morally distorted, hideous phases of society in the neat, jaunty dress of well-turned phrases "for art's sake," is happily passing by. An expiring effort has been, and is still made, to defend this dishing up of moral carrion under the plea that such a showing up of evil is conducive to good morals, and that such outraging of modesty and decency has its reward in the increased sense of horror for such gross immorality in the race. As well might it be argued that museums of physical monstrosities, distorted limbs, superfluous parts, abnormal developments should be kept in our school rooms to train our children in the perception of the beautiful in life.

But there is also an art in the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, using the word art in its legitimate sense of a method of doing well a special work, and since the work here is of the highest character, and the results are eternal, it is an art of highest order.

The problem which confronts the preacher is how to deal with sin so as to lead to repentance, and how to present righteousness so as to awaken desire and determination to live a holy life. Up to a certain point well marked in the good sense of morally healthful men sins of gross character may be spoken of, their nature commented upon, the evil effects described, without any offence to the natural modesty or sense of propriety inherent in all normal natures. But there has always been a class of minds, somewhat morally perverted, however sincere and earnest they may be, who are inclined to pass proper limits, and so gloat their diseased imaginations, and those of their hearers, in highly colored, sensational descriptions of sin, as not only to offend all Christian modesty, but also to augment the very evils they attack. By these abnormal crime detectors the moral garbage of a community is raked over in public under the deceptive claim of the purifying of the church, and the bringing of everything to the light, until timid or terror-stricken souls are under repeated urging to "confess their sins," are driven to moral distraction, and, to their own shame and needless disgrace, and the disgust of all right-minded people, are made to openly confess that which should be told only to God, or, at most, in inviolable confidence to spiritual-minded persons. Some of these unwise leaders have insisted even upon public confession of sins committed years since, before conversion, and thus urged those who have been forgiven of a merciful God to parade these forgiven sins before a merciless world. Cruel suspicions are engendered, the diseased, impure imagination of men is started to an abnormal activity; hideous visions of evil are conjured up, the passions of men are excited by such horrors to unwonted activity.

There is a coarseness and brutality about it all that is close akin to the feelings excited by the public hangings of years past. Instead of deterring from crime they incited men to the commission of other murders.

The writer well remembers the case of a public lynching in one of our western territories a score of years ago, where the bodies were left hanging half a day, and so excited were the boys of the town that they began hanging dogs all over town.

All this is "realism" in preaching, even more disgusting than in literature. It is a revival of the Romish abomination of the confessional without even its safeguard of secrecy. It terrorizes timid souls whose memory of forgiven sins is even yet a torture, and causes them to drag into publicity that which a compassionate God has declared he will never bring up at the judgment. It arouses the demon of cruel suspicion in others who hate the sins of the flesh, and under the impulses begotten of some startling revelation lose all their gentleness, generousness and love in a maddening maze of distrust, rapidly developing into a bitter Pharisaism. It sets many to making confessions, not so much of their own sins as of those of others, distorting, unjustly accusing, bringing into what they call "the light" those things which had better be covered by love, and so effectually healed and the offender saved. But worst of all is the result produced by familiarizing the thoughts of men with gross sin. Modesty and decency are outraged by such a course of public exposure, and its very publicity, while it horrifies for the moment, permanently coarsens and brutalizes the nature.

Such a course of procedure is absolutely without warrant in the example of our Saviour. There is manly straightforwardness in his treatment of gross sin, equalled by a maidenly delicacy and reserve in his treatment of the sinner. "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more," is infinitely removed from all this coarseness of treatment above described. But the difficulty of dealing with this clerical "realism" lies in the fact that its advocates, in their overwrought state of feeling, have lost the power of discernment between a chaste, pure treatment of the grosser sins and their own gross, brutal, immodest treatment. A sin-scorched, terror-stricken soul, with a diseased, morally perverted imagination, though he has himself, for the time being, escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust, has not always learned the gentleness of Christ. His ministry is more likely to be an exaggeration of that of John the Baptist than an imitation of the ministry of Jesus. He vainly imagines that those who do not with him "denounce sin" are therefore condoning it. He would terrify a child into submission rather than train it into obedience. He would "break" its will rather than train it skillfully.

That there are right methods of dealing with such evils, both in public and in private, is not only freely conceded by the writer, but also emphatically affirmed, and that there are communities and churches that need such wise treatment is confessed with sorrow; but, after all, the most healthful, successful, permanent method lies rather in the realm of spiritual hygiene than in that of spiritual surgery, in the development of good health rather than in the morbid dwelling upon disease.

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson V.

Fourth month 30, 1899.

THE COMFORTER PROMISED.

John 14: 15-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—I will pray the Father and he shall give you another comforter.—John 14: 16.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fourth mo. 24.—The comforter promised. John 14: 15-27.

Third-day, Fourth mo. 25.—To testify of Christ. John 15: 17-27.

Fourth-day, Fourth mo. 26.—The spirit of Truth. John 16: 1-15.

Fifth-day, Fourth mo. 27.—The revealer. 1 Cor 2: 9-16.

Sixth-day, Fourth mo. 28.—Led by the Spirit. Rom. 8: 12-16, and 26-28.

Seventh-day, Fourth mo. 29.—The Prophecy. Joel 2: 23-32.

First-day, Fourth mo. 30. The Spirit given. Acts 2: 1-13.

The present lesson follows closely after the last. As has been said, this discourse is given only in John. There is a close connection in thought between these chapters and the First Epistle of John; so close is the resemblance that of itself it is strong evidence that they were written by one and the same person.

15. "If ye love Me, ye will keep My commandments" (Revised Version). The future tense seems more in accord with the context; obedience follows love (compare John 14: 21, 23; 15: 10. The "my" is emphatic; those which He has emphasized and made His own—the commandments to be observed are not those of the Law, but those of the Gospel. Compare Matt. 5: 34, 39, 44, etc.

16. "Pray." The word used in the original is a different one from that used in verse 14; Christ is described as making request of the Father, while men beg or petition. "Another Comforter." Literally, an "advocate," "one who is called to the side of another as a helper." The word is only used by John, and only five times by him (chapters 14: 16, 26; 15: 26; 16: 7; 1 John 2: 1). In his Epistle it is translated "advocate." There is no doubt that in the Gospel of John the word is intended to convey the idea of "helper" rather than "consoler." In early English the word "comfort" meant to strengthen, and so the Authorized Version was correct when it was made. "Another." Other than Himself. This word clearly implies the personality of the Holy Spirit. "Forever." "Christ's historical presence was only for a time; his spiritual presence is for all the days."

17. "The Spirit of Truth." He brings the Divine revelation home to the heart, and demonstrates its truth. Compare John 16: 14. "Cannot receive." Because the "world" is on a wholly different plane. So long as a man lives unto "the world" it is impossible for him to receive the spiritual "Helper"—the two are incompatible. See John 3: 3; 1 Cor. 2: 14; 1 John 5: 6. "Know him." Not "see him," because He is not visible to the outward eye; even then the Disciples knew something of the Spirit.

18. "I will not leave you desolate" (Revised Version). Literally, "orphans." The same word is used in James 1: 27. The translation "comfortless" suggests a reference to "Comforter," which is incorrect, the reference being rather to John 13: 33. "I will come to you." Referring to the coming through the Holy Spirit. See verses 19, 20, 23, 26, etc.

19. The world will see Him no more after the ascension because the world sees only with the outward eye; but the believer will see Him with the inward eye of faith. Christ has eternal life, and the believer has it through Him.

20. "That day." The day in which the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is a personal experience, and spiritual life is received from Christ. Compare John 16: 23, 26; Gal. 2: 20. "You in me, and I in you." See John 15: 4, 5; 17: 21, 23; 1 John 3: 24; 4: 13-16.

21. "Hath—keepeth." The personal apprehension and the personal fulfilment. "He it is." Very emphatic, such an one, and no other. Compare verse 15. The love which leads to obedience will become deeper, and greater and closer spiritual communion will follow. "I will manifest." Notice the personal expression—not "will be manifested," but "I will manifest." Love, obedience, enlightenment—that is the spiritual order.

22. "Judas, not Iscariot." Otherwise known as Lebbaeus (Matt. 10: 3) and Thaddaeus (Mark 3: 18), and Judas, the brother or son of James (Luke 6: 16; Acts 1: 13). It is generally thought that the author of the Epistle of Jude was the Judas mentioned in Mark 6: 3. If this is so, this verse tells us all we know of Judas, not Iscariot. Like Philip, he does not take in the spiritual meaning of Christ's words, and asks the question from real perplexity.

23. Here, as so often, Christ answers not by a direct reply, but by carrying on and developing his original statement. "Words." "Word" (Revised Version). Here it is the whole Gospel message.

24. In this verse Christ describes the character which is the opposite of the believer.

25. "Being yet present." "While yet abiding" (Revised Version).

26. "But the Comforter [Helper], even the Holy Spirit" (Revised Version). A full statement of the coming of the Holy Spirit. Compare John 16: 13, 14. "All things." Respecting the divine life. Bring to your remembrance." "He will teach new truths by recalling the old, and will recall the old by teaching the new."

27. "Peace." There is perhaps a reference to the Eastern custom of wishing peace when taking leave. Compare Judges 18: 6; Mark 5: 34, etc. "My." Emphatic. "Not as the world." His are no empty, formal words, but are words of truth. Compare Phil. 4: 7. "Troubled." Better, "terrified." The idea is that of being fearful of impending ills, known or unknown.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. The fruitage of love is obedience.

2. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

3. The Holy Spirit comes to teach, to guide, to strengthen, and sustain those who believe and trust in Christ.

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE "EARNEST WORKERS."

It is well for us occasionally to take a backward look over our work and see wherein we have failed, and where we have been successful, and plan our future actions in accordance.

At our last annual meeting the chairman of our various committees endeavored to tell what we were doing, and we received many encouraging words from kind friends who were present. Officers were elected at this meeting as follows: President, Isaac P. Miller; Vice-President, Paul D. I. Maier; Secretary, Cornelia I. Trimble; and Treasurer, Edward L. Ritchie.

The total amount spent for the year has been $717.01, of which $88.35 has been for general expenses, $125.00 for the Foreign Mission account and $503.66 for the Kindergarten.

Some of our members have been compelled through illness, business or removal from the city, to resign, to the regret of all, but we have been glad to welcome eleven new members, and the number on the roll is now 66, with an average attendance of 30.

The plan of our work has not been altered, and our faithful committees are still busy. There are more people who are hungry for reading matter than the average person realizes, and the Paper Committee help to brighten many lives by distributing cast-off magazines and papers systematically to homes, mission schools, prisons, invalids, etc., etc., and during the past year have sent bundles to sixteen different places, some as far away as Alaska and others as near as Philadelphia.

The Relief Committee give relief in a different manner than formerly, as they have come to the conclusion that money does pass through the hands of even the poorest class, and that it is the misapplication rather than the lack of funds that is the cause of poverty, so the committee feel the necessity of teaching them how to use money rather than giving them material aid, and now they only give direct help in cases of urgent need or sickness, but have established a branch of the "Co-operative Coal Club" at 918 Locust Street. This was kept open every Sixth-day afternoon during the summer and is still continued. The members are mostly colored, who pay ten cents to join and deposit their money weekly, and when they have a sufficient amount to their credit an equivalent is given them in coal at low rates, which is much cheaper for them than buying by the bucket, as they usually do. The Committee gave two teas during the winter in order to gain new members. The Committee have been very faithful and deserve the hearty thanks of the Society.

There has been no change in our Foreign Mission work, and S. Takayama San still has charge of the Tsuchiura Mission and is doing very good work, and we have received some interesting letters from him, giving an encouraging account of the ground gained in the Christian field. Minnie Pickett, from Japan, attended our Eleventh month meeting, and told us of S. Takayama's wedding and of his satisfactory work

She said the hardest thing for them to work against was ancestral worship.

The Boys' Club, 918 Locust Street, has been open every Fifth-day evening during the winter, except Thanksgiving night and Jubilee Week. They open at 7.30 and close promptly at 9 p.m. There are classes in drawing, writing, sewing, paper-box making, whittling, hammock making, knitting, etc. They have entertainments after an hour of class work and games, and are sometimes treated to ice cream and cake. The Committee are doing their best to help the boys grow up to be better men than they otherwise would be without such aid.

We feel that the Kindergarten Committee is doing a noble work at 9th and Spring Garden Streets. A flower mission was opened during the summer, and every Sixth-day morning a member of the committee was there, and also had several to assist. The first hour the girls were admitted who played games, then were sent home with a bunch of flowers apiece. The second hour was conducted in the same manner for the boys. There have been more applicants for the school than can be admitted, and the committee feel their work has been greatly blessed, and are rejoiced to find that its influence is being felt in the neighborhood. Sarah P. Ecroyd has performed the work with extraordinary judgment and consecration, and has a very earnest and competent assistant in Miss Bartlett. The Boys' Club have been trying the self-governing plan, and have elected a Board of Governors. They also have game keepers, policemen and associate judges, with a member of the "Earnest Workers" Committee at the head of each. For part of the winter, the club has been open two evenings a week instead of one. The boys were taken on a picnic to Overbrook last spring, which they greatly enjoyed. The boys also have a savings bank fund, which was continued during the summer.

The Clothing Committee has been handicapped by the negligence of the members of the "Earnest Workers" in sending in old clothing. Nevertheless, they have sent some clothing to the 2d Armory of the Salvation Army, and some has been distributed to worthy and needy cases.

It was thought by the South Carolina Committee that it might be advisable to transfer the work previously done at the Schofield School, to the Christiansburg School, as the former is well-established, under the care of Race Street Meeting, and has plenty of money back of it, while the latter is new and struggling, and under the care of Twelfth Street Meeting. It was suggested that we take the money usually spent for the Schofield School, and write to Charles Marshall asking him how we could best spend it for his school. The South Carolina Committee was discharged and a new one appointed called "The Christiansburg School Committee." After writing to Charles Marshall, the committee decided to buy a sewing machine, which they sent down, and according to accounts it is filling a long-felt want.

The Auxiliary Committee sent in the spring a box to a Friends' Mission in Virginia, which was filled with scrap-books made by the children, with clothing made or donated by the Society, underwear and quilt purchased by societies' funds and some magazines and patch work given by friends. In the fall the committee felt that the work last winter was not successful, and they were not willing to carry it on this year on the same plan. The committee was authorized to meet a committee from the W. F. M. A., and continue the work or not as they saw fit, and they concluded to drop the work for the present as the children were not viewing it in the right light. This is the first time the "Earnest Workers" have ever dropped work once begun, but we prefer to do this rather than continue in an unsuccessful way.

In the Fifth month meeting the attention of the Society was called to the fact that a girls' parlor was needed in the neighborhood of 9th and Locust Streets, where the older girls could come once a week and join classes. A committee of six was appointed to look into the matter and report in the fall, with the result that the "Progressive Guild" held its first meeting Tenth month 5th, 1898, when 18 girls joined. The meetings have been held every week since with the exception of Jubilee Week and the week of the storm. There are classes in dressmaking, hammock-making, knitting, fancy sewing and waiting. A savings fund has been started and over $5.00 deposited by the members. At first we charged them 10 cents a month, but this has been changed to 2 cents a night. Once a month business meetings are held followed by an entertainment of some sort. The committee want to establish a place where the girls can come and be benefited, and for one night in the week at least be out of harm's way, and they hope the guild will grow.

A Christmas Committee was appointed at our Eleventh month meeting, which gave $15.00 to the Joseph Sturge Mission School to aid in the Christmas entertainment, and they also gave a Christmas entertainment to the Club at 9th and Spring Garden Streets. A Christmas tree was donated by a kind friend, and each boy was presented with a half-pound box of candy, and went home feeling very happy.

The Society feels that many prayers have been sent up for guidance, and that they have been answered, for several individuals have said that they felt sure they were receiving the blessing of our heavenly Father. We want to thank our many friends who have aided us in various ways, for without such help much of our work would have been undone. We feel that much of our work is just begun, and we ask for your prayers that we may be helped as we go.

CORNELIA I. TRIMBLE, Secretary.

So I go on not knowing—
 I would not if I might;
 I would rather walk in the dark with God,
 Than go alone in the light.
 I would rather walk with Him by faith,
 Than walk alone by sight.

—Anon.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FOURTH MONTH 30th, 1899.

HOW SHALL WE DIVIDE OUR TIME?

Ecc. 3: 1-15.

Second-day, Fourth mo. 24.—Time for prayer. Matt. 6: 5-8.
 Third-day, Fourth mo. 25.—Time for Bible study. Ps. 119: 145-152; 2 Tim. 2: 15-19.
 Fourth-day, Fourth mo. 26.—Time for fellowship. Col. 3: 12-17.
 Fifth-day, Fourth mo. 27.—Time for helpfulness. Luke 10: 25-37.
 Sixth-day, Fourth mo. 28.—Time for service. John 21: 15-17.
 Seventh-day, Fourth mo. 29.—Time for rest. Lev. 25: 1-7.

It will not be wise for leaders of prayer meetings, this week, to become too deeply entangled in the mysteries of the interpretation of the Book of Ecclesiastes. The writer's standpoint of vision is not easily determined. It is not that of a Christian in the clearer light of later revelation. There is often a sense of weariness, of disappointed hope and ambition, that finds no solution without more Christian conceptions of life. "What is worth while?" finds scarcely an answer in the whole book until the last two verses. The gist of the portion selected for our lesson seems to be the importance of discretion in the use of time and labor. Few men can do great things, but he who learns to do right things in their right places will always be a useful man. He who knows the right time to do right things is a tactful man. He who calls on his sick neighbor and tells him of all the people he ever heard of who have died with the disease from which the neighbor is suffering may be a very well informed man, but he is certainly not a very tactful man.

The list of topics for daily readings is suggestive of a proper recognition of the use of time. Our physical, intellectual and spiritual needs must be cared for. It is not the will of God that we should slight any of them. Spirituality is not promoted by physical or mental starvation. But most men are prone to over-exertion for the body or the mind and consequent neglect of the spiritual life. Time for prayer, Bible study, fellowship, helpfulness, service—how shall we find it? For many of us time is already portioned out. Eight hours for sleep, ten hours for work, two hours for the care of the body and for food—that leaves only four hours of leisure each day, and for some busy housewives we know even that never comes, and as well for some men, who work twelve hours a day. But it is the use of that leisure time that largely determines the character of the man. Not what we are driven to do, but what we choose when we have the power of choice, determines our real life. If ninety-nine-hundredths of those who profess to be Christians ever do any active Christian work, they will do in these leisure moments of a busy life. The fondly cherished dream of a happy time of leisure by and by will never come to most of us. We must learn to "Preach as ye go."

It is the idle, careless drifting through leisure hours that robs most people of the power of an ever-deepening spiritual life. Many people say they have no time for the Quiet Hour, who, nevertheless, find time for many hours of empty talk during the week. Many find no time for Bible study, and yet find time for reading to far less profit. We have seen men who could never find time to call on their neighbors for their spiritual welfare, who yet could spend days canvassing for political ends.

Let us resolutely settle at once for all that we will make time for spiritual culture, and then we shall surely find it. When General Gordon's handkerchief lay on the ground outside his tent door no officer in all his army dared enter his tent, for he knew that Gordon was alone with God.

Yet we must remember that all time is sacred to God. There is no division of life into secular and sacred. My daily toil must be as much for God as my closet devotions. I can no more slight my work or my lessons than I can slight my prayers. Praying is to little purpose when it is a substitute for righteous living. Praying and preaching have more immediate spiritual ends in view than eating and drinking, but all are to be done to the glory of God. The true secret of life is in finding the right time for each duty. It is our duty to sleep, but it is not our duty to sleep when we ought to be at church or in Sunday School.

A NEW FORWARD STEP FOR THE ENDEAVOR HOSTS.

We present herewith a broadside, to borrow a naval term for a peaceful purpose, on a new movement in Christian Endeavor. That it accords perfectly with the sentiments of Friends, so far as it goes, scarcely needs saying. Of all churches in America none should hail this step with more joy than ourselves. It has been the subject of correspondence between the writer and the officers of the United Society several times, and he rejoices at the prospect of seeing a widespread interest awakened among Endeavorers. The time is indeed opportune. If America must now begin an international policy and assume "the white man's burden," may it be to the utmost degree a peaceable policy. We sincerely hope every society among Friends will at once send for the memorial referred to, and obtain every possible signer.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WAR AGAINST WAR.

Send five cents (to cover postage and expense) to Secretary Baer, Tremont Temple, Boston, for a memorial.

Endeavorers, War Against War!—A familiar letter from the President of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, in the "Christian Endeavor World."

One of the great world movements, I believe, is that in favor of peace on earth and good will to men. The fulfilment of the angels' song seems to have been long upon the way, but the prospects for its speedy realization were never so bright as to-day, in all the history of the nineteen centuries since the celestial choir gave it voice. The rapprochement of England and America during the last year has been one of the great events of history; the consequent increase of good feeling between Canada and the United States has made all our hearts glad; and the brave young Czar of all the Russias has crowned it all by his noble utterance in behalf of national disarmament.

Here is a great world issue in which Christian Endeavorers can throw themselves heart and soul. The proposals for peace have no partisan squint. It is not a move upon the political chessboard, or, if some individuals and nations would selfishly degrade it to this low level, the whole subject is so much vaster and nobler than party politics, that time-serving tricksters will be swept away, finding the movement too big for them.

I am not of those who believe the Czar's rescript to be the trick of a wily demagogue, and from our present knowledge of his purpose and character I think these suspicions are unworthy of any generous mind. But even at the worst, supposing that what his enemies say is true, and that he is not sincere in the matter, let the Christian world take him at his word, and demand in good faith the carrying out of these noble proposals that look finally to the beating of every sword into a ploughshare and every spear into a pruning-hook.

But what have Christian Endeavorers to do with this matter? Much every way. Ours is a world-wide movement, international, interdenominational, interracial, as no other religious movement in all the history of the world has ever been. It has world-wide sympathies and affiliations. It has a mission, not in America only, but in every remote section of the world. Particularly has it bound together the hearts of English-speaking young people in four continents, America, Europe, Africa, and Australia. In America it holds its great conventions on both sides of the line that separates the United States from its northern neighbors. Next summer its annual feast will be held at a border city, equally accessible to Canada and the United States. In 1900 the greatest international religious convention ever held will assemble in the halls and churches of London and the Crystal Palace.

What, then, is more appropriate than that such a society should cast its influence in favor of international arbitration and universal peace? It has opportunities for re-echoing the angels' song possessed by no other organization in the world. Christian Endeavor is a unifying force, and universal peace is necessary to a united Christianity.

But, above all, I believe that this is God's purpose and plan. I cannot believe that He desires the red-handed Demon of War to stalk abroad any longer, going to and fro in the earth like Satan, and walking up and down in it. If anything can make the angels weep, it seems to me that it must be the bloodshed and carnage of an awful battle.

If this is so, then it is our duty as Christians, as young Christians with a future century before us, as Christians with such a magnificent opportunity to further a good cause, to do all that we may to deserve the beatitude of the peace-makers.

Here is one thing that we can do. We can all pray for this cause that is as wide as the earth, as high as heaven, and as important as the counsels of God. Here is something definite, practical and tangible, and let no humble Endeavorer, who believes in prayer, forget that he can do something to move the arm that moves the world and to hasten the glad day of universal peace.

We can, too, help answer our own prayers. We can petition (this is always within the rights of free-born Anglo-Saxons); we can agitate the subject; we can help create public opinion; we can devote a session of our local or State union to the subject; we can show the world that so far as we are concerned the Christian youth of America are looking eagerly forward to the day when war shall be counted, with slavery and polygamy, as one of the barbarities of a backward age. "The Christian Endeavor World" will have much to say about this matter in the future, and I ask for your sympathetic and earnest attention to every word that tends to usher in the reign of the Prince of Peace. To make this very practical for the Endeavorers of the United States, there will be found in this paper a form of memorial to the Senate and the House of Representatives. I hope that thousands will take pains to circulate and sign it.

Your friend,

FRANCIS E. CLARK.

WAR AGAINST WAR!

That is a worthy battle-cry for Christian Endeavorers. Let it be taken up with ardor. Let the Christian Endeavor world ring with it. We have been patient with terrible iniquity long enough.

The Emperor of Russia has put the matter on a practical footing. Few assemblies in the world's history have been so momentous as the coming International Conference on the world's peace. It will produce results; it must. For our country to fail of representation there would be a lapse from our noblest ideals.

Many causes, also, have drawn closer together, during recent months, our own nation and Great Britain. The Anglo-Saxon race has recently made enormous gains in power and renown. If we can all stand together, and stand for peace and on earth, it will be a spectacle worthy to draw back to earth the angel choir of Bethlehem. Negotiations for Anglo-Saxon arbitration should at once be resumed; and since our country broke them off before, it should properly open them again.

Some may consider this an unsuitable time for such an agitation, since the war spirit has so recently been aroused among us, and fed upon successes so gratifying. On the contrary, this is the very time of times, while the horrors of war are fresh within our memories, the pestilential camps, the corruptions of management, the deadly transports, the sickening wounds, the loss of noble young men from college, workshop, and home, the vast burden of expense, the lowering of sentiment to what is brutal, till the war for liberty became, in the actual thought of myriads, a war for aggrandizement, enrichment, and revenge. Not long ago we were on the verge of such a war with our English brothers. Events to-day might precipitate such a war with Germans, almost as nearly our kin. Is such a possibility worthy of Christian men?

This, then, is the memorial we present to the Christian Endeavorers of America for their signatures:—
To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America.

We, whose names are affixed hereunto, are members and friends of the societies of Christian Endeavor, numbering in this country over forty thousand organizations, with more than two and a half millions of members, and in foreign lands over fourteen thousand organizations, with nearly one million members. It is the sense of our world-wide fellowship that impels us to this memorial. Canada, Great Britain, and Australia contain hundreds of thousands whom we have come to honor and love as brethren. Among the Hindoos and Persians, the Chinese and Japanese, the natives of Africa and Madagascar, the republics of South America, are large numbers who are thus closely knit to us. Our comrades in Christian Endeavor are found in France, Italy, Germany, Russia, Switzerland, Turkey, Greece, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Denmark, Austria, Belgium. In Spain itself, our foe in the late war, is a rapidly increasing number of them, and Christian Endeavorers were found in each of the opposing armies.

In view of these facts, we wish to express our abhorrence of war, and our solemn conviction that it is the duty of every civilized nation to do all in its power toward making war impossible. We wish to record our desire for the speedy establishment of an International Tribunal of Arbitration. We wish to show our interest in the international conference to discuss this matter, proposed by the Emperor of Russia, and to urge that our country join promptly and heartily in that conference. And especially we desire by our signatures to appeal for the immediate consideration of the question of arbitration between this nation and Great Britain, that the Anglo-Saxon race may become united in the interests of peace and good-will.

In presenting this memorial we are emboldened by the assurance of a cordial reception on the part of large numbers of our legislators, and we are confident that the Congress of the United States of America will in the future, as in the past, prove true to the largest sentiments of humanity. May the Divine blessing attend your deliberations.

We believe that every single Endeavorer in America will wish his signature to appear on this memorial when it goes before Congress. We believe that you will all be eager to canvass your friends for signatures, the older church-members, the business men, and other leaders in each community. We are confident that you will not procrastinate, but will understand the importance of promptness.

It is necessary, if our memorial is to do us credit and produce good results, that it appear in good shape. Do not cut or copy the form given above, and do not print your own. The United Society of Christian Endeavor has prepared copies of this memorial, well printed on heavy paper, with large space for signatures, which Secretary Baer will send to any address at cost price; namely, five cents each. When signed, they should be returned to Secretary Baer. Full directions accompany each memorial.

We shall have much more to say in later numbers, and shall present exhortations and commendations from many eminent men. But do not wait for this. We shall print the name of the Endeavorer in each State who is the first to respond to this appeal. War against War!

FOREIGN MISSION WORK.

Ramallah, Palestine, Second month 7th, 1899.

We always look in the AMERICAN FRIEND to see if there is news from New England, and much value the words of encouragement and cheer that are sent us from thence. They are as refreshing dew to our hearts.

You have heard of the successful ending of the long wait for the license. We were glad that Timothy and Anna Hussey were at last set free to return to their loved ones. The trial they have endured has been a very hard one. We hope they will find their son much improved and on the way to health.

On Second-day First month 23d, I got up at three o'clock. Della gave me a good breakfast, and at a quarter past four I started in the bright starlight for Jerusalem. At the railway station many of the Husseys' friends gathered to see them off. I went with them to Jaffa, and saw them on board the steamer for Port Said. I then went to visit Miss Parsons' and Miss Arnot's schools, and then to the day-school where Affeeju Saffouri teaches. She is one of the Training Home girls, and has a nice class and is doing good work.

The health of all in the Training Home continues good with the exception of a few little ailments which may be expected in winter time. Della and I are well. We are delighted to have Martha Nuss with us again, her work in the village will be productive of much good. She is such a conscientious worker. Soap, towels, and soft rags (sometimes using her own handkerchief), are her weapons, supplemented perhaps with eye-water or some simple remedy. And they will understand more gospel from her words than if it was read to them for they do not know "book Arabic," and it has to be explained to them. A real, earnest, Christian missionary doctor, with just such a conscientious spirit, would be a grand worker to have in addition. I believe the quiet, personal work is what is needed, coupled with loving, kindly deeds.

The Training Home reopened, after a short vacation, on the Third of First month. One new girl was taken, Anesie Abou Shahlah. This makes twenty-six boarders and gives us about one-quarter more hungry mouths to feed than we had last year. It is most interesting to see them in the dining-room, saying grace or enjoying their meals.

Last Fourth-day was the time when the girls' relatives are allowed to visit them; a great number came. It was a most interesting sight to see them gathered in the hall, so happy over the children and delighted to spend an hour or two with them.

Last Seventh-day was the time for our monthly teachers' meeting. All were present except Rakhout, and we had a profitable time talking of matters pertaining to teaching. The reports showed a very good attendance during the last month, and that satisfactory work was done. From Ain Areek we were told of one girl in particular, who does not like to hear God's name lightly spoken, and who remonstrates with the other girls when they do it.

The First-day and Fifth-day evening meetings are times when the Lord meets with us in blessing. Also the Bible school which is well attended. These are not the only times we feel our Father's presence, for the daily readings and Christian Endeavor meetings are all favored times. And in our daily duties we know that He is with us, leading and keeping us as we put ourselves in His hands. Is He not good to us all?

Sincerely yours,

WILFRED ROWNTREE.

FRIENDS' RALLY AT DETROIT.

Arrangements are already well under way for this important meeting. M. M. Binford has been appointed as chairman by the Program Committee of the Board of Trustees. Charles E. Sweet, of Iowa, President of the State C. E. Union, and President of the Friends' International C. E. Union, will give the annual address. Myrtle Lightner, of Ohio, will read the annual report. Gilbert Bowles, of Iowa, superintendent of the Missionary Department, will speak on the missionary work of the Endeavorers, and it is hoped that Ellison R. Purdy, of Maine, President of the Maine State Union, will also be present and address the meeting. It is hoped that at this meeting there may be a full conference as to needs and methods and some new plans adopted for the interests of Endeavor work among Friends. But most of all let us hope that it will be a meeting for spiritual uplifting and understanding of the plans of God for the work.

The child that enters life comes not with knowledge or intent.
So those who enter death must go as little children sent.
Nothing is known, but I believe that God is overhead;
And as life is to the living, so death is to the dead.

—Mary Mapes Dodge.

Do the duty which lies nearest thee, which thou knowest to be a duty. Thy second duty will always have become clearer.—Thomas Carlyle.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

WOMAN AS A PUBLIC SPEAKER

Paul's strange injunction for women to keep silent in the churches, together with the bondage of the darker ages, almost completely shut the door of public speech to woman. Rarely in all these ages had any woman the courage to break these double bars—conventional and ecclesiastic. Only at long intervals has her voice had been heard above the clamor of lust and din of war. From out the mist of the centuries comes the voice of Miriam, the sister of Moses; that of Deborah, the just judge; that of Huldah, the faithful prophetess. Later came other voices out of the darkness, as "An infant crying in the night,

An infant crying for the light."

Within the last century, chiefly in the last half, has woman had the liberty of speech. True, the law imposed no bar in this country, but public opinion did; and this to sensitive natures was stronger than triple bars of brass.

It is not our purpose to name those who lead in this work, nor to note the steps of progress, nor the obstacles to be overcome, but rather to consider briefly some of

THE QUALIFICATIONS OF WOMAN AS A SPEAKER.

1. Woman has by nature a greater facility of expression than man. This is proved by the testimony of nearly all teachers of languages. Especially does this hold in the earlier stages of this work. Thirty years' experience in the coeducation of the sexes prove this to the writer's mind, beyond doubt or question. As a rule, the same holds in conversation. Seldom does she hesitate for a word, while her slower brother at her side halts, repeats or drawls, because he cannot find his word. This faculty is clearly manifest in the earlier stages of written composition, language lessons and the like. Who has not been impressed and pleased with her facile pen in narration, description poetic imagery?

2. She has quicker and more delicate sensibilities. She is better equipped by nature for both eloquence and persuasion. No high eloquence without strong feeling. While conviction is reached through the intellect, eloquence and persuasion are reached through the feelings. Who has not felt the persuasive power of woman's tongue? Who has not is either above or below average humanity. I can imagine a being all intellect, hence moved only by cold reason. I can also imagine a being with only brute instincts, hence, in the main, below the level of the tender tones of entreaty. Neither of these would be moved by woman's pleadings.

Persuasion is a large factor in nearly all public speaking. Pre-eminently is this so in the pulpit. Philosophically should this be so in all religious and moral work. In this enlightened age very few are wanting in knowledge concerning the truth of the Scriptures, and their consequent obligation to obey the same, yet they are not ready to accept that truth as the guide of their lives. Hence a large part of the speaker's work in the religious and moral field is persuasion. Paul said, "Knowing the terror of the Lord, I persuade men." He did not instruct and convince men, but persuade them. If persuasion was needed in the early ages, when the fundamentals of Christianity were so little known, how much more now?—now, when the truths of the Gospel have been proven over and over again. That this phase of work has been effective has been proved by evangelists in nearly all the churches. Woman has been efficient in this field wherever doors have been opened, thanks to an enlightened and liberal sentiment that has opened many of these doors. More enlightenment and larger liberality will ere long open many more.

3. Woman has quicker intuition than man. She does not touch every link in the chain of argument, as does her plodding brother. She looks—i.e., looks intellectually, and sees and says 'tis so. Her brother, who has not yet threaded the process, says, Why is it so? She says, "Because it is." Here the stale criticism is turned into an honor. Criticism says woman's reason is because. Just so. She sees the end without the intermediate steps, and so states the reason in because. Sometimes she states it a little more logically—"it is because it is so." This is a quality of high value to the speaker, especially when dealing with human nature, when character is to be read at once, sometimes at a glance.

Every husband knows the wife's skill here, and often has he repented when he declined to head the potent words: "Husband, I warn you, you are dealing with a man not to be trusted." Her intuition makes her the safe reader of character.

4. Woman's spiritual nature is superior to that of man. This fact is too obvious to need illustration or proof. The churches, the schools, the homes, all verify this. Hence a power in the speaker in the higher spheres. This power will be greater when the race shall rise out of the physical and brutal as exhibited in drunkenness, sensuality, pugilism, wars: greater still when the golden rule shall be a practical reality and Christ's spirit and teachings shall be as truly in men's lives as in their professions and creeds. In a word: when the upper rim of humanity shall touch the lower rim of Divinity, then will woman be the peer or superior of man in persuasive and inspiring speech.

GEORGE W. HOSS,

"Friends' University," Wichita, Kansas.

Straight is the line of duty,
Curved is the line of beauty;
Follow the first, and thou shalt see
The other ever follow thee.

Dare to be true, nothing can need a lie,
A fault which needs it most, grows two thereby.

—George Herbert.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

SERIOUS REFLECTIONS.

BY ELWOOD O. ELLIS.

"And the books were opened and the dead were judged out of the things which were written in the books, according to their works." Rev. 20: 12.

I was lying in bed during a brief period of illness. I fell into a sound slumber that brought rest for my weariness. I wakened with a song of boyhood sounding as clearly and plainly as I had ever heard it in days of yore:

"Jesus loves our pilgrim band,
He will lead us by the hand,
Lead us to that better land,
Happy home on high."

How came that song across my mind? I had not thought of it for aught I know for years. Now in the moment of waking it took possession of me, and all the reality of my boyhood life—the very feelings I experienced in learning that simple song—returned with unabated force, as unexpectedly as if a friend from the antipodes had suddenly appeared before me. As I pondered upon it, I felt that it was a premonition of the awful time to come when the books shall be opened and the book of memory shall produce all its treasures, pleasurable or otherwise, as an irresistible panorama to pass before us.

A lady recently addressed our meeting. She told of a boy of her acquaintance who fell some distance and lay stunned into insensibility on the ground. He was promptly carried to his room and during hours of anxiety to his friends, lay in the balance of life and death. Life triumphed at last, and his eyes opened wide and his first words were: "I'll never do wrong again." After he had had time to recover strength and could talk with ease, he was asked for an explanation of these mysterious words. He declared that in the brief space required for falling, all the wrong things he had ever done had crowded into the foreground of memory, and he had gone into unconsciousness under the sting of deep remorse for his sins. When consciousness was restored, the first mental act was to resolve never again to do wrong, that he might be spared from such dread agony. How gladly we'll be spared bitter memories of wrong deeds and thoughts. But that depends on one thing—and that is that we do not have evil thoughts and do not do evil deeds. As surely as we permit them now, memory will faithfully reproduce them and cause us to call upon the rocks to fall upon us and hide us from our shame. Let us think of things true, honorable, just, pure, lovely and of good report.

BROTHERHOOD.

Then, brother man, fold to thy heart thy brother,
For where love dwells the peace of God is there.
To worship rightly is to love each other,
Each smile a hymn, each kindly deed a prayer.

—Whittier.

News from the Field.

Oscar Roberts and Emory J. Rees and wife, who are on their way to Africa to begin missionary work at Johannesburg, have arrived safely in England after a comfortable voyage.

John F. Hanson and wife expect to sail for England about the 6th of Fifth month, reaching London in time for the yearly meeting. They propose to go to Norway immediately after London Yearly Meeting.

We are much gratified at the response which has been made to our request for signatures to the Peace Memorial to be forwarded to the Czar of Russia. Signatures have come in from nearly every part of the country. We hope later to give the total number of names received.

We sincerely regret the publication, in a former issue, of an advertisement of the "war numbers" of a popular magazine. It was not noticed by the editor until it was too late to stop it. We do not recommend such war articles.

William Marshall writes that he is in good health. His address is: care of William Payne, Casilla 47, Cordoba, Argentine Republic, South America.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—New York Yearly Meeting of Friends will be held in the city of Poughkeepsie, commencing Fifth month 25th, with sessions of the meeting of ministers and elders at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. The regular business sessions of the Yearly Meeting open at 10 a.m. on the 26th. We are hoping for a large attendance and abundant blessing upon our annual gathering. The committee to secure homes ask that all who expect to attend will inform the undersigned as early as possible. The price for board will range from five to seven dollars per week in private families. The price for board at hotels will be made known upon application.

If those who secure their own homes will inform the committee where these are to be it will enable them to intelligently answer any inquiries made as to where any Friend is located.

On behalf of committee: Adna F. Heaton, Walter H. Bedell, 359 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

PHILADELPHIA YEARLY MEETING.

The 219th annual session of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting is in progress this week. Large meetings were held on First-day in the various city meeting houses.

At the Orange Street House, West Washington Square, the following strangers had seats in the ministers' gallery: Eli Harvey, of Kansas; Thomas Ellmore and Katharine Stanton, of Indiana; Hannah and Rachel Stratton, of Ohio; Benj. Lightfoot, of Pittsburg; Elisha Steer, of Ohio; Eliza H. Varney, of Canada. After an offering of prayer by the latter, Joseph S. Elkinton, Katharine Stanton, Hannah Stratton, Eli Harvey and Joseph Elkinton, of Media, engaged in vocal ministry. A salutation went forth to those who might not be in membership with Friends, but who were evidently members of the Church Universal, and the necessity of faith in the Son of God and of faithfulness to His leadings was dwelt upon. After a second offering of prayer the meeting concluded.

At Sixth and Noble Streets, Elwood Conrad, of Ohio, and Cyrus W. Harvey, of Kansas, took part in the vocal ministry. The latter treated of Christ as the Head of the Church, and showed how in this office He fulfilled the prophecies of the Old Testament concerning Him.

There was a very large congregation at the morning meeting at Twelfth Street. Abram Fisher spoke at some length upon the offices of our Lord in His Church. He was followed by Elizabeth Tatum, of Maryland, and by John H. Dillingham, Hannah Arnett, and others. Two Friends in the body of the meeting offered prayer.

In the afternoon, at Orange Street, Elwood Conrad gave an earnest exhortation to return to primitive simplicity of life and faith, and Joseph Elkinton treated of two methods of growth in the spiritual life. Prayer was offered by Katharine Stanton.

A large congregation assembled in the Twelfth Street meeting-house at 7.30. Dr. Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore, spoke earnestly in regard to the unveiling of the Father in Jesus Christ. The rest of the time was occupied by Ellwood Conrad, who treated the subject of "Immediate Revelation." The business sessions of the Yearly Meeting began at 10 o'clock on Second-day, Fourth month 17th, in the ancient meeting-house at Fourth and Arch Streets, a picture of which we give on our first page.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

We are requested to print the following on the authority of the Ministers' Association of Marion, Indiana:

Marion, Indiana, Fourth month 6th, 1899.

To the Public:—The following parties—Henry J. Lawrence, Miss Anna Lawrence and Miss Mary M. Lawrence, of 3312 Race Street, Marion, Indiana—have been traveling about the country, individually and collectively, soliciting funds for a pretended missionary purpose. Their work has been so suspicious and so many inquiries have come from parties they have solicited, that the Ministers' Association of Marion, Ind., after investigation, concludes to make and publish broadcast the following statement, which statement has been referred to the said Henry J. Lawrence and the facts therein contained approved by him in presence of witnesses:

We do not believe that these parties are trustworthy. One of them has been disowned by the Friends' Church of Marion, Ind., and another, being a member of the Friends' Church at Dublin, Ind., is under discipline. They carry recommendations over the names of ministers and others of Marion. The names of some of these parties are being used contrary to the wishes of the signers. Others whose names are attached affirm that they have never signed the papers. Daily papers in Marion have repeatedly pronounced them frauds.

We do not believe the cause is a worthy one. We know that the Lawrences pretend to be incorporated as the Christian Home Society, and suspiciously these three persons, members of one family, are its trustees. They have gathered thousands of dollars, and have bought property and loaned money on property and are in business in Marion as trustees of this missionary society. It does not seem that they have ever used any of the money for missionary purposes. They have never announced any plan of work nor the persons whom they sustain in the work.

The society and its officers are at this time involved in law suits in the courts of Grant County, Ind.

The parties are smooth. They quote Scripture, distribute Bible readings, lead family devotions and are apparently of spiritual mind.

They have worked to our knowledge in Indiana, Ohio, New-Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. At present they are working eastern Pennsylvania and New York. Religious and secular papers please copy and assist in exposing the fraud.

REV. S. S. NEWHOUSE, President.

REV. J. A. DUNKEL, Secretary.

Anderson, Indiana.—Anderson Monthly Meeting is a new meeting in a very thriving city of about 27,000 inhabitants. It is growing in capital, and permanent city improvements are rapidly going on. I came here six months ago as pastor, since which time there has been a revival spirit in the meeting. We have received thirty adults into the church, and more are in sight. Our First-day evening meetings are held on the evangelistic plan. Last First-day evening seven came forward for prayer, six being blessed; fifteen united with the church and were received into membership on Fourth-day evening, that being our monthly meeting. At the close of the business two of our prominent young workers in church and Endeavor were united in marriage, the groom being the president of the C. E. and the bride the treasurer. All available space was taken by the large audience. The regular meetings are attracting attention; the attendance is good and on the increase. Those who have contributed means to the support and organization of this meeting will surely have a great reward, for souls are being saved that in all probability, if it were not for Friends' Meeting here in Anderson, would not be saved at all. Pray for us, that we may faithfully do the work God would have us do in this great field.

TENNYSON LEWIS.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Abijah Cox is located as pastor in Antioch Meeting, but his post office address is Stafford, P. O., Kansas.

Achsa C. Kenyon commenced a series of meetings at Pleasant Ridge, Phillips County, Kansas (Mount Ayre Quarter), Second month 28th. He was joined in the work later on by Israel and C. H. Osburn and Allie Beals. Twenty-six sessions were held in all and nineteen families visited. There was one conversion, six renewals and two sanctified. The meetings were owned and blessed of the Lord, and we trust the seed sown will yield a bountiful harvest. The meetings were well attended, considering the inclemency of the weather, people coming for miles to hear the gospel. There is an open door for Friends here. We already have fifty members and there are others thinking of coming to Friends. The meeting-house here was built a year ago by the community and deeded to the Friends. There is no other meeting-house nearer than seven miles. We hope some Friends will feel like coming to that field to help take the country for the Lord. There is a two-days' meeting to be held there on the 13th and 14th of Fifth month. Any one who feels like attending the same should write to Rinzo Hawley, Republican City, Nebraska, and he will see that they are met and conveyed to said meeting, which is seven miles south of Republican City.

CATHARINE H. OSBURN,

Superintendent of Evangelistic Work of Mount Ayre Quarterly Meeting, Kansas.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

The following item it taken from the Greensboro "Record:"

"A Good Man Gone.—Universal expressions of sorrow were heard this morning when it was learned that the spirit of Mr. H. H. Cartland had 'passed over the river' to his long home. For days he had been battling between life and death, and the end had been momentarily expected. He continued to sink, lying in a stupor much of the time, until about 5 o'clock this morning, when the messenger of death claimed him.

"It is not extravagant to say that Mr. Cartland was one of the most popular men who have lived in Greensboro, for he was a true gentleman of the old-school type. He was a man in whom the people reposed the most implicit confidence, and in his passing away many will lose a true and tried friend. He was quiet, unassuming and dignified, always lending his ear to the voice of distress and never refusing help to the needy.

"Mr. Cartland was a native of Maine, coming to Greensboro in 1875 and establishing himself in business in the room now occupied by the 'Record.' He had a fine business mind, and by strict honesty and integrity he built up a lucrative business. His merchant tailoring establishment is perhaps second to none other in the State. Soon after coming to Greensboro he was married to Miss Henrietta Houston, a sister to the late Levi and W. M. Houston. She, with four children (two sons and two daughters) survive him. He also leaves three brothers, one of whom (Dr. Cartland) is a resident of High Point. The bereaved family and relatives here have the heartfelt sympathy of everybody in Greensboro in their sad bereavement.

"Mr. Cartland was a conscientious Christian and a faithful member of the Friends' Church.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

From West Middletown Meeting Earl Forbes, our pastor, commenced a meeting at this place Third month 6th, 1899. On the 7th Nathan D. Knight came, and they together held thirty-four meetings, closing on the 29th. The Gospel was preached in its simplicity and with power, much to the establishing of our membership and unifying our people to a degree that we had not experienced for some years. The doctrine of Holiness was taught and accepted by several of the members. Some conversions and a few accessions to the church are reported. Brother Knight endeared himself to the people by his conduct and by his preaching.

F. JOHNSON.

To the members of Western Yearly Meeting of Friends:

The undersigned Clerk of Book, Tract and Peace Committee of said meeting, having removed to Thorntown, Indiana, for the future all orders for books, tracts, etc., also correspondence in regard to the same should be addressed to Evan Hadley, Plainfield, Indiana, who will gladly respond to all calls or orders.

EPHRAIM DOAN.

OREGON YEARLY MEETING.

Newberg, Oregon.—On Third month 20th, President Thomas Newlin arrived home at Newberg, Oregon, from his very successful trip to England, accompanied by his family, who joined him at Indianapolis, Ind., on his way back. A very large number of their friends and neighbors thronged the railroad station to welcome them, including about a hundred students from the college. The next evening, at the church, a reception was given them by the people of the town. Brief, appropriate addresses of greeting were given by a number of speakers. The mayor, J. G. Hadley, spoke very fittingly in behalf of the city; Rev. Waltz, in behalf of the Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. Day, for the Baptist church; Prof. Chas. E. Lewis, for the Friends; Jesse Edwards, for the board of directors of Pacific College; Prof. E. Morrison, for the faculty of the college; Clara Vaughan, for the students, and Mrs. Dunlap, for the Ladies' Club. President Newlin replied briefly, speaking feelingly of the joy of returning to their home and friends, and of the hearty greeting they had received. The large audience, which filled the large audience room and galleries, was then invited to the basement of the church, where the Ladies' Club served refreshments and a very pleasant social hour was spent. The friends of the college are delighted with the success of President Newlin's trip to England, and many expressions of appreciation were heard during the evening of the help and sympathy of the English and Irish Friends towards our work in the West.

C.

Rosedale, Oregon.—Charles Pearson and B. F. Hinshaw closed a series of meetings at Scott's Mills, Third month 25th—twenty-two sessions in all—with good results. Some were renewed, and several definitely blessed. The brothers were blessed in the leading of the Spirit, both in preaching and visiting families. They called on nearly all the families of the town. The church is left in good working order, with a good feeling from the outside toward the church.

CHARLES BALDWIN.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Viola Smith is holding meetings in Muscatine.

Josiah Dillon attended Honey Creek Quarterly Meeting, held at Hubbard, Fourth month 1st and 2d.

Oliver Frazier is attending meeting in Iowa with a minute from North Loup, Neb. He is soliciting for a meeting-house at that place.

Edgar West, a native from Jamaica, arrived the 5th inst. to enter school in preparation for the ministry, in which he is called to his people. He is at Le Grande, Iowa.

CANADA YEARLY MEETING.

West Lake Quarter.—West Lake Quarterly Meeting was held at Bloomfield, Ontario, the 4th and 5th of Third month, the only visiting minister being Eli G. Parker, of Iowa, whose company was very welcome to Friends gathered at this time. Our brother expressed a desire to hold a series of meetings right on after the quarterly meeting, but the way seemed closed, as there were being held special services in the Methodist Church here by a noted evangelist, which were claiming the attention of the whole church-going community.

Our Quarterly Meeting proved a time of real blessing, particularly on Seventh-day. At the 10 o'clock meeting the pastor of the Methodist Church and J. McG. Kerr, the evangelist, were present. Eli G. Parker spoke at some length in a very convincing manner upon the necessity of each one knowing for himself the fruits of abiding in Christ and He in us. When such is the case there will be no shirking of duty to our fellow laborers, to the church, or to God. His discourse seemed to touch all hearts present, particularly the two ministers who sat beside him on the platform. J. McG. Kerr followed in very feeling endorsement of the sentiments expressed by E. G. Parker, and urged upon all the necessity of a life of holiness and consecration, explaining very clearly the meaning of those terms. Truly it was a melting time. Tears flowed freely. Time was forgotten; denominationalism was not recognized in the presence of the Holy Spirit.

Many testimonies were given and expressions of thankfulness for God's goodness to His undeserving children. First-day proved to be extremely wet and stormy, so that meetings were small. E. G. Parker went on to Wellington, and from there to Moscow, trying, by the help of the Lord, to "strengthen the things that remain." May God be with him and all who labor to extend our Master's kingdom. Our next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Wellington, Ontario, five miles from here, on the first Seventh-day and First-day, Sixth month 3d and 4th.

We are hoping that the Lord may send one or more of His willing servants this way for that occasion.

C. S.

WILMINGTON YEARLY MEETING.

Samantha O.—Fairfield Quarterly Meeting, held First month 28th, 1899, adjourned to meet at Fall Creek, Ohio, Fourth month 29th, 1899. This place of meeting is about eight miles south of Leesburg, and six miles east of Hillsboro, Highland County, Ohio. These are the nearest railroad points. The Quarterly Meeting has never been held at this place. We pray the Lord that He will send some of His servants to us with messages of love.

ARTHUR L. CAREY, Clerk Quarterly Meeting.

FOREIGN.

English Friends propose to hold this summer, from the 4th to the 15th, in Birmingham, a school similar to the Scarborough School of two years ago. The first draft of the program contains the following names and subjects:

Prof. R. W. Rogers, Prof. A. C. McGiffert, Paul Sabatier, (of Paris, author of the life of Francis of Assisi), and a number of Friends, including Dr. J. Rendel Harris, Dr. Thomas Hodgkin, John William Graham, W. C. Braithwaite, John Wilhelm Rowntree, Edward Grubb, Joan M. Fry, and others.

One study will be, "The Poetical Literature of the Old Testament," and this will be considered fifty minutes in the morning, of three days. Devotional meetings will be held every day, from 10 to 10.25 a.m. Paul Sabatier's theme is "Francis of Assisi"; Prof. McGiffert's, "The Spiritual Conception of the Church," and "The Eucharist, in the Light of the Textual and Higher Criticism." John William Graham will speak upon "Isaac Penington," and Frances Thompson on "Emerson." Public meetings will be held in the Town Hall of Birmingham on two evenings, the 5th and 7th, the subjects assigned being "The Ideal Church," and "The Church and Humanity." The school sessions will all be held in the forenoon, and will close at 12.25, except that on the afternoon of the 10th (First-day), from 3 to 4, M. A. Wallis will speak on "Methods of Christ's Teaching."

FOREIGN MISSION WORK.

Marion, Ind.—The Fourth Triennial Conference of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Union of Friends will be held at Marion, Ind., Fifth month 18th to 21st, inclusive. All delegates are requested to forward their names at once to Mary E. Baldwin, Chairman of the Reception Committee, No. 2311 South Meridan Street, Marion, Ind. Names must be sent a week before the Conference to secure homes. In behalf of Marion Women's Foreign Missionary Society, MARY L. HINSHAW, Secretary.

"Life ever more is tled by death,
In earth or sea or sky,
And that a rose may breathe its breath
Something must die."

Died.

BRIGGS.—At her home, near New Sharon, Iowa, Third month 26th, 1899, Elizabeth Briggs, wife of George Briggs, sweetly fell asleep in Jesus. She was born in Mahoning County, Ohio, Third month 1st, 1833. She had long been an invalid, yet her hours and years of physical weakness were borne with Christian fortitude. She was a devoted wife and loving mother.

CHAPPELL.—At her home, Battle Creek, Iowa, Third month 2d, 1899, Matilda B. Chappell, in her 72d year. She was born at Alum Creek, Ohio, being a daughter of Aden and Sarah Benedict. She was married to Henry N. Chappell in 1845. She was a birthright member with Friends. She was converted in early youth, and ever lived loyal to its principles. At the time of her death she was a member of Ida Grove Meeting. She was a great sufferer, being blind for many years. For four years she was deprived of attending meeting, which she so much prized, but never murmured or complained.

DRAPER.—Hannah D. Draper, daughter of John and Hannah Pressnall, and widow of Ephraim Draper, died, First month 22d, 1899, at the age of 70 years, 11 months and 8 days. She was a faithful Christian and member of Duck Creek Monthly Meeting of Friends, Indiana.

DUNCANSON.—Died, at Tonganoxie, Kansas, on the morning of Eighth month 20th, 1898, Edna Blanche Duncanson, daughter of Alvan C. and Rebecca E. Talbert (the former deceased), aged 22 years. She suffered much, but bore it all without a murmur. At the last moment she looked up toward heaven, and with a sweet smile said, "Father!" "Jesus!"

DUTTON.—Died, at their home, one and one-half miles southeast of Russiaville, Ind, Fourth month 3d, 1899, Jonathan Dutton, in his 73d year; and about six hours after, on the same date, his wife, Ellen Dutton, in her 76th year, also passed away. They were both born in Highland County, Ohio, and had enjoyed companionship as husband and wife for forty-four years, and were very devoted to each other. In the last scene in the drama of these two lives, rich in the association of cherished companionship, and in the sacred ties of family and home, was witnessed the peaceful falling asleep in the arms of Jesus. They were highly respected members of the Friends' meeting, and by their faithful and exemplary Christian character, made beautiful by lives hid with Christ in God, they won the respect and admiration of all who knew them.

GARDNER.—Rebecca Stanfield Gardner, daughter of John B. and Asenath Griffith, died Third month 21st, 1899, in the 44th year of her age, near Fillmore, California. She was converted early in life, and lived a faithful Christian. She was an earnest worker in temperance, missionary and other church work.

HARRIS.—John Richard Harris peacefully passed away early Easter Sabbath morning, Fourth month 2d, at his home in Rockwood, Ontario, from a cerebral tumor. He was the eldest son of John and Jane (Wetherald) Harris, and was born Eighth month 29th, 1837, near his late home. He received his education at the Rockwood Academy, then conducted by his uncle, the late William Wetherald. On Tenth month 21st, 1863, he was married to Marianna Treffry, of Norwich, Ontario, who with four sons survive him. Besides being engaged in active business, he has been for the past few years clerk of Canada Yearly Meeting, and was much interested in the welfare of Pickering College, the Canadian Friends' boarding school at Pickering, Ontario.

LAMB.—Benjamin B. Lamb, born in Perquimons County, North Carolina, died at his home, at Amboy, Ind., Third month 8th, 1899, in his 76th year. At the age of fourteen years he moved with his parents and settled in Madison County, Ind., within the limits of Northern (now Fairmount) Quarterly Meeting. He was converted in early childhood, was a birthright member with Friends, and ever remained a true and loyal worker in the church. He assisted in establishing Amboy Monthly Meeting and Wabash Quarterly Meeting, was ever faithful in attendance and liberal in his contributions. Several hours before his departure he told his family that his work here was almost finished and that his title was clear to a home in heaven—that there was nothing but love in his heart for everybody.

MARTIN.—Daniel Hadley Martin peacefully passed away, Fourth month 3d, 1899. He was born First month 4th, 1821, in Yadkin County, North Carolina. He joined Friends in 1848, and for more than fifty years was a minister in active service. He traveled in the ministry in North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska and Washington, generally paying his own expenses. He moved to Iowa in 1849, and has been a member of Honey Creek Monthly Meeting since, excepting a few years that he lived at Albion and Hubbard.

PEEK.—Walter B. Peek, son of Millard F. and Lydia Peek, died Third month 28th, 1899, aged 15 years and 1 month. He was endowed with a bright mind and he possessed an affectionate nature. He was converted at a series of meetings held at Friends' Union some years ago. He evinced an interest in Sabbath School work, and was dutiful and obedient. He was a member of Marshall Monthly Meeting, Parke County, Indiana.

ROGERS.—Mary Emma Catlin Rogers died Fourth month 8th, 1899, aged 30 years. She gave her heart to God at the age of thirteen and has always endeavored to follow Him. She was united in marriage to Horace M. Rogers, Eighth month 1st, 1888. She was a faithful, true and loving wife and mother until the Master called her from works to rewards. We have the blessed assurance that she stands to-day with the redeemed of Christ's kingdom above. She had been a member of Hesper Monthly Meeting, Kansas, for fifteen years.

STANLEY.—Isaac, son of George and Jemima Stanley, died at his home, Eageltown, Ind., the 30th day of the Third month, 1899, aged 73 years. He was a birthright member of the Society of Friends, of which he has been a prominent member most of his life. Isaac Stanley was a loving and devoted husband and father, an honest, upright and faithful friend, neighbor and citizen. He lived a consistent Christian life, righting wrongs when convinced he was in error. His testimony was pointed for Christ and for purity.

HOTEL STRAND

ATLANTIC CITY.

Ocean and Virginia Avenues.

A thoroughly modern and home-like house throughout. Elevator to street level. Steam heat. Sun parlor, etc. A special rate will be made to FRIENDS during this season. Write for booklet and terms.

FAIRBAIN & WILLIAMS.

Mention this Paper

A year or two ago I stood where John Quincy Adams is buried. Did he ever say anything better than this? Hear him: "I speak as a man of the world to men of the world; and I say, Search the Scriptures! The Bible is the Book of all others to be read at all ages and in all conditions of human life; not to be read once, or twice, or thrice through, and then laid aside, but to be read in small portions of one or two chapters every day, and never be intermitted unless by some overruling necessity."—"Commonwealth."

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

ALL ABOUT CREAM SEPARATORS

Why the improved and patent protected "Alpha" disc machines are as much superior to the older types of separators first made by the De Laval Company and now by several imitators as are such older pattern machines to gravity setting.

Send for new March, 1899 De Laval catalogue.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

NEW ENGLAND AGENTS:
MOSELEY & STODDARD MFG. CO.
RUTLAND, VT.

GENERAL OFFICES:
74 CORTLANDT STREET,
NEW YORK.

INTERESTING BOOKS.

Isaac Sharp. An Apostle of the Nineteenth Century.

By FRANCES ANNE BUDGE.

One of his characteristic watchwords was:

"Forward and fear not;
Let thy faith be firm."

"It is no small praise for this book to be able to say of it, without exaggeration, that it is a memoir worthy of the remarkable man of whom it treats."—American Friend.

Price, Postage paid, $1.37.

Loving Service; or, Memoir of Martha Braithwaite.

By ELIZABETH A. EMMOTT.

"The book cannot fail to be read by many Friends with much interest."—London Friend.

Price, Postage Paid, $1.65.

A Quaker of the Olden Time. Being a Memoir of John Roberts.

By DANIEL ROBERTS.

"This is a capital reprint of a book first published in 1746."—British Weekly.

Price, Postage Paid, $1.65.

The Distinguishing Doctrines of the Religious Society of Friends.

Being an address delivered by JAMES WOOD in 1898.

Price, by Mail, 12 cents.

For Sale by

Friends' Book and Tract Committee

No. 51 Fifth Avenue, New York.

ACTINA AND MAGNETIC CONSERVATIVE APPLIANCES.

We have numerous testimonials as to the value of these articles in curing Chronic Catarrh, Hay-Fever, Asthma, Cataract, Deafness, Rheumatism, Gout, and various other ills humanity is heir to.

For sale by the

PHILADELPHIA MAGNETIC CO.,
1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

TO MEMPHIS AND NEW ORLEANS.

The Southern Railway offers the best Service.

Ask for your ticket via the Southern Railway. Three daily trains from Broad Street Station, Philadelphia. Through sleepers and fast schedules make it the quickest and most comfortable route. For further information write to Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.

OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Avenue, near Beach. Close to New Steel Pier. New Management. Quiet, homelike, and attractive. Ocean view.
Write for information.

MRS. N. R. HAINES,
Owner and Proprietor.

(Formerly of The Chalfonte.)

The Archdale, 136 South
Maryland Avenue,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view; cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.
MARY J. BUNDY.

SUMMER BOARDING.

Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate, at her home, near Muncy, Pa., a few summer boarders. The ground is high, view fine, air good, and drives and walks pleasant.

For terms address

CAROLINE B. KIRK,
Pennsdales, Pa.

Non-alcoholic Flavoring Powders,
The Boston Perfection Pie Rim,
and other Household Novelties

For sale by

M. P. GIFFORD,
1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Jno. M. Beall was appointed Pacific Coast Passenger Agent, office 621 Market Street (Palace Hotel), San Francisco, Cal., vice Chas. L. Hopkins, who was transferred and appointed District Passenger Agent, office 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

"NOT PATCHED, BUT WHOLE."

The preacher at a rescue mission was pressing home the question of Jesus at Bethesda, "Wilt thou be made whole?" Suddenly he leaned forward, paused an instant, then shot these words out: "Remember, men, it's not patched, but made whole."

THE OLD STANDBY!
DELAU'S
REMEDY

A Sure Cure for
Whooping Cough
Croup and
Ordinary Colds

AT DRUGGISTS.

GOOD NEWS.

Even if you have suffered long, there is abundant proof that Compound Oxygen has effected wonderful cures. We will gladly furnish this evidence. Book of 200 pages sent free. Or call and see us. Skillful medical attention to every case brought to notice, either personally or by letter. Consultation free.

Our confidence in the remedial powers of the Compound Oxygen is the result of a quarter of a century's experience.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,
1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.
San Francisco, Cal. Toronto, Canada

ELLWOOD HEACOCK

UNDERTAKER AND
EMBALMER

ESTABLISHED 1860 TELEPHONE 5807
Local and Long Distance

1313 Vine Street, Philadelphia

Calls outside of City answered promptly

The Easiest Writing
Pen Made NOTHING LIKE IT.
ESTERBROOK'S
POSTAL No. 477

Turned
up
Point.

ESTERBROOK & CO'S
POSTAL PEN

Ask your Stationer.

One Hundred and Fifty other Styles.
The ESTERBROOK STEEL PEN CO.
Works, Camden, N. J. 26 John St., N. Y.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES
You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently
but firmly. Pond's Extract cures
Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis,
Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.-FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

NOT UNLIKELY.

This is a lawyer's story of his first trial in which a farmer accused his neighbor of stealing his ducks. The lawyer was employed by the accused to convince the court that such was not the case. The plaintiff was positive that his neighbor was guilty of the offence charged because he had seen his ducks in the defendant's yard. "How do you know they were your ducks?" asked the lawyer. "I should know my ducks anywhere," replied the farmer, giving a description of their various peculiarities whereby he could distinguish them. "Why, said the lawyer, "those ducks cannot be of such rare breed. I have seen some just like them in my own yard." "That's not at all unlikely," admitted the farmer, "for they are not the only ducks I have had stolen lately."

ANOTHER NEW TRAIN.

A new train has been inaugurated between Philadelphia and southern points, via the Southern Railway.

It is called "The Washington and Chattanooga Limited" and leaves Broad Street Station daily at 5.34 p.m., carrying Pullman Drawing Room Buffet Sleeping cars from Philadelphia to Memphis and New Orleans, via Washington, Lynchburg, Bristol, and Chattanooga. This train also carries through Pullman cars, Philadelphia to Augusta, Savannah, Jacksonville and Tampa, via Charlotte and Columbia. The Fast Mail leaving at 7.20 a.m., and the Southwestern Limited at 6.55 p.m., making a total of three daily trains from Broad Street Station, which will enable you to reach almost every city of importance in the South without change of cars. Further information will be cheerfully furnished by Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART, a beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight in every Christian family, first Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 52 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. MCGEE & CO.,

1025 Arch Street.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Hold On

to a good thing when you find it. The planter who once reads Gregory's Seed Book—who once plants Gregory's Seeds, will never begin a season's work without them.

Gregory's Seeds

represent the highest development of scientific seed culture. Gregory's seed book contains the best of seed and flower facts. The book is free to all—the seeds cost no more than the ordinary kind. Send for book at once.

JAMES J. H. GREGORY & SON,
Marblehead, Mass.

GREGORY'S SEED CATALOGUE.
FOR 1899

Our New Canna Lilies

The most gorgeous flowers for garden and lawn. Plant in pots for immediate bloom, set out when ground is warm. Bears splendid clusters of lily-like flowers and elegant foliage.

4 for 25 Cents

Including DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH
—The darkest and richest crimson Canna, and

1 Lovely Pink,

1 Gold Edged,

1 Rich Variegated,

Live roots, sure to bloom.

New Floral Guide

124 pages, tells about 400 other Choice Flowers, FREE.
Dept. 8.
CONARD & JONES CO., West Grove, Pa.

It Stands Alone

The secret of its supremacy over all similar foods rests in its superiority over them. Nothing but intrinsic merit could have forced it to so high a place in the world's esteem.

You are missing something good if you do not eat it.

THE EASY FOOD

Quaker Oats

THE WORLD'S BREAKFAST

ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.
A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

THE RIGHTEOUSNESS OF THE SAINTS.

Look afar off at a waterfall, and you see it frozen by the distance into rest, lying against the hillside like a wreath of snow; but go near, and you will see it to be ceaseless movement, and bewildering change, and endless variety, great masses of seething foam and clouds of spray rising and falling with a deafening roar.

And so the white raiment of the saintly soul, which seems so calm and restful, is in reality the mutability of struggling powers, subdued to unity by faith in Christ, and dominated by the purity and the peace of heaven.—Hugh Macmillan, D.D.

TO HEAVEN IN GOG.

You will not be able to go through life without being discovered; a lighted candle cannot be hid. There is a feeling among some good people that it will be wise to be very reticent and hide their light under a bushel. They intend to lie low all the war-time, and come out when the palms are being distributed. They hope to travel to heaven by the back lanes, and skulk into glory in disguise. Rest assured, my fellow-Christians, that at some period or other, in the most quiet lives, there will come a moment for open decision. Days will come when we must speak out, or prove traitors to our Lord and to His truth. You cannot long hold fire in the hollow of your hand, or keep a candle under the bed. Godliness, like murder, will out. You will not always be able to travel to heaven incog.—C. H. Spurgeon.

COLLECTION ANECDOTES.

An apprentice shoemaker, with only a penny and a florin, attended a country United Presbyterian church, and dropped the latter into the plate. On discovering his mistake, he rose from the pew, and deliberately fished his silver piece out and put in the copper coin.

A lady some Sunday ago entered a Glasgow church, and put sixpence into the collection as she passed the box. When the preacher entered she discovered that he was not Dr. H., and, on inquiry, found that she had entered the wrong church. Descending the gallery stairs, she requested her sixpence back, and received it from the officiating elder.

In an Edinburgh church a student by mistake placed half a crown in the plate. He was, however, less fortunate than the above, for the elder stoutly refused to return the coin. For thirty Sundays afterward he attended the church, putting nothing in the plate, and thus thought he had got even with the elder.

A worthy Border minister was standing near the door one Sunday when three finely dressed young women sailed into the church. The first and the last placed a half penny each in the plate, while the third passed it without seeming to see it. The minister turned to the beadle, and audibly remarked, 'There they go, three a penny.'

The Guaranteed 5%
Twenty-Year Endowment Bond Issued by

The Prudential

is an ideal contract for investors. No estimates as to future results. Every option and benefit offered is absolutely guaranteed.

Written in sums of $1,000 to $50,000.

Send us your name and age, nearest birthday, and we will forward full particulars and illustration of this attractive policy.

Premiums payable Yearly, Half-Yearly, or Quarterly.

The Prudential Insurance Co. OF AMERICA.

John F. Dryden, Pres. Home Office, Newark, N.J.

Dr. W. Anderson, of Glasgow, who was noted for his eccentricities, was one day enlarging on the grace of giving, and denouncing extravagance in dress. "You come here," he said, "in your silks and your satins, your gewgaws and your fol-de-ros, and you either slip by the collection plate, or you drop into it a mooly bawbee."

NOTICE.

A stated meeting of the Pennsylvania Auxiliary of the International Medical Missionary Society will be held at the residence of Mrs. Matthew Baird, Merion, Pa., Sixth day, Fourth month 28, at 3.30 p.m. Address by Dr. James B. Neal, of Chinanfu, China. A cordial invitation is extended to this meeting.

ELIZABETH C. WINN,
Secretary.

WANTS.

[We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS of any kind to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Advertisements will be inserted in this column at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.]

FOR SALE. General stock of merchandise. A good location, Friends' neighborhood, Twenty rods of church; Academy building in process of erection. Reason for selling, poor health.

Write for terms to H. S. McLELLAN
Chapel, Mo.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Colorado St., Wash., D.C.

WANTED—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED—A man, competent and of experience, to establish and manage a Hame manufactory in Greensboro, N. C.

Address Lock Box 55.

TEACHER WANTED.—The Missionary Board of Iowa Yearly Meeting desire a teacher for the Golden Grove East Indian School, in Jamaica. Address ADALINE H. HADLEY, Secretary, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

THE LANGUAGE OF TEARS.

A group of emigrants gathered in the dreary passage of the Jersey City station. People who waited for the midnight train observed the pathetic look upon their faces. The group consisted of the old grandmother, and a family of half-grown children—little men and women—who moved and talked like old folks. Yet they sat silent and motionless on the hard benches on which their baggage was piled. Between the father and mother was a rough bed made of shawls, and a coarse coat, and on that bed slept the youngest of the family. There was something in the aspect of the group that attracted the attention of the passengers. Some one asked if the child was sick. The Danish people shook their heads; it was an unknown tongue; but one of the boys who had picked up a few words of English, replied, "Yesh-shleeps." An hour later an officer of the road attracted to the group turned back the covering from the child's face with a tender hand, and starting back exclaimed, "Why, the child is dead!" "Yesh," said the boy, "shleep—dead." These people had sat by their dead for eight long hours, racked by anxiety, distracted by grief, yet unable to express their trouble. They left the little yellow-haired baby in a foreign grave and went on their way. There were tears in sympathetic eyes when they laid the quaint little figure, in its blue woolen dress, and round white cap, and tiny wooden shoes, alone under the trees of the cemetery in Jersey City. The sympathizing Americans could not understand the language of the Danes, but the language of tears is the universal language of humanity.—"Commonwealth."

MAJOR LAWRIE AND THE SPIDER.

Major Lawrie is the hero of an interesting superstition. Before Atbara he discovered in the ventilator of his helmet an energetic spider, which came out in the evening, and, having had his supper on flies, returned to his hiding place. Perhaps, remembering the story of Bruce and the spider, the major left his new friend unmolested, and went into the Atbara fight with him. Men were killed all round, but Major Lawrie escaped without a scratch. At Omdurman he commanded a battery, and again was unwounded. Meanwhile the spider slumbered in the helmet, waiting for this ridiculous human commotion to cease, that he might come out and kill flies for supper. When the hurly-burly was over Major Lawrie packed various articles to be sent home, and among them the helmet and the spider. Too late he remembered that he had sent his little friend on a long voyage without any larder. In great tribulation he hastened to London, opened the helmet box, expecting to find the spider a corpse and was rejoiced to see him alive, and even vigorous. Stranger still, on the way to England he (we beg pardon—she) had produced two young spiders!—"Public Opinion."

A good lamp-chimney dealer keeps Macbeth and no other.

Index tells what Number to get.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

ALASKA AND THE YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

A party will leave Philadelphia, Monday, May 22d, to visit Fort Wrangel, Juneau, Douglas Island, the Davidson Glacier on Lynn Canal, the Great Muir Glacier in Glacier Bay, Sitka, etc. On the return a full week will be spent in the Yellowstone National Park, and from Duluth to Buffalo, the party will take the Great Lake Route via the Northern S. S. Co.'s steamers. Send for descriptive book.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
1005 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

LAST TWO TOURS TO WASHINGTON UNDER PERSONAL ESCORT.

The last two of the present series of Pennsylvania Railroad three-day personally-conducted tours to Washington, D. C., will leave April 20th and May 11th. The rate, $14.50 from New York, $11.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points, includes transportation, hotel accommodations, and Capitol guide fees. An experienced Chaperon will also accompany the party.

For itineraries, tickets, and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

OLD POINT COMFORT ONLY.

Tickets to Old Point Comfort only, including luncheon on going trip, one and three-fourths days' board at that place, and good to return direct by regular trains within six days, will be sold in connection with this tour at rate of $15.00 from New York; $13.50 from Trenton; $12.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

For Sleeplessness

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. PATRICK BOOTH, Oxford, N. C., says: "Have seen it act admirably in insomnia, especially of old people and convalescents. A refreshing drink in hot weather and in cases of fevers."

No. 717 Canopy-Top Surrey, with double fenders. Price, complete, with curtains all around, storm apron, sunshade, lamps and pole or shafts, $68; as good as sells for $100.

WHY NOT SAVE IT?

When it comes to buying a vehicle of any kind you may just as well save all the money in the transaction above the manufacturer's price. No need to pay added commissions and expenses of travelling salesmen, middlemen, dealers, agents, etc.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS but sell direct from our factory at wholesale prices. We are the largest manufacturers of vehicles and harness in the world selling to the consumer exclusively.

IN VEHICLES WE MAKE

Rockaways, Surreys, Traps, Phaetons, Stanhopes, Driving Wagons, Top Buggies, Open and Top Road Wagons, Spring Wagons, Delivery Wagons, Milk Wagons and Waggonettes. In harness we make either single

No. 77—Single Surrey harness $16, good as sells for $25 double harness suitable to all the above vehicles and heavy team use.

SEND FOR LARGE FREE CATALOGUE.

ELKHART HARNESS AND CARRIAGE MANFG. CO. W. B. Pratt, Sec'y. ELKHART, INDIANA.

Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma, Colds

Hundreds of thousands of mothers use Vapo-Cresolene. Do You? Cresolene cures Whooping Cough every time; stops Croup almost immediately, and if used at once will cure a Cold before any complications can arise. I. N. Love, M.D., of St. Louis, says: "I have instructed every family under my direction to secure it." Mrs. Ballington Booth, says: "I recommend that no family where there are young children should be without it." W. R. Chichester, M.D., of New York, says: "As a vehicle for disinfecting purposes Cresolene is immediately successful." Anthony Constock, says: "Malignant Diphtheria in my house; Cresolene used; cases recovered in two weeks; no others were affected." Descriptive booklet with testimonials free. Sold by all druggists.

VAPOR-CRESOLENE CO., 68 Wall St., New York.
Schieffelin & Co., New York, U. S. Agents.

Criss-Cross CEREALS

Seven food products—prevent and relieve diabetes, dyspepsia, debility, etc. Ask dealers. Unlike all others. Look for criss-cross lines. Pamphlet and sample offer mailed free.

K. O. WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR.
Prevents constipation and liver troubles.

GLUTEN CRITS,
New health breakfast food.

PANSY Pastry Flour, Finest made
FARWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U. S. A.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION TELESCOPE.

When the idea was first mooted of constructing a telescope powerful enough to allow the moon to be viewed from what would seem to be close at hand, no little amusement was caused in Paris. Innumerable pleasantries were made at the expense of "the moon a yard off," and in the end the project was thought to have dropped, or rather it was never supposed that it had been seriously entertained. However, it is now announced that the scheme is to be realized up to a certain point. The image of the moon on which visitors to the Exhibition will be able to gaze will appear to be distant only about one hundred kilometers, or sixty miles. The telescope that is to attain this result, which will far outstrip all that has been previously achieved, is in course of construction. Its tubes, which are to be made of steel, will have a diameter of over a yard and a half, and will weigh some twenty tons. The instrument will be what is known to astronomy as a Foucault's siderostat. By its aid it will be possible to take photographs of the surface of the moon on a scale ten thousand times larger than any obtained up to now. The great difficulty that has to be overcome has been the polishing of the reflector, a most laborious and highly delicate process that is now approaching successful completion.—"London Standard."

GETTYSBURG, LURAY, AND WASHINGTON.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged for a five-day Personally-Conducted Tour to Gettysburg, Luray, and Washington on May 6th. A full day will be spent at Gettysburg, three hours at Luray, affording ample time to make the tour of the wonderful caverns, and two days at Washington.

The party will be under the guidance of one of the company's experienced tourist agents. A chaperon, whose especial charge will be unescorted ladies, will also accompany the party throughout. Round-trip tickets, including transportation for the round trip, hotel accommodations at Gettysburg and carriage drive over the battlefield, luncheon, transfer, and admission to the Luray Caverns, luncheon, transfer, and hotel accommodations at Washington, and dinner going and supper returning, at Broad Street Station in connection with tickets from Trenton and points east thereof, will be sold at the extremely low rate of $25 from New York, $24 from Trenton, $22 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.

ANCHOR }
ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.

ATLANTIC }
BRADLEY }
BROOKLYN } New York.
JEWETT }

ULSTER }
UNION }

SOUTHERN } SHIPMAN } Chicago.

COLLIER }
MISSOURI }
RED SEAL } St. Louis.
SOUTHERN }

JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO
Philadelphia.

MORLEY
Cleveland.

SALEM
Salem, Mass.

CORNELL
Buffalo.

KENTUCKY
Louisville.

HY is it that the brands of White Lead made by quick or patent process are almost invariably sold below the price of standard brands?

Because practical painters and consumers generally know that they are inferior to the brands made by the "old Dutch process" of slow corrosion. The brands named in margin are genuine.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S DECISION.

We remember the old story of the young woman who asked President Lincoln for a pass through the Federal lines that she might go into the south and see her wounded brother. The papers were made out, and as she was about to depart the President suddenly paused and said to her, "Of course you are loyal?" She hesitated for a moment, her lips quivered, the tears began to gather in her eyes, and turning full upon the President she replied firmly, "Yes, loyal to the heart's core—to Virginia!" The President was surprised; but there was that in her demeanor, in her words, in the character that stamped itself upon her face, and in her response under this supreme crisis, that convinced the President that she could be trusted. Without a moment's hesitation he handed her the papers and she departed on her errand of mercy. It needed no argument to convince him of her sincerity and truth. It was in the accent of her life, it was in the atmosphere that surrounded her personality.—"Commonwealth."

THE BIGGEST ACHER

A farmer can grow considerable corn on an acre, but if he has a toe corn it is often the biggest acher on the farm. To get rid of it, use A-Corn Salve.

BOARDING.

Friends will find a good, comfortable boarding place with Friends at M. E. WISTAR'S, 1725 Arch St., Phila., only three blocks from Broad St. Station.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.

Near Omaha.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - - $25.00 each.
Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.
Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.

Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

For Both 25 cents For Both

SALT.

PEPPER.

If you are looking for a Great Bargain in Fine Silverware never heard of before and that will astonish you, here is one of the Greatest Bargains ever offered by any reliable Manufacturer. For 25 cents we send Prepaid Both the Salt and Pepper Shakers. They are Quadruple Coin Silver Plated. Warranted to wear ten years. Finely engraved and useful as well as ornamental to any table rich or poor. If on receipt of the same you do not think or find them the Greatest Bargain you ever have seen or heard of, return them at once to us and we will refund you your money. We have been doing business in Chicago since 1865. Any Bank or Express Company can tell you our standing. Our Bargain Silverware Catalogue sent Free.

E. B. LEONARD MFG. CO., 152-153 MICHIGAN AVE., CHICAGO.

"Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S

Sweet Brier Apricots

Largest, Handsomest, Most Delicious Grown this Season.

Selected and packed with special care.

Single Pound, 25c.; 5 lb. box,

$1.20. Small Size 15c. lb.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.

Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St., and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son,

WALL PAPERS.

All Grades.

Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

62 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

Read These Books

Mailed free for postage named.

To California and Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer. 50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake Dance, 60 pp., 64 illustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illustrations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health Resorts, 88 pp., 45 illustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Resorts, 84 pp., 27 illustrations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs 48 pp., 39 illustrations, 2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West. They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will make you better acquainted with the attractions of your own land

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force, - - - - $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

Enameline

is perfectly ODORLESS, and that is another reason why it is the Modern Stove Polish. You will not have to move out of the house until it "burns off," if you use Enameline. "My stove shines in the night," a lady writes. Put up in paste, cake or liquid form. No other has so large a sale.

J. L. PRESCOTT & CO., New York

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map 48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in postage to pay for packing and transportation. P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary.

The American Friend

EARLHAM COLLEGE
LIBRARY.

Vol. VI

FOURTH MONTH 27th, 1899

No. 17

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
EDITORIALS. — Heart, Soul, Strength, Mind.—Yearly Meeting Epistles. — Editorial Note	387
General Church Notes	388
The Golden Lamp-stand Alexander McLaren.	389
The Ministry, ... Mary Mendenhall Hobbs.	389
A Visit to Guilford M. Z. Kirk.	392
INTERNATIONAL LESSON	393
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT . .	394
Philadelphia Yearly Meeting	396
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	398
'Baptism of Fire' Florence L. Macpherson.	400
A Bible Reading on the Subject of Peace L. Ella Hartley.	400
Little Deeds of Kindness S. S. S.	401
Book Notices	401
NEWS AND EVENTS	402

It is not enough to believe that Christ came to make us better. He came to make us WHOLE. No man succeeds at anything if he is satisfied with "well enough." The lower ranks are full of "well enough" men. Those succeed who resolve to have the best at any cost, who are men of the superlative degree. There is no comparative degree in salvation, any more than there could be in the case of a drowning man. Christ left no man on whom he wrought a cure to drag around the city streets half cured,—one eye opened, the other blind, the devil half cast out, the leprosy partially removed. When He did anything for a man, He made him whole. He does not, however, make us whole against our will, but the wholeness which He produces comes only to those who fulfil the spiritual conditions and co-operate with Him.

—RUFUS M. JONES.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS

Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

THE GIRARD TRUST CO.

LIFE INSURANCE
ANNUITY AND

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,

Allows Interest on Deposits,

Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,

Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.

WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.

EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.

CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.

NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.

A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.

WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, JR.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENES,GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.

ASA S. WING, Vice-President.

JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.

SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.

DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.

J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.

C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines.Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth.Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

PENN MUTUAL LIFE

INSURANCE COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

Jackets, Reefers and Dresses

For the stately Miss of 14 or 16,
her irrepressible sister of 6, 8, 10
or 12, or the wee toddler from 2 to 5 years, in the most engaging styles and of fashion's chosen fabrics for Spring.

Misses' Reefers in navy, gobelin, tan
and brown Cloths, new shaped collar
nicely braided, and pearl buttons, sizes
4 to 12 years, at $4.75.

Misses Reefers in navy, tan and red
Cloths, very latest collar, lined with Silk and handsomely braided, sizes 6 to 12
years, at $6.50.

Misses' Fly-front Jackets of Covert
Cloths, lined throughout with Silk Serge,
sizes 12 to 18 years, at $6.50.

Misses' Fly-front Jackets of beautiful
Venetian Cloth, in blue, tan and brown,
lined throughout with best Taffetas Silk,
sizes 14 and 16 years, at $10.00.

Misses' fine Dresses and Sailor Suits,
in Serge, Cheviot and all the newest materials, made and finished in the most approved styles, sizes 4 to 14 years.
Prices range from $3.75 to $15.00.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED,
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.

All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

ALL the best forms of Life Insurance, in a Company conducted by members solely
for members, at a lower cost than elsewhere.
HOME OFFICE,
921 Chestnut Street

The American Friend

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, FOURTH MONTH 27, 1899.

No. 17.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

HEART, SOUL, STRENGTH, MIND.

It is always well to consider carefully how Christ dealt with inquirers, for His method of solving religious difficulties must be our guide in similar situations. There are many instances recorded where He talked with seekers, and all these passages are full of illumination. He never speaks as a theologian, as though with a logical phrase He could help a hungry soul, but He always goes straight to the heart of the situation with a few vital words which are just as fresh and true and satisfying to-day as when they were first spoken.

Take the case of the young lawyer with the right Scripture passages always at his tongue's end. He wants to know how to "inherit eternal life." He soon learns that eternal life is not "inherited" as ancestral lands or government bonds are. It comes not by right of elder sonship or family connection. It is no heirloom for certain privileged families.

The Master makes his questioner give the right answer with his own lips. "What are the conditions to eternal life?" "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy HEART, and with all thy SOUL, and with all thy STRENGTH, and with all thy MIND, and thy neighbor as thy self." This is of course no complete theological definition of the plan of salvation, but it is a practical statement of the conditions of eternal life. What a comprehensive sweep it is! and what a message of breadth it has for some of us narrow, modern Christians!

We have just been listening to a sermon against "creaturely activity,"—a plea for passive waiting on the Lord. We hear again and again that the mind, i.e., the intellect, the thought, must be repressed in order that the soul may commune with God, and we not seldom listen to solemn cautions against the emotions of the heart. In fact, too many persons think that to be religious one must kill out or suppress most of the faculties of the being. Not so the Master. He has a use for every part of the nature. He tells his questioner that if he wants to come into eternal life he must have heart, soul, strength, mind vibrating with love to God and to man. Afraid of "creaturely activity"! fearful lest the heart shall swell and grow warm! timorous about thought! Why, Christ says that the very condition of entering eternal life is to love with the heart, love with the soul, love with the strength, the physical activities, love with the powers of the mind. This means that these faculties of our being are to turn toward Him as the flower turns toward the sun, and let their activities move in joyous accord and harmony with His will.

It is impossible to keep a healthy child from activity; the life within it makes it active. Tie its hands and fetter its activities, and you kill it by slow process. It is impossible for a genuinely religious being to keep from spiritual activity. Its mind is after truth, its heart is warm with love for Him who has loved even to death, its strength is consecrated to the service of lifting others, its soul is responsive to the Will of the Spirit. We do not forget that Christ has many things to say to one who is seeking eternal life, but this is His first word. His practical answer, "Love with the whole being. Let God have and tune every power and faculty until their activities move rhythmically to His will."

YEARLY MEETING EPISTLES.

EPISTOLARY correspondence is one of the bonds which unites the different independent Yearly Meetings, and it has an interesting history in our American meetings. Everybody who has been in the habit of attending Yearly Meeting knows what an Epistle is, though only those who have served on "the Epistle Committee" understand the mystery of how they are ever produced. At present each Yearly Meeting receives annually fifteen regular epistles, which are read, either continuously in one session, or a few at a time throughout the different sessions, while at the closing session answers which have been prepared by a committee are read and adopted as the messages of the meeting.

There is much in all the epistles which is valuable, and it would be generally admitted that this interchange of friendly greeting and spiritual counsel is an important factor in the life and work of the body, but it must at the same time be admitted that there is a good deal of formality about this correspondence—that the epistles are listened to often in a rather listless and lifeless way, without much hearty response, and that they are frequently prepared by members of the committee who have nothing in particular to say, and who write only because the unpleasant duty is “thrust upon them.” Sometimes the epistles are long and dry and heavy, sometimes they are full of stock expressions and crystalized phrases, and sometimes they are merely efforts at sermonizing.

We believe that the time has come to make a reform in the method of epistolary correspondence. In the first place the epistle should be very brief and concise, sharp and definite, in what it has to say, so that it will make a clear and marked impression on those that hear it. In the second place it should not be a formal piece of sermonizing, or a collection of religious phrases, but it should sum up the real vital burden and exercise of the meeting.

Each Yearly Meeting that is held has some main distinguishing burden and exercise, something which takes hold of the membership in a peculiar way, and upon which it utters its message. The Epistle Committee ought to gather up this spiritual exercise, this fresh message, and pass it on to the other meetings. The annual letter should come all warm and vital from the heart and life of the meeting itself, and should go out as an expression of the spirit of the body, as a personal letter to a friend, expressing what is uppermost in the writer's heart. The epistle should not be thought of as an answer to epistles received, but rather as a fresh and spontaneous message from the meeting. The Epistle Committee would need to be on the watch throughout the sessions to catch and embody in words what proves to be the weightiest concern and the fittest message of the meeting. Fifteen such epistles as these would be listened to with interest and great profit.

EPISTLES were read this year in Philadelphia Yearly Meeting from Dublin Yearly Meeting, and from the Wilburite body in New England, which meets at Westerly, Rhode Island. It is the first time in many years that a communication from the other side of the Atlantic has been read in Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, and it was a pleasant occurrence, though it probably does not imply the reopening of a general correspondence with other Yearly Meetings in the near future.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

The diamond anniversary of the American Sunday School Union will be held in Philadelphia on the 24th and 25th of next month, and will undoubtedly be an unusual occasion. Such well-known speakers as the following are announced to be present: D. L. Moody, the evangelist; Newell Dwight Hilles, successor of Dr. Lyman Abbott in Plymouth Church; Russell H. Conwell, of Philadelphia; Henry Clay Trumbull, editor of the “Sunday School Times”; Rear Admiral J. W. Philip, of the United States Navy, and Theodore L. Cuyler, of Brooklyn. During the past seventy-five years the Society has organized 100,928 schools, and has enrolled 4,070,345 scholars. There are still 11,000,000 young people in the United States, between the ages of five and eighteen, who are not in any Sabbath School. The Union desires to arouse fresh interest in the great work of the Society for the neglected children of the land, and they especially request that the 28th of next month be observed in all churches and Sabbath Schools as American Sunday School Union Day. The headquarters of the committee in charge of the anniversary are at 1122 Chestnut Street, where further information may be had regarding the occasion.

The statistics of the evangelical churches included in the Evangelical Free Church Federation in England show some interesting facts. In comparison with the Established Church they provide 7,800,000 sittings against 6,800,000. The number of communicants reported by each is a little less than 1,900,000, the Free Churches being slightly in advance. The Anglican Church shows in her Sunday Schools 2,393,372, whereas the Free Churches have 3,284,963; showing that in general strength the Free Churches are fully equal to the Established Church and in some respects a little ahead.

The “Independent” calls attention to the fact that a “Southern Presbyterian paper expresses its sincere gratification that not one of the papers of that denomination issued an Easter number, and calls upon its brethren to stand fast in their liberty and not be entangled with the yoke of bondage ‘to a ceremonial observance of days and seasons that has no foundation in the Word of God.’ It heartily concurs with another exchange in believing that the time has come when the Presbyterian Church should present an undivided front against anything that looks like the observance of Easter.”

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE GOLDEN LAMP-STAND.

BY ALEXANDER MACLAREN.

The meaning of the golden lamp-stand in the Jewish tabernacle is unmistakable. It represented the office of Israel, as destined to ray out the light of God into a dark world.

It is referred to in Zachariah's vision of a golden lamp-stand fed with oil by two "anointed ones," and in our Lord's first word after the Beatitudes, when He described His disciples collectively as "the light of the world." It is significantly modified in the vision in the Apocalypse, where, instead of the lamp-stand with seven bowls, we have seven separate lights, with Jesus walking in the midst.

The general thought thus set forth is that the Church is Light. It is so in two ways. Our Lord laid emphasis on one of the two when He bade us let our light so shine before men that, seeing our good works, they may glorify our Father in Heaven. We are to shine by righteous, Christ-like living, and in such a fashion that we may be overlooked, and He who helps us so to live may be seen and praised.

Sunbeams are unseen, but they show everything else and the sun from which they stream. So we should shine, unostentatious yet conspicuous; drawing and desiring neither notice nor praise, but leading feeble eyes to see in us a tempered ray from the fountain itself of heavenly radiance, and to adore. The ray that is impelled by force sufficient to carry it over the abysses between sun and earth yet falls so gently that an infant's eye is not hurt. It shines as lovingly on filth as on jewels. It reveals everything but itself, and is silent as strong. "Let your light so shine before men."

But we are to shine by word as well as by deed; as Paul has taught by his modification of this image, when he tells us that we are to appear as lights by holding forth the Word of Life, as the arm of a candelabrum does its lamp. Good deeds are more likely to reveal God when they are accompanied by words that tell of God. We have not only to live the Gospel, but to confess the Gospel by which we live. We fail to be Christ's witnesses unless when occasion serves we are ready to avow the principles which mould our lives, and unless we always mould them by the principles of Christ's revelation.

Another thought suggested by the golden lamp-stand is that of derived light. The priests lit its lamps, and then they shone out welcome and good cheer over the dark desert. "He shall not quench the dimly burning wick," but fan and tend it into brightness. He alone is "the light of the world." All others are, as He said of His forerunner, "lamps kindled and (therefore) shining"; and every kindled lamp will be an extinguished lamp some day, and for a season only do men rejoice in its light; but the unkindled Light will shine forever.

The lamp once kindled has to be fed. If there is no oil in the reservoir there will be a moment's flame and then a charred wick, smoke and foul smell. Oil must be poured in, and the light will be bright. So our light must be nourished by continual reception of the oil of the Holy Spirit, which softens and makes flexible our wills, nourishes our spiritual life, and communicates the gifts which feed the holy fire in our souls that shines out in our lives. Though the Christ Himself lit the flame, it will die unless we have oil in our vessels; and will become what so many professedly Christian lives are—a feeble flicker which is darkness rather than light.

The light of the lamps was clustered light. The seven were set on one stem and blended their rays into one beam. So with us: It is best when the individual is merged in the mass and when we are less desirous of showing our own brilliance than of joining with many another twinkle to make one steadfast flame, like the one circle of light into which the jets from a hundred little openings in a burner melt. "Ye are the light of the world," said Jesus—not lights. There must be individualism, there ought to be unity.

The altar of incense must stand in the midst, and on either side the table of shewbread and the lamp-stand. Communion with God through the sacrifice for the world's sins must come first, and then our activities must be, on the Godward side offered to Him, and on the manward side must shine before men. Unless we begin with the altar of incense, the bread on the table will be scant and mouldy, and the light in the lamp will be flickering and dim. If we are to shine in a naughty and dark world, as prophets of sunrise and dispersers of gloom, we must live by faith in the One Offering, and be very familiar with the secret place of the Most High.

The golden lamp-stand is supposed to be at the bottom of the Mediterranean; and the seven candlesticks of the Asiatic churches, where are they? Let us learn the lesson of the removal of these when the light which they should have borne was extinguished by the fault of the churches. "If God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest He also spare not thee."

Manchester, England.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE MINISTRY.

BY MARY MENDENHALL HOBBS.

For several weeks my mind has been much occupied by the subject of the ministry in the Society of Friends.

It is no new question, and its solution seems still out of sight. The burden has for years been on the church, and various methods have been resorted to by different meetings, but as yet no satisfactory one, so far as I know, has been reached.

I am opposed to complaining about the present order of things in regard to religious, political or social matters, unless with the complaint there is a clear statement of some practicable way of bettering the condition of affairs; so I ask my friends to kindly consider what I shall say in the nature of a mental review of the situation, rather than an arraignment of any sort. If, as may be possible, I overstate the case, I trust some one or more Friends will take the matter up and, through larger experience and clearer foresight, shed light upon this difficult problem. We should all be willing to learn and eager for light from any source.

The scandalous abuse resulting from preaching for hire in the century in which George Fox was led forth to declare the freedom of the Gospel which Christ had died to bring to mankind, led our early Friends to bear testimony against "an hireling ministry." Still more, the great gulf fixed between the clergy and laity in that day compelled the Friends, in obedience to their major tenet of free grace to all, to establish their meetings upon the most democratic basis. Any member might be called of God to become a minister. There was no line of demarkation—no choice in literary attainments, in privileges, in dress—all were on the same footing.

Any one called to go forth and preach the Gospel was to go with the approbation of his or her meeting, and to neither work for nor seek compensation; but the needs of ministers so laboring were to be met. Especially did they warn all ministers against bargaining. "Yet if God hath called any from their employment or trades by which they acquire their livelihood, it may be lawful for such, according to the liberty which they feel given them of the Lord, to receive such temporals (to wit, what may be needful for them for meat and clothing) as are given them freely and cordially by those to whom they have communicated spirituals." (Barclay's Apology Prop.)

They were Friends, all on the same plane, so far as discipline and religious exercise of gifts were concerned. The wealthy Penn and the scholarly Barclay were no more priests set over the people than the humblest tiller of the fields. As in the days of the apostles, when the Grecians complained that their widows were neglected, dissensions began to creep in, and the young denomination had fightings within as well as foes without; but in the main this cardinal principle in regard to the ministry has come down to our own day. There can be no doubt that the promulgation of the Gospel to the world is the duty of the church. In other denominations young men of promise are selected doubtless often under a sense of divine guidance, but they are set apart and educated into a trained class to do this duty for the membership. The money is paid, the established order is adhered to, and much, very much, work is done for the Master. If our separate organization means anything, it is called into existence to press home to the hearts of the people the truth that every man, woman and child should be a priest of the Lord, and that it is not enough to give a stipulated sum to hire a man to preach for us or to us, but that Jesus' command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel," is transmitted through the ages to every disciple of His. Giving money may be and is one way of preaching, but by itself it is altogether insufficient. We must give ourselves. Each individual must listen for the divine call to his or her own soul and be ready to say,

"Here am I; send me." It is so much easier to earn money and pay for preaching than to rise in meeting and deliver the message God gives us. And this is just the state of things our denomination was called upon to testify against. When this is our case there cannot but be a division into clergy and laity, with loss and temptation to each.

The fact that this ideal state of affairs has never reached perfect consummation, and that the questions in regard to the preaching of the Gospel have always been complicated and serious, does not prove that our course has been a wrong one. So long as our entire membership is accustomed to an informal gathering for worship, in which they are sure there is no pre-arranged service, and in which from time to time those not recognized as ministers rise and hand forth the message given them of God, we are bearing witness to the great and fundamental truth that to every soul the Great Head of the church comes with teaching and with service for others. If ninety-nine will not hear and will not obey, the one hearing—the one obedient—bears the witness to the great truth, and exemplifies it to the others. Even that which seems the bane of our meetings to many of us—the speaking and supplication which seems out of place and uncalled for, and, in fact, a hindrance rather than a help, is not so much to be dreaded as the want of responsibility and the tongue-tied condition of the membership of other denominations.

Those who are recognized as ministers by the Society are not, or were not, thereby required to preach upon all occasions, but were encouraged "to wait for and move under divine ability." Not being dependent upon the meeting for a living, they were at liberty to exercise their gift as unction from on high was accorded, both as to time of preaching and as to matter to be brought before the people. They could not be "called" and "dismissed" at the option of the majority of the members, and thus the real stability and spiritual growth of the meeting was fostered. Traveling ministers were frequently present and were at full liberty to speak as occasion demanded. Thus, in a simple, natural way, the minds of the people were refreshed, and the home ministers relieved, not in "changing pulpits," in the ordinary sense, but in being sent of the Lord to see how it fared with the brethren. This was all very well when there were resident ministers. How about the meetings when there were none?

Under our profession a meeting without a native minister is an anomaly which needs study. Unfortunately there are all too many of these meetings, and specimens for study abound on every hand. We seem to have passed through a kind of desert of Sin, and in it to have suffered a deadness—a general falling away from our first love. The Eldership became (generally speaking) a form—more attention was paid to dress and address than to the weightier matter of the law. Ministers were criticized and allowed to bear the burden upon their individual shoulders which should have been borne by the Church. Preaching the Gospel was thrown upon the preacher with little help from the meetings. Ministers were hard run—their families suffered, and, I am sorry to say, still do. Their children were left uneducated and often were embittered against the Society. Minutes were granted, but no way provided for carrying out the concerns and no sufficient provision made for the folks at home. This method, aside from other evils, took the ministers virtually from under the advice and warning of the Eldership. Why should a man not treated as a minister by his own meeting be amenable to it either in his teaching or his methods. Was there much to encourage any one to become a minister? Of course I am ready to admit that a man should be willing to leave all for Christ's sake and the Gospel, but I think and believe as firmly that if he leaves a wife and children for whom he and he alone is responsible, it is his duty as sacred as any other, and truly the first duty, to know that their necessary wants are supplied. If the church will do it, well and good. If it will not—and so far as my personal observation has gone it has not—it is the business of the man himself to do this before he leaves them, even for the sake of the Gospel.

The idea of ministers and ministers' children being placed in the position of beggars is to my mind abominable.

I greatly fear that this state of things is rather on the increase than otherwise—increased by the very method some good people have taken to remedy it—meetings with no ministers; ministers not willing to preach and starve or beg; as a consequence, “an agreement entered into”; the minister, without any other means of earning his living, thrown entirely on the meeting. Thus is the position of both minister and meeting shifted, or rather entirely removed, from the foundation upon which we started as a branch of the church. Soon—very soon mostly—the people begin to say: “Does not suit us.” “We do not like his preaching.” “Caring for his family is burdensome.” “They are extravagant.” “They dress too much and live too high,” etc. It all makes me sick at heart, but I have heard it. What are we to do? Where is the remedy? There are plenty of the modern pastors out of a job who may be brought in by the will of man, but that will not cure the deep trouble. There is a gospel. We do have a very blessed side of it to present to the world. How are we to do it? The negative answers are very clear to my mind; the positive is what I want—not by hired preachers, not by the shifting, as we have been doing, the work of the church upon individual members until, in our day, it is difficult to see how a man can be a minister and maintain his self-respect. He has either to be hired or to beg, and, between the two, the ministers are not forthcoming.

It is easy enough under these conflicting courses of events to say what might be, but to map out a course which will give independence to the minister—not only independence as far as the bread-and-butter question is concerned, but real independence in action and teaching, and at the same time responsibility and a chance in the promulgation of the Gospel upon the church—is beyond my power. Still I believe that a return to first principles is the surest solution—in the first place education for all, occupation for all, inspiration for all—then, when any one is called to a service which incurs expense, whether at home or abroad, the burden to rest upon the church. The burden of souls to be saved on the one hand, which shall be as sheaves gathered; the burden of bodies to be properly cared for on the other, which shall be as an incense of a sweet-smelling savor.

Another cause which operates against the ministry is the idea, which is becoming general, that the minister must preach scholarly discourses, and that for these it is necessary to devote much time to study; consequently the minister may not do as Paul did and make tents, or as one of our own ministers does, make brooms, but must devote his whole time to the ministry. This idea seems fraught with much evil to me. It at once divides the clergy and laity, with all the attendant ills. It encourages the belief that ministers must be learned and that erudition is what is needed in sermons. It narrows the experiences of the minister. It is certainly a great mistake to suppose that we get the Gospel unadulterated when we hear it from an ignorant person, and it is glorious for one to be able to take the things of God and illustrate and enforce them from all knowledge; but it will never do to confine preaching the Gospel to a set of men and women with nothing else to do.

It is not Greek or Latin or theology that will save the world, and it is not history and literature, or even science, which the world is hungry to hear, but the glad tidings which Jesus brought—and the simpler it is told the better. I have no doubt that within our own Yearly Meeting to-day there are many who are called to tell the glad tidings who are holding back, and will not use opportunities as they are given because they have little time for reading, and cannot preach sermons; and the oft-repeated assertion that to be a minister takes, or should take, all one's time increases this number. If these could but lay aside their own notions as to what a minister should do and be, and simply do that which for the present they feel to be their duty, our meetings would not be without the ministry of the Gospel.

Again, “pastoral work requires so much time.” The minister should not be expected to do pastoral work. This is the very end and aim of the Eldership—when it is living, and not a mere form.

One other point and I am done. It seems to me the most hopeless kind of unbelief when we admit by our actions and by our words that the Lord is not able to care for His own—an unbelief that causes all forms of doubt as to Bible texts and authority to pale before it. If God is in His world and in His Church, will He not hear prayer? and if we need a minister with certain qualifications, will he not send him without our advertising for him? It is amazing to me that in this day, when so much is said about faith-cure, etc., there such be such a widespread and deep-seated unbelief in the real present power of God. Has the Shekinah departed from Israel? If so, Israel is to blame and not the Light of God.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

A VISIT TO GUILFORD.

BY M. Z. KIRK.

As one goes south from Philadelphia four hundred miles, it is interesting to feel that you are meeting Spring part way. On this trip, as usual, I proceeded directly to the educational centre of the Yearly Meeting. During my brief stay at Guilford I had the opportunity of not only visiting the faculty and students, but also of studying the history of the institution and its surroundings.

President L. L. Hobbs took me out to the place where the old Yearly Meeting-House stood. It was interesting to know that we were standing upon the spot where the most noble, devout, worthy and eloquent Friends have assembled from time to time for a century and a half. Hundreds of members from this Yearly Meeting have gone West and have taken prominent places in all our Western Yearly Meetings.

In fact, one feels that he has almost reached the mecca of Western Quakerism.

After having visited all the other Friends' colleges since last summer, it was very interesting to be able to compare Guilford with the others. The college being located one mile from the railroad and five miles from Greensboro, it necessarily forms a little neighborhood of its own. The institution owns a splendid large stock farm which supplies an abundance of milk, butter, eggs and produce. The managers have also tried to make this as nearly a model North Carolina farm as possible. Being thus isolated from city influences the college is necessarily the home of nearly all the students.

When this institution was founded in 1837, under the name of "New Garden Boarding School," Founder's Hall was the only building. From this hall has gone out scores of young men and women who have become prominent and influential in their own church and state. In the early eighties this building became so crowded, and the demand for a full college course was so great that they finally erected "Archdale" and "King" Halls, and took out a college charter in 1848 under the name of Guilford College. A few years later the Young Men's Christian Association erected an excellent brick building. Last year the finest and most modern building of all was erected in honor of the sister of B. N. and J. B. Duke, all of whom were at one time students of Guilford. At present Founder's Hall is used as the girls' dormitory and dining-room; Archdale and the upper floor of the Y. M. C. A. Building serves as dormitories for the boys. King Hall contains the library, chapel, and class rooms. Memorial Hall is used entirely for science, and the President's office is on the first floor. The upper floor is nicely fitted up with opera chairs for an auditorium, seating one thousand.

The museum in this building deserves especial mention, as it is a fine light room, and the present excellent collection has been secured largely through the efforts of one student—T. G. Pearson. Such museums need the united effort of all old students and friends. They can frequently contribute valuable specimens with but little effort or expense.

One year ago the management decided to reduce the board and room rent to a minimum, and make the total cost $8.00 a month, and the tuition is $40.00 for the preparatory and $52.00 for the collegiate students per year. When this was announced a year ago some of the northern Friends thought such a thing impossible, but after a year's trial they find there were fifty more students than the previous year, and that the college has not only met all the current expenses of the year, but has been able to pay about $1,000 on some much needed improvements in sewerage. When students are not able to meet the above expense the college has provided cottages for the girls and some for the boys, where they can furnish their own rooms, and board themselves at a much less cost than $2.00 a week. The total enrollment for the year is 212.

The Friends here are looking forward with great pleasure to commencement week, and the annual address to be given by Rufus M. Jones.

After visiting all the Friends' colleges, I have realized more fully than ever before the vast importance of the Friends' colleges and academies. Our educational organizations in the various Yearly Meetings are quite complete. The academies are usually very loyal to their college. We are living in the age when the competition between colleges is as strong as it is in business pursuits. Our Friends' colleges are so far apart that there is practically no competition one with another. Thus every Friends' college needs the most hearty co-operation and sympathy of every other. I have sometimes felt that our students and professors have taken more pains to point out the weak points in their sister colleges than their strong and common points of interest. We need fully to realize that our educational institutions have as much a definite common mission in the world as the Society of Friends, and that our strength depends largely upon our co-operation. I trust that the Quinquennial Educational Conference at Providence, this summer, will draw our institutions more closely together than ever before, and that each institution shall have the benefit of the experience of every other, and that the next five years shall be the most successful period in the history of American Quaker Educational Institutions.

This visit south has more thoroughly convinced me that Quakers are more like one large family than any other denomination. While Western Friends have struggled with the difficulties of frontier life the Southern Friends have met as stubborn problems. It is certainly encouraging to all our Southern Friends to see the rapid growth in their towns, and to see their country rapidly taking a prominent place in the manufacturing of cotton goods and furniture, and the machinery necessary to produce the same.

How natural it is for all of us to be proud of our own state. I find that it is very difficult for me to think of any farm being quite as nice as one in Iowa. Two years ago, when I was showing Rufus P. King some fine farms, he said he "wouldn't like to live in Iowa, where it is so cold in the winter," but at last he said, "Well, my dear boy, I would like to own two or three of these fine Iowa farms." I asked him what he would do with them, since he would not like to live there. He said, "Well, I would sell one and buy a tent for the dear Penn College boys to hold meetings in, and the others I would sell and go to North Carolina and buy another." How characteristic this is of all of us regardless of whether we live on the Atlantic Coast, Mississippi Valley or Pacific Coast.

For THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE SOUL'S CRY ANSWERED.

With billows of doubt rolling over my soul,
Deep in darkness and sin and despair,
No pilot my foundering bark to control,
Though the compass unheeded lay there,
Mid sand bars and rocks and dangers unknown,
Long in weariness and peril, I struggled alone.

'Till guided, at length, by the Spirit of Grace,
A look at the compass I stole;
There the magnet of love, ever true to its place,
Brought hope to my sad, sinking soul;
By faith, in the distance, the form I descri
Of Jesus, who said, "Fear not; it is I."

By the word of His might a great calm He had wrought,
As He neared the frail bark at my call.
Love, forgiveness, and peace,—rich gifts that He brought,
As I willingly yielded my all.
O'er the broad, stormy ocean, safe Pilot He'll be;
With Christ in the ship, I may sail any sea.

ALICE C. EARLE.

Fiskville, R. I.

The International Lesson.

Lesson VI.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Fifth month 7, 1899.

THE VINE AND THE BRANCHES.

John 15: 1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—I am the vine, ye are the branches.—John 15: 5.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 1.—The vine and the branches. John 15: 1-11.
Third-day, Fifth mo. 2.—Saying and doing. 1 John 2: 1-7.
Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 3.—Proof of abiding in Christ.—1 John 3: 18-24.
Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 4.—Known by fruit. Matt. 7: 15-23.
Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 5.—Spiritual fruit. Gal. 5: 16-26.
Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 6.—One in Christ. Rom. 12: 1-5.
First-day, Fifth mo. 7.—Christ the head. Eph. 4: 1-16.

It is not quite clear when or where the discourse contained in chapters 15 and 16, and the prayer of chapter 17 were spoken. Some think that the time was just before leaving the supper room; others that it was on the way to Gethsemane, the prayer in chapter 17 being uttered during a halt. Either supposition is quite possible, though from the wording in chapter 18: 1, the former seems the more likely. Christ perhaps started, but seeing his disciples troubled and hesitating, repeated in a different form what he had already said in chapter 14. It is, however, impossible to speak with certainty.

It is not needful to account for Christ using the vine as an allegory. The illustration is a simple and obvious one. It was also one familiar to the Jews as being an image of the house of Israel, and was frequently used by the prophets. (Jer. 2: 21; Ezek. 15: 2-6; Ps. 80: 8-19; Is. 5: 1-7). Like that of the Door and the Good Shepherd, the illustration is an allegory rather than a parable.

1. "The true vine." Not opposed to a false vine, but it is one which fulfils a genuine, perfect ideal. Israel had not fulfilled the ideal, Christ did. "He is the perfect Light, the perfect Bread, the perfect Witness." "Husbandman." The owner of the soil. Compare Is. 27: 2, 3.

2. "Branch that beareth not fruit." These words imply that for a time at least, there may be Christians who bear no fruit; but the verse shows with equal clearness that as the purpose of a branch in the vine described is to bear fruit, so it is expected—indeed is needful—that the Christian should bear fruit. The meaning seems to be similar to that indicated by the stony ground, and thorny ground of the parable. Compare Matt. 3: 10. "Purgeth." "Cleanseth." Revised Version. In the Christian the cleansing process is carried on in at least three ways: (1) by right living, which opens the heart to higher influences; (2) by the sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit; (3) by the discipline of life—its sorrows, sufferings, and trials. It is possibly the latter to which Christ chiefly referred.

3. "Already ye are clean." Revised Version. Judas had departed (chapter 13: 30), so he was speaking to the eleven. They were clean "on account of the word." The whole revelation, of which Christ was at once the revealer and the living expression.

4. "Abide in me," etc. Permanent purity and fruit-bearing is conditioned upon abiding in Christ, and Christ abiding in the soul. Just here the allegory fails; for the soul can reject Christ—can refuse to abide in him. Compare Rev. 3: 20. "As the branch," etc. A branch cut off from the vine is useless as a branch, because its union with the vine is a union of life, of organic relationship, not of juxtaposition, as that of stones forming a pile. Outward membership in a church organization will not give life, only the soul's union with Christ can bring that about—men abide in Christ when his spirit animates and directs them—"when his principles, sentiments and aims become theirs."

5. The statement is repeated for the sake of emphasis. The condition necessary for fruit-bearing is living and abiding in close spiritual communion with Christ. "For apart from me." Revised Version. "Nothing." It is not a question of how little or how much, but of bearing to all. Separated from Christ we bear—nothing—no spiritual fruit, for it is the spiritual life of which he is speaking.

6. This verse is not easy to explain in detail, but the general meaning appears to be this: that as a branch separated from the vine withers away and is good only to be destroyed, so the soul separated from Christ withers away.

7. "My words." Teachings. If they so control your life as to be your actual moving-spring, "ask whatsoever you will," etc. Your requests will then be in accord with his will. Compare 1 Jno. 5: 14-16.

8. God is glorified by believers bearing much fruit.

9. "Even as the Father hath loved me, I also have loved you." Revised Version. It is the character of the love rather than the measure of the love which is spoken of in this verse. "Continue." The disciple should live with the continual sense of Christ's love, not imagine that moments of exaltation are meant.

10. Christ may have read the thoughts of some of his disciples or foreseen that some would think "These are hard sayings," and so he answers the objection. Obedience springs out of love, and love out of obedience. Compare John 13: 35; 14: 15-21; 1 John 2: 3.

11. "These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be made full." Revised Version. "My joy" the joy that is mine. What was His joy—the joy of knowing His Father's love, the joy of perfect obedience, the joy of service, the joy of self-sacrifice. "Your joy made full." Reach its highest possible development. Compare 1 John 1: 1-4.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. Union with Christ is the life of the believer.
2. Severed from Christ the believer can do nothing.
3. The result of union with Christ is fruit-bearing.

Whate'er thou lovest, man, that too become thou must
God, if thou lovest God; dust if thou lovest dust.
Immeasurable is the Highest; who but knows it?
And yet a human heart can perfectly enclose it.

—Anon.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FIFTH MONTH SEVENTH, 1899.

PATIENT CONTINUANCE IN WELL-DOING.

Rom. 2: 1-11.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 1.—Need of patience. Heb. 10: 35-39.

Third-day, Fifth mo. 2.—Patience of the prophets. Jas. 5: 7-11.

Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 3.—Who did hinder you? Gal. 5: 1-12.

Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 4.—Perfect work of patience. Jas. 1: 1-4.

Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 5.—Tribulation worketh patience. Rom. 5: 1-5.

Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 6.—Be not weary. Gal. 6: 6-10.

Rom. 15: 5, "Now the God of patience," is one of the precious texts of the Bible. Our patience is soon exhausted, but He has an infinite supply and will give all we need. Our first lesson is, how little we have; our second, how much He can supply. All of us have learned the first—let us learn the second.

Many conscientious Christians need to have patience with themselves. That God not only gives liberally to those who lack wisdom, but also "upbraideth not" is one of the sweetest of promises. Let us learn to cease upbraiding ourselves, where He ceases to upbraid us. Worry over failure is not half so useful as faith that we shall yet conquer. Christ "is not ashamed to call" us "brethren."

We need patience in waiting for the solution of Divine providences. God does not always explain beforehand. We are like Peter when the Master asked him to submit to the foot-washing before its significance was explained. Also, when he said, "Why cannot I follow Thee now?" But Christ expects us to have faith in Him, that all will be well. Job found it hard to submit to an unexplained series of adversities; and the Lord never explained them to him so far as appears in the record. Job learned the far deeper lesson of trusting God without explanations.

Many of the deepest lessons of Providence are beyond the reach of intellectual analysis. But their benediction falls noiselessly upon the heart, like the dew in the night time.

We need patience in our service for the Master. If we are more ambitious to shine than to excel, we need a change of motive. If we are more concerned about "success" than about faithfulness, we are in no mood for patience; but even with the purest motives we "have need of patience, that after we have done the will of God we may receive the promise."

There is ever a tendency to the more showy results in Christian work. The sensational, the spectacular, are more attractive to the mass of men. We like to do our religion all up in a few weeks of the revival season, and spend the rest of the time in captious criticism of what we are pleased to call "the church." How much better it would be to cheerily and patiently take up the steady work of a church, sowing the seed of another harvest! How much patience it takes in a foreign land. The "rose color" fades out by the end of the second year. Then, as a missionary once said to the writer, "it is a dead lift of faith." Think of Judson, seven years at Burmah without a convert ; Morrison seven years in China; the Foochow work eleven years without a conversion; but the harvest came. It is the men who have been longest in the foreign field who are the most confident. Their patience and faith have grown exceedingly, and they are sure of victory.

We need patience with one another. Much of our impatience arises from our artificial ideals. We think of men as we conceive they ought to be. We construct a theory of society and try to make men over into it, instead of meeting men where they are and patiently learning their present capacities and possibilities for usefulness. He who does not approach men as a learner will never be their trusted teacher.

Too many Christian Endeavorers, even, had rather cease to do their work than to give up their false ideals of such work. It is a blessed thing to get "adjusted to every good work."

We need patience in prayer. Some petitions are answered before we call, some while we are yet speaking, some are long delayed. We cannot always tell why. The writer knows of two recent covenants of prayer for special objects in one of our mission fields. One was answered inside of a month—indeed, God had prepared the answer two years before by a special clause in a will. The other answer is delayed for a time, but "men ought always to pray and not to faint." "Now the God of patience and of comfort grant you to be of the same mind, one toward another."

THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY.

BY REBA E. JENKINS.

If we want an Ideal Society, we must get our ideal from God's word. We can never have an Ideal Endeavor Society until we have "Ideal Endeavorers," and if every Endeavorer would live up strictly to his pledge we should have "Ideal Endeavorers."

Perhaps, some may say, "I don't believe any one can live up to the pledge in detail," but we have in the Bible the record of the lives of Endeavorers who have done it most successfully. One of the first promises in our pledge is to strive to do whatever the Lord would have us do; and where do we find a more striking example of one who did live up to that pledge than Moses, who in the minutest detail in the constructing and ordering of the tabernacle "did as the Lord commanded."

If Moses had not been thus strictly obedient to every one of God's commands, the world would have had wrong conceptions of our Saviour and the plan of salvation as typified by the tabernacle. If so much depended upon the obedience of one man in that age, how much more depends upon our obedience in this age of gospel light and spiritual power! When Moses finished the tabernacle, the glory of the Lord filled it. If we will do our part in fully surrendering to the Lord, He will complete His work in us, and sanctified, body, soul and spirit, we, as temples of the living God, shall be filled with His glory.

Our next promise is to pray and read the Bible every day. Nothing can be accomplished for the Lord without much prayer and a study of God's word. We are to "pray without ceasing" and be kept clean by the "washing of water with the Word."

For faithfulness in prayer we have a noble example in Daniel, who prayed three times daily and persevered in this even at the peril of his life; for one who loved God's word we have a fine illustration in David, who so loved it that he meditated upon it night and day. We must not only pray much, and must learn from Christ in the school of prayer how to pray the fervent, effectual prayer that availeth much, for as we prevail with God in prayer, we shall prevail in power with men; but we must "study to show ourselves approved unto God; a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

We pledge ourselves further to support our own church in every way and attend all its meetings. I fear some of us forget that promise. How many of us have supported our church by our prayers and in giving aid in the little things? How many of us have spent an hour a week in prayer for the church, for the ministers, for the timid one? How many of us have carried flowers to the sick as a token of God's love? How many of us have visited and encouraged those who seldom come to church and who are disheartened? And how many of us are a support to our own church by our regular attendance at all the prayer meetings and other services?

We have in Paul an example of one who prayed for the church daily, and in Dorcas one who quietly did the little things. It is said of her, "She is a woman full of good works and alms deeds." If it is but to give a cup of cold water in the name of Christ to some thirsty soul, let us do that. For nothing is little that the Lord requires. If He asks it of us it is a great thing; and he says, "In as much as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Simeon and Anna stood out prominently before us as prayer meeting attenders. They daily came to the temple to worship the Lord with fastings and prayer, and they were the only persons in the temple who recognized the infant Saviour when He was brought there.

If we fail to meet our appointments with the Lord and neglect our prayer meetings and other services, He will soon be a stranger to us, and we shall not recognize Him, even tho' we are in the house of prayer.

If we have lived up to the pledge thus far, we shall unconsciously fulfill the next promise without endeavoring, which is to lead a Christian life, daily.

We now come to the last part of our pledge—"to be true to all our duties and to take part, aside from singing, in every Endeavor meeting." How I wish we could all keep that promise as to God! It seems to me everything else is included in those four words, "true to our duty." There is our duty toward God, toward the world, to the church, the pastor, and the Endeavor Society. If we were always true to our duty, we should have no trouble to obtain leaders, or raise missionary money, or meet on committees.

We have in the model church at Thessalonica an illustration of those who were true to their duty; for Paul says, in writing to them, "we give thanks to God always for you, remembering your works of faith and labor of love and patience, of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ." "We ourselves glory in you in the churches of God for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure," and he prayed "that the very God of Peace sanctify you wholly." Does the church and Endeavor Society glory in our willingness to do our duty? and to do cheerfully whatever our hand findeth to do? Is our labor that of love, and have we the patience and faith of the Thessalonians, enduring persecutions and trials? And, above all, is Jesus satisfied with us? Are we doing our duty as He would have us do it? And has Paul's prayer been answered in us? Have we been wholly sanctified? If we have, we shall find it a pleasure instead of a duty to take some part, aside from singing, in our Endeavor meetings; for our hearts will be filled to overflowing, and praise shall continually be in our mouth. If we have each fully surrendered our wills to the Lord, have consecrated our lives to Him once for all, and are filled with the Holy Ghost and are "walking in the light as He is in the light," we shall have an "Ideal Christian Endeavor Society."

"My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" These are the strangest as well as the saddest words ever uttered. The spotless Son of God passing into the hidings of His Father's face, experiencing that sickening sense of utter desolation, forsaken of God and man; and this that He might know sin's utmost ruin, that man might know love's utmost salvation. Herein is love, not that we loved Him, but that He loved us and gave Himself for us. He took upon his broad sympathies the burden of a fallen world's sins and sorrows, hiding His Father's face, darkening the heavens, and rolled it off with a bloody sweat and an expiring groan, that guilty man might be saved both the one and the other. He took man's place in the darkness of sin and death that man might take His place in the light of holiness and life. He was abandoned of God that man might be accepted. He went down to hell that man might ascend to heaven. The philosophy is hidden, the fact is revealed. And thank God the fact is all we need to know for our present peace or future welfare. Let us, therefore, gratefully accept the fact that "Him who knew no sin He made to be sin in our behalf, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him."—J. A. M. Chapman, D.D.

O! let me know
The power of Thy resurrection.
O! let me show
Thy risen life in calm reflection!

—Miss Havargal.

PHILADELPHIA YEARLY MEETING.

At the opening of the yearly meeting probably 1,200 Friends assembled in the rooms of the meeting-house at Fourth and Arch Streets. In the men's meeting, after an impressive period of worship, during which prayer was offered by Charles Rhoads, the names of the seventy-two representatives from the quarterly meetings were called. Five of these were absent. The clerk announced the receipt of two communications addressed to the meeting, one from the Dublin Yearly Meeting, Ireland, and the other from the Yearly Meeting at Westerly, R. I. A verbal committee was appointed to consider these.

The labors of the meeting for sufferings were spread before the meeting by reading their minutes. During the year they had printed four memorials of deceased Friends; had appropriated $650 for meeting-houses in Ohio and Kansas; had arranged for the distribution of the income of the Pemberton Fund, and had spent more than $1,000 through their Book Committee. The distribution of books had included thirteen States, the Island of Porto Rico and some more distant countries. Much of the time of the representative meeting had been taken up with the interests of the Russian Doukhoborts. More than $5,500 had been raised for them; Bibles in Russian had been distributed to them, and an address to the Czar in their interest had been forwarded. Joseph S. Elkinton, who met the immigrants at St. John, gave some additional information in regard to this interesting people, and spoke favorably of their character and prospects. It appears that 4,000 have already arrived in Canada, and that 3,500 are to come.

The Charles L. Willits trustees reported a monthly distribution of 5,000 copies of the "African Friend," and 399 volumes and 935 tracts, mostly in Liberia, at an outlay of $571 for the year. Many letters from the Southern States and Liberia had been received in acknowledgment of the value of this work.

Jonathan E. Rhoads remarked that he had been impressed with the fact that very few workers in this cause had offered themselves from Philadelphia, so that it would appear that there is very little of the real missionary spirit amongst us.

A committee was appointed to examine the treasurer's account, and the meeting adjourned.

In the women's meeting prayer was offered by Eliza H. Varney, after which the meeting considered four of the queries.

Much excellent counsel was given, especially on the subject of the daily reading of the Holy Scriptures.

AT TWELFTH STREET MEETING-HOUSE.

In the afternoon a large company assembled in the Twelfth Street Meeting-house at the annual meeting of the Friends' Peace Association. The report of the Executive Committee showed a distribution of 7,500 tracts during the year, and a plan to send 6,000 tracts to teachers. Dr. Richard H. Thomas addressed the meeting. A permanent court of arbitration presents the most hopeful means of progress to work for. President Isaac Sharpless and John D. Carter, of Haverford College, also spoke, and urged Friends to combine their forces and influence public opinion.

In the evening the Friends' Freedmen's Association held its annual meeting. Elliston P. Morris presided. The Executive Committee reported the most prosperous year since the sixties. The Christiansburg School has had an enrollment of two hundred and twenty-seven pupils and seven teachers. There are forty-three pupils in the industrial department. Recently the forces of the school have been concentrated upon farming, and the Association has bought a farm of ninety acres near Cambria, Va., where practical instruction will be given. The whole work is, in a measure, directed by Booker T. Washington, from whom a letter of regret was read that he could not attend the meeting. The Principal, Charles L. Marshall, made a spirited address, and the President and Joshua L. Bailey interested the large audience with accounts of a recent visit to the school. With 5,000,000 negroes still in ignorance there is pressing need for devotion to the work and for liberal contributions of money. Since the close of the Civil War the Methodist Episcopal Church has contributed $12,000,000 to the cause of educating the negroes in the South, and it is worthy of note that in no county in which schools have been established under its auspices has there ever been a lynching, nor has there been a pupil of any of these schools lynched.

An address was also delivered by Mrs. Fannie J. Coppin, Principal of the Institute for Colored Youth, on Bainbridge Street.

Shortly after the opening minute was read in the yearly meeting, Third-day, Elhanan Zook reported that the representatives were united in proposing Ephraim Smith for clerk, and Charles S. Carter for assistant clerk, the present year. They were, accordingly, appointed.

Thomas Whitson expressed a concern to visit the women's meeting for religious service, and the way was made for him to do so.

Charles Rhoads explained for the Verbal Committee, appointed on Second-day, that the two communications were brief epistles from Dublin and New England Yearly Meetings, in acknowledgment of the general epistle sent to them in 1897. They were then both read to the satisfaction of the meeting.

The committee appointed last year to attend to uniting Burlington and Bucks quarters into one meeting reported the service accomplished and they were released.

The consideration of the queries and answers was then commenced. There queries deal with fundamental Christian duties and the answers are intended to show the condition of the subordinate meetings of the yearly meeting. The first query treats of the attendance of meeting, and, while the summary answer indicated that there had been some omission of meetings in five quarterly meetings, the attendance has been general on First-days.

The second query in regard to love and unity brought very favorable answers from the quarterly meetings, with slight exception only in one quarter. The third query embraces the subjects of plainness, of Scripture reading, of restraint upon pernicious reading and worldly association. The summary answer adopted by the meeting concluded with the words, "Many Friends are exemplary in upholding the testimonies in this query."

The answers to the fourth query in regard to intoxicating drinks indicated a very strong temperance sentiment in the Society, as well as a care in regard to places of diversion, and to true moderation.

During the reading of these queries and answers much excellent and weighty counsel was given by ministers and others. Cyrus W. Harvey, referring to the first query, spoke of the nature of divine worship and of our form of it. To understand its privileges we must experience the spring of divine life in ourselves. Joseph Elkinton pointed out that the principle underlying the third query is that of sacrifice. After an offering of prayer the meeting adjourned.

In the women's meeting the queries and answers were finished and the report of the Indian Committee read in the men's meeting on Second-day was considered. Women Friends were especially exercised in regard to pernicious reading and in the advocacy of a free gospel ministry. Thomas Whitson delivered an earnest message in regard to the importance of living and willing and working in the virtue and power of Christ's life, revealed in the heart.

BIBLE SCHOOLS.

In the afternoon the thirty-seventh annual meeting of Friends' First-day School Association was held at Twelfth Street. Statistical tables showing a total of thirteen schools and six Bible classes, with 125 teachers and 1,654 pupils. Most of the reports showed a diminished attendance the past year, but this was largely due to the weather conditions and to sickness. Anna Braithwaite Thomas observed that the First-day School presents an important field for the exercise of the gift of teaching that might be out of place in meetings for worship. Isaac Sharpless and Catharine Shipley gave words of encouragement, and the latter, as founder of the John S. Hilles memorial, told some interesting reminiscences of the work.

In the evening Dr. Richard H. Thomas spoke on the subject, "What Recent Bible Study Has Done for the Christian Believer," and Asa S. Wing presided, and after Bible reading and prayer Dr. Thomas held the attention of his large audience for about an hour. Research, he said, has made the Lord Jesus much more real to believers; has given — a personal rather than a theological value, and by the help of the Holy Spirit has exhibited His glory in His sufferings. The dangers of research were pointed out, but were held to be insignificant in comparison with a sense of the true proportion of things in God's developing revelation of Himself. The results of research, the speaker said, are strikingly opposed to foolish sectarianism. Most of the results were anticipated by the interpretation of Scripture to be found in Fox and Barclay, and Friends should be rejoiced by them.

The consideration of the queries was resumed at the third session of the yearly meeting, answers to the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth being adopted by the meeting. The fifth query treats of the care bestowed by the Society upon any of its members in necessitous circumstances, and the answers indicated that this care had been general, and that the children of such freely partake of education to fit them for the duties of life.

The testimony of the Society against oaths, military services and lotteries are included in the sixth query. The exceptions noted had been slight, but were such as to cause some uneasiness to well-concerned Friends. The subject of a ministry "exercised at stated times and for pay" is also included in this query. Under this head there was some exception noted in nearly all of the quarterly meetings, and several Friends expressed the exercise of their minds on this account. William C. Allen pointed out the fact that unfaithfulness to a sense of a call to the ministry was calculated to stifle the life that might arise in a meeting. Cyrus W. Harvey treated of the doctrine of the ministry as held by Friends, and quoted striking passages from the epistle to the Hebrews to show that this doctrine is rooted in the priesthood of Christ, who is Head over all things to His church.

The seventh query treats of moderation in living and in business, and of the important qualities of punctuality and justice in the payment of debts. As a rule, Friends carry out the requirements of this query, and the reports stated that any who give "grounds for fear on these accounts are timely labored with for their preservation and recovery." The eighth and last query is designed to prompt meetings to activity in applying the rules of the Discipline to any offenders, and it appeared from the answers that the meetings have been faithful to this duty. Referring to the subject of faithfulness in individuals to openings for religious service, in meeting and out of meeting, Jonathan E. Rhoads made a feeling appeal. It seemed to him that not a few of the members were under the preparing hand of the Lord if they would yield themselves to Him. In this way only can the Society of Friends be built up into increased usefulness. George Abbott was exercised for an increase of active unity in a sense of the love of Christ upon our hearts. This spirit will not injure a brother, and will be very slow to impute a bad motive when there has seemed to be an injury inflicted upon us.

The special annual queries were then read and answered. During the year eight elders had died; six meetings had been discontinued for parts of the year; due care had been taken to record births and deaths, and eighteen schools had been maintained by monthly and preparative meetings. Charles Rhoads referred in terms of much feeling to the declining condition of the Society in sections where meetings had been discontinued, and recalled the action of the meeting upon some previous occasion in appointing a committee "to strengthen the things that remain that are ready to die."

A Verbal Committee was appointed to assist the clerk in embracing the exercises of the meeting in a suitable minute on the State of Society. The statistical report on education was then read. There were eighteen schools under the care of meetings, and 708 members between the ages of 5 and 20 years. Of this total 151 are at schools not taught by Friends. The meeting then adjourned.

In the women's meeting a very interesting and instructive memorial of Joseph Walton was read. This called forth numerous expressions of appreciation. The meeting then took up the minutes of the meeting from sufferings. A concern in regard to the martial spirit of the times was expressed, and women Friends encouraged to use all right efforts for peace.

In the afternoon the Foreign Missionary Association of Friends met at Twelfth Street. A printed statement of the work in Japan and elsewhere was distributed. Gilbert Bowles spoke in regard to Japan, and Margaret W. Leitch in regard to Ceylon, and an appeal for $3,000 to send Gilbert and Minnie Pickett Bowles to Japan was made.

In the evening the Temperance Association held its annual meeting. The work for the year had consisted in the distribution of literature, the maintenance of two coffee stands and of three boys' parlors. Harriet Green had been employed in the line of scientific temperance instruction, and half the expense of printing a temperance physiology in Syria had been contributed. Charles H. Mead, of New York city, addressed the meeting.

The concluding session of the yearly meeting convened at 10 o'clock on Sixth-day. Zebedee Haines made an appeal to his fellow members to submit themselves to the restraints of the Cross of Christ. David Heston was exercised in the same line, quoting the text, "Bring all the tithes into the share house."

The annual report of the Westtown Boarding School was considered. During the year the enrolment of pupils reached 170, and about $46,000 was required to maintain the institution. Economics, physical culture and manual training claimed attention as school subjects. Natural history was a favorite voluntary pursuit. Two classes of smaller boys were in measure separated from the main family, thus securing many advantages of the "cottage system." The graduating class numbered twenty-two. The completion of this year will round out the first century of the school's history. During this time 12,000 pupils have been enrolled. It is intended to celebrate this event by a grand reunion in the early summer. A committee of former scholars is now engaged to raise a memorial fund of $100,000 for this occasion. Much interest and satisfaction with the report were expressed in the meeting, and several Friends made pleas for some instruction at the school in agriculture.

The committee appointed to prepare a minute on the "State of Society," to be sent to subordinate meetings as a part of the minutes of the yearly meeting, made their report. The minute treated of the distinctive character of worship as professed by Friends; of the solicitude that had gone out toward those who do not avail themselves of the privileges of public worship and of the concern of the meeting that gospel love and unity might increasingly prevail. To encourage all to take their allotted part in the services of the church, the following quotation from the Book of Discipline was made: "It is no man's learning, nor artificial acquirements; it is no man's riches nor greatness in this world; it is no man's eloquence nor natural wisdom that makes him fit for government in the church of Christ. All his endowments must be seasoned with the heavenly salt, his spirit be subjected and his gifts pass through the fire of God's altar."

After reading this minute, numerous exercises of mind were expressed. Dr. Thomas quoted the remarkable words of George Fox: "I have come up through the flaming sword into the Paradise of God." He appealed to Friends to make this a practical experience for themselves. The way of the Cross is, after all, the way of joy and of peace. George M. Warner quoted the Apostle's benediction upon the church of Ephesus, and Thomas Whitson offered a brief prayer of thanksgiving. The clerk then read the closing minute, and, after a solemn pause of silence, the meeting concluded, "to meet at the usual time next year, if consistent with the Divine will."

In the women's meeting the report on education first claimed attention. This was followed by reading the answers to the annual query in regard to the decease of ministers and elders. The names of departed worthies brought the meeting into exercise, and the members were exhorted "to follow them as they followed Christ." With feelings of gratitude for the favors of the week, and under a sense that the yearly meeting had been a favored one, the session concluded.

Life hath two hands for those who fitly live,
With one it gives, with one it takes away;
The willing palm still finds the touch of love,
And he alone has lost the art to live
Who cannot win new friends. —Weir Mitchell.

We, ignorant of ourselves,
Beg often our own harms, which the wise powers
Deny us for our good; so find we profit
By losing of our prayers. —Shakespeare.

News from the Field.

Alfred Neave Brayshaw, a recorded minister, of York Meeting, England, arrived in Philadelphia on the 19th instant. He expects to spend some time in and about Philadelphia, and he will travel quite extensively in America during the summer.

M. M. Binford, of Brooklyn, New York, attended Philadelphia Yearly Meeting. He took part in the ministry of the gospel at Twelfth Street Meeting on Fifth-day, and he spoke at the afternoon Bible School Conference.

Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore, attended the Yearly Meeting and took some part in the meetings for business. He was favored with gospel messages at the meetings for worship, and he addressed the Peace and Bible School Conferences.

Gilbert Bowles, of Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa, has been in Philadelphia for a week. He was one of the speakers at the Foreign Missionary Meeting at Twelfth Street, and he had an appointed meeting for young men on Second-day evening, the 24th.

The average attendance at the regular business meetings at Arch Street Meeting-house was about four hundred and fifty in the men's meeting, and probably more in the women's meeting. Of this four hundred and fifty, between fifty and sixty sat in the ministers' gallery, from whom a large part of the speaking came. There were generally present between forty and fifty boys and young men under the age of twenty-two.

The Twelfth Street Meetings on Peace, Work for the Colored People, Bible Schools, Foreign Missions, Temperance and Indian Education were large and interesting. At all of the meetings the house was well filled and the addresses were valuable and edifying. These meetings grow in interest every year, and fill an important place in the work of the church.

On Fifth-day meetings for worship were held in the different meeting-houses in Philadelphia, and the houses were literally crowded. There were between twelve and fifteen hundred present at Arch Street, and of these probably at least four hundred could be called young Friends. It was a striking gathering, certainly one of the most unique to be seen anywhere in this country.

A Friend in Philadelphia Yearly Meeting "opened a concern" to have a committee appointed to visit the meetings throughout the yearly meeting, to inquire into their state and to see why meetings are dying out and being closed, as is the case. It would seem that such an inquiry and investigation would be most sensible and wise, but it did not receive the support of the meeting.

M. Z. Kirk, who has for more than a year been connected with THE AMERICAN FRIEND, has gone to Denver, Colorado, which will be his headquarters for the future. He will still continue to act as General Agent for THE AMERICAN FRIEND, and he will also be engaged in a "Book and Bible" business.

NEW ENGLAND YEARLY MEETING.

It will be of interest to the young friends of Mary E. Meiers to know that her work in New England is being appreciated by the Friends among whom she is sojourning. The earnest and very evident sincerity that characterizes her gospel service, coupled with an unfailing courage and cheerfulness, are telling upon the spiritual life of the church, and many from outside are frequenting our meetings. The dangers that are incident to the pastoral system have not come to the surface as yet in the way in which the work is carried on.

There is always opportunity for, and encouragement to, the exercise of individual gifts, and the "lay" service has been greater since our sister came among us. We are greatly desirous that there may be a faithful co-operation in planting and watering, in the assurance that the increase will not be withheld by the Great Giver.

J. E. P.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

At Farmington Quarterly Meeting the company and services of Luke Woodard were much appreciated. He preached a full gospel at each session, and addressed the Christian Endeavor Union and the Bible School Conference. There were many expressions of gratitude on account of his labors in the Quarterly Meeting during the past winter. The usual business of the Quarterly Meeting was transacted in much harmony, but owing to sickness in the various meetings the attendance was small. Farmington Friends were most kind and hospitable, and the dear Master blessed our meeting together.

H. H. LEGGETT.

West Branch, N. Y.—Our meeting at this place has been greatly blessed during the past two weeks, under the sound, searching and convincing ministry of our beloved friends, Eli G. and Mary M. Parker, of Iowa.

We praise God for these favors, and are looking for further results of their labors.

SAMUEL SIMPKIN.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Minneapolis Friends have just finished and opened a new Meeting-house, a picture of which we give below.

The house is 90 feet long and 39 feet wide, with a porch 12 feet and a vestibule 10 feet. The main room is 48 feet long, and there is a Sabbath School room 20 feet long. The seating capacity is 200.

MINNEAPOLIS MEETING HOUSE.

The floor slopes slightly upward toward the back of the room. The style of architecture is Grecian, and the material is light brick. The cost has been about $5,000.

Edgar C. West, a native of Jamaica, who has been wonderfully blessed and helped in the Friends' Mission in that island, feels that he has been definitely called to work among his own people, and he has come to this country to prepare himself further for his life service. He is now at Le Grande, in the Training School. We have received the following letter from him, which we believe will interest many of our readers:

"My dear Christian friends:—Having arrived in your country on the 3d day of April, I thought it would do you good if I tell you a little of the work from which I came. Jamaica, I can most certainly say, is an open field for the gospel. Eleven or twelve years ago the Lord made this known to you, and you have readily responded to the call. This I must give thanks to you for, and to 'Him who hath loved us.' I believe it is your readiness to preach the gospel in Jamaica that enables me to reach your land. The work in Jamaica is an interesting one, and seems very dear to me along with the workers there. Perhaps you would like to have me tell all about my travel. I sailed from Jamaica on one of the Boston Fruit Company's steamships (the 'Admiral Sampson') on the 28th ultimo, and spent five days on the sea, and was landed at Boston the 3d inst. There I met with Mary E. White and two dear brothers, Thomas Wood and Dr. Benjamin Trueblood, who kindly welcomed me to the country, and took upon themselves the responsibility of seeing me get on the right train for the State of Iowa. On Wednesday evening, the 5th instant, at 5.30, I was safely landed at Marshalltown, Iowa, where I inquired of a man if there was a Friends' church in that town, and was very glad to know there is. The same man took me away up the town in search of the minister. We found him about 6.30 p.m. He is Edgar Williams, who welcomed me to his home and took me with him to his prayer meeting, where I was made acquainted with the dear Christians of that church, who seemed very glad to see me, and inquired of me the conditions of the work in Jamaica. I was very glad for the privilege Brother Williams gave me to speak to the people and to tell them of the work. On Thursday morning, the 6th instant, as Brother Williams and I were making ready to start to the railway depot to take the train for Le Grande, there came in a young man from Edgar P. Ellyson to look for me. Then we all started out on our journey, and about 10 o'clock a.m. we entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellyson, who also gave me a hearty welcome, which makes me feel quite at home with God's people. In this I try to explain my joy of being among you, for I have considered us to be children of one family—yea, even to make 'your people my people, and your God mine.' I do wish I might get to see most of you, my dear people, who are interested in me before I return to my own country. I must close my letter with a vote of thanks for what you have undertaken to do for me on the line of education, and pray that the day will come when you shall have cause to rejoice over the time of your well-doing. Truly yours in the love of Christ,

"EDGAR C. WEST."

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Washington, Kansas.—It is with a feeling of thankfulness and joy that we notice a steady and definite growth in our meeting as regards the spiritual life and the attendance.

Our Christian Endeavor prayer meetings are well attended by the students of the academy, and are characterized by prompt and faithful action on the part of the members. We pray the Master to send more laborers into the field, such as our noble pastor, Anna M. Ray. A. D. STANTON.

NOTICES.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—New York Yearly Meeting of Friends will be held in the city of Poughkeepsie, commencing Fifth month 25th, with sessions of the meeting of ministers and elders at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. The regular business sessions of the Yearly Meeting open at 10 a.m. on the 26th. We are hoping for a large attendance and abundant blessing upon our annual gathering. The committee to secure homes ask that all who expect to attend will inform the undersigned as early as possible. The price for board will range from five to seven dollars per week in private families. The price for board at hotels will be made known upon application.

If those who secure their own homes will inform the committee where these are to be it will enable them to intelligently answer any inquiries made as to where any Friend is located.

On behalf of committee: Adna F. Heaton, Walter H. Bedell, 359 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

California Yearly Meeting will be held at Long Beach, California, beginning Sixth month 13th, 1899. Meeting of Ministry and Oversight at 2.30 p.m., the 12th, to which we will welcome any of our Friends who can come.

M. M. Brown, Corresponding Secretary of Entertainment Committee.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

"BAPTISM OF LIFE."

BY FLORENCE L. MACPHERSON.

"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." With a deep sense of gratitude to my Heavenly Father for my restoration to health, in answer to the prayer of faith, I write these lines as a loving service for Him. Since March 29th, 1898, I have felt that I must glorify God, by witnessing to His marvelous power as manifested in rebuking my disease, and the healing of my body.

Bless His precious name. We have the same Jesus to-day, the same compassionate, loving Saviour, for "Himself took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses." In my life He has proven Himself to be the Great Healer of both soul and body. I will give a short statement of my general condition as it was at the time of my healing. During the school year of 1891 and 1892 I was engaged in teaching near my home. On January 23d I was taken very ill with what the attending physician pronounced la grippe. I could not rally from the effects of it, and gradually grew weaker, until about April 1st, when the symptoms of a serious disease of the spinal cord became manifest, finally being diagnosed as an organic disease, or lesion of the spinal cord, together with some functional trouble, thus causing a gradual paralysis of the motor nerves of my body, with the exception of the right arm, which I could use until after December 7th, 1894. My spine and entire system was in such a weakened and helpless condition, that for six years I was prostrated upon a bed of affliction, I was under the treatment and almost constant care of skilled medical aid for about four years; specialists in nervous diseases were consulted, but all treatment failed to reach the seat of the disease, only affording temporary relief from pain, and perhaps prolonging life. During my illness there were many acute attacks of suffering, when it seemed very doubtful that I should rally again, but when these would leave, there would be days when I was comparatively comfortable, and would gain some strength. For twenty-two months previous to my healing I was deprived of my voice, and from April 4th, 1892, until May 1st, 1898, I did not bear any weight upon my feet, and they were also drawn back almost straight. For nearly the last three years of my affliction I had not been raised in an upright position. Although there were many times when life seemed hard to endure, yet it was not all shadow, but there were many days of sunshine. God blessed me with dear friends whose kind words and deeds of love and sympathy brought much cheer and comfort to my weary life.

I was apprised of the nature and gravity of my condition, so that I had but a faint hope of ever being much better.

During the month of March, 1898, there was a revival meeting in progress at the Friends' House, conducted by Charles D. W. Hiatt. On March 14th Brother Hiatt first visited me, and became impressed for my healing, and through the earnest prayers of his faith, united with others of God's children, God touched my soul and body. Blessedly saving my soul, He gave me the witnessing spirit that,—

"My sins were pardoned I was free, Washed in the blood of the Lamb."

The night of March 23d His wonderful healing power was manifested in my body, and one week later came the assurance that my disease was gone. Oh! what joy entered my soul as I realized that the chains which had bound me during those years of suffering were broken. I just wanted every one to have the experience which God gave me. All the symptoms of my disease disappeared, the perfect use of my body returned, and the first time that I was raised up I was able to sit up for over an hour without any discomfort, all the weakness which had made it impossible being gone.

After the disease was taken, my strength was left to return more gradually, and the muscles to develop. To-day I am walking singing God's praise, and living in His strength.

In the words of the Psalmist, "He has delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling." What a wonderful Saviour is mine!

This article has been written to the glory of God, and may He use it to inspire faith in others.

Martinsville, Ohio.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

A BIBLE READING ON THE SUBJECT OF PEACE.

What class of people delight themselves in peace? Ps. 37: 11.

Is the fruit of righteousness sown in time of war or peace? James 3: 18.

What is peace the effect of? Isa. 32: 17.

If peace springs from righteousness, then what does war spring from? James 4: 1.

Peace principles are beautiful in time of peace—some say—but can they be persistently followed out? Ps. 34: 14; Rom. 14: 19; 1 Pet. 3: 11.

Is it enjoined upon us to "ensue" or follow peace with all people, regardless of their treatment toward us? Heb. 12: 14.

Since it is a Bible requirement—according to the preceding scripture—to follow peace with all men at all times, what must be the duty of every Gospel minister? 2 Tim. 2: 2; Ephes. 6: 15.

Was the non-resisting spirit of Christ, through all His earthly life, intended to mark out the course His followers should take, under similar circumstances? 1 Pet. 2: 21.

How shall we meet those who take the sanction given to war, in the Old Testament, to be a guide for them in this day? Matt. 5: 38, 39, 44.

Since the Lord's people had, previous to Christ's coming, been following a war policy, what proofs have we that one of the explicit reasons for His coming into the world, was to establish a peace policy, and enjoin obedience? Luke 1: 79; Matt. 12: 19; 2 Tim. 2: 24.

Did the disciples at first accept this new order of things? Matt. 26: 51, 52.

Did Peter take the command to sheathe the sword, to refer only to that special occasion, or to all time? 1 Pet. 3: 8, 9; 1 Pet. 2: 20, 21, 23.

Did the Apostle Paul accept and promulgate these peace principles? Rom. 12: 19, 20, 21; Ephes. 4: 31, 32; 2 Cor. 10: 3, 4.

If the disciples so understood Christ's teachings, and the early Christians for 300 years considered that one sentence, "I am a Christian," as a sufficient reason for refusing to take any part in war, or give their sanction, in any way whatever, to the slaughter of their fellow-men; then should not every Christian under the light of the nineteenth century, endeavor to hasten the day when "The blood feasts of inhuman war shall cease, and the nations of the earth, shall sound the jubilee of peace."

L. ELLA HARTLEY.

Tecumseh, Oklahoma.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

LITTLE DEEDS OF KINDNESS.

"Whosoever this Gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there also shall this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her."

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

These two sayings of Christ passed through my mind, over and over again, as recently I sat in Twelfth Street Meeting, Philadelphia, on a stormy First-day, and the recollections of twenty-three years past crowded upon my memory.

Long ago I had sat there for the first time. I was a student stranger from the West, and there was not one familiar face in the great audience, or anything suggestive of home but the impressive silence, which always seems the same in every meeting of Friends.

This feeling of loneliness was perhaps shown in my face as I passed into the sunny yard, filled with happy Friends, greeting each other.

There were two women there who were about their Father's business. They came to me with kindly greetings, made kindly inquiries of my home and present situation, and each said without hesitation and in the sweetest manner, "Thee must come home with me to dinner."

Thus began a series of thoughtful courtesies toward myself that only ended with my school days in the city. The remembrance of these kind acts has been a precious memory all these years, as has also the recollection of the young woman who showed her interest in the stranger by a call made at my plain boarding place far beyond Girard College, and whose gift of a little book at parting showed her thoughtful friendliness. Surely, I said to myself, as I sat in the meeting, all those kind saints are dead. Should I not rise up in the meeting, and, mentioning them by name, pay tribute to their good deeds.

A fear of taking time from individual devotions and meditation kept me silent, and I said, 'I will write of it all that others may profit by it.'

Judge of my joy and pleasure when I found myself met at the door by the beaming face of M— B—, and on inquiry, learned that M. E. B. and H. T. are yet living, blessing all who come within their influence.

Let me lay this little tribute of love and thankfulness at the feet of the living that I had thought would be placed upon their graves. Surely, in such unnoted ways is the kingdom of God brought about in this world, and this spirit manifested by his children.

These were simple deeds, done and then forgotten by those who did them, but cherished and remembered by the one who received.

As I returned from the meeting and all during the day, I kept thinking, as the long and useful lives of those women were recalled, "With long life will I satisfy him."

S. S. S.

Ames, Iowa.

BOOK NOTICES.

"General Introduction to the Old Testament." By William Henry Green, D.D., LL.D. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. 12mo., 209 pp., $1.50. Prof. W. H. Green, of Princeton, has for more than fifty-two years been a teacher in Princeton Theological Seminary, and is now Professor of Hebrew and of Biblical and Oriental Literature. He was President of the Old Testament Revision Committee in America, and is the foremost Hebrew scholar in this country, who stands for the conservative views as to the origin and canonicity of the Old Testament. No man is more respected by those who hold more radical views, since his arguments are always scholarly and free from abuse of those from whom he may differ in opinion. The work above indicated is a vigorous defence of the conservative, evangelical views as to the authorship and date of the various books of the Old Testament. A chapter is given to the testimony of the Old Testament itself, as to its origin and as to the care with which it has been guarded from age to age since the time of Moses. Deut. 31: 24-26; 31: 10-13; Josh. 1: 8; 24: 26, and similar quotations, are adduced to show how, from their very origin, these writings were regarded as sacred, and Dr. Green argues that a copy of the law and prophets, with additions from age to age, by those inspired of God, was thus carefully guarded. A similar line of argument defends the sacred character of the "Prophets" from the time of utterance or of writing, and numerous Scriptures are quoted in defence of this position. The arguments of critics who deny this position are carefully considered and their statements answered. The collection into the present canon is treated at length and the threefold division by the Jews into "The Law, Prophets and K'thubhim" is fully explained—not as implying successive or varying degrees of sacredness or canonicity, but simply as indicating the official status of the writers. With reference to the separate existence of the several books, it is stated that "A book inspired of God is just as authoritative in its separate state as when it is united with other books of a similar character," hence the collection into a canon did not create the authoritative character of the several books, but only recognized such authority. The uncertainty of the origin of the several parts of the Septuagint, or that collection which came to be eventually known as the Septuagint, which existed for centuries only in separate parts, renders its testimony as to the books which form the canon of no value.

"The Canon of Christ and the Apostles" is the title of an interesting chapter in Dr. Green's book, which perhaps does not add anything to what has been said before on this subject, but advances arguments that have been satisfactorily refuted. Dr. Green states that "Our Lord repeatedly rebukes the Jews for making void the word of God by their traditions, and at various times he corrects their false glosses and erroneous interpretations of Scripture. But while censuring them for this, He could not have passed it over in silence, if they had been guilty of excluding whole books from the canon which properly belonged there, or inserting that which was not really inspired of God." Christ's recognition of the Jewish Canon as the unadulterated word of God, and His frequent appeal to it as such, is not subjecting himself to the authority of the synagogue and the scribes, but is, on the contrary, His own independent affirmation that in this case they have made no mistake. He never argues that they have corrupted the Scriptures, but only that they have wrongly interpreted them. Both Jesus and the writers of the New Testament ever give to the Old Testament the highest testimony as to its Divine origin and authority. Dr. Green also shows that while quoting freely from the canonical books, the writers of the New Testament never quote from the Apocrypha nor ascribe to them inspiration or canonicity. Upon the whole, Dr. Green's book is an evidence that the critics have not yet carried all before them, and with the present reaction in Germany in favor of the historical instead of the critical method of settling the canonicity of the Scriptures, we may expect to see it followed by similar works defending the older traditional, historical views.

News and Events.

While no one doubts the ultimate success of our arms in the Philippines, the rate of progress being made in subjugating the insurgents is at least discouraging. Two American reverses, of a more or less serious nature, were reported last week. A landing party of fifteen, including officers and sailors from the "Yorktown," while engaged in negotiating with the rebels for the release of Spanish prisoners at Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, were ambushed and captured on the 12th. This misfortune comes with added keenness, as the navy has prided itself thus far with immunity from reverses. During a reconnaissance east of Malolos on the 23d, a detachment of the Fourth Cavalry was suddenly surrounded by the enemy in large force near Quengua. Reinforcements which were hurried forward succeeded in dispersing the attacking body, but not until seven of our troops had been killed and forty-four wounded. Colonel Stotsenburg, of the Nebraska regiment, was among the killed. The Filipinos left only thirteen dead in the trenches behind which they had been very strongly fortified. Despite such incidents, General Otis continues to send in to the War Department cheerful reports, and it is to be hoped that the campaign may close without further loss of life. The hot rainy season, however, is almost on, and it is probable that the end cannot come until this shall have given way to the cooler weather of the fall.

A most flagrant instance of defeating the will of the people through the misinterpretation of a law has just been given in the action of Attorney-General Griggs regarding section 17 of the late act "to increase the efficiency of the army." The section referred to concerns the army canteen, and reads: "No officer or private soldier shall be detailed to sell intoxicating drinks, as a bartender, or otherwise, in any post, exchange, or canteen, nor shall any other person be required or allowed to sell such liquors in any encampment or fort or on any premises used for military purposes by the United States; and the Secretary of War is hereby directed to issue such general order as may be necessary to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect." By an ingenious distortion of the evident intention of the law the Attorney-General has practically nullified the provisions of the section by declaring that it simply prohibits the employment of officers or soldiers in dispensing liquors, but permits the sale "by civilians employed in the canteen for the purpose by the proper government authorities." The petition urging Congress to pass the anti-canteen law is said to have been signed by more persons than any other ever presented to that body. The Attorney-General's action has been unsparingly and most deservedly criticized, and it is pretty certain that the battle against the canteen will be continued until it has been finally suppressed.

A gigantic counterfeiting scheme, which has been in operation in Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pennsylvania, for some time, was unearthed last week by secret service men in the employment of the Government. Arthur Taylor and Baldwin S. Bredell, members of a firm of Philadelphia engravers, were found to have in their possession plates from which they have been enabled to produce paper money and stamps as perfect as any turned out at Washington. The plates seem to have been made in Philadelphia and the printing done in Lancaster. The notes manufactured are of large denominations, and had the counterfeiting remained undiscovered the country would soon have been flooded with the spurious money. In Lancaster five other men, who were implicated in the conspiracy, were arrested. The trial is likely to occur about the middle of next month. Internal revenue stamps were manufactured in immense quantities, and were used on brands of cigars manufactured by Wm. M. Jacobs, one of the principals, at Lancaster, thus making it possible for him to greatly undersell all competitors. As a result thousands and thousands of these cigars have been bought all over the country, and now a general confiscation is taking place. The scheme is considered one of the most remarkable on record, and the discovery of the culprits after a long search is exceedingly gratifying.

The recording of the continuous lynchings in the South is positively sickening. No more horrible murder of the kind has been given us for a long time than that which took place at Newnan, Georgia, on the 23d. Sam Hose, a negro accused of killing a white man and brutally treating the wife and children, was burned at the stake in the presence of about 2,000 people. Before the light was applied to the pile around the accused man his body was fearfully mutilated, and the most awful tortures were applied. The mob seemed fairly crazed with the passion of hate, and the Governor of the State and others who demanded that the law have its course were ignored or treated with indignity. The apparent hopelessness of the situation in the South is the inability to secure a jury willing to convict men against whom the charge of lynching has been indisputably proved. The truth of this is well exemplified when last week the jury in the Baker lynching trial, in the Federal Court at Charleston, S. C., being unable to reach an agreement, were discharged. Five stood for conviction and seven for acquittal.

HOTEL STRAND

ATLANTIC CITY.

Ocean and Virginia Avenues.

A thoroughly modern and home-like house throughout. Elevator to street level. Steam heat. Sun parlor, etc. A special rate will be made to FRIENDS during this season. Write for booklet and terms.

FAIRBAIRN & WILLIAMS.

Mention this Paper

GETTYSBURG, LURAY, AND WASHINGTON.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged for a five-day Personally-Conducted Tour to Gettysburg, Luray, and Washington on May 6th. A full day will be spent at Gettysburg, three hours at Luray, affording ample time to make the tour of the wonderful caverns, and two days at Washington.

The party will be under the guidance of one of the company's experienced tourist agents. A chaperon, whose especial charge will be unescorted ladies, will also accompany the party throughout. Round-trip tickets, including transportation for the round trip, hotel accommodations at Gettysburg and carriage drive over the battlefield, luncheon, transfer, and admission to the Luray Caverns, luncheon, transfer, and hotel accommodations at Washington, and dinner going and supper returning, at Broad Street Station in connection with tickets from Trenton and points east thereof, will be sold at the extremely low rate of $25 from New York, $24 from Trenton, $22 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

ACTINA AND MAGNETIC CONSERVATIVE APPLIANCES.

We have numerous testimonials as to the value of these articles in curing Chronic Catarrh, Hay Fever, Asthma, Cataract, Deafness, Rheumatism, Gout, and various other ills humanity is heir to.

For sale by the

PHILADELPHIA MAGNETIC CO.,
1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

The following anecdote, quoted by the "Westminster Gazette," illustrates the well-known liberality of John Wesley: "When his income was only thirty pounds a year he lived on twenty-eight pounds, and gave away forty shillings. The next year, receiving sixty pounds, he still lived on twenty-eight, and devoted the remainder to charitable uses. The third year he received ninety pounds, out of which he subscribed sixty-two pounds to the needy. In the course of thirty years he gave away more than thirty thousand pounds.

"The government in 1776 resolved to issue the following circular, and a copy was sent to the great preacher.

"Reverend Sir:—As the Commissioners can not doubt that you have plate for which you have hitherto neglected to make an entry, they have directed me to send you a copy of the Lord's Order, and to inform you that they expect that you will forthwith mark the entry of all your plate, such entry to bear date from the commencement of the plate duty, or from such time as you have served, used, had, or kept any quantity of silver plate, chargeable by the Act of Parliament, as in default thereof, the Board will be obliged to signify your refusal to their lordships.

"N. B.—An immediate answer is desired."

"Mr. Wesley replied as follows:

"Sir:—I have two silver spoons at London, and two at Bristol; this is all the plate which I have at present, and I shall not buy any more while so many around me want bread.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,
"John Wesley."

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.

OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Avenue, near Beach. Close to New Steel Pier. New Management. Quiet, homelike, and attractive. Ocean view.
Write for information.

MRS. N. R. HAINES,
Owner and Proprietor.

(Formerly of The Chalfonte.)

The Archdale, 136 South Maryland Avenue, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view; cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.
MARY J. BUNDY.

SUMMER BOARDING.

Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate, at her home, near Muncy, Pa., a few summer boarders. The ground is high, view fine, air good, and drives and walks pleasant.
For terms address

CAROLINE B. KIRK,
Pennsdale, Pa.

A want advertisement in "The American Friend" will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

LOCATION OF FRIENDS' MEETING HOUSES IN OUR LARGE CITIES AND TIMES OF HOLDING RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Baltimore, Md., Friends' Meeting House, corner of Eutaw and Monument Streets.
First-day 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.
Fifth-day 11 a.m.

Boston, Mass., Townsend Street near Warren (Roxbury District). Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m.
Bible School 12 noon
Y. P. S. C. E. Meeting . . . 6.15 p.m.
Mid-week Meeting, Sixth-day . . 7.45 p.m.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Brooklyn Friends' Meeting House, corner of Lafayette and Washington Avenues. [Take Gates or Dekalb Avenue Cars at Brooklyn Bridge and get out at Washington Avenue.] Sabbath Services:

Bible School 9.15 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 10.30 a.m.
C. E. Prayer Meeting 7 p.m.
Evening Meeting, ... 7.45
Prayer Meeting, Fourth-day . . 7.45 p.m.

Chicago, Ill., Friends' Meeting House is located on Indiana Avenue, south of 44th Street. Reached by Elevated Railroad or Indiana Avenue Street Car. Meetings are held as follows:

First-day, Bible School 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 11 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 6.30 p.m.
Fourth-day, Prayer Meeting 8 p.m.

Cincinnati, O., Meeting House, N. W. corner 8th and Mound Streets. Meetings for Worship:

First and Fifth-day 11 a.m.
First-day Sabbath School 9.30 p.m.
Christian Endeavor 7.30 p.m.

Cleveland, O., Friends' Meeting House, Cedar Avenue, opposite Blair Street.

First-day 10.15 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Mid-week Prayer Meeting, Fifth-day 7.30 p.m.

There are also two other Friends' Meetings and two Friends' Missions in Cleveland.

Denver, Col., Friends' Meeting House, 41st. Avenue and Arlington St., take 17th. Avenue Car on 16th. St., north. Meeting for Worship:

First-day 11.00 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Sabbath School 10.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 6.30 a.m.
Mid-week meeting, Fourth-day . 7.30 p.m.
Monthly meeting for business, first Fourth. day of the month 2.00 p.m.

Spring and Summer Fabrics now ready.

GUSTAVUS GOLZE,
Merchant Tailor,
123 N Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART, a beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight in every Christian family First Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 52 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

Indianapolis, Ind., Friends' Meeting House is situated on the corner of Alabama and 13th streets. (Alabama Street Car Line). Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Bible School 9.15 a.m.
Junior Endeavor 2.30 p.m.
Intermediate Endeavor . . . 3.30 p.m.
Senior Endeavor 6.30 p.m.
Fourth-day 10.30 a.m.
Fifth-day, Prayer Meeting . . . 7.30 p.m.

Kansas City, Mo., Friends' Meeting House, No. 416 W. 15th Street.

First-day 9.45 a.m.
Bible School 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 11.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 7.00 p.m.

Minneapolis, Minn., Friends' Meeting House, corner of First Avenue, South and 14th Streets. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Bible School, ... 12 m.
Fifth-day 7.30 p.m.

New York City, Meeting House, 144 East 20th Street, Gramercy Park, Meetings for Worship:

First-day 11 a.m.
Fourth-day 10.30 a.m., except first Fourth-day in month . . 7.30 p.m.
Sabbath School First-day 10 a.m.
C. E. Meeting, Third-day 7.45 p.m.

Philadelphia, Penna., Meeting House, 20 South Twelfth Street. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Mid-week meeting, Fourth-day . 10.30 a.m.

Toronto, Canada, Friends' Meeting House, 28 Pembroke Street. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Fourth-day 8 p.m.

Washington, D. C. Corner of First and C Street, N. E. (Provisional) Arrangement of Hours:

Bible School, ... 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship, ... 11.00 a.m.
Y.P.S.C.E., in the evening, at 7.30, unless some other arrangement is made.
Mid-week meeting, . . . 5th day, 7.30 p.m.

SEE TO THE SOIL.

I could not tell what was the matter with my beautiful fern that had hung in my window and grown so beautifully all the winter. The leaves were dying and turning white. I took it down, and to my great surprise found that the soil had been all washed from the roots. It had actually nothing to grow in. I immediately procured fresh soil, and while pressing it to the bare roots, I thought how easily the soil may get washed away from the roots of our spiritual being. We feel a dryness, a hardness, a sort of "What's the use?" Wave after wave of trouble has rolled over us, and perhaps we are unconscious how much has been washed away that is necessary to spiritual greenness and beauty. A human heart must have soil to grow in, and that soil is love.—Margaret Bottomo.

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and Heals all Inflamed Surfaces, Cures Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and

Relieves Pain

The Wonderful Golden Rambler Rose

Hardy and bears all the time. A glorious profusion of gold and white roses at same time on same bush. Blooms all summer from June till December. Finest, hardy ever-blooming rose for garden, trellis or veranda. Strong plants on own roots. 15c. each, 2 for 25c. New Floral Guide 124 pages, tells all about 400 other choice flowers. Free. CONARD & JONES CO., Dept. 8, West Grove, Pa.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It tells how to obtain, free, the famous Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N. Y.

"Appetite

comes with eating." And the hankering for Pearline comes from trying it. If you're sceptical about Pearline's washing, try it on coarse clothes, etc., first—things that you can't hurt much, and see how it saves work. Having seen Pearline's superior work you'll be ready to use it for fine, delicate, cobwebby things. 581

Millions NOW USE Pearline

Last Personally-Conducted Tour to Washington via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The last of the present series of Pennsylvania Railroad three-day personally-conducted tours to Washington D. C., will be run on May 11. The rate, $14.50 from New York, $11.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points, includes transportation, hotel accommodations, and Capitol guide fees. An experienced Chaperson will also accompany the party.

For itineraries, tickets, and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

THIRTY WAYS TO SERVE VITOS.

If any of our readers will write to Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and ask for book of Pillsbury Vitos Recipes, they will be sent a copy by return mail. This book contains about thirty recipes for serving Pillsbury's Vitos at breakfast, dinner, tea and supper, prepared by Fannie Merritt Farmer, Principal Boston Cooking School, and Isabel Howard Neff, Teacher Domestic Science, Cincinnati Public Schools. Each recipe is simple, accurate and complete, and all are the results of experience.

Everyone who is interested in dairying would be well repaid by sending for the catalogue of Alpha De Laval Cream Separators, the advertisement of which appears elsewhere in this paper. It is handsomely executed and presents the merits of the "Alpha" in a very able and convincing way. The catalogue is free and may be had by addressing the De Laval Separator Co., 74 Cortlandt St., New York City.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A. M., Head Master.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address

HENRY A. WHITE, S. B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The Quickest and Best Route to all Points in the South.

If you are going to any point in the South, Southwest, Mexico or on the Pacific Coast, be sure and call for a ticket via the Southern Railway.

Three daily trains from Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, enable you to reach almost every city of importance south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi Rivers without change of cars, and if you are destined to points in the extreme West or Southwest, you will find the connections at Memphis or New Orleans close. Send for schedules, maps, etc. Further information will be cheerfully furnished by Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

TO MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE.

The Southern Railway's new train, "The Washington and Chattanooga Limited," leaving Broad Street Station Philadelphia at 5.34 P. M. daily, will put you in Memphis at 7.40 the second morning. The route is via Washington, Lynchburg, Bristol and Chattanooga. Write to Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia for time tables and all information.

TO THE LAND OF THE SKY.

A beautifully illustrated book entitled "The Land of the Sky" showing the many attractions of Asheville, North Carolina, has just been issued by the Southern Railway Company, and copies may be obtained of Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, who reports steadily increasing travel to that widely known health resort, especially on the Southwestern Limited train leaving Broad Street Station Philadelphia at 6.55 P. M. Daily, and arriving in Asheville the next day at noon.

DOES IT PAY?

Concerning the permanent value of missionary effort in behalf of the Chinese in this country this question is sometimes asked of those in charge of the Christian League's Chinese Mission on Race Street. The following letter, recently received by Mr. Poole from a young laundryman of Oxford, Pa., should satisfy every mind on the subject.

"Mr. Poole.

"My dear Sir:—You will no doubt be surprised to know that the dictator of this letter is about to be united with the Church. It is another of God's blessings through you. You may remember that I was a member of your Chinese Y. M. C. A. and it is through your earnest work that I have taken this step.

"Since I have been in Oxford my temptations have not been so great as when I lived in Philadelphia. My Sunday School teacher has worked earnestly to make plainer the right way for me to follow Christ. I wish all my brother countrymen could see it as I do now. I feel as though I were overflowing with the Spirit, and may the day come when I may be the cause of bringing some poor sinner to the Lord Jesus. It makes me feel very sad when I look back home and see there so many poor sinners dying without even getting a chance to hear the word of God. It is certainly a very sad sight.

"Next Sabbath is the day I am to become united with the First Presbyterian Church of Oxford. My only wish is that more of my brothers were taking the same step, and were to stand alongside of me,—not that I am afraid, but that it would mean so many more for the Lord.

"Yours most heartily, GAN CHIN."

Know whate'er

Beyond its natural fervor hurries on
The sanguine tide—whether the frequent bowl,
High-seasoned fare, or exercise to toil
Protracted—spurs to its last stage tired life,
And sows the temples with untimely snow.
—Dr. John Armstrong.

What do we live for, if it is not to make life less difficult for each other?—George Eliot.

THE OLD STANDBY!

DELAU'S REMEDY

A Sure Cure for
Whooping Cough
Croup and
Ordinary Colds

AT DRUGGISTS.

WANTS.

[We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS of any kind to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Advertisements will be inserted in this column at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.]

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Corcoran St., Wash., D. C.

WANTED—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED—A man, competent and of experience, to establish and manage a Hame manufactory in Greensboro, N. C.

Address Lock Box 55.

TEACHER WANTED.—The Missionary Board of Iowa Yearly Meeting desire a teacher for the Golden Grove East Indian School, in Jamaica. Address ADALINE H. HADLEY, Secretary, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Sweet as a Peach!

It is not from tonics, either, but from proper food and exercise. This is the secret of a beautiful complexion.

Franklin Mills Flour

A FINE FLOUR OF THE ENTIRE WHEAT

is easily digested and retains the health-giving, vital elements of the wheat.

If your grocer does not have it, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied. Send for FREE BOOKLET.

THE GENUINE MADE ONLY BY

FRANKLIN MILLS CO., Lockport, N. Y.

Friends seeking positions or wishing to fill vacancies in firms or families may be helped by using our want column. The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion.

ABSENT-MINDED.

A Frenchman named Calino, who died in Paris some years ago, was remarkable for his forgetfulness. There is a letter of his in existence, as follows:

"My dear friend:—I left my knife at your lodgings yesterday. Pray send it to me if you should find it. Yours, Calino.

"P. S.—Never mind sending the knife; I have found it."

There is also a note for his wife which he sent home with a basket of provisions, the postscript to which read: "You will find my letter in the bottom of the basket. If by chance you should fail to do so, let me know as soon as possible."

On one occasion he took a lighted taper to find his way down a pair of stairs without accident, and after getting down brought it back again with thanks, leaving himself at the top of the stairs in the dark as at first.

When Bishop Hurst was in Poona some years ago, he went out to the great temple of Parbuti, and there watched the worshippers. He asked the aged Brahmin priest, who for many years had received the offerings there, "Do as many people come here to pray as formerly?" "No," was the reply, "they are fewer every year." "How long will this worship last?" asked the bishop. "God knows," was the reply; "perhaps ten, perhaps fifty, years." "What will bring it to an end?" asked the bishop. "Jesus Christ," was the answer.

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S Breakfast Cocoa

Costs less than One Cent a cup.

Be sure that the Package bears our Trade-Mark.

A Perfect Food. Pure, Nutritious, Delicious.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Limited.

Established 1780.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

TRADE-MARK.

Whooping Vapo-Cresolene Cough, Croup, Asthma, Colds

Hundreds of thousands of mothers use Vapo-Cresolene. Do You? Cresolene cures Whooping Cough every time; stops Croup almost immediately, and if used at once will cure a Cold before any complications can arise. L. N. Love, M.D., of St. Louis, says: "I have instructed every family under my direction to secure it." Mrs. Ballington Booth, says: "I recommend that no family where there are young children should be without it." W. R. Chichester, M.D., of New York, says: "As a vehicle for disinfecting purposes Cresolene is immediately successful." Anthony Comstock, says: "Malignant Diphtheria in my house; Cresolene used; cases recovered in two weeks; no others were affected." Descriptive booklet with testimonials free. Sold by all druggists.

VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 68 Wall St., New York.
Schieffelin & Co., New York, U.S. Agents.

Cream Separators.

Would you know
all about them?

The best, the cheapest and the reasons why?

SEND FOR NEW
1899 CATALOGUE.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

Randolph & Canal Sts.,
CHICAGO.

74 Cortlandt Street,
NEW YORK.

I believe that this world utterly and absolutely needs Christ and His life, and that without Christ and His life this world is, without any reference to the future, a lost and dying world.—Robert E. Speer.

Last Tour to Old Point Comfort, Richmond and Washington Under Personal Escort.

The last six-day personally-conducted tour to Old Point Comfort, Richmond, and Washington via the Pennsylvania Railroad will leave New York and Philadelphia on Saturday, April 29.

Tickets, including transportation, meals en route in both directions, transfers of passengers and baggage, hotel accommodations at Old Point Comfort, Richmond, and Washington, and carriage ride about Richmond will be sold at rate of $34.00 from New York, Brooklyn, and Newark; $32.50 from Trenton; $31.00 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other stations.

OLD POINT COMFORT ONLY.

Tickets to Old Point Comfort only, including luncheon on going trip, one and three-fourths days' board at that place, and good to return direct by regular trains within six days, will be sold in connection with this tour at rate of $15.00 from New York; $13.50 from Trenton; $12.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

Is your brain tired?

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It supplies the needed food for the brain and nerves, and makes exertion easy.

JOTTINGS.

The American Railway Company, for the construction, promotion and control of electric railways in Pennsylvania and neighboring states, was chartered in Camden, New Jersey, last week with a capitalization of $25,000,000.

The trial of Senator Quay ended on the 21st, when a verdict for acquittal was rendered by the jury. Almost at once Governor Stone assumed a questioned prerogative and appointed Quay Senator to succeed himself until the Legislature shall again convene.

Thomas B. Reed has attached himself to a prominent law firm in New York, and he will now engage in the practice of his chosen profession. This will mean his loss as Speaker of the House, a position which he has filled with distinguished ability, though frequently with more partisan feeling than was conducive to a reputation for fairness. He has, however, shown himself head and shoulder above his fellows as a parliamentarian, and his retirement will be greatly felt. He is a comparatively poor man as politicians go, and it is said he finds it necessary to provide for his old age by a more lucrative employment than serving as a Federal Representative.

Captain Coghlan, of the Raleigh, the first vessel of Dewey's fleet to reach this country since the naval battle at Manila, has subjected himself to much criticism by giving utterance to certain revelations regarding the threatened clash between Admiral Dewey and Captain Diedricks, of the German vessel Irene. According to his statement the relations between the two commanders were undoubtedly strained, and a rupture was very narrowly averted.

It has been stated positively at the War Department that the provisional army of 35,000 volunteers, authorized by Macbeth's is the only lamp-chimney advertised.

What of that?

It's the only make worth advertising.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

ALASKA AND THE YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

A party will leave Philadelphia, Monday, May 22d, to visit Fort Wrangel, Juneau, Douglas Island, the Davidson Glacier on Lynn Canal, the Great Muir Glacier in Glazier Bay, Sitka, etc. On the return a full week will be spent in the Yellowstone National Park, and from Duluth to Buffalo, the party will take the Great Lake Route via the Northern S. S. Co.'s steamers.

Send for descriptive book.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
1005 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR
Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN
New York.
ATLANTIC
BRADLEY
BROOKLYN
JEWETT
ULSTER
UNION
SOUTHERN
SHIPMAN
COLLIER
MISSOURI
RED SEAL
SOUTHERN
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO
Philadelphia.
MORLEY
Cleveland.
SALEM
Salem, Mass.
CORNELL
Buffalo.
KENTUCKY
Louisville.

YOU cannot afford to take chances in painting when, by exercising a little care and common sense, the use of mixtures of unknown composition and questionable value can be avoided and the best materials (and, as you will find, by far the cheapest) can be obtained.

The best materials are Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. The brands named in margin are genuine.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

law, will be called out only as a last resort. In view of this statement it is interesting to know that General Otis has cabled to Washington that the force of 30,000 regulars, which he will have when the troops now under orders for the Philippines arrive, will be sufficient. He expects very shortly to be able to report a decided improvement in the situation.

The Commission to inquire into the Samoan situation has been appointed and at this writing is prepared to sail for the islands from San Francisco on the 25th. It consists of Baron Von Sternberg on behalf of Germany, Mr. Eliot on behalf of Great Britain, and Bartlett Tripp on behalf of the United States.

The Uitlanders in the Transvaal have united in a petition signed by 23,000 persons and presented it to Queen Victoria exposing President Kruger's arbitrary and despotic government. Kruger is alienating not only any English sympathy he may ever have had, but even that of Germany and France, by his evasions of promises of reform.

Missions are the footsteps of the Almighty on His way to final triumph.

CORNS AND ACORNS.

People who have Corns often wish they were Acorns but if they will use A-Corn Salve their Corns will quickly disappear without pain.

BOARDING.

Friends will find a good, comfortable boarding place with Friends at M. E. WISTAR's, 1725 Arch St., Phila., only three blocks from Broad St. Station.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.

Near Omaha.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - - $25.00 each.
Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.
Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.

Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

"HARVEST HOME"

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia
SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

For Both 25 cents For Both

SALT.

PEPPER.

If you are looking for a Great Bargain in Fine Silverware never heard of before and that will astonish you, here is one of the Greatest Bargains ever offered by any reliable Manufacturer. For 25 cents we send Prepaid Both the Salt and Pepper Shakers. They are Quadruple Coin Silver Plated. Warranted to wear ten years. Finely engraved and useful as well as ornamental to any table rich or poor. If on receipt of the same you do not think or find them the Greatest Bargain you ever have seen or heard of, return them at once to us and we will refund you your money. We have been doing business in Chicago since 1865. Any Bank or Express Company can tell you our standing. Our Bargain Silverware Catalogue Sent Free.

E. B. LEONARD MFG. CO., 152-153 MICHIGAN AVE., CHICAGO.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Sweet Briar PRUNES

Finest Grown in California.
Extra Thin Skin and Delicious Flavor. Appropriate either as a Confection or Stewing.

12 1/2 c. to 20 c. lb.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

62 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 illustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona,
32 pp., 15 illustrations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 illustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Resorts,
84 pp., 27 illustrations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations, 2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West.
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
F. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social,
moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men
and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer,
Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office,
northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary.

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force, - - - $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE
AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

The American Friend

BRIDGEMAN COLLEGE LIBRARY
D 11-1-99
Bridgeman College

Vol. VI

FIFTH MONTH 4th, 1899

No. 18

NICHOLAS II., CZAR OF RUSSIA.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❁ ❁ ❁ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS

Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston.

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.

Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually

Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.

Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.

Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion.*

THE GIRARD

LIFE INSURANCE
ANNUITY AND

TRUST CO.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.

WILLIAM M. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.

EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.

CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.

NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.

A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.

WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, JR.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.

ASA S. WING, Vice-President.

JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.

SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.

DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.

J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.

C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines.Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Harishorne.Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth.Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood.
J. Preston Thomas.
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.-FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Jackets, Reefers and Dresses

For the stately Miss of 14 or 16,
her irrepressible sister of 6, 8, 10
or 12, or the wee toddler from 2 to 5 years, in the most engaging styles and of fashion's chosen
fabrics for Spring.

Misses' Reefers in navy, gobelin, tan
and brown Cloths, new shaped collar
nicely braided, and pearl buttons, sizes
4 to 12 years, at $4 75.

Misses' Reefers in navy, tan and red
Cloths, very latest collar, lined with Silk
and handsomely braided, sizes 6 to 12
years, at $6.50.

Misses' Fly-front Jackets of Covert
Cloths, lined throughout with Silk Serge,
sizes 12 to 18 years, at $6.50.

Misses' Fly front Jackets of beautiful
Venetian Cloth, in blue, tan and brown,
lined throughout with best Taffetas Silk,
sizes 14 and 16 years, at $10.00.

Misses' fine Dresses and Sailor Suits,
in Serge, Cheviot and all the newest materials, made and finished in the most approved styles, sizes 4 to 14 years.
Prices range from $3.75 to $15.00.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New
England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.

All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building

TO THE LAND OF THE SKY.

A beautifully illustrated book entitled
"The Land of the Sky" showing the many attractions of Asheville, North Carolina, has just been issued by the Southern Railway Company, and copies may be obtained of
Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, who reports steadily increasing travel to that widely known health resort, especially on the Southwestern Limited train leaving Broad Street Station Philadelphia at 6.55 P. M. Daily, and arriving in Asheville the next day at noon.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, FIFTH MONTH 4, 1899.

No. 18.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
POEM.—"They Are Not Lost."	411
EDITORIALS—The Test of a Church.—Barbarism in Civilization.—The Czar and His Peace Conference.—Editorial Note	411-413
General Church Notes	413
The Scope of Spiritual Knowledge.....	Bishop H. W. Warren 414
Character and Life.....	Byron J. Rees 415
Poem.—Not Lost.....	Bertha C. Thorne 416
The Educational Conference	Isaac Sharpless 416
The Holy Spirit and His Work	John Pennington 417
History of Whitewater Monthly Meeting, Richmond, Ind.....	417

	PAGE
Society of Friends, Minneapolis, Minn.	42
INTERNATIONAL LESSON.—Fifth month 4th, 1899	421
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT.....	421
Mission Notes	422
Philadelphia Yearly Meeting.....	423
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	424
MARRIAGES	426
DEATHS	426
NEWS AND EVENTS.....	426

THEY ARE NOT LOST.

The look of sympathy, the gentle word
Spoken so low that only angels heard;
The secret act of pure self-sacrifice,
Unseen by men, but marked by angels' eyes—
These are not lost.

The happy dream that gladdens all our youth,
When dreams had less of self and more of truth;
The childhood's faith, so tranquil and so sweet,
Which sat like Mary at the Master's feet—
These are not lost.

The kindly plan devised for others' good,
So seldom guessed, so little understood;
The quiet, steadfast love that strove to win
Some wanderer from the ways of sin—
These are not lost.

Not lost, O Lord! for in Thy city bright
Our eyes shall see the past by clearer light;
And things long hidden from our gaze below
Thou wilt reveal, and we shall surely know
These are not lost.

—"Watchman"

THE TEST OF A CHURCH.

SOONER or later everything in this world gets tested. The things that shoot up and spread like a green bay-tree not seldom die down and pass away as soon as the real test comes. "The survival of the fittest" is a wonderful law of life, and yet we are all very slow to recognize it. We like to see things "go" at once. Prosperity and popularity dazzle our eyes, and we forget to ask, "Is it right"? But in the end we always have to learn that God has so made this world that only the excellent is permanent, only what is eternally right abides.

The Master showed clearly that the real test of a life is not popularity, not accumulation of riches, not "success," not even professions of faith—not that we have said, "Lord, Lord,"—but it is the measure in which we do God's will and make our life count in practical service. "I was sick and ye visited me," "I was thirsty and ye gave me a drink." Visiting the fatherless and widows and keeping spotless from the world is James's test of true religion. Everywhere in the New Testament the test is a practical one,—the tree is judged by its fruits.

Well, the test of a church must be of the same practical sort. The first question is, What is it doing to meet the world's need? Is it carrying on Christ's work, the work He went about doing? Is it interpreting Him to the world and showing that His followers have taken up His mission? Is it casting out devils, and feeding the hungry and binding up the broken hearted, and freeing the captive and preaching the gospel to the poor and making all classes in the community believe in the present reality of God and eternal things? Or is it quibbling over some ancient tradition, or advocating some empty ceremony, or glorying in its sacred customs, or trying to "keep the faith" by shutting eyes and mind to the real questions and issues of this present time?

There are, after all, only two kinds of churches, though hundreds of sects. There are the churches which are alive in the Spirit, and are doing in a more or less perfect way what Christ would be doing if He were here in Person, and there are the churches of various forms which seek the living among the dead. These latter all live upon and are devoted to certain things which history or tradition has made sacred. They worship "relics" of one sort or another. They are supremely concerned about these "holy things," and they suppose that Christianity will be destroyed if any of these ancient landmarks go. They limp along on crutches and wonder what would happen if one of the crutches should be lost. They never get beyond the "garments" of the Lord, and if they lost these garments everything would be gone! They are using counters instead of the real coin. Those who compose the other class have one sole and single purpose—to find Christ, to partake of His life, and to do His will. They push by all "relics" and "garments" to get to the Person Himself. They look upon the church as the body through which Christ still reaches and touches and ministers to humanity. Its work is His work. It can be done only in His spirit and in His power. It is a practical work, as His was, and its true test is its effect upon humanity. It "keeps the faith," not by crystallizing it into a form, but by continuing and maintaining in the world the spirit, the activities, the power, the influences, which were so completely and Divinely expressed in the life of Jesus Christ.

BARBARISM IN CIVILIZATION.

THE dreadful scenes enacted in Georgia last week seem too inhuman to be believed, and they make one fairly shudder at the awful limits of depravity which are possible to human nature. The frenzy of the mob and the tortures of the victim seem like chapters out of the annals of brutally savage tribes, and it almost passes belief that such things were done in a Christian country on the day of the week which we call the "Lord's day." We talk of "taking up the white Man's burden," and the duties and responsibilities of civilizing the Tagals of the Philippines, and the low races of other Spanish islands, but we have daily evidence that we are only partially civilized ourselves. The story of the deeds of this Georgia mob would be heard with horror by the very natives which we hope to civilize.

Such things force us to realize how slowly the race progresses, and how impossible it is to expect that the world will be made right and good by rose-water methods of improving human nature! It is all very well to be optimistic, but a real knowledge of the facts is a tremendous shock to an "easy" optimism. Read the daily story of ruin which comes from our thousands of privileged saloons; see the sensuality which is fed every day in the midst of our Christian civilization; know for one day the rottenness and vice and crime which flourish in our beautiful country, and human nature seems almost hideous. It is not only in brutal outbreaks of savagery that we find the low level of man's nature, but in the things which are so common and familiar that we are hardened to them. In fact, few of us are able to realize how much of the beast and the savage—how much of barbarism—still lurks in the civilization of which we talk so glibly, and those who expect to perfect mankind by rose-water theories do not know the first elements of the problem.

But we must not err in taking too dark a view. Pessimism is a poor cure for optimism. It does shock us to find how depraved and brutish human nature may become, and we have no faith in any short cut to an earthly paradise, but we cannot forget that once on this earth Divinity has dwelt in humanity and has made it possible for every man to come to God. "We are not all things put under His feet, but we see Jesus." Bad as human nature may be, dark as the picture of depravity seems, we must not forget "the mighty hopes that make us men." We must dwell on the fact that we are called to be like Jesus Christ. We must "level up" and not "level down." One man raised up to sit in heavenly places, one genuine saint redeemed and transformed by Christ, shows what is possible for the whole race, and every such case renews our faith that the Galilean will conquer and that men are meant for God and not for the devil. It increases, too, our determination to accept that religion only which bears practically upon the real problems of life—the religion which does win men from evil and brings them to God, the religion which does take the old nature out and put a new nature in, and we are done forever with all "play-religions."

THE CZAR AND HIS PEACE CONFERENCE.

It is impossible to decide in advance whether any great practical results will come to the world from the Peace Conference, which meets at the Hague, in Holland, on the 18th of this month, at the call of the Czar of Russia, but at all events it must take its place as one of the most striking episodes in modern history. It is now almost universally admitted that the Czar is sincere in his proposal to take steps toward a reduction and limitation of the military and naval forces of the great powers of the world. He sees, as every honest observer must see, that militarism is crushing the life out of the peoples of the old world. It is an intolerable burden, and a waste and perversion of manhood. Russia has carried the military system to such an extreme that its serious effects are everywhere manifest throughout the empire, particularly among the peasant classes.

The Czar has seen, perhaps more clearly than any other ruler, that this ever-increasing armed camp, this "far-flung battle line," these destructive fleets along every coast, are draining and sapping the life of the nations and diverting the treasure and manhood of the people from their proper use and function. The "halt" must come soon, and the Czar has dared to call it. He deserves and has received the thanks of millions of people. We do not personally expect to see the peace of the world permanently established by such movements as this one inaugurated by the Czar, for the most we can hope from the conference at The Hague will be a possible limitation of armaments and the adoption of more humane rules of warfare, with perhaps a consideration of easier means of arbitration. Movements for the abolishment of war, and for the substitution of peaceful settlement of differences, must come from the PEOPLE and not from the heads of great armies, who really believe in war when there is anything to be gained by it. The common people, the working people, the great middle classes, those who make the pith and marrow of the nation, must be taught to hate war and to see its wickedness and unrighteousness. They must be brought to feel that it is never right and never justifiable and destructive of their best interests, and as soon as the mass of the people decide to have peace it will come, and come to stay. The main value of such a movement as this Czar's Conference is its educative effect, its arousal of moral sentiment, its unconscious influence upon people everywhere. When it is all over, and the delegates have gone home, we shall find that public sentiment will have been profoundly affected, and this will make it, undoubtedly, a shining milestone in the progress of this great cause, even apart from the direct results accomplished.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

WE are sorry to present the Czar of Russia in such military costume, but it must be remembered that this man, who has called the great nations of the earth together to consider some plan for reducing the armaments of Europe, is the greatest military captain in the world. He controls and directs the largest army in existence. It is a notable fact that in recent years some of the most remarkable words in favor of peace have come from the lips of war-veterans, and now the greatest disarmament conference ever held is called together by the ruler who marshals the greatest army.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

The annual Northfield Student Conference will be held at East Northfield, Mass., from Sixth month 30th to Seventh month 9th. For thirteen years students from colleges all over the country have gathered at Northfield for the purpose of meeting in fellowship and for deepening their Christian life. Through it the Christian Associations in our colleges have been developed, and through it thousands of students have received renewed spiritual experience. It has been the cause of a great impetus in student Bible study, and has produced a most marked uprising in our institutions of learning for aggressive missionary work. It is, moreover, the parent of many similar gatherings in various parts of the world. The coming session promises to be as interesting and instructive as any of the preceding. The following are some of the speakers who are expected to be present: William H. F. Faunce, D.D., of New York city; A. F. Schauffler, D.D., of New York city; Dean George Hodges, D.D., of Cambridge, Mass.; Robert E. Speer; R. P. Wilder, representatives of the British College Christian Union and of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union of Great Britain, are expected. John R. Mott will return from his European tour in time to be present at the Conference.

D. A. Davy, of 3 West Twenty-ninth Street, New York city, the treasurer, is prepared to give any information that may be desired by those who are looking forward to attending the Conference.

The decadence of religion and worship in rural communities has been forcibly illustrated in a recent proclamation by Governor Rollins, of New Hampshire, in which proclamation he calls upon the people of his State to observe a special fast-day for considering the condition of religion in the country districts. In it he says: "There are towns where no church bell sends forth its solemn call from January to January; there are villages where children grow to manhood unchristened; there are communities where the dead are laid away without the benison of the name of the Christ, and where marriages are solemnized only by justices of the peace." "The decline of the Christian religion, particularly in our rural communities, is a marked feature of the times, and steps should be taken to remedy it." Whatever may be thought of Governor Rollins's method of meeting the deplorable state of affairs depicted by him, it is an undoubted fact that he has to deal with a very actual condition, which prevails not alone in his own section, but all too generally throughout the whole country.

It is refreshing to read in the "Presbyterian," of Philadelphia, these words of harmony and peace:

"The time may not be ripe for the union of the Northern and Southern Presbyterian Churches, but 'The Presbyterian' is in favor of it at the earliest possible moment. We believe it is for the interest of all sections of the country that it be consummated. There are obstacles to be removed, but God can overcome them in His own good time and way. We would not force action, but would have our church always show itself ready to meet our brethren of the South more than half way in movements looking toward Presbyterian unification. The overwhelming sentiment among Northern Presbyterians is favorable to the much-to-be-desired consummation, but our overtures in the past have not received the encouragement expected, and it may be best to move slowly. God is bringing about more cordial relations, and sooner or later He will effect, in our judgment, organic union to His praise and the good of His cause at home and abroad."

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE SOLDIER'S TEMPTATIONS.

BY ISAAC T. GIBSON.

San Antonio, Texas, boasts of the second largest and finest military post in the Union. I live on one of the trolley lines connecting the post and city, and often come in contact with the soldiers. I hear it said that when sober, they are more courteous and respectful than the citizen, as many of them still bear the marks of home refinement.

Two of the most conspicuous buildings of the city, and in fair view of the post, are immense breweries, which have saloons at every possible point to be maintained, to excite and gratify thirst, and these in addition to the post canteen. At night the soldiers congregate in the red light district, and when very numerous the officers at the post are appealed to to come and corral them. The principal offenders are fined and restrained a few days and then another round.

Here are thousands of ministers and church members who lament over this state of things, yet from year to year, by their votes, endorse and perpetuate this moral ruin and soul destruction. I here repeat some of the remarks made to me one night on a car by a young soldier as he was going, with many others, to the city: "At home I am a church member, a Christian. I have not been to church in two years. A soldier has no business at church. A man cannot live a Christian life and be a soldier. There is not one in a hundred who does not every three or four days get on a drunk. If a soldier should attempt to live a moral life he would be tormented to death by the baser sort. The only way to do is to go along with them. If my father knew that I was living the life I am he would go wild."

Those are the best Christians who are more careful to reform themselves than to censure others.—Fuller.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE SCOPE OF SPIRITUAL KNOWLEDGE.

BY BISHOP H. W. WARREN.

There being spiritual realms constituting the most stable realities in the universe, and there being spiritual faculties in man to perceive these realities, we are anxious to know the range of this knowledge.

Separate departments in men do not greatly overlap. The ear, not the sense of smell, takes in Mozart's requiem. Mathematics have a fascination for one kind of faculties, "Helen's brow" for another. Separate departments, also, have their own distinctive vocabularies. The scientific lover does not allude to the dainty blush of his entrancer in scientific terms. At least he does not but once.

God's emblem, the sunlight, is outpoured with many potencies. The leaves absorb them and reflect the green; the iris, the purple; the rose, the red; the cardinal flower, the scarlet. Each according to its nature.

The outpouring of God is by myriads of potencies. Newton perceives the mathematics, Titian the glory of color, Galileo the immensities, Beale the infinitesimals, Shakespeare the poetry, John the spirituality. And every one is equally entitled to credence for what he knows in his own department, but not in the department of another. The men of spiritual consciousness may follow step by step the undeniable premises and rightly drawn conclusions of the logician, and at the end say, "I know it is not so." The mathematician has equal disregard of the assertions of the poet. Let the shoemaker stick to his last.

The faith faculty is as really a source of reliable knowledge as the mathematical faculty, and by its exercise we receive knowledge ten times as often as by the mathematical faculty.

Since knowledge of spiritual things is reliable, what is the scope of that knowledge?

First: It knows that God is. The possibility of this knowledge is the basis of the exhortation "Know the Lord." It is sure. "I know that my Redeemer liveth." "We believe and are sure that Thou art the Christ." It is so sure that it powerfully influences life. "For this cause I suffer all things, for I know whom I have believed."

This surety of knowledge is most natural and to be expected. God is one personality. Man is another. Two personalities naturally find ways of communication—especially if congenial, and mutually desiring it. The pure in heart shall see God, for they are congenial. He that panteth after God as the heart panteth after the water brooks is met by an equal desire on the part of God to find him. The Good Shepherd seeks even the one lost sheep more than all the ninety and nine that went not astray.

Does the fond mother try to develop in her child a recognition of her name and nature by saying "mamma" in its ear a thousand times, hoping that heart may feel and lips may utter what that name signifies? So God sends His Spirit to cry in our hearts, "Abba, Father," hoping that we will utter that name ourselves; and let Him put infinite sweetness into the utterance.

Two congenial personalities can commune. If they are not congenial, they can be made so, and the fact be duly certificated and credentialled. "The Spirit beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God." And because we are sons God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into our hearts crying, Abba, Father.

Second: One knows that God is the remunerator of them that diligently seek Him. After this statement in Heb. 11: 6, the whole chapter teems with a recital of the greatest deeds ever wrought, all done by the help of the remuneration that God gave to the diligent seekers. It is a roll call of heroes so long and great that all the rest of the world in all the centuries cannot make its equal. There is no conceivable blessing that is not included in the catalogue. It is simply a summary of the fulfilment of a multitude of promises scattered through all the pages of the Holy Scriptures from the first time God came to commune with His children in the breeze of evening and blessed them. In Isaiah 58: 8-14, we find every symbol of good—springs of water, food, sunlight, delight in the Lord and glory of God, used as an alphabet to spell out the language of promised blessings that shall flow from a just recognition of right relations between God and man, and a right performance of duties.

Who may have this spiritual life? Not every man can become a poet, mathematician, artist or astronomer. Do these limits of lower knowledge apply with greater force to the highest? By no means. Any man, at any time, anywhere, may know God. There are certain conditions to be met, as there are in any other department, even farming or shoemaking. Let there be desire to know, moral affinity, opportunity, time, and a seeking for this wisdom as men seek silver and search for hid treasure, and they shall find the knowledge of God. Two such similar personalities, so desiring communion, will find it.

But, as already said, departments are somewhat distinct. A musician, loving harmony, is not necessarily a promoter of life's amenities. A man wise in the law is not, therefore, honest in its application to himself or his client. A good Christian is not, consequently, a good doctor. There is a tendency in the perfection of this highest capability of man to exalt every lower faculty; moral excellence renders easier the perception of every intellectual truth; but we are still left to develop every faculty by appropriate means.

This world has been made a kindergarten and object lesson to call out every capacity of our being. Its functions are not to be abrogated. Nay, they will better serve their purpose when we have clear vision of what is their real design.

There may be special inspiration of various faculties for particular purposes, as Bezaleel to devise cunning works, or Elisha to foretell Ahab's death, but the fact that every man is not so inspired is proof that these are exceptional cases for extraordinary purposes, and that men are left to work out strength, wisdom and salvation under ordinary conditions.

Because a man really knows God he has no right to expect to be exempt from toil and study to acquire other knowledge, or from the operation of the laws of nature—from disease or death. It took Moses forty years of sheep-tending to learn his lesson of meekness. With a single exception, all men have died, even our great Exemplar, who was the life itself.

The true scope of spiritual knowledge is to know God, His personal relation to the individual soul and the spiritual significance of material things. This knowledge is received by spiritual faculties into consciousness. It is the most sure of all knowledge, and most potential in ruling, heightening and glorifying life.

University Park, Col.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

CHARACTER AND LIFE.

BY BYRON J. REES.

An act reveals a character. A man makes a self-confession every time he performs any deed. It is impossible for us to speak a word or write a sentence or cast a glance without betraying what we are and on what plane our lives move.

A well-dressed gentleman with a slight, almost imperceptible, hesitation in the movement of one foot, passed a window at which sat a minister and a doctor in conversation.

"Doctor," said the preacher, "that man once had a ball and chain to drag after him."

"Nonsense; that is the Mayor!"

Subsequent discoveries, however, proved that the minister was correct in his opinion. The man was once an imprisoned criminal. The halting step betrayed him.

How often we see the lameness in literature. "Walpurgis Nacht" is a halting step in Goethe's "Faust," and the club-foot of Lord Byron is not nearly so repulsive as some passages in "Don Juan." The style of Gibbon is elevated and effective until he deals with Christianity; then his aerial wings break and he creeps upon the ground on "all fours," seeking garbage among the annals of the church and shutting his eyes to all the good and great in Christian history. A man's moral nature betrays itself in his works.

The little things disclose our characters. The way a man shakes hands is frequently a witness for or against his trustworthiness. The woman who scolds can never deceive a nice and careful ear with a "company voice." The key in which a laugh is pitched is an index to the secret life. Whether one titters, giggles or haw-haws, the discriminating observer knows whether nobleness or baseness is behind the screen.

If a person is coarse and low by nature no amount of affectation will make goodness and beauty seem of kin to him. He may profess to love the beautiful, the true and the good, and, parrot-like, mimic the notes of the nightingale, but there will be somewhere an unworthy break in the voice which will seem to say, "I talked smut, but have hidden it." Poor, silly ostrich, burying his head in the sand—he has not deceived us.

Money, fame, the hand-clappings of great audiences, the favor of millions of voters,—all these things may be yours, but they will not buy your way into the circle of God's "Four Hundred." No external tag is honored at the door, and all who enter glow with an inner whiteness.

Intellect cannot weigh against the heart. A heart without much learning may be lovable and precious as attar of roses, but a brain without heart is monstrous. You may read your Shakespeare with avidity and wear a name familiar to all the literati, and yet morally smack of the gutter.

Notwithstanding our inconsistent practice, neither money nor social standing are infallible indicators of character worthy of reverence and homage. Often the Senator, when measured in the scale of manliness, is beneath the boy who sells him his paper, and frequently the woman who fries batter-cakes in the kitchen knows more of the God of George Fox and Robert Barclay than her employer, the Bishop, in his study. You may wear broadcloth or silk, senior's gown or professor's hood, fashion's purple or society's fine linen, and yet so far as spirit-nature is concerned be only fit consort for brass-browed hussys from grimy alleys, or low-browed gamblers at three-card monte.

The Christian who is pure-hearted and spirit-filled cannot hide his moral status any more than can the crasser character. The sparkle of the eye, the clasp of the hand, the tone of sympathy in the voice, the tenderness of spirit in prayer,—all these proclaim "the upper room believer."

The man who rode in quest of the face of Christ, passing by wood and town and lake and castle, refusing all the calls of comfort and pleasure, and came face to face with the Nazarene, will not easily be led to dote on home-made men of cloth and excelsior. He has seen the King. Who that has seen a genuine Massachusetts sunset would choose a painted canvas instead? And who that gazed into the clear liquid eyes of the Christ of God, and walked beside Him in the way, would willingly prostitute himself to a baser and more ignoble life?

Westport, Mass.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

NOT LOST.

BERTHA C. THORNE.

A sunset flushed, and faded;
A wild flower blossomed, and died;
In the moonlight still
The warbling trill
Of a nightingale floated wide.

An artist saw, and the glory
In fadeless color was wrought;
In a poet's soul
The perfect whole
Was chained in immortal thought.

THE EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE.

As previously announced the National Educational Conference of Friends will be held at Providence, R. I., beginning at 2 o'clock on Sixth month 28th, and ending at noon on Sixth month 30th. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions, and it is proposed to terminate the proceedings with a clambake.

The first session will contain an address of welcome by Augustine Jones, Principal of Friends' School; an address by Elisha Dyer, Governor of Rhode Island, and descendent of the Quaker martyr, Mary Dyer; the official address of the President of the Association, Isaac Sharpless, of Haverford College, and a report of the Secretary, Rosa E. Lewis, of Penn College, giving the development in educational matters in all the Yearly Meetings since 1894.

In succeeding sessions papers are promised by the Presidents of Friends' University, Kansas; of Penn College, Iowa, and of Guilford College, N. C.; by James Wood, of New York; George A. Barton, of Bryn Mawr College, Pa.; C. H. Hodgkin, of Earlham College, Indiana; Robert L. Kelly, of the University of Chicago; Thomas K. Brown, of Westtown, Pa.; Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore; Rufus M. Jones, of THE AMERICAN FRIEND, and others not yet ready to be announced. The presence and participation of two English Friends seems also assured, and many other Friends will be present to join in the discussions.

A complete program will be issued later.

An attempt will be made to procure special railroad rates, though this may fail.

Friends' School will entertain all visitors at a charge of $1 per day.

Some of the yearly meetings have appointed delegates, and the presence of representatives from all of them—except, perhaps, those on the Pacific coast—is apparently assured.

Under these circumstances, it cannot fail to be profitable to all Friends to attend, and by their presence and participation to produce a great educational revival, whose influence will reach the country over.

ISAAC SHARPLESS.

It is an old, dirty, superstitious custom to kiss the Bible on taking an oath. It makes a fetich of the book and compels many to express a respect for it which they do not cherish in their hearts. Our Christian feeling towards the Bible prevents us putting it to that kind of use. It is only in the case of a superstitious person that an oath taken with Bible in hand has greater solemnity or binding power than a declaration made with lifted hand, or without lifted hand, for that matter. It is possible that some might feel as if religion were dishonored and the nation dechristianized if the Bible were taken out of the court-room. Certainly it appeals to the religious feeling of all of us when we see the Chief Magistrate of the land take the oath of office with a Bible in his hand. But in spite of this, we should be glad to see the kissing of the Bible in our courts in a perfunctory and irreligious way put a stop to. There is no talismanic power in the book to make a liar truthful.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE HOLY SPIRIT AND HIS WORK.

BY JOHN PENNINGTON.

We are living, as all agree, in the dispensation of the Holy Spirit. He is, according to the Scripture, the appointed and effective agent in the conviction, conversion, sanctification, guidance and comfort of the children of men. "In the moral and religious world," says Upham, "all good is from Him, and beyond the reach of His influence and irrespective of His presence and operations, there is not and cannot be anything which is valuable or desirable."

He is a person, and as such not only came to manifest His personality, but to execute a divinely appointed work. Christ's coming has for its object the restoration of man to a moral condition, essentially the same he was in before the fall—not alone to secure his forgiveness, but to make him holy and to make him so by the living operation of God in the soul.

The presence and power of the Spirit in the believer's heart is known by the results of such divine presence and agency. The prophet, in foretelling the coming of Christ, declares that "He is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' sope" and "He shall purify the sons of Levi." John points to Jesus as the baptizer with the Holy Ghost and fire, who would "burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire."

This was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, when "they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." Peter calls attention to Joel's prophecy, and says, "This is that."

After the Gentiles had received the Holy Spirit, Peter rehearses the matter to "them that were of the circumcision," saying, "As I began to speak the Holy Ghost fell on them as on us at the beginning," and this was the fulfillment of the word of the Lord, "John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost." Later, when Paul and Barnabas and certain others of them were contending for the faith at Jerusalem, Peter again declares that God had given the Gentiles the Holy Spirit, "and put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith."

All Scripture and all experience emphasize the work wrought by the Holy Spirit in the heart of man. Holiness is not only imputed through the merits of Jesus' death, but imparted by the divine energy of the Spirit of God. The abiding presence of the spirit and the inwrought work of the Spirit are inseparable.

Whoever has "Him" has "it," and whoever claims to have "it" and not "Him" is under a delusion.

Regeneration is an instantaneous change wrought by the Holy Spirit, whereby "old things pass away and all things become new." Sanctification is likewise a sudden, sensible experience, wrought by the Holy Spirit in the soul, whereby the "old man" is slain, and the Holy Spirit enters his cleansed temple to abide, as an "unquenchable fire," perpetuating the state of holiness, "it," and as the comforter

"Him," "taking of the things of Christ and showing them to us."

Praise the Lord for a personal, experimental salvation, wrought and maintained by a Person, the Holy Spirit.

Providence, R. I.

HISTORY OF WHITEWATER MONTHLY MEETING OF FRIENDS, RICHMOND, IND.

The first settlement of Friends in the limits of what was afterwards Indiana Yearly Meeting, was at Waynesville, Warren County, Ohio, in the latter part of 1799. These few settlers were visited in the year 1800 by Joseph Cloud, a minister from Cane Creek Monthly Meeting, N. C., who, in holding meetings through Kentucky, heard of them and came and held several meetings with them. These are supposed to be the first Friends' meetings held in the limits of the future Indiana Yearly Meeting.

In the year 1801 these Friends began holding religious meetings amongst themselves, there being twelve families—twenty-four parents and fifty-seven children—all living within a mile of the place of meeting. The membership of many of these, and of others that came soon after, was sent to Westland Monthly Meeting, in Southwestern, Pa., about three hundred miles away, but then their nearest monthly meeting. The following winter they requested that meeting to establish for them an authorized Friends' meeting for worship, which was done in the latter part of the year 1802, and the meeting named Miami. And Tenth month 13th, 1803, Miami Preparative and Monthly Meetings were established by Westland Monthly and Redstone Quarterly Meetings. These meetings, located along the Monongahela River, thirty or forty miles south of Pittsburg, were branches of Baltimore Yearly Meeting. The eastern boundary of Miami Monthly Meeting was the Hocking River, the southern the Ohio River. It was not limited in other directions.

The rapid settlement of Friends in the valleys of the Miami is shown by the fact that in three years, from the middle of 1804 to the middle of 1807, there were received at Miami Monthly Meeting 367 removal certificates, conveying to that meeting the membership of 1697 persons. These did not all settle in the vicinity of Waynesville, nor even in Warren County, but were scattered through what is now Clinton, Highland, Greene, Montgomery, Miami and Preble Counties, in Ohio, and Wayne County, Indiana. As a consequence, the establishment of many other meetings was soon required for their accommodation. Accordingly, Twelfth month 1st, 1806, Redstone Quarterly Meeting approved requests which had been sanctioned and recommended by Miami Monthly Meeting as follows: Four meetings for worship and preparatives, called respectively West Branch, Elk Creek, Caesar's Creek and Centre, and two monthly meetings, one called Centre, to be held alternately at Centre, Clinton County, Ohio, about twelve miles east of Waynesville, and at Caesar's Creek, on a branch of the Little Miami River, of that name, and the other named West Branch, about forty miles north of Waynesville, near the west branch of the Great Miami River, in the southern part of Miami County, Ohio. The meeting at West Branch was the first to be opened in the First month, 1807. This monthly meeting was to embrace all the territory west of the Great Miami, except the settlement of Friends on Elk Creek, now in Preble County, Ohio. These Friends were organized into Elk Monthly Meeting in the latter part of 1809 by Miami Quarterly Meeting, which had itself been established as a quarterly meeting in the first part of the year 1809.

An indulged meeting was granted, the Friends settled on the Whitewater River, Indiana, by West Branch Monthly Meeting in 1807—Whitewater Meeting for worship First and Fourth days, and

and a monthly meeting in Eighth month, 1819. This meeting was located a few miles southwest of Liberty, Ind. The name of the monthly meeting was changed to Salem about 1834, which name it still retains.

An indulged meeting for worship was granted the Friends in the upper settlement on the branches of Whitewater, under the name of New Garden, in Eleventh month, 1811. In the spring of 1814 this became an established meeting for worship, and a preparative and a monthly meeting in Third month, 1815.

Early in 1810 the three monthly meetings—West Branch, Whitewater and Elk—united in a request for a quarterly meeting west of the Great Miami River. The result of this request was the establishment of West Branch Quarterly Meeting by Baltimore Yearly Meeting, on the recommendation of Miami Quarterly Meeting, and its opening at West Branch, Miami Whitewater Monthly Meeting on the last Seventh-day of the month, with preparative the Fourth day preceding monthly meeting, were established in the Ninth month, 1809, by West Branch Monthly and Miami Quarterly Meetings. The monthly meeting was opened Ninth month 30th, 1809, a committee from the quarterly meeting being present. It was the fourth monthly meeting established in the future Indiana Yearly Meeting. At first the meeting for worship, the preparative and the monthly meetings were composed of the same members; but, as the adjacent country was fast settling up, other meetings subordinate to the monthly meetings were soon asked for and established.

In Tenth month, 1809, the Friends on Silver Creek now in Union County, Ind., requested an indulged meeting for worship, which was granted after due investigation. This became an established meeting for worship, and a preparative in Twelfth month, 1814, County, Ohio, Sixth month 13th, 1812. Its sessions alternated between West Branch and Whitewater the next four and a half years.

At their request an indulged meeting for worship was granted the Friends settled on Lick Creek, Orange County, Ind., Eighth month 29th, 1812, by Whitewater Monthly Meeting. This was followed by the establishment of Lick Creek Meeting for worship, preparative and monthly meeting, in Ninth month, 1813. In the spring of 1814 an indulged meeting at Blue River, Washington County, Ind., became an established meeting for worship and a preparative, and in Seventh month, 1815, Blue River Monthly Meeting.

In the year 1814, Whitewater Monthly Meeting granted indulged meetings to Friends in these four settlements, viz: Elkhorn Creek, middle fork of Whitewater, west fork of Whitewater and Nolan's fork of Whitewater.

The one on Elkhorn was opened in the First month, 1814, at first once in two weeks, but before the end of the year it was held twice a week. It became an established meeting and a preparative under the name of Orange in Tenth month, 1819.

The meeting on Middle Fork was opened in the Second month, 1814, and continued until 1820, when it was laid down for want of unity among its members. The meeting on West Fork, called Chester, was also opened in the Second month, 1814, and became an established meeting for worship and a preparative meeting in Seventh month, 1818, and a monthly meeting in Fourth month, 1823. The meeting on Nolan's Fork, called West Grove, was set up in Eighth month, 1814, and in Third month, 1816, became an established meeting and preparative, and a monthly meeting in Second month, 1818.

In Second month, 1816, "the Friends in the lower settlement on the west of Greensfork, near the boundary," were granted an indulged meeting, with the name of West Union. This became an established meeting and preparative in Sixth month, 1817, and a part of West Grove Monthly Meeting in Second month, 1818. Subsequently it formed a part of Milford, now Dublin Monthly Meeting, but was laid down many years ago.

In Sixth month, 1817, Whitewater Monthly Meeting granted an indulged meeting to the Friends on Greensfork. The request for this meeting came through West Grove preparative. It is probably the present Fairfield, and its further development belongs to West Grove Monthly Meeting.

In 1816 a division of West Branch Quarterly Meeting was agreed upon, and Whitewater Quarterly Meeting was established with the sanction of Ohio Yearly Meeting, which had itself been set off from Baltimore Yearly Meeting in 1812. Whitewater Quarterly Meeting, composed of Whitewater and New Garden Monthly Meetings, was opened at Richmond, Ind., First month 4th, 1817. This left six monthly meetings belonging to the older quarterly meeting, namely: West Branch, Mill Creek and Union in Miami County, and Elk in Preble County, Ohio, and Lick Creek and Blue River in southern Indiana. These last two had, however, already applied for a quarterly meeting of their own to be called Blue River, which, in due course, was granted by Ohio Yearly Meeting, in 1818, and opened early in 1819. It is interesting to note that this quarterly meeting formed a nucleus for the development of those meetings which afterwards formed Western Yearly Meeting.

At the opening of the new quarterly meeting at Richmond, Ind., Whitewater Monthly Meeting was composed of seven subordinate meetings, namely, the three preparative, Whitewater, Silver Creek and West Grove, and the four meetings of worship—West Union, which became a preparative in 1817; Chester, in 1818; Elkhorn, under the name of Orange, in 1819, and Middle Fork, which was laid down in 1820.

Another meeting, called Smyrna, was, however, soon after set up about a mile east of Middle Fork, and became an established meeting and a preparative in Tenth month, 1825. It was laid down First month 21st, 1892. Also, in Ninth month, 1819, a meeting was indulged at the upper settlement of the Middle Fork, of Whitewater, which became an established and preparative meeting in Eighth month, 1821, by the name of Woodbury. It became a part of Chester Monthly Meeting in 1823, and ceased to be a meeting many years ago.

The setting off of West Grove, Silver Creek and Chester as monthly meetings, as stated above, greatly restricted the limits of Whitewater Monthly Meeting, and left only three of its subordinate meetings. The discontinuance of Middle Fork, and the establishment of Smyrna, left the number the same, all preparative meetings, after 1825. A meeting called Ridge, three miles east of Whitewater, indulged in 1820, became an established meeting for worship in Ninth month, 1822, and continued until the separation, in 1828.

Richmond preparative meeting, set off from Whitewater Meeting, was established in First month, 1865, by Whitewater Monthly and Quarterly Meetings.

East Main Street Preparative Meeting, with its membership taken from both Whitewater and Richmond Meetings, was established by Whitewater Monthly and Quarterly Meetings, Sixth month 20th, 1878.

On the report of a joint committee of West Grove and Whitewater Monthly Meetings, the latter approved the establishment of a meeting for worship at Centerville, Ind., First month 24th, 1884. This was sanctioned by Whitewater Quarterly Meeting two months later, and the meeting became soon after a part of West Grove Monthly Meeting, to which it still belongs.

In the last few years two meetings for worship have been set up and materially aided by Whitewater Monthly Meeting—one at New Westville, Preble Co., Ohio, about five miles east of Richmond, in Fifth month, 1896, and the other near Braffettsville, Darke County, Ohio, twelve or fifteen miles northeast of Richmond, in Fifth month, 1897. Also, Whitewater Quarterly Meeting, lately discontinued, two small monthly meetings in Florida—one at Archer, and the other at Lake Kerr, Florida. Their small membership has been attached to Whitewater Monthly Meeting.

The present membership of each of these meetings, as given last year, is as follows: Whitewater, 158; Orange, 121; Richmond, 480; East Main Street, 487; New Westville, 65; Providence, near Braffettsville, 49; Florida meetings, 50, making the number of members belonging to the monthly meeting, 1,410.

Note.—The term indulged, found frequently in the records of Whitewater and other monthly meetings, and used above, seems to have been applied to such meetings as were allowed or sanctioned by the monthly meeting only. When the monthly meeting became satisfied that the Friends attending such meeting had the "capability to hold the meeting to the honor of truth," it signified that judgment to the quarterly meeting; and when it was also satisfied of the same, after due consideration or investigation, the meeting was opened and considered as an established meeting. This generally took place at the request of the meeting itself. A similar process was necessary in the establishment of a preparative and monthly meeting.

As attention to dates in the foregoing will enable it to be known what quarterly meeting took part in the establishment of the meetings mentioned above, the statement of that fact has not been thought necessary in all instances.

The principal records of Whitewater Monthly Meeting are embraced in the following twenty books. These books are substantial, leather-bound volumes, averaging $8\frac{3}{4}$ by $13\frac{1}{2}$ inches in size, and about 460 pages:

1. Eight books of the minutes and proceedings of men's meeting, making 3,720 pages of record.
2. Six books of the minutes and proceedings of women's meeting, making 2,600 pages of record.
3. Two books of family record of about 5,000 names of members, with dates of birth, death, etc.
4. Two books of record of the marriage certificates of 312 marriages under sanction of Whitewater Monthly Meeting.
5. Two books of records of removal certificates issued and sent away by the monthly meeting for about 3,000 persons removed out of its limits.

The books of the above list, not in present use, are kept deposited in the fireproof vault in Nicholson & Bro.'s book store, in care of Timothy Nicholson, the custodian.

Richmond, Ind.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

A MOUNTAIN LION FOR GUILFORD COLLEGE MUSEUM.

Through the kindness of Mr. Joseph M. Dixon, a member of the first graduating class of Guilford, a mounted mountain lion—Felis Concolor—has just been received for our museum. The specimen is a large one, eight years old, more than seven feet long, with tail about three feet in length, head about four feet high, mouth open and showing strong teeth. It presents a striking appearance in the museum. The College greatly appreciates being remembered in that kind of way. Joseph M. Dixon is a successful lawyer in Missoula, Montana.

The following is the program for Commencement week:

Websterian Oratorical Contest, Fourth month 28th, at 8 p.m.
 Henry Clay Oratorical Contest, Fourth month 29th, at 8 p.m.
 Public Lecture by Prof. Ormand Stone, Virginia University, Fifth month 6th, at 8 p.m. Baccalaureate Sermon, Fifth month 7th, at 11 a.m.—John W. Stagg, Charlotte. Base Ball Game between the Alumni and the College, Fifth month 8th, at 3 p.m. Alumni Address, Fifth month 8th, at 8 p.m.—Frank B. Benbow, Class of '91.
 Commencement Day, Fifth month 9th, 10 a.m. Exercises: Devotional. Orations—"The Virginia Colony," John Woodall Lewis, Greensboro; "England's Colonial Policy," Elizabeth White Coffin, Denison, Texas; "Tennyson's Influence on Religious Thought," W. W. Allen, Greensboro. Conferring of Degrees. Baccalaureate Address, Rufus M. Jones, Haverford College. Alumni Reception, 9 p.m.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA.

On the first of Sixth month, 1854, the first meeting was held in Minneapolis, Minnesota, according to the order of Friends, and was attended by Lindley M. Hoag, then on a casual visit to this part of the country. Among the prominent Friends who visited this "infant church" during the first five years of its existence were Robert and Sarah Lindsey, from England; Thomas and Mary B. Pinkham, of Salem, Ohio; Geo. C. and Delphina E. Mendenhall, from Guilford County, N. C.; Moses H. Beede, of Rhode Island; John L. Eddy, of Ohio; Joseph D. Hoag, William B. Thompson and Elizabeth Bean.

Meetings for worship have been regularly held twice a week since Sixth month, 1861.

A monthly meeting was established in the Sixth month, 1863, and a quarterly meeting in the Tenth month, 1876.

W. W. Wales, a native of North Carolina, came from Indiana in 1851, and was the first Friend to locate here.

A small meeting-house was built in 1860 and used a few months. In 1861 W. A. Thomas, a prominent Friend, of Pennsylvania, presented Friends here with a very desirable lot, on which a comfortable structure was erected and occupied until the Twelfth month, 1895, at which time the meeting moved into the new "Friends' Meeting-House," a picture of which appeared last week.

A few names have been added to our membership during the past ten years, but our numbers have been lessened by death and changing location in pursuit of health and business interests.

We have two ministers in this quarterly meeting. One, however, has been out of the State nearly a year.

William Penn Angell spent the past seven years with us very acceptably, but feeling that duty pointed to Muncie, Indiana, he and his family removed there the first of Third month last, very much to our regret. Many feel solicitous for the welfare of our little meeting here in the Northwest, and we are asking God to "have us in remembrance."

Our hearts have frequently been refreshed as Friends, passing to and fro, have stopped a day or two with us, for we are always glad to welcome the Lord's servants, whether they be ministers or laymen.

Presbyterianism is, and ought to be, a positive protest by asserting that the only priesthood on earth is the priesthood of every true believer; a priesthood in which the humblest layman shares equally with the highest clergyman. The truth it has to witness to is that every true believer, who is united by faith to the one High Priest is the only priest on earth; that ministers are not priests of the Congregation, but merely office-bearers and instructors in it, and they derive their functions from God in no other sense than the humblest layman derives his functions."—Shairp.

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson VII.

Fifth month 14, 1899

CHRIST BETRAYED AND ARRESTED.

John 18: 1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.—He is despised and rejected of men. Isa. 53: 3.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 8.—The Betrayer. Matt. 26: 14-25.

Third-day, Fifth mo. 9.—Gethsemane. Luke 22: 39-46.

Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 10.—Christ Betrayed and Arrested. John 18: 1-14.

Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 11.—Betrayed with a Kiss. Matt. 26: 47-56.

Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 12.—The Traitor's End. Matt. 27: 3-10.

Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 13.—Foreknown. John 6: 60-71.

First-day, Fifth mo. 14. Reward of Iniquity. Acts 1: 15-26.

All the evangelists give an account of the betrayal, and each of these should be read. John, as usual, when he describes that which is contained in the other Gospels, gives incidents and particulars which are not elsewhere noted.

The parallel accounts are Mat. 26: 30-72; Mark 14: 26-72; Luke 22: 39-65.

1. "Went forth." It is not clear from what place he went out; on the whole it seems probable it was from the room. "Cedron." "Kidron." Revised Version. The bed of this winter stream, for it was dry in summer, was east of Jerusalem, and between the city and the Mount of Olives. Compare 2 Sam. 15: 23; 2 Kings 23: 6. "Garden." Literally, an orchard—a plantation of trees. Matthew and Mark give the name, Gethsemane, the "oil press." This would imply that it was an olive orchard. The olive trees now standing on the site were very likely planted by pilgrims. All the trees round the city, history tells us, were cut down during the terrible siege of Jerusalem by Titus. The site now pointed out as that of the garden is a traditional one, and doubtful.

2. "Ofentimes." It was comparatively retired and yet near to the city. There is no reason whatever to suppose that Christ went for the purpose of concealment, for "Judas knew the place." Compare John 8: 1; Luke 21: 37; 22: 39.

3. "Band of soldiers." How many men there were is not certain. "Officers," etc. From the Sanhedrin; probably some of the Temple police. Compare Luke 22: 4, 52. There were also some of the chief priests. (Luke 22: 52.) There were thus Roman soldiers, Jewish officials and chief priests.

4. "Jesus—knowing." Fully conscious of all the things that were coming upon Him. "Went forth." From what? Perhaps from the garden, perhaps from the shadow, perhaps from the group of disciples—it might be any one of these. "Whom seek ye?" It was the announcement of His presence. Though it was the time of full moon, they had come out with lanterns as if expecting He would seek some cave, or some thicket, in which to conceal himself. They brought a band of soldiers to put down any possible rising of His adherents or of the people. He came forth to meet them alone; His "hour" had come.

5. "Jesus the Nazarene." This is the literal expression; it conveyed an idea of contempt, whereas "of Nazareth" was a simple descriptive expression.

The hour for His disciples had not come; no good would result from their arrest; and so, taking the answer given Him, Christ as much as says, You say you seek Me; here I am; but let these go. The disciples appear to have felt that these words were a warrant for flight.

9. "That the saying," etc. (John 17: 12.) It does not follow that the interpretation given by John is the only one. There is a spiritual one likewise. There was also doubtless the purpose of sparing them from the temptation to which Peter yielded.

10. "Simon Peter therefore." Because he "saw what would follow." (Luke 22: 49.) "Sword." Compare Luke 22: 36, 38. This act of Peter is mentioned by all of the evangelists, but only John gives His name, and that of the servant. It has been thought that the other evangelists, writing much nearer the events, omitted the name of Peter so that Peter should not be brought to the notice of the Jewish authorities. John, writing long after the death of Peter and of the destruction of Jerusalem, had need of no such caution. It was forbidden to carry a weapon on feast day, and the fact that Peter had a sword would seem to indicate that the Last Supper was not the Passover Supper. John does not mention the healing of the servant, though, with Luke, he notes that it was the right ear which Peter cut off. John was acquainted with the High Priest (verse 16), and so might very well know the name of his "bond-servant."

Had not the servant been healed, it is hardly likely that Peter would have escaped arrest. Peter's action was wholly in accord with his own natural disposition, but it was wholly contrary to the will of Christ and to the purpose of His coming. It would make others think that the kingdom of Christ was an outward and earthly kingdom, instead of a spiritual one. It put Him and the whole company in the position of resisting the Roman government, which would be equivalent to treason.

11. "Put up." Literally, cast thy sword into its sheath. Note the words reported in Matthew: "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword," which "Judas also stood with them." Compare Luke 22: 47. Note the severe simplicity of the story, which implies so much.

6. It would seem that the majesty and dignity of our Lord was sufficient to produce the effect described. It shows, also, that He allowed himself to be seized. Compare John 7: 46; Matt. 26: 53.

8. "Let these go their way." It would seem likely that the disciples had gathered close to their Master. is the statement of a general truth, that those who use violence themselves are the ones most likely to suffer from violence. "The cup," etc. John alone gives these words. The phraseology is not uncommon. Compare Ezek. 23: 31-34; Ps. 75: 8; see also the accounts of the Passion, Matt. 26: 39; Mark 14: 36; Luke 22: 42. "Which my Father hath given me." The cup was the suffering which it was necessary for Him to undergo in order to be a perfect Saviour. "The cup was not given as a sign of the Father's displeasure, but as a means to a higher spiritual end." The cup was accepted willingly; it was drunk willingly. He was made "perfect through suffering," that He might become "unto all them that obey him the author of eternal salvation." (Heb. 5: 9.)

12. It is likely that Peter's act confirmed the reports which the chief priests had made to the Romans, and hence the binding. Compare Matt. 26: 55.

13. "Annas." Though not High Priest at this time, he was a man of much influence. Five of his sons and a son-in-law had held the office. This examination before Annas is given by John only.

14. "Now Caiaphas," etc. This is given probably to show what sort of justice might be expected from him. See John 11: 50-52.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. Force begets force.
2. Christ suffered willingly.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FIFTH MONTH 14th, 1899.

GOD'S COVENANT AND OURS.

Ps. 105: 1-10.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 8.—With Abram. Gen. 15: 1-21.

Third-day, Fifth mo. 9.—With Moses. Ex. 6: 1-8.

Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 10.—With David. 2 Sam. 7: 1-29.

Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 11.—If Ye Will Obey. Ex. 19: 1-8.

Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 12.—If Ye Abide in Me. John 15: 7-10.

Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 13.—The Eternal Covenant. Heb. 8: 6-13; 13: 20, 21.

Covenant—from con, with, and venire, to come—simply means to come together, to agree about a matter generally, with a promise of continuance for specified time in such agreement. No man can be a Christian who does not "come together" with God, i.e., come to an agreement. He has come a long way to meet us, and now asks us to meet Him in a covenant of repentance and obedience, nay, more,—in a blessed marriage covenant—to be His forever. The topic brings up again the question of our Christian Endeavor pledge as our sacred covenant with God to be loyal to Him. What is His part of this covenant? First, He furnishes directions as to our life. "Whatever He would like to have me do" is the fundamental part of this covenant. Next, He is to furnish the strength. "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength" is both a confession of our own weakness and our reliance on Him for help. Then our part of this covenant is entire submission to the will of God as the controlling force in our lives, and full reliance on Him for strength to do that will. Who could claim to be a Christian and do less than that? The only allowable modification is included in the pledge. The words "strive" and "I will make it the rule of my life" allow the possibility of incidental failure with no real severing from the supreme purpose of conformity to the will of God.

But our pledge goes a step further. It recognizes certain duties as universally helpful to the progress of Christian life, and emphasizes them by specially naming them. Five of these are so named—daily prayer, daily Bible reading, loyalty to our own church and its services, presence and participation in the Christian Endeavor prayer meetings, and a response at the monthly consecration meeting. The last two are based on the fundamental principle of loyalty to such organizations as we may be identified with.

It is with reference to these special points that the contention is raised by those who oppose Christian Endeavor, and, strangely enough, extremes meet in this contention and join forces against the movement. Those who are close to the edge of ranterism in the West, and the ultra-conservatives of the East, are united in this opposition and use the same arguments against Christian Endeavor. It is denounced as formal and unspiritual by both parties. Let us, therefore, state once more the reasons for these special clauses in our pledge. Daily prayer and daily Bible reading scarcely need a defence. No argument is urged against them. The difficulty lies rather in our forgetfulness and neglect. Here is where a promise strengthens us. The will is not lacking, but the memory fails, and other pursuits absorb attention. Our pledge is an aid to memory, a spur to our forgetfulness. We often most need prayer when we are least disposed to it. Our pledge recalls us to our duty and our need. The third special injunction as to church loyalty starts the objectors—a class of people whose individualism is abnormally developed, who have "outgrown any church, or all churches," as it is sometimes said, who have never clearly understood the need of a church nor of the conditions under which it must exist; who think the Holy Spirit and their own consciences are quite sufficient without any church government or authority, can, of course, see no good in this clause of our pledge. In frontier life the same people would contend for "squatter sovereignty"; in military life they would be guerillas, and any officer would have a sad time reducing them to order. In any advanced social order they would be grasping monopolists if at the top, or growling anarchists if at the bottom. Now, a church is a harmonious adjustment of people of different capacities, ages and gifts, but with a common faith in Christ and a common object in view. Individualism is co-ordinated with organization. We combine for mutual helpfulness and for co-operation in advancing the Master's cause and kingdom. Individual liberties are abridged for the good of the whole. Unity of spirit and action are maintained at the cost of everything save fundamental truth. How hard it has been for some of us to learn these lessons. The extravagances of some who have been leaders led us far astray. Now it is in order to avoid these and similar errors that our pledge includes this question of church loyalty. The question is not, primarily, whether my church is the best church, but what is my duty to it, seeing that I am connected with it? What is involved in loyalty to an organization? Since organization is necessary for successful Christian work, here is my duty, where I am a member, and I pledge my allegiance thereto.

The writer must frankly confess that most of the objections to this clause that he has heard come from those who are unwilling at heart to do their share of the work of the church. Many are willing to regard the church as a convenience, but not as an organization to which they owe unfaltering allegiance.

The clause as to participation in every meeting raises a new class of objectors. Here, we are told, we are interfering with the liberty of the Spirit, since upon the one hand we insist that none should speak at length, since that robs others of the opportunity, and upon the other, that all should speak, whether so impressed by the Spirit or no. But let us remember that we have abundant scriptural authority for saying that such meetings are to be held, not with the expectation of keeping silence, but with the expectation of giving vocal expression to our thoughts and feelings. The expression is the rule, the silence the exception. For proof of that see the accounts of meetings in the New Testament. For the exception we provide the clause of a "conscientious excuse." Let us note, also, that this matter of speaking in such meetings where a little company are gathered together in a common fellowship is a matter of enlightened Christian consciousness and not a matter of direct, supernatural guidance. To suppose such a guidance necessary is to put a strained, unnatural emphasis upon a simple privilege of speech about matters of religious interest that we do not put upon speech about other matters of common interest. We do not cease to be normal and human simply because we are met together in a religious capacity. We accept the definite scriptural statements about united prayer and praise and exhortation one of another to edification and comfort, and expect the help and guidance of the Spirit of God, consciously or unconsciously, in the fulfillment of such duties.

MISSIONARY NOTES.

"The Baptist Missionary Magazine," in answer to the question, What is the great need of missions? says: "Some say more money, others more men, and some self-support on the part of the native Christians. Our answer is: the raising up of native evangelists endued with mighty power." There is no cause to object to this answer. Great successes in missionary fields in the past have been owing largely to native evangelists. Hosts of churches in apostolic times were evidently started by those who "went everywhere preaching the word." The use of indigenous resources is the problem of every foreign missionary. It is often easier to appeal for more men from home and get them. But it is also true that native forces are slowly awakened and brought into line. We must be patient in this time of preparation, but let all our missionary societies and missionaries pray and work for a mighty awakening and endowment of native forces.

Acknowledgement is hereby made of the receipt of sufficient funds in answer to a note in this column some weeks ago for the opening of a room for young men in Victoria, Mexico, and also for the circulation of the Moody Colportage Library. Doubtless more money will be needed to keep this work going, but an auspicious opening, followed by definite results in reaching some of these young men with the Gospel, will be interesting news to the contributors.

Rev. I. S. Hankins, of Atmakur, India, writes that the preaching of the resurrection of Jesus is the climax of all their messages,—just as in apostolic times. "After relating the resurrection, the preacher with power and effect will often say: 'What one of your gods that you now worship ever rose from the dead? Not one. They have been men and died as all men and saw corruption. But not so with Jesus Christ our Saviour. He arose, He ascended, He is the God-man.' The resurrection is the capstone of our preaching, as well as the corner-stone of belief. Positive preaching like this has a great effect upon the heathen world."

Principal Fairbairn, of Scotland, the eminent scholar, who has just returned from a lecturing tour in India, writes: "Of the achievements of missionaries and their work, of their noble service to India, of the remarkable variety of their activities, and the astonishing efficiency of most of their agencies, I will not trust myself to speak lest I be suspected of falling into extravagance. But I may simply state that the sight of their achievements sends me home a happier and a more hopeful man than when I came."

PHILADELPHIA YEARLY MEETING.

Our report of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting last week omitted the proceedings of the Fifth day. The following is a brief statement of the day's proceedings:

A company of more than 1500 assembled for worship in the Arch Street house at 10 o'clock Fifth-day. After the company settled into silence, prayer was offered by Cyrus Cooper and by Hannah Stratton, of Ohio. Eliza H. Varney, Katharine Stanton, Elisha Sheer and others gave brief exhortations to faithfulness to the revelations of Christ's "law written in the heart." Cyrus W. Harvey, of Kansas, contrasted the system of sacraments and ordinances with the Gospel order as set forth, particularly in the Epistle to the Galatians. In addition to this there was prayer by Joseph S. Elkinton.

At Sixth and Noble Streets Thomas Whitson quoted the text, "The name of the Lord is a strong power," and preached with much clearness. Jonathan E. Rhoads treated of causes of discouragement in individuals and in meetings, and showed that they were often unnecessary and unprofitable.

At Twelfth Street Henry Longstreth revived the language, "Unto the poor the Gospel is preached." Richard H. Thomas dwelt upon the fact that the Gospel is glad tidings unto all who receive it. Anna Votar referred to the mystery of regeneration, saying that only those can understand it who have experienced the great transforming change.

In the afternoon the business sessions were resumed. At Fourth and Arch Streets the reports from the Quarterly Meetings on intoxicants were read. The condition throughout the Yearly Meeting is hopeful, and in several meetings total abstinence prevails. Ephraim Smith, Henry E. Kirk, J. Hervey Dewees and Solomon E. Barker were reported as newly appointed correspondents in their Monthly Meetings.

The twenty-fourth annual report of the Yearly Meetings Committee on Education was then read. Good progress had been made during the year. The eighteen schools have 257 pupils. The committee's Superintendent, Anna Walton, had made from two to four visits to each school during the year and held monthly teachers' meetings. The teachers' library now numbers 775 volumes, having been increased by 222 volumes during the year. The Yearly Meeting approved the labors of the committee, and appropriated $2,000 for its use next year.

The subject of appointing a committee to visit subordinate meetings, in the hope of arresting a declining condition, was taken up again. One Friend felt that the acknowledgment of other gifts by meetings than those in the ministry was very much needed. The general sentiment of the meeting seemed to be against the appointment of the committee, but Friends were earnestly exhorted to yield to any impressions of duty toward small meetings that might arise in their hearts.

After this discussion the memorial of Joseph Walton was read.

The report of the committee to examine the Treasurer's account showed receipts for the year had amounted to $8,294. The meeting directed that $6,500 be raised the coming year, and then adjourned until 10 o'clock Sixth-day.

In the women's meeting, the first item of business was the appointment of a committee to have charge of the refreshment room. The Westtown report was then read and favorably commented upon by Eliza H. Varney. This was followed by the educational report. Mary R. Haines spoke in favor of the harmonious development of head, heart and hand. The report on intoxicants gave a hopeful outlook. Elizabeth C. Dunn spoke sweetly of the quality of patience as a valuable virtue of the Christian life.

In the evening the annual meeting of the Indian Aid Association was held at Twelfth Street. An interesting report of the school at Skiatook, Indian Territory, was read. It has sixty-five pupils. The Association has disbursed $697 through the Associated Executive Committee of Friends on Indian Affairs. Annie George, a Cherokee, read her Carlisle graduating essay on the "Cherokee Nation," and Edward M. Wistar gave some details of the several Indian mission stations.

News from the Field.

Rufus M. Jones will be one of the speakers at the seventy-fifth anniversary of the American Sunday School Union, to be held in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the 24th and 25th of this month.

John Wilhelm Rountree, editor of "Present Day Papers," and minister in York Meeting, England, is in Philadelphia, where he will spend a few days. He expects to spend between three and four months in America in company with Alfred N. Brayshaw. They hope to attend New England Yearly Meeting and the Providence Educational Conference, and they will probably cross our continent, visiting some of the meetings in the far West.

The Doukhobors, who have spent the winter in Cyprus, under the care and oversight of a committee of London Meeting for Sufferings, are now on their way to Canada on the steamship "Lake Superior," to join their brethren. There are one thousand and thirty of them. Three Russian nurses, who have given their services gratuitously during the winter, caring for the sick, will accompany them to their destination. There are still between two and three thousand Doukhobors in Russia who hope eventually to come to Canada. Our English Friend, William Bel-lows, is accompanying the party of Doukhobors from Cyprus to Canada.

It will interest the many Friends who have signed the memorial to the Czar to see how he appreciates the support of public sentiment in America. The Russian Ambassador in Washington has sent the following message to our Secretary of State:

"Russian Embassy, Washington, D. C., April 17th 1899.

"Mr. Secretary of State:—Since the publication of the circular of the 12th of August of last year, which his Excellency, Count Mouravieff, addressed to the representatives of the foreign Powers accredited at St. Petersburg, numerous evidences of grateful recognition have come from the United States to his Majesty, the Emperor, my august master, in the form of addresses, letters and telegrams.

"His Majesty, the Emperor of Russia, is pleased to see in the unanimity of the sentiments which attend the courteous acquiescence of all the governments in taking part in the conference of The Hague an additional pledge for the success of efforts tending to cause the growth of the fruitful principle of universal peace in the mind and in the public life of all nations.

"Deeply affected by the expressions which have reached him from the United States, and which prove how completely the ideas of peace, founded upon the development of the moral and material well being of the peoples, find a warm response in this great country, his Majesty, the Emperor, has deigned to charge me to convey his most sincere thanks to all those who have sent his Imperial Majesty the expression of their sentiments with regard to so highly a humanitarian achievement.

"In hastening to fulfill this order of my august master, I beg your Excellency to be pleased to accept the assurance of my highest consideration.

C. CASSINI."

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Mountain Home, Alabama.—Our meeting here is prospering under the leadership of Newton Hadley, our beloved pastor, who has been with us for about six months. There have been two converted to Christ and one renewed and eleven added to the church during this time, and the Sabbath School has been built up. There seems to be a hopeful outlook for Mountain Home.

S. S. HAYES.

Dublin, Indiana.—Dublin Quarterly Meeting was held at Dublin on Seventh-day and First-day, Second month, 21st and 22d, 1899. William Thornberry, from Ohio, was present, and also our Quarterly Meeting Superintendent. The Gospel was preached with demonstration of the Spirit and power. On First-day evening Belle Kenworthy, of Hopewell Monthly Meeting, began a series of meetings, and on the following Fifth-day J. Hammer Ellis, of New Hope Meeting, Howard County, came and assisted in the meetings for one week. Much good was accomplished, there being four conversions and sixteen renewals and several claiming sanctification. The meetings were especially good from the very first till the close.

J. REYNOLDS.

NEW ENGLAND YEARLY MEETING.

Smithfield Quarterly Meeting, which has assembled for many years in Fifth month, at Northbridge, Mass., will be held this year at Woonsocket, R. I., commencing with the meeting for ministry and oversight on the afternoon of the 10th. On the evening of that date Charles N. Atkins, of Lynn, Mass., will address a Bible School Conference. The Quarterly Meeting will convene on the morning of the 11th at 10.30 o'clock.

ELISHA T. READ.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

Thomas Innman, of Lamong, Indiana, began a series of meetings, Third month 5th, at Sugar Plain, Ind., in the limits of Thorntown Quarter, but on account of sickness in his family was called home in a few days, but returned again and began Third month 19th and continued two weeks. Much interest was manifested from the first, and our brother was faithful in declaring the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ with no uncertain sound, and to many whose hearts were open to receive all there is in the "realm of privilege" the clear, practical presentation of Bible truths was accepted and endorsed and it was a feast of rich blessing. The membership of the church was much strengthened and edified, and we believe many were definitely blessed and that much good was done, for which we do praise the Lord.

Carmel Quarterly Meeting and Western Yearly Meeting has lost another of its valuable workers in the person of Amy Cooper, who died at her home in Indianapolis, Third month 11th, 1899. She was born in Lawrence County, Ohio, in 1862, and removed with her parents to Douglas County, Illinois, when about eight years old. She was converted and united with the Friends in her sixteenth year.

In 1880 she was married to Joseph Cooper, who also united with Friends. They were both recorded as ministers by Vermilion Quarterly Meeting in Illinois. They afterwards spent about two years in the Biblical Department at Earlham College, thereby fitting themselves to do better service in the Master's vineyard. In active service perhaps their best success was in the line of evangelistic work, but signal blessing rested on their pastoral work also. After her husband's death, which occurred at Long Beach, California, in 1894, she returned to Western Yearly Meeting and settled at Carmel. Here she began working as an evangelist, but was soon led to a point about six miles from Carmel, where she concentrated her labors, having in view the establishment of a Friends' church. This she soon succeeded in doing, and was chosen as its pastor. Largely through her efforts a neat and commodious house was erected, known as West Liberty, she soliciting and collecting the greater part of the money necessary for that purpose. She continued as pastor there until about fifteen months before her death, when she resigned and re-entered the evangelistic work.

Last autumn she felt drawn to a mission work in Indianapolis, where she entered as assistant of W. V. Wheeler, who is doing a very excellent mission work in that city. Sister Cooper entered into this work with her usual and characteristic zeal and enthusiasm. Her qualities as a worker seemed admirably adapted to this field and she soon won her way to the hearts of the people with whom she came in contact. She continued in this work until the early part of winter, when it was discovered that, unknown to her, disease had fastened itself upon her and a surgical operation was necessary, which was performed soon afterward.

Everything that medical skill and human wisdom could do was done, and prayer was not neglected. Eight of Indiana's finest surgeons and physicians were in consultation, seeking to save her life, but all were powerless. Her suffering was intense, yet she bore it all with Christian patience. Her faith in Jesus was inspiring and beautiful, and up to the last she manifested an intense interest in the spiritual welfare of others. She fell asleep in Jesus without a struggle, being surrounded by her family and many friends. She was taken to Douglas County, Illinois, and laid by the side of her father.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Alton, Kansas.—Achsa C. Kenyon commenced a series of meetings at Paradise, Kansas, (Mount Ayre Quarterly), Third month 23d, 1899. Meetings closed Fourth month 2d, seventeen meetings being held in all. Israel and C. H. Osborn joined her in the work the last few days. The power of the Lord wonderfully rested on the meetings all through the series of meetings. Through the clear-pointed teaching of Sister Kenyon, on the Bible line, the church was stirred and souls became interested to have all the Lord had for them and sought and received a great blessing and rejoiced greatly in the Lord. There were four renewals, three conversions, and several were sanctified, and great good was done. The Friends there feel that they never had a better meeting than the one just closed. Catharine H. Osburn, Evangelistic Superintendent of Mount Ayre Quarterly Meeting.

OHIO YEARLY MEETING.

The place of holding Damascus Quarterly Meeting, belonging to Ohio Yearly Meeting, has been changed, to be held at Beloit, Mahoning County, Fifth month 13th, 1899. Next Eighth month it will be held at East Goshen, on the 12th of the month. The other two quarters will be held at Damascus, Ohio.

North Lewisburg, Ohio.—At the gathering of Goshen Quarterly Meeting, at this place, on the 21st, 22d and 23d of this month, there was felt sensibly from the commencement the divine overshadowing. Many prayers from different parts of the house were offered in each session of the meeting, and there was a manifest evidence that the congregation was waiting under a glorious outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and all seemed held under this precious covering, while, doubtless, many were feeding upon the broken body and shed blood of our Lord Jesus, dispensed directly by the Holy Spirit to the developing and strengthening of their spiritual life.

There were present, besides the resident ministers, Ezra Pearson, W. J. Thornbury and Mary Sipes, each of whom was led out into service for the dear Lord, and their messages had no uncertain sound.

Lena Stanley, our returned missionary from China, was also present and held some profitable meetings, giving useful information of the Lord's work among that needy people. The meeting closed its regular sessions on First-day after a long and profitable season of worship and service with a general hand-shake amid exclamations of joy and gladness.

The writer of these lines, because of illness of himself and family, had not been privileged to be present at a Friends' meeting for about six months, and was now too feeble to sit through the entire sessions, and he can truly say this blessed outpouring of spiritual benediction was to him a time of especial refreshing from the Lord, which has been received with thanksgiving and praise to Him who proves Himself ever ready to bestow larger blessings upon his waiting, trusting children, than we can ask or even think. Praise the Lord!

I am informed that our dear friend, Ezra Pearson, is about to settle for a time, at least, within our quarterly meeting limits. Joseph Hadley and wife, who came among us last autumn, are laboring acceptably at Goshen and this place. His address is Zanesfield, Ohio.

EDWARD C. YOUNG.

OREGON YEARLY MEETING.

Pacific College Notes.—The enrollment at Pacific College is the largest it has been during the spring term, and College interest and spirit are in a good, healthy condition. The third number of the Union Lecture Course was given at Friends' House, on Fourth month 8th, by President Thomas Newlin. His subject was, "Naples and Its Environs." The audience was the largest of any of the lectures thus far given, and the lecture was well received. The President also delivered the same lecture at the Friends' House, Portland, Fourth month 15th. He also attended and spoke in both services of the church at this place, Sabbath, Fourth month, 16th.

A number of new pieces of apparatus have been added to the equipments of the college laboratory. This new apparatus is mostly for the use of the biological department. Among the list of pieces added was a new microscope and a Baush and Lomb microtome. The biological department is equipped with sufficient microscopes and equipments, so that each student does two hours' individual work per day.

A debate between the college students and the State Normal students of Monmouth is set for Fourth month 28th.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. have been quite influential in promoting the spiritual life of the students. The meetings have been well attended. Since the return of President Newlin, Prof. Lewis has been in a sanitarium in Portland for treatment. He seems to be improving in his physical condition quite rapidly, and it is hoped that he can soon resume his labors in looking after the interests of the church work.

REPORTER.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

The closing exercises of the High Point Normal and Industrial School were held at High Point from the 26th of Fourth month to the 2d of Fifth month, embracing an interesting and very varied program.

NOTICE.

"The Yearly Meeting of Friends for New England," to be held at Portland, Maine, will commence its sessions on Fifth-day, Sixth month 8th, with meetings on ministry and oversight, at 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. A public meeting for worship at 7.30 p.m.

The first session of the Yearly Meeting for Discipline will commence Sixth-day, Sixth month 9th, at 9 a.m.

Friends expecting to attend the Yearly Meeting, or those wishing for homes and other information, will address L. M. Douglas, Portland, Maine, for the Committee of Arrangements.

Portland, Fourth month 28th, 1899.

Married.

FARBER-HAFFNER.—At the residence of the bride's mother, Portland, Indiana, Thomas H. Farber and Ida May Haffner, the latter a member of Portland Monthly Meeting.

HUDSON-HOSKINS.—At the residence of Samuel Gause, Newberg, Oregon, Third month 26th, Omer J. Hodson to Lelia I. Hoskins. They are both members of Newberg Monthly Meeting.

Died.

COOPER.—At her home, in Indianapolis, Ind., Third month 11th, 1899, Amy Cooper, aged 37 years. She was an effective minister and evangelist, and her devoted life has borne much fruit which will abide.

GREENE.—Died at his home in Wilmington, Ohio, Fourth month 18th, 1899, Hazael D. Greene, in his 78th year. He was a birthright member of Friends, and since the 16th day of Fifth month, 1868, has been an acknowledged minister. His chief object in life was to help extend God's kingdom and make those about him happy. During the last three weeks of his life he was a great sufferer, but he bore it patiently and continually praised the Lord. He said to those about him, "Never call the valley of death a dark valley. It is not dark. There is no darkness where Christ is." Just before he became unconscious he said, "I am an unprofitable servant—nothing to compare with Paul; but I can adopt his language: 'I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness,'" etc. Then lifting his eyes, he said, "Behold that heavenly host. Can you not hear the voices? Oh, Lord, I am coming, coming, coming."

HUNTINGTON.—On the morning of First month 5th, 1899, Abbie V. Huntington, of Amesbury, Mass., in her 82d year. She ascended to the presence of Him whom she loved and served to join the sublime company of the saints of all ages in her heavenly home.

JOHNSON.—Susanna Bailey Johnson, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth Bailey, departed this life in California, Fourth month 6th, 1899, being 66 years, 11 months and 11 days of age. She had a birthright membership in the Society of Friends, filling with efficiency the offices of Elder and Overseer. She was a member of Pleasant Plain Meeting, Kansas, at the time of her death. She lived an earnest, consistent, Christian life, leaving abundant evidence of a saving faith in Christ and His power to keep that which was committed to His care.

VINING.—Died, on Third month 28th, 1899, Louisa Vining, in her 86th year. She had been an invalid for many years and was tenderly cared for by her sister. Her knowledge of the Scriptures was a great consolation to her when free from pain, she often repeating whole chapters learned in her youth.

News and Events.

The Philippine situation is again more encouraging. Last week the Filipino stronghold—Calumpit—was taken after a most daring and brilliant assault. The enemy were strongly entrenched outside the town and close to the Rio Grande. To reach them it was necessary to cross the stream in the face of a terrific fire. After two ineffectual attempts to accomplish this, Colonel Funston, of the Twentieth Kansas Volunteers, succeeded in landing his troops on the opposite side. The Tagals, in great numbers, were completely routed and forced to retire. This position at Calumpit had been considered impregnable by the insurgents, and Aguinaldo is quoted as having said he expected it to be the cemetery of the American army. Its loss was followed almost immediately by peace overtures from General Luna, the commander of the Filipino forces at Calumpit. He asked General Otis for an armistice of two weeks, in order to convene the so-called Filipino Congress so that the question of surrender might be placed before it and the will of the people determined upon. General Otis, refusing to acknowledge this body, informed General Luna that nothing less than a complete surrender would be considered; that Aguinaldo was able to begin the war without the consent of this Congress, and he could just as readily terminate it. It is thought in some quarters that the first overtures of the insurgents, which have failed so completely, will be followed by others of a kind more likely to meet with the favor of our authorities. Unless this is the case, it seems that the American army must continue to pursue the ever-fleeing insurgents, and as regularly to abandon positions once occupied, for our army is not large enough to garrison all the captured towns.

The Wade Court of Inquiry, which had been sitting in Washington and elsewhere almost 10 weeks, has completed its investigation and the taking of testimony, and is about to present its report. A summary of the evidence supporting General Miles's assertions regarding the beef supplied to the army was given on the 24th by Major Lee. He called attention to the fact that "the overwhelming evidence of not less than ninety per cent. of the officers and fully ninety-five per cent. of the men showed beyond reasonable doubt that the so-called canned roast beef as a meat ration, was all that it should not have been and nothing that it should have been for the American soldier." The actual condition of affairs was strongly presented in his summary, and serious reflections were necessarily cast upon the War Department. Notwithstanding that the testimony of witnesses during the sessions has been largely and conclusively in favor of General Miles's position, it is stated in a forecast of the report that the Committee will sustain Alger, Eagan and the beef contractors, and will condemn General Miles, and blame him for not making his charges earlier. If this is the case the report will be purely a whitewash, for every one knows from the published accounts that appeared from day to day that grave errors were committed in supplying army rations, and that the beef was very generally entirely unsuitable for the purpose for which it was intended.

The arrest of the Philadelphia and Lancaster counterfeiters has created a profound sensation. This has been heightened by the arrest of ex-United States District Attorney Ellery P. Ingham, and Harvey K. Newitt, a law partner of Ingham, on a charge of attempting to bribe Secret Service Agent McManus. There is a strong supposition of the guilt of the apprehended persons, and indeed the evidence against them has been practically conclusive. The arrangement was that William J. McManus, the officer in the employ of the Secret Service of the United States, was to receive the sum of $6,000, in monthly payments of $500 each, for the purpose of influencing him not to perform sworn duty, but to keep the counterfeiters informed of the movements in the Secret Service regarding their case. Considering the prominent position of the accused, and the fact that Ingham occupied at one time the place of District Attorney, the case has a peculiar interest. The confiscation of cigars with the bogus stamps affixed to the boxes still continues, and the extensive network of the conspiracy to defraud the government is being laid bare most effectually.

Almost immediately following the lynching of Sam Hose, near Palmetto, Ga., the body of Lige Strickland was found swinging from the limb of a tree about a mile and a quarter from the same town. Strickland is a negro minister, who was charged by Hose just before dying with having paid him $12 to commit the Crawford murder. There is good reason to doubt the veracity of this statement by Hose, and it is more than likely that Strickland was innocent of the charge against him. Regarding the question of lynchings, one of the sanest men on the subject is Booker T. Washington. He has said that reform will only come about through education of the whites and blacks alike; that the awful crimes committed by negroes are a result of most deplorable degradation and ignorance, and that those guilty of lynching are equally ignorant and equally in need of education. Of immediate force, however, is the lately instituted anti-lynch law of South Carolina, the validity of which has just been fully affirmed by the Supreme Court of the State. It provides that the county in which a lynching occurs shall be liable for damages.

HOTEL STRAND ATLANTIC CITY.

Ocean and Virginia Avenues.

A thoroughly modern and home-like house throughout. Elevator to street level. Steam heat. Sun parlor, etc. A special rate will be made to FRIENDS during this season. Write for booklet and terms.

FAIRBAIRN & WILLIAMS.

Mention this Paper

GETTYSBURG, LURAY, AND WASHINGTON.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged for a five-day Personally-Conducted Tour to Gettysburg, Luray, and Washington on May 6th. A full day will be spent at Gettysburg, three hours at Luray, affording ample time to make the tour of the wonderful caverns, and two days at Washington.

The party will be under the guidance of one of the company's experienced tourist agents. A chaperon, whose especial charge will be unescorted ladies, will also accompany the party throughout. Round-trip tickets, including transportation for the round trip, hotel accommodations at Gettysburg and carriage drive over the battlefield, luncheon, transfer, and admission to the Luray Caverns, luncheon, transfer, and hotel accommodations at Washington, and dinner going and supper returning, at Broad Street Station in connection with tickets from Trenton and points east thereof, will be sold at the extremely low rate of $25 from New York, $24 from Trenton, $22 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

ACTINA AND MAGNETIC CONSERVATIVE APPLIANCES.

We have numerous testimonials as to the value of these articles in curing Chronic Catarrh, Hay Fever, Asthma, Cataract, Deafness, Rheumatism, Gout, and various other ills humanity is heir to.

For sale by the

PHILADELPHIA MAGNETIC CO.,
1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

THE LAST VOYAGE.

Among the bishops present at the late General Convention of the Episcopal Church in Washington, not one was a member of the American episcopate when Bishop Clark, of Rhode Island, was consecrated, and some of them were not even born then. The fact impressed Bishop Clark with great solemnity, and led him to write the following lines, which were first published in the "Church Record" of Providence:

My work on earth at last is done,
I wait the setting of the sun.

I've long outlived the utmost span
Of years allotted unto man.

The things once seen have ceased to be—
The things unseen abide for me.

I hear the surging of the sea
That beats upon eternity.

I see far off the shadowy realm,
And thither turn the trembling helm.

The winds that blow so cold and drear
Grow softer as the end draws near.

The voice that once said, "Peace, be still!"
Now whispers softly, "Fear no ill!"

The distant gleams of silver light
Relieve the darkness of the night.

There stand upon the far-off shore
Faint forms of loved ones gone before.

I sail alone, yet not alone,
The Saviour takes me for his own.

Your few things may be very few, and small things; but He expects you to be faithful over them.—Havergal.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.

OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Avenue, near Beach. Close to New Steel Pier. New Management. Quiet, homelike, and attractive. Ocean view.
Write for information.

MRS. N. R. HAINES,
Owner and Proprietor.
(Formerly of The Chalfonte.)

The Archdale, 136 South Maryland Avenue, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view; cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.

MARY J. BUNDY.

SUMMER BOARDING.

Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate, at her home, near Muncy, Pa., a few summer boarders. The ground is high, view fine, air good, and drives and walks pleasant.

For terms address

CAROLINE B. KIRK,
Pennsdale, Pa.

A want advertisement in "The American Friend" will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

DEFAUDED OF HIS BIRTHRIGHT.

There must be a great fault somewhere, if it is true, as many affirm, that American boys and girls are growing up without that knowledge of the Bible which was possessed by their grandfathers and grandmothers. "The Bible ought always to be, as it was once was," says the Hartford "Courant," "the corner-stone of the American child's education. Leaving the religious side of the question entirely out of the account, the study of no other literature is so intellectually stimulating to the child; nor can he anywhere else find such a model of sturdy, sinewy English as between the covers of the old King James's Version."

The greatest orators of England and America have been diligent students of the English Bible. It was early absorbed and never forgotten by the brilliant advocate, Rufus Choate. To quote his nephew, who now represents this country at the court of St. James, it saturated his mind and spirit more than any other book, more than all other books combined. It was at his tongue's and his fingers' ends.

"You can hardly find speech, argument or lecture of his from first to last that is not sprinkled with Biblical ideas and pictures, and Biblical words and phrases. To him the book of Job was a sublime poem; he knew the Psalms by heart, and dearly loved the prophets, and, above all, Isaiah, upon whose gorgeous imagery he made copious drafts."

The late Professor Huxley was an agnostic, but he brought up his own children on the Bible, because he esteemed it the best mental diet for them, as well as for all English children. His reasons for thinking as he did of the Bible were given in the "Contemporary Review" twenty-eight years ago, wherein he wrote:

"Consider that, for three centuries, this book has been woven into the life of all that is best and noblest in English history; that it has become the national epic of Britain, and is as familiar to noble and

ROYAL

Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES

You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently
but firmly. Pond's Extract cures
Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis,
Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

No. 191. Fancy Body Top Buggy; has large seat, lamps, fenders, side curtains, storm apron and shafts. Price $50, as good as dealers sell for $80.

ELKHART CARRIAGE & HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. Pratt, Secy. ELKHART, IND.

BE YOUR OWN AGENT

and Save Money. Every time you buy an article from an agent or dealer you must pay him a liberal commission in addition to the actual value of the article. In many cases this places an article beyond your reach.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but sell you vehicles and harness direct from our factory at wholesale prices.

We are the largest manufacturers of carriages and harness in the world selling to the consumer exclusively. We make 170 styles of vehicles, surreys, as low as $50, and 55 styles of harness. Remember that we ship our goods anywhere for examination and guarantee safe delivery. Write at once for illustrated Catalogue—FREE.

No. 47—Harness, nickel trimmings or imitation rubber, $8.00. Dealers sell same quality for $11 to $13.

Criss-Cross CEREALS

Ask dealers for them—see that packages have these criss-cross lines. Pamphlet and our sample offer mailed free.

Special Diabetic Food, for Diabetes, Gluten Flour, for Dyspepsia and Constipation, Barley Crystals, for Kidney Troubles. FARWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U. S. A.

simple, from John-o-Groat's House to Land's End, as Dante and Tasso once were to the Italians; that it is written in the noblest and purest English, and abounds in exquisite beauties of mere literary form; and finally, that it forbids the veriest hind who never left his village to be ignorant of the existence of other countries and other civilizations, and of a great past—stretching back to the furthest limits of the oldest nations in the world.

"By the study of what other book could children be so much humanized and made to feel that each figure in that vast historical procession fills, like themselves, but a momentary space in the interval between two eternities; and earns the blessings or the curses of all time, according to its effort to do good and hate evil, even as they also are earning their payment for their work."

The American child who is allowed to grow up without a knowledge of the Bible is defrauded of his birthright.—"Youth's Companion."

"Rest in the Lord; wait patiently for Him." In Hebrew, "Be silent to God and let him mould thee." Be still and He will mould thee to the right shape.—Martin Luther.

Prof. Torvald Köhl, of the Odder Observatory, Denmark, reports that when the huge sunspot of September last was crossing the solar meridian, magnificent auroral lights flashed across the heavens, and electric bells in the great telegraph station at Frederica rang without any visible cause. The telegraphic service in Denmark was disturbed for hours during the auroral display. Professor Köhl thinks that the agency of the sun in producing the phenomena was evident. Similar exhibitions of "wireless telegraphy" between the sun and the earth have been noted in the past.—"Youth's Companion."

Our New Canna Lilies

The most gorgeous flowers for garden and lawn. Plant in pots for immediate bloom, set out when ground is warm. Bears splendid clusters of lily-like flowers and elegant foliage.

4 for 25 Cents

Including DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH
—The darkest and richest crimson
Canna, and
1 Lovely Pink,
1 Gold Edged,
1 Rich Variegated,
Live roots, sure to bloom.

New Floral Guide
124 pages, tells about 400 other Choice Flowers, FREE.

CONARD & JONES CO., West Grove, Pa.

JOTTINGS.

President McKinley visited Philadelphia last week for the purpose of being present at the ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the Grant monument in Fairmount Park on the 27th. On the following day he called upon Captain Coghlan, on the Raleigh. The meeting was most cordial, and there was no indication given to suppose that Captain Coghlan would have to suffer for his late indiscreet utterances.

That the Philippines are as able as the Spaniards to inflict losses and suffering upon our troops is conspicuously shown by a statement prepared at the War

Last Personally-Conducted Tour to Washington via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The last of the present series of Pennsylvania Railroad three-day personally-conducted tours to Washington D. C., will be run on May 11. The rate, $14.50 from New York, $11.50 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points, includes transportation, hotel accommodations, and Capitol guide fees. An experienced Chap-eron will also accompany the party.

For itineraries, tickets, and full information apply to ticket agents; Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

ELLWOOD HEACOCK UNDERTAKER AND EMBALMER

ESTABLISHED 1860 TELEPHONE 5807
Local and Long Distance
1313 Vine Street, Philadelphia
Calls outside of City answered promptly

The Easiest Writing Pen Made NOTHING LIKE IT. ESTERBROOK'S POSTAL No. 477

Turned up Point.  ESTERBROOK & CO'S
POSTAL PEN

Ask your Stationer.

One Hundred and Fifty other Styles.

The ESTERBROOK STEEL PEN CO.
Works, Camden, N. J. 26 John St., N. Y.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.
A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

Department. This brings out the facts that from February 4th to April 28th, 198 men were killed in the Philippines, and 1111 wounded, a total of 1309.

There is a rumor out that ex-President Cleveland may fill a newly-created chair of politics in Princeton University. The University recently received an anonymous gift of $100,000 for this purpose, and Grover Cleveland it is thought would be a most desirable candidate for the professorship. Should he actually take the position he will be the second ex-President to become a teacher of international law after leaving the White House.

The practical value of the wireless system of telegraphy was shown in England on the 28th, when the crew of the Goodwin Sands lightship were able to communicate with shore and give warning of the sinking condition of the ship as a result of a collision.

Emperor William has thanked President McKinley for his action in authorizing the landing of a German cable on American soil. This is only another indication of the real friendship between the two great nations, and being heartily reciprocated by the United States in the person of our President, there is every reason to believe that our friendly relations will not readily be disturbed by slight friction here and there.

Representative Jas. S. Sherman of New York has been much talked of to succeed Thomas B. Reed as Speaker. It is conceded that he will have the solid vote of the Republican States east of the Alleghanies. It seems unlikely that the west can consolidate upon any one man, and unless it should do so the chances for Sherman are very good. He is now the choice of a large part of the House.

A story has been published in London to the effect that Germany has addressed an expostulatory note to France regarding the Dreyfus case, intimating that in certain eventualities it would be impossible for the Berlin government to refrain from officially publishing the facts, in justice to its own officers.

It is now believed that the final list of Cuban soldiers, entitled to the distribution of $3,000,000 set aside for the purpose of paying them upon disbanding, will not amount to more than 28,000 names. The money will be disbursed by Major Francis S. Dodge of the Pay Department.

Richard Croker sailed last week for England. His testimony before the Mazet Investigating Committee has brought upon him a torrent of criticism. His moral obliquity has been thoroughly proved out of his own mouth by his brazen confessions. He did not hesitate to say that he is working all the time for his pocket, and that he expects and gets a large share of political spoils. From one such source alone he gets about $30,000 a year.

It is related of Dr. Joseph Parker that on being asked if he had a fad, he replied, "Yes." "What is it?" "Preaching." "But that is your business. Haven't you any amusements?" "Yes—preaching." "But what would you do if you were allowed to select your highest pleasure?" "Preach."

Profit-Sharing, Life Insurance Policies on every approved plan.

Ordinary Policies, $500 to $50,000 on the Whole Life, Limited Payment and Endowment Plan.

INDUSTRIAL Policies from $15 up.
PROTECTION to Individual, Family and Business Interests.
PROFITABLE INVESTMENT
for Surplus Funds or Savings.

Write for Information.

The Prudential Insurance Co.

OF AMERICA.

John F. Dryden, Pres. Home Office, Newark, N. J.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

WANTS.

[We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS of any kind to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Advertisements will be inserted in this column at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.]

SUMMER BOARDERS.—Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate a few summer boarders at her home, near Muncy, Pa. The views are fine, air good, drives and walks pleasant. For terms address
CAROLINE B. KIRK, Pennsdale.

FOR SALE on easy terms. A house and twelve acres of land adjoining Friends' Meeting-house, at East Bend, N. C. Apply to
DAVID E. SAMPSON, East Bend, N. C.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Corecoran St., Wash., D. C.

WANTED.—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED.—A man, competent and of experience, to establish and manage a Hame manufactory in Greensboro, N. C.

Address Lock Box 55.

TEACHER WANTED.—The Missionary Board of Iowa Yearly Meeting desire a teacher for the Golden Grove East Indian School, in Jamaica. Address
ADALINE H. HADLEY, Secretary, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

AN IDEAL FOOD FOR CHILDREN

GREAT CARE

Should be exercised in selecting food intended for growing children.

Wheatlet

...is the best Cereal Food because it contains all the nourishing elements of the whole wheat. Your grocer keeps it. If not send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied.

Made only by the
Franklin Mills Co., Lockport, N. Y.

Send for booklet containing valuable receipts and opinions of noted physicians and chemists.

GOOD REASONS FOR USING COMPOUND OXYGEN.

It has been in use for more than twenty-five years. It is well tried. Thousands have testified to its wonderful curative powers. Hundreds of Physicians have used it in their practice, and recommend its use. It can be used at home and without interfering with business or employment. It can not harm the most delicate patient. Treatment also includes consultation. For the cure of chronic diseases. Send for book of 200 pages, free.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,
1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.
San Francisco, Ca. Toronto, Canada

ENFORCED BY AN ECHO.

No orator ever less needed the aids of art than the great London preacher, Charles H. Spurgeon, and none ever used them less; but when nature helped him, not only in himself, but outside of himself, he welcomed the effect as he had a right to do. One striking instance of a sermon re-enforced in this way is related by a clergyman of the Church of England, the Rev. D. A. Doudney.

Mr. Spurgeon was holding outdoor meetings in the county of Hants (opposite the Isle of Wight), and one afternoon he preached to a great throng of people in a beautiful valley near the market town of Havant.

His text was from the 51st Psalm, "Then will I teach transgressors thy ways," and the sermon was a gospel invitation. The air was still, and a cloudless sun was sinking as he approached the end of his discourse, while the attentive hearers caught every word.

Apparently they had not noticed, carried along as they were by the sweep of his powerful voice, that the valley was the home of echoes. Mr. Spurgeon had discovered the fact. At the close of his last appeal, raising his voice, he called to the congregation: "All things are ready! Come! 'The Spirit and the bride say Come!' and nature herself accents the heavenly invitation again and again, Come! Come!! Come!!!"

The echoes took up the word, and from side to side the breathless assembly heard the repeated call, "Come! Come!! Come!!!" till it sank in a whisper in the distance.

The narrator describes the effect as "like an electric shock." It was as if the preacher's eloquent peroration had wakened supernal voices.

We have no written record of the fruits

Cream Separators.

Would you know all about them?

The best, the cheapest and the reasons why?

SEND FOR NEW 1899 CATALOGUE.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

Randolph & Canal Sts.,
CHICAGO.

74 Cortlandt Street,
NEW YORK.

of the meeting, but there was a solemnity in the aptness of its close that lifted it above mere dramatic artifice or any of the devices employed to trick human hearts into transient feeling. We only know that in the memories of living listeners to that sermon of Mr. Spurgeon forty-one years ago the thrilling impression of its last syllables survive with the fidelity of a vital experience.—"Youth's Companion."

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The Quickest and Best Route to all Points in the South.

If you are going to any point in the South, Southwest, Mexico or on the Pacific Coast, be sure and call for a ticket via the Southern Railway.

Three daily trains from Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, enable you to reach almost every city of importance south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi Rivers without change of cars, and if you are destined to points in the extreme West or Southwest, you will find the connections at Memphis or New Orleans close. Send for schedules, maps, etc. Further information will be cheerfully furnished by Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

TO MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE.

The Southern Railway's new train, "The Washington and Chattanooga Limited," leaving Broad Street Station Philadelphia at 5.34 P. M. daily, will put you in Memphis at 7.40 the second morning. The route is via Washington, Lynchburg, Bristol and Chattanooga. Write to Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia for time tables and all information.

For Indigestion

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. GREGORY DOYLE, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed it in cases of indigestion and nervous prostration, and find the result so satisfactory that I shall continue it."

THE HEART=CRY OF JESUS,

By BYRON J. REES.

Table of Contents.—Dedication. Introduction. Preface. Contents. Christ's Prayer. Chapter I.—A Word in the Prayer. Chapter II.—Some Errors. Chapter III.—Those for Whom Christ Prayed. Chapter IV.—Christ's Prayer Answered. Chapter V.—Christian Unity. Chapter VI.—Fearlessness. Chapter VII.—Responsiveness to Christ. Chapter VIII.—Soul-Rest. Chapter IX.—Prayerfulness. Chapter X.—Success. Chapter XI.—Growth in Christliness of Life.

A. M. Hills, Author of "Holiness and Power," says: "His style is as clear and lucid as the crystal waters of the northern lakes; glowing, but chastened imagery; fervid, yet restrained and accurate language; now picturesque, then brilliant, then burning with the passion of his soul. Some passages are sweet as the matin of birds, other passages are as solemn as the moan of the seas, others as terrific with the scorching, withering, riving power of the thunderbolt. I read it with the avidity of a hungry man at a feast."

PRICE, CLOTH, REVISED EDITION, FIFTY CENTS.

Other Books by this Author: "Hulda, The Pentecostal Prophetess," 50 cents; "Christ-likeness," paper, 25 cents.

DISGUISED BY CLEANLINESS.

There is more than one moral to be drawn from a Chattanooga dispatch to the Cincinnati "Enquirer," which tells how John Mattney, tramp, stole a yoke of oxen from a Mr. Brown, and sold them to the butchers.

Mattney was arrested at Rockwood, and brought to Cincinnati and put in jail. He finally secured a capable lawyer, and when the case was called in the justice court, a clean-shaven, well-dressed, good-looking man took the prisoners' box for trial.

When Mr. Brown and the cattle-dealers went on the witness-stand, they were completely taken by surprise at the appearance of the man charged with the theft, and neither of them could swear positively that he was the thief. He was, therefore, discharged, and before further proceedings could be had he had left the city.

His lawyer had had him shaved, his hair cut and a clean shirt and collar put on him, all of which so changed him that his identity was lost.

The Book Association of Friends,

20 S. TWELFTH ST., PHILADELPHIA,

has for sale and gratuitous distribution, on approval of Committee, several books—and a good assortment of tracts. For catalogues apply as above.

INTERESTING BOOKS.

Isaac Sharp. An Apostle of the Nineteenth Century.

By FRANCES ANNE BUDGE.

One of his characteristic watchwords was:

"Forward and fear not;
Let thy faith be firm."

"It is no small praise for this book to be able to say of it, without exaggeration, that it is a memoir worthy of the remarkable man of whom it treats."—American Friend.

Price, Postage paid, $1.37.

Loving Service; or, Memoir of Martha Braithwaite.

By ELIZABETH A. EMMOTT,

"The book cannot fail to be read by many Friends with much interest."—London Friend.

Price, Postage Paid, $1.65.

Aunt Agatha Ann and Other Verses.

By MARY EMMELINE MANNERS.

Paper Board Covers.

Price, Postage Paid, 50 cents.

The Distinguishing Doctrines of the Religious Society of Friends.

Being an address delivered by JAMES WOOD in 1898.

Price, by Mail, 12 cents.

For Sale by

'Friends' Book and Tract Committee

No. 51 Fifth Avenue, New York.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR
Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN
Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC
BRADLEY
BROOKLYN
JEWETT
ULSTER
UNION
SOUTHERN
SHIPMAN
COLLIER
MISSOURI
RED SEAL
SOUTHERN

JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO
Philadelphia.
MORLEY
Cleveland.
SALEM
Salem, Mass.
CORNELL
Buffalo.
KENTUCKY
Louisville.

THE truth of the matter is, there are so many mixtures of Zinc, Barytes, Whiting, etc., sold under misleading brands of "White Lead" and "Pure White Lead," that in order to obtain Pure White Lead it is absolutely necessary to make sure that the brand is right.

Those named in the margin are genuine.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART, a beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight in every Christian family First Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 52 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. MCGEE & CO.,

1025 Arch Street,

Philadelphia, Pa.

THE OLD STANDBY!
DELAU'S
REMEDY

A Sure Cure for
Whooping Cough
Croup and
Ordinary Colds

AT DRUGGISTS.

MIGHTY OAKS.

"Mighty oaks from Acorns spring" and mighty Aches do toe-corns bring, but toe-corns can easily be removed by using A-Corn Salve, it does the work every time.

BOARDING.

Friends will find a good, comfortable boarding place with Friends at M. E. WISTAR'S, 1725 Arch St., Phila., only three blocks from Broad St. Station.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - - $25.00 each.
Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.
Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.

Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

THE BUNNELL & ENO
INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

For Both 25 cents For Both

SALT.

If you are looking for a Great Bargain in Fine Silverware never heard of before and that will astonish you, here is one of the Greatest Bargains ever offered by any reliable Manufacturer. For 25 cents we send Prepaid Both the Salt and Pepper Shakers. They are Quadruple Coin Silver Plated. Warranted to wear ten years. Finely engraved and useful as well as ornamental to any table rich or poor. If on receipt of the same you do not think or find them the Greatest Bargain you ever have seen or heard of, return them at once to us and we will refund you your money. We have been doing business in Chicago since 1865. Any Bank or Express Company can tell you our standing. Our Bargain Silverware Catalogue Sent Free.

PEPPER.

E. B. LEONARD MFG. CO., 152-153 MICHIGAN AVE., CHICAGO.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Table Raisins

Carefully selected and packed expressly for Family Trade in 1 lb.; 2½ lb. and 5 lb. Boxes.

From 15c. to $1.50 per Box.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue. Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St., and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL, Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

Read These Books

Mailed free for postage named.

To California and Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer. 50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake Dance, 60 pp., 64 illustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illustrations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health Resorts, 88 pp., 45 illustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Resorts, 84 pp., 27 illustrations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs 48 pp., 39 illustrations, 2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West. They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will make you better acquainted with the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,

A.G.P.A., A., T. & S.F.R'y,

Great Northern Bldg.

CHICAGO.

Enameline

when applied, is most BRILLIANT, and that is the effect you want when using a stove polish. When an old stove is polished it should look as bright as new—that is the result when you use Enameline. It is put up in paste, cake or liquid form. Remember that every package is guaranteed.

J. L. PRESCOTT & CO., New York

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE A copy of our handsome map 48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in postage to pay for packing and transportation. P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

ORGANIZED 1895.

CHARTERED 1896.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelist CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Haldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,
REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,
Chairman Executive Committee.
CHARLES H. BOND,
General Secretary.

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force, $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

American Friend

Vol. VI

FIFTH MONTH 11th, 1899

No. 19

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
Two Sonnets : The Look.—The Meaning of the Look	435
Elizabeth Barrett Browning.
EDITORIALS. — The Power of Truth. —The Loyalty of the Young to the Church. A Hopeful View . . .	435-436
Correspondence	437
Growing Old and Keeping Young . . .	437
Theodore L. Cuyler.
The Church as a Field	438
Alvano C. Goddard.
On the Way to Johannesburg, Africa . .	439
A Message from the Spring	439
Bertha C. Thorne.
Peace Signatures	440
Home Life in Palestine	440
Letters from Whittier	442
An Abstract of the Thirty-Sixth Annual Report of the Friends' Freedmen Association	443
INTERNATIONAL LESSON	443
Poem.—The Pathways of the Holy Land	444
General Church Notes	445
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT . .	445
Book Reviews	446
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	447
United States Finances and Foreign Missions.	448
Wm. Forster Home	448
MARRIAGES.	449
DEATHS	449
NEWS AND EVENTS	450

Having found in many books different methods of going to God, and divers practices of the Spiritual Life, I thought this would serve rather to puzzle me than to facilitate what I sought after, which was nothing but how to become wholly God's. This made me resolve to give the all for the all; so after having given myself wholly to God, that He might take away my sin, I renounced, for the love of Him, everything that was not He, and I began to live as if there was none but He in the world.

I engaged in a religious life only for the love of God, and I have endeavored to act only for Him; whatever becomes of me, whether I be lost or saved, I will always continue to act purely for the love of God. I shall have this good at least, that till death I shall have done all that is in me to love Him.

I make it my business only to persevere in His Holy Presence, wherein I keep myself by simple attention and a general fond regard, which I may call an ACTUAL PRESENCE OF GOD.

—BROTHER LAWRENCE.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,
Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers Have Tested Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address
INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION.
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion.*

THE GIRARD CAPITAL, $1,000,000. SURPLUS, $2,000,000. LIFE INSURANCE ANNUITY AND TRUST CO.

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President. HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary. NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary. A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer. WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN A. BROWN, Jr., WILLIAM H. GAW, JOHN C. SIMS,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS, FRANCIS I. GOWEN, PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOHN B. GARRETT, GEORGE H. McFADDEN, JOSIAH M. BACON.
WILLIAM H. JENES, HENRY TATNALL,

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley, Israel Morris, Asa S. Wing, Edw. H. Ogden, T. Wistar Brown, Richard Wood, Philip C. Garrett, Thos. Scattergood.
Henry Haines, Chas. Hartshorne. James V. Watson, J. Preston Thomas.
Wm. Longstreth, Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It tells how to obtain, free, the famous Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Footwear

Men's Shoes at $3.50, $5.00 and $6.00—the best of every grade, in all the leading styles—all new and direct from the best makers.

Men's Oxfords in Patent Leather and Russian Calf, in the most popular shapes, with Goodyear welt; exceedingly well made. Real Value, $3.50; special price, $2.50

Women's Shoes—our "S. & C. Special" at $3.00—twelve regular styles. Also two additional and exceptional lines of Goodyear Welt Shoes, button and lace, all sizes and widths, at $2.50.

Women's Black Glazed Kid Shoes—light weight, lace and button—the special lot recently announced—should be closed out at once; a good $3.00 value for only $1.75.

Women's Oxfords—welted, mannish in shape, in all the desirable leathers, perfect fitting, will hold their shape better than the lighter shoes—$3.50.

The "S. & C." School Shoes, at $2.00, are very popular and just what parents desire; neat in appearance and thoroughly dependable. Sizes 11 to 2.

Little Boys' Shoes, sizes 9 to 13½, at $1.25. Made with solid, serviceable soles, with hooks and eyelets.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.
ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.
All inquiries concerning our city and country have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(Any subscriber of THE AMERICAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements

The American Friend

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

Vol. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, FIFTH MONTH 11, 1899.

No. 19.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

Two Sonnets, by Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

THE LOOK.

The Saviour looked on Peter. Ay, no word,
No gesture of reproach! the heavens serene
Though heavy with armed justice, did not lean
Their thunders that way, the forsaken Lord
LOOKED only, on the traitor. None record
What that look was, none guess; for those who have seen
Wronged lovers loving through a death-pang keen,
Or pale-cheeked martyrs smiling to a sword,
Have missed Jehovah at the judgment-call.
And Peter, from the height of blasphemy—
"I never knew this man"—did quail and fall,
As knowing straight THAT God, and turned free
And went out speechless from the face of all,
And filled the silence, weeping bitterly.

THE MEANING OF THE LOOK.

I THINK that look of Christ might seem to say—
"Thou Peter! art thou then a common stone
Which I at last must break my heart upon,
For all God's charge to His high angels may Guard my foot better? Did I yesterday
Wash THY feet, my be'oved, that they should run
Quick to deny me 'neath the morning sun?
And do thy kisses, like the rest, betray?
The cock crows coldly.—Go, and manifest
A late contrition, but no bootless fear!
For when thy final need is dreariest,
Thou shalt not be denied, as I am here—
My voice, to God and angels, shall attest,
"Because I KNOW this man, let him be clear."

THE POWER OF TRUTH.

THERE is an old proverb to the effect that telling the truth "shames the devil," and we can easily believe that if we could always get the truth lived and spoken his occupation would soon be gone, for there is an irresistible power in the truth.

But like all great things truth is hard to arrive at; in fact, it often seems unattainable. The mere desire to be truthful is not enough, for many a sincere and honest man has, through his ignorance, stood in a false position all his life, though believing devoutly that he was in the truth. Paul was probably as sincere the first half of his life as the last half, but his sincerity and honesty did not make his position true.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The truth almost never lies on the surface; it is deep and must be sought profoundly. It seems certain at first sight that the sun goes round the earth, but it does not. It took centuries to see beneath the appearance to the fact. Our earth looks flat, but it is not; it is a globe, and there are men on the other side with feet turned toward ours. The stars all look to be the same distance away, but the difference of distance is perfectly immense—immeasurable. It will not do to trust our first impressions, or the appearances of things, or our desires or our wishes in the matter. We must find out what the facts are!

This is the business of science. It takes no guess, no prejudice, no hasty hypothesis or conclusion. It slowly and painfully sifts the facts to find precisely what is there. We often have "science falsely so called," while the sifting is going, but when at last the facts are all in and the truth is reached, it carries universal conviction. We can easily stand back and wait while the search is going on, for we know that at last when the TRUTH comes it will establish itself, and make us free and strong.

The danger always is that many persons jump at half-truth, and swamp their lives on errors that look like truth, instead of looking farther and finding the real article. But error and half-truth always prove weak. Those who go out after "lo heres" and "lo theres" wander aimlessly about chasing firefly lights, and arrive at no goal; but those who believe in the truth, and earnestly and painfully seek it, and refuse to follow any other light, always find at last the irresistible power of the truth.

It is fatal to a man's power to compromise with truth, and to go about saying what he does not know to be true. Little by little his power leaves him. He may grow more extravagant in his expressions, and louder in his emphasis, and more vigorous in his gestures, but it is all of no use. His power is gone. The same thing is true of a church. It cannot live and flourish and grow strong on anything but truth. As soon as its message gets out of line with things as they really are, as soon as it says of God the things which are not true to His nature, it begins to stagger and get weak-headed, and will, on this line, eventually fall into the ditch.

"Tis Truth alone is strong.

And albeit she wander outcast now, I see around her throng
Troops of beautiful, tall ange's, to ensield her from all wrong."

THE LOYALTY OF THE YOUNG TO THE CHURCH.

WE hear it said often enough that the hope of the church—the hope of our branch of it—is in the loyalty and faithfulness of the young. Nothing could be truer, of course; for we might as well try to live without food as to maintain a church without young people. Failure for one generation to hold the young people would practically mean the cessation of the church. Our very continuance, then, depends upon our ability to keep the young people loyal and faithful, for they hold the key to the future.

A century ago it was almost universally the rule for children to follow their parents unthinkingly both in religion and politics. It is not the rule to-day. Young people are open to thousands of influences, and they begin very early to think and act for themselves. They question and try things which their fathers accepted on authority. It does not do any more to appeal for a blind loyalty; the appeal has to go deeper. It is the same way in education. No good teacher thinks of driving his students into work. He gets their interest and so their attention, and then he has their hearts and their minds. It is folly to ignore the characteristics of human nature. If we want the loyalty of the young people, we must win it. If we want them to be faithful, we must give them something to which they can be faithful. Love and loyalty and faithfulness have to be kindled by the worthy qualities of that which is to be loved. You do not need to appeal to a young man to be loyal to his mother, for it is as natural as it is for the fragrance to come from the rose.

Let the church meet the needs of the young people, and speak to their condition; let it have a message which appeals to what is best and highest in them, and let it show them that there is a triumphing power, and the loyalty will kindle. Young people generally know a good thing when they see it; their perceptions are wonderfully clear, and they cannot stand hollowness or sham. It pays to be perfectly frank and honest with them, to get their point of view and to deal fairly with it. If they have difficulties, these must be met sympathetically, and they must be led into the light by a convincing method.

Then, too, every effort must be made to get their interest and their hearts, and furnish them with some sphere of service. Why is it that young people are so loyal to their schools and colleges? The answer is that their interests are reached in numerous ways; and then, too, the victories which are won are won by them themselves. It is their institution; the triumphs in the class-room and on the athletic field are their triumphs. There is hardly any loyalty like that of a schoolboy's or a college man's loyalty, and the reason is plain. We must treat our young people so that they will feel that they have a great place in the church, and we must study to meet their needs as carefully as a mother does to anticipate the wants of her sick child.

Increase the confidence of the young people in the church, and we shall increase their loyalty; increase their loyalty and we shall increase the power of the whole church.

A HOPEFUL VIEW.

It is not always easy to be hopeful; sometimes the dark side of things seems to force itself upon us. But it is a bad sign to be discouraged; it shows that we are looking down instead of up. If any of our readers have concluded that we present a discouraged view of our church or its ministry and message, as a few seem to have done, they have mis-read us. We do not feel satisfied with present conditions, of course. Nobody does. We want improvement and greater power, and who does not? But we take no pessimistic view. The earnest, enthusiastic, consecrated spirit which characterizes so many of our members is a most hopeful feature. The readiness to spend and be spent to reach and save other lives is a sure indication of spiritual health. The vital message of a living Christ and a God who is present in spirit and power is a comforting fact wherever we find it. The pastoral question is not satisfactorily settled in many meetings, and some Friends have not yet begun to see the full meaning of the problem to be solved, but in many other meetings true pastoral work is done, a genuine spiritual ministry is maintained, freedom of worship preserved, and no principles of a free gospel ministry, properly understood, violated. There is no reason why it should not be solved in every meeting. But, of course, it cannot be solved by those who refuse to see the real facts and needs, nor, indeed, by those who refuse to learn from the history of the past. We expect that it will be solved, and rightly, in the end. Meantime, let every man build faithfully over against his own house, in good Nehemiah fashion.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Portland, Me., May 2d, 1899.

To the Editor of THE AMERICAN FRIEND :

Dear Friend.—It seems to me that only a very gloomy view of the ministry could induce the writing of the article by M. M. Hobbs on that subject in the last AMERICAN FRIEND. I am quite sure that many of our ministers, both supported pastors and others, do maintain their "self-respect," and are neither hirelings nor beggars. It surely does not follow that because a man is supported as a pastor he forfeits his independence. I believe there are many who have such faith in God and consciousness of the divine calling that they are just as free in their work as they would be if they were men of property. A faith and consecration which falls short of this will never send forth a ministry of power whatever the methods may be. It certainly seems to me to be a mistake to give such an impression as that article would convey to the young people.

My own experience of fourteen years in the ministry, during eleven years of which I have been a pastor, has been most blessed. I have never begged or bargained—never had my message consciously forced or repressed by my financial circumstances, and my family have always been well cared for, and I believe that my experience is not unique.

Sincerely thy friend,

ELLISON R. PURDY.

A. Judson, in a letter from Burmah addressed to female members of Christian churches in America, says: "In raising up a church in this heathen land, and laboring to elevate the minds of the female converts to the standard of the gospel, we have always found one chief obstacle in that principle of vanity, that love of dress and display, which has in every age and in all countries been a ruling passion of the female sex."

"That obstacle," says he, "lately became more formidable through the admission of two or three fashionable females into the church, and the arrival of several sisters dressed and adorned in that manner which is too prevalent in our beloved native land. On my meeting the church after a year's absence, I saw that the demon of vanity was laying waste the female part."

"When your sisters and daughters arrive here they will be dressed in their usual way as Christian women at home are dressed, and the female converts will regard them as the freshest representatives of the Christian religion from a Christian land. And thus you, my dear sisters, do by your example spread the poison of vanity through all the rivers and mountains and wilds of this far distant land."

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

GROWING OLD AND KEEPING YOUNG.

BY THEODORE L. CUYLER.

Since the time when Cicero wrote his immortal treatise on Old Age, innumerable screeds have been written on this venerable topic; but as it is an experimental matter, there is always room for another one's experience.

Some people regard old age as a disgrace, and practice cunning devices to conceal it. Their wigs and other simulacra [pretences] wear out, and expose their folly; for Solomon declares that a hoary head is a crown of glory if it be found in the way of righteousness.

That old age is an incurable malady is only partially true, for some vigorous persons pass fourscore years without ever having caught it; or they have it so lightly that nobody suspects them. "Old" is a relative term after all. I have known people who were rather pitifully old at fifty; and when I met that swift-footed Christian, William E. Dodge (senior), at the age of seventy-five, with the brisk gait of a boy, and with scarcely a gray hair on his head, I said to him, "You are one of the youngest men in New York."

How to keep young—that is the problem; and it is a vitally important problem; for it really means, how to make the most of life and to bring in the largest revenue of service for the Master.

Healthy heredity counts for a great deal. Longevity runs in certain clean-lived families. For example, that stalwart philanthropist, Neal Dow, alert at ninety-two, told me that his Quaker father reached ninety-four, his grandfather eighty-five, and his great-grandfather ninety. Such inherited vigor is a capital to start with, and not to be wasted. On the other hand, one of the most atrocious of crimes is that committed by some parents who not only shorten their own days, but make long life an impossibility to their offspring.

Supposing that a man has a fairly good and unmortgaged constitution to start with, there are several practices and methods to ward off the infirmities of a premature old age.

The first and most important is—to keep the commandments. Our Creator has written certain laws on our mortal bodies—laws as irrevocable as those written on the stone-tablets of Sinai; laws for the breach of which Jesus Christ has made no atonement. To squander vital resources by violating these laws, or even by neglecting them, is an unpardonable sin.

There are suicides in Christian churches—yes, in some Christian pulpits! Rigid care as to a digestible diet does not mean fussiness. It means a clear head, clean blood, and a chance for longevity. Stimulants are dangerous just in proportion as they become indispensable. Hard brain-work, hearty eating, and no physical exercise are the short road to a minister's grave. That famous patriarch of the New England pulpit, Dr. Nathanael Emmons, who was vigorous at ninety-five, used to say, "I always get up from the table a little hungry." The all-comprehensive rule of diet is very simple—whatever harms more than it helps, let alone. Wilful dyspepsia is an abomination to the Lord.

A second essential to a healthy longevity is the repair of our resources by sound and sufficient sleep. Insomnia is worse than any of the plagues of Egypt; it kills a man or woman by inches. How much sleep is absolutely necessary to bodily vigor must be left to nature; she will tell you if you don't fool with her. "Burning the midnight oil," commonly means burning up life before your time. Morning is the time for work; one hour before noon is worth five after sunset.

When a man who has as much strain on his brain and on his nervous sensibilities as most ministers have goes to his bedroom, he should school himself to the habit of dismissing all thoughts about outside matters. If he has difficulty in doing this, he should pray for divine help to do it. This suggestion is as applicable to hard-working business men and to care-laden wives and housekeepers as it is to ministers or brain-workers in any profession.

That wonderful physical and mental phenomenon of this century, Mr. Gladstone, once told me that he had made it a rule to lock every affair of State and every other care outside of his bedroom door. To this excellent habit he attributed his sound sleep; and to his refreshing sleep he largely attributed his vigorous longevity. Paddy's rule is a good one—"when you slape, pay attintion to it." Personally, I may remark that it is to a full quota of slumber at night and a brief nap after a noon meal that I owe fifty-three years of steady work without a single Sunday on a sick bed.

To keep young, every man or woman should endeavor to graduate their labors according to their age. After three score and ten lighten up the loads. It is over-work that wears out life; just as it is the driving of a horse after he is tired that hurts him and shortens his days. But while excess of labor is injurious to the old, an entire cessation from all labor is still worse. A workless life is commonly a worthless life. If a minister lays off the burdens of the pastorate, let him keep the tools sharp by a ministry-at-large with pen and tongue. When a merchant or tradesman retires from business for himself, let him serve the public, or aid Christ's cause by enlisting in enterprises of philanthropy.

Rust has been the ruin of many a bright intellect. The celebrated Dr. Archibald Alexander, of the Princeton Theological Seminary, kept young by doing a certain amount of intellectual work every day, so that he should not lose his touch. He was as full of sap on the day before his death as he was when a missionary in Virginia at the age two and twenty. He prepared and often used a prayer that was so beautiful that I quote a portion of it for my fellow-disciples whose life-clock has struck three score and ten:

"Oh, most merciful God, cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not if my strength faileth. May my hoary head be found in righteousness. Preserve my mind from dotage and imbecility, and my body from protracted disease and excruciating pain.

Deliver me from despondency in my declining years, and enable me to bear with patience whatever may be Thy holy will. I humbly ask that my reason may be continued to the last; and that I may be so comforted and supported that I may leave my testimony in favor of the reality of religion and of Thy faithfulness in fulfilling Thy gracious promises. And when my spirit leaves this clay tenement, Lord Jesus, receive it! Send some of the blessed angels to convoy my inexperienced soul to the mansions which Thy love has prepared; and oh, may I have an abundant entrance ministered unto me into the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

This beautiful petition flooded his closing years with sweet peace and a strength unbroken to the last.

A sore temptation to the aged is a tendency to querulousness and pessimism. Losses are unduly lamented, and gains are not duly recognized. While we cherish and cling to many of the things that are old, and are all the better for having been tested, let us not seek to put our eyes in the back of our heads and live only in the past. Keep step with the times; keep sympathy with young hearts; keep in touch with every new-born enterprise of charity, and in line with the marchings of God's providence. A ten minutes of chat or play with a grandchild may freshen you more than an hour spent with an old companion or over an old book.

Above all, keep your hearts in the love of God, and walk in the warm sunshine of Christ's countenance. Our "Indian Summer" ought to be about the most golden period of a life consecrated to Him who bought us with His precious blood.

Eye hath not seen, tongue nath not told,
And ear hath not heard it sung,
How buoyant and fiesh—tho' it seems to grow old,
Is a heart forever young.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE CHURCH AS A FIELD.

BY ALVANO C. GODDARD.

By the seaside of Galilee Christ taught his followers that the results of the "word" sown varies with the soil that received it. With some it found no lodging place, with others it gave great promise at first, but did not bear fruit, while another class received the word, but marred their fruitfulness with the affairs of this world, and the last class bore fruit—some thirty, some sixty, and some an hundred fold. We have no question about the sowing upon all these kinds of soil. The Salvation Army and the wealthy city church may choose a different part; the missionary, the evangelist, and the pastor may be engaged with soil widely different; but by all means all are to be reached. The subject that specially concerns us in this is the relation of the organized church to each of these classes of Christians that result from the varied sowing. All are agreed in receiving the fruitful class into full membership, and that the wayside hearer is not to be received. About the two intermediate classes much difference of opinion and much difficulty arises. In the first place, at what stage of development in grace are we to receive them, if at all. In the early freshness of the springing grain it is beyond human judgment to tell to which class of soil different parts of the field belong. Shall we fence it all, water and tend it all, to make the best of the possibilities of each, or shall we wait till the heading grain assures us of a harvest? "Cares of this world" are right in their place, and the man prosperous in business may be bearing the hundred fold. As we are taught in the parable that follows that the wheat is to be garnered, it seems that the thorny ground is to be gleaned; but what of the stony ground, and how shall we distinguish it? What would the Master do? It may not be well to carry the figure of the parable further, but in the varied practices of different meetings we see many sad mistakes. Which is better—to receive those who profess faith in Christ and give evidence of being born again, or to wait till their experience and maturity assures us that they will stand? If we receive them at once, we may expect some of them will fall out by the way—a sad result, indeed, but one that occurred among the followers of our Lord, even among the twelve. Can we, by keeping them outside, insure better results? Will not our hesitation and doubt add to the probability of their backsliding? Will it be better for them or for the church that they fall outside? These are serious questions that each individual and each meeting must settle for themselves.

The next important question is how long shall we retain those who prove fruitless? To retain waste land in our fields may sound well in the deed; but look very bad to the passer-by, and all the while be a hindrance to successful farming. The expression, "land poor," that we hear applied to some farmers, is sadly applicable to some of our meetings. The statistical report looks well, but the answers to the queries are indefinite, while the practical results of their Christian activity requires little space. When a name on our books does not mean a brother or sister in Christ known and loved by the rest, some care ought to be taken. In some cases it may require more wisdom to justly deal with delinquent members than to select new ones. The solemn sense of responsibility and earnest prayer for guidance should characterize one no less than the other.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SPRING.

BERTHA C. THORNE.

Where Autumn leaves, unlocked by frost,
Perhaps through endless years!
Have flung their glories fast
O'er wooded slopes, like gleams of gold
From skies of sunset cast;
Swift at the bugle-note of Spring,
By blue-bird voices blown,
Dew-gemmed the violet strews the sod,
In myriad beauty sown.
When hopes and dreams lie crushed and dead,
By Sorrow's blast swept down
Upon our hearts, are there no flowers,
Which, braving Winter's frown,
When smiled upon by God's great love,
And watered with our tears,
Shall waft their fragrance—ah! who knows?—

ON THE WAY TO JOHANNESBURG, AFRICA.

It is a pleasant ride from Liverpool to Southampton. The pasture fields with sheep and cattle, the hedges, the narrow, winding, well-kept roads, with no grade crossings by the railroads. The canals, which seem to be used much more than at home, following a winding way, making many a pleasant view. The houses are of dark brick, with slate roofs and tile chimneys. The roadbed of the railroads probably cannot be surpassed, and good time is made, but one can but think the rolling stock is a generation behind the times. No checks for baggage, but one goes to the "van" and claims his "luggage," and "tips" the porter for putting it into the next van wherever there is a change of cars. That seems a bit slow, compared with our way, but people do not seem to be moving at such a breakneck speed over here; they take time enough to be more courteous and kind to one another and to strangers than do we. The slow draft horses do not trot, but look as if they could pull anything loose at both ends. One sees no evidence of an elevator in Liverpool; they do not have sixteen-story "sky-scrapers." Their "shops," or stores, open at nine and close at six. They may not work as long nor as fast as we do, but they will last longer, and at the same time have opportunity for something beside "keeping their nose on the grindstone" all the time. It seems that they have time to live, to work, and not exist under a nervous strain and with such a standard of wants that compels a man to constantly work to live.

The drydock at Southampton is an interesting sight. It is 750 feet long, 112 feet wide, and about 40 feet deep. The steamship "St. Paul" is in it now. To see one of those ocean liners out of water gives more clearly an idea of what a monster it is.

One meets so many different people on one of these sea voyages. One day it may be a Russian. He met a German in China who told him that a Russian did not have head enough to learn English. This made him angry, and meeting the German seven months after, he had to talk English and not German to that Russian. The Russian had been a machinist on the railroads in the far East. Another time a lady who had traveled in the Mediterranean, and to California by way of Panama, explained that the phosphorescence in the water is caused by fish-eggs. A preacher, who said he was an "heretic," whatever that means, said that Adam, poor innocent, ignorant creature, increased his knowledge by sinning, and so "fell up," and not down; and the race has fallen in that directions ever since. Another man made a noise like a pig when he was eating his soup, but he gave a most interesting account of a community of Germans in his State, who, having property in common, own a district seventeen miles square, worth thirty-two million dollars. An Englishman, who has lived seven years in Johannesburg, spoke of his trip to Dawson City last summer. He did not think much of the place. An American said his idea of civilizing the Africans is to do it with a gun. A German, a member of the Salvation Army, an earnest man, who had worked at his trade, instrument maker, in Scotland, England and the United States, now on his way to South Africa, said that the Salvation Army people are "noisy Quakers." A group of eight Swiss missionaries are going to South Africa, some of whom have been out before. They have part of the Bible in two dialects. They say that the work of the Paris Missionary Society has trebled in the last few years, especially since they have undertaken the work in Madagascar. And so the time goes. One has but to listen (and he needs to cultivate that art as well as that of talking), and he can gain lessons from the life and experiences of others. And in it all God gives many an opportunity to speak personally of His love and care, and much of the Gospels give accounts of the personal work of our Lord. May His Spirit be in us, the power and wisdom to follow His example, wherever we are.

OSCAR ROBERTS.

S. S. "Tintagel Castle," Fourth month 12th.

PEACE SIGNATURES.

The Philadelphia Committee, who launched "the message of sympathy to the Czar," desire, through their faithful ally, THE AMERICAN FRIEND, to thank all those who have sent in signatures. We know [through experience] that no small amount of trouble has been taken in obtaining them. They have come from South Dakota, Kansas, California, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Tennessee, Louisiana, and other places. Twenty-three universities and colleges are represented, principally by their presidents, and some in all of their faculties. Six bishops, some fifty or sixty clergymen of various denominations, heads of institutions, trust companies, lawyers and doctors. Between six and seven thousand persons have signified their desire for peace and arbitration. The roll has been expressed to our Ambassador at St. Petersburg, the Hon. Charlemagne Tower, to be presented to the Czar, and the way was opened by letters sent before. A duplicate message was forwarded to Andrew D. White, one of our representatives to The Hague. All belated signatures will be carefully sent by mail. When we met to paste the sheets together, and glanced at the names [many familiar] sent from their far-away homes, a sense of nearness came over us never felt before, and a great desire that we might be more closely united in the bonds of peace. Wm. Penn's "Holy Experiment in Government" is our common heritage, "The only government," said Thomas Jefferson, "ever administered on Christian principles." Let us not go backward, but forward towards that model.

'Tis so, the dead Past springs resuscitate
To enrich the present with its buried gold;
We raise the early issues in the late,
And in the new Crusade revive the old.

We, too, though armed with but the Spirit's sword,
Go to reclaim our sacred things from loss;
We, too, may fight the battle of the Lord,
And swell the mustering legions of the Cross.

The great thought thrills us like a breath of God,
Startling the inmost silence of the mind,
And rolls from sea to sea, and sends abroad
A sound as of a rushing, mighty wind;

A sound that shall go out to all the world,
Echoing forever, ever to increase,
'Till war's red banner shall at last be furled,
Leaving alone the silver flag of Peace.

—From a poem written for the English Peace Crusade by a Lancashire girl,—Gertrude Ford.

HOME LIFE IN PALESTINE.*

Let us take you to visit an average home—or, rather, house—in Ramallah, for what we associate with "home,"—the sweet influence and pleasant companionship,—is not to be found.

The building is of stone, the walls thick, and the roof almost flat, covered with mud rolled hard to keep out the rains. There is only one room, and as we step inside the door we may run against a camel or a donkey, for they are afraid to leave their animals outside, lest they should be stolen.

There is no window—save, perhaps, a small opening, one foot square, in one wall—and, standing in the doorway, we keep the light from entering while waiting a minute to get our eyes accustomed to the darkness. We are greeted kindly and welcomed warmly. Now we can see the interior and notice that the ceiling is arched, the walls meeting overhead in the centre. Many houses have a floor built on arches and making what might be called a cellar underneath. A plow, of the pattern probably used in Abraham's time, is lying there, besides one or two large earthenware jars and a heap of bush for burning.

Accepting the invitation, we climb several rough steps to the living apartment and seat ourselves on comforts which are placed for us. These are really the bedding materials, which are spread on the floor at bedtime and piled on one side during the day. Do not look too particularly at them—they may not be very clean; for some of the people come in with bare feet from the muddy streets, or with their clothes saturated with oil from the oil mill, and go straight to bed.

A whole family, and perhaps two, live in this room, sharing it in common, and chickens are most probably running about anywhere they please. In one corner is a pile of olives, in another a heap of wheat and perhaps some lentils. Near by is a stone hand-mill, at which two women usually grind, as in the days when our Saviour was on earth. A small fire may be burning at one side, making the air uncomfortable with smoke. Or, a little charcoal is glowing in an earthenware brazier. The wife takes a handful of coffee and browns it over the coals; then, putting it into a mortar, she pounds it to a fine powder, and soon hands us tiny cups filled with the fragrant beverage.

* Written especially for the Christian Endeavorers.

If the husband is at home, he has been telling us that they feel honored by our call; and he has showered compliments upon us in a style characteristic of the Oriental, without always meaning what he says.

In course of conversation you will discover that he considers himself a Christian, and seems surprised that we should ask such a question. As he is neither Moslem nor Jew, he is "of course" a Christian. But afterwards we shall probably find that he is by no means what a follower of Jesus should be. If he takes a dislike to some other man, he may seek to injure him by destroying his grape vines, or cutting the bark all around his olive trees, so that they will die. He will, quite likely, steal when he can get the opportunity, and has no true idea of the difference between truth and falsehood.

He is not a hypocrite, but lives up to the teaching and example of the priests; keeps the fasts and feasts as he has been told to; and thinks he is a Christian.

Poor people! Why should we expect them to know better? They have been taught to believe their priest even before the Bible, and so are not willing to learn better—at least, not at first. The Holy Spirit, we know, is able to lead them to the light; and as we are faithful to continue delivering the messages He gives us, and to let our lives bear witness to the truth, we feel assured that He will shine into those dark hearts of theirs. Praise the Lord, some show that they have received rays of light from the Sun of Righteousness, and are trying to walk in the path He makes plain before them.

Let us take our leave, and look into other houses. In a few of those recently built there are windows, and when even the light of day enters a room it tends to purify and cleanse it. Some of the houses are clean and tidy, but the vast majority are far from it. The girls and women are sold for wives, often having nothing to say as to whom they marry. Many are married when very young, not more than seven, eight or ten years of age. Parents frequently purchase wives for their sons, and sometimes boast of how cheaply they obtained them. A few have confessed that the money they received for their daughters has never been blessed to them. Those who have both sons and daughters expect to exchange the girls for wives for their boys, or to use the money to procure wives for them.

Poor women! Not welcomed at birth; generally not thought worthy of being sent to school; married off for money; spending their lives carrying water from the springs and wood from the wilderness; grinding wheat and baking bread; not loved by their husbands as much as their sons are; not loving their husbands as well as they love their children; how do they manage to be as happy as they are?

Here is one we meet, whose face and clothes are very dirty. Let us ask her the reason. She explains that she is in mourning for a relative, and so cannot wash. One woman, whose brother is a leper in Jerusalem, said she would not wash until she died, but would mourn all her days. When we remonstrate with them, they answer, "We are Fellaheen (the peasant class), and it is our custom. If we should change, the others will laugh at us, and say all manner of unkind things about us." And they do not feel able to stand against such treatment. But we are glad to say that light is breaking in, and gradually changes are being made.

It is only in Christian countries that the children are well cared for. And Palestine is no exception to heathen lands, for the little ones are sadly neglected, though their fathers and mothers love them. Families do not take their meals together, but each one helps himself, or herself, when hungry, and eats anywhere. Many children die because their parents do not know how to care for them; and others have eyes diseased or injured for want of attention. One woman who brought her baby to the doctor, when told to give it a bath, said she thought sick children ought not to be washed. And this belief is almost universal.

A girl, who was given a written prescription, instead of getting the medicine put the paper under her head-dress and wore it there. She was surprised that her eyes did not get well.

Many other instances might be told, showing the sad state of darkness among this needy people.

Dear fellow Endeavorers, who live in a land of which we can say, "Thy light is come," and "The glory of the Lord is risen upon thee," can we ever praise our Heavenly Father enough for all His bountiful blessings so freely bestowed? Is it to Him you owe the great blessings of "home, sweet home," with its loving associations and its atmosphere of heaven; the sweet intercourse of father, mother, brother and sister; the light and freedom of the gospel; the preciousness of His love and presence, and the joy of living in the light of His countenance.

To you is the command, "Arise! shine!" and may you be ever faithful in letting your light so shine—so reflecting the beams that warm and cheer you—that many shall be brought to live in the sunshine of His love. Our prayer is that He will bless you abundantly in your endeavors for Him at home, and in the work here, in which He has given you a part.

WILFRID AND DELLA D. ROWNTREE.

Ramallah, Palestine.

Good thoughts are no better than good dreams, unless they be executed.

It is better to know less than to know so much that ain't so.—Josh Billings.

Absence of occupation is not rest. A mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.—Cowper.

Christ arises and shines upon souls, in order that they may arise and shine.—Robert M. McCheyne.

When the Church is afire with missionary zeal, she will light the world to Christ.—The Wellspring.

The Star of Bethlehem is still rising, and it will continue to rise until all the false lights of the world have been obscured.—W. T. Ellis.

LETTERS FROM WHITTIER.

The following letters were written by Whittier to his friend William J. Allison, of Burlington N. J. They have never before been made public.—ED.

My dear friend : Amesbury, 9 mo. 30, 1842.

* * * I suppose thou hast heard of our slave case here in Boston. It is the first which has transpired for the last three years and has created an intense interest throughout the state. So powerful was the feeling in his favor that I feared a tremendous outbreak would follow any attempt to convey him away. I have just learned that the slave-hunter and his vile lawyer have abandoned their victim. But the affair has created an excitement which we shall improve for the purpose of securing the passage by our next Legislature of laws prohibiting under severe penalties any of our citizens, of our state or municipal officers, from aiding in any way the despicable man-hunters, in reclaiming their runaway human property.

What a loss to us—the country—the world even—is the death of Dr. Channing? Where has he left his equal?

* * * * *

The pure, the wise, the good, the truly Christian, will love to linger upon his memory as that of a man who, like his Divine Master, went about doing good—full of love to God and man—an eloquent apostle of the philanthropy of the Gospel. Hast thou read his last glorious effort, his dying testimony in behalf of Freedom? The echoes of that holy utterance will never die among our mountains. They speak, like Faleno's, "to time and to eternity." I shall send thee, as soon as I can obtain a copy, John Pierpont's sermon on his death.

* * * * *

If thou sees Dr. C. Wistar thank him from me for his philanthropic and self-denying proposition in "The Friend" relative to the colored people. His brother Thomas also has evidenced a good degree of the old Quaker spirit in his journey to Ohio, to seek out the devoted and martyred Wattles. God bless him for so doing. By the bye, hast thou heard recently from Wattles? I hope his life may be spared—there are so few willing or indeed able to take his place.

* * * * *

We have our annual Thanksgiving on Fifth-day next, specially ordered by the Governor of the Old Bay State. It don't take quite so strong hold of "Friends" as of others, but even they feel its contagious influence more or less. There is an awful massacre of fat turkeys, and ducks, and chickens, and geese—acres of pumpkin pies are smoking from the ovens, and all sorts of preparations are being made for our great Yankee festival—our feast of tabernacles—our yearly ingathering of scattered families and sundered households. Spite of Quakerism and its ascetic notions, I like this good old custom. It is beautiful—full of kindness, and charity, and love, and good will; and were I Governor, I would have half a dozen of them instead of one.

* * * * *

Sincerely thy friend, J. G. W.

Dear Friend :

Amesbury, 1, 16, 1853.

I am glad to see that thou hast undertaken to continue "The Non-Slaveholder," believing as I do that such a paper is needed. It touches a point of especial interest to the religious society with which we are connected; and in inculcating the particular duty of abstinence from the products of an oppressive system, it leads us also to inquire more closely of ourselves how far in our business, our habits of living, and in our general intercourse with our fellow-men, we are directly or indirectly giving aid or countenance to other evils and other forms of oppression.

* * * * *

9 mo. 30, 1853.

I regretted that I was unable to see our English friends when they arrived in Boston. I understand they brought with them two or three large packages of books and pamphlets; and I have been afraid the distribution of these in the Southern states might seriously affect the success of their mission. I do not know as they intend to circulate anti-slavery tracts or books there, but if such is their prospect, looking at it from my point of view, I am fearful they will meet with difficulty. If thou hast occasion to write them I wish thee would offer a word of caution in this matter. After all, if we believe they are rightly engaged here in the Divine Master's service, perhaps we cannot do better than to leave them to His counsel and direction. Ever and affectionately thy friend,

J. G. W.

My dear W. J. A.:

12—2nd, 1853.

I have just heard from our A. S.* Friends, from Vicksburg, Miss. All well, and with the exception of Gov. Price, getting on well with their mission. It would seem that in most cases our friends have been received courteously, and in the case of the Governors of Illinois and Wisconsin, with marked kindness. It seems clear to me that they are doing a good work and one the fruits of which will appear hereafter. I took the matter of thy letter into consideration and was about to write something when I got J. Candler's letter, and after reading that I felt that it was best and safest to leave our dear friends to pursue silently and quietly the path of their duty.

8th mo., 1856.

What evil times we have fallen upon! My heart bleeds for Kansas. I am grieved at the resort to arms on the part of the free state settlers. Their wrongs have been terrible, but I have no faith in overcoming evil with evil.

Humanly speaking, I see no hope save in the election of Fremont, and I trust every Friend in New Jersey and Pennsylvania will vote for him as a candidate opposed to border ruffianism at home and to Robbery and Piracy, according to the Ostend Circular, abroad. The Friends in Kansas are deserving of our sympathy in this season of trial and peril. The Friends' school I see has been broken up. May our Heavenly Father give them wisdom, and strength and fortitude

*Anti-Slavery Friends from England, mentioned in the former letter.

Almost any one can fight, even in a bad cause; but the sublime self-abnegation of martyrdom is rarely found.

Enclosed are $2.00 for 8 copies of "The Non-Slaveholder." I hope thee will be encouraged to persevere in thy good work.

Ever thine, J. G. W.

AN ABSTRACT OF THE THIRTY-SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE FRIENDS' FREEDMEN ASSOCIATION.

At its meeting a year ago the Association directed the purchase of a farm. After much inquiry one of about ninety acres has been bought. It is good land and well watered. Its buildings are commodious and need little repair. It is on the railroad, less than a mile from the station of Christiansburg, and in full sight of the school building of the Christiansburg Institute. Three members of the Executive Committee from Philadelphia, one of them a practical farmer, have visited the farm and have set on foot farming operations.

The purchase money was $4,200.00. After much effort the money was collected and the farm paid for. About $800.00 are still needed to do necessary repairs, buy implements and stock, which should be done without incurring debt on farm account, or conflicting with the conduct of the school itself.

Concerning the farm, our friend, Booker T. Washington, writes: "I am quite sure that this will mean a new start and a new life for the whole work."

A small hand printing press, given us by a good friend, and upon which our little school paper, "The Helper," has been printed, has been replaced by a larger one, and "The Helper" is thereby much improved in appearance and increased in size.

The general work of the school continues to be satisfactory. It filled up faster than last year, reached a larger enrollment, and had a larger average attendance. Its enrollment in January was 174, and later reached 227.

Its Industrial Department numbered 43 students. Three of its ex-students have found employment at their trades.

The school employs in all seven teachers. The county has increased its appropriation from $375.00 to $425.00 a year. Including this appropriation, $2,300.00 has been devoted to school purposes during the past year, and a like amount will be required during the coming year. The efforts of the Executive Committee would be much facilitated if Friends would become annual subscribers.

There has been no year since the sixties more animating than the closing one. It has brought us the farm, a renewal of general interest and an accession of workers.

The events of the year have forced our attention to the necessity of the work. It has convinced us that the problem of the negro is still upon us. It is said that 5,000,000 of them are in ignorance, and outrage and cruelty are too often heard of. But we must deal with the race as with individuals, with man and woman, boy and girl.

At Bagdad, on the Tigris, bridges and rafts are made of light poles lashed to floating bottles.

If at Christiansburg our students learn how to keep their heads above water, and to aid others to do so, we will have done our part to help the race to swim.

On behalf of the Committee.

RICHARD WOOD, Chairman.

The International Lesson.

Lesson VIII.

SECOND QUARTER.

Fifth month 21, 1899

CHRIST BEFORE THE HIGH PRIEST.

John 18: 15-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—He came unto his own and his own received him not.—John 1: 11.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 15.—Christ before the High Priest. John 18: 15-27.
Third-day, Fifth mo. 16.—Peter's Tears. Luke 22: 54-62.
Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 17.—Before the Council. Luke 22: 63-71.
Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 18.—A Challenge. John 8: 42-47.
Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 19.—The Sinless Saviour. 1 Pet. 2: 17-25.
Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 20.—Warning to Peter. Matt. 26: 31-35.
First-day, Fifth mo. 21.—Prayer against Temptation. Ps. 141.

The present lesson follows closely upon the last. The parallel accounts in the other Gospels should be read. There are slight differences, but all agree in essential particulars.

15. The disciples appear to have fled without exception, but, finding that no attempt was made to take them, two returned and followed Jesus. One seems to have joined the band around Christ, and the other, Peter, followed "afar off" (Matt. 26: 58). "Another disciple." Who was this? Some say James; some even say Judas. But the greater preponderance of opinion is that it was John himself, and the whole context is in accordance with this supposition. "Known," etc. We do not know how, but the acquaintance was enough to allow his entrance into the palace without question. "Palace." Rather, "courtyard" or court (compare Luke 22: 55, Rev. Ver.). It is not unlikely that Annas and Caiaphas lived in the same building, but on opposite sides of the courtyard—such a supposition removes a number of difficulties in harmonizing the account of John with those of the other Evangelists.

16. "Stood." "Was standing," Revised Version. "Then went out," etc. Owing to his acquaintance with the family of the high priest, he was able to persuade the doorkeeper—a woman (compare Acts 12: 13)—to let Peter come in.

17. "Art thou also one of this man's disciples?" Revised Version. Note the omission of the "not." She as much as said, "Art thou, as well as this man (the other disciple), one of the disciples of the prisoner?" The emphasis, judging from the other accounts, was put in such a way as to anticipate a negative answer. "He saith," etc. A flat denial and a lie. Mark, who is thought to have written at Peter's dictation, or with his approval, gives the full account of the denials.

18. This fire was doubtless a brazier of burning charcoal. The tense of the verbs implies the group had been standing some time around the brazier. The nights of Fourth month in Jerusalem are often very chilly—it was probably about two o'clock in the morning. Peter seems to have tried to appear as one of the crowd. Luke adds that he stood "warming himself in the light of the fire," and so was conspicuous.

19. "The high priest," etc. It is not clear from John's account whether Annas or Caiaphas is meant; either supposition has great difficulties when taken in connection with verse 24. On the whole, it seems not unlikely that John describes a preliminary examination before Annas at which Caiaphas may have been present; then Jesus was sent (verse 24) to the formal hearing before Caiaphas, the actual high priest. It may be pointed out that ex-high priests, such as Annas, were often called by the title, just as at the present time ex-governors very often continue to bear the title in common conversation. "Of His disciples." This was to try to get evidence which might be used against him. "Doctrinē." Teaching. Hoping to entrap him.

20. "I have spoken openly." Revised Version. Without reserve; there was nothing to be concealed. "In synagogue." Revised Version. As we say, "in church," or "in meeting."

21. "Ask them that have heard me." Jesus refused to say anything to bring trouble upon his disciples. The reference is to a regular procedure where witnesses were called. "Behold, these know the things which I said." Revised Version. He appeals to the bystanders as witnesses.

22. It is not certain whether a blow with the hand or with a rod is meant, the original now will bear either interpretation. It need hardly be pointed out that this action was wholly illegal.

23. Jesus does not speak to the charges, but calmly protests against the illegal striking. Compare Paul's action (Acts 23: 3). Christ gives a practical illustration of how his injunction (Matt. 5: 36) should be carried out. From his action and words it is seen that quiet, dignified protest and even rebuke are not forbidden.

24. This verse has already been discussed in the comment on verse 19. It should read "Annas therefore sent him bound unto Caiaphas."

25. "Now Simon was standing and warming himself. They said therefore unto him, 'Art thou also one of his disciples?'" Revised Version. On comparing the four accounts it will be seen that they differ considerably. Matthew says, "and the maid;" Mark, "the maid saw him and began again to say;" Luke, "a certain maid;" John, "they said," etc. Luke makes the interval between the second and third denials "about one hour;" from John the third would seem to have followed very closely upon the second. The essential fact of at least three denials is asserted by all.

26. There was an effort to identify Peter as one of the disciples. The first three Gospels make it turn on the Galilean speech of Peter. John alone gives the most striking identification. "The cock crew." This should be "a cock crew;" there is no article in the original in any of the Gospels. It seems strange that John gives no account of Peter's repentance, but he always writes with some definite end in view, and often passes over incidents which are not essential to the point in hand. Here it seems to be to show the divinity of Christ by the fulfilment of his prophecy (John 13: 38), and to show the intensity of his suffering increased by the denial of his disciples.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. Avoid courting temptation.
2. Shun those who are enemies of that which is good. Compare Ps. 1: 1, 2.
3. Read Elizabeth Barrett Browning's sonnets, "The Two Sayings," "The Look," "The Meaning of the Look."

THE PATHWAYS OF THE HOLY LAND.

The pathways of Thy land are little changed
Since Thou wert there;
The busy world through other ways has ranged
And left thee bare.

The rocky path still climbs the glowing steep
Of Olivet;
Though rains of two milleniums wear it deep
Men tread it yet.

Still to the garden o'er the brook it leads,
Quiet and low;
Before his sheep the shepherd on it treads,
His voice they know.

The wild fig throws broad shadows o'er it still,
As once o'er Thee;
Peasants go home at evening up that hill
To Bethany.

And as, when gazing, Thou didst weep o'er them—
From height to height
The white roofs of discrowned Jerusalem
Burst on our sight.

These ways were strewn with garments once and palms,
Which we tread thus:
Here, through Thy triumph, on Thou passedst, calm,
On to Thy cross.

The waves have washed fresh sands upon the shore
Of Galilee;
But chiseled on thy hillsides evermore
Thy paths we see.

Man has not changed them in that slumbering land,—
Nor time effaced;
Where Thy feet trod to bless we still may stand;
All can be traced.

Yet we have traces of Thy foot-steps far Truer than these;
Where'er the poor, the tried and suffering are,
Thy steps Faith sees.

Nor with fond sad regrets Thy steps we trace;
Thou art not dead:
Our path is onward till we see Thy face
And hear Thy tread.

And now wherever meet Thy lowliest band
In praise and prayer,
There is Thy presence, there Thy Holy Land;
Thou, Thou art there.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

It is of interest to know that Dr. Henry Van Dyke, at present pastor of Brick Church, of New York city, and soon to become professor of literature in Princeton University, has proposed the formation of a new creed, which he considers adapted to effect a "union of conservatism and liberality." He emphasizes these points: "First, the fulness of the Fatherhood of God; second, the Sonship of Christ; third, the all-sufficiency of Christ's Atonement; fourth, the living presence of the Holy Ghost; fifth, the sovereignty of God; sixth, the liberty of every soul to be with God or against God; seventh, the communion of the soul with God; eighth, the supreme authority of the Bible; ninth, the absolute necessity of love and good works; tenth, the immortal life, or heaven." While not so inclusive as the very broad creed formulated a year or more ago by John Watson (Ian Maclaren), we doubt whether this even will satisfy the majority of Christians. The suggestion, however, is significant, and following the adoption in England of the General Catechism, it indicates significantly the movement in men's minds towards unification and brotherhood in church work.

It seems that Professor Charles A. Briggs, of Union Theological Seminary, whose heresy trial and exit from the Presbyterian Church are still fresh in the memory of all, is destined to opposition in his entrance to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church. He has applied for ordination in that body, and with the strong friendship of Bishop Potter to encourage him, there is little doubt of his acceptance. He is, however, being severely attacked by certain sections of the church, and particularly by a few high-churchmen, to whom the broad theology of Dr. Briggs is very offensive. The most pronounced objection has come from F. J. Clendenin, rector of St. Peter's, in West Chester, New York, where Dr. Briggs expects to be ordained on the 14th inst. While he is being assailed by his critics, it is of interest to read the following words, taken from one of his recently reported sermons: "A new age of the world is at hand—an age of love and Christian knowledge, an age in which the Divine Spirit will smite all agnosticism and pierce every doubt with the invincible two-edged sword of truth."

Thought expands—action animates, but narrows.—Goethe.

Christ is the ladder on which God descends to man, and man ascends to God.

Some people's busy lives are merely an unquiet way of doing nothing.—Seneca.

J. Hudson Taylor calls for twenty able, earnest and healthy young men to form an itinerant evangelistic band who will devote themselves for five years to preaching the Gospel in China without marrying or settling in any one place. Funds are now ready for this enterprise.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FIFTH MONTH 21, 1899.

THE GIFT OF POWER.

Acts 1: 1-8.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 15.—Promised by prophets. Isa. 44: 1-3; Joel 2: 28-32.
Third-day, Fifth mo. 16.—Promised by Jesus. Luke 24: 49-53.
Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 17.—The endowment of power. Acts 2: 1-4.
Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 18.—The work of the Spirit. John 14: 26; 16: 7-15.
Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 19.—Guided by the Spirit. Acts 8: 26-40.
Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 20.—Quickened by the Spirit. Ezek. 37: 1-14.

To a little handful of men our Lord had given the most gigantic task ever assigned to mortal men,—that of the evangelization of the whole world. No exchequer, no great nation guaranteeing security, no prestige even with their own people, no experience with great enterprises, no profound scholarship, none of those things upon which men rely for the foundations of success, were back of them in this vast enterprise. Their simplicity, ignorance, disappointed hopes, and lack of unity seemed insurmountable obstacles to success. When their Lord is about to leave them, knowing that all things were His, He chose the best, the immediately essential qualification of spiritual power, and bestowed it upon them. Learning, financial resources, experience, could come with time, but this was imperative.

But our topic is misleading. It was not a "gift of power" they needed. It was the Holy Spirit. We do not receive power apart from Him. We receive Him who is power. The word for power in the original is the same as the word from which we derive our word dynamo. The Holy Spirit is a dynamo of light and power within us.

The power of the Spirit is given on conditions. The "world" cannot receive Him, because the world is a great self-seeking, God-forgetting, sense life, without spiritual vision to see the Spirit or any perceptive faculties whereby to know Him. "It seeth Him not, neither knoweth Him. Other conditions stated by Jesus are that we should love Him, should obey Him, and should wait for the Spirit to come, and should receive Him. There is no reason why every Christian should not be filled with the Spirit except the failure to comply with these conditions. We may put the same truth more emphatically and say that He has come, and now is in the world, and all that is necessary is for us to receive Him. But it is just as when the Word was in the world, and the world knew Him not. So the Spirit is with the church, and the church knows Him not. The modern philosophical statement of the "Divine Immanence" as a beautiful thing, but may easily become a mischievous substitute for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. "He dwelleth with you, and shall be in you," suggests both Divine immanence and also Divine manifestation in the believer's consciousness.

The Holy Spirit is a purifying power. He destroys the unrighteous nature in us by the fire of His judgments, said Robert Barclay, and it is the best exegesis of the baptism with fire yet given.

The Holy Spirit is an illuminating power. He opens our understanding, that we, too, may understand the Scriptures.

The Holy Spirit is a quickener of the spiritual senses. He imparts a relish for spiritual things. The eye is anointed to see the deeper things of God; to see the earth as full of the glory of God; to see opportunities for service, fields white unto the harvest. The ear is opened to hear the voice of the Lord. His whisper is enough, now that we are near Him. When we were farther away He had to call loudly. Now our spiritual consciousness is vastly heightened. We lose out taste for the carnal, worldly amusements and delight ourselves in the purer pleasures of the spiritual life.

The Holy Spirit awakens the sluggish affections. He turns the dull, stagnant current of our love into a broad, deep river of devotion unto our Lord. Many a Christian has never yet known what love is. God is honored, feared, worshipped, but there is no passion of love, no ardor of soul.

The Holy Spirit is a gift-bestowing power. On the day of Pentecost the disciples found themselves possessed of gifts they had never known before. Who would have suspected that Peter would be a preacher? His worst trouble had been when he opened his mouth; now, he is a power for God. Thousands of souls in the church have never dreamed of the gifts that are possible to them if only the Holy Spirit could come in power into their lives.

The Holy Spirit is enlarging power. Religious life without His fulness always yields to the narrowing tendencies of humanity. The Jewish church was always narrow. Only here and there did a man break its bonds, and, like Isaiah, soar aloft into the free air of spiritual vision. The Holy Spirit in the church at Jerusalem immediately began the enlarging process. Stephen and Phillip were enlarged, the one to see the truth that meant the end of temple services, the other to go to the despised Samaritans. Peter was enlarged at Joppa. Paul's soul was enlarged until all the bonds of Judaism were broken, and the church opened to all the world. But it was a terrible struggle. Ages have not completed it. We would still have all Gentiles circumcised with our own particular marks of dogma or method. "These people are not Friends," is a cry still uttered as violently as when Paul was accused of bringing Greeks into the temple.

The Holy Spirit is witnessing power. "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me in Jerusalem, and in Judea, and Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." The church ceases to bear witness in proportion as she loses the power of the Spirit. At the same time she substitutes testimony for non-essentials or side issues for the testimony concerning Jesus and His power to save. The early church for three hundred years was a witnessing church, and it conquered the Roman empire. The "lay effort" ceased and the world triumphed over the church.

The Holy Spirit is praying power. "At that day ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you. Verily, I say unto you, if ye shall ask anything in My name it shall be done unto you." It is deeply instructive to trace the connection between the Holy Spirit and prayer, both as taught in the Scriptures and in the history of the church. He teaches us what to pray for, inspires our faith, adds His own intercession, helping our infirmities.

The Holy Spirit is transforming power. When Jesus was on earth it is said of the Spirit that it "rested" upon Him. Ever since His departure the Holy Spirit has been seeking to reproduce His image in us, that He might also "rest" with us. "We are transformed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord." Here is the supreme purpose of His coming. He would make a bride ready for the Lamb. He would fit us for the glorious state when the perfect harmonies of earth and heaven will be unmarred by any lack of correspondence to type, when creation shall have reached the fulfilment of all beatific visions spoken by all God's prophets since the world began.

NOTES FROM THE FIELD.

Recently a "Missionary Day" was observed at the First Friends' Church, Marion, Ind. The missionary committee of the Christian Endeavor had made arrangements beforehand for a self-denial week for missions. "Thank-offering" boxes were placed at the door, into which all who wished could place their offerings.

The pastor preached a missionary sermon, taking for his subject, "What shall be our attitude towards our new possessions?" The Endeavor meeting was made impressively missionary, and many deep thoughts were expressed. The committee received $5.25 for their trouble, and aroused a greater interest in foreign missions on the part of many of our members.

BOOK REVIEW.

"The Sir Roger De Coverley Papers," from the "Spectator," with introduction and notes by William Henry Hudson, Professor of English Literature in the Leland Stanford Junior University. Published by D. C. Heath & Co., Boston. This convenient edition contains all the papers (36) from the "Spectator" which have anything to do with Sir Roger De Coverley. There are nine illustrations, one being a portrait of Joseph Addison; the others imaginary pictures, showing the costumes and manners of the time of Queen Anne. An excellent introduction gives an account of Addison, Steele and Budgell, and information necessary to understand the papers. There are two useful maps of London in 1720, which show the position of the coffee-houses and other places referred to in the essays. The notes are full, explaining the allusions in the essays, and give frequent references to the "Spectator" and other books and papers of the time.

News from the Field.

It is with sadness and much sympathy that we record the death of Martha A. Jay, wife of Allen Jay. She has had a long struggle with a dread disease; and both she and her life companion have had a sore trial, as some of us know full well, but she has now gone to her peace after pain. Allen Jay will have the sympathy of many in his bereavement. He has long proved himself a good soldier in the holy warfare. It is our hope that he may have many years yet to do the work of his ministry and to finish his course.

Prof. George P. Fisher, of Yale University, delivered at Bryn Mawr College, Fifth month 5th, an interesting and valuable lecture, on "The Doctrines of the Quakers in Relation to Prior and to Present-Day Theology." It was particularly interesting to have the view of a student and authority in church history, and we hope later to publish the lecture in full for the benefit of our readers. Dr. Fisher is Professor of Ecclesiastical History, and author of important works on church history. He is a minister in the Congregational Church.

The following extract from the records of Greenwich Monthly Meeting, Rhode Island, is interesting, as showing how Friends felt a hundred years ago on the subject of Temperance. This extract is really a Yearly Meeting minute forwarded to the monthly meetings through the quarterly meetings. This same book of records contains the disownment of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, of revolutionary fame, for engaging in military service:

"It appearing that notwithstanding the advice and entreaties of this Meeting in 1784 and last year, divers of our members have been so inattentive thereto as not yet to forbear the practice of importing, trading in and handing out distilled liquors, to the weakening of their own hands and obstructing society from holding up this important testimony as becometh our holy profession, and a fresh exercise arising that their obstruction be removed, it is recommended to monthly meetings that committees be appointed to labor with all such as may continue in either of said practices or distilling, and endeavor to prevail with them to a cordial compliance with the advice of this Meeting, and if any should continue so disregardful of the unity of the body as to counteract them in this important concern, it is recommended that they be dealt with, and if unreclaimed, testified against as those who disregard the advice of their brethren, and the several monthly meetings are directed to have this minute inserted in their several books of discipline under the head, 'Spirituos Liqueurs.'"

PHILADELPHIA YEARLY MEETING.

A company of six interested Friends, including Charles Rhoads and John I. Glover, of Haddonfield, and Eliza H. Varney, of Canada, attended an appointed meeting at Barnegat, N. J., on Seventh-day afternoon, the 29th ult., and thence proceeded to Tuckerton, where meetings were held in the morning and evening in the Friends' Meeting-house, and in the afternoon at the Union Chapel.

William G. Hubbard, of Columbus, Ohio, is in Philadelphia, engaged in the work of the suppression of bad literature on railroad trains and in railroad stations. He attended Haverford meeting on the 7th.

There are in the Philadelphia Bible School Association thirteen schools and six Bible classes. The total enrollment for the past year was 1749, and the average attendance was 826.

BALTIMORE YEARLY MEETING.

Fishtown, Pa.—Eli G. Parker, of Iowa, attended Dunning's Creek Monthly Meeting on the 27th of Fourth month, also our First-day School morning meeting, and Union Endeavor meeting, on the following First-day. He held four evening meetings, and visited eight families. We know that he was sent of the Lord. Coming to this place a stranger it was most remarkable the way our Father led him. He was permitted to see some fruit of his labor, and we trust the seed sown fell upon prepared ground, which will bring forth an abundant harvest. Our prayers follow him as he goes to other fields of labor, that he may be used in bringing many souls into the Kingdom. M. E. W.

Eli G. Parker, a minister, from Lynn Grove Monthly Meeting, Iowa, satisfactorily visited Centre Monthly Meeting, held at Bellefonte, Pa., on the 19th of this month. He remained a few days and visited families, gave several Bible readings, and also visited the jail. All his services were encouraging to faith in Christ and consecration to His service.

John Wilhelm Rowntree and Alfred N. Brayshaw, of England, spent First-day the 7th, at Lincoln, Virginia.

Curwensville, Pa.—Eli G. Parker, of Iowa Yearly Meeting, has spent several days with us, attending the temperance meeting on Seventh-day evening. On First-day morning he was wonderfully led to speak to the condition of the meeting. He gave an earnest appeal to all present. On Third-day evening he was used of the Lord. He visited all the families, and we feel that his coming here was of the Lord.

MATILDA HARRIS.

CALIFORNIA YEARLY MEETING.

Pasadena, Cal.—By invitation of the Friends residing in Los Angeles, Pasadena Quarterly Meeting was held there on the 22d of Fourth month. These Friends have proved beyond doubt their ability to entertain royally.

The noon hour was spent in social converse around a long table, spread with everything needed to strengthen and refresh the "inner man."

The morning hour was specially spiritually uplifting. Much freedom in song, prayer, testimony and in the preaching of the Word was evident.

The annual reports were unusually full and satisfactory.

The plans for the new church building of Friends in Los Angeles are on paper, and they are hopeful that means may be forthcoming to build this summer.

This is certainly needed, as the present building is very small.

A number of fraternal delegates were present from Whittier Quarterly Meeting, which added life and interest to the meeting. J. R. TOWNSEND.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

The program for the Christian Workers' Training School is as follows:

Second-day, Sixth month 26th.—Devotional meeting—W. J. Hadley, leader, 7.30 p.m.

Third-day, Sixth month 27th.—Devotional—9 to 10 a.m. Normal Lesson—Chas. Sweet, 10 to 11 a.m. Homiletics and Sermon Outlines—Levi Rees, 11 to 12 a.m. New Testament History—Walter Malone, 2 to 3 p.m. Systematic and Proportionate Giving—3 to 4 p.m. Devotional meeting—7.30 p.m.

Fourth-day, Sixth month 28th.—Devotional—9 to 9.30 a.m. Workers' Hour—9.30 to 10 a.m. Old Testament History—Emma Malone, 10 to 11 a.m. Homiletics and Sermon Outlines—Levi Rees, 11 to 12 a.m. New Testament History—Walter Malone, 2 to 2.30 p.m. Systematic and Proportionate Giving—3 to 4 p.m. Devotional—7.30 p.m.

Fifth-day, Sixth month 29th.—Workers' Hour—9 to 9.30 a.m. Old Testament History—Emma Malone, 9.30 to 10.30 a.m. Devotional—10.30 to 12 a.m. New Testament History—J. W. Malone, 2 to 3 p.m. The Purpose of Preaching—Chas. Sweet, 3 to 4 p.m. Missions—Gilbert Bowles, 7.30 p.m.

Sixth-day, Sixth month 30th.—Devotional—9 to 9.30 a.m. Workers' Hour—9.30 to 10 a.m. Old Testament History—Emma Malone, 10 to 11 a.m. Homiletics and Sermon Outlines—Levi Rees, 11 to 12 a.m. New Testament History—J. W. Malone, 2 to 3 p.m. The Pastor as a Man—T. C. Kenworthy, 3 to 4 p.m. Prophecy—J. W. Malone, 7.30 p.m.

Seventh-day, Seventh month 1st.—Devotional—9 to 9.30 a.m. Workers' Hour—9.30 to 10 a.m. Old Testament History—Emma Malone, 10 to 11 a.m.—Evidences of Christianity—A. Rosenberger, 11 to 12 a.m. New Testament History—J. W. Malone, 2 to 3 p.m. The Pastor in the Church—Emma Newby, 3 to 4 p.m. Devotional—7.30 p.m.

Second-day, Seventh month 3d.—Devotional—9 to 9.30 a.m.

Workers' Hour—9.30 to 10 a.m. Old Testament History—Emma Malone, 10 to 11 a.m. Evidences of Christianity, A. Rosenberger, 11 to 12 a.m. New Testament History, J. W. Malone, 2 to 3 p.m. The Pastor's Duty Toward All Departments of Church Work.—Prof. C. L. Michener, 3 to 4 p.m. Our Missions—Z. L. Martin, 7.30 p.m.

Third-day, Seventh month 4th.—Devotional—9 to 9.30 a.m. Workers' Hour—9.30 to 10 a.m. Old Testament History—Emma Malone, 10 to 11 a.m. Evidences of Christianity—A. Rosenberger, 11 to 12 a.m. New Testament History—J. W. Malone, 2 to 3 p.m. Shall There be a Time Limit in Calling a Pastor?—Z. L. Martin, 3 to 4 p.m. Devotional—7.30 p.m.

We hope to have some lectures on Church History during the week, in addition to the regular program as given.

Round Table will be conducted by those giving the addresses on subjects relating to Homiletics and Church Work.

L. M. DEANE, Sec. of Board.

UNITED STATES FINANCES AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Josiah Strong has said that "Money is power in the concrete. It commands learning, wisdom, talent, influence, numbers. It represents the school, the college, the church, the printing press, and all evangelizing machinery. It confers on the wise man a sort of omnipresence. It is the modern miracle worker. It has a wonderful multiplying and transforming power."

Much of the best talent of our country has been Christianized to an appreciable degree. Government is at least so far dominated by Christian principles as to stand for public order and personal security. But the money power of our country is far, indeed, from being evangelized. Men regard it as a personal possession to hoard or to spend on their ambitions or lusts.

We are the richest nation in the world. Our income is incredibly great. Our expenses are colossal. The almost illimitable power of money sweeps now this way, now that; cuts for itself a channel like an ocean bed. Could it but be evangelized, what marvelous possibilities lie before us!

Last year the United States spent on three useless things, not only useless, but positively injurious and destructive of life, peace, happiness, security and well-being, the sum of $2,000,000,000. Intoxicants, tobacco and war are the separate items. If it were necessary to make these figures still more startling we could add the useless expenses for harmful amusements, idle and vain display, habits—like chewing gum, which costs $20,000,000 a year, until the whole would increase some hundreds of millions, but the possible results of a different use of this money are surprising enough as it is.

These $2,000,000,000, if expended in sending the gospel to heathen lands, would support one million missionaries and provide necessary outfit and facilities for work. That would provide for the 1,300,000,000 unevangelized people, so that each new missionary would have 1,300 people as his charge; that is to say, we could easily reach every man, woman and child in the non-Protestant world, as soon as the language could be acquired. The present expenditure of money in the foreign field is at about the rate of $80 for each convert secured. At the same rate that would give us 25,000,000 converts a year, or twenty-five times the present number of members of missionary churches. Fifty-two years of such work would reach all the world and bring in every creature under heaven, without counting upon the service of the native workers, which is the most desirable agency, after all. Of course, this sounds very mechanical, but that does not alter the facts in the case. We will spend $400,000,000 on the Spanish war before we are through with it, and already the sober sense of the country is feeling that it all might have been avoided and better results secured. Yet the papers, and the preachers in not a few pulpits, were lauding our course to the skies only a few months since as a vast missionary enterprise! It cost $500 a shot to fire some of our big cannon. Suppose we could have loaded Christian cannon with live missionaries and sent them into foreign countries—that would have been a truly Christian enterprise. We are spending more money just now in vast naval preparations than we will spend in fifteen years to send abroad the gospel. Is not the position well taken, then, that the Christianization of wealth has scarcely begun? Intelligent, hearty co-operation could rid this country of much of the rum and tobacco curse in a comparatively short time, and the peace sentiment gains ground rapidly, despite all the empty vaporings about heroism and patriotism connected with the late war. Let us hope for better days and labor for them.

WM. FORSTER HOME.

The Wm. Forster Home, located at Friendsville, Tenn., was established in 1870, to give to girls attending Friends' Academy in that place the shelter of a Christian home, with instruction in household labors, and training in the refinements of family and social life. Originating in a religious visit paid to Friends in that section by Rebecca W. Allinson, a beloved minister, of Burlington, N. J., accompanied by Marmaduke C. and Sarah W. Cope and Elizabeth H. Farnum, all of whom have passed to their eternal reward, it has been carried on by an Association of Women Friends, mostly residing in Philadelphia and its vicinity, aided by a committee of resident Friends in Tennessee. At first no board was charged, the work of the girls in the house being accepted as an equivalent; but when the financial condition of Friends, like that of their fellow-citizens, improved, at the suggestion of the Resident Committee, a small charge was made, not sufficient to meet the expense. A limited number, who were unable to pay even this small amount, were aided by the Association. Under several successive matrons, the institution, though not without vicissitudes, has prospered in an humble way, and several hundred girls have enjoyed its advantages; many of whom, as well as their friends, have borne emphatic testimony to the benefits derived from the motherly care and careful training there received. For the last five years the matron has been Blanche H. Moore, wife of the Principal of the Academy, and her administration has been very satisfactory. She is now disabled by serious illness, and has been obliged to retire from her position. The Association desires to secure a suitable Friend to take her place for the next year. The school term, on which the time of opening the Home depends, includes nine months of four weeks each, beginning usually about the 1st of Ninth month and ending about the 15th of Fifth month, with a short vacation at Christmas. The Home is fitted to accommodate comfortably sixteen girls, but for some years past, owing partly to "hard times," it has not been filled. Preference is given to Friends, but every year some other denominations have been received, and some of these have been among the best inmates.

The managers invite Friends whose minds may be turned in this direction, to make application for the position of Matron. The applicant should be a Friend of decidedly religious character, between twenty-five and thirty-five years of age, in good health, a practical housekeeper, accustomed to dealing with young people, and able to enter into their interests. References must accompany applications. These may be addressed to Alice Lewis, 134 N. Church Street, West Chester, Pa., the Secretary of the Association. It is desired that they be sent as early as practicable.

The Association is supported by voluntary contributions, and, owing to the death of many of the early contributors, its funds are much reduced. It solicits the aid of Friends, with sums large or small, which will be gratefully received and acknowledged if sent as above.

Married.

ATKINSON—DOAN.—On Fourth month 6th, 1899, at the home of the bride, near Monrovia, Ind., Jabin Atkinson, of Timberhills Monthly Meeting, Kansas, to Eliza J. Doan, a member of West Union Monthly Meeting, Ind.

Died.

AUSTIN.—Died, in Providence, R. I., on the 30th ult, Elizabeth H. Austin, wife of the late Samuel Austin, of Providence, and daughter of the late John and Elizabeth A. Osborne, of Smithfield, R. I.

COLTRAINE.—Samira Coltraine, daughter of Reuben and Hannah Coltraine, departed this life Third month 22d, 1899, at Topeka, Kansas. She was born in Randolph County, N. C., in 1862, where also the interment took place. She was a birthright member of the Society of Friends.

FAUSETT.—Harvey P. Fausett passed to his rest Fourth month, 2d, 1899, in his 23d year. He became interested about his soul last First month and being converted he requested membership with Friends, and became a member of Anderson Meeting, Indiana. He remained faithful to the end, and said his way was perfectly clear.

HAMBLETON.—At his residence in Oskaloosa, Iowa, on 2d of Fourth month, 1899, of pleuro-pneumonia, after an illness of ten days, in his 79th year, Levi Hambleton passed peacefully to his heavenly rest. He was born Eighth month 4th, 1820, in Columbiana County, Ohio; was married to Mary H. Hall, near Philadelphia, Tenth month 10th, 1844. His wife and two sons, John

T. and Albert F. N., survive him. Though having a birthright in the Society of Friends it was not retained, but, with his family, by request, became a member at Lynn Grove, Iowa, about 1866, and remained an active and useful member until death. He was known for his strong Christian character; was a staunch Abolitionist, aiding the fugitives in their struggle for freedom, and also a strong advocate of temperance reform in its early and later history. He came to Iowa in 1856 and was prominently identified with its pioneer history, being a man of unusual energy and business activity, and amidst many uncontrollable business reverses always had that hopeful character of looking upon the bright side of life. Much of his time, energy and means were given in the early struggles of Penn Collage, he being a trustee at the time its name was given and its treasurer for a number of years, and remained always a devoted Friend of the institution. Realizing his end was near, he expressed his faith in his Saviour's love, and, giving each about him a parting benediction, he died in the triumphs of faith and enjoys the certain realities of a better world.

JAY.—Martha Ann Jay, a daughter of Buddell and Elizabeth H. Sleeper, was born Tenth month 22d, 1833, in Clark county, Ohio, and died at her home opposite Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., Fourth month 27th, 1899, aged 65 years, 6 months and 5 days. Her parents moved to Tippecanoe county, Ind., when she was two years old. She was married to Allen Jay on Ninth month 20th, 1854, and they settled on a farm near the old home where their five children were born, and the two eldest died, the third one dying fifteen months ago in the same room she died in. In 1868, she with her husband moved to Bush Hill (now Archdale), North Carolina. After nine years they moved to Friends' Boarding School, Providence, R. I. After spending four years there, in 1881 they went to Earlham College, where she served as matron for six years, and then retired to the home where she died. Martha A. Jay was of a retiring disposition, never seeking popularity. Converted at the age of 17, she endeavored to carry Christianity in all her life work. She was much interested in humane work among the children, the birds and all dumb animals; for several years had a Band of Mercy in her own home, and one in the Orphan Home nearby. She was appointed an elder at an early age, and held that position in the four different yearly meetings to which she belonged. She was a great strength to her husband, who was, as a minister, often called to labor away from home; she never murmured at the separation, but encouraged him to faithfulness when the Master called. She bore a long illness with Christian resignation, the closing hours were peaceful, the last audible words were "Blessed! Blessed!" "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord!"

OMO.—Andrew Samuel Omo, son of A. P. Omo, died Fourth month 6th, 1899, aged nearly thirty years. He was converted some years ago and joined Friends at Stella, Oklahoma Territory. His long and painful illness seemed to draw him nearer his living Lord, and his triumphant death was the result of the grace which, through infinite mercy, Christ bestows upon him who believes, trusts and obeys.

PENSINGER.—John Melvin Pensinger died in Jay County, Indiana, Fourth month 22d, 1899, aged 37 years less 5 days. He was converted and joined Friends about four years ago. Just three weeks before his death he was appointed to the station of overseer for Walnut Corner Meeting. He was a member of Olive Branch Monthly Meeting.

RALSTON.—John W. Ralston died Eleventh month 3d, 1898, aged 49 years. He was a faithful and consistent Friend and was for a number of years a minister. When he felt that a cause was right, he stood by it at all cost. He was perfectly resigned during his illness, seeking only to know the will of the Master. He was often heard to say that his consecration was complete. He was ready to go or stay, just as the Master willed.

ROBBINS.—Ahava Robbins, wife of Joel Robbins, departed this life Fourth month 18th, 1899, aged 76 years. She was strongly attached to and faithfully maintained her principles as a Friend, and highly prized her privileges of membership. During her short illness her suffering was intense, and she was heard praying for more grace that she might bear it patiently; her mind dwelt upon heavenly things from the beginning of her sickness. We reverently believe that the summons to meet her Lord found her prepared, through the atoning blood, to enter into His joy.

ROBERTS.—Died at his home, in Carmel, Ind., Third month 17th, 1899, Isaac Roberts, aged 74 years, 6 months and 26 days. He was the seventh son of Walter and Hannah Roberts, and was a birthright Friend; he was converted when young, and recorded a minister by Richland Monthly Meeting, in 1857. He was married to Rebecca Jones at West Elkton, Ohio, in 1843, his wife and three children still survive him. The greater part of his ministerial labor has been among the smaller meetings in his own county and in his home meeting, yet he has had acceptable service in Indiana, Ohio, Wilmington and Iowa Yearly Meetings, and has visited at different times many of the quarterly meetings in his own (Western) Yearly Meeting. His last sickness was of short duration, being struck with paralysis less than two days before his death. The last time he was off of the lot where his home was he was in attendance at prayer meeting. In this and also the midweek meeting that was held here that morning he had acceptable service. He was head of Carmel Quarterly Meeting at the time of his death.

STANLEY.—Lydia, daughter of Richard and Sarah Williams, and wife of Joseph Stanley, died at the home of her daughter, in Brookhaven, Minn., Fourth month 13th, 1899, in her 82d year. She was a loving and faithful wife and mother, sympathetic in her disposition, a lover of the truth and an earnest and devoted Christian. She was an elder in the church and often accompanied her husband on his religious visits. Her last days were her brightest and best days, and the closing hour marked the triumph of her faith. Her last words were,

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly."

WHITE.—Borden Chalkley White departed this life Second month 22d, 1899, aged 66 years, 4 months and 1 day. He was born in Guilford County, North Carolina. He was a member of Independence Monthly Meeting, of Kansas; he was a birthright member and showed himself to be worthy of his inheritance—strong in faith, patient in suffering, and courageous in death. Being a kind husband and father, and a good citizen, he will be greatly missed in the home, Church and community, but in his case it is confidently believed that the loss sustained by companion, children and friends, means his eternal gain. Having borne "the image of the earthly," he "will also bear the image of the heavenly."

News and Events.

A long-talked-of agreement between England and Russia in China has at last been announced. England agrees not to press railway or other concessions in North China, and Russia agrees to recognize England's claim to predominance in the Yangtze valley. Lord Salisbury, at a banquet, recently referred to the agreement as preventing to a certain extent the likelihood of a collision between the two powers, and this is matter for congratulation, especially when viewed in the light of the long-established relations between the two countries. The policy of an open door seems likely still to prevail, and commercial advantages to other nations are not to be denied on account of the alliance. It is particularly important to notice that the United States is to enjoy the utmost allowable freedom in a commercial way in the East.

No recent development in the Dreyfus case has been more important than the acknowledgement of a caligraphic expert. In the trial he had testified that Dreyfus was the author of the famous bordereau. He now comes forward and declares his belief that the document was written by Esterhazy. Furthermore, one of the judges in the Dreyfus court-martial and also a former prefect of police have both deposed before the Court of Cassation that the verdict against Dreyfus was obtained by unfair practices. Another member of the court-martial testified that there was no necessity of showing him the secret documents, because he knew them, having written them. The Paris newspaper, the "Figaro," is continuing to publish the proceedings, and one of the latest developments is the testimony of Captain Cuignet, in which he charges Col. Du Paty De Clam with absolute forgery. Premier Dupuy appears to be alarmed at the course of events and is urging prompt action by the Court. There are rumors that a majority is assured for revision. Dreyfus himself is said to be somewhat better, but suffering severely under the terrible strain of his imprisonment.

The report on the army beef by the Wade Court of Inquiry was given out at the War Department on the 7th inst, the Board having been instructed to investigate the charges made by General Miles in respect to the unfitness for issue of certain articles of food to the troops in the field during the war with Spain. The report is largely devoted to a review of the testimony on that point. The testimony before the Board, and the entire situation, is reviewed at considerable length, there being an utter absence, however, of any effort to place responsibility for the evils which are enumerated. That errors were committed is acknowledged, but the sum of the findings shows Miles unsustained, and, unsatisfied with failing to recognize the justice of his exposure of incompetency in the War Department, the Board has selected him as the one person upon which to expend its criticism. It severely censures him for having committed the error in that, having knowledge that the food was unfit and caused sickness that some of it was embalmed, and that much of it was supplied as an experiment, he did not immediately report such knowledge to the Secretary of War. The report was approved by the President and the Board dissolved.

The Philippine campaign was continued energetically last week. Generals MacArthur and Lawton advanced successfully upon the rebels in the line of operations mapped out. The strongholds of Macabebe, Balinag, San Tomas and San Fernando have been taken in succession. The forces of the rebels are divided most hopelessly, and while, as Aguinaldo's emissary, General Arguelles, says, they can maintain their hostilities for months to come, the end is certain. An armistice of three months has been refused, and a second proposition, differing but slightly from the first one brought to General Otis, has met with like discouragement and refusal. Nothing less than absolute and immediate surrender will be considered. Meanwhile, the American Philippine Commission is doing its utmost to bring about an understanding with the rebel leaders, and a report, of the 6th instant, stated that Aguinaldo's representatives had admitted the sovereignty of the United States. Should this actually be the case, it, of course, means a great deal, but just to what extent these emissaries reflect General Aguinaldo and to what extent they speak for other generals of the Filipino army is uncertain. It has been acknowledged by the emissaries that they came direct from Aguinaldo, and not from General Luna, as they at first pretended.

On the 30th ultimo there was held in Chicago a monster mass meeting protesting against the action of the Government in its Philippine policy, and strongly reflecting the anti-imperialist sentiment, which is undoubtedly growing every day. To counteract the effects of this meeting, a rival meeting was held in the same city on the 7th ultimo, attended by thousands of persons favoring expansion, and upholding the administration in its expansionist policy. These are the most significant gatherings of the kind that have yet been held, and they show very clearly the divided opinion that exists throughout the country.

The Post-Office Department of the Government has stopped the transmission of certain mail matter, directed to officers in the Philippine Islands, as seditious. This confiscated matter is issued by Edward Atkinson, a member of the Anti-Imperialist League, but not in the name of the League. It consists of pamphlets made up from state documents and speeches. These pamphlets are entitled "The Cost of a National Crime," "The Hell of War and Its Penalties," and "Criminal Aggression; By Whom Committed?"

HOTEL STRAND ATLANTIC CITY.

Ocean and Virginia Avenues.

A thoroughly modern and home-like house throughout. Elevator to street level. Steam heat. Sun parlor, etc. A special rate will be made to FRIENDS during this season. Write for booklet and terms.

FAIRBAIRN & WILLIAMS.

Mention this Paper

LOCATION OF FRIENDS' MEETING HOUSES IN OUR LARGE CITIES AND TIMES OF HOLDING RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Baltimore, Md., Friends' Meeting House, corner of Eutaw and Monument Streets.
First-day 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.
Fifth-day 11 a.m.

Boston, Mass., Townsend Street near Warren (Roxbury District). Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m.
Bible School 12 noon
Y. P. S. C. E. Meeting . . . 6.15 p.m.
Mid-week Meeting, Sixth-day . . 7.45 p.m.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Brooklyn Friends' Meeting House, corner of Lafayette and Washington Avenues. [Take Gates or Dekalb Avenue Cars at Brooklyn Bridge and get out at Washington Avenue.] Sabbath Services:

Bible School 9.15 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 10.30 a.m.
C. E. Prayer Meeting 7 p.m.
Evening Meeting, ... 7.45
Prayer Meeting, Fourth-day . . 7.45 p.m.

Chicago, Ill., Friends' Meeting House is located on Indiana Avenue, south of 44th Street. Reached by Elevated Railroad or Indiana Avenue Street Car. Meetings are held as follows:

First-day, Bible School 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 11 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 6.30 p.m.
Fourth-day, Prayer Meeting . . . 8 p.m.

Cincinnati, O., Meeting House, N. W. corner 8th and Mound Streets. Meetings for Worship:

First and Fifth-day 11 a.m.
First-day Sabbath School 9.30 p.m.
Christian Endeavor 7.30 p.m.

Cleveland, O., Friends' Meeting House, Cedar Avenue, opposite Blair Street.
First-day 10.15 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Mid-week Prayer Meeting, Fifth-day 7.30 p.m.

There are also two other Friends' Meetings and two Friends' Missions in Cleveland.

Denver, Col., Friends' Meeting House, 41st Avenue and Arlington St., take 17th Avenue Car on 16th St., north. Meeting for Worship:

First-day 11.00 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Sabbath School 10.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 6.30 a.m.
Mid-week meeting, Fourth-day . 7.30 p.m.
Monthly meeting for business, first Fourth-day of the month 2.00 p.m.

Des Moines, Ia., Friends' Meeting House, 827 East Grand Avenue.

First-day, ... 10.30 a.m.; 7.30 p.m.
First-day, Y. P. S. C. E., ... 6.30 p.m.

First-day, Sabbath School, ... 12 m.
Fourth-day, Prayer Meeting, . . . 7.30 p. m.

Indianapolis, Ind., Friends' Meeting House is situated on the corner of Alabama and 13th streets. (Alabama Street Car Line). Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Bible School 9.15 a.m.
Junior Endeavor 2.30 p.m.
Intermediate Endeavor . . . 3.30 p.m.
Senior Endeavor 6.30 p.m.
Fourth-day 10.30 a.m.
Fifth-day, Prayer Meeting . . . 7.30 p.m.

Kansas City, Mo., Friends' Meeting House, No. 416 W. 15th Street.

First-day 9.45 a.m.
Bible School 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 11.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 7.00 p.m.

Minneapolis, Minn., Friends' Meeting House, corner of First Avenue, South and 14th Streets. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Bible School, ... 12 m.
Fifth-day 7.30 p.m.

New York City, Meeting House, 144 East 20th Street, Gramercy Park, Meetings for Worship:

First-day 11 a.m.
Fourth-day 10.30 a.m., except first Fourth-day in month . . 7.30 p.m.
Sabbath School First-day 10 a.m.
C. E. Meeting, Third-day 7.45 p.m.

Philadelphia, Penna., Meeting House, 20 South Twelfth Street. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Mid-week meeting, Fourth-day . 10.30 a.m.

Toronto, Canada, Friends' Meeting House, 28 Pembroke Street. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Fourth-day 8 p.m.

Washington, D. C. New Meeting House, First and C Street, N. E.

Bible School, ... 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship, ... 11.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor, ... 7.45 p.m.
Mid-week meeting, . . . 5th day, 7.30 p.m.

NOTICE.

Christian Endeavor Convention of the Friends Church, to be held at Carmel, Indiana, Sixth Month 20 to 22, 1899. A rate of one and one-third for the round trip has been authorized. See to it in good time, that your Railroad Agent is provided with the information and tickets.

A. H. PICKERING, R. R. Secretary.
84 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

JOTTINGS.

Out of a total population in Palestine, of 200,000, about 40,000 are Jews, as against 14,000 twenty years ago. In Jerusalem there are 22,000 Jews about equally divided between the two classes, Ashkenazim and Sephardim.

The war to date has cost about $266,000,000. This includes all the campaigns. With the Philippine war left out it is said that the expense would have amounted to hardly $200,000,000.

Admiral Dewey has cabled his acceptance of an invitation to a banquet in New York at the Waldorf-Astoria to be given by 100 prominent citizens. He will return from Manila, it is said, as soon as peace negotiations with the insurgents have been concluded. President McKinley and Secretary Long are expected to be present at the banquet.

The Pope is reported to remain about as he has been ever since he had an operation performed, from which he recovered with remarkable rapidity. He suffers somewhat from debility, but a weak heart is the chief danger of his early death. Dr. Laponi says that the Pope has no disease.

General Eagan is now on his way to Honolulu where it is intimated he will take up his permanent residence. Before leaving this country he was forced to suffer the humiliation of expulsion from the Loyal Legion, an organization composed of officers who fought for the Union. This disgrace he will feel more keenly in all probability than the six years' vacation with full pay which has been meted out to him by the Government for his slanderous utterances against General Miles.

The Pennsylvania Steel Company has been awarded the contract for the construction of a great viaduct in Burma. It will be 2260 feet long and 320 high. The contract price is about $700,000. This is another signal instance of an American firm outbidding England.

The formation of a gigantic steel trust is the latest corporative deal to startle the country. The trust will include several very large companies, among them the Carnegie Steel and Iron Company. The capitalization is placed at about $500,000,00.

A vessel from South American ports has brought the news to this country that the Antarctic expedition which started out months ago to explore the region of the South pole was imprisoned in an ice floe for one year while investigating Alexander I and. For seventy days the Belgica, the vessel upon which the expedition sailed was enveloped in total darkness. Before being forced to return to port for provisions she penetrated as far south as the seventieth parallel.

Advices from Apia, Samoa, state that the losses suffered by the Matafaan's stronghold at Vailima were quite heavy. The house in which the late Robert Louis Stevenson lived is said to have been riddled with shot. It is important to note that his widow, who should be without bias, has severely condemned the governments of the United States or their representatives for the part taken in the late troubles, or particularly in the shelling of Apia, where defenceless children and women had the choice of the guns on one side and the bush on the other.

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and
Heals all
Inflamed Surfaces, Cures
Sore Throat,
Coughs, Colds,
Bronchitis,
Asthma,
Catarrh and

Relieves
Pain

NATIONAL PEACE JUBILEE—WASHINGTON.

Reduced Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

On account of the National Peace Jubilee, to be held at Washington, D. C., May 23, 24, and 25, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged to sell excursion tickets from all stations to Washington at rate of single fare for the round trip, except that the rates from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore will be $8.00, $5.00, and $2.00 respectively, with proportionate rates from intermediate and adjacent points.

Tickets will be sold May 22 and 23, good to return within ten days from date of sale when properly validated by the agent at Washington.

Spring and Summer Fabrics now ready.

GUSTAVUS GOLZE,
Merchant Tailor,
123 N. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

LITERARY NOTE.

Jacob A. Riis, the well-known author of "How the Other Half Lives", rehearses and reviews in the May Atlantic "The Battle with the Slum;" which he states did not begin systematically in New York until 1879. He recapitulates the various successive struggles over tenement houses, breathing-spaces, schools, streets, sweat-shops, etc., the significant fact being, as developed by Mr. Riis, that all the advance gained has been retained; that so many vital improvements have come and come to stay.

The Ninth Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Auxiliary of the International Medical Missionary Society will be held at the residence of Mrs. Matthew Baird, Merion, Pa., Sixth-day, Fifth Month, 19th, at 3.30 p.m. Address by Elizabeth Needham, and others. A cordial invitation is extended to this meeting. Mrs. Needham has lately returned from Japan, and will speak of its Missionary enterprises and need of evangelization.

ELIZABETH C. WINN, Secretary.

The "Willard Tract Repository" wishes to notify its many friends, that we still have on hand an assortment of our valuable Tracts and Books, which we would like to dispose of at one-half the retail price. Please remember us when purchasing Tracts for this summer's work. Send for Catalogue. Special price for Tracts by the thousand. Address us at 175 Huntington Avenue, Boston, Mass.

Each day, each week, each month, each year is a new chance given you by God. A new chance, a new leaf, a new life,—this is the golden, the unspeakable gift which each new day offers to you.—Canon Farrar.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The American Friend is a weekly paper, containing twenty-four pages. The subscription price is one dollar and a half a year, payable in advance.

Discontinuances.—If a subscriber wishes his copy of the paper discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

How to Remit.—Remittances should be sent by Check, Draft, Express-Order, or Money Order, payable to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. Cash should be sent only in Registered Letter.

Postage is Prepaid by the publishers for all subscriptions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. For all other countries in the Postal Union add $1.00 for postage.

Change of Address.—When a change of address is ordered, both the new and the old address must be given. The notice should be sent one week before the change is to take effect.

Letters should be addressed:

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia.

You will get a new notion of what a lamp-chimney can be, when you use a Macbeth; and of what it can do, when you get the right one.

Get the Index.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.
OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.
Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Avenue, near Beach. Close to New Steel Pier. New Management. Quiet, homelike, and attractive. Ocean view.
Write for information.

MRS. N. R. HAINES,
Owner and Proprietor.
(Formerly of The Chalfonte.)

The Archdale, 136 South Maryland Avenue, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful room; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.
MARY J. BUNDY.

SUMMER BOARDING.

Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate, at her home, near Muncy, Pa., a few summer boarders. The ground is high, view fine, air good, and drives and walks pleasant.

For terms address

CAROLINE B. KIRK,
Pennsdale, Pa.

A want advertisement in "The American Friend" will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

Colonel Frederic Funston of the Twentieth Kansas Volunteers, who distinguished himself so signally at Calumet during the recent engagement, has been promoted by the Government to be Brigadier General of Volunteers. This appointment was urged by both General Otis and Major General MacArthur. His war record is a remarkable one and he has shown heroism in previous actions.

Dr. MacGregor met, in the great Scotch city his name and name adorns, a little girl carrying in her arms a baby so bonny that she fairly staggered under the weight. "Baby's heavy, isn't he, dear?" said the Doctor. "No," replied the winsome bairn, "he isn't heavy, he's my brother." The missionary burden is gone when the human brotherhood is realized.

For Sick Headache

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It removes the cause by stimulating the action of the stomach, promoting digestion and quieting the nerves.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

Do not look forward to what may happen to-morrow; the same everlasting Father who cares for you to-day will care for you to-morrow and every day. Either He will shield you from suffering, or He will give you unflinching strength to bear it.—Francis de Sales.

The Wonderful
Golden
Rambler Rose

Hardy and bears all the time. A glorious profusion of gold and white roses at same time on same bush. Blooms all summer from June till December. Finest, hardy ever-blooming rose for garden, trellis or veranda. Strong plants on own roots. 15c. each, 2 for 25c. New Floral Guide 124 pages, tells all about 400 other choice flowers. Free.

CONARD & JONES CO.,
Dept. 8, West Grove, Pa.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address

HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

Hard facts

for women who wash. No work you do is so unhealthful as your work over a washtub.

This hard, perspiring work in the midst of soiled clothes and tainted steam will make trouble for you. The less of it you do, the better. Wash with Pearline, and there's little or none of it. Nothing but rinsing the clothes, after soaking and boiling them. Consider your health.

582

Millions NOW USE Pearline

THE ARCHBISHOP AND THE CURATE'S WIFE.

Archbishop Usher was accustomed to visit his clergy unexpectedly and see how their flocks fared. On one occasion he went in disguise, and begged alms at a curate's house. The curate was out upon his duty; but the prudent wife soundly lectured the unknown old man, though she gave him relief. "For shame, old man, at these years to go begging! These are not the usual fruits of an honest, industrious and godly life; tell me, old man, how many commandments are there?" The old man, with seeming confusion, stammered out, "Eleven." "I thought so," said she; "go thy ways, old man; and here, take this book with thee, and learn thy catechism, and when next you are asked, say ten." The archbishop took his departure, and had it announced that he should preach next day at the parish church. The morning came. "Little thought the good woman that the archbishop was the alms beggar, till he gave his text and comment: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another." "It would seem," begins the sermon, "by this text that there are eleven commandments." The "old man" was recognized, and the curate's wife acknowledged, with some shame to herself, that there was another and "a new commandment."

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

WANTS.

[We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS of any kind to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Advertisements will be inserted in this column at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.]

SUMMER BOARDERS.—Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate a few summer boarders at her home, near Muncy, Pa. The views are fine, air good, drives and walks pleasant. For terms address
CAROLINE B. KIRK, Pennsdale.

FOR SALE on easy terms. A house and twelve acres of land adjoining Friends' Meeting-house, at East Bend, N. C. Apply to
DAVID E. SAMPSON, East Bend, N. C.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Corcoran St., Wash., D. C.

WANTED—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED—A man, competent and of experience, to establish and manage a Hame manufactory in Greensboro, N. C.

Address Lock Box 55.

TEACHER WANTED.—The Missionary Board of Iowa Yearly Meeting desire a teacher for the Golden Grove East Indian School, in Jamaica. Address ADALINE H. HADLEY, Secretary, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

LILACS ON THE STAND.

When the plantin' time is over an' there comes a rainy mornin',
When the grass is growin' greener an'
the sky is lookin' gray,
When the robin on the ridge-pole is afrettin' out a warnin',—
That is jest the kind o' weather that was father's restin' day,
When he stretched out on the settle an'
the summer harvest planned;
An' I seem to smell the lilacs that were settin' on the stand.

There was gatherin' in the buckets when the sugar run was over,
An' sharpenin' the fence posts for the fixin' o' the lines,
There was clearin' out the pump logs o'
the roots of grass and clover,
An' trimmin' out the orchard an' a-tyin
up the vines;
An' it all comes back so nat'ral, I can see my mother's hand
A-breakin' off the lilacs for the dish upon the stand.

There was seedin' down the oat-field an'
turnin' up the furrow,
An' burnin' o' the brush heaps, an' dig-gin' o' the weeds,
An' the settin' on o' Towser when he found a wood-chuck's burrow, While I followed in the corn-field with my dish o' punkin seeds;
An' it seemd so kind o' peaceful when the shower washed the land,
An' father read his paper near the lilacs on the stand.

Through the busy time we watched the brook, a-plannin' an' a-wishin'.

A New Lease of Life is enjoyed by those who change from an impoverished diet of ordinary flour to one of life-giving, tissue-building qualities. Nature places in the wheat berry these healthful elements in abundance and wisdom requires that we use them all and do not sacrifice the best of them on account of color. In our foolish prejudice for white bread we do this very thing, and man in milling into white flour removes them nearly all, leaving little but starch

Franklin Mills Flour

A FINE FLOUR OF THE ENTIRE WHEAT retains all the mineral elements of the wheat, phosphatic and nitrogenous, and is, therefore, rich in nourishment for the whole body.

If your grocer does not have it, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied. Send postal for Booklet—FREE.

MADE ONLY BY

FRANKLIN MILLS CO., LOCKPORT, N. Y.

"ALPHA-DISC" CREAM SEPARATORS

The improved "Alpha" disc or divided milkstrata system is used in the De Laval separators only. Strong patents prevent its use in any other machines. The "disc" system makes the De Laval machines as superior to other separators as such other separators are to setting systems. It reduces necessary speed one-half, reduces size of revolving bowl, saves labor and power, enables simplicity and durability, skimming cold milk, running cream of any desired thickness, and insures absolute thoroughness of separation under practical use conditions, which is not possible with any other separator or creaming system.

Send for new 1899 catalogue.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

Western Offices:
RANDOLPH & CANAL STS.
CHICAGO.

GENERAL OFFICES:
74 CORTLANDT STREET,
NEW YORK.

Branch Offices:
1102 ARCH STREET,
PHILADELPHIA.

A-cuttin' cherry fish-poles an' thinkin'
o' the bait,
Until on father's restin' day we got our chance a-fishin';
An' when we followed down the stream and came in, wet and late,
An' showed our string to mother, eyes a-glowin', faces tanned,
She smiled, an' laid her knittin' by the
lilacs on the stand.

Oh, the plantin' days o' boyhood, when there come the rainy mornin',
An' the misty kind o' weather that was father's restin' day,
When ye see old age a-bendin' as it sounds
its not o' warnin',
An' yer cares are gettin' heavy, an' yer hair is turnin' gray,
How ye find the heart a-longin' for a touch o' mother's hand,
An' a chance to smell the lilacs that were
settin' on the stand.
—Florence Josephine Boyce, in "Youth's Companion."

HOW TO WIN SOULS.

Love begets love. Put a piece of iron in the presence of an electrified body, and that piece of iron for a time becomes electrified.
It is changed into a temporary magnet in the mere presence of a permanent magnet; and, as long as you leave the two side by side, they are both magnets alike. Remain side by side with Him who loved us and gave Himself for us, and you, too, will become a permanent magnet, a permanently attractive force; and, like Him you will draw all men unto you, like Him you will be drawn unto all men.—Henry Drummond.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The Quickest and Best Route to all Points in the South.

If you are going to any point in the South,
Southwest, Mexico or on the Pacific Coast, be sure and call for a ticket via the Southern Railway.

Three daily trains from Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, enable you to reach almost every city of importance south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi River without change of cars, and if you are destined to points in the extreme West or Southwest, you will find the connections at Memphis or New Orleans close. Send for schedules, maps, etc. Further information will be cheerfully furnished by Chas. L.
Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828
Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

TO MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE.

The Southern Railway's new train, "The Washington and Chattanooga Limited," leaving Broad Street Station Philadelphia at 5.34 P. M. daily, will put you in Memphis at 7.40 the second morning. The route is via Washington, Lynchburg, Bristol and Chattanooga. Write to Chas. L. Hopkins,
District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia for time tables and al information.

A CHARADE.

ADELINE L. F. DANIELS.

My first and second syllables
Denote a charming pet;
My third's a short name for a boy,
Or makes one firmly set

My fourth bespeaks a humble place,
Or call of farm-yard brute;
So sounds the brook in sultry times,
With sweetness of a lute.

My whole beside the country roads
Its dainty beauties shows
Long ere the bluebird trills his note,
Or vanished are the snows.

THE TIME ELEMENT IN CHARACTER.

To parents who have passed through all the thunder of life's battle and stand at the close of life's day, discouraged because children are unripe, thoughtless and immature; to publicists and teachers sowing God's precious seed, but denied its harvests; to individuals seeking to perfect their character within themselves, comes this thought, that character is a harvest so rich as to ask for long waiting and the courage of far-off results. Nature can perfect physical processes in twenty years, but long time is asked for teaching the arms skill, the tongue its grace of speech, to clothe reason with sweetness and light, to cast error out of the judgment, to teach

A Soap Reminder

Just to remind you that you will never regret having ordered Wool Soap for your toilet and bath, for it's the purest soap afloat, the soap you are sure of, the soap safe for you and for baby.

If your dealer hasn't it, send us his name, and we'll send you a cake free.

Swift and Company, Makers, Chicago

TO THE LAND OF THE SKY.

A beautifully illustrated book entitled "The Land of the Sky" showing the many attractions of Asheville, North Carolina, has just been issued by the Southern Railway Company, and copies may be obtained of Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, who reports steadily increasing travel to that widely known health resort, especially on the Southwestern Limited train leaving Broad Street Station Philadelphia at 6.55 P. M. Daily, and arriving in Asheville the next day at noon.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR
Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN
Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC
BRADLEY
BROOKLYN
New York.
JEWETT
ULSTER
UNION
SOUTHERN
SHIPMAN
Chicago.
COLLIER
MISSOURI
St. Louis.
RED SEAL
SOUTHERN
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO
Philadelphia.
MORLEY
Cleveland.
SALEM
Salem, Mass.
CORNELL
Buffalo.
KENTUCKY
Louisville.

THE brands of White Lead named in the margin are old friends, tried by many generations of use and proven the best. They are made by the "old Dutch process" of slow corrosion, and, with pure Linseed Oil, there is no other paint as good.

There are other brands made by quick or patent process and numerous mixtures of Barytes, Zinc, Whiting, etc., which are branded and sold as Pure White Lead. Make sure that the brand is right.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART, a beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight in every Christian family First Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

the will hardness and the heart hope and endurance. Four hundred years passed by before the capstone was placed upon the Cathedral of Cologne, but no trouble requires such patient toil as the structure of manhood. For complexity and beauty nothing is comparable to character. Great artists spend years upon a single picture. With a touch here and a touch there they approach it, and when a long period hath passed they bring it to completion. But all the beauty of paintings, all the grace of statues, all the grandeur of cathedrals are as nothing compared to the paint of that inner picture, the chiseling of that inner manhood, the adornment of that inner temple that is scarcely begun when the physical life ends. How majestic the full disclosure of an ideal manhood! With what patience must man wait for its completion! Here lies the hope of immortality. It doth not yet appear what man shall be.

BOARDING.

Friends will find a good, comfortable boarding place with Friends at M. E. WISTAR'S, 1725 Arch St., Phila., only three blocks from Broad St. Station.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.

Near Omaha.

In the best part of the State. Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - $25.00 each.
Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.
Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.
Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia
SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York
Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.
Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Assorted Dessert Nuts

Comprising the finest grades of Princess
Paper Shell Almonds, Grenoble Walnuts, Extra Large Pecans and Filberts, and Brazil or Cream Nuts.

Carefully selected and screened.

Single Pound 16c. 5 lb. Box 75c.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR, BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

THE CORN

won't linger longer after it's treated with -CORN Salve.
15 cts. box. Druggists or mailed upon receipt of price.

GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
305 Cherry Street, Phila.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S Breakfast Cocoa

Costs less than One Cent a cup.

Be sure that the Package bears our Trade-Mark.

A Perfect Food. Pure, Nutritious, Delicious.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Limited.

Established 1780.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

TRADE-MARK.

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West.
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

THE OLD STANDBY!

DELAUVAU'S REMEDY

A Sure Cure for
Whooping Cough
Croup and
Ordinary Colds

AT DRUGGISTS.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in
enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street,
near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social,
moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men
and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be
gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office,
northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where
all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,
General Secretary.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

FIFTH MONTH 18th, 1899

No. 20

BENJAMIN SEEBOHM'S MINISTRY.

"His addresses were 'in demonstration of the spirit and of power,' and often attended with remarkable openings of the spiritual condition of his hearers. Sometimes he would lay bare the salient features of individual past lives with such startling minuteness as to make them query how it was possible for him to know some things which they thought no other besides themselves knew. At other times he would warn of an approaching spiritual temptation, and tenderly counsel some individual in the meeting to be upon his guard.

"His manner of delivery was peculiar to himself. He had an excellent voice and a self-possessed and dignified manner, which commanded attention. Rising with a few words, spoken very deliberately, in a low tone, his voice rose gradually till he had been about half an hour on his feet, when the words came with such volume and impetuosity that they filled the largest meeting house, and found an entrance into ears habitually 'lull of hearing.' Then, suddenly, when the whirlwind was at the height, he would drop down to a whisper which could scarcely be heard, probably finding in such contrast a relief both to himself and others. His solicitude on behalf of young ministers was very marked, and he was very careful not to block their way, often waiting for them to 'roll away the stone from the well's mouth,' after which he would follow with the message intrusted to him."

BENJAMIN SEEBOHM

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

Children's Garments

A full line of hand-made long and short dresses for children at decidedly interesting prices:

Short Dresses of French Nain-sook, hand-made tucks and hems, feather-stitched yoke, neck and sleeves trimmed with narrow Valenciennes lace, at $2.00.

Short Dresses of French Nain-sook, hand-drawn work yoke; deep hem; neck and sleeves trimmed with narrow Valenciennes lace—$3.00 and $3.50.

French Dresses—with deep hem and extra wide skirt; yoke of Valenciennes lace and insertion, at $3.75 and $5.00.

Infants' Hand-made Slips—finished with tucks and deep hem, some trimmed with Valenciennes lace—at about half regular prices—$2.00, $2.50, $3.00.

Children's Pique Reefers—samples—white, pink, and light blue; large collar, trimmed with open-work embroidery; mostly in small sizes—at $3.00 and $3.50.

Infants' Caps of Corded Swisses—sizes 12 to 16—at 25 and 50 cents.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston.

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance, par value $100.

Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually

Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.

Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.

Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It tells how to obtain, free, the famous Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Bread Is One Thing Only.

Pillsbury's VITOS, the ideal wheat food, needs to be boiled only and is then ready to serve as a breakfast food. It can be served in thirty other ways—bread, cakes, puddings, desserts, etc. For covering fish and croquettes it is unexcelled. The VITOS Cook Book tells how. This cook book was prepared by ladies for ladies. The recipes are simple and suited to the resources of an ordinary household. Shall we send you a copy?

THE PILLSBURY-WASHBURN FLOUR MILLS CO., LTD., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

GROCERS EVERYWHERE SELL VITOS.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.
ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.

All inquiries concerning our city and country have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(Any subscriber of THE AMERICAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, FIFTH MONTH 18, 1899.

No. 20.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
POEM.—The Piece of Silver	459
EDITORIALS.—Coming to God—The Atonement as a Practical Truth.—
Bondage and Freedom.—A Quaker Worthy.—Editorial Note.....	459-461
General Church Notes	461
Enlarging the Soul	J. Hunt Cooke 462
The Excellency of Dignity and the Excellency of Power. J. Ellwood Paige	463
Four Steps Relative to the Ministry	Mead A. Kelsey 463

	PAGE
Peace	Albert C. Applegarth 464
A Call	467
Poem.—Where is God?	467
INTERNATIONAL LESSON.—Fifth month 28th, 1899.....	468
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	469
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	470
NEWS AND EVENTS.....	472

THE PIECE OF SILVER.

I was not resolute in heart and will,
To rise up suddenly and seek Thy face,
Leaving the swine husks in the desert place,
And crying, "I have sinned, receive me still!"

I could not, even at the Shepherd's voice,
Startle and thrill with yearning for the Fold,
Till He should take me in His blessed hold,
And lay me on His shoulder and rejoice.

But lying, silent, will-less in the dark,
A little piece of silver, lost from Thee,
I only knew Thy hands were seeking me,
And that I bore through all Thy heavenly mark.

COMING TO GOD—THE ATONEMENT AS A PRACTICAL TRUTH.

It will be admitted by everybody, we believe, that God's revelation of Himself, His dealings with us, and the death on the Cross, all have one end in view—viz., to bring men to God. God sent forth His Son that we might become sons. No simpler or clearer statement of the Divine movement for man's redemption can be made than that. This is the problem—man has sinned, has followed his own will, has put himself away from God, and has made himself an alien. How shall he get back to God, and realize that the enmity is past, and that he is made a son? We are speaking now wholly of the problem from our human point of view, which is, in the deepest and truest sense, a practical one. God's method was to show Himself and reveal His love, and thus to draw men to Him. He came to us as a Person, and spoke in human terms. He wrought with human hands. He lived a perfect life in the midst of sin and temptation. He illustrated the meaning of life on the highest spiritual level. He showed the significance and power of sacrifice and sympathy. He fulfilled all that was partial and incomplete in the past. He was Emanuel—God with us—in such a real and literal sense that those who saw Him saw God, and those who knew Him knew the Father's will.

But the most of those who saw and heard refused to believe; they did go through Him to God. They asked for impossible signs. They failed to see in Him the fulfilment of Scripture and prophecy, and the holy ideals of the race. The mere showing of Himself as Life and Light did not draw them to God. There was one supreme step which remained. He could die for men and pour out His love with His life. If that failed to reach human hearts nothing could reach them. But he believed it would not fail. "I, if I be lifted up shall draw all men unto myself." He gave Himself. He gave Himself solely for others. His dying was in every sense vicarious. He took upon Himself the whole burden of sin, and He bore it for us. But He did it that we henceforth might see, in this crucified Christ, the length and breadth and depth and height of God's love, and that we might be drawn by it to forsake all sin, and come to Him for the new life of Sonship. Speaking still on the human side, the atonement is made when Christ brings us to God by this gift of Himself. When a soul living in sin and an alien from God, and under condemnation, realizes that Christ died for him, and that that loving Heart is seeking for him, and drawing him from sin to sonship, and his own heart is touched, and he sets his face, through love to this Christ, to begin a new life as a child of God, he gains an immediate sense of the practical meaning of the atonement which is worth more than a thousand volumes of theological discussion on the subject.

So far the whole subject is clear and plain. Christ came and died that He might draw us to God. When we yield to the drawing we become at one with God. "We know that we are of God," and "we know that the Son of God has come."

There is nothing metaphysical or mystical here, nothing which a child who has once felt the power of a mother's love cannot appreciate and respond to. It comes as a holy message to anyone who realizes the defects of sin and the power of evil habit. It is an announcement of a greater power—the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believes. It is as practical and as much related to the needs of our lives as the bread for our body, or the light for our eyes.

Far be it from us to imply that we can fathom or describe all the meaning of That Life and That Death. We would not take the rough tools of scientific investigation into Gethsemane or to Calvary to report that there is no mystery there which we have not explored. We do not understand entirely the meaning and significance of any life or any death. The moment we try we are beyond our depth. What this sacrifice, this crucifixion, meant on the Divine side, or what place it had in the eternal Nature, is not our question or our concern, and we do not wish to explore it or pronounce upon it. Our Gospels are silent on these metaphysical questions, and deal everywhere with Christ's practical purposes, viz., "to give men life, and to give it in abundant measure." It is life, not theory, which brought the Son of God to us. Life and not speculation is His gift to us now.

This practical, positive meaning is as clear as the sky above us; God's method of bringing men to Himself culminated in a Personal coming, and that coming culminated in an agony and a death. This Divine movement to bring men to God is the supreme appeal to human hearts, and its significance as an atonement with God is realized positively by those who respond to it and find peace.

BONDAGE AND FREEDOM.

WE believe that no Christian ought to live in bondage, and yet strangely enough many Christians continue to do so, though perhaps it is often an unconscious bondage, like that of the Jews when they said, "We were never in bondage to any man." In fact, it is rather rare that we find persons who are not under some kind of bondage. The most common bondage is probably custom and tradition. What "the fathers" did takes on a certain sacred meaning, and it soon becomes a necessary part of religion. The church outgrows it, and it blocks the wheels of progress, but still it holds sway. The covering of the tabernacle is thought to be no less holy than the tables of the law within. The great things of life and eternity are overlooked in the zeal to guard and maintain these swaddling clothes which wrap and hamper the life within. It is a tendency in every church, and it has seriously cramped and narrowed the mission and service of our own branch. The fullest life and power cannot come until Christians see that we are called to a present life of spiritual freedom, and that the past should merely teach us its lessons, never make us its slaves. Our questions must be, not how old a method or a truth is, but is it true now and does it fit our need. Then there is a bondage to men. We know many good Christians—Friends, too—who have no will or mind of their own in religious matters. They have to see what some other man thinks before they know what they think themselves. They seem afraid of somebody's shadow. They lack spinal column, and they lean on somebody else, until they almost lose their individuality, and count only in the aggregate. They have no opinion until somebody else has one, and sometimes this bondage is so developed that the person does not know even whether his own soul is saved until he asks somebody else. It is a pitiable way to live, for true Christianity makes a man a man, and puts an image and superscription of individuality upon every soul. It is a shame for a Friend to live in such bondage.

Then there is a bondage to doctrinal formulas. Some clever person invents a pithy statement of some doctrinal truth, and it is caught up and used often for centuries until it gets to be sacred and hoary with age and use. It is used, as a yardstick, to measure everybody's faith by because it is so convenient. But not seldom these one-sentence theologies are only half statements of truth, and they need to be profoundly penetrated for the living truth within them, and not blindly used as foot-rules.

It becomes a Christian in his freedom to see clearly what such statements of truth mean for him, and to test them in his own experience, and not use them as lifeless blocks to build his theological structure. Every truth which the past has tried comes to us as a sacred legacy, and should be sacramental in our lives; but we cannot use ancient truth as slaves, but as free men who see God still moving in our lives, and confirming the truth that was by the truth that is.

A QUAKER WORTHY.

Benjamin Seeböhm, whose portrait is given this week, was one of the most interesting characters and one of the most remarkable ministers in the Society of Friends during the first two-thirds of this century. He was born in Germany in 1798, and moved to England in 1814. Even before leaving his native home he had translated in a meeting in Germany for "two Quaker lady preachers" from America, and in 1821 he first spoke in a meeting for worship as a minister of the Gospel. The most striking service of his life was his extensive visit through America during the years between 1846 and 1851. He visited nearly every meeting on the American continent, and his labors were greatly blessed. Few Friends have possessed more remarkable spiritual insight into the state of meetings and the conditions of individuals, so that he often seemed to be gifted with prophetic vision, as some still living remember. His ministry was characterized, as was that of his friend, Stephen Grellet, by its strong and powerful evangelical message, and he certainly prepared the way for the revival movement which was just beginning when he died, in 1871.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

AN incident in the last issue of the "British Friend" illustrates just the way not to deal with a controversial subject. Six months ago this journal published a pen picture of North Carolina Yearly Meeting which was in every sense a caricature, while it contained some statements which were clearly and surely misstatements. The whole article was misleading. President L. L. Hobbs, the clerk of the meeting, a man of weight and worth wherever he is known, wrote to correct the false impressions and the misstatements. His article, instead of being printed at once, was sent back to America to the original writer of the caricature to see if it were correct, and to give the aforesaid original writer an opportunity to answer it publicly in the same issue. The editor in his comment questions the trustworthiness of a positive statement by President Hobbs on the subject of packing committees, and the original writer undertakes to defend his first picture in ways which border on quibbling; for example, quoting a part of one sentence from an article by M. M. Hobbs to disprove the article by her husband!

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

The ardor of the Zionists, in their effort to establish in Palestine a Jewish colony, where the remnants of the Hebrew people might gather and enjoy the advantages of a separate statehood, has been dampened by the ultimatum of the Sultan. Through the Turkish minister at Washington, Ali Ferrough Bey, the Jews in this country, at least, are reminded that "The Sublime Porte does not desire to sell any part of its Arabian country, and no matter how many millions of gold are offered this determination will not be altered. I do not think it fair to encourage by silence false hopes, the realization of which would only lead to trouble and embarrassment for a nation which has certainly never persecuted the Hebrew race. If the promoters of the plan would heed this advice I know it will save their co-religionists in Europe and Asia troubles and disappointments hereafter." If this view of the Sultan is to prevail, it must mean one of two things: either the movement of the Zionists must come to naught, or they must look elsewhere for land upon which to establish their colony, for such a state will be acceptable to the Sultan in no part of his territory. Hardly had the late Congress at Basle adjourned when Turkey forbade the immigration or settlement of Jews in Palestine. Israel Zangwill, the celebrated Jewish writer, whom we have heard speak with unfeigned cynicism of the Zionists, is quoted as saying: "Personally, I still believe only in spontaneous immigration, as with the Jewish migrations to America and the Cape; and the hope of Zionism or of Nationalism turns, in my opinion, on the non-pauper, unsubsidized enthusiasts. But Dr. Herzl has achieved so much in so short a time that he ought to have a free hand for a little while. I hope he has retained the option of making his State outside Palestine, if necessary."

Dr. Charles A. Briggs was ordained by Bishop Potter in the Pro-Cathedral, in New York city, on the 14th inst. Although a formal protest had been threatened none was made, and the ceremonies were concluded without any disturbing incidents. Dr. Briggs expects to spend the summer in Europe, and on his return will take charge of the parish of the Pro-Cathedral. He is greatly interested in work among the poor in the Eastside, the slum section of the city. He will continue his connection with Union Theological Seminary.

If no withheld approval damps thy zeal,
When God's pure eye thy hidden motive scans,
As with bared soul thou dost to him appear,
What need'st thou care for man?

—Margaret J. Preston.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

ENLARGING THE SOUL.

BY J. HUNT COOKE.*

Strong and deep in the human soul is the desire for grand and elevating thought. This longing indicates a true want; for it is thus that the soul is enlarged, and enlargement, next to salvation, is the supreme need.

We are born that we may grow. This is true of the spirit as well as of the body. The soul becomes great by the contemplation of the great. Let thought be engaged on little things and its growth is stunted. The larger its conceptions, the grander is the stature of the true man, the immortal spirit within.

Christianity meets this as it does every spiritual need. One of its excellencies is that it brings before the believer the sublimest thoughts that ever entered the human mind. It reveals Christ the Lord. No other theme presents such an enlarging subject for contemplation.

Conceptions of the vast in Nature are elevating. We have stood by the Alpine range of the Swiss Oberland and looked at the mighty, snow-stoled mountains as their vastness grew in the mind. Or, on the deck of a vessel have sought that the incessant wave march of the unfathomable sea might broaden and deepen our intellect. Or, at night, have listened to the voiceless music of the stars, bringing ideas larger than our words could shape. And in each such exercise have felt a growth in soul stature.

If meditation on creation is so good, much more ennobling is a thought of the Creator! There we see infinity in all directions—in time and space, in power and wisdom. No thought of Him can be adequate, but none, however imperfect, can pass through the human mind without leaving a benediction behind it.

It is in Christ, by whom all things were made, that we see God. Apart from Him there may be some philosophic conception of a great first cause, but how far true, or even satisfactory, no mortal knoweth. But in our Lord we have God as He wishes us to think of Himself. He is the brightness of the Father's glory, the express image of His person.

Character is greater than being. No elevating influence has more power than that of intercourse with a great and good man. We are wiser for listening to his words, and better for touching the hem of his garment. Men have lived, men are living now, of such moral force that an hour's converse sometimes gives a new color to the whole future of him who has had the boon. There is a flawless perfection in the moral character of Christ which to meditate upon is an inspiration. No registered resolution, no energetic self-denying action has such a power to remould character and strengthen holiness as a calm contemplation of the moral excellence of the Saviour of mankind.

The resources for meditation found in Christ are boundless, and each is enlarging. The highest beauty is His, for moral beauty is higher than material; it is the highest of all. And in this sense He is the chief among ten thousand, the altogether lovely.

It is a secret of human happiness to allow our imaginations to be filled with the thought of happy things, happy beings, happy scenes. Jesus Christ is the happiest of all beings. His joy is infinite and eternal. "If ye loved Me," He once said, "ye would rejoice because I said I go to My Father." That is to say, the glorified joy of our Lord is, when contemplated by the believer, a perennial rejoicing that can transcend the greater grief.

Inconceivably great are the stores of blessing provided by His grace. We think of the innumerable company of souls whom He has rescued; of His eternal and immutable choice, of the suffering to which He stooped for their salvation, and of the everlasting glory He is preparing for them. And as we meditate thus on the breadth, the length, the depth, and the height, we find that in every way it transcends our intellectual powers; it passes knowledge. But, as the apostle suggests, in seeking to comprehend these things we are filled with the fulness of God; not only are our vessels full to the brim, but they grow in capacity. Dazzled with the splendor of divine love we may be, but thus our sight is purged; we mount as eagles gazing on the sun and rise higher, attracted by the glory.

Nobler than power, or character, or beauty is love. Indeed, it is the summing up of these, the ripe fruit of which all other excellence is but the bud. An old Hebrew poet called love "Deity incandescent," or, as Coverdale translates it, "O, very flame of the Lord."

It is through Christ that this glow and brightness of God is manifested to us. The love of Christ then is the loftiest theme that can occupy any mind, and the most ennobling.

London, England.

NOTICE.

To Western Yearly Meeting Christian Endeavorers:

Our annual Christian Endeavor Convention will be held this year at Carmel, Ind., and the date is Sixth month 20th, 21st and 22d. The first session will be the evening session on the 20th. The railroads have authorized a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip, tickets to be sold on the 19th and 20th, and good returning up to and including the 23d. A very interesting and instructive program has been arranged, for with such speakers and subjects as are on the program it cannot fail to be a feast of good things. The Friends at Carmel are making every preparation for us, and everyone will be provided with free entertainment, and will be given a hearty welcome. Send your names on ahead to Jesse R. Johnson, Carmel, Ind., for entertainment. Let each society in the Yearly Meeting appoint delegates. We hope Endeavorers generally will make a genuine effort to attend, and let us make it a rousing convention. Come prepared to take part.

CURTIS B. NEWSOM, Superintendent.

* Editor of "The Freeman," London.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE EXCELLENCY OF DIGNITY AND THE EXCELLENCY OF POWER.

Gen. xlix: 3.

BY J. ELLWOOD PAIGE.

Severe things have been said of Jacob by those who have sought to measure him by nineteenth century standards; but after his critics have done their worst the fact remains that Jacob was one of the world's great men. It is not strange that his acute mind should couple the qualities of dignity and power, in contemplating perhaps not so much what Reuben was, or had been, or should be, personally, as what the eldest son stood for as an ideal.

As applied to Christian work and Christian influence, it may well be questioned whether there is very much power apart from a genuine dignity. Webster tells us that dignity rests upon a sense of moral rectitude and propriety; but we are sometimes exhorted by persons with good intent no doubt, but whose zeal sadly needs to be tempered with wisdom—to throw away our dignity and our propriety—and right well do they set the pace. The Christian holds his every power with all the accretions which time and thought and study and exercise have brought to it, as a gift from God—not to be trifled with, not to be smirched by impure contact, not to be allowed to rust from disuse, not to be lowered to meet the spacious demands of policy.

A wise estimate of the position one holds as a steward of God's gift—as an almoner of his bounty—will lead to the utmost care lest the oil or wine should become hurt, and so fail to accomplish that whereunto it was sent. It is very true that if one should lift the fallen, it is necessary to come in direct contact with him, and that without the appearance or the thought of any chasm between two souls equally loved by a common creator. But is it not also true that it is impossible to be of help to one whose respect you cannot command? Imagine Elizabeth Fry in her holy mission among women so utterly antipodal to herself—with other than a queenly dignity, and yet a dignity entirely compatible with the “meekness and gentleness of Christ!” Looking over the history of the men and women largely blessed in turning people to righteousness, it will be found that whether learned or unlearned, whether of larger or smaller mental caliber—they have invariably had respect to the exalted character of the commission they held, and have guarded it with jealous loyalty. In the heat of religious fervor, persons are sometimes betrayed into practices which prove to be a positive hindrance to the cause which at heart they are really anxious to promote; and perhaps it does not occur to them that fairly intelligent people—who may yet be “out of Christ”—are repelled by a boisterous and undignified manner of treating the holiest of themes. It is not worth while to make allusion to that style of religious work which appears to assume that its effectiveness is in direct proportion to the amount of noise which is made and the frequency of “pious ejaculations.”

There is another thing which seems to the writer very painful—namely, the flippant manner in which people speak of the Holy Spirit—not to say of the way in which vagaries of ill-balanced minds are laid to His charge. To us Friends especially (though by no means exclusively), the recognition of the fact that “God does indeed dwell with men on the earth,” that His Spirit does counsel, enlighten, direct and comfort us, is peculiarly sweet and precious; and in the recognition of it as an actual soul experience, do we not instinctively hear the call, “Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground?”

It is not altogether uncommon with Christian people, and even among Friends in good standing, to hear the “moving of the Spirit” spoken of lightly, as a freaky notion of a more freaky sect, instead of one of the loftiest, most dignified truths taught in the Scripture, as well as the parting legacy left by our Saviour himself. Is there not other profanity than that which one hears as he passes through the streets of our cities?

If we have been given a banner to be displayed because of the truth, let us have a care that it be not allowed to trail in the dust.

Lynn, Mass.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

FOUR STEPS RELATIVE TO THE MINISTRY.

BY MEAD A. KELSEY.

I have for a long time been persuaded that our lack of numerical strength is due more to an insufficient view of the ministry than to any other cause, save it be this one—the want of a Spirit-baptized membership. Nothing is more apparent in the New Testament than the stress that is laid upon the preaching of the word, and that by persons separated by the Holy Spirit (Acts, 13: 2) for this particular function, and freed from the entanglements of business life (2 Timothy, 2: 4). And it is noticeable that those churches, which, whether in a recoil from the abuses of an unanointed and hireling ministry or from other cause, have not entered fully into the Scriptural idea of the ministry, are all suffering in exactly the same way. Now there are four steps relative to the ministry in the building of the early church to which I wish briefly to allude; and this, not to magnify myself nor any set of men in the church—that has been the blunder of Christendom—but “I magnify mine office.” These steps are: A ministry chosen; a ministry trained; a ministry commissioned; a ministry sustained.

The first step. When our Lord would lay the foundation of the Christian church He first chose twelve men to be preachers of the word; and this method of first providing the church with a ministry has ever been the Divine order. The first provision for the Protestant Reformation was a mighty proclaimer of the truth; the first Friend was a preacher; the first Methodists were preachers; the beginning of the Salvation Army was with a chosen minister of Christ, and so the enumeration might go on, but this is sufficient. I of course do not claim that the ministry is everything, but it is something, and that one of the prime factors of successful church building, since "it (has) pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe" (1 Cor., 1: 21). It was a further recognition of this fundamental requirement when our Saviour enjoined us to pray the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest (Luke, 10: 2), a direction that we would do well to heed more attentively.

The second step, or the training of the ministry. I know that many Friends earnestly object to any special preparation on the part of ministers other than those qualifications that are the direct bestowment of the Spirit. But did not the Master, after his choice of the Twelve, put them in training—training that was not regularly afforded any other disciples—for the space of three years? Was not Paul also in special training for his great work during those three years of comparative retirement before he went up to Jerusalem? And did not Paul in turn train Timothy, whom he charged in later years that he should commit that which he had heard to faithful men who should be able to teach others also (2 Tim., 2: 2). Whatever may be said of the training of the apostles, which of course had its distinctive features, the instruction of Paul to Timothy meant nothing less than a training school for those who should minister in the word. As to the requirement for this in individual cases, we will admit exceptions, as "there are diversities of operation," but the rule was, and is, a special training for those who are called of God to preach the word.

The third step, or the commission. After the first disciples had received their training, our Lord delivered this charge: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark, 16: 15). Thus we are given a glimpse, as it were, of the commencement exercises of the first training school for Christian ministers. But there was one restriction upon them, and that was that they should tarry for the baptism of the Holy Ghost (Luke, 24: 49). This being experienced, they were to go under His abiding unction and preach—not hold silent meetings, not preach once a month, or a few times a year—but to make it the business of their lives to "preach the word" (2 Timothy, 4: 1). Now to this also there may be individual exceptions in subsequent times, but I am speaking of the rule for the ministry as we find it in the New Testament. Christ wants His ministers to preach, and it is fair to expect that as they abide in Him they will be obedient to His command.

The fourth step, or a ministry sustained. Paul, in 1 Corinthians 9: 14 cites our Lord as recorded in Matthew 10: 10 and Luke 10: 7, assuring the Corinthians that Christ had ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel. Now there is in this no argument for a hireling ministry, which is a ministry that can be bought and sold, but there is an unanswerable demand for a supported ministry, and such was the ministry of the early church. This appears from the fact that the first ministers, making it the business of their lives to preach the gospel, left off their previous secular employments. Our Lord Himself was a carpenter, but there is no intimation that He ever returned to the shop at Nazareth after the taking up of His ministry. Peter and others were fishermen, but we find not one allusion to their ever fishing again after that interview, when, with the full net lying at their feet, Jesus addressed Peter and said, "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? . . . He saith unto him, Feed my Lambs" (John 21: 15).

And in the case of Matthew, the collector of customs, we never find him looking for a position in the revenue service after that memorable day when Christ passed by and said, "Follow me." "And he left all, rose up, and followed him." Paul shows some deviation from the rule, for whose liberty we may well be thankful, but we should mark that tent-making never became more than a temporary expedient with him, while his business was always preaching Christ. The one was an avocation merely, the other his vocation. In speaking of this liberty which he enjoyed he assures the Corinthians that it was not of necessity, as we have already cited (1 Cor. 9: 14), while to the same church he afterwards testified that he took wages of other churches that he might minister to them (2 Cor., 11: 8), so that after all even Paul's example does not justify the ideas prevailing in some parts relative to a supported ministry.

May God bless us as a church, and greatly increase the number of those whose vocation is preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ; so shall we prosper and fill the world with His truth.

High Point, N. C.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

PEACE.

BY ALBERT C. APPELGARTH, PH.D.

In Luke 2: 14, this language is used: "And on earth peace." Nineteen hundred years have passed since these words were uttered. They have ceased to be prophecy. They have become history. "War," says the inspired Apostle, "emanates from the evil heart." A distinguished writer avers, "When we fight more against ourselves and less against God, we shall cease fighting one another." Human experience abundantly demonstrates the truth of the statement. Where Jesus Christ is born, wickedness flees away before His face; wherever the Son of God comes, peace follows.

We see this in reference to the smallest unit—the individual. Before his conversion a man may have been a very troublesome citizen to the state. Many times he may have been arraigned before the legal tribunals for his misdemeanors. But when he accepts the Son of God as his Saviour, he is no longer a disturber of the peace. I claim, then, that history proves where Christ is born there will be peace on earth.

It is also true in the family. Enter a home where no Saviour dwells. Are husband and wife joined by the ties of love? Not as a rule. Usually we find ourselves in an atmosphere of angry words, in a reign of terror. Instead of heart being linked to heart in heavenly affection, only too frequently we find the rule of mere brute force on the part of the man.

Take the case of the community. Go with me into the East End of London—into Whitechapel. To this section the patrol wagon makes frequent visits. Policemen are kept busy. Tumults prevail. One brawl, one crime, succeeds another in rapid succession. Surely, there is no peace in this place! On the other hand, consider some districts inhabited by Christians. Think of Northfield. Here we find hundreds, perhaps thousands, of persons. But Northfield has neither officers of the law nor penitentiaries. What makes the difference? In Whitechapel there is no Christ; in Northfield the Saviour's will is supreme.

The same law holds as regards nations. Where corruption ruled, the Greeks carried on perpetual warfare. Hostilities formed the usual occupation of the Romans when the state began to decay. Pass in review the history of our Indian tribes. All goes to show that the lower, the more degraded, a people are, the more wars do they wage. Why? Because only Jesus lifts a nation to grandeur. And where He is born, there will be peace.

Do you not perceive, then, that Charles Sumner was right when he heroically reminded the legislature of Massachusetts that peace, and not war, constituted the true glory of a nation? Briefly, I want to consider that awful thing known as war. I do this, because I am firmly persuaded that an impartial view of warfare will promote on earth that peace which our Lord Jesus Christ came to establish. For a moment reflect upon

I.—The Nature of War. Of course, time and space will not permit me to speak exhaustively. I simply desire to suggest a line of thought which makes the nature of war very plain to my own mind.

Most of these struggles have their origin primarily in what diplomacy styles "affairs of honor." One country says something, does something, which appears to sin against the dignity of another. As a result, the clash of arms is heard, and many souls, for which the Redeemer died, are sent unprepared into eternity.

In former times, when one individual insulted another, a resort was had to swords or pistols. This was the so-called "code of honor." By it all differences were adjusted. Enlightened civilization has passed upon such procedure. It has declared this practice to be a remnant of barbarism. As such it has been abolished. After careful, mature consideration, I can perceive no vital distinction between the duels between individuals and war between states. In my judgment, one is just as permissible as the other. If it be wrong for a person to avenge an insult by an appeal to force, such conduct surely cannot be right in the aggregations of individuals, to wit, the nations.

On another matter our opinions should be well-informed. I speak of

II.—The Economic Loss of War. England purchased all the slaves in her dominions, and yet our Civil War cost many millions more than Great Britain expended for that purpose. Our war with Spain was happily short. Yet, with no loss of precious life, Cuba could have been purchased many times over for what our Government has spent in this struggle.

It is sometimes imagined that wars make times more prosperous. It is alleged, for example, that wages increase. A greater economic mistake could scarcely be made. Instead of bringing prosperity, war is the precursor of national adversity. Europe to-day is a case in point. Hostilities are common. Where are the poor people worse off? Germany is a hand by the wayside. She keeps a large standing army. In this kingdom there is compulsory military service. Men are called away from home. This throws farm work upon the aged and the women. Any person who is enamoured of militarism would have his ardor greatly chilled by even a short residence in the Old World.

In our own country, look at the enormous expense war entails. Men are taken from their employment; agriculture, commerce, manufactures, are retarded. These thousands of soldiers must be supported. To do this funds must be forthcoming; to provide these taxation must be increased. It is so in America to-day. Such has ever been the case. James Madison was a man of intellect and ability. Mr. Madison says, "Of all evils to public liberty, war is perhaps the most to be dreaded. It comprises and develops the genius of every other. War is the parent of armies. From these proceed debts and taxes," and armies, debts, and taxes are the known instruments of bringing the many under the dominion of the few.

In his "History of the English People," Mr. Green declares that in the reign of Edward III. war was the cause of the first great conflict between labor and capital. He alleges, also, that the glory of Crecy and of Poitiers was dearly bought by the growth of British pauperism. That eminent specialist, Lombroso, asserts that militarism is the source of all the evils that are ruining the Latin races. Do you wonder, then, that Cowper affirms, were their subjects wise, war is a game that kings would not be allowed to play at? For the money spent in wars, every foot of land on the earth's surface could be purchased; every man, woman, and child could be clothed in royal apparel; a school-house could be put on every hilltop; an academy could be located in every town; and a college established in every state. Surely the advent of the Lord Jesus was an untold blessing to man since it was to bring peace on earth.

I want you to hang another picture in your minds. Glance at

III.—The Horrors of War. In all the glory attaching to the life and death struggles of nations, let not this feature be overlooked. Look not only at the marching phalanxes. Gaze not merely at the waving banners. Hear not simply strains of martial music floating out on the air. Let us look at the battlefield when the fight is over. Listen to the agonizing cries of the wounded and the dying. Then, I believe, we will see that war is the devastating cyclone. It is the pestilence walking in darkness. War finds an Eden; it leaves a Sodom. Sherman had some experience. You recall his famous remark, "War is hell." This aphorism, however, was not original with the American. Shakespeare's "Henry IV." contains this apostrophe, "O, war, thou son of hell." No wonder that General Grant's motto should be, "Let us have peace." When the horrors of war filled the Duke of Wellington's mind, no wonder that he wept on the field of Waterloo. No wonder that William Pitt's voice was heard in the British Parliament, pleading for peace, when England was about to force her trans-Atlantic colonies into open hostilities.

In detailing miseries of war there is no temptation to exaggerate. No depth of coloring can approach the awful reality. Some of you have seen army clash with army. You may have been at Bull Run, at Gettysburg, at Santiago. You know more of such things than I do. I have never seen an engagement. I pray God, I never will. But, in thought, let us repair to some battlefield.

A few years since, I saw a panorama of one of the bloody battles of the Civil War. What mortal tongue can tell the horrors of that picture! Strewn over the ground lay heaps of human beings, weltering in their own blood. Multitudes had been trodden under the feet of horses. I remember one ghastly upturned face with the mark of the iron shoe upon it. Bodies were without heads. Limbs were without trunks. Gladly did I turn away from this sickening sight. "O, God," I cried, "how long, how long! When will Thy kingdom come!" But stay! Go not yet. We have other spectacles to witness in this chamber of horrors. Even from afar I could hear the wail of anguish rising from many a home. The husband would return no more. Never again would that son gladden the eyes of aged parents. Around that once happy fireside now sit the widow and orphan, clothed in sombre crape.

Am I accused of want of patriotism? Am I reminded that the Civil War was necessary in the interest of humanity? I never believed in bondage. It is contrary to the law of both God and man. Every creature made in the Almighty's image should be free. From my mother's knee I was taught to love and reverence the Union. But I believe there was a better way to wipe the tear from the eyes of the oppressed slave. Great Britain had serfdom. It was abolished. This was not done by bloodshed, but by fair purchase. What England did these United States of America might have done.

We refer to the Civil War as awful. In so doing we are right. It arrayed citizens of same country—ofttimes members of the same family—against each other. But, in reality, where is there a war when such has not been the case? On the authority of God's holy Word I maintain that all wars are civil. Were not all men made in the Creator's likeness? Is not every human creature descended from our original parents, Adam and Eve? Did not Jesus love the souls of all men, and did he not die on Calvary's Cross to redeem them? Consequently, are not all men brothers? If this fact had been recognized, the blood-red pages of history would never have been written.

But once more. Public executions have been generally abolished. They were found to exercise a very demoralizing effect upon the spectators. Can the influence of war be more uplifting? Napoleon said war was the trade of barbarians. Even heathen that he was, Cicero declares that war belongs not to men, but to animals. What are the instincts which war brings out? Would anyone ever say that a man fought like the Saviour? When we wish to compliment a soldier, does not everybody say he fought like a lion? Is, then, this savage beast of prey the highest form of life? Certainly we are not to consider mere animal traits the noblest ideals for humanity.

Even yet our picture is not complete. The worst is still to come. Think of the souls—the millions of souls—that war has dispatched unprepared into the presence of Almighty God. Jesus Christ came to seek and to save men. We are commanded to have His mind in us. As he did, let us try to do. And may God save us all from causing any human being an eternity of woe.

My last argument for peace is this: I believe that

IV.—Jesus Christ Opposes War. In making this statement, my impression is that I correctly apprehend God's Holy Word. Of course, some one will instantly remind me of the wars in the Old Testament. But what says the Christ? What said He as to the law concerning divorce? It was not Jehovah's way. It came not from God. It was caused by the hardness of man's heart. Is not the same true of national conflicts? Even under the Old Dispensation, what was the language of the prophet? In that happy time, when the Messiah should come, swords would be beaten into ploughshares. That day was ushered in when the Star of the East stood over Bethlehem's manger. Jesus' inaugural address was "Peace on earth." He was lifted up as the Prince of Peace. His valedictory was, "Peace, I leave with you."

The early Christians were firm in their belief that war was inconsistent with the Gospel. Justin Martyr lived about 140 A.D. He writes, "We, who were once slayers of one another, fight no longer against our enemies." Tertullian and Irenaeus have left posterity similar testimony. In his work against Cel-sus, the great skeptic, Origen (230 A.D.), says "We no longer take up the sword against any nation, nor do we learn to make war any more. For the sake of Jesus we have become children of peace. By our prayers we fight for our king abundantly. But we take no part in his wars, even though he urge us."

Many great men of the earth have grasped this teaching. Benjamin Franklin was utterly opposed to war; so was Charles Sumner. Dr. William E. Channing describes war as a disgrace to nations that profess to be Christian, and Charles H. Spurgeon—that prince of the pulpit—has left these words on record: "May the day come when war shall be regarded as the most atrocious of all crimes."

The tree of peace strikes its roots deep into the crevice of the Rock of Ages. Jesus Christ makes peace between man and God. When this reconciliation is accomplished, one human being, one nation, will war no more against another. The Redeemer told His disciples to put up the sword. The Kingdom of God cannot come in that way. When our Lord declared He came to bring war upon earth, He never meant physical carnage. This conflict was to be moral. Righteousness was to conquer wickedness. In this struggle each one should be engaged. The evil in our own hearts is to be subdued. Iniquity in our community is to be put down. Any man who does this is a patriot, even though he has never heard a cannon fired. To-day the world in general, and our own country in particular, needs civil patriotism more than it does military patriotism. How much better it is to carry the Gospel of Jesus to a nation than the sword of war? Let us then labor and pray that the day will speedily dawn when the chiming bells will ring out that angelic message, "And on earth, peace."

Huntingdon, Pa.

A CALL.

(In extending the following call to the readers of THE AMERICAN FRIEND, I desire to avail myself of the opportunity of thanking our many Friends in different parts of the country for their kind help in obtaining signatures to the petition to the Czar, endorsing the approaching Peace Conference at The Hague. We have responses from nineteen different States of the Union, the District of Columbia and from Canada. The number of individual indorsements reaches to over 10,000. If, in addition to these, we include the cases where the officers of organizations have signed for a scattered membership, the result would be not far from 40,000. As I have not been able to acknowledge all by letter, and as in some cases there was no clue as to my correspondent, I hope that this may be accepted instead. I would add that Robert B. Warder and myself had a very satisfactory interview with the Russian Ambassador, who expressed pleasure at the evidence of appreciation of what the Emperor had proposed. Soon afterwards he sent me a letter, essentially similar to the one already published in THE AMERICAN FRIEND, officially expressing the thanks of the Emperor.—R. H. T.)

A Call from the Peace Association of Friends in America.

On the 18th of the present (Fifth) month, 1899, one of those events which seem to be turning points in the history is to take place. For the first time in the history of man a Conference, composed of the representatives of the different nations, is to be held to consider the general question of how to promote International Peace.

Many of us have signed memorials to the Czar, or to the President of the United States, expressive of our earnest desire that this Conference may prove a success. Let us not now think that our part is over. If opportunity offers let meetings be held before the end of the present month, or early in next month, where the important issues at stake may be considered and opportunity given for prayer to our Heavenly Father, that under His blessing the minds of the delegates may be directed to see what is the wise course to pursue. Where public meetings are not practicable, let all lovers of peace consider the subject with the seriousness it demands, and see if their hearts are not drawn out in prayer for the best success of the Conference. Let such meetings as may be held, and isolated individuals also, write to our delegates at The Hague directly, telling them of the earnest wish that is in our hearts, so that they may be encouraged to do their utmost to promote wise measures looking toward permanent peace, and especially to influence the Conference to devise a method by which a permanent Court of Arbitration may be established. Such letters may be addressed to any of our delegates at the Conference, as, for example, "Andrew D. White, United States Delegate to the Peace Conference, The Hague, Holland."

Signed, Richard Henry Thomas, President, 1718 John Street, Baltimore, Md.; Daniel Hill, Secretary, Richmond, Ind.

Fifth month, 1899.

WHERE IS GOD ?

Oh, where does God abide?

I asked the lily, and her petal tips
Slow parted their white, smiling lips,
As softly she replied:

"In me He dwells. Lo! that sweet perfume rare,
Which thou inhaledst from my heart, is there Because He there does hide."

Oh, where may God be found?

I asked the storm to tell me, if it knew,
And thundrous it replied, as on it flew:
"Hear how His steps resound

Within my hurtling heart. Lo! down is trod
The bush, and bent the branch, because thy God
Along this way is found."

Oh, where does God belong?

I asked the restless, surging mass of men;
Like sound of mighty sea came answer then:
"Behold, not angels' song,

Or spherical music vast, speaks God at hand
As does the moan and laugh in every land
Of God's great human throng."

Oh, where does God not dwell?

Of not a single far off solitude,
Where God's sweet presence does not bide and brood
Can earth or heaven tell!

In deepest desert may God's Jacob sleep;
E'en there God's ladder rests, that He may keep His tender vigil well!

—Louis M. Waterman, in "Youth's Companion."

It is the little words you speak, the little thought you think, the little thing you do or leave undone, the little moments you waste or use wisely, the little temptations which you yield to or overcome, the little things of every day that are making or marring your future life.—"Light on the Hidden Way."

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson IX.

Fifth month 28, 1899

CHRIST BEFORE PILATE.

John 18: 28-40.

GOLDEN TEXT.—I find no fault in him. John 19: 4.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 22.—Christ before Pilate. John 18: 28-40.
 Third-day, Fifth mo. 23.—Mocked by Herod. Luke 23: 1-12.
 Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 24.—Rejected of men. Matt. 27: 15-25.
 Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 25.—No fault. John 19: 11-16.
 Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 26.—Powerful enemies. Acts 4: 23-30.
 Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 27.—Example of suffering. Heb. 12: 1-6.
 First-day, Fifth mo. 28. Perfect by suffering. Heb. 5: 1-9.

The present lesson follows directly after the last. The parallel account should be read, viz.: Matt. 27: 11-31; Mark 15: 1-20; Luke 23: 1-25.

John does not describe the trial before Caiaphas, but simply states the facts, and presumes that his readers are acquainted with the particulars.

28. "Then led they." That is, his enemies—the Jews. They could condemn Jesus, but could not under the Roman law, execute him—as the Romans would not allow them to put anyone to death. "Hall of judgment." "Palace" (Revised Version). The residence of the Roman Governor. This was probably in the Castle of Antonia, not far from the Temple area. "Early." It was not legal to condemn at night; the time was therefore not long after sunrise. "Lest they should be defiled." To enter a Gentile's house where heaven had not been removed would cause defilement in the eyes of the strict Jew. This restriction is not in the Law, but was wholly traditional. "Might eat the Passover." From these words it would seem clear that the last Supper was not the Passover Supper. The accounts in the other Gospels seem on their face to imply that it was. Here is a real difficulty. On carefully examining the accounts in the four Gospels it will be seen that John is very particular in his statements as to time (13: 1; 18: 28; 19: 14; 19: 31). "From these passages it is evident that John places the crucifixion on the eve of the Passover. Consequently our Lord was in the grave before the Passover began, and the last Supper cannot have been the paschal meal." The other accounts refer more particularly to the nature of the last Supper, and are not really inconsistent with John's account. There is, however, an honest difference of opinion among scholars as to the matter, but the weight of authority is as stated above. It would seem more in accord with prophecy that the true Paschal Lamb should not himself eat the Passover when He was to be sacrificed, and the old rite was to be done away.

29. "Pilate." The fifth or sixth governor of Judea under the Romans, A. D. 26-36. He was a proud, unscrupulous, selfish, and even cruel man. John shows his character very well. "Went out." He conceded this much to Jewish prejudice or religiousness. "What accusation?" He doubtless knew very well, but wished them to make a formal charge (see Matt. 27: 18, 19; John 18: 3).

30. It would rather seem that the Jews expected Pilate to confirm their sentence without further trial.

31. Pilate speaks ironically, and this brings out their confession that they had not the power to put anyone to death. Had they had the power, they certainly would not have gone to Pilate.

32. "By what manner of death" (Revised Version). Compare John 12: 33; Matt. 20: 19. Crucifixion was a Roman custom; the Jewish practice was by stoning (Deut. 13: 9, 10, etc.).

33. "Pilate therefore" (Revised Version). The importunity of the Jews led him to make further inquiry. "Art thou." The emphasis is strongly upon the pronoun. He expected a denial.

34. Christ asks a question which brings the whole matter fairly before Pilate—it is really an appeal to his conscience.

35. Pilate, evidently irritated, disclaims any charge of his own, but intimates Christ must have done something heinous thus to be brought before him.

36. Again the pronoun is emphatic. "This world." Has not its origin in this world; its characteristics are not of this world—it is a spiritual kingdom. In proof of this statement he used an argument which Pilate would understand perfectly. "But now is my kingdom not from hence." The word "now" is not a particle of time, but of connection of thought, and is equivalent to "seeing that it is so," or "thus." "Christianity is not a development of human thought, but a gift from God to man." Christ here teaches that all attempts to support the church by outward force are inconsistent with the very foundation of the church—its weapons are to be spiritual, not carnal.

37. Exactly what meaning Pilate intended to give these words depends on the emphasis. Possibly they are equivalent to, "so thou art a king after all." "Thou sayest it, for I am a king" (Revised Version). There is a little doubt as to the best rendering of the original, but the meaning in any case is that Christ acknowledges that he is a king, and that he came into the world to bear witness to "the Truth"—in this case especially man's relation to God, and he did this by word and by life. "Of the truth." One who draws his inspiration from the truth. "Hear-eth." Here, as frequently in the Bible, equivalent to "hear and obey" (John 10: 27).

38. "What is truth?" Note that Pilate in this famous question does not ask what is "the truth?" But, what is truth? The question seems to be sarcastic, perhaps even sneering, though some think there is a touch of pity in it. In his view truth was of little account in the world; force and expediency were the only things to be considered. Pilate had, however, convinced himself that Jesus was innocent of the charge brought against him. It is probably at this time that Pilate sends Jesus to Herod (Luke 23: 6-9), and that it was on his return that the people ask for the release of Barabbas.

39, 40. Pilate doubtless was desirous to release Jesus, but he was not man enough to do what justice demanded. He tried to stir up a difference of opinion among the crowd, but through the influence of the chief priests he failed. Then he tried to shift the responsibility from himself. "Now Barabbas was a robber." Better, "a brigand" or bandit; he was not a common thief (see Mark 15: 7; Matt. 27: 16). John's description is most impressive; the simple statement is sufficient to bring out the contrast.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FIFTH MONTH TWENTY-EIGHTH.

ESTABLISHED IN HEART.

Rom. 1: 11, 12; Psa. 112: 1-10.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 22.—Established by God. 1 Pet. 5: 5-11.
Third-day, Fifth mo. 23.—Established in Christ. 2 Cor. 1: 21-24.
Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 24.—Established through faith. Isa. 7: 1-9.
Fifth-day, Fifth mo. 25.—Established with grace. Heb. 13: 5-9.
Sixth-day, Fifth mo. 26.—Established in the faith. Col. 1: 21-29.
Seventh-day, Fifth mo. 27.—Established in the truth. 2 Pet. 1: 12-21.

Establish, from stabilis, firm, steady, and heart, meaning the will, moral nature and affections. How shall we get it established in the way of righteousness and obedience? How shall they get a set in the direction of holiness, so that, like the tendrils of a vine, they can never be torn loose again. To many a young Christian, his will and affections seem more like a vine tendril just starting out, its set undetermined, its hold very weak on anything.

The first great truth about establishment is found in Romans 16: 25, "Him that is able to stablish you according to my gospel." God is able to do it. Hold that precious truth up against your poor, doubting heart until it grows warm with faith and trust once more. You cannot establish yourself. You have tried that over and over again, and utterly failed. Hold on to the truth that God can establish you until you begin to believe that He will do it. Like Jehoshaphat, in 2 Chronicles 20: 20, 21, believe in the Lord your God; so shall ye be established; believe his prophets, so shall ye prosper. Then you can believe He is establishing you, and you can go out like Jehoshaphat's army with a song of victory before you have struck a blow.

Next, we are to be established in Christ. You can never get establishment in an experience, or an intellectual apprehension of the truth, or in an emotion. No more can you get establishment in an experience somebody else has had. It is in Christ that we stand. We need Him, and He will quicken our intellects, emotions, our whole nature as He will. 1 Thess. 3: 12, 13, teaches the beautiful lesson that a vast increase of love will establish our hearts in an unblameable holiness. Ah! if I could only get the love, do you say. Then remember that love is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit which is given us (Romans 5: 5). It is a great comfort to know that the law of confirmation of character by habit works for our establishment in holiness, but there are times in a man's life when it is infinitely more comfort to know that God can establish according to "my gospel," as Paul puts it; that is, the law of Divine grace that infinitely transcends the law of habit, revolutionizes its force in the direction of evil, rearranges the brain cells, to quote a recent psychological theory, and sets the nature in the direction of holiness. The Gospel is a message of the power of God to transform man. No other Gospel would be large enough for a lost world.

We can never be established short of full surrender to God. Thousands of souls have begun the Christian life, come to their Kadesh Barnea of full surrender, and henceforth have lived a weary round of struggle and defeat, pitching their tents here and there on desert sands by some surface pool of water which soon dries up, and again they must take up their weary march, never coming nearer to the Canaan land of rest and victory. Perhaps to-day it is the palm trees and pools of a vigorous church, or a good revival, or a new preacher, and for a time these souls are refreshed and comforted in their desert life. Again, for some it is a new conception of the truth, a new dogma, or a new school of prophetic interpretation, or a new liberalism, an advanced thought; but after awhile it all proves of no avail against the sin of our nature and the allurements of the world. Alas, poor soul! There is no help for thee outside of full surrender to God at any and every cost, and in that great surcharge of love and peace that will come from the real fellowship with Him. And even yet more than this. Thou wilt come to so know Him that He will be enough in Himself without consideration of His blessings. We must learn to live in Him, and simply in our enjoyment of Him.

But I should like most of all to speak a word of help in this message to some young Christian who is really trying so hard to overcome sin and evil, and yet is so often defeated. Far be it from me to deny to such an one the right to call himself God's child. It is a hard, iron creed of man's making that does that. But how shall such an one win the victory? Well, you will never win it. Only Christ can give it to you. "Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world. My peace I give unto you." What can be better than that. He has won the victory. Take His peace by taking Him. Yield all up to Him for direction, for use, forever. Take Him as strength, for help, for victory. No doubt Satan will tempt you sorely here, but do not listen to him. Talk to God. Claim His promises. Embrace them; confess them from afar. He will fulfill them. But establishment has also its laws of daily living. We can never grow strong if we do not feed on the word of God. It takes an hour a day with his Bible for the writer to get food for spiritual life, and generally two hours.

We must be established in Christian work. An idle soul never grows strong. Pre-occupation in the Master's service is a safeguard against the world, the flesh and the devil. Any service, however lowly, if faithfully done strengthens one's soul against evil.

He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace. And the men who have this life in them are the true lords or kings of the earth—they, and they only.

News from the Field.

John Henry Douglas has left his home in Oregon to cross the continent for the eighteenth time for Gospel service. He expects to labor for a time in the limits of Western Yearly Meeting. His wife, who was very ill in the spring, is now much improved, and her friends are hoping that she will be well and strong during the warm weather.

The following letter from a far-off camp on the Alaskan Trail of the Northwest Territory is full of interest. Probably no copy of THE AMERICAN FRIEND will have a more eager reader than this Friend in his miner's camp. He hopes to give us some information of the native Indians obtained from actual contact with them.

On the Trail in Camp at Foot of Lake Labarge, Northwest Territory, Fourth month 10th, 1899.

Dear Brother: I am with a party going into Dawson City, and feel so lost without THE AMERICAN FRIEND I will drop thee a few lines, asking thee to please send it to me for all of this year (1899). I don't want to miss the back numbers. I will send thee the pay when I get into Dawson, and might write some things of interest to some of the readers of the FRIEND if thee desires. Our party came this far with dogs and sleds from Skaguay over the lakes and rivers, camping in a tent with snow three or four feet deep in places, and mercury from zero to 43 below. We have had quite an interesting time. There are many hundreds going in, and perhaps as many coming out. Many are going in expecting to make their fortune quickly, and will most surely be disappointed; while others are only expecting to work for better wages than they can obtain elsewhere. This is at the mouth of the last lake, and we are whip-sawing logs for lumber to build a boat to finish the journey. We are about 200 miles by the trail from Skaguay, or 1,450 miles northwest of Portland, Oregon.

Please send me THE AMERICAN FRIEND for this year, and remember the back numbers. Thy friend and brother, Dawson City, Northwest Territory. WM P. SMITH.

Joseph James Neave, who has labored extensively in the Australian Colonies of Great Britain, has received a minute from Essex and Suffolk Quarterly Meeting, England, liberating him to visit California, North Carolina and Baltimore Yearly Meetings.

OHIO YEARLY MEETING.

Columbus, Ohio.—Alum Creek Quarterly Meeting was held at Highland Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, Fourth month 29th and 30th. Visiting ministers acceptably present were Amos M. Kenworthy, of Knightstown, Ind.; Minnie Bassett, Wm. Thornbury, George F. Westgate, George Lupton and Wallace Johnson, all of Ohio Yearly Meeting.

On Seventh-day Minnie Bassett preached with much fervor from 1 John 3: 2, "Beloved now are we the sons of God." She was followed by Amos Kenworthy, who spoke to edification from the words, "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Others spoke briefly.

In the evening the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society held its quarterly meeting, and an excellent address was given by Tennyson Williams, a city missionary. Near the close of the meeting Charles H. Stalker, of Westfield, Ind., walked quietly in to the surprise of all who knew him.

Having been greatly used of God in this place six months ago, there was great joy at his return. The congregation rose and sang with much feeling, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," followed by the chorus which is so often upon the lips of our dear brother:

"I've let the dear Holy Ghost in,
I've let the dear Holy Ghost in,
I'll keep him no more out at the door,
I've let the dear Holy Ghost in."

On the Sabbath some of the ministers were at Camp Chase, some at Highland Avenue, and some at the Mission in North Columbus.

Morning, afternoon and evening the gospel stream was flowing, and it was a day of power and blessing.

Charles Stalker remained one week, and held two meetings each day and three on the Sabbath, preaching and testifying of the power and indwelling of the personal Holy Ghost, who is such a blessed reality in his own life.

Many more have opened their hearts to receive the Comforter; some have been converted and some renewed, and it may be truly said, as it was of Samaria of old, "There was great joy in that city."

L. G. ROMICK.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

High Point, N. C.—Many white citizens attended the closing exercises of our Normal and Industrial School for Colored People, which is one of the principal missionary enterprises of New York Yearly Meeting. The parts that were taken by the students on the different nights in recitation, oration, essay, song and instrumental music, showed exceptionally good training, and surprised as well as pleased the white visitors. The enthusiasm over the exhibit of the musical department, which has been under the direction of Miss Ader the past year, was particularly marked, and was the talk of the town the next day. Prof. Kirkman, of the Kirkman School of Music, expressed the wish that the musical program might be repeated at the Opera House for the entertainment of the white people of the place.

It is to be hoped that some special donation will be made to the musical department, and so make it possible to retain Miss Ader the coming year.

The closing address was made by Prof. P. P. Claxton, of the State Normal and Industrial College, and was a masterful handling of the educational problem in North Carolina. He said that the State could not prosper with one-third of her population (the proportion of colored people) fettered by ignorance. The two races are bound together. "My child," said he, "is bound to the colored child, and one cannot rise without the other."

He quoted Booker Washington, who has said that of all the negroes who have suffered for nameless crimes, not one was a student nor graduate of such schools as this.

The whole address illustrated what I think is a fact, that the educators of the State take a very different view of the race question from that taken by the politicians, who make capital of the race prejudice for party or personal advantage.

The commencement sermon was preached by David E. Sampson, of East Bend, N. C., and was highly spoken of, as was also the address of James R. Jones before the Young Men's Christian Association of the school.

Principal A. J. Griffin and the whole corps of teachers deserve praise for an excellent year's work. MEAD A. KELSEY.

BALTIMORE YEARLY MEETING.

Bendersville, Pa.—Our meeting at this place has been greatly blessed by a visit from Eli G. Parker, a dear Friend from Iowa. He had five appointed meetings, and at our regular meeting on First-day morning; he preached a full gospel at each meeting, and the aged felt the power of the Lord in their souls. We praise God for this visit among us. H. B. W.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

The thirteenth annual Bible School Assembly of Western Yearly Meeting will be held at Thorntown, Ind., on the Big Four Railroad, thirty-eight miles northwest of Indianapolis, beginning Third-day evening, Fifth month 30th, and closing Fifth-day evening, Sixth month 1st. Entertainment will be free except the dinners, which will be furnished by the Women's Christian Temperance Union at a charge of fifteen cents. Persons expecting to come will confer a favor on the Entertainment Committee by sending their names in advance to the chairman, Lizzie A. Murphy, Thorntown, Ind.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

J. F. Hanson and wife acceptably attended New Sharon Meeting on the 30th ult. In the evening Brother Hanson gave a peace lecture. The following week these two Friends started for Norway in the Lord's service.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Our meeting in this city was addressed on 15th ult., and again Fifth month 7th, by Professor A. H. Pearson, of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. Professor Pearson is a Congregationalist and a minister, and has had charge of the Biblical Department in his college since its organization. His communications to us on both occasions were of much interest and very instructive.

The circumstances of his acquaintance with Friends, and of his knowledge of their history, their doctrine, their methods of work and service, as related by himself on the occasion of his first attendance at our meeting on the 14th of Fourth month, were very interesting, indeed.

It occurred at Birmingham, England, at the home of George Cadbury, into which he was introduced by a mutual friend and acquaintance on the occasion of his visit to that city to attend a meeting of Congregational ministers, held there. The strong spiritual life and activity existing in this wealthy and elegant home, the great work in the several missions in and about Birmingham of which the Cadburys were the leading instrumentalities, and which he was permitted to see, wonderfully impressed him, and proved to be the means of enlarging very much his spiritual life, and also in exciting a warm interest in our branch of the church. To quote him more directly: Though a Congregationalist, his spiritual life had been largely quickened by his contact with Friends.

Born in the town in which Whittier lived, he knew that he was a Quaker, but beyond that he knew almost nothing of Friends, and was scarcely aware that there was a body of that people in this country until, as it were by accident, he became acquainted with Friends in England. During his visit to that island he saw much of Friends in London and elsewhere. He was cordially received into the home of Bevan Braithwaite, who was designated to him as "the bishop of Friends in England."

It was one of the happenings that are doubtless more than is meant by the word accidental that brought the information to Prof. Pearson that there exists a Friends' meeting in Minneapolis, and led to his very acceptable visits and service here, some account of which I thought might interest some of the readers of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

His first address to us was on the subject, "The Work of the Spirit Among English Friends," and was a graphic account of the place Friends occupy, of their work in their missions and regular meetings at this great manufacturing city, and of their widely extending influence over England. The topic of his second address to us on yesterday morning, Fifth month 7th, was, "Simplicity of the Christian Life." He also attended our evening meeting at 7.30, in which he spoke briefly of his visit to the graves of Charles Wesley, whose many sacred hymns are to-day inspiring multitudes of people; of John Bunyan, the imprisoned author of "Pilgrim's Progress," and of George Fox, at Bunhill Fields, near which is a mission conducted by the son of Bevan Braithwaite. It is not with the decaying forms of death, nor with the mouldering dust of departed saints that God is in sympathy, but with life and growth, and the power that survives all perishing forms.

A little circumstance was related by the speaker which, he said, in all its details greatly impressed him. He had received from the secretary of Foreign Missions in London, England, a paper containing a small paragraph, marked by the sender to attract his attention. The paragraph contained the information that a mission was started in Peru, South America, sustained by the students of Penn College of Friends, Iowa, United States of America. The speaker hitherto had not heard of Penn College, and soon set on foot an investigation concerning that institution and the work going on there. He learned that it was all true, and that there were in it two classes studying foreign missions; and further, that the spiritual life in Penn College was of a high order. He thought the influence of that college must be very great. It was a stimulus to him in his work. It seemed to him impressive that he was finally addressing the very meeting from which this missionary went forth. S.

The Friends' Meeting House in Minneapolis was finished and opened in the autumn of 1895 instead of "recently" as an item in this paper stated a few weeks ago.

Muscataine, Iowa.—Viola Smith, the Y. P. S. C. E. Evangelist of Iowa Y. M. Union, has recently spent several weeks in Gospel service in the two meetings in our city. She faithfully delivered the messages the Lord gave her with clearness and power. Several were definitely brought to Christ in conversion; others were greatly blessed in their Christian life.

Sister Smith returned to her home at Denover, Iowa, on the second inst., for a few weeks of much needed rest, having been almost constantly engaged in revival work during the winter in various parts of the Yearly Meeting. Birdie V. Batchelor, a young member of the church here, is engaged in pastoral work at Valton, Wis.

We rejoice and are devoutly thankful that the Lord is calling our young people to his service, and so many of them are humbly yielding themselves to Him.

Springdale Quarterly Meeting, held at this place from the 5th to the 7th inst., was a season of great blessing from the Lord. His precious presence and power were manifest at each session. Ministers present from outside the Quarter were Elizabeth H. Larkin, from Ohio; Gilbert and Minnie Pickett Bowles, from Oskaloosa, and Elijah Cook, from Pleasant Plain, Iowa. The ministry of the word, including the sermon preached by W. J. Hadley, member of this Quarter, on First-day morning, was in entire harmony, clear and sound in doctrine, full of encouragement and practical teaching—evidently messages of the Lord's sending.

A public missionary meeting, on Seventh-day evening, was addressed by Minnie Bowles, who gave a very interesting account of the work in Japan, where she has spent five years as a missionary.

Gilbert Bowles addressed the Christian Endeavor meeting on First-day evening, taking for his subject, "What is the Difference?"

The church in this city is not large, but is well united, and much spiritual power is manifest. New members are frequently added. JOHN FRY.

Hartland, Iowa.—We at this place are rejoicing in the wonderful uplift of soul the Lord has sent us through his servant, Chas. H. Stalker, who came to us the evening of Fourth month 19th, remaining until after the morning service the Sabbath following. As the brother in his plain, convincing way talked to us of how under this, the Holy Ghost's dispensation, He wants to come into each one of our hearts to abide, souls were made hungry for him, and many were led to consecrate their lives to God, and ask for him to come in and take possession of them. His presence and power was wonderfully felt in every session, to the convicting and converting of sinners and the awakening of believers. Especially would we speak of the Sabbath morning service, at which time, while the brother was preaching, one soul was convinced of her need of, asked for, and received the Holy Ghost. Others followed later. Conviction was deep with all those who did not wholly yield to God. The brother went from this place to Stanford, and from there to Bangor for two meetings. His work at both places was attended with good results. Praise God for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and for those whom he has sent to us, that we might know how to know him better.

JENNIE E. KIRBY.

WILMINGTON YEARLY MEETING.

Mattie E. Hadley, a member of Wilmington Yearly Meeting, Ohio, goes as a missionary to Kotzebue Sound, near Cape Blossom, Alaska, to join the three missionaries already there sent by California Yearly Meeting. She attended Springfield Meeting Fourth month 30th, the place of her early life, where she became a Christian. The services were suited to the Christian experience of leaving all for Jesus' sake and the gospel. Many were inspired to a more decided missionary spirit. It seems a special Providence that the last Sabbath should be in the old home meeting. On the morning of Fifth month 2d she started from Wilmington upon her long journey. A number of her friends came at the early hour to wish a safe trip and again say farewell. As the train pulled in they sang together, "God be with you till we meet again." The memory of those parting moments will linger long. JESSE H. HARVEY.

SOUPS
OFTEN LACK RICHNESS
AND A DELICACY OF FLAVOR.
A FAULT EASILY REMEDIED BY USING

LEA
&
PERRINS' SAUCE

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE WORCESTERSHIRE.

It has more Imitations than any other brand ever produced.

John Duncan's Sons, Ag'ts., New York.

BOOK NOTICE.

"The Story of William Penn." By Frances E. Cooke. London: Headley Brothers, 1899. This small book is one of the "Friends' Shilling Biographical Series," in which have already appeared brief lives of Elizabeth Fry, John Bright, Whittier, and other Quaker worthies. It is an attractive compilation from the standard biographies of Penn, and the author makes no claim to any original research.

The strong features of Penn's character are well brought out. The book is almost wholly taken up with an account of Penn's youth, his religious experiences, and his life in the Old World. Americans will think that far too little space is given to the history of his "Holy Experiment."

There are several excellent illustrations, but it seems a pity that the principal portrait of Penn should be one which has little claim to authenticity—the conventional one with the broad-brimmed hat and the rather inane face.

We commend the book to those who wish to get a brief sketch pleasantly told of Penn's personal life.

News and Events.

Immediately upon the issuance by Attorney General John A. Griggs of his arbitrary opinion of the Anti-Canteen Law, that it did not abolish the sale of intoxicating liquors, but simply regulated the sale, the National Temperance Society sent to all the members of Congress inquiring whether in their judgment the opinion was a true interpretation of the law, and if it fairly expressed the intent and aim of those who voted for it. Of the replies thus far received only one sustains the Attorney General's decision, and this is from a brewer's district in Missouri. All the others from Senators and Representatives express amazement, indignation and grief at the interpretation placed upon the law, and many call for the enforcement of the real intent of the law by the President as Commander-in-Chief of the Army. There can be no doubt that the wishes of Congress have been wilfully violated, and the President will do well to take warning at the crusade which is being waged by the Temperance Society and others. The right must prevail, and the battle will be waged until the law is enforced.

Russia for some time has been the scene of serious student outbreaks. These have been repressed with a high hand, and the result is that there is not now a section of the Russian Empire whose high-class educational institutions are open, all having been closed by the police. Immense numbers of students are imprisoned, and others have been exiled to Siberia. Quite recently 230 girls in the Woman's High School at St. Petersburg were ordered by the police to leave the city within forty-eight hours. Their offense had been a hostile demonstration against an unpopular actor at a public celebration. Their bitter indignation was aroused and a strike followed. These student strikes in Russia are not uncommon, but at present they prevail so generally that there is no wonder the government is apprehensive of what may follow. The culture and best life of the empire are at stake, and unless a more tolerant and liberal policy is adopted towards the seats of learning the reactionary spirit is likely to continue. A most curious feature of the conflict has been the boycotting of one of the leading St. Petersburg journals, the "Novoye Vremya," by scientific, literary and other societies, and by libraries of educational institutions, who sympathize with the students. The students were bitterly assailed by the "Novoye Vremya," and most unjustly treated. This paper is now suffering from its narrow attitude, and the effects of the boycott threaten it most seriously.

The war in the Philippines is dragging slowly along, with the rainy season almost at hand. Little progress was made last week. The country west of MacArthur's position at San Fernando was cleared of insurgents, and an expedition of two gunboats, which had been sent up the San Fernando River, returned after expelling the rebels from towns along the route. The rapid demoralization of the Filipinos is insisted upon in official reports, and there is no doubt that Aguinaldo's cause is weakening. He continues, however, most persistently in his course. On the 11th inst. a body of insurgents attacked the Spanish troops at Zamboanga, in the island of Mindanao, putting that place in a state of siege. The Spaniards have appealed for help. These troops were left in the Philippines in the hope that they might be of assistance in securing the release of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the insurgents. The most interesting news of the week was the official announcement that Admiral Dewey had been relieved of the command of the Asiatic Squadron, and would be succeeded by Rear Admiral John C. Watson. It will be remembered that Admiral Watson was the officer assigned to conduct the proposed expedition in the late war against Spain's seacoast cities. Admiral Dewey will return home by way of the Suez Canal. An ovation undoubtedly awaits him wherever he shall appear.

The condition of affairs in Cuba is not altogether satisfactory. General Gomez, who has heretofore co-operated with General Brooke in bringing about the disbandment of the Cuban army, is reported to have declared that he will not assist in disbursing the $3,000,000 allotted to the Cuban soldiers. It is a condition of the disbursement of this money that the army shall be disbanded, the men to surrender their arms and return to their homes. Gomez agreed to this, but was opposed by the so-called Cuban Congress. The Generals now refuse to comply with the condition, insisting on retaining their arms. A rebellion is hinted at as a possibility. The rumored unfriendliness of Gomez is particularly to be regretted.

Judge not as I judge myself, O Lord!
Show me some mercy or I may not live;
Let the good in me go without reward;
Forgive the evil I cannot forgive!

—W. D. Howells.

WHAT MINISTERS PAY TO PREACH.

When I was a rector of a church in Baltimore (says an Episcopalian bishop) I used to see a dear old lady in the garb of a Quaker very often in the congregation of the church. One of the wardens said to me:—

"Mrs. — is a great friend of yours."

"I am glad to hear it," I replied.

"Yes," said the warden, "she said to me, 'I love to hear your pastor preach, but I should like him so much better if he did not receive money for it.'"

"But," said the warden, "he pays $20,000 a year for the privilege of preaching to us."

"Does he, indeed? And how so?" asked the old lady.

"Well, we both were educated at the same time, we are about of an age, and I earn $23,000 a year at my profession, while he only receives $3,000."

"I tell thee," said the dear old Quaker, "I shall always hear him hereafter with a great deal more pleasure."

INFORMATION FROM AN UNEXPECTED SOURCE.

It does not seem possible that well-read foreigners coming to this country should have an impression that Americans are so absorbed in money getting that accurate scholarship is a thing unknown among us. And yet, according to this incident, such would seem to be the case:

An English literary man who visited this country a year or two ago to lecture, frankly declared that he came not expecting to find accurate scholarship among the Amer-

HUSBAND AND COFFEE.

Would be Foolish to Stay With It.

I must tell you about my husband and his experience with coffee. He had been nervous and more or less irritable, suffering with nausea and waterbrash from time to time and sleeplessness, with a considerable amount of indigestion.

I finally induced him to leave off the coffee, for while his ailments were different somewhat than mine, I was convinced that it was the poisoning of the nervous system that caused his trouble as well as my own.

We have now been using Postum over a year, and are in the very best of health, stout and hearty every way. You may be sure we have learned to make Postum so it tastes fine, for we believe in "good things." We made Postum rather sloppy at first.

I cannot describe what a blessing we have both derived from the use of Postum. I have written these facts in the hope that some others may be benefited by the statement and leave off the coffee that is the real cause of so much physical suffering. A friend of ours, Mrs. Emma Dahlgren, had dreadful stomach trouble for years, bloating after meals, great nervousness and serious constipation. The physicians could not do her any good, but immediately after she left off coffee and began using Postum, she got over her nervousness, constipation and other sufferings, and now enjoys fine health. She is not like the same person; cheerful at all times now, while formerly she was very despondent and ill. Mrs. Lena Noble, Fairfield, Ia.

HOTEL STRAND

ATLANTIC CITY.

Ocean and Virginia Avenues.

A thoroughly modern and home-like house throughout. Elevator to street level. Steam heat. Sun parlor, etc. A special rate will be made to FRIENDS during this season. Write for booklet and terms.

FAIRBAIRN & WILLIAMS.

Mention this Paper

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOURIST EXCURSIONS TO CALIFORNIA WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS.

Leaving Washington every Tuesday and Friday at 11.15 A.M., the Southern Railway operates Personally Conducted Tourist Excursions to San Francisco without change of cars, conductors or porters. The route is through Atlanta, Montgomery, New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio, New Mexico, Arizona, and Southern California. The cars are the very latest pattern of Pullman Tourist Sleepers, rosewood finish, have high back seats, upholstered in rattan, are sixteen section, supplied with linen, etc., same as standard sleepers, lighted by Pintsch gas, have wide vestibules, double sash roller curtains, lavatory and smoking room for gentlemen, and two retiring rooms for ladies.

Three and one-half days to Mexico and Arizona, four days to Los Angeles and Southern California, and five days to San Francisco. Such service for Transcontinental travel has never before been offered.

The tourist carfare is less than via any other route, effecting a saving of $25.00 to $30.00 for the trip.

All information, maps, and rates furnished on application to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

icans, especially on purely literary subjects, adding affably:

"You have been too busy and useful a nation in practical matters to give much time to the arts and graces of learning."

During the dinner at which he made this remark he criticised Shakespeare, sharply declaring that his metaphors often were absurd. "As for example," he said, "'sleep that knits up the reveled sleeve of care. How ridiculous to figure sleep as knitting a torn sieve of a coat!'"

A young American sitting near him said modestly: "I think the word is not sleeve, but sleave—the thin fluff of a damaged web. It is a technical expression among weavers."

"In the States probably," retorted the critic, irritably. "Shakespeare never could have heard it. He meant sleeve."

"I believe," persisted the American, gently, "the word is printed sleave in all the old editions. It is not an American word, but has been used for centuries by weavers in Scotland and the north of England."

The visitor frowned, and then with English frankness said, laughing: "Thank you, I was mistaken. Perhaps I am mistaken about other things, and will be corrected before I leave your shores."

Professor William James in the March "Atlantic" had an interesting and instructive article upon "Psychology for the Use of Teachers." In this paper he discusses what are and in what way are manifested the original and native impulses of children, and how these should be taken advantage of and utilized to obtain the best results for educational purposes.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

LOCATION OF FRIENDS' MEETING HOUSES IN OUR LARGE CITIES AND TIMES OF HOLDING RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Baltimore, Md., Friends' Meeting House, corner of Eutaw and Monument Streets.
First-day 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.
Fifth-day 11 a.m.

Boston, Mass., Townsend Street near Warren (Roxbury District). Meetings for Worship:
First-day 10.30 a.m.
Bible School 12 noon
Y. P. S. C. E. Meeting 6.15 p.m.
Mid-week Meeting, Sixth-day 7.45 p.m.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Brooklyn Friends' Meeting House, corner of Lafayette and Washington Avenues. [Take Gates or Dekalb Avenue Cars at Brooklyn Bridge and get out at Washington Avenue.] Sabbath Services:

Bible School 9.15 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 10.30 a.m.
C. E. Prayer Meeting 7 p.m.
Evening Meeting, ... 7.45
Prayer Meeting, Fourth-day 7.45 p.m.

Chicago, Ill., Friends' Meeting House is located on Indiana Avenue, south of 44th Street. Reached by Elevated Railroad or Indiana Avenue Street Car. Meetings are held as follows:
First-day, Bible School 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 11 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 6.30 p.m.
Fourth-day, Prayer Meeting 8 p.m.

Cincinnati, O., Meeting House, N. W. corner 8th and Mound Streets. Meetings for Worship:

First and Fifth-day 11 a.m.
First-day Sabbath School 9.30 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 7.30 p.m.

Cleveland, O., Friends' Meeting House, Cedar Avenue, opposite Blair Street.
First-day 10.15 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Mid-week Prayer Meeting, Fifth-day 7.30 p.m.

There are also two other Friends' Meetings and two Friends' Missions in Cleveland.

Denver, Col., Friends' Meeting House, 41st Avenue and Arlington St., take 17th Avenue Car on 16th St., north. Meeting for Worship:

First-day 11.00 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Sabbath School 10.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 6.30 a.m.
Mid-week meeting, Fourth-day . 7.30 p.m.
Monthly meeting for business, first Fourth-day of the month 2.00 p.m.

Des Moines, Ia., Friends' Meeting House, 827 East Grand Avenue.

First-day, ... 10.30 a.m.; 7.30 p.m.
First-day, Y. P. S. C. E., ... 6.30 p.m.
First-day, Sabbath School, ... 12 m
Fourth-day, Prayer Meeting, . . . 7.30 p. m.

Indianapolis, Ind., Friends' Meeting House is situated on the corner of Alabama and 13th streets. (Alabama Street Car Line). Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Bible School 9.15 a.m.
Junior Endeavor 2.30 p.m.
Intermediate Endeavor 3.30 p.m.
Senior Endeavor 6.30 p.m.
Fourth-day 10.30 a.m.
Fifth-day, Prayer Meeting 7.30 p.m.

Kansas City, Mo., Friends' Meeting House, No. 416 W. 15th Street.

First-day
Bible School 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship 11.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor 7.00 p.m.

Minneapolis, Minn., Friends' Meeting House, corner of First Avenue South and 14th Street. Meetings for Worship:
First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Bible School, ... 12 m.
Fifth-day 7.30 p.m.

New York City, Meeting House, 144 East 20th Street, Gramercy Park, Meetings for Worship:

First-day 11 a.m.
Fourth-day 10.30 a.m., except first Fourth-day in month . . 7.30 p.m.
Sabbath School First-day 10 a.m.
C. E. Meeting, Third-day 7.45 p.m.

Philadelphia, Penna., Meeting House, 20 South Twelfth Street. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
Mid-week meeting, Fourth-day . 10.30 a.m.

Toronto, Canada, Friends' Meeting House, 28 Pembroke Street. Meetings for Worship:

First-day 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Fourth-day 8 p.m.

Washington, D. C. New Meeting House, First and C Street, N. E.

Bible School, ... 9.45 a.m.
Meeting for Worship, ... 11.00 a.m.
Christian Endeavor, ... 7.45 p.m.
Mid-week meeting, ... 5th day, 7.30 p.m.

NOTICES.

The "Peace Association of Friends of Philadelphia" is engaged in spreading extensively among teachers of the Public Schools of Pennsylvania and graduates of the Normal Schools of the State, brief but telling tracts upon the evils of war and the best practical methods for preventing its recurrence. This, with other efforts which the Association has in view for impressing the general public with the importance of these subjects, will require a considerable outlay. An appeal is thus made for contributions, large or small, in aid of our work, which may be paid to the Treasurer, Jno. B. Rhoads, 239 Market Street, Philadelphia.

On behalf of the Association,
SAMUEL MORRIS, Pres.

SARAH W. ELKINTON, Sec'y.
Philadelphia, 5th mo. 3, 1899.

Friends' Library, 142 N. 16th St., Philadelphia. Open 11.30 A.M. to 2 P.M. and 3 P.M. to 6 P.M. Circulation free to all. New books added monthly. Some of the recent additions are: Carpenter, E. J.—America in Hawaii. Fiske, A. K.—West Indies. Hall, Newman—Autobiography. Lamb, Charles, and others—Charles Lamb and the Lloyds. Leudet, Maurice—Emperor of Germany at Home. Mathews, F. S.—Familiar Life in Field and Forest. Parsons, F. T.—How to Know the Ferns. Thompson, S. P.—Michael Faraday. Trueblood, B. F.—Federation of the World. Van Dyke, Henry—Ships and Havens.

ELLWOOD HEACOCK UNDERTAKER AND EMBALMER

ESTABLISHED 1860 TELEPHONE 5807
Local and Long Distance
1313 Vine Street, Philadelphia
Calls outside of City answered promptly

Wheatlet
DELICIOUS
HEALTHY NUTRITIOUS

MANY LETTERS
are received daily from all parts of the country highly endorsing the perfect cereal food—

WHEATLET
We append one:
"After a thorough test in my own family, I can hold up my hand and say on my soul that Wheatlet is the best cereal food in the World, and I feed my five children on it."
E. C. HAZARD,
Pres. Food Mfrs. Ass'n. N. Y.,
Your grocer keeps it, if not send us his name and your order; we will see that you are supplied.
Made only by the
FRANKLIN MILLS CO.
Lockport, N. Y.

Our New Canna Lilies
The most gorgeous flowers for garden and lawn. Plant in pots for immediate bloom, set out when ground is warm. Bears splendid clusters of lily-like flowers and elegant foliage.

4 for 25 Cents
Including DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH—The darkest and richest crimson Canna, and
1 Lovely Pink,
1 Gold Edged,
1 Rich Variegated,
Live roots, sure to bloom.
New Floral Guide
124 pages, tells about 400 other Choice Flowers, FREE.
Dept. 2.
CONARD & JONES CO., West Grove, Pa.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART
A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, first-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. MCGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

The Easiest Writing Pen Made NOTHING LIKE IT.
ESTERBROOK'S
POSTAL No. 477

Turned up Point. ESTERBROOK & CO'S POSTAL PEN.

Ask your Stationer.
One Hundred and Fifty other Styles.
The ESTERBROOK STEEL PEN CO.
Works, Camden, N. J. 28 John St., N. Y.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.

OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Avenue, near Beach. Close to New Steel Pier. New Management. Quiet, homelike, and attractive. Ocean view.
Write for information.

MRS. N. R. HAINES,
Owner and Proprietor.

(Formerly of The Chalfonte.)

The Archdale,

136 South Maryland Avenue,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.
MARY J. BUNDY.

Customer.—“Look here! The first time I used this cheap umbrella I bought of you, the black dye soaked out and dripped all over me.” Dealer.—“Mein frient, that was our new patent self-detective umbrella. If any one should steal that, you'd know him by his clothes.”—“Tid-Bits.”

A want advertisement in “The American Friend” will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

WESTTOWN CENTENNIAL MEMORIAL FUND.

At a meeting of the solicitors for the Westtown Centennial Memorial Fund, held the fifth of this month, the reports from the various decades, etc., showed an aggregate of over $40,000 from about 400 subscribers.

This number of subscribers being but a very small portion of those who have received advantages from Westtown, it is desired that all may take advantage of this opportunity to assist our worthy alma mater according to their means, so that the full amount of $100,000 may be subscribed to ere the Centennial Celebration, which occurs on the tenth of next month.

Those who have not received any communication in the matter can forward subscription to Samuel L. Allen, Chairman of the Old Scholars' Association, 1107 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Saturday has been a fatal day to the royal family of England for the last 185 years. William III., Queen Anne, George I., George II., George III., George IV., the Duchess of Kent, the Prince Consort, the Duke of Clarence, the Duke of Albany and Princess Alice all died on that day.

Aubrey and Lionel Tennyson, eight and ten years of age, and grandsons of the late poet laureate, have obtained a prize and an honorable mention respectively for poetical compositions in a contest started by an English children's magazine.

THE GIRARD LIFE INSURANCE ANNUITY AND TRUST CO.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer.
HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, Jr.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,
ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force, $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE
AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

The name of quality

Swift

and Company

Swift's Premium Hams,
Swift's Premium Breakfast Bacon, Swift's Silver Leaf Lard, Swift's Beef Extract, Swift's Jersey Butterine, Swift's Cotosuet.

FLORIDA SHORT LINE.

The New York and Florida Express, via Southern Railway, leaving Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, daily at 5.34 P.M., carries through Pullman sleeping cars to Augusta and Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville and Tampa, Fla., via Charlotte and Columbia. This is the short line and most attractive route to points in Georgia and Florida.

All information cheerfully furnished by Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

STEAMERS TO WEST POINT.

York River Line to Resume Daily Service Which Was Discontinued in 1896.

Mr. Reuben Foster, President and General Manager of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Richmond Steamboat Company, returned yesterday from Richmond, where he completed arrangements for the running of a daily steamer over the York River Line of the Company, between Baltimore and West Point, which is thirty-nine miles from Richmond.

The new schedule will go into effect on Monday, May 15. The steamer will leave the pier of the York River Line every afternoon, reaching West Point the following morning. Connection will be made at West Point with the Southern Railway, which makes the run from that point to Richmond in an hour and twenty minutes.

Officials of the company feel encouraged to resume the line of daily steamers between Baltimore and West Point, which was discontinued in the fall of 1896, because there are indications that there will be a marked increase both in the freight and passenger business over the line. At present there are only three steamers weekly over the York River Line between this city and West Point.—“The Sun,” Baltimore, May 5, 1899.

For rates, time tables, maps and full information, write to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

We invite the attention of all our readers to the column of “Subscribers' Wants” in “The American Friend.” This department is constantly increasing in favor with those wishing to reach the great body of Friends with a small advertisement. Five lines of thirty-five words cost only 25 cents. See page 477 of this issue.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES

You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently but firmly. Pond's Extract cures Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

No. 606—Canopy-Top Surrey, with side curtains, fenders, lamps, storm apron, sun shade and pole or shafts. Price, $58. As good as sells for $90.

nation and guarantee everything. Send for our large illustrated Catalogue before buying. IT'S FREE.

Elkhart Carriage and Harness Mfg. Co., W. B. PRATT, Secretary, Elkhart, Indiana.

Dont Take Any Chances

on an inferior vehicle or harness. Your life and that of your family depends upon their quality and reliability. You can't tell very much about the quality of a vehicle by simply looking at it. The paint and varnish effectually hides the quality of material. Vehicles must be bought largely on faith—faith in the honesty of the manufacturer.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but have been selling vehicles and harness direct to the consumer for twenty-six years. In fact we are the largest manufacturers of vehicles and harness in the world selling to the consumer exclusively. These facts speak volumes for the quality of our goods and our method of doing business. You take no chances; we ship our vehicles and harness anywhere for examination.

No. 75—Single collar and hame harness, with nickel trimmings. Price $12.85. Good as usually sells for $18.00.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

Cross-Cross
CEREALS

Seven food products—prevent and relieve diabetes, dyspepsia, debility, etc. Ask dealers. Unlike all others. Look for cross-cross lines. Pamphlet and sample offer mailed free.

FAIRWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U. S. A.

K. C. WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR.

Prevents constipation and liver troubles.

GLUTEN CRISPS,

New health breakfast food.

PANSY Pastry Flour, Finest made.

IRREPROACHABLE SERVICE TO THE SOUTH VIA THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

With a total mileage of nearly six-thousand miles, the Southern Railway stands today without a peer. It is the most progressive transportation company in the South, as evidenced by the number of fast and elegant trains it operates, affording exceptional facilities, for reaching all prominent cities in the South without change of cars. Three through daily trains are operated from Philadelphia via this great route, namely: 7.20 a.m., The United States Fast Mail, runs solid between Washington and New Orleans, making direct connections for all points in the South. 6.34 p.m., The New York and Chattanooga Limited, running through to Chattanooga Tenn., carrying through Pullman cars to Memphis and New Orleans, via Lynchburg, Roanoke, Bristol and Knoxville. This train also carries through Pullman cars to Augusta, Savannah, Jacksonville and Tampa, via Charlotte and Columbia. 6.55 p.m., The Washington and Southwestern Limited. This train has been in the service for several years and is the most popular, and best patronized train operated south of the Potomac, carries through cars to Nashville, Tenn., via Asheville, "The Land of the Sky," Knoxville and Chattanooga, also through cars to Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, and New Orleans. Dining cars serve all meals on this train. Send for maps and rates, also copy of a beautifully illustrated booklet entitled "The Land of the Sky." Stop-over at Washington not exceeding ten days will be allowed on all through one way tickets between the East and West via the Southern Railway. Passengers wishing to avail themselves of this privilege should deposit their tickets at the depot ticket office immediately upon arrival. For further information and Pullman reservations, call on or communicate with Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Pillsbury's Vitos, a wheat food, is being advertised in THE AMERICAN FRIEND. If any of our readers will write to Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and ask for book of Pillsbury Vitos Recipes, they will be sent a copy by return mail. This book contains about thirty recipes for serving Pillsbury's Vitos at breakfast, dinner, tea, and supper, prepared by Fannie Merritt Farmer, Principal Boston Cooking School, and Isabel Howard Neff, Teacher of Domestic Science, Cincinnati Public Schools. Each recipe is simple, accurate, and complete, and all are the results of experience.

THE CENTURY will issue three special numbers: June, "Out-of-doors Number"; July, "The Story-teller's Number"; and August, "Midsummer and Travel Number." An article by Henry van Dyke on "Fisher-man's Luck," and a dozen striking pictures of Niagara Falls by the artist Castaigne, are two of the features of the June issue.

For Nervous Women.

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. J. B. ALEXANDER, Charlotte, N. C., says: "It is not only pleasant to the taste, but ranks among the best of nerve tonics for nervous females."

MAKING CHARACTER.

A mother in New Hampshire reared a family of eight boys. They all left the homestead and went to sea. She was heartbroken. The preacher visited her home and she had poured into his ears this life sorrow. She could not understand why they had all gone to sea and left her. She could not understand the mysterious work of Providence. Her heart was desolate, the home forsaken. And she said her boys had never seen the ocean until they were grown. She asked the preacher to explain it. He looked around the room, and over the mantel he saw a splendid picture of a great ship under full sail, every white wing instinct with the message of foreign nations. The waves that dashed against the bow spoke of a thousand shores that had been washed as around the world they had been swept. The preacher said to her: "Why, madam, this is the explanation. Your boys became sailors because this picture told them of the ocean and led them around the world." The very picture on your walls, every inch of tapestry—these are sacred. They make and unmake character. Guard them well. The foundations of every great man's character is laid in these primal hours of life.

Macbeth lamp-chimneys save nine-tenths of the cost and all the trouble.

Go by the Index.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

An advertisement in the column of 'Subscribers' Wants' will be read by Friends all over the United States. Five lines, one time, cost only 25 cents, cash with order.

INTERESTING BOOKS.

Isaac Sharp. An Apostle of the Nineteenth Century.

By FRANCES ANNE BUDGE.

One of his characteristic watchwords was:

"Forward and fear not;
Let thy faith be firm."

"It is no small praise for this book to be able to say of it, without exaggeration, that it is a memoir worthy of the remarkable man of whom it treats."—American Friend.

Price, Postage paid, $1.37.

Loving Service; or, Memoir of Martha Braithwaite.

By ELIZABETH A. EMMOTT,

"The book cannot fail to be read by many Friends with much interest."—London Friend.

Price, Postage Paid, $1.65.

Aunt Agatha Ann and Other Verses.

By MARY EMMELINE MANNERS.

Paper Board Covers.

Price, Postage Paid, 50 cents.

The Distinguishing Doctrines of the Religious Society of Friends.

Being an address delivered by JAMES WOOD in 1898.

Price, by Mail, 12 cents.

For Sale by

Friends' Book and Tract Committee

No. 51 Fifth Avenue, New York.

What can I do but trust thee, Lord,
For thou art God alone?
My soul is safer in thy hands,
Father, than in my own.

—F. W. Faber.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS OF ANY KIND to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Anyone with anything to advertise will find this column a valuable medium for securing buyers. A five-line advertisement of thirty-five words costs only 25 cents, cash with order. Additional lines at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.

SUMMER BOARDERS.—Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate a few summer boarders at her home, near Muncy, Pa. The views are fine, air good, drives and walks pleasant. For terms address CAROLINE B. KIRK, Pennsdale.

FOR SALE on easy terms. A house and twelve acres of land adjoining Friends' Meeting-house, at East Bend, N. C. Apply to DAVID E. SAMPSON, East Bend, N. C.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Corean St., Wash., D. C.

WANTED—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED—A man, competent and of experience, to establish and manage a Hame manufactory in Greensboro, N. C.

Address Lock Box 55.

WANTED—Principal or instructor in Friends' Academy, to teach language, literature, or science. Please write at once to A. D. STANTON, Washington, Kas.

WANTED—By a Friend. To rent a house of from six to eight rooms, in Philadelphia, near the buildings of the University of Pennsylvania. Address E. E. WILDMAN, Earlham, Richmond, Ind.

WANTED—A situation to teach in the department of history or economics in a Friend school or college. Thorough preparation, successful experience, good references. Address inquiries to X, care of AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch St., Phila.

JOTTINGS.

Philadelphia is industriously preparing for an Exposition to be held from September 14th to November 30th of the present year. The exhibits will be confined for display mainly to a group of buildings covering about eight acres, a smaller area than that occupied by Agricultural Hall, the third in size of the buildings of the Centennial in 1876. The character of the displays, however, will be of the highest order, and the success of the Exposition is not to be doubted. It is being arranged for under the auspices of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum and the Franklin Institute.

The Sultan has authorized Oscar Strauss, the American Minister to Turkey, to inform President McKinley of Turkey's promise to pay the $100,000 claimed by Americans for the destruction of property in 1895.

One of the most horrible collisions that has ever occurred on the Reading Railway took place on the 12th near Reading, Pennsylvania. The second section of an express train crashed into the rear of the first section, completely telescoping the end car. Twenty-nine persons were killed and a large number wounded.

The custom's receipts at Havana during April amounted to $860,000, and for the fiscal year will come to nearly $10,000,000. It is interesting to know that internal revenue collections at Manila during the American occupation amounts to hardly $175,000. Facts as to custom's collections are as yet wanting.

Ex-Governor Roswell P. Flower, of New York, died suddenly on the 12th. He had for a long time been a most important factor in financial circles, and was well known as a "bull" in the stock market. Immediately following his death many stocks fell heavily, and the companies in which he was interested may suffer considerably.

Famine prevails in eleven of the sixty-eight Russian provinces, and the Czar and his ministers are blamed by every radical paper in Europe as responsible for the suffering of the people. The development of Russia's resources, however, continues apace, and with the rapid extension of railway service throughout the empire the end of these awful famines is approaching.

John Ruskin recently celebrated his eightieth birthday. He is now a feeble old man, and unable to do any literary work. He still enjoys, however, the pleasures of nature and literature, and takes a lively interest in the progress of the world.

THE ASSOCIATED EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF FRIENDS ON INDIAN AFFAIRS.

The annual meeting of delegates from the yearly meetings has been arranged for the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Fifth Month to meet in Baltimore. First session at 10 A.M. of twenty-fourth inst. at Friends' Meeting House. Full attendance is much desired. An open meeting is expected to be held the evening of the twenty-fourth inst., at which prepared addresses on the past work of Friends for Indians will be given.

E. M. WISTAR, Chairman,
905 Provident Building, Philada.

"ALPHA-DE LAVAL"

CREAM SEPARATORS

Save $10.- Per Cow Per Year.

Send for new 1899 catalogue.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

Western Offices: RANDOLPH & CANAL STS., CHICAGO.	GENERAL OFFICES: 74 CORTLANDT STREET, NEW YORK.	Branch Offices: 1102 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
--	---	---

A BOOK ON COCOA AND CHOCOLATE.

Walter Baker & Co., Ltd., Dorchester, Mass., have just published a handsomely illustrated quarto of 72 pages, entitled: "Cocoa and Chocolate: A Short History of Their Production and Use." It contains a large amount of valuable and interesting matter relating to the cocoa tree and its fruit; the early use of cocoa and chocolate and their food value as determined by distinguished chemists and physicians. In conclusion a sketch is given of the famous house of Walter Baker & Co., the oldest and largest establishment of its kind on this continent. Some copies of rare old prints are introduced into the text, and the various stages of picking, curing, and preparing the fruit for domestic use are represented by engravings from photographs taken in the West Indies, Ceylon, and at the mills in Dorchester.

Some fresh and interesting figures are given on the consumption of cocoa and chocolate in Europe and America. It appears that there has been a remarkable increase during the last twenty years in the United States, England and Germany,—"the countries in which the greatest progress is being made in the science of nutrition, and in the inventions which have done so much to cheapen the cost and improve the quality of articles of food."

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia
SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.
Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

FIFTY PEOPLE CONVERTED BY A SUNRISE.

Snowdon, says Dr. Newman Hall, in his autobiography, recalls one of the most interesting incidents of my ministry. I started one afternoon to sleep on the summit. When half way up heavy rains fell, and I turned back; but when I reached the bottom the sky cleared, and I resumed my climb. I slept on a plank in the then wretched little hut. During the night I was charmed by the hymns and anthems of companies of quarrymen, who were giving up their rest to see the grand sunrise which their knowledge of local signs foretold. My "landlord" roused me early, and I sat on the top of the cairn that I might enjoy the phenomenon undisturbed. No words can describe it—the reddening sky, the first level rays goldening a hundred peaks, the shadow of our mountain slowly creeping over Anglesey, and a score of lakes gleaming in the sunshine! But I was recognized and entreated to descend from my pulpit and preach to about a hundred Welshmen and a dozen Englishmen. I replied that God was preaching to us, and we had better hear His voice. But I offered prayer, and when I closed I noticed that several men were shedding tears. The miners, in groups, marched away, singing in their thrilling minor key.

A year afterward, when I was knapsacking near Snowdon, a man driving a cart containing cheeses and a live pig, pulled up and asked if he might give me a lift. I felt a good opportunity for conversation.

He had recognized me, and speaking of that sunrise, said it resulted in the conversion of fifty people. I said that I had only offered prayer. He said, "Yes, and as they only spoke Welsh they did not understand a word you said; but the effect was a revival in the village churches near."

BETTER THAN DINNER.

An interesting example of Mrs. Stowe's absent-mindedness, which grew upon her with increasing years, is given by Mrs. Fields.

Once, when she was at the height of her fame and popularity, she was expected on a certain day to dine at the old President Quincy house in Quincy. The ladies, his daughters, received their guest with the great dignity and courtesy which were native to them, and she was shown to an upper room to arrange her dress after the journey.

The ladies waited in the drawing-room below; but presently there seemed to be unnecessary delay in Mrs. Stowe's joining them. They waited more and more impatiently; they began to watch the clock while the minutes passed, but still there was no step on the stair. At last dinner was announced, and still they waited, and the maid who was sent up to speak to Mrs. Stowe returned to say that she had knocked at the door but there was no answer.

Then the hostess became anxious, and hurried to the room in person, to see what the serious reason might be. They opened the door; there stood Mrs. Stowe, just as they had left her, her bonnet and shawl still on, standing before a bookcase reading a volume she had taken down.

"Oh," she said, returning suddenly to the present scene of things; "do forgive me! I found this dear old copy of Sir Charles Grandison, just like the one I used to read. I haven't seen it for years and years!"

"THERE is a vast difference between an unsupported assertion and a demonstrated fact."

Our assertion that Pure White Lead made by the "old Dutch process" of slow corrosion is far superior to White Lead made by patent or quick processes, has been demonstrated by the experience of competent, practical painters everywhere. Comparative tests made by employees or parties interested do not prove anything.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

Providence hath a thousand keys to open a thousand doors for the deliverance of His own when it has come to the greatest extremity. Let us be faithful and care for our own part, which is to do and suffer for Him, and lay Christ's part on Himself, and leave it there; duties are ours, events are the Lord's. When our faith goeth to meddle with events, and to hold a court (if I may so speak) upon God's providence, and beginneth to say, "How wilt Thou do this or that?" we lose ground—we have nothing to do there; it is our part to let the Almighty exercise His own office and steer His own helm.—Rev. Samuel Rutherford.

A SUMMER EXCURSION.

A special train, under the management of Geo. S. Houghton, will leave Boston on the 3rd of Seventh Month for Los Angeles, California, going through some of the finest scenery of Colorado. An opportunity will be given to return with a conducted party by way of Yellowstone Park, or tourists may remain longer in California if they prefer, and return independently. Tickets will be good until Ninth Month Fourth. A car will be sent to Philadelphia for a party of twenty-five to join this train at Chicago, or perhaps at Buffalo. The advantages of congenial company for such a trip are apparent, and several Friends have engaged berths. The fare for the round trip from Philadelphia will probably be about $81.50; if return is made by Portland, $12.50 additional. Itineraries will be sent on application to MARY WARD, Westtown, Pa.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA. Near Omaha.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - - $25.00 each.

Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.

Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.

Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

GOOD NEWS.

Even if you have suffered long, there is abundant proof that Compound Oxygen has effected wonderful cures. We will gladly furnish this evidence. Book of 200 pages sent free. Or call and see us. Skillful medical attention to every case brought to notice, either personally or by letter. Consultation free.

Our confidence in the remedial powers of the Compound Oxygen is the result of a quarter of a century's experience.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,

1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.
San Francisco, Cal. Toronto, Canada.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address

HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

Friends seeking positions or wishing to fill vacancies in firms or families may be helped by using our want column. The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Dutch Soluble Cocoa.

Finest Drinking Cocoa in the world.
Made instantly.

25c. per 1/2-lb. Tin.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades.

Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,
118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

NURSING CORNS

doesn't pay when you can cure them for 15c. A-CORN Salve is made to cure—does cure—corns. At any druggists, or mailed by

GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
305 Cherry Street, Phila.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 il-
lustrations, 5 cts.
A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.
The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.
Grand Canon of Ari-
zona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.
Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West.
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

You are The Union cordially invited by Trust Co.

to inspect its VAULTS on any business day between the hours of 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. (Saturdays 9 to 12).

The Safe Deposit Boxes

for rent by the Company at $2.00 per annum and upwards are so SECURE,
CONVENIENT and CHEAP, as to render it unnecessary for any one to worry over the safe-keeping of his or her valuables.

...SEND FOR PAMPHLET...

715, 717, 719 CHESTNUT ST.

Any of our subscribers who have
anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

THE OLD STANDBY!

DELAVAU'S REMEDY

A Sure Cure for
Whooping Cough
Croup and
Ordinary Colds

AT DRUGGISTS.

Enameline

when applied, is most
BRILLIANT, and that is the effect you want when using a stove polish. When an old stove is polished it should look as bright as new—that is the result when you use
Enameline. It is put up in paste, cake or liquid form.
Remember that every package is guaranteed.

J. L. PRESCOTT & CO., New York

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in
enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street,
near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social,
moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men
and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of
financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be
gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office,
northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where
all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

FIFTH MONTH 25th, 1899

No. 21

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
EDITORIALS.—The Mission of the Church.
—Why We Go to Yearly Meeting .	483, 484
"Of No Reputation"	484
Mary Lowe Dickinson.
Dr. William Nicholson	486
Charles E. Tebbets.
POEM, "The New Moon, ...	489
Guilford College Commencement . . .	489
INTERNATIONAL LESSON	491
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT . .	492
A Call from a Missionary Teacher . . .	493
Book Notice	493
General Church Notes	493
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	494
BIRTHS	496
DEATHS	496
NEWS AND EVENTS	498
JOTTINGS, ...	502

DAVID J. LEWIS

Born 1859

Died 1899

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS

Our Customers Have Tested Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston.

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.

Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Home s.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*

THE GIRARD LIFE INSURANCE ANNUITY AND TRUST CO.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer.

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, Jr.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,

ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Outing Skirts and Costumes

A great variety of Cycling and Golf
Garments, at prices sure to attract:

Circular Mohair Skirts, good quality, at $4.50—
Divided Mohair Skirts, $5.00 and $7.50.

Best Skirts of fine golfing materials, priced at $8.50, $9.00, $10.00, and $12.00. Other grades at lower prices.

Costumes of excellent blue and black
Serge—jackets silk-lined and skirts lined with percaleine; real value
$10.00—here at $5.00.

Costumes of Serge, plain and mixed
Cheviot, and Golfing Cloth, an assortment of styles—all priced at $10.00.

Cards and Wedding Stationery

Fifty Visiting Cards—with choice of twenty styles of lettering, and including a nicely engraved plate;
former price 65 cents—now 45 cents.

Wedding Invitations—correct in every detail—$6.75 for first hundred,
$2.50 for each additional hundred.

Wedding Announcements—$5.00 a hundred, $2.50 for each additional hundred.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.
ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New
England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.

All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(Any subscriber of THE AMERI-
CAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper
sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

The American Friend

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, FIFTH MONTH 25, 1899.

No. 21.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance,	- - - - -	$1.50 per annum.
Single Copies,	- - - - -	Five Cents each.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH.

It is plainly evident that many Christians, perhaps most, do not yet begin to realize the full extent of the mission of the church to the world, and some do not seem to comprehend that it has any mission at all. The church? "Why it exists for its own members; it is the congregation of the faithful." The church? "It is an organization for guarding and preserving the heritage of spiritual truth committed to it." The church? "It is the ark of safety in the world for the salvation of the few who flee into it." "Its mission is to keep itself pure and true to its faith; to maintain a high standard; to add to its number such as are suited to be members, and to preserve in the earth some representatives of its Founder."

These are some of the inadequate conceptions which find expression among Christians. The church will never be greatly effective until its membership is possessed with Christ's idea of its mission. In His mind the body of believers are organic with Himself, branches of one vine, members of one body, with precisely the same mission He had. They are revealers of God to men. They are the light in the world as He is the Light of the world. No less a task than interpreting Christ to the whole human race devolves upon the church.

Something is wrong when a company of worshipers meet week after week to enjoy communion with the Lord, and sit unconcerned about the multitudes who in the same city live in misery, in hunger, in squalor, in vice and in sin. The contrasts of society are too great, and while they are so great there can be no honorable ease in the church, no excusable pride in its own purity and orthodoxy. "Ye say, 'Lord, Lord,' but ye do not my will," is the condemnation. There are people all about us who have no idea of what LOVE is. They have never had any love. It is only a word to them. They have never had human love enough to understand what Divine Love could be. If Christ is ever to become a reality to these people, and be a power in their lives, His spirit must first reach them through a human face and in the loving service of human hands.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The church has a twofold service toward such souls. It must take up the task of reforming the evils of a social system which makes such lives possible in the midst of our boasted civilization, and its members must take upon themselves the responsibility of interpreting Christ and the Christ-spirit to these sin-environed lives.

The tramp who crawls up to the back door for his unearned meal, and the drunkard who reels home to turn a family circle into an earthly hell, are both products of our social system, and there can be no pious ease for the church until such a system is destroyed. But this same tramp and this same drunkard might have made good, steady, valuable citizens if at the critical periods of their lives they had had some loving attention and uplifting influence, and had been made to feel that there was a better life within their reach. It is a fact that we always feel ourselves helpless to do anything to meet the hard situations that confront us in society as at present constituted, but it would be something gained if Christians could be made to realize that these are tasks which really belong to the church; that its mission is more than teaching orthodoxy and holding up a pure standard of membership. Christ had the reputation of associating with publicans and sinners, and with wine-bibbers. It was His mission to show the Divine life to these people, and to make their old life forever impossible afterwards. Our mission to-day should be as wide as

His was, and all the sadness and misery and hopelessness and sin about us should make it forever impossible for us to rest in the satisfaction and joy over our own salvation. The church must become Christ's body that His spirit may finish the work of human redemption.

WHY WE GO TO YEARLY MEETING.

A FRIENDS' Yearly Meeting is something quite unique. It is not strictly a body of delegates, though a certain proportion of those who attend its sessions and take part in its deliberations come as "representatives" from Quarterly Meetings. Yet apart from the function of nominating the "clerks," these delegates have no rights, privileges or powers which do not belong equally to any member who chooses to come up to the annual gathering. It is really a democratic or popular body and any member may take part, if he have a part to take, and any member may feel that he is sharing in the manifold work of his church, as well as sharing the blessings of such a gathering. A modern American Yearly Meeting swings round the whole compass of religious activities, and a Friend must be very "peculiar" in his special line of effort not to have his "specialty" covered before the meeting closes. Temperance, Peace, Bible Schools, Foreign and Home Missions, Work Among Indians and Negroes, and Education, are a few of the movements for bettering the world which come in due course before a Yearly Meeting by reports of special committees. The positive and aggressive work of the church in evangelizing and in extending its spiritual power, as well as the care of feeding and edifying its own members, come in review and are duly considered and arranged for. Then there is the somewhat microscopic examination of the condition of the church by means of "queries," which open the door for much counsel and advice of different degrees of value.

Last but not least there are meetings for worship and religious teaching, at which times the power of the Spirit is felt in the united congregation, and the message of life is spoken by those who feel it laid upon them. Such in rough outline is a Yearly Meeting.

What should be the main object of the member in going to such gatherings? There should at least be two definite aims in view, viz, to contribute and to receive. The work of the church is best done when it is widely shared, and every active member ought to realize that he has some part in this extensive and varied work of perfecting the saints and propagating the kingdom of heaven. One of the best features of a Yearly Meeting is the way in which it kindles a sense of personal responsibility and arouses a desire to share the common work of making the world a better place. One plain reason for going to Yearly Meeting is to get this great perspective of what the church is doing, and to get glimpses of our part and place in its work.

But perhaps the greatest visible result which comes from a Yearly Meeting is the new information, the new impulses, the enlarged horizon, the increased power, it imparts to and produces in the individuals who attend it. No one who goes to a Yearly Meeting can afford to miss this. One of the main objects in going should be to gain these new insights and to receive an increase of spiritual strength. It is not for a week of routine business, or for seven days of song-singing and religious ecstasy, that these annual gatherings are held. It is rather an occasion for focusing the results of a year's work and life in the church, and for helping each individual who comes to see better the wide mission of the church and to become better prepared for taking his place as a member in making the mission a practical reality.

The annual gathering is not held primarily to make the attenders "feel good," or to make them "proud of their church," but to bring the individuals together to share in the work of the church, and to equip the members for better fulfilling their part.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

"OF NO REPUTATION."

BY MARY LOWE DICKINSON.

It has a lovely sound when we read it. It conveys a sense of retirement and rest. The world, with its clamor, will let the man or the woman who is "of no reputation" delightfully alone, until to be of no reputation seems synonymous with being of no use or value, or, as is the common saying, "of no account."

Lovely as this may be in the ideal, in actual life it takes discipline before the human heart accepts and enjoys being quietly set aside. He who comes to the place where it no longer hurts, has divorced his soul from vanity. He may be counted "more than conqueror." A conqueror subdues outward things—one has to be "more than conqueror" to overcome the foes within.

So long as the human heart beats, it is in revolt against injustice. We summon all our forces to withstand or to endure physical suffering; we call on resignation and hope and faith to support us in bereavement; we rally all our powers to battle with misfortune, and when forced to yield, can think of our real selves as apart from the evils that befall us. But injustice, undeserved condemnation, unmerited abuse, misconception of our motives, calling our good evil—this is to human nature the hardest thing in life to bear. Yet, hard as it is, few souls escape it. To be misinterpreted, misunderstood, is the common and not the exceptional lot.

We know a great many inward faults and weaknesses that others may not guess. If these were dragged up to the light and condemned, it would be no more than we deserve. But to have the thing in which we meant right counted wrong; to have wrong motives, harsh judgments, evil meanings read into the story of our daily life when we are striving to live it without any of these things—this stings and smarts, and what is worse, disheartens. To some souls, sensitive and silent, it becomes an intolerable weight that keeps their heads bowed until they do not see the sun.

Where is the remedy? It is useless to hope that human nature is to be changed so that to "deal justly and to love mercy" shall be the rule. On the contrary, very great change in the people with whom we come in contact is not to be expected. We must take them as they are, even if they take us for what we are not.

Often one reason for our being misunderstood is, that by our own words, or manner, or that intangible expression of ourself that is called our "ways," we misinterpret ourselves to others, and it may be our own fault, conscious or unconscious, that we are misjudged. Be that as it may, the hurt is not going to be healed by any change in those who hurt. It must come, therefore, in the way in which the hurt is borne.

The power to conquer the hurt comes through yielding to it. It is a yoke, if once we bow the head to take it, which gives a mighty power to draw our load. The soul that simply takes and bears undeserved hardness, shame or disgrace without retaliation, gathers untold strength. In no other experience is growth so vigorous. In no other is so manifest the power of silence.

But to secure the best results acceptance of the yoke must be very real. There must be no parade of cheek-turning, no hysterical posing that calls the world to behold how bravely we endure. The yielding that has victory in it is simple, sincere, absolute. It wastes no time in explanations, no strength in self-vindication. It busies itself with being right; with getting right if it has been wrong; but it drops forever all question of what others will think right. Its struggle will be for character; it leaves God to take care of reputation. It strives to be; it refuses to concern itself with what it is thought to be.

Once in this place, great freedom and peace possess the spirit. Even outward things cease to harass. Harsh judgments soften and enemies lose their power—if for no other reason, because it is useless to throw virus upon a rock, or to waste spiteful feeling upon those whose indifference is absolute and real.

To secure this peace we have, therefore, only to make sure that whatever is hard to bear is undeserved. This is not so easy. Half the time we shall discover that we do deserve all we get and worse, and ought to be thankful for leniency instead of angry at criticism. Strange revelations would come to many of us if we went deeply into the question of our own desert.

But once having let the line go to the depths and find all the slime and soil that underlie the fair surface of our lives, it remains only to cleanse them of every evil thing till we know them to be sweet and pure. Then, while they flow on to bless and refresh other lives, what need we care if across their surface drifts the shadow of the passing clouds? For a moment they seem to make the depths obscure, but, when the right time comes the Spirit that, like the wind, "bloweth where it listeth" scatters the gloom and every rippling wave smiles back in the face of the sun.

Does it seem a mere barricade of words against a tide of real sorrow and pain? Do you plead that to want love and appreciation is only natural, and to lose them calls for outcry, and protest and indignant defense of self? It may be hard to believe, and explanation and defiance may spring unbidden from heart to lips; yet victory does not lie that way. It does lie along the line that "suffereth long and is kind, that vaunteth not itself, that is not puffed up," and, above all; "that seeketh not her own."

"Seeketh not her own!" There is a meaning in these words which we hope all our readers may not need to feel. Not only must we not seek for ourselves, pleasure and profit beyond seeking the same for others, but there is much that is really our own, for which we must not be too eager. There is the right to be respected, perhaps to be admired, the gratitude of others, the credit for good work, the claim to love; these are in a measure every soul's own. We have won them by struggle of brain, or hand and by discipline of heart; we have lost them through no fault of ours. Must we let them go? Yes, utterly and forever; because the struggle for their return means, long, hard conflict; the yielding means swift, sure victory. It may be in justice all your own; but our is to be the spirit that "seeketh not her own."

What God means us to keep will come, and needs no seeking; and all that is best worth keeping is ours, and cannot be taken from us any more than the soul can be robbed of God and Heaven.

New York City.

An important stage in the ritualistic controversy in England opened on the 8th, when the Archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, Frederic Temple, and the Archbishop of York, William Dalrymple MacLagan, sitting as a self-constituted tribunal, began a hearing of the charges against two rectors accused of the ceremonial use of incense and lights. The decision of the Bishops will not be binding upon any one, but it will naturally carry much moral weight. The chief purpose of the inquiry is to avoid reference to the secular courts.

God's providence is often dark and mysterious—a puzzle to the finite mind, but ever clear to his infinite vision. If, for a reason, he seems to hide his face, soon the intervening cloud vanishes, and his smile appears. Some of his enigmas he may reserve for solution to a future state, but over his throne he ever casts his rainbow of hope.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

DR. WILLIAM NICHOLSON.

BY CHARLES E. TEBBETTS.

Among the Friends who suffered during the persecution of Friends in Boston, were Elizabeth Nicholson and her sons Joseph and Christopher. They came from Cumberland, England, about the year 1660. The first settlement of Friends in eastern North Carolina was made about 1670, and the first record of marriage was that of Christopher Nicholson and Ann Atwood, in the year 1680. It is supposed that this was the same Christopher Nicholson whose name occurs among the Boston sufferers.

The grandson of the above, Thomas Nicholson, was a prominent minister for forty-four years; he died in 1780. He was said to be "an able minister of the gospel — furnished with a good understanding, and sound judgment, and was zealous for good order and for the peace of the church and for the maintenance of the testimony of truth." He traveled extensively in this country and England. He owned a number of slaves, but becoming convinced in the latter part of his life of the sin of slavery, he gave them their freedom. This was an exceedingly unpopular act at that time, but the doing of it gave him such peace and satisfaction that he told his friends he would not again become entangled with slaves for their weight in gold.

Dr. William Nicholson was the great-grandson of Thomas Nicholson. His parents, Josiah and Anne White Robinson Nicholson, were elders in the Society of Friends, and influential in the church and community.

William Nicholson was born in Perquimans county, North Carolina, Eleventh month 9th, 1826. In his childhood and youth he was not only remarkably conscientious, but very pious; he was also an agreeable companion and popular with his associates. His early education was received in the Friends' Academy at Belvidere, near his home; later he attended Friends' School at Providence, R. I., afterward teaching in that school, and at New Garden Boarding School (now Guilford College). In 1850 he graduated in medicine from the University of Pennsylvania, and for the next twenty years had an extensive medical practice in his own and adjoining counties. Although his profession was that of medicine, he always took a lively interest in the affairs of state and of the church.

During the war the Friends of North Carolina were especially exposed to suffering. Their lands were impoverished by the depredations of opposing armies, but this was the least of their trials. They for the most part abhorred slavery and favored the Union cause, and were therefore the objects of suspicion on the part of their neighbors. As Friends they conscientiously refused to bear arms, and were frequently subjected to cruel punishment, almost to death, because of their faithfulness. Notwithstanding this suspicion and prejudice their integrity and Christian character were such as to command the respect and confidence of their enemies, this was remarkably true in the case of our friend, William Nicholson. His practice of medicine brought him into intimate association with people over a considerable district, all of whom highly appreciated his integrity and Christian character. He was brought into sympathy with his fellow-members in their losses, privations and sufferings, of which he was to some extent a partaker, and throughout the Civil war his influence was such as to greatly aid and protect them. He visited President Jefferson Davis and plead for Friends and others who were conscientiously opposed to all war.

At the close of the war he was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention, and exercised much influence in that body, securing valuable sections on liberty of conscience and exemption from military service.

In 1870 he was selected by Friends' Associated Executive Indian Committee as its General Indian Agent, and soon after he removed with his family to Lawrence, Kansas. In this position he developed great executive ability, so that in 1875 he was appointed by the government Superintendent of the Central Division, which included about 20,000 of the most savage and warlike Indians in the Indian Territory. This position he filled with great wisdom and efficiency until the office was practically abolished during Hayes's administration in 1878.

In 1880 he was elected a member of the Kansas Legislature; this was much against his own preference. It was during the campaign for the Prohibitory Amendment, and the liquor interests were striving to elect men who would legislate in such manner as to render the law valueless. His district, that of Lawrence, Kansas, was an important one, and the friends of temperance felt that he would be the strongest candidate they could nominate, and he submitted to their wish. He was also for a time a member of the City School Board of Lawrence.

To all Friends Dr. Nicholson was best known and most widely loved as a minister of the Gospel and influential thinker and writer in our own Church. In 1855 he was made an elder, and ten years later his gift in the ministry was acknowledged by his friends in North Carolina.

In 1872 Kansas Yearly Meeting was established, and Dr. Nicholson was made Clerk, to which position he was reappointed each year until his removal from the State in 1888. During all the transition period of our Church he has been a tower of strength. He was always conservative in his doctrinal views, and his natural taste strongly preferred the methods of worship to which he had been accustomed from childhood. But these natural preferences did not hinder him from seeing the changed surroundings under which this generation lives, and the consequent necessity of changed methods to meet new circumstances. While he would not have advocated some of the changes that have taken place, he believed God's Spirit was leading his church, not in every detail of change, but in the general disposition to occupy the fields that lay before it, and to adapt its methods to the new conditions as they arose. He felt sometimes that in some things the Church was moving from one extreme perhaps too far to the opposite extreme; but he had confidence in her sincerity, and in the over-ruling of the Holy Spirit, and believed that an adjustment of all difficulties would be found. While fully recognizing the dangers to which new methods might lead, he believed it was better for the Church as a whole to move forward, seeking to adjust itself to the work, than in a spirit of fear to so cling to the past as to miss the opportunities of the present and future. It was in this spirit that he so forcibly advocated the pastoral movement before the Conference at Indianapolis in 1892. To many, who did not fully understand him, he seemed inconsistent with himself, but none could fail to perceive the sincerity and power with which he spoke, nor to recognize the commanding influence he exerted at that crisis.

He always deplored the looseness of our church organization. It seemed so wanting in compactness, and the concession to individual liberty of opinion, expression and action was so great as to make it little able to bear the strain of large accessions to our ranks of persons who were not convincingly instructed in our peculiar views. Dr. Nicholson early advocated a central organization composed of delegates from the yearly meetings, which should have supreme authority upon all questions of doctrine, practice and discipline. In 1880 he wrote a series of articles for "Friends' Review" and "Christian Worker," entitled "Serious Thoughts for Serious Friends," in which he presented his thoughts upon the problems before the Church. This was approved by the editors of the above papers and was afterward published in an 84-page 18mo pamphlet, and widely circulated.

Before the Richmond Conference of 1887 he presented his ideas again in an able paper advocating a Triennial Conference, with authority in all matters of general importance to the church. Ten years later the Conference at Indianapolis took steps toward the unification of the church, and the preparation of a uniform discipline. Dr. Nicholson was not able to be present, but was intensely interested in the proceedings. Soon afterward he wrote: "I am much pleased with the turn which the most important proposition (a more compact organization by a central body of delegates with authority, with certain limitations, to plan and execute for the whole church) took. Indeed, it was the only practical way of entertaining the proposition. It is true that a very weighty responsibility rests upon the committee, but it is to be hoped that a substantial unity will be obtained as to the plan to be proposed to the Yearly Meetings, and that these will accept it. There has evidently been a great progress since the matter was first proposed in the Richmond Conference ten years ago. I think that we may thankfully acknowledge that the Christian Church at large, as well as our portion of it, has been led to greater light and into a more practical obedience to the Divine law within the short time which we have lived. We cannot doubt the Divine arm is underneath, whatever may be the shortcomings of its members. We trust that as the years pass on the church will become more and more of a unit—that the minor difference of many of the denominations will disappear, and that these will find themselves one in Christ so that the world may believe on Him."

In doctrine Dr. Nicholson strongly held to that presentation of Christian truth which he had received through a long line of Quaker ancestry. In this he was firmly established by conviction and experience. He had fullest sympathy with all aggressive evangelistic and missionary work, but did not approve of much of the theoretical presentation made by many workers. This sometimes made him the object of uncharitable suspicion on the part of some of his brethren. In 1883 he felt constrained to write some articles for the "Review" and "Worker," entitled "Practical Views of Sanctification." In the preface to a 53-page pamphlet edition, he says: "In preparing the articles recently printed, I endeavored to say as definitely as I could just that which it seemed to me the church needed to hear, and to which I thought it would at this time lend an ear. What I have written must necessarily be imperfect both in its scope and in its execution. These imperfections I commit to the mercy and over-ruling of God, and to the charity of my brethren; and if there be any to whom my articles shall prove a heavy burden, they will have the opportunity of testing the appropriateness or inappropriateness of the exhortations which at some time or other they have given to their exercised brethren—to let the Lord take care of His own work."

In a letter to one of his brothers he writes, referring to this paper: "This is rather a critical time to appear before the public upon a topic which is engaging so much attention and even discussion in the religious world. The modern teaching concerning sanctification, as a second experience disjointed from justification and regeneration, and the modern ignoring of the doctrine of the Light of Christ, seem to call for some exposition of the views of those who see matters in a different light. The latter doctrine really lies at the foundation of all religious experience, although it has been fearfully abused by Unitarians and some others."

Some of those whose teaching was criticized in these articles were much dissatisfied with them; but, as the editor of the "Worker" remarked, "They found it easier to dissent from the doctor's positions than to disprove them," and some of these have since acknowledged that they have come more and more to accept his teaching.

In the same year he wrote an essay upon "Conscience in Education," which was read before the Educational Association of Friends, held at Earlham College in that year. This also was published in pamphlet form, and extensively distributed. Later in the above Conference Dr. James E. Rhodes, referring to the paper, said: "We have been shown the moral dangers which lie immediately before us, and how to meet them by the training of the conscience which should be had in our schools. . . . I do admire with grateful heart the extraordinary ability with which the matter has been treated in the paper by Dr. Nicholson. I believe that scarcely at any time since the rise of Friends could there have been presented a paper treating this subject so well and with so much fullness."

In 1884 Dr. Nicholson wrote a treatise of 46 12mo pages on "Christian Conversion: Its Nature and Results, and Some of Its Relations to Certain Other Topics." This is considered the ablest of his published essays. In the preface he says: "The substance of this pamphlet has been gradually unfolding itself as a message upon my heart to many meetings of Friends. Broken health and other circumstances have not permitted me to deliver it in person. God's truth has had its guardians in all ages, and this guardianship is not to be assumed to serve selfish ends; but rather it is to be accepted as a stewardship committed by Him whose charge with all His gifts is 'Occupy till I come.' We dare not set aside this charge by the plea that the Lord will take care of His truth and of His church, and that, therefore, we need not be concerned about them, even if they seem to be in danger. The oft-repeated warning, not to touch the ark with unsanctified hands, as did Uzzah, will not relieve the hearts of those upon whom the Master lays a daily care for the churches; for His own intercession perpetually ascends, 'Sanctify them in the truth; Thy word is truth.' In the love that seeks the peace and prosperity of Jerusalem, the soul finds itself to prosper, and he whose will falls into line with God's gift and calling, does not labor in vain, though other hands may reap what he has sown. He walks by faith and not by sight, and thanks God for the manifestations and precious work of His Grace in the hearts and by the hands of some whose opinions on certain important points may vary from his own. He does not feel himself called upon to undervalue or to attempt to destroy what others have wrought in the Lord, nor to build up walls of opposition or contention; but rather to build over against their building, and to bring up the other side which they did not feel themselves called upon to do. Thus a seeming censorship is redeemed from censoriousness, because of its earnestness to be found in Christ, not as having one's own righteousness, but the righteousness which is of God through faith."

It was in this spirit that Dr. Nicholson always wrote and spoke. While never yielding what he believed to be the truth, he always manifested a true gentle Christian spirit. At another time he wrote one of his brothers: "I do not like warfare. It is not only disturbing, but dangerous. It may be necessary sometimes 'earnestly to contend for the faith once delivered to the saints,' but in doing this it requires great exercise of our spiritual faculties to keep ourselves at the same time in the love of God and in fellowship of the saints. Especially needful is it that we do this lest we lose our standing in Christ. Moreover, those with whom we contend are brethren in Christ. We would not deny them this concession, mistaken though they seem to us to be, in certain important respects; defective as they seem in certain elements of a perfect Christian character, a proper estimate of ourselves, will not allow us to think more highly than we ought to think, but we should think soberly, and if there should in any respect be anything in one superior to that which is in another, all excellency is from God who 'hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.' God will live after we are gone from this field of labor, and in some way or other He will rule and over-rule. He has grand things in store for His church, and through it for the world; and whether the time be short or yet for many ages, the dark places of the earth shall welcome Him who is 'the light of the world,' and a redeemed humanity shall be restamped with the Divine image. There are storms and deluge and upheaval and commotion, but after all there are evidences of great progress. The whole lump is not yet leavened, but the leaven is working. Who of us would have lived in any of the preceding centuries, had the choice been given us? If the power to choose had been given me, I would trust those grand old prophecies, and rather say 'away on farther' than backward in the dismal past. As it is, I am thankful to have lived just when I have, and that I have been permitted to feel a deep interest and some little share in the Lord's work in these days according to the richness of His grace and mercy in Christ. Blessed be His name."

Dr. Nicholson's ministry, like his writing, was always clear and forceful. One feature of it was specially praiseworthy; he rarely spoke without a portion for the children. Generally at the beginning a short, simple presentation of truth fitted to the child-mind would introduce what he felt called to present. He was bound down by no conventionalities. If he felt it his place to present continuous expositions of some truth, he would do so in a series of sermons, and some of these will long be remembered for their power and helpfulness. He did not travel widely in the ministry, but gave himself largely to his home meeting. The larger part of his service was at Lawrence, Kansas, where for many years he was a true pastor to the church. He was deeply loved by all—old and young alike. When he saw that the time had come when some change would be helpful to the younger people in their work in and for the church, he used his influence to reconcile those whose training and preferences would have led them to oppose the change.

In 1854 he married Sarah W. Newby, a widow with one son, Robert B. Newby, who lived near them at Pasadena, Cal. Two sons, George and William, were born to them, both of whom occupy prominent positions in the offices of the Santa Fe Railroad Company, at Chicago, Ill. The exposure of twenty years' medical practice in a malarial district of Carolina seriously impaired his health. Afterward, while residing in Lawrence, Kansas, the development of lung trouble obliged him to seek a milder climate, and in 1888 they removed to California, making their home at Pasadena. In 1892 he went east as a delegate to the Indianapolis Conference from Kansas Yearly Meeting. (His membership was not transferred from Lawrence to Pasadena until 1893. He spent some weeks visiting friends in Indiana and Kansas, and the demand upon him for service in the ministry, together with his intense interest in the subjects before the Conference, overtaxed his strength, from the effect of which he never fully recovered. After returning to California he was only able for occasional public service. He was much interested in the setting up of California Yearly Meeting, but was able to attend it but one year. The failing health of his wife, and her increasing helplessness, took much of his remaining strength, and for several years he was not able to attend even his home meeting. His devotion to his wife in her feebleness was such that after attending to her needs himself (which he insisted upon doing) he often had not strength remaining even to receive his friends.

During the last few months he was confined to his bed, and was obliged to yield her care to other hands. He was glad to see his friends, but too feeble for much conversation. His interest in all that transpired remained to the last, and he was much engaged in prayer for God's overruling in national affairs.

He rested peacefully in the consciousness that his own work was done. A few days before his death he said to some of those who attended him: "Do not be anxious about me. I long ago made my peace with God, and I am ready to go." There were times near the last when he suffered intensely, and earnestly prayed that he might be taken; but always added: "If the time has not come, it is all right, it is all right." On the afternoon of Third month 1st he passed away, and though it was in much suffering of body, the peace of God beautifully settled upon his countenance. Two days later his children and grandchildren, accompanied by a large number of his friends, bore his body to its last resting-place in the beautiful cemetery at Pasadena.

In one of his last letters to one of his brothers he says: "Though we are deprived of many things which were once a great enjoyment to us, we feel we cannot be thankful enough for the many and exceeding great blessings which are still so mercifully dispensed to us, and we are glad to trust that when everything else fails, the mercy of God in Christ Jesus will still remain and abide with us forever

"We have anchored our souls in the haven of rest,
We will sail the wide seas no more;
The tempest may sweep o'er the wild stormy deep,
But in Jesus we are safe evermore."

THE NEW MOON.

O, regal crescent in the west hung low!
How watch we month by month to see its glow
From its first stage, a tiny rope, to grow;
How poets vie that silver bow to praise,
And find a name to honor its soft rays.
It is a drifting boat in azure sea,
With prow dipped low it floats on fearlessly;
It is an airy hammock, lightly hung;
'Tis for the evening star to cradle swung;
It is a sickle God's gold wheat among.
Young queen of night, she softly slips away
As darkness grows, she cannot longer stay.
Soon follows her attendant evening star,
And earth and sky seem lonelier by far.

ADELIN L. F. DANIELS.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

GUILFORD COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The work at Guilford College for the year 1898-99 was closed by the exercises of commencement day, May the 9th. The weather was most favorable, and the attendance the largest in the history of the institution, the capacity of Memorial Hall being tested for the first time.

On the 28th of April, the exercises of Commencement week began with the close and interesting oratorical contest by six young men from the Websterian Library Society. Thomas Hinton was the successful speaker, who the year before won the improvement medal in the same society. The improvement medal this year was won by Charles Davis.

On the following evening—the 29th—six young men from the Henry Clay Society spoke for the prize, and made it hard for the judges to decide who should be the victor. Alvin Parker, of High Point, was the successful speaker. The improvement medal was won by Walter Hollowell, of Perquimons County.

On the evening of May the 6th, a public lecture was given by Professor Ormond Stone, director of the Astronomical Observatory of the University of Virginia. The subject of the address was "The Present Day Problems of Astronomy," which was treated in so lucid a manner as to render the whole presentation a very useful and interesting one.

On Sunday the 7th, a very able and helpful sermon was preached by J. W. Staggs of Charlotte, who remained at the College, and preached a second sermon at the regular Sabbath evening meeting. His service was felt to be most helpful.

The Guilford College scholarship to the best student finishing the Preparatory Department was awarded to Muriel L. Lowe, of Randolph County.

The Haverford College annual scholarship of $300 to the best scholar of the young men of the graduating class, was awarded to William W. Allen, Jr., of Greensboro, whose oration on "Tennyson's Influence on Religious Thought" elicited special praise.

The Bryn Mawr scholarship of $400 awarded annually to the best scholar of the young women of the graduating class, was awarded to Elizabeth White Coffin, of Texas. It was stated by the President that of the eight young women who in as many years have been elected to the Bryn Mawr scholarship, six during their senior year have received first grade in all studies, and that Miss Coffin is one of these six.

John W. Lewis, in his oration on the Virginia Colony, paid a glowing tribute to Virginia for the leading part taken by her great statesmen in the great forward movement for liberty in the American Colonies.

Miss Coffin's oration on England's Colonial Policy, showed a wide and accurate knowledge of the expansion of England.

The Baccalaureate address made by Rufus M. Jones of Haverford College, was, without doubt, one of the most helpful and edifying addresses ever made at Guilford. It was a powerful presentation of the fundamental principles of Christianity, and a clear setting forth of the appeal which the gospel makes, not only to reason, but to the whole man. The address will remain in the minds of all who heard it as the outflowing of a mind and heart aglow with love to God and man.

The exercises closed about one o'clock, and at three a baseball game between the Alumni and the College was much enjoyed on the beautiful lawn by a large company of spectators. The College proved too much for the Alumni. The annual Alumni reception was held in Memorial Hall at 9 o'clock, and was much enjoyed by all who were present. Speeches were made by President Hobbs, Prof. J. F. Davis, Mary M. Hobbs, Prof. R. N. Wilson, and James R. Jones; also by representatives from about eight classes. This closed one of the most prosperous years the institution has ever experienced. The great improvements in the way of buildings, equipments, dairy farm, and the recent introduction of abundant supply of water, all point to a useful future for Guilford College.

ANDREW D. WHITE
UNITED STATES

FREDERICK W. HOLLS
UNITED STATES

SETH LOVY
UNITED STATES

STANFORD NEVELL
UNITED STATES

M. LEON BOURGEOIS
FRANCE

COUNT VON MUNSTER
GERMANY

M. DE STAAL (RUSSIA)
PRESIDENT

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOOT
GREAT BRITAIN

SIR HENRY HOWARD
GREAT BRITAIN

CAPT. ALFRED T. MAHAN
UNITED STATES

VICE ADMIRAL SIR JOHN FISHER
GREAT BRITAIN

MAJ-GENERAL SIR J. ARDAGH
GREAT BRITAIN

CAPT. WILLIAM CROZIER
UNITED STATES

By courtesy of the Public Ledger.

SOME OF THE PEACE COMMISSIONERS NOW IN SESSION AT THE HAGUE, HOLLAND.

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson X.

Sixth month 4, 1899

CHRIST CRUCIFIED.

John 19: 17-30.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.—Gal. 2: 20.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 29.—Christ crucified. Jno. 19: 17-30.
 Third-day, Fifth mo. 30.—Despised and rejected. Luke 23: 38.
 Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 31.—The penitent thief. Luke 23: 39-49.
 Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 1.—The burial. John 19: 31-42.
 Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 2.—For us. Isa. 53: 1-12.
 Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 3.—Dying for sinners. Rom. 5: 1-11.
 First-day, Sixth mo. 4. Worthy the Lamb. Rev. 5: 6-14.

The accounts of the crucifixion as given in all the Gospels should be read. Each one supplies something which helps to complete the picture. The account given by John is the shortest, but it contains some specially interesting details; he tells us the reason why the soldiers cast lots for the "coat" was because it was without seam; that Pilate wrote the title placed on the cross, and that the chief priests asked Pilate to change the title; that it was written in Hebrew, and Greek and Latin; he gives the names of the women at the cross; the entrusting of his mother to the beloved disciple; and the account of the breaking of the legs of the robbers, while those of Jesus were not broken; and he tells of the piercing of the side of our Lord. Of the last scenes he tells us he was an eye-witness. On the other hand, he omits the conversation with the thieves, and the mocking by the crowd and the chief priests, as well as some other incidents, which can easily be seen by comparing the four accounts.

17. "He went out bearing his cross for himself" (Revised Version). It was customary for executions to take place outside the walls of the city. "The place called the place of a skull." The exact situation of this site is not certainly known. It is almost certain that the traditional place is wrong. There is a skull shaped hill near Jerusalem which answers the requirements of the narratives far better than the so-called Calvary; and it is here in all probability that the solemn event took place. This site is north of the Damascus gate. The name Calvary is taken from the Latin vulgate, and has the same meaning as Golgotha—a skull.

18. Crucifixion was a Roman punishment. The cross used was of different shapes; the most familiar to us being what is known as the Latin cross. It is not certain, however, though probable, that this form was used in the case of our Lord. "Robbers" or brigands. (See Matt. 27: 20; Mark 15: 27.) They were doubtless condemned for sedition and treason, the alleged charge against our Lord.

19, 20. "Pilate wrote," etc. The purpose was to inform all who saw him the nature of the charge, and to warn others. It was written in Greek, the universal language; Latin, the official language; and Hebrew (Aramaic), the language of the people. It will be seen by comparing the accounts that while all differ in form, they all give the central fact of the charge—"The King of the Jews."

21. They saw the scorn of Pilate in thus stating the accusation, and they were filled with resentment at the stigma cast, by implication, upon themselves for being the instruments of the death of one who claimed to be a national leader, for so the inscription would be understood by many.

22. It has been well pointed out that this verse illustrates Pilate's obstinacy as distinguished from firmness. He was totally wanting in firmness when he might have saved the life of Jesus; he was obstinate where his own real or fancied interests were not at stake.

23. "Four parts." This shows accuracy, as it was customary for the watch to be composed of four soldiers, one for each watch. "Coat." The long garment which reached from the neck to the feet. This could not well be divided, and so, even while the victim was in agony just above them, these gamblers wrangled for a share of his garments.

24. The quotation is from the Septuagint, or Greek version of the Old Testament. Ps. 22: 18. It was by the soldiers an unconscious fulfilment of a prophecy of which doubtless they had never heard.

25. Others besides the soldiers and crowd were at the foot of the cross, and the contrast between them is strikingly brought out. It is not clear from the account whether there were three or four women present; the words, "the wife of Clopas," can be a clause defining the one preceding it; but it seems most likely that there were four; it would be quite in accord with John's practice to avoid giving the name of his own mother. From the other Gospels we learn that the mother of Zebedee's children was Salome. "Mary Magdalene." It seems hardly necessary to say that there is no evidence whatever to support the notion that she was ever a woman of evil reputation.

27. "Whom he loved." This was the reason for the commendation. Tradition is probably correct in supposing that Joseph was dead. "Woman." In the original, as in the account of the marriage at Cana, this form of address was most respectful. If, as is not unlikely, the so-called "brethren of the Lord" were children of Joseph by a former marriage, all question as to the charge given to John is removed, for he would then be her nearest male relation—nephew. In any case it does not appear that "His brethren" believed on Christ until after the resurrection. The only later reference to Mary is Acts 1: 14. Nothing further is known about her.

28. "After this." An indefinite period, during which must have taken place incidents described in Matthew, Mark and Luke.

29. "Vinegar." Sour wine. "Hyssop." A shrub not positively identified. The sponge was put upon a branch, and held up to the sufferer. Contrary to the representations in pictures, the cross was without doubt only slightly elevated, the feet of the victim being perhaps eighteen inches from the ground.

30. "It is finished." Compare John 17: 4. The suffering is ended; the sacrifice has been offered once for all.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. "Oh, it was wonderful, how could it be?
Dying for me, for me!"
2. "Who his own self bare our sins in his body upon the tree, that we having died unto sins, might live unto righteousness."

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SIXTH
MONTH FOURTH, 1899.

WHEAT AND TARES.

Matt. 13: 24-30.

Second-day, Fifth mo. 29.—Among the prophets. 2 Chron. 18: 1-27.

Third-day, Fifth mo. 30.—Among the twelve. John 6: 66-71.

Fourth-day, Fifth mo. 31.—In the early Church. Acts 4: 32-37; 5: 1-11.

Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 1.—In Samaria. Acts 8: 9-24.

Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 2.—In Pergamos. Rev. 2: 12-17.

Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 3.—How distinguished. 1 John 3: 1-12.

The writer does not know what the committee that chose this topic meant to teach by it, but he is very sure that our Lord never meant by it to teach that good and evil must grow together in one heart until the day of judgment. That is contrary to the context, to the trend of all other teaching of our Lord, and to common sense.

It is a parable about the progress of the kingdom among men. The preceding parable of the Sower and the Seed shows the various ways in which the good seed is treated in the world. Fowls, stony ground, thorns and thistles are its enemies; that is, it is utterly disregarded, received superficially, choked out with cares and worldliness. In one of the four instances it is received in good ground and produces an abundant harvest. The parable of the Wheat and the Tares introduces the new element of a bad seed. Satan is not content with obstructing the sowing of the good, but must also sow a bad seed. His work is not only negative but positive. Evil is more than a negation. It is a positive working force in the world, beginning, developing under the same laws that make possible the inception and development of the good. The parable is enough to upset forever all the milk-and-water theories about evil as a mere negation, an absence of good, as cold is the absence of heat, light the absence of darkness. While the sower of good seed is busy the sower of evil seed is busy. He sows in the same fields of human life, under the same laws of influences, organization, individuality, gradual progress, etc., that good must come to the world. Incipient stages are alike. Evil generally assumes at first the guise of seeming good. Individual liberty, fellowship, mutual benefit, co-operation are the watchwords of evil just as they are of good. We cannot prevent this misuse of the field, but if we sleep it will be greatly aggravated.

The parable teaches another most important truth. The seed here is not the word, but it is men. "The good seed are the sons of the kingdom; and the tares are the sons of the evil one." It is the business of the church to be scattering good men throughout the world. It is not enough to scatter the word. We must send living incarnations of it throughout the world. Satan will sow evil men everywhere; gain, lust, adventure or ambition can allure them. Let us preoccupy the soil with good seed. We cannot at once uproot all evil in the church or in the Christian Endeavor Society, or in the state and nation. Indeed, we may never be able to uproot it all. There are preliminary judgments when God wonderfully purifies the moral atmosphere of the world by his providences, but there will be tares at the end of the age.

What can we do then? We can save children from becoming the seed of the evil one to sow abroad in the world. Formation is more effective than reformation. As a matter of fact all children seem like good seed at the start. The first developments of the tare life are much like wheat. We must deal with child life along fundamental Gospel principles, or we shall be misled into counting tares for wheat. The Emperor Nero was a sweet-tempered, promising little boy, and even when he was a helpless outcast from society and the scorn of men, his old nurse remembered his gentle boyhood, and still ministered to him.

We can receive to the uttermost fulness the seed of the word in our own hearts; then watch carefully lest the evil one sow the tares. Tares in Christian life will appear in the guise of wheat. Contention for our own way under the guise of the defense of the truth, uncharitable judgment of others from the same cause, impatience under necessary reproof, undue familiarity under the guise of Christian affection, censoriousness under the guise of upholding the standard of conduct, this and much more is but an illustration of the beginnings of evil in our own hearts that cannot continue to grow until the harvest alongside of the wheat, but will soon make us nothing but tares. To sum up the lesson in paragraphs: Tares grow in good ground as readily as any place. Good blood and environment will not make wheat of you. You cannot grow wheat and tares in your heart until the end. You will soon be a tare if you try it. The laws of association, organization, development, etc., can be used just as well to make tares as to make wheat. The sons of the kingdom must be scattered over the earth in order to reproduce their kind. It is not enough to send Bibles. We must also send men made up on Bible lines.

Father Thomas E. Sherman, the Jesuit priest, and son of General William T. Sherman, who has been so widely quoted as having said that Porto Rico is "a Catholic country without religion," has returned to this country from a visit to the island. He emphasizes his charge against the Catholic Church in Porto Rico, and does not hesitate to aver that the great problem there is not so much one of government, but religion. He further says that he believes in the American conception of separation of Church and State, but thinks that our authorities have cut the knot too hastily, and thus have unnecessarily alienated the sympathies of the Spanish clergy.

A CALL FOR A MISSIONARY TEACHER.

The New York Yearly Meeting Home and Foreign Board have for some years been conducting a School for Girls at Victoria, Mexico, in connection with the extensive mission work of Friends in Southern Tamaulipas. The past year the school has been attended by more than forty pupils, nearly half of whom are boarders under the care of a matron in the school building. Many of these come from ranches and villages and towns where there are meetings of Friends, and are themselves members with Friends. Their opportunities for education in their own homes are very limited indeed, and in some cases none at all. The purpose of the school is first of all to lead them to Christ, and then to train them morally, intellectually and spiritually for His service. Many of them desire to become teachers, and it is the desire of the Board to secure a competent teacher also qualified to give normal training. The school will afford a large opportunity for most effective service for the Master, both in the boarding department and among the day pupils. The work is in closest touch with the Sabbath School, Christian Endeavor Society, and Church at Victoria, under care of W. Irving Kelsey. The need is urgent. Is it the call of the Master to you?

Here is an opportunity for some one of our consecrated Endeavorers, or others, to do a great work for the Master.

Any one desirous of further information is invited to correspond with M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, New York.

BOOK NOTICE.

"Corner-Stones of Faith." By Rev. Charles H. Small, B.D., M.A. Introduction by Rev. John Henry Barrows, D.D., LL.D. Illustrated. New: E. B. Treat & Co. 1898. Price, $2.00.

This book is intended to give a brief account of "the origin and characteristics of the Christian denominations of the United States," with "corroborative statements from eminent divines of the leading denominations."

The short accounts appear, for the most part, to be based upon the excellent monographs and volumes of the American Church History Series, and set forth, clearly and concisely, the main features in the history and doctrines of the different branches of the Christian Church. Each article is followed by a brief, but good, bibliography, and there are interesting appendices. There is also a valuable sketch of the beginnings of the church.

The "corroborative statements," as might be expected, are very different degrees of merit. The volume will be a very useful handbook. The chapter on Friends is written by Fernando G. Cartland.

Each life has its Gethsemane wherein it must walk alone—its passion and its peace. Each soul, by faith, may walk upon the ways within, may learn to say to turbulence: "Peace, be still!" And the tossed sea of human emotions, breaking ever with angry roar on the coast of self, shall sink to rest.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

An ecumenical conference on foreign missions, representing the Protestant Missionary Societies and Missions of the world, will be held in New York city, Fourth month 21st to Fifth month 1st, 1900. This is the direct successor of conferences in London in 1888, and Mildmay, 1878. The workers in many lands will come together to compare notes. There will be free interchange of ideas and much information of great value will be put at the service of all. In the words of the call for the conference, which has lately been issued, the results expected are: "A clearer apprehension of the principles and methods of mission work drawn from a century of experience; a vindication of Christian missions by an array of testimony as to their influence and results that will convince all thoughtful men of their utility and power; a great practical advance toward unity; that they may be perfected into one, that the world may know that Thou didst send Me."

A remarkable missionary movement has for some time been going forward in Persia. The Greek Church of Russia having sent out missionaries to proselytize the members of the ancient Nestorian church, has met with unheard-of success. Hundreds of these people are transformed in a day from heretic Nestorians to orthodox Greeks. The conversions are most remarkable, both in point of numbers and in respect to the ease with which the converts throw aside and even anathematize their old faith, which had won for them the name of "The Protestants of the East." There is no doubt some other motive than one of religion is behind these occurrences, and it is generally supposed that the Nestorians have been prompted to assume the new religion on account of the safety which will thus be offered them by Russia from the dreaded persecutions of the Moslems.

It is pleasant to record the fact that a serious agitation is being made in England against the introduction of the Sunday newspaper, and the necessarily increasing secularization of the Sabbath. At a dinner at the Newsvendors' Benevolent and Provident Institution, held recently, Lord Roseberry made a courteous, but powerful, appeal to the publishers, asking them "to consider whether in this competition they are not losing more than they gain, and whether they might not between them arrive at some self-denying ordinance, a 'truce of God,' which would release both of them from the incubus of their Seventh-day production." The proprietors of the "Daily Mail" and the "Daily Telegraph," the papers referred to, are personal friends of Lord Rosebery, and were present at the dinner. Mr. Harmsworth, of the "Daily Mail," himself says that the development of the Sunday newspaper "is quite as unnecessary to-day in England as it was in the United States thirty-five years ago, when it commenced there."

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, after a service of forty-three years, has resigned the pastorate of the South Congregational Church in Boston.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the American Sunday School Union opened in this city yesterday afternoon. The meeting was addressed by Bishop Foss, of the Methodist Church; Russell H. Conwell, of the Baptist, and Rufus M. Jones, of our own denomination, besides other well-known church workers. Today's sessions in the afternoon and evening will be addressed by such ministers as H. Clay Trumbull, A. F. Schauffler, Newell Dwight Hilles and Theodore L. Cuyler.

News from the Field.

Dublin Yearly Meeting was held at Dublin, Ireland, from the 1st to the 9th, inclusive. It was attended by the following ministers with minutes: William Edward Turner, Howard Nicholson, Charles E. Gillett, and Frederic Taylor, all of London Yearly Meeting. George Grubb, John Henry Allen, and Arthur Pim were reappointed clerks. The total membership is reported to be 2,586, a decrease of 6. There are 34 recorded ministers.

We have received from our friend, J. Bewley Beale, a short but interesting impression of it:

It was a better attended Yearly Meeting than the few last, and, on the whole, very interesting. The home and foreign mission meetings were really delightful times, and mark a decided increase of interest and earnestness. I have heard nothing but expressions of satisfaction as to the meetings for worship held in and around the city. The concluding meeting in Dublin was for us here in Ireland a remarkable and unusual time, many Friends, younger and older, having testified to their acceptance of Christ as their own personal Saviour and as to His keeping power. It seemed as if the meeting could not be brought to a close, and after it had held for more than two and a quarter hours, and was eventually brought to an end, quite a number accepted an invitation to adjourn into an adjoining room to be spoken to. Of course we have had somewhat similar experiences before during a series of meetings at special missions or other occasions here, but nothing like it at a Yearly Meeting for worship. It is indeed cause for devout thankfulness to our Heavenly Father. The presence of the Holy Spirit was felt and frequently acknowledged during the Yearly Meeting. With love, I am thine, sincerely,
J. BEWLEY BEALE.

Aaron M. Powell, a widely known reformer and philanthropist, died suddenly while speaking in the ministers' and elders' meeting at Race Street Yearly Meeting of Friends, Philadelphia, Fifth month 13th. He was a native of New York State, and became in early life a vigorous speaker and writer in the anti-slavery cause. When the slavery struggle was over, he entered at once into the work of Temperance Reform, and was for twenty years associate editor of the "National Temperance Advocate." During the later years of his life he has been mainly devoted to work in behalf of Social Purity, and he was editor of the "Philanthropist," a monthly magazine published in the interests of Social Purity. He was a man of singularly pure life, and he has made a good contribution to the never completed work of improving the world.

William Marshall writes from Argentine Republic that he is in good health, and busily engaged distributing Bibles and tracts. He hopes soon to go to Bolivia.

Joseph S. Elkinton, of Philadelphia, was on hand again at Halifax to meet the new company of Doukhobors who arrived from Cyprus on the steamer "Lake Superior." The ship brought 2,000 of these peace-loving immigrants. Joseph S. Elkinton rendered what service he could while the Doukhobors were in Halifax. They have gone on to join their companions in Manitoba.

John Wilhelm Rowntree and Alfred Neave Brayshaw, of York, England, have been spending a few days at Cleveland, Ohio. They are now at Richmond, Ind., where they will probably remain until New England Yearly Meeting.

On the evening of Second-day, Fourth month 3d, the third annual reunion and dinner of the Providence School Alumni Association was held at the Hotel Marlborough in New York city. There were present forty-three ex-students and teachers, including several who were also members of the Alumni Association of Oakwood Seminary at Union Springs, N. Y.

The guests met about half an hour before sitting down at dinner, and enjoyed an informal reunion and exchange of greetings. Some of those present had not met before for forty years.

After the usual abundant repast had been disposed of, the President, Isaac Howland, introduced Augustine Jones, the present Principal of the School. With his usual felicitous admixture of the serious and humorous, he explained the present aims and progress of the school, dwelling particularly upon the fact that the school rested upon a foundation designed to promote the purpose of philanthropy, and not for the accumulation of money. He said: "We furnish an education worth $1,000 for $300, and that is following the intuition of the founders." He also assured his hearers that the standards of scholarship set up in the past were being fully maintained. On the whole his representation of the present condition of Providence School was highly satisfactory.

The next speaker introduced was George Fox Tucker, of Boston, of the class of '71. Friend Tucker recognized that he was in a company of Friends from the plainness of speech and attire, and the frugality (?) of the repast of which his hearers had just partaken. His further remarks were confined to pleasing reminiscences of John Rowell and others formerly connected with the school.

He was followed by the earliest living graduate, Lois Anna Green, of Providence, class of '58, who happily described the guarded education that was provided in the years gone by, along with the attempts at co-education, the results of which under the present dispensation of Friend Jones were in many respects happily improved.

Friend William A. Marble, class of '67, devoted his remarks to the "Station Poets" and their poems, some selections from which he read. These verses recalled to many of his hearers in a very pleasing manner both the authors and the occasions that prompted them.

Those who remember James A. Robinson, class of '56, will not be surprised that in making his first attempt at an after-dinner speech, he contributed very materially to the entertainment of the evening. James told his hearers how it was that after completing the course of study, and successfully passing all of the examinations, just on the eve of graduation a little "racket" with John Rowell had led to his being deprived of his well-earned diploma. The remainder of James Robinson's remarks could scarcely be reported, but were highly appreciated and enjoyed, even by an audience of Friends, as was attested by the laughter which his wit of word and manner provoked. At the close of his remarks Augustine Jones came to the rescue and dubbed him a knight on the field of battle, assuring him that at the meeting of the committee of the school, to be held next day, the diploma that had been earned forty years before should be bestowed.

Stephen F. Peckhower, class of '56, called attention to the fact that Augustine Jones, Isaac Howland, James A. Robinson, David Taber, Thomas C. Howland, Robert Ferris and himself had not sat at the same table for more than forty years. He further reminded his hearers that two hundred years before, at a meeting held at John Lapham's house in Dartmouth, Mass., the ancestors of a number of those then present had planned to build the first Friends' Meeting House built in New England, calling to mind that we of the present time owe a debt of gratitude to the early Friends of New England quite as deep as to Roger Williams, for their heroic resistance to religious intolerance and the final establishment of "soul liberty."

The last speaker was Clarkson A. Collins, class of '72, who spoke feelingly and appreciatively of the work done by William Phillips, at the school, in laying deep and broad the foundations of classical culture.

After the election of officers of the Association for the ensuing year the Friends sought their homes. S. F. P.

A great many meetings are being held in favor of a permanent Arbitration Tribunal for the nations. Many resolutions passed at these meetings have been sent by telegraph and by mail to the American delegates at The Hague, praying them to contend earnestly for this world's court.

Wm. G. Hubbard, of Columbus, Ohio, while in this vicinity for a few days, addressed a large meeting of the churches of Haddonfield, N. J., on the above topic. He also spoke at Central Congregational Church, Philadelphia, and at the Hall of the Universal Peace Society on the same theme. From all these meetings messages were sent to The Hague.

WILMINGTON YEARLY MEETING.

Friendsville, Tenn.—The annual commencement of Friendsville Academy was held Fifth month 9th, 10th and 11th, 1899.

On the evening of the 9th, the undergraduates gave the most refined entertainment we have had for some years to a large and appreciative audience.

On the morning of the 10th the little folk recited their pieces. It seemed very fitting that these little ones join nature at this season just as she is swelling the buds and opening the flowers adorning the works of the Creator.

At 7.30 the annual meeting of the Alumni Association convened to extend greetings, as well as to welcome the class of '99.

On the morning of the 11th, Farnum Hall gathered her usual host of witnesses testifying in behalf of education, morality and religion, while Mollie Bradshaw and R. Wilson Lee, in the usual way, closed the Genesis, and began the Exodus of life for the actual and not the imaginary Canaan, which all may find under God's appointed leader. E. T. Sanford, A.M., of Knoxville, delivered the address. The speaker paid a tribute to the institution, which had stood so long as a beacon light, surrounded by a Quaker colony, thus shedding its light of moral, scientific and religious culture over a vast section, quickened by some of the noblest energies that move the heart of man. Great men are conquerors, but the greatest conqueror is he who conquers the powers within him. The world may know of your knowledge of books or intellectual powers; and remember, they also know whether you have access to the tree of life, which transforms knowledge into wisdom. We should learn to live and love in this little world Him who lives and loves in an unlimited one. The speaker closed with a compliment upon the woman of the nineteenth century, much to the satisfaction of our lady friends, who rejoiced to see strong men of other churches pulling down the strong barriers which have stood through all the ages.

Jesse H. Moore, A. M. Hadley, and Katie Linginfelter, teachers. Blanche Moore, instructress in music. Jesse H. Moore, Principal, will arrange for the next year's work. SAMUEL DUNLAP.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Marshalltown, Iowa.—Dr. Bunce, of Nevada, Iowa, and Lewis I. Hadley, of Camby, Ind., are booked for tabernacle meetings in this state as follows: Springdale, Fifth month; Cottonwood, Fifth month 20th to 31st; Iowa Annual, Sixth month 9th to 19th; Marshalltown, Seventh month 7th to 17th; Grinnell Camp, Seventh month 20th to 30th; Keokuk County Camp, Eighth month 3d to 13th. E. B. MENDENHALL.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

Southern Quarter.—Our friends, Wm. C. and Sarah E. W. Winslow, ministers of Science Hall, acceptably attended Marlboro Monthly Meeting on Fifth month 6th, and were at our Sabbath School and 11 a.m. meeting next day. They had good service both days. On Seventh-day Sarah E. W. Winslow rose with the words of our Saviour, "Let not your heart be troubled," etc., dwelling particularly on the word "let," and showing us the importance of little words; also the word "clean," and how much Christ used it in reference to His church and followers. Sarah E. W. Winslow spoke very feelingly of the passing away recently of her life-long invalid sister, Hannah Wilson, of Dublin, Ind., the pet of the family, a lovely Christian character, though a "shut in." We are glad the Lord put it in their hearts to visit us. LILIAS MARRIAGE LOWE.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Three prominent members of Indiana Yearly Meeting have recently passed away within a few days of each other, Martha Jay, of Richmond; Levi Jessup, of Lynn; and Thomas N. White, of Lewisville.

Stillwell, Ind.—Mary Cox, of Coloma, Ind., held a series of meetings at Riverdale School House, five and one-half miles south of Bethel Church. Twelve or fifteen came forward during the meetings and professed conversion. Ten requested membership with Friends.

We have a family of Friends living near this school house, and there are other families who belong to church, some to the Presbyterians, some Methodists, living in this neighborhood, who attend the meetings and Sabbath School. These, with a number of families who make no profession, but attend services at this school house, make quite an interesting little meeting.

There is no church organization near this point, and we hope soon to have a meeting established there and a house built.

Friends hold Sabbath School there every Sabbath, and meeting for worship every other Sabbath at three o'clock.

Charles Whitely, pastor of Stillwell Meeting, is doing a grand work at Stillwell. He also conducts religious service and Sabbath School at a little town east of Stillwell, six miles on the Grand Trunk Railroad. There is no meeting or Sabbath School within six miles of this point, and we hope to soon see a Friends' meeting built up at this place.

All those points with the Friends' meeting in Laporte are going to join in a grove meeting near Bethel Meeting House on the 23d, 24th and 25th of Sixth month. These meetings will be held under the care and management of David Hadley, of Plainfield, and Joseph O. Binford, of Knightstown, Ind.

MAHLON S. GAUSE.

Upland Meeting, Fairmount Quarter.—B. F. Morris, of South Wabash, came here first of Eleventh month last, and took charge of this and Walnut Creek Meeting, three miles in the country, as pastor. We had become weak and discouraged, but his loving pastoral care and messages of love and lessons of instruction soon infused new life, and the interest in the meeting began to increase, and has gradually grown since. A series of meetings were held by our pastor at both places to good satisfaction, resulting in a number of conversions and renewals; some accepted Christ in all His fulness, realizing that He keeps in perfect peace those who trust Him. At the close of our meeting here in Third month we organized a Christian Endeavor Society of thirty-one active and fifteen associate members. We have received since then two active and eleven associate members. Our meetings are lively and growing in interest both in the Christian Endeavor and regular meeting. Our pastor hands out both milk and meat, so that all are fed, and the growing is apparent, and we feel that the great Head of the church is leading.

CLAYTON WRIGHT.

Walnut Ridge Quarterly Meeting was held Fifth month 12th, 13th and 14th. Joseph O. Binford, Gurney Binford and Susan Ratliff were present each day; Elwood O. Ellis on 6th and 7th days, and Samuel Mills on First-day afternoon. Our own ministers and workers were largely in attendance. On First-day the crowd was large and orderly. The sessions were seasons of blessing, the power of the Lord sweetly prevailing over all things to the good of His church, all realizing the preciousness of the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace.

CHARLES S. WINSLOW.

NEW ENGLAND YEARLY MEETING.

The Friends of Amesbury Meeting have had sad losses through death during the past year. Six of their most faithful members have been removed, which is a serious loss.

A reception will be given to all returned missionaries of New England Yearly Meeting on Sixth month 8th, from 6.30 to 7.30 p.m., in the vestry of Friends' Meeting-house, Oak Street, Portland, Maine, thus giving a little time for handshaking and short speeches in welcoming those who have done so much for us in the far-off missionary fields. All attending the Yearly Meeting are cordially invited to be present.

Lewiston, Maine.—That the winter is past, the rain is over and gone, and the time for the singing of birds has come, is no truer of this beautiful world of ours, in a natural sense, than it is of the Friends' meeting in Lewiston in a spiritual sense.

After months of trials and discouragements, kept alive only by our faith and trust in "One who is strong to deliver," praying constantly that God would send us a messenger who would reach the hearts of the people, and make wrong things right, He answered our prayers.

In the autumn of last year, Jesse McPherson, of Winthrop, heard God's voice saying to him in tones that could not be misunderstood, "Go to Lewiston; I have work for thee." In simple obedience and with unwavering faith he obeyed the call and came to our help. As the result of faithful work, led by the mighty Captain of our salvation, assisted in every way by George Farr and Elma Richardson, of this church, speaking the word as God gave it to him, sometimes as sharp as a two-edged sword, yet with all tenderness, the darkness has disappeared and there is a shout of victory in the camp.

At a recent monthly meeting twenty-eight members were added to our numbers, and the following Fifth-day evening a public reception was given them at the church, which was well filled. It was truly a powerful meeting. Smiles and tears, expressions of love to God and to each other earnest prayer and soul music made it seem like the very "gate of heaven," while the faithful heart-searching words of Jesse McPherson to the new members will never be forgotten. The meeting closed with a Friend's hearty handshake and the smile of God's approval.

PHILADELPHIA YEARLY MEETING.

The centennial anniversary of the founding of Westtown Boarding School will be celebrated at Westtown, on Seventh-day, Sixth month 10th, 1899, at the time of the third annual reunion (second Westtown reunion) of the Westtown Old Scholars' Association.

A cordial invitation is herewith extended to all old scholars, their husbands, wives and children, and others who have been identified with the school, to participate in this occasion and to become members of this Association, whether now connected with our religious society or not. Those specially interested in the subject of education among Friends are also invited. All who have contributed to the Westtown Centennial Memorial Fund are particularly invited to be present.

Ample preparations are being made to care for and entertain a very large gathering (about three thousand people). Everything needful for the day, including tent, conveyances, and a substantial luncheon, will be provided by the Westtown Old Scholars' Association without charge. A prominent feature will be the presentation of Westtown Centennial Memorial Fund. There will be addresses by entertaining speakers. The school buildings and grounds and specimens of the handiwork of the scholars will be on exhibition.

Please extend this invitation to any who should attend, but who may not have received it, and please also respond promptly by postal card.

On behalf of the Board of Managers of the Westtown Old Scholars' Association. SAMUEL L. ALLEN, President.

Moorestown, N. J.

Margaret Leitch, of Ceylon, gave a very stirring missionary address at Haverford on the evening of the 15th, under the auspices of the Haverford branch of the Foreign Missionary Society of Philadelphia. She also addressed the Haverford College Y. M. C. A. on the 17th, and a large gathering of students was present.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Lowell, Kansas.—Grand River Quarterly Meeting was held at Ottawa Mission, Indian Territory, 4th and 5th of Fifth month, 1899. The meeting was not as large as usual on account of inclement weather, but was greatly blessed. The power of the Holy Spirit was manifest through all the meetings. A number of our Indian Friends were present, whose hearts were touched with the love of Christ. There was a request for a Quarterly Meeting to be held in Oklahoma, Indian Territory, which was granted. Our next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Lowell, Kansas, in Eighth month, 5th and 6th.

SUSANNA OSBORN.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF WESTTOWN SCHOOL.

Under the auspices of the Alumni Association and some members of the Westtown Committee, a new, and we think valuable, History of the School is nearing completion. It has been compiled by Watson W. and Sarah B. Dewees, assisted by a special committee of the Alumni, and is an interesting narrative of the life of the school from 1799 to the present.

No space has been sacrificed to a catalogue of students, but the author's aim has been to produce a book both accurate and readable, eliminating as far as possible uninteresting statistics. The book will contain about two hundred pages of text, and fifty or more full-page illustrations. It will be printed on a particularly high grade of paper and appropriately bound in cloth. The opening chapters contain a lively picture of the state of education among Friends in America during the closing years of last century, followed by an interesting recital of the growth of the idea which finally took shape in a Yearly Meeting Boarding School.

The authors have had access to the minutes of the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, as well as to those of the School Committee, and have incorporated in the history very much that has the element of freshness to those of the present generation. Succeeding chapters tell of the building of the original school house and the opening of the school; an interesting feature of this part being the introduction of letters written home by Westtown boys and girls in the early years of the century. The administrations of the various superintendents then follow, and the concluding chapters are devoted to special features of Westtown life, such as literary societies, sports, etc. The illustrations, for the most part, are from newly made half-tone plates never before published, and include several portraits of superintendents, teachers and others who have been closely identified with the school. Among the many valuable ones in the collection may be mentioned a sketch by William L. Price, drawn particularly for this history, representing the original school house as we believe it appeared early in the century. Other illustrations worthy of special mention are the Boys' Chamber, the Old Gallery, the Original Farm House in 1799, sketched by James M. Price; the Old South Porch, and among the portraits, Philip and Rachel Price, Sarah Emlen, Enoch Lewis and Joseph Walton.

It is expected that the book will be on sale by or before Centennial Day, Sixth month 10th, 1899. The price will be $1.00 per copy if delivered at Friends' Book Store, No. 304 Arch Street, or at Friends' Institute, Twelfth Street, below Market, to be called for by the purchaser. If sent by mail the price will be $1.10.

The committee feel that they are offering exceptional value for the money, and believe that the book is one that every person interested in Westtown should own. As the edition is limited, we would suggest that it may be best for those wishing to secure copies to order at once.

Charles Rhoads, Hannah P. Morris, Davis H. Forsythe, Henry Tatnall Brown, Committee.

Birth.

DOUGLAS.—To Charles B. and Effie I. Douglas, Fifth month 13th, 1899, a son, Charles Harold.

Died.

BROWN.—At Barclay, Kansas, Second month 24th, 1899, Marcus H. Brown, leaving a wife and two sons and two daughters, together with many friends to mourn his loss. He was born in Logan County, Ohio, near Zanesfield, in 1839. He was married to Rachel A. Mills, of Howard County, Md., in 1871. For the last twenty-five years he lived a Christian life. He was active in Sabbath School and church work. We can say that our loss is his gain.

HENLEY.—Amanda M. Henley, daughter of Zeke and Margaret Henley, died Fourth month 9th, 1899, in her 76th year. She was born in North Carolina in the year 1822. From there she moved with her parents to Kansas in an early day. She lived at Virgil, Kansas, at the time of her death, which was occasioned by a fall.

STOUT.—John Stout, Sr., died on Fourth month 27th, 1899, aged 77 years, 7 months and 6 days, at his home in Paoli, Orange County, Ind. He was a birthright member and had filled the office of Overseer and Elder for many years. During the last 18 months his health had declined on account of heart trouble. A life warm towards his church has ceased here, but more abundantly entered into in the world to come.

RATHBONE.—Susan W. Rathbone died at the home of her daughter, Anna Rathbone White, in Knightstown, Ind., on the morning of Third month 18th, 1899, aged 87 years, 7 months. She was the widow of Frances H. Rathbone, who was killed in 1854 by an accident at Boston Corners on the Hudson River Railroad. She was a lifelong member of Friends, and at death was a member of New York Yearly Meeting. The late Hannah B. Williams, of Twelfth Street Meeting, Philadelphia, was a sister of the above named. Our aged and beloved Friend gave full assurance of an abiding Christian faith, and longed to go to her heavenly home and be at rest.

WEESNER.—Josiah Weesner, the oldest son of the twelve children of William and Rachel Weesner, died Fourth month 26th, 1899, aged 85 years. He was born in North Carolina in 1813, and moved to Indiana in the spring of 1838. He was a member of West Union Monthly Meeting, Indiana.

WILSON.—Died, Fourth month 11th, 1899, Hannah Wilson, a charter member and an Elder of Fairmount, Indiana, Preparative Meeting of Friends. She was born in North Carolina, being the daughter of Aaron and Nancy Hill, and was the widow of Jesse E. Wilson, deceased in 1883. She was regular in attendance of meetings, and occasionally, in a few well-chosen words, expressed her gratitude to her Heavenly Father for His saving and keeping power, which, in connection with her daily conversation, manifested to those about her the "Christ formed within, the hope of glory."

FACTS ABOUT HUMAN LIFE.

There are 3,064 languages in the world, and its inhabitants profess more than 1,000 religions. The number of men is about equal to the number of women. The average of life is about thirty-three years. To 1,000 persons, only one reaches 100 years of life; to every 100, six reach the age of sixty-five, and not more than one in 600 lives to eighty years. There are on the earth 1,000,000,000 inhabitants. Of these 33,033,033 die every year, 91,824 every day, 3,730 every hour, 60 every minute, or one every second. The married are longer-lived than the single, and above all those who observe a sober and industrious conduct. Tall men live longer than short ones. Women have more chances of life in their favor, previous to fifty years of age, than men have, but fewer afterward. The number of marriages is in the proportion of 75 to 1,000 individuals. Those born in the spring are generally of a more robust constitution than others. Births are more frequent by night than by day; also deaths. The number of men capable of bearing arms is calculated at one-fourth of the population.

There are several varieties of fish that cannot swim. In every instance they are deep sea dwellers and crawl about the rocks, using their tails and fins as legs.

WORKING ON BRAINS.

Food Specialist Brings out a Novelty.

A food expert at Battle Creek, Mich., connected with the Postum Cereal Co., Lim., has produced a food especially intended for rebuilding the brain. It is a well-known fact among physicians that examination of perspiration and urine will tell whether the individual has been actively using the brain or not.

Brain work exhausts the phosphates which appear in the excreta above mentioned. Administration of inorganic phosphorus or phosphates does not readily supply the waste, for nature demands that phosphates be made up and blended in food which she furnishes. Advantage has been taken of this knowledge and a scientific selection of a part of the grain has been made, and these have been put through mechanical processes parallel to the processes through which food is passed in its management by the human digestive organs. Therefore the new food is not only ready to serve without cooking, but it has passed through the process where the starches have been changed to grape-sugar, and that with the proteids, organic phosphates, etc., are at once ready to be quickly absorbed and turned to use in vitalizing and nourishing the parts of the body like brain, solar plexus, and the delicate nerve centres.

The new food has been given the name of Grape-Nuts, and far from being a "Crank's Food," "Invalid's Food," or anything of that sort, it is a crisp, sweet novelty, charming to the athlete, brain worker, epicure, or invalid.

Grape-Nuts can be had of grocers, and a trial dish for breakfast will be found a pleasant experience.

HOTEL STRAND ATLANTIC CITY.

Ocean and Virginia Ave. ues.

A thoroughly modern and home-like house throughout. Elevator to street level. Steam heat. Sun parlor, etc. A special rate will be made to FRIENDS during this season. Write for booklet and terms.

FAIRBAIRN & WILLIAMS.

Mention this Paper

THE DOG REPORTER.

Bob, a fox terrier that belongs to the chief of one of the Washington newspaper bureaus, is generally known along Newspaper Row as "the dog reporter." The correspondent of "The Detroit News-Tribune" tells why.

There are some sanctums that the ordinary reporter does not dare to enter, unless especially invited; not so with Bob. His nerve is supreme. He starts out each morning with great regularity to make the rounds of the Treasury Department, White House, and War, State, and Navy buildings, usually accompanying one of the reporters to the bureau. If they are behind time he goes on his own hook.

He is known in practically all the departments, and when he comes along officials discreetly conceal all letters or other documents which may have news in them, because Bob will never leave an office without some tangible proof that he has called. A few weeks ago he was discovered by Secretary Gage calmly walking out of his office, with a bundle of letters presented by a Western Congressman in behalf of a constituent who wanted a position. Bob was greatly aggrieved when the messenger forcibly relieved him of his "scoop."

Bob also frequently pays his respects to the President. Unlike most callers, Bob always sees the chief magistrate when the spirit moves him to do so, and incidentally, in his demonstrations of delight over a Dewey victory or some other little achievement, he paws the creases all out of the Presidential trousers.

A clergyman married a wife, with whom he received $10,000 and a fair prospect of more, and, while occupying the pulpit on the first occasion after the honeymoon, gave out a hymn. After reading the first four verses, he was proceeding to read the fifth, beginning,

"Forever let thy grateful heart," when he hesitated and exclaimed, "Ahem! the choir will omit the fifth verse," and sat down. Attracted by their pastor's evident confusion, the congregation read the verse for themselves, and smiled broadly as they read:—

"Forever let thy grateful heart

His boundless grace adore,
Which gives ten thousand blessings now
And bids me hope for more."

The shooting fish is a native of the East Indies. It has a hollow cylindrical beak. When it spies a fly sitting on the plants that grow in shallow water, with remarkable dexterity it ejects out of a tubular mouth a single drop of water, which seldom misses its aim, and striking the fly into the water, the fish makes it its prey.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

NEWS AND EVENTS

The movements of the American forces in the Philippines last week were attended with increasing success, and confirmed the opinion before entertained that the surrender of the Filipinos is only a question of time. Under General Lawton's command the American troops drove the insurgents northward to San Isidro, the second insurgent capital, and pressed them so hard that they were finally driven to the mountains. Their forces have been scattered, they are sick, short of food, and their army is said to be dissolving into bands of pillagers. The Filipinos are evidently demoralized. Their discouragement is shown by the fact that another commission has been sent from Aguinaldo to General Otis, to inquire again concerning the terms of peace. At a preliminary meeting Aguinaldo's commissioners requested an armistice from General Otis, but as before, this concession was refused. The American General, however, gave instructions to his commanders to refrain from aggressive action temporarily. At this writing the American Commissioners are treating with the Filipino Commissioners, and it is hoped that the result of the Conference will bode well for peace, though the experience of the past makes the prospect of a cessation of hostilities in the immediate future a matter of grave doubt.

Intense excitement was created in the Transvaal last week by the arrest, on the 16th, of eight ex-British officers on the charge of high treason. The plotters are alleged to have been implicated in a conspiracy against the South African Republic. These arrests may be the foreshadowing of the end of oppression and misgovernment in President Krueger's little republic. The foreign residents in the South African Republic, known as Outlanders, are accorded few of the privileges such as are enjoyed by the Boers or citizens of the country, and in many ways their lives are made oppressive. The Outlanders own seventy-five per cent. of all the landed property and are forced to pay ninety per cent. of all the taxes. That they are oppressed and unjustly treated there is no doubt. President Krueger's republic appears to be little else than an oligarchy, with almost unlimited power reposed in the President. The natural sequence of tyranny and misrepresentation is revolt, and while the accused may be condemned for their revolutionary plot, they are receiving a vast amount of sympathy from the residents of more enlightened governments.

The Peace Conference called by the Czar of Russia was opened at 2 o'clock, on the afternoon of the 15th, in the hall of the "House in the Woods," two miles from The Hague. The inaugural address was delivered by M. de Beaufort, President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Government of the Netherlands. Russia's Ambassador to England, M. De Staal, the head of the Russian delegation, has been made President of the Conference. Three Commissions were named to arrange programs for discussion. The first relates to restrictions of armaments and military expenditure; the second deals with the laws governing civilized warfare, and the third with mediation and arbitration. At least this was the order originally planned, but through the insistence of the United States and English delegations the subject of arbitration has been given precedence in the program which will be considered by the Conference. A broad and liberal spirit has thus far been manifested, and perfect harmony has prevailed regarding all questions brought forward. Beginning with this week the sessions will be held in secret. One of the most interesting features thus far developed is the unanimity existing between the United States and Great Britain, as shown in the common ground they have taken on the subject of arbitration. The Commissioners from both countries will insist upon the establishment of a permanent tribunal for the arbitration of international differences.

The cloud which threatened trouble in Cuba has fortunately blown over and an amicable arrangement has been effected for the surrender of the Cuban arms. The arms and equipments received from the Cuban soldiers are to be taken under guard to the nearest station occupied by the United States troops, where they will be stored until they can be transported to Havana or Santiago, where they will be kept in the arsenal as souvenirs and cared for by armorers selected by the Commander-in-Chief of the Cuban army. Major General Brooke will begin promptly the payment of the $3,000,000. With the disbandment of the entire Cuban army the one constant source of discontent and possible rebellion is removed very effectually.

ACTINA AND MAGNETIC CONSERVATIVE APPLIANCES.

We have numerous testimonials as to the value of these articles in curing Chronic Catarrh, Hay Fever, Asthma, Cataract, Deafness, Rheumatism, Gout, and various other ills humanity is heir to.

For sale by the

PHILADELPHIA MAGNETIC CO.,
1936 ARCH ST., Philadelphia.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, First-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Spring and Summer Fabrics now ready.

GUSTAVUS GOLZE,
Merchant Tailor,
123 N. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa

Read These Books

Mailed free for postage named.

To California and Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.
A Colorado Summer, 50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.
The Moki Snake Dance, 60 pp., 64 illustrations, 2 cts.
Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illustrations, 2 cts.
New Mexico Health Resorts, 88 pp., 45 illustrations, 2 cts.
Arizona Health Resorts, 84 pp., 27 illustrations, 2 cts.
Las Vegas Hot Springs, 48 pp., 39 illustrations, 2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West. They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will make you better acquainted with the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

General Gomez has played his part admirably, and much credit is due him for the unselfish character which he has displayed throughout.

The German appreciation of Kipling, which "The Living Age" has translated from the "Englische Studien," is keen, just, and discriminating. Kipling is widely read, and, to judge from this estimate, is well understood in Germany.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The American Friend is a weekly paper, containing twenty-four pages. The subscription price is one dollar and a half a year, payable in advance.

Discontinuances.—If a subscriber wishes his copy of the paper discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

How to Remit.—Remittances should be sent by Check, Draft, Express-Order, or Money Order, payable to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. Cash should be sent only in Registered Letter.

Postage is Prepaid by the publishers for all subscriptions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. For all other countries in the Postal Union add $1.00 for postage.

Change of Address.—When a change of address is ordered, both the new and the old address must be given. The notice should be sent one week before the change is to take effect.

Letters should be addressed:

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia.

A MUSICAL POMERANIAN.

A gentleman who has a great fondness for dogs says: "I heard dogs howl at the piano, but never before sing to it, as my Pomeranian did; and, what was stranger still, he was always perfectly in tune. This is not exaggeration, but a fact; and he would go right up the scale without a false note. Whenever I played the piano he used to sit in the middle of the room, put his little nose in the air, and join in with a great deal of expression and feeling. He thoroughly enjoyed his musical performance, and seemed immensely pleased with himself. A Welsh terrier we have in the house now often comes and sits close to my feet when I am playing. His nature is a very sentimental one at all times, and meek; other dogs I have noticed do the same thing, and this without either 'howling' or 'singing.' My Pomeranian was anything but good-tempered, meek, or sentimental. At times he went into the most fearful rages when anyone did anything to annoy him. I have never known a dog which took such foolish hatred to people. With me he was always the sweetest and most affectionate and faithful little companion possible. He was evidently the sort of dog that must attach himself to one person. More extreme opposites could not be found than in him and the Welsh terrier I have mentioned; so it shows that music affects dogs with different characters—fiery as well as meek."

MISSIONARY RECEPTION.

On Fifth-day evening, Sixth month 8th, from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m., at Friends' Meeting on Oak Street, in Portland, Maine, the two missionary societies of New England Yearly Meeting will give a reception to all our missionaries, active and retired. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

The Yearly Meeting Committee of Arrangements announce that there will be no meeting for worship on that evening, and the Representative Meeting will convene at 8.30 instead of 8 p.m.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.

OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.

Purest artesian water from private well.

Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.

Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Home-like and attractive. Open throughout the year.

MARY T. HAINES.

N. R. HAINES.

Late of Chalfonte.

The Archdale, 136 South Maryland Avenue, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.

MARY J. BUNDY.

Procrastination.

Steals time, and everything that time ought to be good for.

Possibly it keeps you from using Pearline. You know from others of its ease and economy—but you're "putting it off."

Why not begin the use of Pearline with the very first thing to be washed or cleaned—your face and hands, say. Pearline hurts nothing; cleans everything. 583

Millions NOW USE Pearline

FRANKLIN'S FAMOUS TOAST.

Franklin was dining with a small party of distinguished gentlemen, when one of them said: "Here are three nationalities represented: I am French, and my friend here is English, and Mr. Franklin is an American. Let each one propose a toast."

It was agreed to, and the Englishman's turn came first. He arose, and, in the tone of a Briton bold, said: "Here's to Great Britain, the sun that gives light to all nations of the earth."

The Frenchman was rather taken back of this, but he proposed: "Here's to France, the moon whose magic rays move the tides of the world."

Franklin then arose, with an air of quaint modesty, and said: "Here's to our beloved George Washington, the Joshua of America, who commanded the sun and moon to stand still—and they obeyed."

The triangular bridge at Croyland, Lincolnshire, is the oldest bridge in England and one of the greatest curiosities.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelists in extending the influence of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention.

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary.

IRREPROACHABLE SERVICE TO THE SOUTH VIA THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

With a total mileage of nearly six-thousand miles, the Southern Railway stands today without a peer. It is the most progressive transportation company in the South, as evidenced by the number of fast and elegant trains it operates, affording exceptional facilities for reaching all prominent cities in the South without change of cars. Three through daily trains are operated from Philadelphia via this great route, namely: 7.20 a.m., The United States Fast Mail, runs solid between Washington and New Orleans, making direct connections for all points in the South. 6.34 p.m., The New York and Chattanooga Limited, running through to Chattanooga Tenn., carrying through Pullman cars to Memphis and New Orleans, via Lynchburg, Roanoke, Bristol and Knoxville. This train also carries through Pullman cars to Augusta, Savannah, Jacksonville and Tampa, via Charlotte and Columbia. 6.55 p.m., The Washington and Southwestern Limited. This train has been in the service for several years and is the most popular, and best patronized train operated south of the Potomac, carries through cars to Nashville, Tenn., via Asheville, "The Land of the Sky," Knoxville and Chattanooga, also through cars to Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, and New Orleans. Dining cars serve all meals on this train. Send for maps and rates, also copy of a beautifully illustrated booklet entitled "The Land of the Sky." Stop-over at Washington not exceeding ten days will be allowed on all through one way tickets between the East and West via the Southern Railway. Passengers wishing to avail themselves of this privilege should deposit their tickets at the depot ticket office immediately upon arrival. For further information and Pullman reservations, call on or communicate with Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

A want advertisement in "The American Friend" will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

The only cheap lamp-chimneys there are in the world are Macbeth's — don't break.

If you get the one made for your lamp, more light besides. Get the Index.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

It is estimated by a competent foreign authority that only 900 persons out of 1,000,000 die from old age, while 1,200 succumb to gout, 18,400 to measles, 2,700 to apoplexy, 7,000 to erysipelas, 7,500 to consumption, 48,000 to scarlet fever, 25,000 to whooping cough, 30,000 to typhoid and typhus, and 7,000 to rheumatism. The averages vary according to locality, but these are considered accurate as regards the population of the globe as a whole.

FLORIDA SHORT LINE.

The New York and Florida Express, via Southern Railway, leaving Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, daily at 5.34 P.M., carries through Pullman sleeping cars to Augusta and Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville and Tampa, Fla., via Charlotte and Columbia. This is the short line and most attractive route to points in Georgia and Florida.

All information cheerfully furnished by Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

STEAMERS TO WEST POINT.

York River Line to Resume Daily Service Which Was Discontinued in 1896.

Mr. Reuben Foster, President and General Manager of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Richmond Steamboat Company, returned yesterday from Richmond, where he completed arrangements for the running of a daily steamer over the York River Line of the Company, between Baltimore and West Point, which is thirty-nine miles from Richmond.

The new schedule will go into effect on Monday, May 15. The steamer will leave the pier of the York River Line every afternoon, reaching West Point the following morning. Connection will be made at West Point with the Southern Railway, which makes the run from that point to Richmond in an hour and twenty minutes.

Officials of the company feel encouraged to resume the line of daily steamers between Baltimore and West Point, which was discontinued in the fall of 1896, because there are indications that there will be a marked increase both in the freight and passenger business over the line. At present there are only three steamers weekly over the York River Line between this city and West Point.—"The Sun," Baltimore, May 5, 1899.

For rates, time tables, maps and full information, write to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

We invite the attention of all our readers to the column of "Subscribers' Wants" in "The American Friend." This department is constantly increasing in favor with those wishing to reach the great body of Friends with a small advertisement. Five lines of thirty-five words cost only 25 cents. See page 477 of this issue.

HELEN KELLER'S DIVERSIONS.

"Helen Keller is as normal a young person, in the respect of her ordinary likes and dislikes, as any one you would be apt to meet in a day's journey—always excepting in what they may be regarded by some as normal vices, which she certainly has not," writes Joseph Edgar Chamberlin, of the deaf and blind girl who is shortly to enter Harvard College, in the May "Ladies' Home Journal." "She has quite normal curiosity, but she has been without personal experience of evil save in some very limited ways. She certainly comes nearer to being completely good than any other person whom I have ever known. She is unable to frame a deceit. Nevertheless, she loves dearly to play practical jokes of an innocent sort; but they are generally very melancholy failures through her total inaptitude for any form of guile. She is extremely fond of outdoor romping and yearns for adventures by sea and land. She struggles—of course with a guide, for if she is left entirely alone out-of-doors she simply stands stock still or sits down on the ground until rescued—with great joy up the steepest hills and through the densest thickets. To be 'lost' in our little woods with only a child for a guide is an intense delight to her. She revels in rough handling and friendly 'scraps.' She is a strong and healthy girl and feels the need for exercise. She eats heartily, but has a somewhat difficult—that is, an extremely sensitive—palate. Any taste which is but faintly perceived by other people seems to be strongly marked to her. The number of articles of diet which she 'does not like' is alarming, but there always remains a good variety of things, mostly plain and nutritious articles, to meet the demands of her appetite."

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOURIST EXCURSIONS TO CALIFORNIA WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS.

Leaving Washington every Tuesday and Friday at 11.15 A.M., the Southern Railway operates Personally Conducted Tourist Excursions to San Francisco without change of cars, conductors or porters. The route is through Atlanta, Montgomery, New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio, New Mexico, Arizona, and Southern California. The cars are the very latest pattern of Pullman Tourist Sleepers, rosewood finish, have high back seats, upholstered in rattan, are sixteen section, supplied with linen, etc., same as standard sleepers, lighted by Pintsch gas, have wide vestibules, double sash roller curtains, lavatory and smoking room for gentlemen, and two retiring rooms for ladies.

Three and one-half days to Mexico and Arizona, four days to Los Angeles and Southern California, and five days to San Francisco. Such service for Trans-continental travel has never before been offered.

The tourist fare is less than via any other route, effecting a saving of $25.00 to $30.00 for the trip.

All information, maps, and rates furnished on application to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and Heals all Inflamed Surfaces, Cures Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and

Relieves Pain

MAKING THE BEST OF ONE ANOTHER.

We may, if we choose, make the worst of one another. Every one has his weak points; every one has his faults; we may make the worst of these; we may fix our attention constantly upon these. But we may also make the best of one another. We may forgive, even as we hope to be forgiven. We may put ourselves in the place of others, and ask what we should wish to be done to us, and thought of us, were we in their place. By loving whatever is lovable in those around us, love will flow back from them to us, and life will become a pleasure instead of a pain; and earth will become like heaven; and we shall become not unworthy followers of Him whose name is Love.—Dean Stanley.

After a Day's Hard Work

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It is a grateful tonic, relieving fatigue and depression so common in mid-summer.

A SONG FOR SPRING.

List! List! The buds confer;
This noonday they've had news of her;
The south bank has had views of her;
The thorn shall exact his dues of her;
The willows adream
By the freshet stream
Shall ask what boon they choose of her.

Up! Up! The mold's astir;
The would-be green has word of her;
Root and germ have heard of her,
Coming to break
Their sleep and wake
Their hearts with every bird of her.

See! See! How swift concur
Sun, wind, and rain at the name of her,
A-wondering what became of her;
The fields flower at the flame of her;
The glad air sings
With dancing wings
And the silvery-shrill acclaim of her.
—Charles G. D. Roberts, in May "Century."

WESTTOWN CENTENNIAL MEMORIAL FUND.

At a meeting of the solicitors for the Westtown Centennial Memorial Fund, held the fifth of this month, the reports from the various decades, etc., showed an aggregate of over $40,000 from about 400 subscribers.

This number of subscribers being but a very small portion of those who have received advantages from Westtown, it is desired that all may take advantage of this opportunity to assist our worthy alma mater according to their means, so that the full amount of $100,000 may be subscribed to ere the Centennial Celebration, which occurs on the tenth of next month.

Those who have not received any communication in the matter can forward subscription to Samuel L. Allen, Chairman of the Old Scholars' Association, 1107 Market Street, Philadelphia.

For the Dyspeptic, the Over-stout, the Constipated, who need no medicine so much as proper food and exercise:

for the Brain Worker, the Muscular Worker, for invalids, for well people, for young and old,

FRANKLIN MILLS FLOUR

A FINE FLOUR OF THE ENTIRE WHEAT is the most healthful flour made. It contains all the nutriment of the WHOLE wheat berry, not found in ordinary white flour, and none of the indigestible outer husk which makes cheap graham flour an unnatural food. It helps the digestive organs by feeding the nerves governing peristaltic action, is a brain food and muscle builder, makes rich blood, and is prepared in strict accordance with Nature's laws. In addition, it is the most economical flour made. FREE booklet tells you more about it.

If your grocer does not have it, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied. Refuse substitutes.

GENUINE MADE ONLY BY THE

FRANKLIN MILLS CO., Lockport, N. Y.

The sacred fires of India have not all been extinguished. The most ancient, which still exists, was consecrated twelve centuries ago in commemoration of the voyage made by the Parsees when they emigrated from Persia to India. The fire is fed five times every twenty-four hours with sandalwood and other fragrant materials, combined with very dry fuel. This fire, in the village of Oodwada, near Bulsar, is visited by Parsees in large numbers during the months allotted to the presiding genius of fire.

THE HEART-CRY OF JESUS,

By BYRON J. REES.

Table of Contents.—Dedication. Introduction. Preface. Contents. Christ's Prayer. Chapter I.—A Word in the Prayer. Chapter II.—Some Errors. Chapter III.—Those for Whom Christ Prayed. Chapter IV.—Christ's Prayer Answered. Chapter V.—Christian Unity. Chapter VI.—Fearlessness. Chapter VII.—Responsiveness to Christ. Chapter VIII.—Soul-Rest. Chapter IX.—Prayerfulness. Chapter X.—Success. Chapter XI.—Growth in Christliness of Life.

A. M. Hills, Author of "Holiness and Power," says: "His style is as clear and lucid as the crystal waters of the northern lakes; glowing, but chastened imagery; fervid, yet restrained and accurate language; now picturesque, then brilliant, then burning with the passion of his soul. Some passages are sweet as the matin of birds, other passages are as solemn as the moan of the seas, others as terrific with the scorching, withering, riving power of the thunderbolt. I read it with the avidity of a hungry man at a feast."

PRICE, CLOTH, REVISED EDITION, FIFTY CENTS.

Other Books by this Author: "Hulda, The Pentecostal Prophetess," 50 cents; "Christ-likeness," paper, 25 cents.

M. W. KNAPP, Publisher, Seventh and Walnut Sts., Cincinnati, O.

Harmless Wool Soap

Wool Soap is all soap—nothing but soap—no adulteration—no filling—no alkali—just clear, clean, white, safe toilet and bath soap.

If your dealer doesn't have it send us his name on a postal, and we will send you a cake free.

Swift and Company, Makers
Chicago

The wonderful part of the Maxim gun is that it has only one barrel, and yet it can discharge 600 shots in one minute.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS OF ANY KIND to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Anyone with anything to advertise will find this column a valuable medium for securing buyers. A five-line advertisement of thirty-five words costs only 25 cents, cash with order. Additional lines at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.

SUMMER BOARDERS.—Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate a few summer boarders at her home, near Muncy, Pa. The views are fine, air good, drives and walks pleasant. For terms address CAROLINE B. KIRK, Pennsdale.

FOR SALE on easy terms. A house and twelve acres of land adjoining Friends' Meeting-house, at East Bend, N. C. Apply to DAVID E. SAMPSON, East Bend, N. C.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable. LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Colorado St., Wash., D. C.

WANTED—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED—Principal or instructor in Friends' Academy, to teach language, literature, or science. Please write at once to A. D. STANTON, Washington, Kas.

WANTED—By a Friend. To rent a house of from six to eight rooms, in Philadelphia, near the buildings of the University of Pennsylvania. Address E. E. WILDMAN, Earlham, Richmond, Ind.

WANTED—A situation to teach in the department of history or economics in a Friend school or college. Thorough preparation, successful experience, good references. Address inquiries to X, care of AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch St., Phila.

WANTED—A few boarders in private family for Summer months. Pleasant airy rooms, good water, near College grounds, and pleasant walks. Apply to S. P. GARRIGUES, Millbrook Ave., Haverford Pa.

WANTED—By a Friend of experience a position as matron, companion, housekeeper or some other similar employment. Address Y., care THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

PENMANSHIP—Plain and ornamental of every kind, at reasonable prices. Marriage certificates and diplomas a specialty. Correspondence solicited. JOHN COLLINS, 702 North 43d Street, Philadelphia.

JOTTINGS.

In October of this year there will begin publication in this country a work of fiction in serial form by Count Tolstoy. By the author's wish all profits on the novel are to be used in assisting the immigration of the Doukhobors to Canada. The book will be known in Russia as the "Resurrection," and here as "The Awakening."

Professor Tucker, of Columbia University, has succeeded in obtaining, by means of the electric furnace, the immense heat of 6,700 degrees Fahrenheit. In this way he has been able to produce from carbon and cast-iron chips in a plumbago crucible diamonds larger than any that have yet been made by artificial means.

According to recent inquiries there are but two vacancies in the pulpits of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States which offer any inducements to applicants, and many candidates are applying for these.

The publication of the Browning Letters, which has been a noteworthy literary event of the year, is bitterly resented by C. J. Moulton Barrett, a brother of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. He considers them unjust to the memory of his father, and does not hesitate to characterize their publication as showing "a want of delicacy hardly conceivable."

Admiral Dewey left Manila en route for the United States on the afternoon of the 20th. He will probably arrive at New York about September 1st. A National Dewey House Committee has been organized in Washington, having as its end the raising of a fund to be applied in building a magnificent home for the naval hero. It is expected to cost not less than $100,000.

While following a course strange to her usual route the trans-Atlantic steamer "Paris" ran aground on the Manacles, off the Cornish coast, on the 20th. The stranded steamer is within sight of the ill-fated "Mohegan," which struck these same rocks not long since and was completely wrecked. The sea was unusually calm when the "Paris" grounded, and all the passengers were conveyed by boats to land without the least disturbance, and with a minimum of inconvenience.

A fire in Dawson City, on the 21st ult., completely destroyed the business portion of the town. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000, without a cent of insurance. To make matters worse, the supply of building material is entirely exhausted. An idea of prices that prevail is given in the fact that doors are selling for $35 each, door locks $8, and everything else in proportion.

The 111th annual session of the Presbyterian General Assembly began last week at Minneapolis.

The last portions of the Atbara bridge, the contract for which was awarded to a Philadelphia firm, have left Alexandria, and will arrive at Atbara in about three weeks, and the bridge will be finished before the arrival of the usual floods.

Kang Yu Wey, the Chinese reformer, who fled from China, is reported to be behind a scheme to form companies in every city of consequence in the United States, Canada and Australia, which will attempt to control Chinese capital in order to further all Oriental industries. About $60,000,000 worth of stock will be issued.

The largest mass of pure rock salt in the world lies under the province of Galicia, Hungary. It is known to be 550 miles long, 20 broad and 250 feet in thickness.

The Cymric, the largest freight steamer afloat, can carry about 20,000 tons of dead weight; that is, about what 625 freight cars can carry. The displacement of the Cymric is 23,000 tons; she carries thus about twenty-twenty-thirds of her weight.

Multiplied Value In CREAM SEPARATORS

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATORS are twice as well made and cost twice as much to make as imitating machines. They run with half the power, half the speed and half the wear, require but half the care and last twice as long as other separators. Under harder conditions their work is doubly efficient, and under all conditions they save twice as much as other separators over setting systems. Their sales are ten times those of all other machines combined. Their price is no greater but on the contrary less than cheaply made imitating machines in proportion to actual capacity, regardless of overwhelming superiority in every feature of separator efficiency.

Send for new 1899 catalogue.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

Western Offices:
RANDOLPH & CANAL STS.
CHICAGO.

GENERAL OFFICES:
74 CORTLANDT STREET,
NEW YORK.

Branch Offices:
1102 ARCH STREET,
PHILADELPHIA.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia
SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.
Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

SOME OF JOSH BILLINGS' DEFINITIONS.

Contentment is a kind of moral laziness; if there weren't anything but contentment in this world, man wouldn't be any more of a success than an angleworm is!

Silence is a still noise.

Bashfulness is ignorance afraid.

Sarcasm is an undertaker in tears.

Conscience is our private secretary.

Poverty is the step-mother of genius.

Economy is a first mortgage on wealth.

An aristocrat is a democrat with his pockets filled.

Fastidiousness is merely the ignorance of propriety.

Honest men are scarce, and are a going to be scarcer.

Pleasure is like a hornet—generally ends with a sting.

Hope is a hen that lays more eggs than she can hatch out.

Flattery is like Cologne water—to be smelled of, not swallowed.

Bliss is happiness boiling over and running down both sides of the pot.

The clam is a bulbous plant and resides on the under side of the water.

Conceited people are like eggs—too full of themselves to hold anything else.

The cross man goes through life like a sore-headed dog followed by flies.

Laughing is the sensation of feeling good all over and showing it in one spot.

A "gentleman about town" is one who pays cash for everything except his debts.

Rumor is like a swarm of bees—the more you fight them the less you get rid of them.

Genuine praise consists in naming a man's faults to his face and his good qualities to his back.

Anxiety is milking a kicking heifer with one hand and holding her by the tail with the other.

Curiosity is the germ of all enterprise—men dig for woodchucks more for curiosity than they do for woodchucks.

Friendship is like earthenware—if it is broken it can be mended; but love is like a mirror—once broken, that ends it.

Adversity is a poultice which reduces our vanity and strengthens our virtue—even a boy never feels half so good as when he has just been spanked and set away to cool.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address

HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR } Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN }
ATLANTIC }
BRADLEY }
BROOKLYN } New York.
JEWETT }
ULSTER }
UNION }
SOUTHERN } Chicago.
SHIPMAN }
COLLIER }
MISSOURI } St. Louis.
RED SEAL }
SOUTHERN }
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO
Philadelphia.
MORLEY
Cleveland.
SALEM
Salem, Mass.
CORNELL
Buffalo.
KENTUCKY
Louisville.

THE truth of the matter is, there are so many mixtures of Zinc, Barytes, Whiting, etc., sold under misleading brands of "White Lead" and "Pure White Lead," that in order to obtain Pure White Lead it is absolutely necessary to make sure that the brand is right.

Those named in the margin are genuine.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

MAKING FRIENDS.

My animal family consists of a dog and a cat, says a writer in "Our Animal Friends." The dog is a long-time pet; the kitten is a newcomer. I hesitated to take her because Dick detested cats, but this kitten was a diplomatist, and she and Dick became fast friends. Just after her arrival Dick went to sleep on a large rug in the sitting room, after curling himself round so that there was a little vacant circle between his body and his legs. The cat, who had been playing at my feet, grew tired and looked about for a sleeping place.

Suddenly she spied Dick, and her indecision vanished. With the greatest deliberation she curled herself up in the circle of his legs and went to sleep.

Presently Dick awoke. He raised his head lazily, and was about to drop it again when he caught sight of the cat. I shall never forget the comical look that came into his eyes. No human countenance ever expressed utter astonishment more plainly than Dick's. For several moments he gazed at the cat as if doubting the evidence of his senses, too much bewildered to bark. Then he slowly reached over and gently nipped the cat's ear.

Cutter gave her head a shake, as if to dislodge a fly, and slept on. Then Dick, who seemed to be experimenting, gave the ear a harder nip. This time Cutter started out of her sleep, raised her head, comprehended the cause of her trouble, promptly clawed the dog's nose with one little paw, and straightway resumed her sleep.

For the next five minutes Dick's face was a study as he lay looking at her. Then, evidently giving up the puzzle, he lay down again and slept too.

One of the most taxing of the bee industries is the making of wax. Bees gorge themselves with honey, then hang themselves up in festoons or curtains to the hive, and remain quiescent for hours; after a time wax scales appear, forced out from the wax pockets. The bees remove these scales with their natural forceps, carry the wax to the mouth, chew it for a time, thus changing it chemically. Thus it may be seen that wax-making is a great expense to the colony, for it costs not only the time of the workers, but it is estimated that twenty-one pounds of honey is required to make one pound of wax.

Stop-Overs at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington on Pennsylvania Railroad Through Tickets.

In addition to its excellent train service, the Pennsylvania Railroad offers the travelers between New York and Chicago and New York and St. Louis the privilege of a stop-over of ten days at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington. This stop-over is granted on all through first-class tickets reading via those cities. Persons desiring to stop-over must deposit their ticket with the station agent immediately on arrival.

To those who have business to transact in these cities, or to persons who have never visited the National Capital, this privilege is a valuable one, and should appeal to all through travelers between New York and the West, and Chicago or St. Louis and the East. The stations of the Pennsylvania Railroad are centrally located in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, and access to any section of the cities is easy, by either the regular street car lines, or by the Pennsylvania railroad cabs to be found at the Philadelphia and Washington stations.

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.
Near Omaha.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - - $25.00 each.
Acreage near College, 35.00 an acre.
Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.

Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

ROYAL

Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S

"Cheshire Cheese"

Rich and Flavoury English Dairy Cheese.
Finest Made.

25c. lb.

Rosedale Cheese, 18c. lb.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son,

WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.
Window Shades Made to Order.
902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,
118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

Don't Walk

On the side of your foot,— get rid of the corn. It's easy
if you have A-CORN Salve, 15c. box. Your druggist or by mail.

GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
305 Cherry Street, Phila.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S

Breakfast Cocoa

Costs less than One Cent a cup.

Be sure that the Package bears our Trade-Mark.

A Perfect Food. Pure, Nutritious, Delicious.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Limited.

Established 1780.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

TRADE-MARK.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

IDLE MONEY

or funds that you are holding until you can find a proper investment, may be made to yield an income if deposited with

The Union Trust

715, 717, 719
Chestnut Street.

Company

which pays 3 per cent per annum on time or savings deposits, and 2 per cent on call accounts subject to check.

Capital, full paid,	- -	$500,000.00
Surplus,	- -	250,000.00
Undivided Profits,	- -	100,000.00

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

The Bible Student

and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance,
50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME!

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION,

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.

USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

SIXTH MONTH 1st, 1899

No. 22

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
EDITORIALS.—“An Effort at Civilization.”
--The Hague Conference	507, 508
General Church Notes	508
The Shadow of the Rock	509
Theo. L. Cuyler, D.D.
Paths Prepared	By Alix 510
Two Thousand Miles West and One Mile Up	M. Z. Kirk 511
Every One Unto His Work (Neh. 4: 15)	512
Lawrie Tatum.
Minute of Dublin Yearly Meeting for 1899	513
INTERNATIONAL LESSON	514
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	515
Detroit International C. E. Convention	516
Notes from the Field	517
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	518
DEATHS	520
NEWS AND EVENTS	520
JOTTINGS, ...	526

“Holy Living” is another term for living in the will of God: those who are in the will of God are unholy. The definition is sharp, as Christ’s definitions usually are, and there does not seem to be a middle or third term. It is this will of God by which we are sanctified. Sanctity, or its equivalent beatitude, is that condition in which the lives of believers have become, in their own proper measure and degree, the incarnation of the will of God on earth.

The Beatitudes are a series of instantaneous photographs of the Holy Life, in which the initiated soul is seen under so many successful aspects, as mourning and as merciful, as pure in heart and aspiring with divinely-quickened desire; but all these detached views are only so many glimpses of what is comprehensively defined under the head of Blessedness; and just as in Edison’s newly-invented kinetograph a succession of rapidly-taken photographs may be recombined into the story of the motion of an object, so the the phases of beatitude are to be combined together as beatitude, and then, seen in one combination, are to be the object of the spiritual covetousness of the soul that is ascending to the Divine likeness.

—J. RENDEL HARRIS.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS

Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*

THE GIRARD

LIFE INSURANCE
ANNUITY AND

TRUST CO.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,

Allows Interest on Deposits,

Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,

Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.

WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.

EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.

CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.

NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.

A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.

WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, Jr.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.

ASA S. WING, Vice-President.

JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.

SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.

DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.

J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Ass't. Trust Officer.

C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Outing Skirts and Costumes

A great variety of Cycling and Golf
Garments, at prices sure to attract:Circular Mohair Skirts, good quality, at $4.50-Divided Mohair Skirts, $5.00 and $7.50.Best Skirts of fine golfing materials, priced at $8.50, $9.00, $10.00, and $12.00. Other grades at lower prices.Costumes of excellent blue and black Serge—jackets silk-lined and skirts lined with percaline; real value
$10.00—here at $5.00.Costumes of Serge, plain and mixed Cheviot, and Golfing Cloth, an assortment of styles—all priced at $10.00.

Cards and Wedding Stationery

Fifty Visiting Cards—with choice of twenty styles of lettering, and including a nicely engraved plate;
former price 65 cents—now 45 cents.Wedding Invitations—correct in every detail—$6.75 for first hundred,
$2.50 for each additional hundred.Wedding Announcements—$5.00 a hundred, $2.50 for each additional hundred.Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,

PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New
England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(Any subscriber of THE AMERI-
CAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper
sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to
which he would like the paper sent.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

The American Friend

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SIXTH MONTH 1, 1899.

No. 22.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

"AN EFFORT AT CIVILIZATION."

ROBERT RAIKES, who originated, in Gloucester, England, one hundred and nineteen years ago, the modern Sunday School movement, called his work, "an effort at civilization," and we desire to consider the Bible School in its bearing upon civilization. We are too apt to study civilization on its material side. We pass in review the triumphs of invention and discovery; we count up with pride our material jewels, which "sparkle on the stretched forefinger of time"; we say, "See the great Babylons we have built!" as though telegraphs, telephones, electric motors, ocean steamships and incipient flying-machines constituted civilization!

The things which really make for civilization are far deeper and subtler. Its constructive forces are those influences which are formative in life, character, and thought, and the tendencies which mould the mind and spirit of the young determine the character and quality of a country's civilization.

Now, an institution which should in any measure succeed in the great work of spiritual culture with the young, which should make them familiar with the facts of the life and mission of the most supreme Personality who has ever dwelt among men, which should set before them those divine ideals of righteousness and love and sacrifice, would surely be a mighty factor in civilization, and should be reckoned with as such. This is the avowed purpose of the Sunday School, and it is impossible to estimate what it means to our national character that more than 12,000,000 of our people, mostly young, too, are taught, week by week, the immortal truths of this Book, which has proved such a source of moral and spiritual power. What the secular school aims to do for "the three R's," the Sunday School aims to do for the "fourth R"—Religion; and in so far as it succeeds, it is an effort at civilization.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

It is a well-known historical fact that whenever the Bible has been put into the hands of the people—or, rather, into their minds and hearts—a revival of religion has followed, and a stronger moral fibre has been produced. The periods of close Bible study have been periods of reaction from crystallized and formal religion, and times when men have caught new and clearer glimpses of the living God and have set their lives by the new and higher standards. It proves in every generation, which really goes to it, to be an Alpine Book, and the streams that flow from it are for the healing of the nations, and make for purer, cleaner lives and characters.

It is not allowable, we know, to seek for explanations of different types of national character in any one single fact alone, but one most significant ground of difference between the civilization of our country and that of Spain is surely to be found in the fact that for generations we have gone to the Bible for our spiritual and moral culture, while in Spain it has been a sealed book. We have 12,000,000 of our people in Sunday Schools, moulding their lives in the presence of the divine ideals of life, while in Spain there are only 88 Sunday Schools, with an attendance of 3,400 scholars and teachers. Is it not fair, even when we allow for all other elements of difference in national character, to conclude that our Sunday Schools are in fact a successful "effort at civilization?"

It is a historical fact, furthermore, that almost every great, constructive statesman, either in England or America during this century, has been trained in the Bible in his formative years and has had his language affected by its unequaled imagery and his thought influenced by its profound conceptions of life and the causes of individual and national greatness. It is, again, a well-known fact in literature that the poets and prose writers who have won a place in the first rank in our century, have almost, without exception, nursed their budding minds upon the ever fresh and vital pages of the Bible. In fact, Ruskin, Tennyson and Browning cannot be understood without a familiar acquaintance with the Bible. Its pictures, its style, its imagery and its lofty teachings are woven in the structure of these master writers. It is no mean effort at civilization to make the children of a nation familiar with the Book which has so deeply moulded our best statesmen and our best poets. But, best of all and greatest of all, the Sunday School, with its teaching force of good and loving men and women, is surely, though silently, instilling into these millions of growing lives a love of higher things, a deep sense of individual responsibility, and a power which resists temptation and puts down sin, and in so far as it does this it is a noble effort at civilization.

THE HAGUE CONFERENCE.

THE outlook at this time of writing is very favorable for some decided action in favor of arbitration as a result of the Czar's conference, though it must be expected that many obstacles and much opposition will have to be encountered before such a method can be consummated.

Andrew D. White, the head of the American delegation, has spoken very hopefully and confidently. "I am very hopeful," he says, "that it will be possible to reach practical conclusions. The skepticism of the first few days must yield to serious hopes without, at the same time, indulging in exaggerated expectations.

"The words of Emperor William have contributed to improve the situation. I think we may arrive at some result on the subject of mediation and arbitration. Although it is undoubtedly impossible to make such a connection obligatory, it can be rendered at least optional, and I believe that, after the Conference, the Powers will recognize that they have at their disposal a means of regulating their differences otherwise than at war. This will be an immense advance."

Sir Julian Pauncefoot also entertains the hope that the Conference will favor the establishment of a permanent tribunal for optional recourse for arbitration and mediation. He says:

"What is wanted is to secure prompt and certain access to international justice. This is the right way to discourage the use of force and to further the cause of arbitration. The mere fact of the existence of such a tribunal would exert a potent influence in behalf of international justice."

Other Ambassadors who are delegates to the Conference have expressed similar views. They say they are most hopeful that the deliberations of the Committee will result in the adoption of practical recommendations tending toward peace and rendering war more humane. All seem to be dominated by a sense of immense responsibility to achieve something, especially in the direction of arbitration.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

What Governor Rollins, of New Hampshire, said recently regarding the decadence of religion in the country, is given a striking commentary by the significant language of Bishop Whittle, of Virginia. These were his words at a late meeting of the Episcopal Council at Richmond:

"Never within my knowledge have we had so few candidates for holy orders, or so few young men preparing for the ministry of our church. This is a significant and alarming fact. It certainly seems to indicate a decline of spirituality and an increase of worldliness among our church people. This state of things must have a cause, and ought to produce great searchings of heart on the part of my brother ministers to discover what the cause is. For years past very few—scarcely any—of our candidates have come from the cities and towns. We have had to depend almost entirely on our country parishes, but if these are now to fail us, it is sad and alarming, indeed, to contemplate what the end must be. I commend this most important subject to the serious consideration of all our people, and especially of my brethren of the clergy."

General Booth, of the Salvation Army, has on the continent of Europe twenty-five hundred officers at work carrying on outdoor missions and evangelical labors in every town of considerable size. He complains that the churches have neglected the poor and the laboring classes; that the hours for worship usually make it impracticable or impossible for the vast majority of the people to attend religious services, and to these he is aiming to bring the gospel. He says: "The people are left to the theatre, to the music hall and the café, where they find themselves generally in the company of those who worshiped at church in the morning. The more I reflect upon it the more the general indisposition to missionize Europe astounds me."

The religious world has always looked for virile thought and powerful preaching from Plymouth Church, Brooklyn. Not infrequently, too, has it been the source of theological opinions which have stirred its critics to great activity and started in motion religious discussions that have occupied press and pulpit for months. The present incumbent, Newell Dwight Hillis, lately of Chicago, seems inclined very wisely to let alone disputed doctrinal subjects. He has, however, brought upon himself hostile attacks on account of a series of sermons devoted to literary themes, such as Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," and the writings of George Eliot, Ruskin and others. The prominence of the church of which Dr. Hillis is pastor makes his position conspicuous and directs attention to the character of his sermons, which, if preached elsewhere, would probably pass unnoticed. Dr. Hillis is a man of striking personality and of great power as a speaker. It is to be hoped that his usefulness may not be marred by the selections which he may make of topics for his sermons.

The Catholic Church is highly displeased at the exclusion from the Peace Conference of the Pope's representative. The "Sacred Heart Review," a Catholic journal, quotes William T. Stead's declarations that the Pope wields a far greater influence than any other temporal ruler in christendom, and adds: "The absurdity, in the face of those admissions, of excluding the sovereign pontiff from a congress called to influence christendom's thoughts will be apparent to everybody, while his exclusion will certainly lessen very materially whatever chances the Congress has of proving a success."

"IN HIS STEPS."

An English paper says: "The most remarkable feature of the present 'boom' is, of course, the amazing success of Mr. Sheldon's books. About twenty publishers are publishing six-penny novels, and quite fifteen of them are turning out 'What Would Jesus Do?' and the half-dozen companion books. There has been nothing in the present century like this sermon story. It has sold in literal millions, 3,000,000 having been sold in this country alone. The success is the more remarkable because two of Mr. Sheldon's stories had been published in serial form in England in 1895 and 1897, and had attracted no special notice. Yet in less than six months the circulation of 'In His Steps' has far surpassed the total circulation of all Mrs. Henry Wood's novels in forty years! 'East Lynne,' which has had a bigger circulation than any other English copyright novel, has only reached 480,000 copies, and it is said that the total number sold of William Black's novels is not more than 300,000. 'Three Men in a Boat,' a remarkably popular book, reached 160,000; 'Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush,' 90,000; 'A Prisoner of Zenda,' 70,000; and the 'Christian,' the most popular book of 1897, sold to the extent of 123,000 copies in that year. But how paltry these figures are beside Mr. Sheldon's millions! Three of his books, published at a penny, ran through an aggregate edition of 900,000 in three weeks, and there are altogether not less than fifty editions on the market. Twenty English firms are competing in publishing these volumes of sermons preached in Kansas."

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE SHADOW OF THE ROCK.

THEODORE L. CUYLER, D.D.

The land of the Bible is a constant confirmation of the language of the Bible. For example, those of us who have crossed the valley of the Jordan, or have climbed from that valley up to Jerusalem on a hot day, have found the journey a very weary one. There is no shelter of trees; from the bare earth or stones the rays of the sun flash with intolerable brightness and pierce our eyes like bayonets.

But on the torrid road we come upon what Professor H. B. Hackett says that he came upon with such delight, and that is a company of travelers reclining on the shady side of a huge overhanging rock. At once we recall, as he did, that passage in Isaiah where the ancient prophet describes our Lord as "the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." This is a fruitful text for a summer-day meditation.

Jesus Christ is a shelter for all His redeemed ones from the devouring heat of the divine displeasure against sin. That holy hatred of sin would be a "consuming fire." Thanks and praises evermore for Christ's atoning sacrifice for our guilt, so that God may be just and yet the justifier of everyone who accepts and trusts that atoning Saviour. There is no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus. "Blessed be our Rock!"

A part of every true Christian's religion is walking; another part is working; another part is watching; and sometimes it is weeping. In the midst of such experiences our souls find a sweet repose in Jesus.

After the hot walk of a week with its toils and its temptations we reach the blessed Sabbath, and then we sit down awhile among the green pastures and beside the still waters. That is our feeding time; and if we lose that, we have no strength for either hard work or sharp fighting. That is our resting time.

"Tell me, oh, Thou whom my soul loveth, where Thou feedest, and where Thou makest Thy flock to rest at noon?" The response of our loving Shepherd is—"Come unto Me"; I will feed thee with the finest of the wheat; I will give thee to drink of the water of life; if thou art weak or soul-sick or weary, "My left hand shall be under thy head, and My right shall embrace thee."

The Christian who allows himself to venture into the week without his Bible-food and some quiet communion with his Master on the Sabbath as surely robs himself as the toiler who goes to his day's work without a wink of sleep, or the soldier who goes into battle without eating his rations. In these times of heated, over-driving and money-seeking, one of the greatest dangers to Christians is that they fail to make the very most of an indispensable Sabbath. No wonder they give out when they neglect the "shadow of the great Rock" in this wearing, wearying world.

A third thought suggested by this delightful passage is that the shadow of Jesus brings great coolness to our feverish spirits. Our tempers often get ruffled. Some provocation has set us on fire; we need cooling down, and a look at that patient, forgiving Saviour who when reviled never reviled back again may shame us out of wicked irritation.

There are other things that heat our souls—the fever of selfishness, the flame of covetousness, the inflamings of fleshly lusts, or the rash impetuosity of hasty words, and decisions and deeds. Oh, for the calming and cooling shadow of Christ at such seasons! How many mortifications, how many intemperate acts, how many reckless blunders, how many falls into sin, and how many woundings of our Christian character we would be delivered from.

It was a wonderful comfort to me when, after a toilsome clamber from Jericho under a broiling sun, my guide and myself found shelter under a great wayside rock. The change was so delightful; the protection was so complete; for we had been in absolute danger of sunstroke! Similar to this is the experience of the soul that finds shelter under the infinite love of a pardoning and protecting and purifying Jesus. Oh, the breadth and depth and height of the love of Christ that passeth knowledge! The broken law of God shot its condemning fires upon our heads; now we are delivered from the curse of these violations. Every step in sin brought the stings of conscience; here we are at peace with ourselves and at peace with God. There was no joy in traveling over the hard flinty path of disobedience; but

I came to Jesus as I was
Weary, and worn, and sad;
I found this rock a resting-place,
And He has made me glad.

“How do you manage to live here?” inquired a minister of an old poverty-stricken pilgrim as he sat in his forlorn and leaking cottage that was not much better than a hut. The aged man had his Bible on his knee, and replied, “Sir, I am sitting under the shadow of Jesus with great delight, and His fruit is sweet to my taste.” This would have been a weary land to him; the journey was hard to a footsore pilgrim; but he could find repose under the cool shadow of the Rock, and wait until his name was called to go up to his Heavenly home.

Divine Mercy provided this shelter for us. Man builds his showy mansions—often but a vestibule to the grave. Fashion rears its noisy house of mirth. But He who built snow-crowned Hermon, and placed the great cool overhanging rock on the hot highway from Jericho, has provided the soul’s sweet, safe resting-place in Jesus. As man cannot make, so man cannot move this Rock of Ages. Caravans of pilgrims have halted beside it and found shelter from the torrid heats. The Psalmist when he fled from his foes found refuge there and sang, “The Lord liveth, and blessed be my rock!” Devout Hannah in her prayer exclaims, “Neither is there any rock like our God.” Homeless Peter felt as if he had thrown off his pilgrim pack from his shoulders when he sat down under the noontide shelter, and cries out, I have cast off all care; for He careth for me. John the beloved—happy in his Patmos exile—is overheard talking to himself, and we listen to his cheery words, “Now, little children, abide in Him; he that keepeth His Commandments dwelleth in Him and He in us. Hereby we know that He abideth in us by the Spirit which He hath given us.”

Good friends, let us abide in the shadow of the great Rock and cultivate the grace of quietness. A Christian life is not all work, or all seed-sowing, or all conflict; much less is it all bustle and worry. We must find time to think—to pray—and to commune with our Master. A soldier cannot be always on the march; he must renew his strength in rest. Life would wear us out if we did not sometimes find that “our strength is to sit still.” Some of you are tired out and want to bathe your aching heads in the cool stillness beneath the everlasting Rock. Some of you are footsore and need a bit of rest. Many of you with weary limbs and weeping eyes have struggled along up a hard and flinty pathway, and are ready to cry out, “Oh, blessed, loving Master, just let me come in under the Rock!”

Borough of Brooklyn, N. Y.

PATHS PREPARED.

BY ALIX.

Some time ago, whilst traveling in the summer time, I paid a short visit to Lake Mohonk, and spent some delightful days in exploring the various paths that led to different points of interest.

For miles, around the hotel, these paths had been carefully laid out, and intelligent thought had prepared constantly new surprises for the explorer. Some times they would seem to be ended by a giant boulder, but careful examination would show the little pointed arrow that directed the way, and always meant “Onward,” and we would find hidden in the brushwood a ladder to be climbed, or a ladder that descended through a hole in the ground to another pathway. Or a way was found leading intricately between the great rocks, with just room to pass, and no more, and we learned to realize that wherever the arrow pointed, the path had been prepared, and we were being led to the point of view for which it had been created.

That experience has always seemed to me a very beautiful parable, for we have been taught not only that our dear Lord “prepares the path for our feet,” but that he has been over the same way Himself, and as we walk in the pathway of service, forgiveness, loving kindness, sacrifice or obedience, we know that, as He has walked them before us, He will walk them with us. That His promise is “I, the Lord thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee fear not, I will help thee,” and that as we place our willing hands in His and take Him for our leader, He will bring us to just the points of view that, in His love, He has designed for us, and that often as we gaze down from the great mountain of His grace, the earthly things, that seemed to us of such magnitude, will sink into utter insignificance, and we will marvel at ourselves that they have had such power in the past to move us.

Moreover, when we understand that He has prepared our way, obstacles are only opportunities for overcoming, and hindrances inspire us with fresh courage as we realize that they are not insurmountable. Indeed, it gives a certain zest to life to know that, through all its difficulties, our path has been planned by One who is all wise as well as all loving, and that as we press forward with patient faith, it will bring us, at last, to "our desired haven."

Let all who are sad take heart again,
We are not alone in our hours of pain.
Our Father stoops from his throne above
To soothe and comfort us with his love.
He leaves us not when the storm is high,
And we have safety, for he is nigh.
Can it be trouble which he doth share?
O rest in peace, for the Lord does care!

The truest words we ever speak
Are words of cheer;
Life has its shade, its valleys deep,
But 'round our feet the shadows creep
To prove the sunlight near.

TWO THOUSAND MILES WEST AND ONE MILE UP.

BY M. Z. KIRK.

After leaving Atlantic City the writer spent a few days at Philadelphia Yearly Meeting before starting on a trip of two thousand miles west. After spending about twenty-four hours on the train, I found myself in the office of the Publishing Association of Friends in Chicago. I regret very much to see P. W. Raida-baugh looking so poorly and to learn that his doctor has advised him to cancel all of his engagements for the summer, as his business was already as much as he ought to attend to. He has usually traveled extensively throughout the Yearly Meetings during the summer, and he will be greatly missed at many of the Sabbath School conferences. It is to be hoped that his health will soon be much improved. He is able to be at his office every day, but he does not look well. He informs me that the possibilities are that the Publishing Association of Friends will remove to Cleveland, Ohio, this fall, where a large part of the work of the office could be done by the students of the Training School, and where they could more easily do all the printing for the same. They also have the promise of the printing for some excellent business firms, which will insure the office a sufficient amount of work.

During a short stay at Marshalltown, Iowa, it was my privilege to attend their First-day meeting. Edgar Williams, formerly of Indiana Yearly Meeting, is the pastor there and he is doing most excellent work. The meeting is in the best condition I have ever seen it, and they are certainly doing good work. The Sabbath School is large and interesting, with William Painter as superintendent. The pastor recently published a very nice little catechism for children.

It was my pleasure to shake hands and have a short talk with Mary White, who was on her way from Jamaica to Whittier, California.

I was indeed gratified to see the fine class of students and the large enrollment at Penn College this year, there being a total enrollment of 401, and 357 exclusive of the summer school. This is by far the largest in the history of the institution. As I see the strong Christian young men and women from Penn and the other colleges out in the work of the church all through this country, I am made to believe that these hard-working, self-sacrificing professors are doing as much or more work for the church than any of our other members. They are making sacrifices that but few know of or appreciate.

When this work is entirely for the masses of the church, it is a pity that so large an amount of the responsibility and sacrifice should be carried by so few. Since visiting this institution the last time, I have heard one of Penn's graduates who will soon be in the Mexican field preach with great freedom and power. As I have seen the great work he is doing for the church, and realize that he is largely indebted for his preparation to Penn College, and as I have looked out over the field and seen the numerous other workers who have come from this institution, it has made my heart ache to think that such institutions have to struggle for a financial existence. It is to be hoped that a brighter day is dawning for Penn.

At Bangor the meeting is in an excellent spiritual condition, and the young people are doing the best work they have done for years, with the help of A. J. Hanson as pastor. The latter found his right place when he came to this meeting, and he has the most hearty support of all the members.

At last I reached Denver in time to open the Union Book and Bible House on the first day of this month. Here a full line of subscription books, Bibles, albums, and Quaker books will be kept. Also from this office I shall visit the various Yearly Meetings in the interest of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. The following Friends have visited this office, and it will be of interest to know what they are doing: L. E. Kenworthy, formerly of Oskaloosa, Iowa, is a prominent lawyer here, and the superintendent of the Friends' Sabbath School; Mahlon Stubbs, formerly an Indian agent, who lived in Emporia, Kan., for a number of years, is one of the oldest members of the meeting; George Dickinson was for years a member of Springdale, Kan., Meeting, and he sits head of this meeting; Isaac Sutton, formerly of Union Springs and Haverford College Grammar School, has been the Denver manager of the Fiske Teachers' Agency for three years; Milton Clouser, a professor in the High School, and wife, of Haverford College, are active workers in the Christian Endeavor and Sabbath School. It will be of interest to the many friends of Roxanna Davis, of Lawrence, Kan., to know that she is enjoying good health and is as successful a teacher in Denver as she was in Lawrence. George Weeks, the pastor here, and wife, will attend the Missionary Conference at Marion, Ind., and do some work in Iowa and Missouri during the summer, and then resume their mission work at Matamoras, Mexico, in the autumn. We are glad to note that his wife has regained her health, and they feel that it will be perfectly safe for them to return to their mission work.

DENVER MEETING.

Denver Friends are now very pleasantly located in their neat little meeting house at the north end of the Sixteenth Street car line. After holding meetings for years in a tent and store rooms, they very much appreciate their new quarters. It is a very pleasant little brick house, and finished and furnished in hard pine. It was erected at a total cost of $2,200. They took a loan of $800 on it, but this is cheaper than paying rent on even the store room. It seemed almost like getting back to Iowa or Indiana to meet the following Friends: Dr. Peter Cardwell, Eli Spray, Jehu Willetts and his two sons and their families, Mr. Nordike and wife, Mr. Seal and wife, Miss Rush, Lola Albertson, Z. E. Talbert and India Moore.

The Sabbath School is very interesting and has an enrollment of 85. The Sabbath morning meeting is usually attended by about 100. The services of George D. Weeks and wife have been very much appreciated. The meeting has built up and Friends are very sorry to see them leave.

It is hoped that Prof. Bevan Binford, of Wichita, will labor here a part of the time at least this summer, but no arrangements have been made yet for a minister to come here and stay. We hope just the right man may be called here, for there are a great many very excellent Friends in Denver, and if properly organized they can be a power for good in this city.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

EVERY ONE UNTO HIS WORK (NEH. 4: 15).

BY LAWRIE TATUM.

Nehemiah while a prisoner in Babylon, heard of the desolate condition of Jerusalem, "the city of his father's sepulchre." After he "prayed to the God of heaven . . . the good hand of his God was upon him"; the king granted his request to go and repair "the wall of Jerusalem which was broken down, and the gates thereof which were consumed by fire."

After viewing the wall and gates, he divided his workmen into more than forty companies to work on different portions of the wall and gates, besides the men at work in the king's forest to get timber for the work. There were bitter enemies near who tried to frustrate the work, and it required half the men to watch the enemy and protect the workmen. All were under the watchful care and superintendency of Nehemiah; "Every one unto his work."

How emblematical of what is now going on in the spiritual Jerusalem, or church of the Lord Jesus Christ. We cannot count the number of distinct companies who are at work in building and repairing the wall and gates of Jerusalem, or the fold of the Lord Jesus. Every person after becoming a child of God is assigned a place in the vineyard. "Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit." One may have the gift of farming, another of merchandizing, for railroading, banking, teaching or preaching; but whatever the gift may be, the mind should be centered on the Giver and His glory. "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." "Every one unto his work."

If therefore, all of the children of God are called and qualified for some specific work, I see no ground for man to designate one kind of work, performed for the good of mankind, to be done at his own expense, and by no means accept compensation therefor, while all other laborers called and qualified by the same Spirit should receive payment for their work.

For an illustration we will mention two persons: John M. Watson and his daughter Eva, whose work is extensively known to Friends in the United States. They are located at Skiatook, or rather Hillside, Indian Territory, to which the name has recently been changed. He is a minister of the gospel, and for many years has been engaged as a missionary. His whole time is needed in preparing to preach, in talking to the Indians, and in showing them how to plant and cultivate. Eva Watson has evidently been called and qualified by "the same Spirit"—to teach and control a boarding and day school of sixty or eighty scholars. Although she teaches but six days in the week, and but six hours in each of those days, besides her Bible School and Christian Endeavor work, yet her whole time is needed in preparing her lessons, and the various other duties pertaining to the school.

Now it does not become me to say that because he is called by the Head of the Church to preach the gospel, and serve in the capacity of missionary, he should do what he can at it free of charge, and "make brooms," or do some other business to meet expenses. If it is right for him to be so treated, why would it not be right to require Eva Watson, who has evidently been called and qualified by the same Head of the Church to teach and manage an Indian school, to do as much as she can, free of compensation, and "make brooms," or do something else for her support?

As they have both been called and qualified by the all-wise Head of the Church to fill their respective places, and both have been used of the Lord in the conversion of many, and in building up and strengthening the church there, and advancing the cause of Christ, and both receive compensation for their labor of love, shall we stigmatize one as a "hireling" and not the other? Shall we try to bring the Scriptures to our preconceived notions, or shall we bring our preconceived notions in line with the Scriptures? "A hireling" is one who "cares not for the sheep." Receiving a salary, whether preacher or teacher, does not make a hireling in a Scriptural sense. Those who assist them financially are sharers with them in carrying on that work, owned and blessed of the Lord. They are not doing it merely for the money that they get out of it, but in obedience to the promptings of the Holy Spirit, and the good of immortal souls.

In the numerous Friends' schools east and west, there are doubtless many teachers who are specially called and qualified by the Head of the Church for that particular service. They have also been selected and hired by a committee of a meeting to perform that church work. Why make a marked distinction between that and employing a minister to perform a little different kind of church work?

Probably there are many teachers whose circumstances are similar to some, or all of the professors of Penn College, who have been offered better salaries to teach in institutions outside of the Friends' church, but believing that their place is at Penn, they adhere with the flock at small compensation.

If all Friends would entertain the thought, Lord what wilt thou have me to do, and obey the promptings of the Holy Spirit, it is quite likely that some whom the Lord has qualified and given the opportunity to accumulate property would endow Penn College, and thus greatly bless the Society of Friends, and have the consciousness of doing what is right. "Every one unto his work."

Springdale, Iowa.

MINUTE OF DUBLIN YEARLY MEETING FOR 1899.

Very comforting has been the sense of the presence of the Holy Spirit with us during the various sittings of this Yearly Meeting, and our deliberations have been marked by an earnestness and depth of feeling which has encouraged us and increased our desire that absent members should be sharers in the blessing and privileges we have been enjoying. Among very many subjects presented for our consideration that of the public Ministry of the Word as a most important factor in promoting the health of the body, was largely dwelt upon. That this should be at all times under the guidance and in the power of the Holy Spirit was emphasized, so that, whether in the speaking of a few words, or in the more extended discourse, the hearers should be instructed and the message be carried home to the heart, bearing fruit in the conversion of sinners, and the edifying of the church. Those who are called to this humbling, yet joyful and blessed service, were reminded that whatever their attainments may be, whether comparable to those who have received but one talent or those who have received more, they should give of their best to the Lord, bearing also in mind that unless their walk before men gives evidence of their endeavor to live in the Spirit and under the government of Christ, their service for Him will be fruitless. Foundation truths were not forgotten, and were expressed in the words of our Lord, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God," "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you." All were exhorted to allow the Holy Spirit to search their hearts, that they might consider whether they had indeed received Jesus the Lord, and had so truly become sons of God. Our position as a distinct portion of the Church of Christ was dwelt upon, and we were reminded that the holding of religious views, in so many respects distinguishing us among other professing churches, should not break that fellowship which exists between all who love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. The promotion and enjoyment of this fellowship should not free us from the responsibility and privilege of loyally upholding the Banner of Truth which, as a people, we have been called to display.

Warm and earnest have been the expressions of loving interest in, and sympathy with, our younger members, and others, who are engaged in varied Ministries for their Lord, and we have been led to desire that all may deepen in the love of Christ, and be so united in that love that the evidences of sympathy between old and young may always be felt and seen.

The provision made by the great Head of His Church, in the bestowal of varied gifts upon men, has been felt to be cause for continued thanksgiving unto Him, and the priesthood of believers under Him, our great High Priest, has been set forth as that to which all His children are called. Whilst we cannot record an increase in our membership during the past year, consideration of this fact, and of the passing away of aged and devoted servants of the Lord, has stirred in us an earnest desire that our younger members may so yield themselves unto the Lord, that they may, in His strength, close up the thinned ranks, and witness faithfully for Him. Many among us, we believe, long for a revival of spiritual life in our midst, and we were again reminded of the privilege and power of prayer, which, if availed of both by individuals and unitedly in accordance with His will, would assuredly obtain an answer from Him whose promises are never broken.

Loving sympathy has been expressed for those who, through increasing infirmity, and for others who, owing to bereavement, have been unable to attend this Yearly Meeting. We desire that their hearts may be comforted with the abiding presence of the Good Shepherd of His sheep.

We would encourage our Quarterly and other Meetings as they may see their way to hold Conferences, at which the representatives and others may convey the concern of this Meeting, and consider how our members can further forward the work of the Lord committed to our trust.

CAT DIES FOR HER MASTER.

During the hurricane that prevailed at Seattle, Wash., a short time ago, the steamer Wildwood, lying at her dock, went to the bottom of the bay, says "The Seattle Post-Intelligencer." At the time of sinking one man was aboard and asleep. The boat's cat, when the water nearly reached the sleeper's bunk, scratched the man in the face, and was knocked into the water in the cabin for her pains. The cat again got on the bunk and again scratched the man in the face, and at the same time howled so vigorously as to thoroughly awaken the sleeper, who started to get up to put the cat on the deck, when he discovered that the boat was sinking. He made a rush for the deck just as the vessel was going to the bottom, and succeeded in reaching the mast, on which he climbed and saved himself from drowning. His lusty yells attracted Captain Fife, of the steamer Angeles, and he was rescued, but the brave cat perished.

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson XI.

Sixth month 11, 1899

CHRIST RISEN.

John 20: 11-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Now is Christ risen from the dead. 1 Cor. 15: 20.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 5.—The sealed tomb. Matt. 27: 57-66.
 Third-day, Sixth mo. 6.—Too good to be true. Luke 24: 1-11.
 Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 7.—The empty tomb. John 20: 1-10.
 Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 8.—Christ risen. John 20: 11-20.
 Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 9.—Doubt dispelled. John 20: 24-31.
 Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 10.—Many Witnesses. Acts 2: 22-32.
 First-day, Sixth mo. 11.—Proofs of the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15: 1-11

As in some other cases, so here, John is brief in his narrative; but, as has been seen before in other places, he gives additional information of great interest. The parallel accounts in Matthew, Mark and Luke should be read, as also the verses in John intervening between the last lesson and the present one.

The resurrection of our Lord is one of the best attested facts of history; no event of equal distance from the present is as well attested.

One tithe of the evidence which supports its truth would be considered ample for any ordinary historical event. It would, perhaps, be safe to say that not a few events accepted by all students rest on much less than a tithe of evidence similar to that which attests the truth of the resurrection.

The importance of the resurrection cannot be over-estimated, for it is that which shows our Lord to be Divine; it carries with it the supernatural origin and divine authority of Christianity—without it, faith in a crucified Saviour would be impossible.

It is not practicable, in the limited space allowed to these notes, to state the proofs of the resurrection in detail, but a few of them may be indicated: It was testified to by many soon after the event; it was accepted by the apostles, who were exceedingly "slow to believe"; it made new men of them; it was preached by them, as the basis of their teaching, to Jew and Gentile; it was universally believed in by the early church; it led to the change of the Sabbath from the seventh to the first day of the week; the very existence of the Christian church is a proof of its truth.

11. "But Mary." She remained after Peter and John had left, probably to weep.

12. "Angels." Each of the evangelists speaks of angelic visitants.

13. "They." The enemies of Christ. "My Lord." Compare verse 2, where, in speaking to the apostles, she simply says "the Lord." She represents to the angel her loss as personal.

14. "She turned." The angels do not seem to have startled her, so full was she of her grief. "Knew not that it was Jesus. This may have been because he was clad in different garments, because her eyes may have been filled with tears, or, most likely of all, that for the time her "eyes were holden," as in the case of the disciples on the way to Emmaus. There was a difference in the personal appearance of our Lord after the resurrection—it was the same personality, but the bodily expression was changed, and apparently was not always the same. See Mark 16: 9 and 12.

15. "Woman, why weepest thou?" The first recorded words after the resurrection (Mark 16: 9). "The gardener." The friendly question made the supposition a natural one. "Thou." The pronoun is emphatic—"Thou, and not an enemy."

16. "Mary." The name, now uttered in the well-known and loved voice, at once reveals the speaker; she turns fully round and exclaims "in Hebrew, 'Rabboni.'" Revised Version. These words lead to the inference that Hebrew (Aramaic) was the language used by Christ and his disciples in ordinary intercourse. "John had love's insight; Mary had the want which love creates. John's insight taught him first to conclude his Lord had risen (verse 8); Mary's want brought her Lord first to her to satisfy it."

17. "Touch me not." The margin of the Revised Version is to be preferred—"Take not hold on me," that is, do not take hold and cling to me. The idea seems undoubtedly to be, not a touching to see if he were real, but a taking hold so that he could not be taken from her. "For," etc. It is not easy to explain the meaning of these words—the most satisfactory seems to be that he meant that the old life was not to be restored—it was gone; that, hereafter, while the love was to be no less deep, the devotion no less earnest, the faith no weaker, it was to be more spiritual, more wonderful, more precious. There was to be no clinging to the outward, but a deeper and a diviner communion. Compare John 14: 16, 17, 26; 16: 7. "Go to my brethren." Though he had inferred that those who do the will of God were his brethren (Matt. 12: 48), he had not heretofore called his disciples by this name. Could he have really been our brother in the fullest sense until he had tasted death? "I ascend." Note the present tense; literally, "I am ascending." The change had already begun; it was not completed until forty days had elapsed—a period long enough to prove his resurrection and to speak to them "of the things concerning the kingdom of God" (Acts 1: 3).

18. "Telleth the disciples, I have seen the Lord." Revised Version. A vivid touch in the narrative.

19. "When, therefore, it was evening, on that day, the first day of the week," etc. Revised Version. Our Lord's appearance to Simon (Luke 24: 34; 1 Cor. 15: 5) and the journey to Emmaus must have occurred between the appearance to Mary and this appearance to the disciples. "When the doors were shut." Though in the body, the body was no longer subject to ordinary laws. It has been well said, "Before the resurrection Christ was visible unless he willed it otherwise; after the resurrection it would seem that he was invisible, unless he willed it otherwise." "Came Jesus." It is idle to speculate how. The evangelist simply states the fact. "Peace be unto you." This, the ordinary form of salutation (Luke 10: 5), must have had a new and deep significance to those who now heard it. Compare John 14: 27; 16: 33.

20. "Shewed unto them his hands and his side." To assure them that it was he himself in bodily form. Compare Luke's record. "See my hands and my feet, that it is I myself; handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me having" Luke 24: 39. "Glad." Their sorrow was indeed turned into joy, joy so great that they could hardly believe (Luke 24: 41).

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. "Because he lives, we shall live also."
2. We must walk by faith, not by sight.
3. "Love's redeeming work is done,
Fought the fight, the victory won;—
Death in vain forbids his rise,
Christ hath opened Paradise."

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SIXTH MONTH ELEVENTH, 1899.

A PERFECT CHILD.

Luke 2: 40-52.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 5.—Joseph. Gen. 37: 1-4.
Third-day, Sixth mo. 6.—Moses. Ex. 2: 1-10; Acts 7: 20-21.
Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 7.—Samuel. 1 Sam. 1: 21-28; 3: 1-10.
Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 8.—Josiah. 2 Chron. 24: 1, 2.
Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 9.—John the Baptist. Luke 1: 5-15, 80.
Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 10.—Timothy. 2 Tim. 1: 1-6; 3: 14, 15.

In the charge against Israel in the prophecy of Amos, Jehovah says he had raised up their sons to be prophets, and their young men to be Nazarites, but they had defiled them by wine and forbidden the prophets to prophesy. God's plans for young life frustrated, is a theme for most thoughtful consideration in all ages and lands.

A police judge in the city of Brooklyn recently stated that three-fourths of the cases that came before him were young boys, and that it was owing to the "wide open policy" now pursued in this great city.

This is but one of the signs of the weakness of our civilization. Bad literature, public school immorality, profanity, the awful rum traffic—these and allied evils are defiling American childhood to a fearful degree. The cheap, trashy novel, the positively vicious, immoral book or pamphlet, the garbage newspaper whose reportorial staff prowls by day and night through dark alleys, back ways, basements, and cellars, in search of the refuse of the great cities, poison the life blood of the child. The profanity of the street, that vicious use of heaven's free air to curse its Maker, the vileness that now and then creeps into the unguarded public school, and above all, the terrible rum curse that like a thunder cloud ever seems ready to burst upon us with its treasured fury—who can estimate its awful, blighting power over the child physically, morally, spiritually, by antenatal, hereditary, and contaminating forces? Then there is the herding together of children in dark tenements with most unsanitary conditions, with no opportunity for the development of modesty or training in decency,—all these and more are the sins of civilization against the life of the child. Nor is there any part of the community wholly exempt from it. It is sometimes thought that the city is the chief nursery of vice and crime, but not only the writer, but many who read these lines, know that the country neighborhood, with its quiet and seclusion, is often a hotbed of evil where young life is defiled from its earliest years, sometimes by the class of men employed as help on the farm, sometimes by a continually perpetuated contamination from one generation to another, communicated largely in the public school.

When we pass the limits of civilization, and study the conditions of child life in heathen lands, it beggars description, and appalls the strongest heart. Tens of thousands are murdered in infancy to get them out of the way, hundreds of thousands are sold in infancy as wives or concubines, or to a life of public shame; all these and millions more are born as free from idolatry as we are, but are trained from childhood in its horrible practices, never hearing of a God of love, or of a really noble ideal of life.

Is it not well, then, that we think to-day of child life, its training, possibilities, and duties? Let us turn from the dark picture to the hopeful side, and thank God for the millions of homes where mother love is still a benediction, the nearest a vicarious sacrifice of anything in this world save that on Calvary. Let us be glad for the millions who are in our Sabbath schools week by week, not only studying the Word of God, but also feeling the touch of Spirit-filled teachers who mold their lives to highest ends. Our vast public school system—not free from defects, it is true—but upon the whole a force for Christian culture, and intellectual and moral uplift immeasurable in its effects; our flood of literature created wholly for the child, bringing history, science, art, biography, and theology within the reach of his thought—these are forces at work for the child for which we may be glad indeed. The church cares for the child to-day as never before. Eighty-five per cent. of her additions to membership are from the ranks of children and young people. If a man had a farm that yielded so large a per cent. as that at one end, and only fifteen per cent. at the other for an equal amount of labor, he would be foolish if he did not care most for the remunerative portion. Let us be glad for the fifteen per cent. of wrecks saved by special evangelism, but far gladder for the eighty-five per cent. saved by the instrumentalities at work among the children. We sometimes hear men bemoaning the fact that there are no more such great revivals as there used to be. Well, that is a question itself, but granting the truth of the statement there are reasons for it which these people seem to ignore. The true working church has been learning a new lesson in its care for the child. He is brought to Christ by more hidden, personal effort. If it is not the case it is more the teacher's fault than the child's. Our Christian Endeavor Societies have reached thousands, and held them in the path of Christian service, that once went to swell the large numbers reported as "saved" by the evangelist each year.

But what is the secret of this concern for the child? It all grows out of the cradle manger of Bethlehem. The perfect child life of Him who might have passed child life by, and came in the plenitude of a perfect manhood, but chose rather to humble himself to the weakness of childhood, and fill it with a new meaning, is the life that has taught the world the real significance of childhood.

He taught the lesson also by his care and thought for the child. Between Plato and Christ there is an immeasurable distance in their conception of the child life. Jesus saw what there was in the child, in himself, in his lessons for us, in his relations to the Father, in the possibilities of the future.

The child life of Jesus has its lessons for children in his perfect obedience, in his humility, in his poverty, in his perfect waiting.

The absolute silence as to the earlier years is more eloquent than words. The deep roots of every strong character must grow thus unseen.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Where are all the Endeavor Societies lately? They have not reported any of their doings in this column for a long time. Tell us of your new plans of work, of your successes the past winter, of special lines of work undertaken. Let us hear from the societies that have added new members during the winter. The editor of this department is too busy to write to you all personally for information, but he will be glad to report anything worthy of notice if you will send in the items.

Two definite movements in Christian Endeavor ranks have been earnestly urged for the past two years—the Tenth Legion, and the Quiet Hour. This year a third feature has been added by the editors of the "Christian Endeavor World," involving continuous Bible reading throughout the year. These three movements are in some senses a test of the spirituality of the Endeavor movement, as two of them have to do directly with the culture of the inner life, and the third involves a high degree of consecration. The Tenth Legion, after two years of urging, and presentation from almost every Christian Endeavor platform in the country, now numbers only a few over 14,000, and the numbers enrolled in the other two movements do not much exceed 10,000 in one, and 8,000 in the other. Out of more than 3,000,000 Endeavorers this number seems pitifully small, and indeed it is. But there are some mitigating circumstances. Not all who give their tenth have enrolled in the Legion. It would be far better if they would do so for it is a testimony to the increase of conviction on the matter of proportionate giving. Some are opposed to the tithing system who nevertheless give largely. But there are thousands more who for no other reason than indifference, avarice, and disobedience to their Lord, refuse to look into this question of the relation of money to the kingdom of heaven.

The Quiet Hour is intimately connected with the spiritual life, and ought to secure the pledge of every Endeavorer. Some plead lack of time, but surely no one is so busy as not to find fifteen minutes at least to wait upon God. We find it to talk with a friend who may come in, or to read the paper, or some trivial matter. Let there be an improvement along these lines among our Endeavorers, or else we shall seem to merit the charge of superficial life. But where are our accusers? It may be difficult for them to show a record even as good as ours.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

The average attendance in the Christian Endeavor meetings (since occupying the new house, on New Year's), has been twenty-six, including a number of children and young people who have not yet taken the pledge. At the business meeting in Fifth month, E. H. Easterling was elected President for another year. The Prayer Meeting Committee has secured a variety in the meetings, including a Japanese evening, with colored photographs, a review of the life of Christ, with lantern exhibition of Hofmann's pictures, and an address on employment for the blind, by F. E. Cleveland, President of the Connecticut Institute and Industrial Home for the Blind.

The opportunity for opening a training class for Bible nurses in connection with Dr. Whitney's hospital in Japan had already been presented, and the Missionary Committee was encouraged to ask for subscriptions for this object.

THE DETROIT INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

July 5-10, 1899.

Great preparations are being made for this gathering of the Endeavor hosts. The usual great chorus choirs are diligently drilling and the army of ushers, reception committees, and hosts of trained workers necessary to care for such a multitude are all getting into harness. The great tents will be in the heart of the city, accessible to all, and there is abundant reason to believe that the attendance this year will rival, if not surpass, former records.

The list of speakers includes many men of note, such as: F. W. Gunsaulus, Booker T. Washington, Wilton Merle Smith, P. S. Henson, who will speak on "Satan and Cities;" Newell Dwight Hillis, Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps;" J. Wilbur Chapman, John Henry Barrows, Prof. Graham Taylor, Prof. R. G. Moulton, C. N. Howard, David J. Burrell, A. McLean, Robert E. Speer, Charles E. Jefferson, Bishop John H. Vincent, and many others. We confidently believe it to be the best program yet arranged for any International Convention; that it includes more speakers of ability, spiritual force and wide experience than can be heard on any other platform in the same length of time anywhere in the world. Several special features will be: "The Quiet Hour," under the leadership of J. Wilbur Chapman, each morning; Bible Study, conducted by Prof. Morehead, of Xenia, Ohio, and Prof. Willetts, of Chicago, each day; special evangelistic services daily, special conferences for workers each day, etc., etc. If any one who expects to attend this great gathering puts in all his time trying to attend the great mass meetings he may be disappointed. The cream of the convention rises quietly in some of the smaller gatherings. There is more skim milk given to the crowds.

Remember that the denominational rallies are held on Thursday afternoon, the first day of the convention proper, and the Friends are assigned to the Trumbull Avenue Presbyterian Church. Time, 2.30 to 4.30 p.m.

OHIO YEARLY MEETING.

Adrian Quarterly Meeting Y. P. S. C. E. Union held a conference at the time of our quarterly meeting, at Raisin Centre, on Fifth month 7th, at 2.30 p.m. After a song service the devotional exercises were conducted by Edna Whinnery, of Rollin. Our brother, Levi Lupton, who was in attendance at the quarterly meeting, gave us a brief, earnest exhortation. Then we had an address by our Y. M. C. E. President, Arthur Chilson, from Cleveland. He emphasized the thought that we ought not to be satisfied with simply endeavoring, but that we ought to do something for our Master, and we could do that acceptably only in the power of the Holy Spirit. He referred to some Endeavorers who were trying without the power of God, resulting not only in failure, but a discredit to the name. Our brother visited the other local C. E. societies in the yearly meeting at Tecumseh, Raisin Valley, Rollin, and Ypsilanti. We feel his visit was helpful and encouraging, and that he was influential in leading our Endeavorers into more earnest and sincere consecration to their work.

WM. J. CLEAVER.

THE LATEST CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR STATISTICS.

UNITED STATES.

Young People's Societies	28,310
Junior Societies	12,634
Intermediate Societies	824
Mothers' Societies	71
Senior Societies	30

CANADA.

Young People's Societies	2,931
Junior Societies	534
Intermediate Societies	14
Parents' Societies	2
Mothers' Societies	1

FOREIGN LANDS.

Young People's Societies	8,653
Junior Societies	1,097
Senior Societies	19
Intermediate Societies	12
Mothers' Societies	6
Floating Societies	120

55,258

Total membership 3,315,540

NOTES FROM THE FIELD.

Richmond, Ind.—A Christian Endeavor Society has recently been organized at Providence, Ohio, by members of East Main Street Endeavor Society. Fifteen signed the pledge as active members, and a number the associate pledge at the first meeting.

The Christian Endeavorers of Salem and Damascus Quarterly Meeting, of Ohio Yearly Meeting, met in a two days' convention at Salem, Ohio, Fourth mo. 15 and 16. Wm. P. Pinkham, A.M., of Cleveland Bible Training School, and Alfred T. Ware, pastor of Friends' Church at Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, were present, the different sessions being made both interesting and profitable by their teachings.

Charles C. Hubbard, President of Quarterly Meeting Christian Endeavor Union, and Arthur B. Chilson, President of Yearly Meeting Union, both of Cleveland, were present, each with an encouraging message.

Soul-inspiring songs added to the interest greatly. Several solists and a male quartet from Cleveland furnished music of a character eminently fitted for drawing the young people into a deeper spiritual life. In fact, the keynote of the convention was, "Be filled with the Spirit," and the Spirit was there in sanctifying power.

In a session on Sabbath afternoon, besides several short talks and other exercises, papers were read entitled, "An Ideal Christian Endeavor Society," and "What a President Should Do." A special feature of the session was a question box, when many practical queries were answered in a helpful way by Alfred Ware.

After an interval of about an hour, a missionary meeting was held.

It was unanimously agreed that such a rally should be held each year.

The success of this convention was attributed largely to the fact that the arrangements were made and carried out carefully and prayerfully, and that the local societies were united in praying beforehand for "showers of blessing" at this time.

VIRGINIA L. HOLE, Secretary.

Christian Endeavor officers at the head of the work in the various States are coming forward in a solid phalanx to push the Peace Memorial. Take for a sample this, from President Eberman, at the head of Pennsylvania's great union: "It seems to me that yearly our Father lays some new and more responsible commission upon the willing shoulders of Christian Endeavor, and bids us go forward in the establishment of His kingdom. May we press for peace, millions strong and God-inspired; and in the glowing work you may rely upon Pennsylvania's hosts." May that inspiring message flash into every Christian Endeavor heart. Though the Memorials are called for in goodly numbers, the demand for them is only a fraction of what it should be. Send five cents to Secretary Baer for the document. Put your society on record. You will never have a nobler cause to work for. President Leet, of Washington, had the matter brought before his local union. Let local unions everywhere take it up. But don't wait for the unions. Don't wait for anybody. You do it, and do it now!

The Tenth Legion of the Christian Endeavor Society now numbers over 14,000, and there are over that number enrolled as comrades of the Quiet Hour.

Nearly ten thousand Christian Endeavorers are reading the Bible through systematically.

The seventeen district unions of London, in a great convention, could scarce have made a better use of a church holy day than in passing the unanimous and enthusiastic resolutions they did on three great questions: the Czar's rescript, the Sunday-closing of public houses, and opposition to the establishment of Sunday newspapers in London. London has now over 100 Christian Endeavor Societies.

The Detroit Christian Endeavor Convention Committee has prepared a comprehensive pocket-directory, packed with information about everything necessary, and diagrams of the city. Those desiring copies should apply at once to Dr. James E. Davis, Majestic Building, Detroit.

Pastors may have special platform tickets for the Detroit Christian Endeavor Convention by applying with stamp to Secretary Baer, Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, D.D., now at New York City, is to lead the daily Quiet Hour at the Detroit Christian Endeavor Convention.

The program for the next International Christian Endeavor Convention is arousing genuine enthusiasm among Endeavorers. It combines many features, and is a practical Bible School. Ministers are planning to attend in large numbers.

The following letter from the president of the Christian Endeavor Society in the Eddyville, Ky., prison is interesting:

"One of the most remarkable features of the work may be observed after the men have been locked up for the night. The Christian Endeavor man, among the volleys of satanic confusion, can be found kneeling on the stone carpet of his dark and lonesome cell, sending up his weak and feeble petition for his fellow sufferers. God is truly blessing the work of the Christian Endeavorers in rescuing men of this place from despairing lives."

Indeed, Christian Endeavor has entered many a darkened cell and brought the light of the gospel to Jesus Christ.

Over the bleak and snow-wrapped earth
The warmth of sunshine lies;
Above the shadowy, dark abyss
The lights of paradise.

O soul, my soul, take heart again—
Here is pain's chastening rod,
Here in the valley all is dark,
But up above is God!
—Ethelyn T. Abbott, in "Christian Work."

News from the Field.

An attempt is being made to hold a Friends' meeting in Johannesburg, the city so prominently before the public a few years ago in connection with the notorious Jameson raid on the Transvaal. There are fifty or sixty Friends scattered throughout South Africa.

The "Australian Friend" gives the information that "the members of the Society of Friends in Germany at the beginning of the century numbered about 400, now there are not more than 30. The decrease was caused by conscription, as to avoid this most of the Friends left the Fatherland and settled in America; many of them near Philadelphia."

Charles Tylor is about to issue a new edition of Backhouse and Tylor's "Early Church History" and Tylor's "Witnesses for Christ." They are both works of great value, and excellent reading for the present time. In order to put them within the reach of everybody they are to be sold at the merely nominal price of one shilling (twenty-five cents) per volume. Twelve cents should be added to cover postage to America. Orders should be sent (with post office money order) to Charles Tylor, 7 Wellington Road, Brighton, England. This is a rare opportunity to get a good set of books.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

The following program has been arranged for Commencement week at Earlham College:

Seventh-day, Sixth month 3d.—8 p.m., Annual Elocutionary Entertainment.

First-day, Sixth month 4th.—10.30 a.m., Baccalaureate Service, John P. D. John, D.D.; 8 p.m., Public Meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

Second-day, Sixth month 5th.—8 p.m., Annual Music Recital.

Third-day, Sixth month 6th.—8 p.m., Public Exercises of Ionian and Phoenix Societies.

Fourth-day, Sixth month 7th.—10 a.m., Class-Day Exercises by the Senior Class; 2 p.m., Business Meeting of the Alumni Association; 8 p.m., Annual Public Meeting of the Alumni Association; address by Wm. H. Birdsall, President Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa.

Fifth-day, Sixth month 8th.—9 a.m., Commencement Exercises; address by Hon. Emerson E. White, LL.D., Columbus, Ohio; Conferring Degrees.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

Wharton, Cumberland County, N. S.—The Lord led me in a singular manner to come out here, and a series of nine meetings have been held, commencing on the 13th. The circumstances did not seem favorable. A large, old school-house, which had long ago been deserted, the seats taken out, and re-seated with rough plank without back, and the windows evidenced the character of some of the boys in the neighborhood. Thus the wind had free access and was very cold, so that at the first meeting I shivered from head to foot, although wearing an overcoat. However, we got a little fire in a broken stove, and with a lamp on the bench beside me, the first Friends' meeting ever held, perhaps, in this part of the country was opened with good attendance of a people who never saw a Quaker before. There was marked interest throughout, but the last meeting was the crowning one of all, and in some respects the most remarkable one I ever attended. A crowd came together, and the power of the Lord was over all.

Intense interest was manifested as they drank in the Word spoken. Many things occurred, some of which might be mentioned. One teacher, in giving out the notice, told her pupils they had better not go. Another was that of a stranger who came into the place later. He arose one evening and said he was told the meetings were not much, but he said, "I like it," and gave some words of earnest testimony. Another instance: While walking hurriedly from the post office, a man who had attended the meetings stood in the road and said, "Can't you come in and have a word of prayer with us? It may be the last time we shall ever hear your voice." He said further, "Could you not stay longer? There isn't a house anywhere around here where you would not be very welcome." But the Lord seems to say, "Arise, and go hence." My heart yearns over this people, as sheep without a shepherd; not but that there is occasional preaching round about, but no resident minister located here to gather in.

SAMUEL MILES.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Rose Hill Quarterly Meeting was held at Green Castle, Sumner County, Kansas, Fifth month 5th, 6th, and 7th.

Every session was a very precious gathering, attended by the immediate presence and filling of the Holy Spirit.

The business was transacted with unity and love.

A very interesting meeting in the interest of foreign missions was held on First-day afternoon.

Five ministers were present, all of these taking part more or less in Gospel service. It was the largest quarterly meeting at that place for seven years. Next quarterly meeting will be held at Wichita, Eighth month 4th, 5th, and 6th.

ELIZA J. COX.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Springdale, Iowa.—We have been blessed at this place by having a tabernacle meeting held, from Fifth month 4th to 17th, by Dr. D. J. Bunce and Lewis I. Hadley, ministers of the Gospel, assisted by Thomas C. Teas, who was very helpful, especially in singing. In their preaching they clearly showed by the Scriptures that sanctification was a bestowment of the Lord subsequent to conversion. Some were converted, some renewed, and some sanctified. About thirty were thus blessed, and nearly all the membership of Friends, and some of other churches, received an uplift in the Gospel, for which we praise the Lord.

LAWRIE TATUM.

OREGON YEARLY MEETING.

Newberg Quarterly Meeting was held at Newberg, Fifth month 12th to 14th. Besides a large attendance from the monthly meetings of the quarter, we were cheered by the presence of several of our dear Friends from Salem Quarter, among whom were Rev. B. F. Hinshaw and wife, of Marion; Charles Baldwin and Martha Newby, of Rosedale; and John Richie, of Scott's Mills. Their words of counsel and testimony were edifying and helpful to all.

Silas Moon and wife, and Lizzie Morris, our missionaries from Alaska, were also present, and their reports of their work were full of interest to all. Their presence and words were greatly appreciated by the Quarterly Meeting. We were most fortunate also in having with us Rev. Levi D. Barr, of Hoisington Monthly Meeting, Kansas, an evangelist whom the Lord has sent to our needy field. He was blessed with great liberty among us. He spoke with great power of the Spirit in the several sessions of the Quarterly Meeting, and several professed definite blessing. His family will join him here soon, and they will probably be engaged in evangelistic work in the limits of our Yearly Meeting during the coming year. Brother Barr will attend the Salem Quarterly Meeting held at Rosedale, Fifth month 19th to 21st, and will visit many of the several meetings between this time and our Yearly Meeting. Silas Moon and family left on the 15th for a visit with their friends in Kansas, and Lizzie Morris started to California for a short rest at her home.

BALTIMORE YEARLY MEETING.

Virginia Half-Yearly Meeting was held at Black Creek, in Southampton County, Virginia, by adjournments from the 20th of the Fifth month to the 23d of the same, inclusive. The meeting for Ministry and Oversight assembled on Seventh-day the 20th, at four o'clock p.m. Minutes were read for Eli G. Parker from Lynnville Monthly Meeting, endorsed by Lynnville Quarterly Meeting, Iowa, and for Barney E. Perkins, from Nahunta Monthly Meeting, North Carolina. George C. Wise, Jr., a minister and member of the Yearly Meeting's Pastoral Committee in Baltimore, was also present. On First-day morning, the 21st, a large crowd of several hundred persons assembled. Meetings were held both in the house and in the grove. The gospel was preached with power to very attentive audiences. Meetings were held at five different places in the afternoon and evening. On Second-day morning, the 22d, at ten o'clock, the meeting assembled in joint session in the school house to attend to the business of the church, this was followed by a meeting for worship both in the house and in the grove. In the evening at eight o'clock, meetings were held at Corinth and Bethel.

On Third-day morning, the 23d, the meeting assembled in the school house at ten o'clock, to attend to the business of the Monthly Meeting, Eli G. Parker and George C. Wise, Jr., having expressed a concern to deliver a message to the church, the crowd assembled in the meeting house, and Eli G. Parker illustrated by the life and works of Sampson, what a power we may be in the hands of the Lord if faithful, and how easily we may be shorn of our strength by divulging the secrets the Lord has intrusted to us, and by trying to walk without His guidance. George C. Wise, Jr., followed with the same line of thought, and all were exhorted to faithfulness in making a full consecration of ourselves to God, that we may receive the power of the Holy Ghost in our lives. A call was made for all who had that day received a definite blessing to stand up, and seventy or more arose to their feet, after which several very encouraging testimonies were given. The afternoon of this day had been arranged for a Christian Endeavor Rally for the two societies of Black Creek and Corinth. The meeting was called to order about two o'clock by T. Philip Raiford, President of the Society at Corinth.

An address was given by Mills E. Raiford on "The Results of Faithful Endeavorers," and one by George C. Wise, Jr., on "How Christians Endeavor." The chairman then read the Christian Endeavor topic for Fifth month 21st, "The Gift of Power," with a very earnest appeal that we might all receive power to enable us to be faithful Endeavorers.

The meeting was then thrown open for a general discussion of the topic, and a great many earnest, living testimonies were given by the young Endeavorers, followed by words of encouragement and cheer from several of the older Friends. The chairman then asked that the Doxology be sung, when the whole congregation simultaneously arose to their feet, and with full hearts sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." George C. Wise, Jr., in prayer then invoked the Lord's blessing on the Christian Endeavor work and workers, and with thankfulness for the benediction which had rested upon us the meeting was dismissed. Thus closed the best Half-Yearly Meeting it has ever been the privilege of the writer to attend.

Fifth month 25th, 1899.

MILLS E. RAIFORD.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

Bloomington, Ind.—Bloomington Quarterly Meeting was held Fifth month 19th to 21st, inclusive. Each respective meeting was a time of blessing. Among ministers of our own Yearly Meeting we had the company of that venerable herald of the gospel, John Henry Douglas. Notwithstanding he has visited nearly all the meetings of Friends on this continent, as well as elsewhere, his feet had never turned this way, but he found a warm place in the hearts of the people.

Our closing meeting was on First-day night set apart for Charles L. Jessup, a minister of Western Yearly Meeting, to give a lecture on "Quakers, Slavery, and Temperance."

We can hardly express in words its due merits; it must be heard to be valued as it should be. It contains a history of the work of Friends and their moulding influence against slavery. It's a history that the general membership know nothing about. It portrays the different phases of the church in different epochs of its history, and has been carefully prepared by much investigation and research, from a sense of duty that his Heavenly Master placed upon him. And as history repeats itself, however undesirable, unless arrested, he reasons logically from cause to effect, and shows the parallel of the dangers of the evil between legalized slavery and the legalized saloon—only the latter is far more reaching in its effects. The closing of the lecture is partly prophetic.

The Yearly Meeting's Home Mission and Temperance Board has given Charles L. Jessup credentials to deliver his lecture throughout our own Yearly Meeting, and it may be recommended elsewhere.

MARTHA N. LINDLEY.

OHIO YEARLY MEETING.

Adrian Quarterly Meeting was held at Raisin Centre, Michigan, Fifth month 6th and 7th, 1899.

Levi Lupton, of Lane Monthly Meeting, Michigan, was present, and preached on the second coming of Christ. Arthur Chilson, of Cleveland, Ohio, came Seventh-day evening and took part with Levi Lupton in the meeting First-day morning. In the afternoon an interesting Christian Endeavor Conference was held, addressed by Arthur Chilson. These brothers both attended Tecumseh Meeting First-day evening.

Walter S. Aldrich, of Adrian City, received endorsement of minute to attend New York Yearly Meeting and perform some other Gospel service in the limits of the Yearly Meeting.

Requests were received from Hanover and Ypsilanti Monthly Meetings for a three days' meeting to be held at each place. The requests were granted, and a committee appointed to attend and have charge of them.

MARY C. WOOD.

Died.

BENEDICT.—Died at his home near Highland, Minnesota, Third month 12th, 1899, Robert W. Benedict, aged 56 years. He was born at Alum Creek, Ohio, and when grown came to Hesper, Iowa, in the fall of 1864. He was a birthright member of the Society of Friends, and an active Christian from near the time of his marriage. He was used of God for the accomplishment of much good, of great value to the church, a kind husband and father.

HOAG.—Sara Fry Hoag died in Beverly, Mass., Fifth month 13th, 1899, in her 92d year. She was born in Sandwich, New Hampshire in 1807. Her parents, Benjamin and Lydia Fry, were members of the Society of Friends, her father a prominent minister in this community, and both lived to an advanced age. When twenty-three years old she married Moses Hoag, of Sandwich, with whom her life was spent in great peace and happiness for nearly fifty years. She had a most tender interest in the younger generation, her grandchildren and great grandchildren, and an enthusiasm for friendships new and old. In her quiet room she judged keenly the ways of the noisy world, and was wise in counsel and unfeeling in charity, an inspiration to the "young men and maidens, old men and children," who came to her. She was a faithful member of the Society of Friends, and a deeply prayerful and religious spirit pervaded her life.

LEONARD.—Cordelia B. Leonard, a daughter of Joash and Anna E. Reynolds, passed away Fourth month 3d, 1899, aged 46 years. A birthright Friend, she yielded early in life to the Master's call for service, and having first given herself to Him, she gave herself to His work. She was married to J. Addison Leonard in Twelfth month, 1878, and for the past nine years their home has been in Greensboro, N. C.

WILLIAMS.—Lincoln E. Williams, member and elder of Harmony Monthly Meeting, died Third month 20th, 1899, 36 years of age. He was converted eight years before his death, and soon was appointed to the station of an elder, which he held until the time of his death. He had a remarkable conversion and made rapid growth in divine things.

News and Events.

The first day's distribution of the $3,000,000 to the Cuban army resulted in the total payment of $525. Of 4,317 men comprising the Fifth Army Corps only seven appeared to claim the $75 allotted to each. Not a gun was surrendered, and it is becoming apparent that it is the intention of the intractable Cuban officers not to allow any arms to be given up. The first day's distribution of money at Havana was a total failure, and the Cuban newspapers declare that the same results will attend further attempts on the part of the authorities to distribute the money and collect the arms. The opinion, however, is said to prevail at General Brookes's headquarters that when the effort is made at distribution at points removed from the disgruntled Military Assembly more Cuban soldiers will come forward. The authority of the Military Assembly has never been recognized by General Brooke, and it is now practically defunct. It is, however, undoubtedly at the bottom of the apparent perversity of the Cuban soldiers, and, through intimidation and holding out false hopes, it is preventing the retirement of the army. The difficulty with the Cubans is that one never knows where to find them. The inconsistency and ingratitude of these people, or the portion represented by the army, is daily becoming more and more apparent. The dissension which is now scarcely repressed may yet break forth into open revolt against the United States, and the curious spectacle would be witnessed of a hitherto oppressed people turning against this nation, which at vast expense of lives and money freed them from a tyrannical government under which they had suffered for centuries.

It is now more than ever probable that Dreyfus is to have a new trial. M. Ballot de Beaupre, President of the Civic Section of the Court of Cassation, has reported to M. Mazeau, President of the entire Court, in favor of a revision of the Dreyfus trial before another court-martial. Several days are likely to elapse before the higher decision is rendered, but even now preparations have been made for bringing the prisoner of Devil's Island back to France, and upon the rendering of a favorable verdict for revision by M. Mazeau, no time will be lost in conveying Dreyfus to the scene of the new trial. While most Frenchmen regard him as a traitor, the outside world considers him innocent and the victim of base plotters high in rank in army circles, who, for their own safety, found it expedient to trump up false charges for the purpose of removing him from the country in order to close his mouth in revelations which would have been dangerously prejudicial to their interests and safety. The real motives underlying Dreyfus' persecution, while not wholly apparent, are sufficiently well established to gain for him a vast amount of sympathy and to arouse strong indignation among lovers of justice. There is no doubt that he was convicted on forged evidence, and it is sincerely hoped that he may soon have a fair and open trial. His acquittal is then pretty certainly assured.

The Filipino Commission have returned from Manila, having failed to come to any agreement with the United States Commissioners as to the terms of surrender. The prospect for peace is therefore as distant as ever. The outlook, in fact, is not cheerful. The insurgents are renewing their activity, and appear ready to keep the American forces upon the alert constantly. General Otis intends to prosecute the campaign throughout the rainy season, but it must be under great difficulties. It is announced, apparently upon good authority, that the American troops in Luzon are insufficient to hold in proper force territory and towns captured from the Filipinos without large reinforcements. The United States troops are forced to keep in the trenches for long intervals, sleeping in their clothing, and constantly on the alert against dashes on the outposts. Opposite our lines on the South, protecting Manila, all the way around to San Pedro Macati, the Filipinos have three rows of trenches for the greater part of the distance. The insurgents, to gather from the statements of the prisoners, construe the peace negotiations to mean that the Americans have had enough of fighting. The Filipinos are also falsely encouraged by the belief that the Americans are preparing for an interval of inactivity during the wet season.

During the short time that the Peace Conference has been in session at The Hague, events in its meetings have progressed favorably. The hope of the delegates that a permanent arbitration board will be established is growing. The difficult points now relate to the composition of the tribunal, how the representation of the Powers is to be arranged, and the limitations to be placed upon the jurisdiction of the board.

Rosa Bonheur, the painter of animal life, died, on the 26th, at Fontainebleau, France, at the age of 77. Her lasting fame as an artist is assured. She was without a peer among her own sex, and no painter of the other has ever excelled her magnificent masterpieces in the particular branch of the art to which she devoted her life.

THE RIGHT KIND.

Everybody has heard of President Lincoln's reply, when asked the question, "How long ought a man's legs to be?" that he had "always thought that a man's legs ought to be long enough to reach from his body to the ground."

Somewhat similar was the answer given by a Western farmer who went to town one windy day in March. Seeing several men chasing their hats along the street at a considerable sacrifice of dignity, he remarked:

"If them fellers had the right kind of heads they wouldn't have no such trouble as that."

"Do you have the right kind of head, uncle?" inquired a bystander.

"Yes."

"Don't your hat never blow off?"

"Never."

"Well, what is the right kind?" he was asked by several.

"Why," rejoined the old farmer, "the right kind of a head is one you can push up into a hat fur enough to hold it on tight."

There was more in his answer than appeared on the surface. The right kind of head is one of the great needs of many of us.

WOULDN'T BE PUT OFF.

Went to the Kitchen and Made it Herself.

Husband said to me one day, "It seems to me, my dear, that it will pay you to make a trial and see whether it may not be true, as your physician says, that the cause of your persistent dyspepsia, and head trouble and palpitation of the heart, is coffee."

He said, "Suppose we stop coffee and try this Postum Food Coffee!" I agreed to it, and so a package was sent up that day.

In the morning we had the new food coffee, and after filling my husband's cup I filled my own. I sipped a few spoonfuls, and I am ashamed to say that my eyes filled too, I could not drink it.

Husband suggested that inasmuch as this was the first trial, the cook had not made it properly.

I took the coffee pot to the kitchen poured it out and examined the package carefully, then followed directions exactly (an easy thing to do, by the way) and after I had got the coffee pot to boiling, I left it in the cook's charge, saying that I would send out for it in fifteen minutes.

When it came in I poured out fresh cups for husband and myself, what a revelation! I could not have believed it possible that there was such a difference between an article poorly prepared and properly prepared. Here it was, a black brown, clear and delicious. The addition of a little cream, turned it to that perfect color that an epicure delights in.

This was several months ago, and I attribute my gain in flesh and my perfect health, to the use of Postum, as it has served me as an ideal food. My friends frequently say something like "I never saw you looking so well. What are you taking?" I reply, "I am taking no medicine, but I am drinking hard just now, drinking Postum Food Coffee," and the results are very real indeed to husband and myself. Mrs. Jennie Knight, Washington, D. C.

FISH OF ALL KINDS, NO MATTER HOW PREPARED IS MADE PERFECTLY DELICIOUS BY THE USE OF

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE WORCESTERSHIRE.

BEWARE OF MANUFACTURERS WHO ATTEMPT TO SELL A WORTHLESS IMITATION. SEE SIGNATURE.

JOHN DUNCAN'S SONS, AGTS., NEW YORK.

The tomb of Mohammed is covered with diamonds, sapphires and rubies valued at $12,500,000.

ADVERSITY IS OUR BEST TEACHER.

It is wrestling Against Opposition that Makes Giants of Men.

"Culture and character come through suffering," writes Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, D.D., on the "Pains that Polish Perfection," in the June "Ladies' Home Journal." "Life is God's university; happiness is the graduating point, but trouble and adversity are among the chosen teachers. The world is built for joy, but man comes to his full estate through the tutelage of sorrow. If man washes his eyes in tears and makes his garments white with blood, he, too, is promised the throne and sceptre of the higher manhood. Suffering is an alchemist refining coarseness and transmuting bad into good, selfishness into sympathy. Steel is iron plus fire. Tools are steel plus gashing axes. Statues are marble plus the chisel, whose every stroke makes sparks fly. Manhood is nature plus the temptations that chisel out character. Bronze doors of old cathedrals are all of beaten handiwork, and character is hammered out on the anvil of adversity; wine comes through crushing of grapes, and joy is a fine spirit oft distilled from bruised affections. Sin and selfishness dig great furrows in the face, so suffering is sent in to iron the lines out smooth again. From Paul to Livingston, what heroic leader hath worn soft raiment? What Luther or Lincoln was reared in Kings' palaces? It is wrestling against opposing winds that works toughness into trees and girthhood into men. If the poet's vision is ever fulfilled and we judge the angels doing easy duty at home, we must first, as veterans of the old guard, achieve our scars and hold our tattered flags in fierce battles upon a far-off frontier. Optimists always, let us not 'make believe' and play there are no troubles. One form of folly is always to drag the corpse into the banquet; another is to try and triumph over tragedies by averting our eyes."

What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer

By DR. RICHARD H. THOMAS

An Address delivered before the Annual Meeting of Friends' First-day School Association, held at Twelfth Street Meeting House, Philadelphia, during the Session of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, Fourth month 18, 1899.

Price, 5 cents, postage paid.

JOHN C. WINSTON & COMPANY
718 Arch Street Philadelphia

The most widely separated points between which a telegram can be sent are British Columbia and New Zealand. The telegram would cross North America, Newfoundland, the Atlantic, Britain, Germany, Russia (European and Asiatic), China, Japan, Java and Australia. It would make nearly a circuit of the globe, and would traverse over 20,000 miles in doing so.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

No. 717—Canopy-Top Surrey, with double fenders. Price, complete, with curtains all around, storm apron, sunshade, lamps and pole or shafts, $68. Just as good as sells for $100.

style and the largest selection in the land.

ELKHART CARRIAGE & HARNESS MANFG. CO., W. B. Pratt, Secy, ELKHART, INDIANA.

PROFIT FOR MAKER ONLY.

We manufacture 170 styles of vehicles and 65 styles of harness and sell them to you direct from our factory at wholesale prices. In fact we are the largest manufacturers of vehicles and harness in the world selling to the consumer exclusively. When you buy on this plan you pay only the profit of the manufacturer.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS,

preferring to deal with you direct. No matter where you live, we can reach you and save you money. We ship our vehicles and harness anywhere for examination and guarantee safe arrival. We manufacture everything we sell, and we can assure you of good quality from beginning to end; good woodwork, good iron and steel, good paint and varnish, good finish, good trimmings, fine large illustrated catalogue FREE.

No. 130—Double buggy harness, with nickel trimmings. Complete with collars and hitch straps, $30. As good as sells for $50.

The total area of Government lands in the Hawaiian Islands is fixed at 1,782,500 acres, divided as follows: Valuable building lots, 145 acres; coffee, 76,270 acres; cane, 25,626 acres; rice, 977 acres; Government interest in homesteads, 20,000 acres; grazing, 451,200 acres; high forest lands, 681,282 acres; rugged mountain tracts, 227,000 acres; barren lands, 300,000 acres.

An advertisement in the column of "Subscribers' Wants" will be read by Friends all over the United States. Five lines, one time, cost only 25 cents, cash with order.

INTERESTING BOOKS.

Isaac Sharp. An Apostle of the Nineteenth Century.

By FRANCES ANNE BUDGE.

One of his characteristic watchwords was:

"Forward and fear not;
Let thy faith be firm."

"It is no small praise for this book to be able to say of it, without exaggeration, that it is a memoir worthy of the remarkable man of whom it treats."—American Friend.

Price, Postage paid, $1.37.

Loving Service; or, Memoir of Martha Braithwaite.

By ELIZABETH A. EMMOTT,

"The book cannot fail to be read by many Friends with much interest."—London Friend.

Price, Postage Paid, $1.65.

Aunt Agatha Ann and Other Verses.

By MARY EMMELINE MANNERS.

Paper Board Covers.

Price, Postage Paid, 50 cents.

The Distinguishing Doctrines of the Religious Society of Friends.

Being an address delivered by JAMES WOOD in 1898.

Price, by Mail, 12 cents.

For Sale by

Friends' Book and Tract Committee

No. 51 Fifth Avenue, New York.

IF WE ABIDE IN HIM.

Here's a poker, see it, black, dark, cold. Thrust it into the fire, let the fire seize, enter into it, possess it. Take it out now and look at it. Where is the hardness? Gone. It shines with the fire. That is what God is going to do with us. "Our God is a consuming fire," and if we abide in Him He will possess us, and black and cold and hard as we are by nature His mighty power possessing us will transform and transfigure our being until we shine with the glory of God. O man, O woman, are you going for it or are you going to turn away from it? May the Lord bring us to His feet that He may work His mighty will in our souls.

SELF-SUPPORTING COLLEGE STUDENTS.

There are More Men Working Their Way Through College Than Ever.

"Most people picture the young man who works his way through college as a long-faced prig who rooms in a garret, where he breaks the ice in his pitcher for water to wash with in winter, and tells himself how noble he is to persevere in spite of the sneers and snubs of his more fortunate classmates," writes Jesse Lynch Williams, on "How a Young Man Can Work His Way Through College," in the June "Ladies' Home Journal." "If that type of collegian ever really existed he is now extinct. The modern self-supporting student is not snubbed nor sneered at by anybody, and he smiles occasionally. This is because there are more college men earning their living to-day than ever before, and because they earn a better living. One quarter of the entire three hundred and one members of the last class graduated at Yale supported themselves partly or wholly; probably all of them ate three meals a day, and many of them were quite in the thick of college life besides. This point is emphasized, because I know that every year some boys think of going to college and then give it up, largely—though they may not confess it—because they hate to think of being 'queer' and 'out of things.' This is a natural feeling, but it is unnecessary. I recall no football team at my college (Princeton) in the last ten years that did not have at least one man working his way through, and invariably some of the most influential men in every class are self-supporting.

~~Trade-mark~~
Criss-Cross
CEREALS

Ask dealers for them—see that packages have these criss-cross lines. Pamphlet and our sample offer mailed free.

Special Diabetic Food, for Diabetes.
Gluten Flour, for Dyspepsia and Constipation.
Barley Crystals, for Kidney Troubles.

FARWELL & RHINES, Watertown, N. Y., U. S. A.

The Easiest Writing
Pen Made NOTHING LIKE IT.
ESTERBROOK'S
POSTAL No. 477

Turned
up
Point.

Ask your Stationer.

One Hundred and Fifty other Styles.
The ESTERBROOK STEEL PEN CO.
Works, Camden, N. J. 26 John St., N. Y.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, First-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. MCGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

The Book Association of Friends,
20 S. TWELFTH ST., PHILADELPHIA,

has for sale and gratuitous distribution, on approval of Committee, several books—and a good assortment of tracts. For catalogues apply as above.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The American Friend is a weekly paper, containing twenty-four pages. The subscription price is one dollar and a half a year, payable in advance.

Discontinuances.—If a subscriber wishes his copy of the paper discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

How to Remit.—Remittances should be sent by Check, Draft, Express-Order, or Money Order, payable to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. Cash should be sent only in Registered Letter.

Postage is Prepaid by the publishers for all subscriptions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. For all other countries in the Postal Union add $1.00 for postage.

Change of Address.—When a change of address is ordered, both the new and the old address must be given. The notice should be sent one week before the change is to take effect.

Letters should be addressed:

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia.

The Prudential

issues an attractive form of Life Insurance, known as the participating "LIMITED PAYMENT LIFE" policy on which the number of Annual Premiums to be paid are limited (as Five, Ten, Fifteen, or Twenty) while the Insurance continues for life.

This policy is profit-sharing, the cost is moderate, and all the rights of the policy-holder under it are absolutely protected both during life and after death.

Write to us, stating your age nearest birthday, and we will send specimen policy and full information free.

AMOUNTS
$500 to $50,000.

THE PRUDENTIAL
Insurance Co. of America
JOHN F. DRYDEN, Pres't.
Home Office: NEWARK, N. J.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.
OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.
Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.
Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier. Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Homelike and attractive. Open throughout the year.

MARY T. HAINES.
N. R. HAINES.
Late of Chalfonte.

The Archdale, 136 South Maryland Avenue, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view of beautiful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.
MARY J. BUNDY.

NEIGHBORS.

They light so near when I am still,
A narrow isle of air away;
Now up, now out, they plume and trill,
In mating-chase and quarrel-play.

When I am still, I'm blest to share
The joy of little, leaf-hid love,
And hold my silence as a snare
To lure a lyric from above.

I'm free to count—they swing so near—
The feathers in a ruffled crest;
And envy takes me for the cheer
The twig has in that warming breast.
—Cecilia Beaux, in June "Century."

A Boston woman recently wrote to the agent of the five civilized tribes in the Indian Territory for half a dozen Indian names, which she wished to bestow upon her household pets. The agent sent her the names of Dennis P. O'Flanagan, John W. Brown, Silas Smith, J. Q. Scott, Samuel S. Benton and Asa P. Longfellow, all prominent Indians of the region.

NIAGARA NOW AT ITS BEST.

It Will Lose in Beauty in Five or Six Hundred Years.

If Mrs. van Rensselaer's opinion is correct, Niagara Falls will be a less beautiful object in the year 2500 than it is to-day. In the June "Century" she gives the reasons for her belief:

The Niagara River belongs to our own era of the world's interminable history, and to it alone. We may believe with some recent investigators, that it began to cut its way through the higher tableland about six thousand years ago, or we may say with others, thirty thousand years ago. But even the farther end of thirty thousand years is a geological yesterday; and if it is true that the Falls will stand well back at the head of Goat Island in five or six hundred years, this is a very near to-morrow. Moreover, the finest phase of Niagara's life belongs to the geological to-day. It is at its very best now that Goat Island is the central feature of the falls. Before they reached it they must have formed a single undivided and relatively narrow cataract or series of cascades; and after its upper end is left behind, there can never again be such a combination of diverse majesties and lovelinesses. Only for the half mile along Goat Island's side are there divided yet fraternal channels filled with shining, shouting rapids. When it has been left behind, the wide river flowing over an almost level bed, will approach its cliff quite calmly, and will calmly make its plunge, like a mill stream over a dam. And this forest-clad island, lifted high and set in a fortunate elbow of the river bed, gives views which no other farther-up stream can ever afford. It separates and yet unites the cataracts. Now it puts the eye far above them, and again its brings them quite close. With the islets that lie near it, it gives outlooks both up the streams of rapids and the placid river beyond them across the gorge and down its length, and athwart the one fall and the other; and most of these views it enframes in draperies of luxuriant green. Truly, the pilgrims of a later day will not see the Niagara, the marvel that belongs to us.

You are sure that Swift's

Silver Leaf Lard is purity perfection, and all lard.

Premium Hams make a breakfast fit for royalty, and Americans.

Premium Breakfast Bacon, an appetizer which makes everything else taste good.

Beef Extract, as good as the best—the concentrated strength of the best beef, with a flavor all its own.

Jersey Butterine, you couldn't tell it from the best butter,—healthy, wholesome, clean.

Cotosuet—the perfect vegetable shortening—digestible and healthy.

Swift and Company, Chicago

Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis, St. Joseph, St. Paul

The largest waves are seen off Cape Horn, rising to 46 feet in height and 765 feet long from crest to crest. Waves in the North Atlantic have been observed to rise 43 feet in height. In the German Ocean the height does not exceed 13½ feet, and in the Mediterranean 14½ feet.

IRREPROACHABLE SERVICE TO THE SOUTH VIA THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

With a total mileage of nearly six-thousand miles, the Southern Railway stands to-day without a peer. It is the most progressive transportation company in the South, as evidenced by the number of fast and elegant trains it operates, affording exceptional facilities, for reaching all prominent cities in the South without change of cars. Three through daily trains are operated from Philadelphia via this great route, namely: 7.20 a.m., The United States Fast Mail, runs solid between Washington and New Orleans, making direct connections for all points in the South. 6.34 p.m., The New York and Chattanooga Limited, running through to Chattanooga Tenn., carrying through Pullman cars to Memphis and New Orleans, via Lynchburg, Roanoke, Bristol and Knoxville. This train also carries through Pullman cars to Augusta, Savannah, Jacksonville and Tampa, via Charlotte and Columbia. 6.55 p.m., The Washington and Southwestern Limited. This train has been in the service for several years and is the most popular, and best patronized train operated south of the Potomac, carries through cars to Nashville, Tenn., via Asheville, "The Land of the Sky," Knoxville and Chattanooga, also through cars to Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, and New Orleans. Dining cars serve all meals on this train. Send for maps and rates, also copy of a beautifully illustrated booklet entitled "The Land of the Sky." Stop-over at Washington not exceeding ten days will be allowed on all through one way tickets between the East and West via the Southern Railway. Passengers wishing to avail themselves of this privilege should deposit their tickets at the depot ticket office immediately upon arrival. For further information and Pullman reservations, call on or communicate with Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DOG TALKS THROUGH A TELEPHONE.

Among the passengers who alighted at Redhill Station, in England, the other day, says a French paper, was a young lady who at once sought out the stationmaster and complained, with tears in her eyes, that she had lost her poodle at Reigate Station. The stationmaster telephoned his colleague at Reigate, who replied that there was, in fact, at that moment in his office a dog which answered to the description given of the missing poodle, and which was found wandering about the station.

The lady requested to have the ear of the dog placed to the telephone receiver, and proceeded to call him by name. The animal immediately recognized the voice of its mistress, began to bark, and ended by jumping up on the instrument, at the other end of which its mistress was speaking to her favorite, which was soon restored to her.

The lamp-chimney Index is worth some dollars a year to you — free.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

STEAMERS TO WEST POINT.

York River Line to Resume Daily Service
Which Was Discontinued in 1896.

Mr. Reuben Foster, President and General Manager of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Richmond Steamboat Company, returned yesterday from Richmond, where he completed arrangements for the running of a daily steamer over the York River Line of the Company, between Baltimore and West Point, which is thirty-nine miles from Richmond.

The new schedule will go into effect on Monday, May 15. The steamer will leave the pier of the York River Line every afternoon, reaching West Point the following morning. Connection will be made at West Point with the Southern Railway, which makes the run from that point to Richmond in an hour and twenty minutes.

Officials of the company feel encouraged to resume the line of daily steamers between Baltimore and West Point, which was discontinued in the fall of 1896, because there are indications that there will be a marked increase both in the freight and passenger business over the line. At present there are only three steamers weekly over the York River Line between this city and West Point.—"The Sun," Baltimore, May 5, 1899.

For rates, time tables, maps and full information, write to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

We invite the attention of all our readers to the column of "Subscribers' Wants" in "The American Friend." This department is constantly increasing in favor with those wishing to reach the great body of Friends with a small advertisement. Five lines of thirty-five words cost only 25 cents. See page 525 of this issue.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES

You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently
but firmly. Pond's Extract cures
Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis,
Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force, - - - -

$122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE
AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

Careful measurements prove that the average curvature of the earth is 6.99 inches to the statute mile.

It is estimated that the amount of water precipitated on this globe annually in the form of rain, snow, etc., is 29,000 cubic miles.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOURIST EXCURSIONS TO CALIFORNIA WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS.

Leaving Washington every Tuesday and Friday at 11.15 A.M., the Southern Railway operates Personally Conducted Tourist Excursions to San Francisco without change of cars, conductors or porters. The route is through Atlanta, Montgomery, New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio, New Mexico, Arizona, and Southern California. The cars are the very latest pattern of Pullman Tourist Sleepers, rosewood finish, have high back seats, upholstered in rattan, are sixteen section, supplied with linen, etc., same as standard sleepers, lighted by Pintsch gas, have wide vestibules, double sash roller curtains, lavatory and smoking room for gentlemen, and two retiring rooms for ladies.

Three and one-half days to Mexico and Arizona, four days to Los Angeles and Southern California, and five days to San Francisco. Such service for Trans continental travel has never before been offered.

The tourist carfare is less than via any other route, effecting a saving of $25.00 to $30.00 for the trip.

All information, maps, and rates furnished on application to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

COUNTING THE STARS.

I was walking along one winter's night, hurrying towards home, with my little maiden at my side. Said she, "Father, I am going to count the stars."

"Very well," I said, "go on."

By and by I heard her counting, "Two hundred and twenty-three, two hundred and twenty-four, two hundred and twenty-five. O dear!" she said, "I had no idea there were so many."

Ah, dear friends, I sometimes say in my soul, "Now, Master, I am going to count Thy benefits."

Soon my heart sighs, not with sorrow, but burdened with such goodness; and I say to myself, "I had no idea that there were so many."—Mark Guy Pearse.

For a Nerve Tonic.

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

DR. H. M. HARLOW, Augusta, Me., says: "One of the best remedies in all cases in which the system requires an acid and a nerve tonic."

Wheatlet
ABSOLUTELY THE BEST
CEREAL FOOD

Ask Your Grocer
about it. If he is honest he will tell you that for all members of the family—
father, mother, or children—nothing can equal

WHEATLET

It is made from the whole wheat with the innutritious woody husk removed. The most sensitive stomach can easily digest it. Your grocer keeps it, if not, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied.

Made only by the
FRANKLIN MILLS CO.,
Lockport, N. Y.
Send for free booklet containing valuable recipes and opinions of noted physicians and chemists.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE
OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in
enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social,
moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men
and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of
financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be
gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office,
northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where
all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.

REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary.

A want advertisement in "The American Friend" will be seen by more than 7000 Friends' families.

Crossing Hyde Park on a Sunday afternoon, on his way home, Browning, the great poet, stood for a few minutes listening to one of the ignorant and degraded infidel lecturers who always draw such crowds there on Sunday.

He waited till the fellow had finished,
and then sprang onto the vacated chair, saying, "Now, my friends, you have heard him, listen to me!"

He held the attention of his strange audience for some ten minutes, the "rapt oration flowing free" with such extraordinary effect that the "populace" turned upon orator number one and literally chased him out of the park.

New York's zoological garden will be the largest in the world, comprising within its boundaries no less than 261 acres. The next largest is at Washington, which has 168 acres. The Berlin garden has 60, the Paris garden 50, and the London garden 31 acres.

A SCOTS GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

By IAN MACLAREN.

IAN MACLAREN, who has done very little literary work for some months, has just written for the SATURDAY EVENING POST, of Philadelphia, an important series of four short stories, under the general title, A Scots Grammar School, the first of which will appear in the issue of June 3. In these stories the author returns to the Scotch town and folk he knows so well, and depicts the scenes of his own boyhood with the same sweet humor and pathos that brought Beside the Bonnie Brier-Bush into such immediate and lasting favor.

Muirtown Seminary is drawn from Stirling
Grammar School, where the author prepared for the University of Edinburgh.

WESTTOWN CENTENNIAL MEMO-RIAL FUND.

At a meeting of the solicitors for the Westtown Centennial Memorial Fund, held the fifth of this month, the reports from the various decades, etc., showed an aggregate of over $40,000 from about 400 subscribers.

This number of subscribers being but a very small portion of those who have received advantages from Westtown, it is desired that all may take advantage of this opportunity to assist our worthy alma mater according to their means, so that the full amount of $100,000 may be subscribed to ere the Centennial Celebration, which occurs on the tenth of next month.

Those who have not received any communication in the matter can forward subscription to Samuel L. Allen, Chairman of the Old Scholars' Association, 1107 Market Street, Philadelphia.

FLORIDA SHORT LINE.

The New York and Florida Express, via Southern Railway, leaving Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, daily at 5.34 P.M., carries through Pullman sleeping cars to Augusta and Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville and Tampa, Fla., via Charlotte and Columbia.
This is the short line and most attractive route to points in Georgia and Florida.

All information cheerfully furnished by Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

GOOD REASONS FOR USING COMPOUND OXYGEN.

It has been in use for more than twenty five years. It is well tried. Thousands have testified to its wonderful curative powers.
Hundreds of Physicians have used it in their practice, and recommend its use. It can be used at home and without interfering with business or employment. It can not harm the most delicate patient. Treatment also includes consultation. For the cure of chronic diseases. Send for book of 200 pages, free.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,

1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.
San Francisco, Ca. Toronto, Canada

The human heart is six inches in length, four inches in diameter, and beats on an average of 70 times per minute, 4,200 times an hour, 100,800 times a day, and 36,792, 000 times in the course of the year, so that the heart of an ordinary man eighty years of age has beaten 3,000,000,000 times.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable aplicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS OF ANY KIND to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Anyone with anything to advertise will find this column a valuable medium for securing buyers. A five-line advertisement of thirty-five words costs only 25 cents, cash with order. Additional lines at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.

SUMMER BOARDERS.—Caroline B. Kirk will be glad to accommodate a few summer boarders at her home, near Muncy, Pa. The views are fine, air good, drives and walks pleasant. For terms address CAROLINE B. KIRK, Pennsdale.

FOR SALE on easy terms. A house and twelve acres of land adjoining Friends' Meetinghouse, at East Bend, N. C. Apply to
DAVID E. SAMPSON, East Bend, N. C.

PERSONS visiting Washington can obtain good accommodation in private home. Convenient, by electric cars, to all parts of city. Rates reasonable.
LAURA W. WILSON, 1456 Coreoran St., Wash., D. C.

WANTED.—A few selected boarders; cool, bright situation, good table. Near Friends' Meeting House. No. 115 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City. Open now. Address L. U. Valentine.

WANTED.—Principal or instructor in Friends' Academy, to teach language, literature, or science. Please write at once to
A. D. STANTON, Washington, Kas.

WANTED.—By a Friend. To rent a house of from six to eight rooms, in Philadelphia, near the buildings of the University of Pennsylvania. Address E. E. WILDMAN, Earlham, Richmond, Ind.

WANTED.—A situation to teach in the department of history or economics in a Friend school or college. Thorough preparation, successful experience, good references. Address inquiries to X, care of AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch St., Phila.

WANTED.—A few boarders in private family for Summer months. Pleasant airy rooms, good water, near College grounds, and pleasant walks.
Apply to S. P. GARRIGUES, Millbrook Ave.,
Haverford Pa.

WANTED.—By a Friend of experience a position as matron, companion, housekeeper or some other similar employment.
Address Y., care THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

PENMANSHIP.—Plain and ornamental of every kind, at reasonable prices. Marriage certificates and diplomas a specialty. Correspondence solicited. JOHN COLLINS
702 North 43d Street, Philadelphia.

WANTED.—A Superintendent and Matron for "White's Iowa Manual Labor Institute." Experience in care of stock by Superintendent, required. Correspondence solicited. John Fry, Secretary of Board of Trustees, 512 East Fifth Street, Muscatine, Iowa.

JOTTINGS.

On the 24th inst. Queen Victoria celebrated her eightieth birthday. It has been only a short while since she witnessed the sixtieth anniversary of her ascension to the throne. Her reign has been a remarkable one, and no queen in the world's history has so deserved the entire respect and admiration of the world for her queenly qualities as a woman and monarch alike.

Thus far every effort to move the Paris from the Manacles has proved futile. Her bow is firmly impaled on the rocks and she resists every attempt made by the strong tugs which have been used in the endeavor to pull her into the open sea. Some method of lightening will be necessary to effect the removal if this is in any way possible.

About 10,000 pounds of eiderdown are collected annually in Iceland, 7,000 being exported to foreign countries. Formerly the peasants used to receive over twenty-one shillings a pound for it, but the price has now fallen to half that amount.

A VALUABLE PUBLICATION.

The Pennsylvania Railroad 1899 Summer Excursion Route Book.

On June 1 the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will publish the 1899 edition of its Summer Excursion Route Book. This work is designed to provide the public with short descriptive notes of the principal Summer resorts of Eastern America, with the routes for reaching them, and the rates of fare. It contains all the principal seashore and mountain resorts of the east, and over fifteen hundred different routes or combinations of routes for reaching them. The book has been compiled with the utmost care, and altogether is the most complete and comprehensive handbook of Summer travel ever offered to the public.

It is bound in a handsome and striking cover in colors, and contains several maps, presenting the exact routes over which tickets are sold. It is also profusely illustrated with fine half-tone cuts of scenery at the various resorts and along the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

On and after June 1 it may be procured at any Pennsylvania Railroad ticket office at the nominal price of ten cents, or, upon application to the general office, Broad Street Station, by mail for twenty cents.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master
A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR } Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN }
ATLANTIC }
BRADLEY }
BROOKLYN } New York.
JEWETT }
ULSTER }
UNION }
SOUTHERN } Chicago.
SHIPMAN }
COLLIER }
MISSOURI } St. Louis.
RED SEAL }
SOUTHERN }
JOHN T. LEWIS & PROS CO
Philadelphia.
MORLEY
Cleveland.
SALEM
Salem, Mass.
CORNELL
Buffalo.
KENTUCKY
Louisville.

One gains wisdom in a happy way who gains it by the experience of others. In painting why not avail yourself of the advice of those who have had the greatest experience — the painters.

Competent, practical painters everywhere use Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. They know they cannot afford to use anything else.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

Every generation, for the last four or five centuries, has produced Scotchmen who have stirred the hearts of the English-speaking peoples. Hamilton W. Mabie recently drew from a Scotch writer an explanation of one source of the Scotchman's inspiration—his keen appreciation of God in nature.

One day in the early spring he was walking along the side of a mountain in Skye, when he came to a hut in which lived an old man he had known a great many years. He saw the old man with his head bowed and his bonnet in his hand. My friend came up, and said to him after a bit, "I did not speak to you, Sandy, because I thought you might be at your prayers."

"Well, not exactly that," said the old man, "but I tell you what I was doing. Every morning for forty years I have taken off my bonnet here to the beauty of the world!"

CONVENTION NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Reduced Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the National Educational Association Convention, to be held at Los Angeles, Cal., July 11 to 14, the Pennsylvania Railroad will sell excursion tickets via direct routes from points on its line, to Los Angeles, Cal., and return, at rate of single fare for the round trip, plus $2.00 membership fee. These tickets will be sold, good going, June 24 to July 7, and, when stamped by Joint Agent at Los Angeles, good to return, arriving at final destination, until September 5.

For further information apply to Ticket Agents.

SUMMER BOARD

In a Friend's family. Pleasant location on a farm four miles from Amesbury, Mass. Rooms large and airy. Terms reasonable. Address, Box 88.

ANNA M. GOVE,
Seabrook, N. H.

One-fourth of the people on the earth die before the age of six, one-half before the age of sixteen, and only one person in each hundred born lives to the age of sixty-five. The deaths are estimated at sixty-seven a minute, 97,790 a day, 35,639,835 a year; and the births at seventy a minute, 10,080 a day, 36,792,000 a year. The world's population, therefore, gains about 1,100,000 every year.

Stop-Overs at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington on Pennsylvania Railroad Through Tickets.

In addition to its excellent train service, the Pennsylvania Railroad offers the travelers between New York and Chicago and New York and St. Louis the privilege of a stop-over of ten days at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington. This stop-over is granted on all through first-class tickets reading via those cities. Persons desiring to stop-over must deposit their ticket with the station agent immediately on arrival.

To those who have business to transact in these cities, or to persons who have never visited the National Capital, this privilege is a valuable one, and should appeal to all through travelers between New York and the West, and Chicago or St. Louis and the East. The stations of the Pennsylvania Railroad are centrally located in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, and access to any section of the cities is easy, by either the regular street car lines, or by the Pennsylvania railroad cabs to be found at the Philadelphia and Washington stations.

MASON'S
CREAM OF OLIVES OINTMENT
CURES CATARRH ASTHMA HAY FEVER
" " MUMPS CROUP CAKED BREAST
" " FIRE & SUN BURN CHAFING
" " BUNIONS & TIRED FEET
" " CHAPPED FACE LIPS & HANDS
" " SAFE REMEDY FOR PILES
ALL DRUGGISTS OR MAILED FOR 25¢
H.T. MASON CHEMICAL CO. 515 ARCH ST. PHILA. PA.
SAFE · SPEEDY · SURE

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Le Chevalier Olives.

Finest, largest and most Palatable Olives packed.

Only 39c. Full Pint Bottle.

(Equal quality sold ordinarily at 50c.)

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades.

Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,

Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

CORNS

-big, little, old new, hard, soft
-all yield to
A-CORN Salve.
As harmless as it is sure. 15c.
box—druggists or by mail.

GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
305 Cherry Street, Phila.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

ELLWOOD HEACOCK

UNDERTAKER AND
EMBALMER

ESTABLISHED 1860 TELEPHONE 5807
Local and Long Distance

1313 Vine Street, Philadelphia

Calls outside of City answered promptly

CENTRAL CITY, NEBRASKA.

In the best part of the State.

Ideal Church and educational advantages. The College property, recently secured by Friends, is clear of debt. New church just completed. Good soil, pure water, healthy climate, mild winters, and cheap homes. Choice river bottom hay lands.

College Lots, - $25.00 each.

Acreage near College, - 35.00 an acre.

Farms, the best soil, - 20.00 and up.

Information gladly furnished. Address,

E. H. BARRETT, Central City, Neb.

Reference, Herbert J. Mott, Central City, Neb.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

The Union Trust Company

offers to men of large affairs and with little spare time, as well as to those not so busy, relief and assistance in the Care and Management

...OF PROPERTY...

Real or Personal,

with assurance of absolute safety.

The company solicits correspondence on this subject, and on receipt of a postal will have its representative call at your residence or place of business.

Offices, 715, 717, 719 Chestnut St.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

Any of our subscribers who have
anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

Enameline

when applied, is most
BRILLIANT, and that is the
effect you want when using a stove polish. When an old stove is polished it should look as bright as new—that
is the result when you use
Enameline. It is put up in paste, cake or liquid form.
Remember that every package is guaranteed.

J. L. PRESCOTT & CO., New York

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West.
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION.

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.
USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT. 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

SIXTH MONTH 8th, 1899

No. 23

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
POEM—"A Message from the Spring."	531
By Bertha C. Thorne.
EDITORIALS.—"The Vine Stock."—Con- ference on Arbitration at Mohonk	531-32
General Church Notes	532
The Mercy of God	533
Alexander Maclaren, D.D.
Women's Missionary Conference	534
THE INTERNATIONAL LESSON	535
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	536
The Ecumenical Conference on Foreign Mission	M. M. Binford. 537
New York Yearly Meeting C. E. Union.	537
New York Yearly Meeting	538
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	541
DEATHS	544
NEWS AND EVENTS	544
JOTTINGS, ...	550

*"I know not what the future hath
Of marvel or surprise,
Assured alone that life or death
His mercy underlies.*

*And if my heart and flesh are weak
To bear an untried pain,
The bruised reed he will not break
But strengthen and sustain.*

*No offering of my own I have,
Nor works my faith to prove:
I can but give the gifts he gave
And plead His love for love.*

*And so beside the silent sea
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.*

*I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."*

WHITTIER.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS

Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*

THE GIRARD

LIFE INSURANCE
ANNUITY AND

TRUST CO.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer.

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, JR.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,

ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.-FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Washable Waists.

Thousands of beautiful Washable
Shirt Waists, at four special prices—
50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00, and $1.25.
Some of them are worth nearly twice the money now asked:

The fifty-cent Waists are of fine
Chintz, in choice patterns and colorings; finely made and finished, and would be cheap at 75 cents.

The 75-cent Waists are of Lawn and Chintz, in a great variety of styles and colorings; Worth $1.25, as prices go. In this lot is included a very desirable offering of excellent White Lawn Waists at same price—75
cents.

The $1.00 Waists are of fine Percale, such as are rarely priced at less than $1.50. They are made and laundered in the best possible manner; all have detachable collars.

The $1.25 Waists are of fine French Percale—the quality and style generally found in made-to-order Waists only; would be good value at $1.75.
The range of colorings is wide, and the finish could not be better.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New
England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.
All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(Any subscriber of THE AMERI-
CAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper
sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to
which he would like the paper sent.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SIXTH MONTH 8, 1899.

No. 23.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

For THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SPRING.

Where autumn leaves, unlocked by frost,
Have flung their glories fast
O'er wooded slopes, like gleams of gold
From skies of sunset cast,
Swift at the bugle-note of Spring,
By blue-bird voices blown,
Dew-gemmed the violet strews the sod,
In myriad beauty sown.

When hopes and dreams lie crushed and dead,
By Sorrow's blast swept down
Upon our hearts, are there no flowers
Which, braving Winter's frown,
When smiled upon by God's great love,
And watered with our tears,
Shall waft their fragrance—ah! who knows?—
Perhaps through endless years!

BERTHA C. THORNE.

THE VINE-STOCK.

CHRISTIANITY is a religion of thought; it is a religion of faith; it is a religion of belief; it is a religion of love, but above everything else it is a religion of life. It is not enough to think correctly; it is not enough to believe rightly; it is not even enough to love deeply. The first question is one of life. "If any man BE IN CHRIST, he is a new creature." It all turns on that one question, and this distinguishes Christianity from every other religion on the globe. The New Testament has a hundred ways of saying this supreme fact of Christianity, and yet we often fail to realize how it underlies the whole method of salvation. Union with Christ, and not an opinion about Christ, is what we mean.

It is all told in one beautifully clear figure of our Master: "I am the vine-stock, ye are the branches." Spiritual life, and all that flows from it, begins when a soul comes into vital and organic relations with the living Christ, and there is no possible substitute for such a vital union. Paul at once fixed upon this as the central truth of Christianity, and he put it in one form or another before all the churches he established. Ask Paul what makes a man a Christian, and you will hear him say, "To be in Christ." He never thinks of salvation as something which goes on in a man's head, as the acceptance of certain formulas or "views." He is not interested in dried and pressed specimens of truth. For him truth is always a living thing with its currents flowing and its fruit ripening.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

We now know that it is impossible to think a single thought without a flow of blood to the brain, and we also know that it is impossible to get the blood without putting food into the system. The grain of wheat, the piece of beef, must be organic in the brain before we can think our thought, and it must be organic in the muscle before we can put forth our strength of arm. Until Christ is in a man's life and organic with his deepest self—not remote in time or space—the man is not in the truest sense a Christian.

The dynamo does not make electricity; it only furnishes a medium for electrical force to work through. The electricity is in the dynamo, though it did not originate there. A Christian is merely a medium for Christ, and the work begins and the power appears when Christ is in the man. The end and purpose of life is to "grow up into Him in all things."

CONFERENCE ON ARBITRATION AT MOHONK.

THOSE who have been privileged to attend the five annual conferences on Arbitration held at Lake Mohonk, on the invitation of our friend Albert Smiley, have been deeply impressed by the steady growth of peace sentiment and by the remarkable development of methods and conceptions of Arbitration during this short period. Five years ago the substitution of Arbitration for war seemed a dream of prophets and visionaries. This year, while the Mohonk Conference is in session, the representatives of twenty-four nations at the Hague are preparing a plan not for temporary and occasional arbitration, but for a permanent court or tribunal to settle all disputes between nations. The Mohonk Conference has devoted considerable time to a consideration of the four plans for an international court now before the Hague Conference. They are known as the American plan, the British plan, the Russian plan and the Italian plan. The American plan, in brief, is as follows: each country shall appoint a single arbitrator to be selected by the Supreme Court of the several countries. The tribunal thus formed shall have a permanent central seat, and shall be composed of at least three judges who shall not be citizens of the countries in disaccord. The general expenses shall be shared proportionally. In the event of new facts arising, the same court shall have power to try the question again. The tribunal shall not take up a case unless the parties agree to accept its decision. The tribunal shall be established when nine of the great powers shall have agreed to the conditions. This American plan is only a further development of proposals which have previously been discussed at Lake Mohonk and which were first formulated by the New York Bar Association. It is now reported that this American plan has been unanimously recommended by the Arbitration Committee of the Hague Conference, and it has been heartily endorsed at Mohonk as a practical plan. Numerous speakers at Mohonk this year have shown what an influence for universal peace is the ever-widening commerce of the world. The trade of the nations is slowly binding men together in mutual interests the world over. The benefits of civilization and the guardianship of peace are extending to the ends of the earth and the damages of war are more evident each year. The telegraph has enabled the whole world to think together. It has created an international consciousness which is slowly developing into an international CONSCIENCE. "The ships of commerce," as Gladstone once said, "passing between that land and this like the shuttles of a loom are weaving the concord of nations." It is evident there are mighty, unseen, hidden forces working in society toward ultimate peace for the world, but the ground of permanent peace must ever be the Divine Rationality and the Eternal Righteousness which gradually supplant the outbreaks of hate and insane passion. The Conference has been in a high degree hopeful, and the optimist has been frequently heard; though there have not been lacking those who have seen that much work and a profound change in popular sentiment are necessary before the nations shall learn war no more.

The following platform was unanimously adopted, and is an epitome of the exercises of this Fifth Annual Lake Mohonk Arbitration Conference:

We urge the immediate establishment of a permanent international Court, which shall be open to all nations for the adjudication of whatever controversies may arise between them, and which they are unable to settle by diplomacy or mediation.

In the constitution of this Court we urge the application of the same principles which experience has shown to be most conducive to the ends of justice in judicial controversies between individuals. In this highest of human tribunals the judges should be selected solely for their recognized ability, learning and impartiality.

During the past few years the cause of arbitration has made wonderful progress. Since our last meeting a treaty between Italy and Argentina has been negotiated. This marks a great advance over all former arbitration treaties, in that it provides for the settlement of all disputes that may arise between them, questions of honor not being excepted.

Within the past year another event of transcendent importance has occurred in the summoning by the Czar of Russia of a great international Conference to consider how war can be avoided and its burdens alleviated. This Conference marks an epoch in the history of the world. It is the first great step towards the federated peace of the world. The Czar is entitled to gratitude and respectful admiration for his noble initiative.

Earnestly do we hope that the work so auspiciously begun at The Hague will go forward until at last, and at no distant day, the peace of the world shall rest on the sure foundation of justice, and nations be relieved from the well-nigh intolerable burdens of war.

We must not forget, however, that the work of that Conference is only preliminary and that the results of its deliberations must be submitted for ratification to the several governments there represented.

We therefore here earnestly resolve to do what we can to promote popular intelligence and quicken the popular conscience, to the end that when this subject comes before our representatives at Washington there shall be no doubt as to what the people demand in this time of supreme opportunity.

We believe that the gratifying progress already made, and the inspiring hopes which we confidently entertain for the future, are because men are learning the moral righteousness of peace, and because God rules the world.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which has lately been meeting at Minneapolis, has had interesting and valuable sessions. It was preëminently a missionary gathering, as shown in the zeal that was manifested for missions and Sabbath School work. For the first time in a decade every Board in the church begins the year out of debt, and it is the assembly's purpose so to gauge work and expenses that the church may keep free of debt in the future. The Assembly declared for the expulsion of Representative Roberts, the polygamist, from the House. The action, however, that probably most interested the outside world, was the disposition of the McGiffert case. Prof. McGiffert, having been charged with heresy, was requested to withdraw certain statements on the sacraments, etc., which had appeared in a lately printed work. This Prof. McGiffert refused to do. Instead, however, of forcing a heresy trial, as might have been expected, the whole subject has been handed over to the New York Presbytery, and, if the case must be investigated, wisely so. It is unfortunate that the Presbyterian Church should be so torn as it is from time to time in hunting and correcting heretical pastors. Prof. McGiffert can now, however, be dealt with by those in his nearer vicinity who are best able to deal with the case. A tendency to the union of the Presbyterian churches of the North and South is observable, but thus far, few, if any, material gains in this direction have been made. The General Assembly will meet next year at St. Louis.

The report of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church showed that, including the indebtedness, the amount appropriated by the Assembly last year was $148,638. All current expenses were met, and the preceding two years' debt was materially reduced. The year closed with an indebtedness of $16,438. The financial conditions constrained the board to refuse the applications of at least a half dozen well qualified young men and a larger number of young women to be sent to Egypt and India. Receipts for the year, including the balance on hand April 30th, 1898, were $174,457.89. The expenditures were $174,269.35, leaving a balance on April 30th, 1899, of $188.54. The board asked the Assembly this year to make appropriations amounting to $145,738.

There is now no Sunday edition of a daily newspaper in London. The "Mail," which was the first to discontinue the Sunday editions, was soon followed by the "Telegraph," and thus, two of the most prominent journals of the metropolis resume their former conservative position.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE MERCY OF GOD.

BY ALEXANDER MACLAREN, D.D.

"The earth is full of Thy mercy" as a cup is brimming with rich wine, or as the flowers are full of morning dew.

The Psalmist's point of view is not the scientific nor the poetical. It lies back of all science, and is quite unaffected by it. He is sure that God is at work in the world, so that every creature that lives, and everything that is, lives and is because God is operative on it; and that the whole creation is the object of God's loving thought and has some reflection of His smile cast across it, as "the light of laughing flowers along the grass is spread."

A deeper faith than most men have is needed to feel thus. For, sadly, to many of us the world has come to be very empty of God, and we rather hear the creaking of the wheels of a machine or see the workings of impersonal force than hear the sound of His going or catching the gleam of His garment. But all the growth of physical knowledge may be accepted thankfully, and yet beneath all we may see the living will and work of God. There is no reason why nineteenth-century savants, full to the finger-tips of modern physical science, may not say as heartily as, and more intelligently than, the Psalmist said: "The earth, O Lord, is full of Thy mercy."

But when we include ourselves in "the earth" a different aspect is presented. The sunny play of gladness is shadowed. "I am a stranger upon earth."

Man is out of joint with the great whole, out of tune with the concert; the only hungry guest at the feast. All other creatures fit their "environment," and it them, like a glove on a hand. But we, "the roof and crown of things," have been made "acquainted with grief," have learned what they "amidst the woods have never known, the weariness, the fever, and the fret." We have burdens of toil and care, are cursed with forecast, and saddened by remembering, and torn with desires. We need something more than the "mercy" of which the earth is full to make us as completely blessed as the lowest little life that crawls or buzzes about us.

"Hide not Thy commandments from me." The one thing that will give us rest and blessedness to the height of our capacity is that we should have the knowledge and the love of the will of God.

If we delight to do His will, and lay ourselves beneath the mould of God's impressing purpose to be shaped as He will, then care and toil and sorrow and restlessness and the sense of transiency and the sorrow of homelessness cease to pain. Like some black cliff smitten by sunrise into rosy and golden glory, the ills of life are tinted and glorified when the light of God's recognized will falls on them. With His will in our hearts we can cease to feel that it is sad to be as strangers and sojourners here; for then can we say, "We seek a better country; that is, a heavenly."

We need the "statutes of the Lord"; we need no more; and they will "be our songs in the house of our pilgrimage."

If the thought, "I am a stranger upon earth," teaches us our need of God's commandments, the thought, "the earth is full of Thy mercy," assures us that we shall receive what we need. He who opens His hand and satisfies the desires of every living thing will not leave us to sit, the only hungry ones at His table. We are not intended to lie dry and dusty, like Gideon's fleece, while every blade of grass holds its own drop of dew. In a world full of God's mercy, am I to be empty of the highest mercy, the knowledge and love of God's will? Never, never can that be so.

The Psalmist's prayer on our lips becomes a prayer for more knowledge of that Christ who is God's uttered will and our law, for more love to Him whom to love is to be a stranger nowhere, and to be filled with God's mercy.

"The earth is full of Thy mercy," but the Word, who dwelt among us, is "full of grace and truth," and of His fulness can we all receive. Then we shall be strangers no longer, and our spirit shall be replenished with richer mercy than all the universe besides is capable of receiving.

Manchester, England.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Fourth Triennial Conference of the Women's Foreign Missionary Union was held at Marion, Ind., from Fifth month 18th to 21st. There were present about sixty delegates from the different associations composing the Union, New York and Canada being unrepresented. Two business meetings were held each day, the evenings being occupied principally by speakers on missionary topics. The devotional exercises of the opening meeting were conducted by the President, while those of the other meetings were placed in charge of the different delegations.

At this meeting the following missionaries were present and introduced to the Conference: Gurney Binford and Minnie Pickett Bowles from Japan; George and Sadie Weeks from Mexico; Martha Barber from India, and Lenna Stanley from China, all of whom expect to return to their fields of labor. It was a great privilege to be able to welcome these workers and hear their words of greeting and counsel.

In the afternoon session the President, Hannah Lewis Smith, delivered an address calculated to inspire renewed enthusiasm, pointing to the great openings offered for mission work by the events of the past year, and exhorting us to press on and take advantage of them. To work to fullest advantage knowledge of these needy fields must be scattered abroad freely, and if this is done, and obedience keep pace with knowledge, great things must be accomplished. The key-note of the Conference should be a reaching forward to greater things than we have ever done in the past.

Another session was devoted to the subject of Finance. The constituting boards have raised for their work during the past three years, $20,977.31, the membership as reported being at present 3,468, giving an amount per capita of about $6.05. After the reports of the Treasurer and the Secretary of Proportionate and Systematic Giving, a paper was read by Phebe S. Aydelott on the subject of "Thank-offering Boxes." The term "thank-offering" was preferred to "mite" as indicating a higher thought. The church should not be encouraged to give its mite, unless, like the widow's the mite was all its living. The feeling should rather be "What shall I render to the Lord for all His benefits?" These boxes may be called "blessing-boxes." New England Yearly Meeting has been supplied with them the past year at an expense of about $27 to the Board for all materials necessary in carrying out the plan, and the returns have been over $278. A very interesting discussion followed, showing different plans pursued in the use of such boxes and giving many valuable hints for raising missionary funds.

The missionary boards of the different Yearly Meetings presented brief reports of their work, some of them only verbal ones, but several filed longer and more complete reports with the Secretary. The report of the Department of Interest and Organization brought up a question of much interest. Four Boards—Kansas, Philadelphia, North Carolina and Oregon—have withdrawn from the Union by either giving up their separate organization or dropping the name "Women's" from their title. This action caused much regret to the Conference, not only because of the loss of members to the Union, but also because the withdrawing boards were depriving themselves of privileges in connection with many of the movements of the present day which they could only secure by retaining their organization. It was therefore decided to address a memorial to these boards, setting forth these considerations and lovingly entreating them to reconsider their action and see if it is not possible to rejoin their sisters in the department of missionary work for which women seem especially fitted, and to which, a few years ago, there seemed to be a providential and almost simultaneous call.

In the department of Junior and Juvenile Work, it appears from the report of the Secretary, that a considerable part of the work is now done by the Society of Christian Endeavor, the Bands of the missionary associations only keeping up their organization where the Christian Endeavor does not occupy the field. It is gratifying to find that the two organizations appear to be in perfect harmony, supplementing each other's efforts. A suggestive and practical paper on the manner of conducting these junior societies, prepared by Lydia G. Pettit, of Ohio, was read, and some very good recitations given by children from Marion or the vicinity.

The Secretary of the department of Literature gave a full report of the number of tracts and other literature sold or otherwise distributed since the last Conference. A paper, written by Sarah D. Brown, of New England, made several good suggestions for arousing an interest in missionary literature, such as looking up the history of missionary hymns as an exercise for missionary meetings, preparing missionary scrap-books, and taking one evening weekly in the home for missionary reading. An open parliament after the reading of the paper brought out other points of interest, such as different ways of collecting a missionary library, one good way being to fasten leaflets together as books and circulate them, and another that several persons should each contribute one book or one dollar toward the library. A periodical being a valuable part of missionary literature, the importance of a liberal support of the "Missionary Advocate" was strongly urged, and the advantages pointed out of an enlarged subscription list in making it possible to improve the paper in many ways, as, for instance, by the greater use of illustrations. As the only paper published by the Society of Friends devoted entirely to the missionary cause, it certainly deserves the support of both men and women. Gilbert Bowles, Missionary Secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society of Friends in America, who has a prospect of going with his wife as a missionary to Japan, attributes largely to his careful reading of the "Missionary Advocate" in studying up a certain subject, his awakening to the calls of the foreign field.

The first evening of the Conference was occupied by an able discourse from Gilbert Bowles, on "The Open World"; the second might be termed a symposium, as all the returned missionaries present at the Conference occupied about fifteen minutes each in relating their experiences on their various fields, Minnie Pickett Bowles appearing in the costume of a Japanese woman. The third evening Wilbur Meminger, of Chicago, discoursed on "Jewish Evangelization."

The officers of the Conference for the coming term are as follows: President, Eliza C. Armstrong; Vice Presidents, Phebe S. Aydelott and Harriet F. G. Poelle; Corresponding Secretary, Sarah J. King; Recording Secretary, Ethel Kirk Calvert; Treasurer, Esther Thomas; the secretaries of departments were all reappointed.

The Conference received a very kind invitation from the Governor of the Soldiers' Home at Marion to visit that institution one afternoon in a body, but owing to the pressure of business was unable to accept it. The pastors of the several churches invited a number of the ministers present at the Conference to occupy their pulpits on First-day, and in every way possible the delegates were made to feel that Marion welcomed their presence. Of the kindness and hospitality of the Marion Friends in opening their hearts and homes to us, it is hardly possible to speak too warmly. The remembrances of the Conference and of the pleasant acquaintances made and old friendships renewed will always mark a bright spot in our lives.

The International Lesson.

Lesson XII.

SECOND QUARTER.

Sixth month 18, 1899.

THE NEW LIFE IN CHRIST.

Colossians 3: 1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Let the peace of God rule in your hearts. Col. 3: 15.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 12.—The new life in Christ. Col. 3: 1-15.
 Third-day, Sixth mo. 13.—The new man. Eph. 4: 17-24.
 Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 14.—Children of light. 1 Thess. 5: 5-11.
 Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 15.—Walking in light. Eph. 5: 6-16.
 Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 16.—Chosen to be holy. 1 Pet. 2: 1-7.
 Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 17.—Living to God. 1 Pet. 4: 1-11.
 First-day, Sixth mo. 18.—A fruitful life. 2 Peter 1: 1-8.

The Revised Version is particularly helpful in the Epistles, and it will be used throughout in this lesson. When it is remembered that the Epistles are letters, it will be seen how much may be lost by taking chapters or verses apart from the connection of thought, and without regard to the circumstances which called them forth. The whole Epistle therefore should be read at a sitting. Paul does not seem ever to have been at Colosse (2: 1), and appears to have been personally acquainted with but few of those to whom he was writing.

The church at Colosse is supposed to have been founded by Epaphras, who is mentioned with affection in the Epistle (1: 7, 8; 4: 12). Colosse was a small town in Phrygia, Asia Minor, about twelve miles from Laodicea (4: 16). The church consisted chiefly of Gentiles (2: 13). Paul, after greeting the believers, and expressing his earnest desires and prayers for their welfare, gives a brief doctrinal exhortation (1: 14-2: 3), followed by a controversial section, in which he warns against certain errors of doctrine and practice to which those who had been Gentiles would be specially susceptible. Then follows the moral application of which the lesson forms a part.

Paul wrote from Rome (about 62 A. D.) during the period of his first imprisonment. The letter was sent by Tychicus (4: 7, 8), to whom also was entrusted the Epistle to the Ephesians (Eph. 6: 21); with him went Onesimus (4: 9), who also carried the brief letter to Philemon.

The occasion of the Epistle appears to have been the reports which Epaphras brought of the danger to which the believers at Colosse were exposed from false teachers, both Judaizers and ascetics. Compare 2: 11, 16; 20-23. Paul first sets forth the pre-eminence of Christ, and then a morality based on a spiritual life, not an outward ordinance.

1. "If ye then were raised," etc. The new life is like a resurrection from the dead. See 2: 20. "Seek the things that are above." Those lofty, noble, spiritual things which are divine—which belong to the new life with Christ.

2. "Set your mind," etc. An emphatic repetition of the thought just expressed. Compare Matt. 16: 23.

3. "For ye died." The "old man with its affections and lusts." "Your life." Not simply your spiritual life, but your true life. "Hid." Its highest characteristics are hidden from view.

4. "Shall be manifested." It is more than "appear," as in Authorized Version. It is the being made clear. "Our life." Christ is not only the author of our life. He is the essence and the impersonation of it. See Gal. 2: 20; Phil. 1: 21. "Ye also with him be manifested." Both in this world and in the world to come. Compare 1 John 3: 1, 2.

5. "Mortify." Literally, "make dead then," or slay. As they have died to sin, their lusts, their desires which have only an earthly aim should die likewise. The connection shows that the word "members" is not to be taken in a physical sense, but that the evil desires which would put the members to bad uses are to be destroyed. "Fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desires, and covetousness, which is idolatry." Specific examples. "Character is the last outcome and test of doctrine." Creed, doctrine, theology are of little account unless accompanied by practical living. The verse is a re-statement and amplification of the words of the prophet, "Cease to do evil." A man cannot be righteous until he leaves off known sin. Covetousness is idolatry because it is setting the mind on things on the earth, and placing the divine on a lower level than the things desired.

6. "Children of disobedience" are those who, knowing the right, do the wrong. The result of such action, whether it be called punishment, retribution, or natural consequences, is sure. The wrath of God is against the sin; He loves the sinner, but it would be impossible for him, as a righteous God, to condone the sin; wherefore He hath appointed a way of salvation. Compare Gal. 6: 7; Eph. 2: 4, 5.

7. "In the which," etc. These things were their sphere—showed "the character of their actions and the condition of their life."

8. "But now." Emphatic. A list of further sins follows, any one of which should not be considered as having any place in the life of a believer. "Also." With other believers. "Anger, wrath, malice, railing, shameful speaking."

9. "Lie not." A very common practice among the ancient Greeks, from which, if what travelers tell be true, many modern Greeks also are not exempt. "Seeing that." He gives the reason—the old nature has been put off, and the life must be in accord with the new.

10. "Which is being renewed." The new character has been put on, and day by day it should grow in grace and in knowledge of Christ.

11. "Where there cannot be Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision; barbarian, Scythian, bondman, freeman." The apostle dwells on what is so fruitful of strife and ill-feeling and ill-treatment; race, religious sectarianism, social condition. "Christ is all and in all." Where the Spirit of Christ is all causes of separation disappear. It is noteworthy how Christ did not speak directly against slavery and many other evils, but he inculcated that spirit and taught those doctrines, which, if they are truly accepted, make slavery and such like impossible.

12. Note the contrast between this list of the fruits of the Spirit and that list given in verses 5 and 8.

13. "Forbearing." Restraining one's self when tempted to be provoked. "If any man have a complaint against any." A cause of a quarrel. "Even as Christ." He is to be the model.

14. "Above all these things." Besides these, and around and above them all, put on love. None of the other graces is complete without love.

15. "Peace of Christ." The peace which he brings. "Rule." Restrain, act as judge. "In one body." As members of one body. "Thankful." Thanksgiving is a Christian duty.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. Put off the old man, put on the new.
2. The peace of Christ is one of His gifts.
3. "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SIXTH MONTH ELEVENTH, 1899.

INTEMPERATE PLEASURES. 2 Tim. 3: 1-7.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 12.—The lover of Pleasure. Prov. 21: 17-21.

Third-day, Sixth mo. 13.—Choked with pleasure. Luke 8: 11-15.

Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 14.—Ye have lived in pleasure. Jas. 5: 1-6.

Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 15.—This also is vanity. Eccl. 2: 1-4, 24-26.

Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 16.—Love not the world. 1 John 2: 12-17.

Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 17.—For all these things, judgment.
Eccl. 11: 9, 10; 12: 1-8.

(A Temperance Meeting.)

Sin has been defined as the perversion and diversion of natural appetites and passions. Lust is simply overgrown desire. Within a certain limit, and for right ends gratification of desire is right, but all beyond that is evil. The force within men that always craves for indulgence beyond right limits is like a poison in the blood, a perversion in the nature. The sanctifying power of God does blessedly eliminate this unnatural craving, but it leaves a man with all his natural appetites and passions as God made him, and it is generally conceded that their first action is instinctive and has no particular moral quality. The conscience of man must pass judgment on the moral quality of the desire, and if it is evil, ring out an everlasting "no," and a life in the power of the Spirit triumphs over the desire and goes on the way of righteousness.

The topic suggests that there are temperate pleasures, and only a mischievous asceticism undertakes to deny it. Relaxation is necessary for recreation. The strings of the violin must be released from their extreme tension. It is wicked to repress all the play spirit of a boy. It is,—I scarcely know what,—for a man to forget that he was ever a boy.

But what are intemperate pleasures? Any pleasure is intemperate that is indulged at the expense of a higher duty, or of a higher pleasure. A pleasure is intemperate when the higher moral or spiritual nature must be dwarfed or injured in its gratification. A game innocent in itself easily becomes injurious through excess, or, what is more, through association with evil. A really good game should be educative of eye, hand, or brain. It should also be the education that eye, hand, or brain need at that particular moment. Foods and drinks furnish intemperate pleasures. It is utterly wrong to keep on eating after one has enough, simply because the food tickles the palate. Food and drink are helpful only when they build up the body, not when they destroy its tissues, and produce an unnatural stimulus. Many young people find it hard to cease living wholly in the realm of physical enjoyment. The desire for pleasure of a higher order is very weak. But it is needful to remember that we can cultivate the desire for pleasure in such directions as we choose. It is folly to yield ourselves to our present uncultivated desires as though we were their slaves instead of their masters.

We live in the "last days" of our text, if the signs therein described are an evidence of the fact. It is always "last days" when increasing wealth enables men to gratify without limit their tastes and appetites. It is certain that it is "last days" for them, at any rate. Such families soon run out by a law of nature. Enough of them will soon sink the nation.

Christianity means not only a higher ideal of life, but also a power to reach the ideal. That Christianity confers upon us the opportunity to increase wealth is only half a truth. If we stop there, as many seem inclined to do at this stage of our nation's history, it will mean our ruin. But it also means the opportunity and wisdom for the right use of wealth. Righteousness brings a material reward. The expenditure of the material rewards for the good of others brings in turn the still higher spiritual reward.

To be sober, circumspect, watchful in all things, so that no man will despise our youth, is the serious duty of young people. In these days of intemperate pleasure be careful that you do not go too far. There is a good, healthy, sober judgment of the Christian Church with regard to amusements that it is not wise for you to ignore. I should like to put myself on record again on this matter by saying that after twenty-five years of experience as a pastor and evangelist, I have yet to find one professing Christian that is a real soul winner or spiritual power in the church, who is also a frequenter of the theatre, card table, or ball room. But I have seen scores drift away from Christ who began by venturing little by little over the line in these directions. I can recall cases of those who began with card parties who have ended in shameless immorality. Beware of a wilful disregard of counsel in this matter.

THE ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN MISSIONS.

BY M. M. BINFORD.

Most of our readers are already aware that arrangements are being made for the holding of a World's Conference on Foreign Missions in New York city, April 21st to May 1st, 1900, similar to the great conference held in London in 1888. There is reason to believe that the gathering in New York will far exceed the other in magnitude, and in the scope of the subjects discussed. All missionary societies and mission lands will be represented, and men of ability and reputation in both hemispheres will speak on the successes, methods and problems of missions. The great work done by women will receive full attention, and the relation of young people and young peoples' organizations to the work of foreign missions will be given a large place on the program. The churches, missionary organizations, and public generally of New York and vicinity will be aroused to an interest in the conference, and every effort made to provide royally for the delegates who may come. The largest halls of the city will be secured, and the homes of the people thrown open to our guests. The authority and purpose of foreign missions, the consecration of the church to foreign missions, the support of foreign missions, the administration of foreign missions, the review of a hundred years of missions, the survey of fields, the Bible and foreign missions, the outlook for the coming century, comity in missions, self-support by the native churches, employment of native agencies, missionary candidates, educational, evangelistic, literary, medical, and benevolent work, women's work, and much more, are samples of the topics that will be considered in this great gathering.

It is expected that full statistics will be presented of the work throughout the entire world; missionary exhibits are being planned setting forth the characteristics of races among whom missions are established, printed matter in use by missionaries, photographs of missionaries, churches, school buildings, etc., etc.

This conference will be held under the auspices of the Annual Conference of Foreign Mission Boards of the United States and Canada, and large committees have already been appointed to arrange for the multitudinous details. Dr. Judson Smith, Chairman of the Executive Committee, is now in Europe arranging for the part to be taken by European delegates.

Inasmuch as the United States and Canada are the hosts of this great gathering, an opportunity is offered to all churches to contribute at least $5.00 to the expenses of the same. All who do so will receive in return the two bound volumes giving full reports of the conference.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION.

The sessions of the Yearly Meeting at Poughkeepsie brought together a considerable number of Endeavorers, many of whom are active workers in the business of the Yearly Meeting itself, as well as in their own organization. The public meeting of the Union was held on Fifth-day evening, the opening day of the Yearly Meeting. The annual address was given by M. M. Binford, on the "Higher Laws of Service," after which the Poughkeepsie society held a reception for all visiting Endeavorers and others, serving refreshments in the Bible School room.

At the business meeting of the Union on Seventh-day afternoon, the following report was presented by Sarah Keates, Secretary of the Union. It shows the usual large contributions for foreign missions, $888.05, with only 683 active members in the Union; this is a remarkable showing. Not content with this, the Union is planning to assist in sending out another missionary from among its number the coming year—George DeVoll, of Glens Falls Society, now residing in New York city, who goes to Nanking as a medical missionary.

On Second-day evening a special meeting was held to consider the subjects of proportionate giving, missionary work, Bible study, and the Quiet Hour.

The officers of the Union for the coming year are: President, Eli Reece, Plattekill, N. Y.; Vice-President, Elizabeth C. F. Stevens; Secretary, Sarah Keates, Glens Falls, N. Y.; Treasurer, Orlando Marine, 606 Fifth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

REPORT.

In reviewing the past year's work we realize that the blessing of the Lord has been upon us, as our service has been rendered "For Christ and the church." Several of the societies have not been heard from, and one reports not meeting as a society at present, but using the topic at mid-week prayer meetings. There has been an increase in membership of one hundred and thirty-one. Four societies report conversions, and forty members have joined the church. Six of the societies report being actively engaged in mission services and Sabbath Schools, and are conscious of the blessing of the Master on the work.

We believe the spirit of the pledge in "striving to do whatever the Master would like to have us do" is exercised in our membership, and is evidenced in the lives of the young people. Quite a number have taken the Quiet Hour pledge, and testify to the blessing it is in their lives.

$1,621.50 has been raised, $888.05 of which has been used in foreign missions, $248.72 in home missions, and $484.73 for other purposes.

Eighty of our members are reported tithing their income, while one hundred and eighty-three pledge two cents per week or more for missions. Most of our societies have active interest in the foreign missionary work, and we have known of God's blessing on our efforts, as most encouraging letters have been received regularly from our missionary, Margaret Holme, in China, and as we have heard how the Lord has owned her work there, it has blessed and rejoiced our hearts at home, encouraging us to still further effort, looking forward to the day when "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of the Lord and His Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." We have also helped in supporting work in Mexico, India, Ramallah, Cuba, and Y. M. C. A. army work.

In the home work much good has been done, clothing and food having been sent to missions and needy families; and an interest has been taken in the colored school at High Point, N. C. Flowers and fruit have been sent to the hospitals; temperance, peace and gospel literature was sent to the camps during the war.

Many of the societies have been active in temperance work; peace work has also been carried on, having talks on the subject, and peace petitions signed. Cottage prayer meetings have been held in many places.

Our evangelist, Anna S. Leggett, has not been able to accomplish as much this past year as formerly on account of poor health, but it is hoped she may be able to engage in the work again, as there is great need of some one who is able to visit the different societies, encouraging those who need help, and organizing where there is an opening.

From the societies that have reported there is a membership of 952; active, 683; associate, 192; honorary, 77. It is to be regretted that there is now only two Junior societies existing, there being so much need of this work. One superintendent, replying to a request for a report, said that she had had to give up the work for want of assistance. If only the importance of this work was realized there surely would be more done, for this is the field of training for active service in later years, and a means of holding the young.

From one Junior Society six have stepped into the Senior this year. There is a membership of 57, and many of the little ones are active workers. A little girl on the Sunshine and Temperance Committee reports having had seventy-five temperance pledges signed, making forty-five calls and taking flowers to the sick, and collecting cards for the use of missionaries. Our hearts are filled with gratitude for the blessing of the past year, and with consecrated hearts, trusting in His strength, we look forward to better service in the coming year, with the Holy Spirit to lead us. "We press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

For the Society,

SARA R. KEATES,

Recording and Corresponding Secretary.

Fifth month 25th, 1899.

Andrew Carnegie's supplementary gift of nearly $2,000,000 to Pittsburg bids fair to give the citizens of that city a plant for general culture, "without money and without price," that will exceed that of any city of similar size in the country.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

New York Yearly Meeting held its 204th session at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., commencing on Sixth-day, the 26th, and closing on Third-day, 30th of Fifth month, 1899.

The meeting of ministers and elders convened at 11 a.m. Fifth-day, 26th. A goodly number were present, together with several visiting ministers from other Yearly Meetings. After a brief season of silent and vocal prayer Isom P. Wooton spoke of the needs confessed in the prayers offered, and urged upon all present the necessity of unity, not only in expressions of praise for past mercies, but also in the exercise of faith in God, that we may receive from Him the blessings He is waiting to bestow. He pressed upon the membership the necessity of a true fellowship with the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, in order that we might be drawn into a closer union with the purpose of God in the work of seeking to save the lost and perishing souls all about us.

The clerk, Mary S. Knowles, then read the opening minute, after which the roll call of delegates was made, and extracts from the minutes of last Yearly Meeting were read. Many cordial expressions of welcome were extended to all the visitors present.

Memorials of the following Elders were presented for Martha Heaton, Daniel Varney and Jonathan W. Potter. Allusion was also made to the death of Joshua M. Dean and Henry C. Wiman, who had passed away since our last meeting. Expressions of esteem for their faithfulness to the church were made by many, and their memory is cherished with tender affection.

Reference to the absence of some aged Friends brought expressions of sympathy from those present, and the clerk was directed to send notes to several of these.

At the afternoon session William G. Hubbard, of Ohio, and James M. Estes, of New England Yearly Meeting, offered prayer, after which the delegates proposed the name of Mary S. Knowles as clerk and Thomas R. Baker as assistant clerk, which was united with by the meeting.

The consideration of the state of the membership was then entered upon. From replies to the queries it appears that the body is sound in doctrine and desires the extension of the kingdom of Christ. The study of the Scriptures is maintained, with prayer for the illumination of the Holy Spirit. Accounts of much faithful service was received, coupled with confessions of many conscious shortcomings, and the desire to be found faithfully entering upon the work of the Master in those portions of the field not already occupied by the church. The membership of the meeting at present was reported as 72 ministers and 253 elders.

After the reading of the various reports there were a few minutes of silent contemplation of our condition and responsibilities, following which James Wood spoke of our relation to each other as the servants of the church of Jesus Christ. After defining the position of the minister and elder, he encouraged faithfulness; the power in the ministry of the word as revealed to them by the Spirit; and the latter in the exercise of the gift of discernment, which is supposed to be the peculiar characteristic of the elder. He feared that many of the complaints against ministers were not so much attributable to them as to a lack of fidelity to duty on the part of elders.

He urged greater care in this matter, that they might faithfully do their whole duty to the ministers and the church, believing that if this were done there will be less complaint against the ministry, and the condition of the particular meetings and the church will be improved.

Isom P. Wooton spoke of the need of education and encouragement of the young, illustrating by instances from Old and New Testament history. He enjoined upon elders faithfulness in rendering assistance to those who are called in the matter of their preparation and sending forth, and urged that they rise to the blessed possibilities in preparing the way and sending out the heralds of the cross, even though it mean self-denial now, yet the results will more than compensate in time and in eternity. Oliver White, James B. Palmer, Anna S. Leggett and Frances J. Barnes took part in the discussion of the theme, followed by Richard H. Thomas, who urged remembrance of the fact that it is not method of itself which will tell, but the power of God in the individual member of the church and in every branch of the work. Thus there will be development of all the gifts and graces of the spirit. James M. Estes also spoke, after which the meeting bowed before God in prayer that He might bless the consideration of this subject to the church.

In the evening the Representative Meeting met for the transaction of business. At the same time the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor had a public meeting, Lindley M. Stevens, president, in the chair. After the opening exercises Micajah M. Binford delivered an address on "Higher Laws of Service," which was listened to with much interest by the large audience. At the close a very pleasant season was spent socially, and refreshments were served by the local society.

Sixth-day morning a devotional meeting was held at 8.30 a.m. Eli G. Parker and wife with others were present.

At 10 a.m. the Yearly Meeting assembled. The main floor of the meeting house was well filled and a few seats in the galleries. Some visitors were present, including ministers from other denominations. After a very precious season of prayer Micajah M. Binford spoke of the need of a closer knowledge of God by personal revelation, quoting the words, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." Not some special phase of truth or experience, but a closer knowledge of Him through personal revelation.

James Wood said the ideal church was theocratic. Individuals are nothing only as the spirit of God rested upon them for service. Under this theocracy our polity is democratic, and we meet on an equality in which every member has equal privileges. When this is rightly understood and exercised there will be a harmonious laboring together for the accomplishing of the business and the increased usefulness of the church.

After loving words of greeting and extension of courtesy to all visitors present the opening minute of the two hundred and fourth annual meeting of Friends in New York was read, followed by reports from the various Quarterly Meetings giving names of persons appointed as representatives. The total number of these was 96, of whom 25 were absent from the roll call; others, however, came in later.

Invitations were received from New York, Poughkeepsie, Glens Falls and Union Springs, asking that the sessions of the Yearly Meeting in 1900 be held in these respective places. These, with other important matters, were referred to a later sitting.

The minutes of the following visiting ministers were then read: Richard H. Thomas and Anna B. Thomas, from Baltimore Yearly Meeting; Isom P. Wooton and Margery L. Wooton, an elder; Eli G. Parker and Mary M. Parker, from Iowa; James M. Estes and Anna L. Manchester, an elder, from New England Yearly Meeting; Walter S. Aldrich and William G. Hubbard, of Ohio, and Oliver White, of Indiana Yearly Meeting.

The clerk, with many others, welcomed these Friends, together with those present without minutes. Responses were made by Isom P. Wooton, James M. Estes, Eli G. Parker and Richard H. Thomas, after which the meeting united in singing part of the hymn beginning

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love," as expressing in song the blessedness of true fellowship in the church of Christ.

Epistles of fraternal greetings were read from London, Canada and New England Yearly Meetings, referring to the various branches of church work in which we are mutually engaged. These brought forth many expressions of sympathy and esteem.

The afternoon session opened with the singing of "All hail the power of Jesus' name." Prayer was offered by Richard H. Thomas and James M. Estes. The committee of representatives proposed the names of James Wood for clerk and David S. Taber for assistant clerk, which was unanimously agreed to.

After the appointment of standing committees and referring to them several matters of detail for their consideration and report, the annual report of the Bible School was read, showing much blessed work accomplished during the past year, not only in the instruction imparted, but in the results as seen in conversions, missionary and other efforts by the schools.

Many Friends expressed gratitude for the work accomplished through this agency, and the request that the names of Charlotte M. Birdsall and Rhoda A. Adams be added to their number was united with.

The report of the Murray Fund was then laid before the meeting and many thanks were expressed to the trustees for the careful administration of this fund, which was established sixty-five years ago. During the year it has disbursed over $2,000, in accordance with the will of the donor. One thousand dollars has been spent on educational and industrial work amongst the colored people, $300 for work among Indians, $290 for the dissemination of literature, $100 for the sick and suffering, and the balance for other philanthropic purposes.

The Young People's Devotional Meeting at 6.30 was under the care of Anna Leggett and Mina Harkness. There was a good attendance and it proved a season of blessing to many.

At 7.45 the public meeting of the Bible School Board was held. After devotional exercises Rufus M. Jones, of THE AMERICAN FRIEND, delivered an address on "The History of the Bible School and Its Methods." He treated the Bible School as "an effort at civilization," spoke of its ancient origin, later developments and vital importance in home, church and national life, and urged fidelity to a work so crowned with blessed results. He was listened to by the large audience with much interest and edification.

SEVENTH-DAY MORNING.

The devotional hour, at 8.30, was in charge of William G. Hubbard, of Ohio, and the main theme was "The life more abundant," and though the Representative Meeting, Temperance and other Committees were in session, there was a good attendance. Brother Hubbard was favored in his presentation of truth and hearts were cheered and blessed.

At 10 a.m. the business session resumed. A season of prayer was followed by the reading of epistles from Dublin, Baltimore, North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana and Western Yearly Meetings. The clerk also read a letter from the clerk of Wilmington Yearly Meeting, expressing regret that their epistle to us had been mislaid.

The epistle from Dublin Yearly Meeting only arrived to-day, just after their annual session had closed. It was much enjoyed. Baltimore spoke of their work in building a meeting house in Washington, and a committee was appointed to receive subscriptions to aid them in this work of national significance.

The epistles from North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana and Western Yearly Meetings were very cheering, telling of much blessed work accomplished and their reaching out to unpossessed fields. The letter from the clerk of Wilmington Yearly Meeting was in itself a fraternal greeting from that body.

A Committee on Finance having been appointed the report of the Book and Tract Committee was read and showed a large amount of work accomplished, not only within the limits of New York, but in other Yearly Meetings. Charles W. Lawrence, James Wood, Hannah H. Leggett, Mary Moore, Isom P. Wooton and others spoke in terms of warm commendation of the work, urging a still wider interest in the spread of Friends' literature.

The report of the H. H. Mosher Fund followed, from which it was learned that their operations in distributing free literature covered a large area. Eight hundred and six volumes, many pamphlets, subscriptions to THE AMERICAN FRIEND and "Friends' Missionary Advocate" have been distributed through fourteen States and in the Territory of Oklahoma.

The report of the Committee on Peace and Arbitration, and the reading of an epistle from the Peace Association of Friends in America, created much interest. Whilst they spoke of much work performed, faithfulness on the part of our membership in maintaining our peace principles was enjoined, and whilst they rejoiced in the holding of the Peace Conference in Europe, they feel the need of moral and financial support in their efforts. Richard H. Thomas and others spoke upon the subject very acceptably, and later two delegates were appointed members of the Advisory Board of the Peace Association.

At 2 p.m. the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor held their annual business meeting. It was brimfull of ardent enthusiasm from start to finish, and a report of same will appear in the Christian Endeavor Department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The afternoon session opened with a devotional season, after which epistles from Kansas, Iowa, Oregon and California were read. These were full of interesting matter, and the meeting rejoined with them in their successes in evangelistic, missionary and educational work, sympathy being expressed for the young meetings on the Pacific coast, and encouragement toward their missionary effort in reaching out to "the regions beyond." An Epistle Committee was appointed to produce drafts of epistles at a future session.

Mary S. Kimber graphically described a work among the young people at Oakwood Seminary for the purpose of developing their knowledge of the principles, doctrines and practices of the church, from which it was gleaned that the young people had entered heartily into the effort and much good is expected therefrom.

The meeting then entered upon a consideration of the work of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and the Board of Home and Foreign Missions. The former is engaged in work in Japan, Syria, India and other places. George F. De Vol, a young member of the Society, has offered himself as a missionary ready to go to China, and it is hoped and believed that arrangements will be completed whereby he may go out under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, the Board of Home and Foreign Missionary Society and the Christian Endeavor Society.

The Board of Home and Foreign Missions is engaged in work among the colored people, Indians and in Mexico. The industrial and academic work among the colored people at High Point, N. C., is in charge of Albert J. Griffin, and he has proved himself "the right man in the right place" amongst his own race.

He was present and supplemented the report by the recital of personal experiences among the ~~the~~ ^{been} ~~and~~ ^{citizens} of North Carolina. The religious interests are ^{as of} ~~on~~ as of primary importance in this work.

The work among the Indians of Indian and Oklahoma Territories is also of a deeply interesting nature, showing much faithful labor and many cheering incidents. The work in Mexico, which has been limited for lack of means, has been placed in a better position prospectively by a bequest from the late Martha Heaton, and it is believed that this work will receive new impetus in the near future.

Micajah M. Binford spoke of the amount raised for missions during the year as in excess of five thousand dollars. Mary S. Kimber made a touching appeal for those who were bound in the night of idolatry, error, superstition and cruelty, and was followed by Elmer D. Gildersleeve, Hannah H. Leggett and others. It was stated that there was a deficiency of $56 at the close of the year. A friend agreed to meet this amount, and a collection was then taken up for the use of the Board amounting to $885.24.

The Young People's Meeting at half-past six was held under the care of Thomas E. Williams.

At 7.45 the annual public meeting of the Board of Home and Foreign Missions was held. Representatives of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and others were on the platform. After devotional exercises, in which Rufus M. Jones and Richard H. Thomas participated, Professor Griffin spoke of the very interesting work of educating and uplifting the colored people of the South as the chief remedy for racial troubles.

Margaret Leitch, of the American Board of Missions, then addressed the meeting. She spoke of her own experiences among the colored people of the South and afterwards of her work in Ceylon, giving thrilling descriptions of the ignorance, poverty, superstition and cruelty which abound in the dark places of the earth.

After this dark and gloomy picture she skilfully portrayed the wondrous light of the Gospel, which has illumined the darkness, of the result of missionary effort, which has made the wilderness blossom as the rose. She gave many touching instances of the power of the gospel, and told how the children are being won, educated and trained for Christ. She then sang in Tamil the well-known hymn, sung by thousands of children in Christian lands,

"Jesus loves me, this I know,
For the Bible tells me so;
Little ones to Him belong;
We are weak, but He is strong."

She urged upon her audience fidelity in living, giving and praying, that this work, bound up in the great heart of Jesus Christ, may not be hindered by lack on our part, and spoke of the fidelity of the converts in these matters.

FIRST-DAY 28TH.

Meetings were in session all day at the meeting house, Montgomery Street. Rufus M. Jones spoke at the morning meeting on "New Birth." His message was clear, convincing and in the spirit's power. He was followed by Isom P. Wooton, on "The Commandments of Jesus," being a continuation of the thought in the former discourse, and was much favored in his presentation.

Eli G. Parker and wife spoke at the afternoon session to a goodly company. In the evening Richard H. and Anna B. Thomas preached to a large congregation.

Various ministers spoke in several of the churches. Anna S. Leggett and others were at the Rescue Mission, and William G. Hubbard delivered a very forceful open air temperance address at the Court House.

Thus much faithful effort was put forth by the Master's laborers on this Yearly Meeting Sabbath, and we believe fruit will remain to God's glory.

SECOND-DAY, 29TH.

Whilst the early morning devotional meeting, in care of Walter Aldrich, was in session in the lower room, an adjourned meeting of ministers and elders was held upstairs. Mary Jane Weaver, Eli G. Parker, Isom P. Wooton and others presented loving messages, reminding us that we are living epistles, read and known of all men; that we must examine ourselves as to whether we have the conscious presence and power of God with us, and seek to perfect our church organization, so that we may be able to occupy and gather in golden sheaves from the white harvest fields of the world.

At 10 a.m. the business session was preceded by a season of worship. Anna S. Leggett sang "Unanswered Yet" with much feeling. The first matter presented was the record of the proceedings of the Representative Meeting, showing a large amount of work accomplished by this body in the administration of trust funds and the disposition of matters referred to them.

The record of the meeting of ministers and elders was then read, containing statistical information, together with memorials of departed Friends, and expressions of gratitude for the conscious presence of God in their gatherings.

This was followed by the reading of the report of the Christian Endeavor Society, showing much activity on the part of this important branch of our church work, and they were encouraged to persevere in their efforts for Christ and the church.

The statistics of the Society were then introduced, and a summary was read.

It was explained that in some parts of the Yearly Meeting there had been a revision of the list of membership, so that many names which had been carried for years on the records, but who from various reasons had not attended meetings for worship, had been dropped this year. The losses for the year were 236, and the additions 199, leaving the number of the present membership at 3,832.

At the afternoon session, after a season of prayer in which several participated, a cablegram was received from the London Yearly Meeting, now in session, which read as follows: "London Yearly Meeting responds warmly to your greetings. May wisdom and peace be granted you in your deliberations." Many expressions of gladness were heard, whilst the official record stated that the Yearly Meeting was grateful to Almighty God that these good wishes had received literal fulfilment in all our sessions.

The consideration of "the state of society" was then entered upon. A very encouraging view is gathered from the reports. The various agencies, consisting largely of our younger members, are proving a great blessing to the church. A deeper spiritual growth has been manifested in the meetings, bringing an increase to the membership and binding all more closely together in union with our blessed Lord.

The annual report of the Evangelistic Committee was brought before the meeting. It spoke of much good work accomplished through its instrumentality, and pointed out the further possibilities that lie all round the church. Isom P. Wooton, Anna B. Thomas, James M. Estes, Richard H. Thomas, and several members spoke encouragingly of the work in hand.

The term of the present committee having expired, a new committee is appointed this year with an enlarged scope, to be known as the Evangelistic and Church Extension Committee.

The trustees of Oakwood Seminary 'aid their annual report before the meeting. It was full of interesting matter, manifesting much trying labor and self-denial in time and means on the part of the members of the board. Much detailed information as to the success of the institution was contained in the reports. The receipts for the year amounted to $12,890.06, and its disbursements $12,026.99, leaving a balance on hand of $863.07. The report was accepted with thankfulness to the board for their arduous and faithful services, and they were encouraged to persevere in the good work.

The Educational Committee brought in their report, and announced the arrangement for an educational conference to be held that evening. They were directed to appoint delegates to the educational conference in Sixth month at Providence, R. I.

The Young People's Meeting at 6.30 was in charge of Eli Reece, the newly-elected president of the Yearly Meeting. He spoke on systematic giving, and was followed by W. C. Taber on missions.

M. M. Binford urged the importance of Bible study, and Harry R. Keates spoke on the Quiet Hour. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

At 7.45 an educational conference was held, W. C. Taber presiding. Addresses were delivered by Rufus M. Jones, George A. Barton and Dr. R. J. Russell Taber, which were listened to with rapt attention. At the close a social season was enjoyed by the alumni of the Yearly Meeting School and their friends. Refreshments were served.

Third-day, 30th.—The devotional meeting at 8.30 was under the care of Anna B. Thomas, James M. Estes and others participating. It was well attended.

At 10 a.m. the business meeting was opened with prayer and loving ministry on the part of several, and as this was announced as the final session, several of our visiting friends bade the meeting farewell, with expressions of pleasure at being present, and prayed for continued blessing on the work of the Yearly Meeting.

After the opening minute the report of the Temperance Committee was then considered. It showed much good work done, but the conditions around us emphasized the need of continued faithfulness and increased effort. Many members, together with W. G. Hubbard, of Ohio, and Deborah W. Leeds, of Philadelphia, spoke words of commendation and encouragement. The latter prayer fervently for the workers and the work of the Yearly Meeting, touching many hearts.

It was decided to request the President to suspend the operation of the canteen until some final interpretation of the Anti-Canteen bill is forthcoming, and the clerk was requested to sign and forward same.

Harry R. Keates was appointed a delegate to the next annual meeting of the American Anti-Saloon League.

Whilst in the judgment of the committee having charge of the proposed summer school way did not open for a general conference at this time, it was left with the committee to endeavor to hold local conferences as way may open.

James Wood and Joshua L. Barton are appointed delegates to the educational conference at Providence, R. I.

The Board of Home and Foreign Missions were authorized to appoint two persons as representatives on the Central Board of Friends' Missions.

After several committee appointments had been made, the drafts of epistles to the various Yearly Meetings were submitted. The report of the Finance Committee was read, and several matters of detail, including the issue of returning minutes to visiting Friends, was attended to.

Expressions of gratitude for mercies and blessings received were uttered by Eli G. Parker, Richard H. Thomas, Charles W. Lawrence, Wm. G. Hubbard and others.

The clerk read his closing minute, and the congregation rising, joined in singing "All hail the power of Jesus' name."

The divine benediction was implored, and the two hundred and fourth annual meeting of Friends in New York adjourned to meet next year in New York city if the Lord will.

In the evening a public temperance meeting was held. Addresses were given by Deborah W. Leeds and Frances J. Barnes on the subject of temperance. Anna B. Thomas recited Joaquin Miller's "The Bravest of the Brave," and Richard H. Thomas spoke on "Christian Responsibility for Present Conditions," dealing with the awful results of drink and war, and urging personal responsibility on all to stem the tide of death from these terrible evils.

News from the Field.

The following cablegram was received by New York Yearly Meeting:

"London Yearly Meeting responds warmly to your greeting. May wisdom and peace be granted you in your deliberation."

CHARLES MORLAND, Clerk."

A. H. Pickering and wife, of Chicago, expect to attend the sessions of New England Yearly Meeting. They then expect to be at Saco, Maine, until Seventh month 4th, after which their address will be South China, Maine, until Ninth month 10th.

Albert Smiley is doing the world a great service by calling together two great conferences each year to discuss methods of arbitration for the nations of the world and plans for improving the condition of the American Indian. At the recent conference held from the 31st of Fifth month to the 3d of Sixth month the following Friends were in attendance: James and Emily Wood, Richard and Sarah Collins, Frances J. Barnes, Mary Tatum, Richard H. and Anna B. Thomas, Isaac Brooks, Jane White, Alexander Wood and wife, Rufus M. Jones, Deborah Leeds, Catharine Shipley, Frances B. G. Branson, Joshua L. Bailly, El-liston P. Morris and wife, William C. Allen and wife and Hannah J. Bailey. Ex-Senator Edmunds presided, and addresses were made by some of the foremost speakers and thinkers of this country.

Joel and Hannah E. Bean, with their daughter, Lydia S. B. Cox, and granddaughters, Anna Shipley and Catharine Cox, left San Francisco on the 17th ult. for the Hawaiian Islands, particularly the island of Mani, where their daughter Catharine and Isaac M. Cox are located. They expect to be gone three months. They will be greatly missed from our little meeting, though all are glad for them to have the needed outing. They spent about a year in the islands, visiting the missions, in the early sixties, receiving a minute from Indiana Yearly Meeting. Their visit and services are well-remembered by the missionaries who were there at the time, with many of whom acquaintance has been kept up by correspondence, and those remaining it will be interesting to meet again. On the 21st ult. a party of twenty Friends (excursionists) from New Jersey were at San Jose and attended College Park Meeting. Friends were glad of their company, though sorry for them to miss so many absentees. Isabella C. De Velling, superintendent of the Shasta Retreat, a resort for temperance people, near Mount Shasta, was also present and preached. Ruth S. Murray is always a welcome visitor at College Park. Joel Bean's P. O. address at the islands will be Wailuku, Mani, Hawaiian Islands, care D. M. Cox.

NEW ENGLAND YEARLY MEETING.

Dartmouth Monthly Meeting, Massachusetts.—The two hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Dartmouth Monthly Meeting, Massachusetts, will be observed on the Fifth of Seventh month next. This Monthly Meeting was set up in the year 1699. In 1766 the Monthly Meeting of Acoaxet (now Westport) was set off from it, and in 1792 New Bedford Monthly Meeting was set off also, the former on the western side and the latter on the eastern. Dartmouth was originally a great meeting in numbers, and until 1788 was a part of Rhode Island Quarterly Meeting, and was transferred, with its daughter, Westport, to Sandwich Quarterly Meeting at the latter date. The exercises will be held at the ancient meeting place at Apponegansett (five miles from New Bedford) at 11.30 a.m. Friends in New England and elsewhere are invited to be present. Those who attend are requested to carry a lunch with them. The details in connection with the event are not as yet fully arranged. Those from away are requested to come directly to New Bedford, as transportation to the meeting place can be more readily secured from there. Jarges will leave Friends' Meeting House, New Bedford, for Aponegansett at 10.30 a.m. at a fair price per passenger. Further information with regard to the observance of the event will be furnished later.

E. T. T.

New Bedford, Mass., Fifth month 29th, 1899.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Alba, Mo.—A series of meetings was held here from the 23d of Second month to the 12th of Third month inclusive, conducted by Mollie Sibbett, of Hoisington, Kan., and Rosanna Pickering, of Friendship, Kan. In all there were twenty-five sessions. While there were not as many definitely blessed as was desired, we believe it was a time of seed sowing, especially among the younger people and children. This is a portion of the country where lead and zinc mines abound, and along with the mining industry many evils are attached, especially the drink habit. Sister Sibbett was bold and fearless in denouncing drunkenness with all its kindred evils, having had much experience in slum work in the larger towns of Colorado for a number of years. Her work has been mostly in Denver and Pueblo in the Humane Society. Eternity alone can unfold the result of her labors here in Gospel and temperance work. As a result of the labors of these sisters we feel the temperance sentiment is gaining ground. May the Lord bless them, and grant that all lovers of truth may be banded together for the overthrow of the saloon, the greatest curse of the nineteenth century.

A. LINDLEY HAWORTH.

Walnut Creek Quarterly Meeting of Friends was held at Glen Elder, Kansas, Fifth month 19th, 20th and 21st. Sixth-day-morning the Doctrinal Conference met; Sixth-day afternoon the meeting of Ministry and Oversight. Joseph Coleman, from Iowa, was the only minister present from another Quarterly Meeting. We also had the acceptable company of the following ministers, members of this Quarterly Meeting: D. H. Dillon, R. C. Smith, Zimri Hadley, Daniel Davis, and our home minister, W. R. Gregory. On Seventh-day meeting opened with singing, then the offering up of many heartfelt prayers, followed by Bible Reading by Zimri Hadley, then brief talk by Joseph Coleman, R. C. Smith and others. Business meeting followed. A missionary meeting was held Seventh-day night. On First-day services were held in the new building, which is nearly completed. Joseph Coleman preached upon the topic, "The Holy Place and the Most Holy," followed by D. H. Dillon, whose text was found in Eze. 47: 9. The closing session, the Christian Endeavor Union, was held First-day night at Fairview Church, three miles distant. It was a good Quarterly Meeting throughout—a time of refreshing in the presence of the Lord.

N. A. HADLEY.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—Oskaloosa Quarterly Meeting was held at Wright from the 26th to the 28th of Fifth month. Besides our home ministers we had the company of Susie B. Sisson, of Buffalo Monthly Meeting, Kansas, who is temporarily sojourning at Oskaloosa. She preached Sixth, Seventh and First days very acceptably and with power. On Seventh-day she spoke from the text, "Where is the Lord God of Elijah?" and on First-day the text was, "There was a famine in the land of Israel for three years, year after year." The sister was very much favored in these services. Her messages were clear, forcible and loving. Minnie Pickett Bowles gave an address on Sixth-day evening, which was very helpful. Our Quarterly Meeting was a time of blessing to all who were present. Our home ministers and the members generally took an active part when occasion offered. The business was done with dispatch and unity.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Sand Creek Seminary closed a very successful year Fifth month 26th. The exercises in the afternoon were given by the class in English. The progress made by the pupils in this branch was greatly appreciated by the patrons. In the evening an interesting lecture on the subject of education was given by G. C. Brown, pastor of Friends' Church at Indianapolis. The music was furnished by a female quartette, whose services added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Formerly this school has sent many pupils to Earlham. Its old friends will be glad to learn that after being discontinued for several years it has been revived. The year's work just completed has been very gratifying to all concerned. The school next year will be continued under the efficient management of Prof. Allen D. Hole, Secretary of School Board.

OREGON YEARLY MEETING.

Rosedale, Oregon.—Salem Quarterly Meeting was held at Rosedale for the first time on the 19th, 20th and 21st. It was a time long to be remembered. Many were blessed. Levi D. Barr, from Hoisington, Kan., was present, and his ministration from the beginning to the close was with the demonstration of the Spirit and with power. There were five sessions devoted to special gospel work. Thirty-six in all went to the altar to claim a definite blessing from God. There was no undue excitement, but a real deep feeling of God's presence was felt by all. There was a good attendance from all the other meetings. All our home ministers were present except J. H. Douglas, who is laboring in the limits of Western Yearly Meeting. A letter of greeting was read from him. Lunch was served on the grounds on both Seventh and First-days. The house was crowded from first to last. On Sabbath, at 2 o'clock, an inspiring temperance session was held. We believe that Brother Barr is sent of God to labor among us. He has sent for his family, and we hope to keep him in the field in evangelistic work the coming year. We are taking steps to build a church at Rosedale. To commence meetings at once, we have been using M. E. house, which is not in a central location. We hope to have it completed by the 1st of Eighth month.

CHARLES BALDWIN.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

It has recently been my good fortune to visit a field of labor which to my mind is second to none within the limits of North Carolina Yearly Meeting—the Davie County Mission, if the word is admissible. This work centers in the academy at Augusta. Before seeing it I had no idea either of the school or the environments. The academy is a large two story house built by the Methodists for a kind of business college. Why such a house should have been erected in such a place for such a purpose is a mystery until it is viewed from its present use. The original owners became dissatisfied, and determined to sell the property. David Sampson was on the ground, and with his usual discernment of possibilities for advancing the future of Quakerism, agreed with the owners as to price, and purchased the house and lot (about two acres). The transaction was sanctioned by the Yearly Meeting, and through the efforts of David Sampson a school at once opened. The main body of Friends in Davie are resident about one mile from this place, but it is easily accessible for both school and meeting purposes, and commands a territory which is very promising for future development, three miles on in the other directions large mills are to be put up at the shoals of the Yadkin, which is already seen as a world to conquer, or rather to be gathered, with Augusta as a "place to stand," and the simple truth of God through Christ, the great lever.

This school was taught at first by Eunice Dardus alone—she boarding in the neighborhood.

She is a graduate of Guilford College and a born missionary. The fields were seen to be white to harvest. In the community are scores of young people—fine boys and girls—passing into maturity without the opportunities of education and with little to elevate them. The manner of life is most primitive; the women are overworked, and one looks with a kind of terror into the faces of the young girls with nothing before them except the fate of their mothers. Little cooped-up houses, full of children, the mothers forced not only to care for them—cook, wash, etc., but to make regular hands along with the men in the fields.

All this appealed strongly to the Friends in charge, and the opportunity was seen for opening a very inexpensive boarding department, where a few of the girls might be gathered and not only taught "book larnin'," as the common parlance has it, but given lessons in house keeping, and a vision of what woman's duties and real mission is.

The upper floor of the academy was turned partly into residence apartments, six large comfortable rooms were made in about half of it, the remainder being left for future developments. These rooms are cosily fitted up with very inexpensive articles and materials, such as the girls might hope to use in their own homes. The lower floor is occupied by a large school room and a meeting room, the latter just furnished with seats for the first time.

All this has been accomplished not only through the generosity of Friends, but by much self-sacrifice and real hardship of those in charge. After the rooms were fitted up it was necessary for some one to take charge of the household, as the school duties were all Eunice Dardus could manage. This was a difficult problem, as there was absolutely no money in the service, and a great deal of hard work.

A woman came forward—called of the Lord—and Susan S. Robeson has been for a year steering this difficult undertaking. No missionaries in foreign fields deserve more the sympathy and prayer and help of Friends than these two noble women. They allow the girls to furnish their own provisions or pay $1.00 per week for board. Miss Robeson teaches them to prepare meals, keep house, and care properly for their own persons and clothing. Religious instruction is carefully given as the foundation of all rightly ordered education. All this is done without servants or outside help. Last winter an appeal was sent to the Monthly Meetings by Eunice Dardus asking the older meetings to give $2.00, the new ones $1.00, toward digging a well. Our meeting almost doubled the amount, and I thought of course I would see the well. But only twelve of our meetings sent them anything, and there were three devoted women carrying water up a steep hill a quarter of a mile long, then up steep, high stairs (the stories in the house are very high); it distressed me. Only occasionally a boy can be gotten to do this for them. The women in the neighborhood all "tote" the water, and do all sorts of drudgery, so it does not seem out of the way at all for the teachers to do the same. The well is partly dug, but there is no money to finish it.

It is too bad for bodies in which there is such devotion to the cause of humanity to be allowed to drudge themselves to death over such work when their strength is needed in rescuing the perishing. Even with the well there will be too much left of the purely menial for them to do. Those stairs will still be to climb with every pail of water, and the slops will all have to be carried down. In this day of devices it is the business of some one to see that they be furnished with a water supply on the floor upon which they must live. No one who looks into the faces of the many girls there and then into the faces of the weary, burdensome mothers, but would long to do something to help on the work of this Augusta Academy.

Not alone for the women and girls does it appeal to us, but for men saved from drunkard's graves, for boys taught what opportunities life holds for them, for homes gladdened and brightened, for souls saved, and lives blessed and made a blessing. A nice little meeting is already gathered—a larger one is established about three miles away, and there is ample material for more. Our young women could not do a better deed than to keep a few of these girls in Eunice's school. Tuition ranges from one to two dollars per month. Board $1.00 per week. That these boys and girls have energy and ability was plainly evidenced by the closing exercises of the Academy, which were creditable to all concerned, and calculated to exert a refining influence.

MARY MENDENHALL HOBBS.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

Bloomington, Ind.—Bloomington Quarterly Meeting, held Fifth month 19th-21st, was a season of great blessing.

Visiting ministers present were: John Henry Douglas, of Salem, Oregon; and Flora Holliday, of Vermilion Grove, Ill. Brother Commons and wife, also of Vermilion, were present with credentials.

Friends are indeed most grateful for the visit and Gospel service of John Henry Douglas. His teaching concerning the gift of the Holy Spirit was clear and practical.

The work of the Bible Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies continues with unabated zeal.

Chas. L. Jessup's address, "Quakers, Slavery and Temperance," was well received.

At the Alumni Meeting of the Academy, S. D. Puett, of Rockville, addressed a large audience on the subject of "Affairs in Cuba." Having just returned from a visit to that island, his discourse was both instructive and entertaining.

A friendly contest in athletics between the students of Bloomingdale and Vermilion Academies occurs here Fifth month 27th.

COLLEGE PARK ASSOCIATION OF FRIENDS.

The twentieth semi-annual meeting of this Association was held Fifth month 6th. The day was fine and the meeting rather larger than usual. J. Burt Davy and Allen DeCou, from the State University at Berkeley; Hannah L. Neale and others, from San Francisco, with a good delegation from Stanford University, were present. Dr. Inazo and Mary Nitobe and Anna C. Harts-horn, who were at the last semi-annual, were again with us; also Elmira Wilson, from Richmond, Ind., and Ruth S. Murray, from New England. The meeting for worship, to accommodate those coming in the cars, convened at 11 o'clock.

Joel and Hannah Bean are now on a visit to the Sandwich Islands, with the prospect of spending about two months. They were in the islands about thirty years ago with a minute for religious service from New England Yearly Meeting.

THE PROVIDENCE EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE.

Papers and addresses have been promised for the Conference of Educators, to be held at Providence, R. I., on Sixth month 28th to 30th, by the following:

Opening address by Augustine Jones, of Friends' School, Providence.

Address by Governor Elisha Dyer, of Rhode Island.

President's address by Isaac Sharpless, of Haverford.

Secretary's report by Rosa E. Lewis, of Penn College.

"The Work the College Has Done for the Church," by President A. Rosenberger, of Penn College.

"What Denominational Influence Should Our Secondary Schools Exert?" by Carolena M. Wood.

"Sociology from a Quaker Standpoint," by Prof. Cyrus W. Hodgkin, of Earlham College.

"The Relation of Friends' Academies to their Colleges," by Robert L. Kelly, of Chicago University.

"Modern Thought in Friends' Educational Work," by George A. Barton, of Bryn Mawr College.

"High Scholarship and Modest Pretensions in College Work," by President L. L. Hobbs, of Guilford College.

"Education and Modern Business Life," by Thomas K. Brown, of Westtown School.

"The Importance of Teaching the Principles of Peace in Our Schools, with Suggestions as to Methods," by Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore.

"The Bible in School and College," by Rufus M. Jones, of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

"Literature in School and College," by Francis B. Gummere, of Haverford.

"An Illustrated Lecture on American Archæology," by James Wood, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y.

The papers will be short, and ample time for discussion will be left. Other papers not on this program may also appear, including a description of the new Friends' University of Wichita, Kansas.

Several Friends have agreed to speak on the subject of the papers, among whom may be expected John Wilhelm Rowntree, of York, England, and Alfred Neave Brayshaw, of Bootham School, York.

In view of the scattered attendance from a distance, it has been found impracticable to make any satisfactory arrangement with the railroad companies.

The attendance of prominent Friends seems to be assured, and the conference is one which no one interested in education, whether parent or teacher, can afford to miss.

Those intending to be present should send their names to Augustine Jones, Friends' School, Providence, R. I.

For a number of years Anna Chappell, whose obituary notice is in another column, and her brother Charles, have observed the custom of writing birthday letters to each other. The following is one of them written by her to him:

My Dear Brother Charles:

Your birthday morning finds me again at the pleasant occupation of remembering you with a few lines. How quickly old Father Time permits the sands to run through his glass. You are twenty-six to-day, and I will soon be twenty-three. But I do not feel old; do you? May it be granted that we shall always remain young and trustful as a child at heart, though the years be few or many which pass over our heads. Did you ever look at a little child and think what a wonderful lesson of simplicity and trust it teaches? As you attend to your various duties day by day, seek to "Build a little fence of trust around to-day,

Fill the space with loving deeds and therein stay;

Look not thro' the sheltering bars upon to-morrow,

God will help thee bear what comes of joy or sorrow."

Cannot you help some struggling brother to give to his own life a high everlasting keynote by your own pure, harmonious words and actions? Remember the water lily. It goes through the slime and filth of the pond, and comes out pure and unsullied, taking those elements which are good for it, and gently pushing aside those which are harmful, making "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Perhaps you think such a thing is too hard and cannot be accomplished. Let me whisper a little sentence in your ear as a watchword:

"See that thou make thy life according to the pattern given thee—Christ." Study that Book describing that pattern as earnestly as you do your works on electricity, and as you study, the character of Christ will appear more and more beautiful until it becomes a bright and shining light guiding you into that haven of rest wheré our mother stands to welcome us.

"I pray not that thou shouldst be taken out of the world, but that thou shouldst be kept from evil."

We are all so interested in you and your welfare, so anxious that you may be a pure success.

May we all be able to respond to those lines of Whittier:

"I pray the prayer of Plato, old,

God make me beautiful within,

And make mine eyes the good behold

In everything but sin."

Lovingly, your sister,

ANNA.

Shadeland, Ind., Ninth month 14th, 1896.

Died.

CHAPPELL.—Anna Chappell, daughter of J. J. and Eliza A. Chappell, the latter deceased, died from the effects of a surgical operation at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, La Fayette, Indiana, Third month 18th, 1899, aged 25 years and 6 months. She was a member of Farmers' Institute Monthly Meeting of Friends, Indiana. She had been a great sufferer for the past six years, during which time she had undergone five surgical operations, yet a murmur never escaped her lips, and she always had a pleasant smile and a word of cheer for every person she met. She exhibited a symmetry of character far above most people of her age. Loyal to the church and faithful as a Bible School teacher, loved by her pupils and all who knew her, the church and community has sustained a loss not easily supplied. In her last interview with her father, she said: "The doctor says he is going to get me out of here; but it is well with me whether he does or not," and then closed her eyes with a sweet smile, clearly demonstrating that she was trusting in Jesus.

HODSON.—Amanda J. Hodson, wife of Thomas Hodson, deceased, died near Latin, Kansas, Fifth month 2d, 1899, aged 69 years and 29 days. She was a member of Chalk Mound Monthly Meeting of Friends, Kansas. She was confined to her bed most of the time for the last sixteen months, but during all her illness she bore her suffering patiently, often speaking of her peace and joy in the Lord, and died in the triumphs of living faith.

MEADOWS.—Annabelle Munroe Meadows died at her home in Westbranch, Iowa, after a long and useful life. She was a valuable member of Westbranch Monthly Meeting.

News and Events.

General Otis has again telegraphed that he needs 30,000 troops to secure and maintain the control of the Philippines. With the regulars that are now on the way, or are under orders to go to the East, Otis will have 24,000 or 25,000 men after the withdrawal of the volunteers. Where the needed 5,000 or 6,000 additional men are to come from has not been decided upon, though it is possible that more volunteers will be called for. General Otis is still pursuing his aggressive tactics, and is determined to give the rebels no rest. On the 3d General Lawton began a general movement to the west of Manila against the Filipinos in the foothills. His design was to drive them into the Morong peninsula, where escape would have been impossible, but owing to the rough character of the country the Americans failed to accomplish this, the rebels escaping to the northward. The movement, however, marks the beginning of a new campaign. The continued activity, despite the rainy season, is indicative of General Otis's purpose to give the enemy no opportunity to profit by the climatic disadvantage in which our troops are necessarily placed with the natives.

Last week Spain transferred her ownership of the Caroline, Palaos and Marianne Islands to Germany for the consideration of $5,000,000. This practically marks the end of her career as a ruler of colonies, as there remain to her nothing but a few unimportant dependencies in Africa. The latter contain only 136,000 inhabitants. At the beginning of the war with the United States Spain's colonial possessions in America, Asia and Africa had a population of 9,695,567. Spain is wise to sell these islands to Germany, for they could only exist to burden her with new debts and to furnish opportunities for fraud and corruption on the part of her officials. The comparative insignificance of the transfer is shown by the fact that the entire population of the Caroline, Palaos and Marianne does not reach 50,000, and the land area of the groups is only 980 square miles. Germany's commercial interests in the islands have long been paramount, and with the political control of the same now vested in her government she can better promote her interests there. Spain has retained nine coaling stations, and will be given special privileges in her commercial relations with the islands.

The Court of Cassation has at last quashed the judgment of the court-martial of 1894 against Captain Alfred Dreyfus, and ordered that he shall be given a new trial at Rennes, in Brittany, where the atmosphere will be more conducive to a just verdict than that of Paris. Dreyfus now receives his rank as Captain, and is to have returned to him his cross of the Legion of Honor. The judges are said to have been unanimous on the question of revision, and only five votes were lacking for a decree declaring Dreyfus innocent without the formality of a retrial. Already the vessel which will bring the falsely condemned man from Devil's Island is on its way to carry out its mission. There is remarkably little excitement throughout France as the result of the Court's decision. Six months ago it would have been the signal for a violent anti-Semitic demonstration. As it is, the most notable hostile event was the unsuccessful attempt on the 4th to injure President Loubet while attending the races at Auteuil. Comte Christiani, the most prominent person in the brawl, was only saved from the surrounding people, who sympathized with the President, by being quickly removed by the police.

Colonel Esterhazy has confessed to forging the bordereau, one of the original documents in the Dreyfus case, and one which had much to do in bringing about the fate of the unhappy martyr. But though confessing the forgery, he says he was not alone in the plot. Colonel Henry, who recently committed suicide, was involved in the conspiracy, and a prime mover was also Colonel Du Paty de Clam. The latter is now in custody, and may suffer for his baseness. It is further said that Generals Boisdeffre, Gong and Le Peltieux, as well as Mercier, who was Minister of War when the plot against Dreyfus was conceived, are likely to be arrested. Ever since Picquart charged Esterhazy with forgery, after assuring himself that the bordereau was the work of the latter, unprejudiced observers have hoped for the supremacy of justice, and now that it has come it is gladly welcomed by all.

TRY YOUR WINGS.

A friend of mine had an eagle. He caught it when young and had brought it up like a domestic fowl. Having to go to the other side of the world, he was selling off everything. He wondered what he should do with his eagle, and the happy thought came to him that he would not give it to anybody, but would give it back to itself—he would set it free. How astonished it was! It walked about feeling as if this were bigger than its ordinary run; but that was all. He was disappointed, and taking the big bird in his arms he lifted it and set it upon the garden wall. It turned and looked down at him. The sun had been obscured behind a cloud, but just then the cloud passed away, and the bright, warm beams poured out. The eagle lifted its eyes, pulled itself up. I wonder what it was thinking. Can an eagle recollect the crags and cliffs, the revelling in the tempests of long ago, the joyous thunderings and the flashing lightnings? Pulling itself up, it lifted one wing and stretched it out, and it lifted the other wing and outstretched it. Then it gave a scream, and soon was a vanishing speck away in the blue of heaven. Anxious, disturbed Christian, you are an eagle living in a henhouse. Try your wings!

THE LOST HEART.

I knew a man who lost his heart. His wife had not got it, and his children had not got it, and he did not seem as if he had got it himself. "That is odd!" say you. Well, he used to starve himself. He scarcely had enough to eat. His clothes were threadbare. He starved all who

TWO STOMACHS.

The Upper for the Proteids and the Lower for the Greater part of the Food.

It is an interesting study to observe how the digestion of food is accomplished. The greater part of vegetable food is starch and this is never digested in the stomach proper, nor is it effected by the pepsin in the upper stomach.

Starch (a Carbo-hydrate) is passed out of the stomach into the duodenum or second stomach and there treated by the pancreatic juices, when in time a microscopic fungi is grown from a part of the grain, if that has been eaten, and these elements with moisture, heat and time transform the starch into grape-sugar, which is the first act of digestion.

The processes are duplicated in an artificial or mechanical way in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts, the new breakfast food made by the Postum Cereal Co., Lim., of Battle Creek, Mich.

In this food one finds the delicate sweet taste of grape-sugar and when eaten it will be found to quickly digest and fatten and strengthen the entire body.

Its especial mission is to nourish and rebuild the brain and nerve centers.

A certain definite feeling of strength and stamina comes to the individual after a few days use of Grape-Nuts at breakfast.

Being a condensed food, one does not require more than 3 to 5 teaspoonfuls at a meal, which is worth considering from an economical standpoint.

were around him. He did not seem to have a heart. A poor woman owed him a little rent. Out she went into the street. He had no heart. A person had fallen back a little in the payment of money he had lent him. The debtor's little children were crying for bread. The man did not care who cried for hunger, or what became of the children. He would have his money. He had lost his heart. I could never make out where it was till I went to his house one day, and saw an iron safe; it stood behind the door of an inner-room; and when he unlocked it with a heavy key, and the bolts were shot and the inside was opened, there was a musty, fusty thing within it, as dry and dead as the kernel of a walnut seven years old. It was his heart. If you have locked up your heart in an iron safe, get it out. Get it out as quickly as ever you can.—C. H. Spurgeon.

EQUALLY WEARISOME.

On the authority of the New York "Tribune" we reprint a story which seems to show that a man—when very small—may be perfectly candid with ladies:

A former teacher at Wellesley College had as her guest for a few days a nephew, aged three. He was a delightful little man, and having no rival there, seemed quite in danger of being spoiled by his many admirers among the students. When, however, one of the young ladies asked him if he would not like to live there always, he shook his curly head in a most decided negative and exclaimed, with a sigh:

"Such 'ots of 'omans an' stairs!"—"Youth's Companion."

CENTENNIAL AT WESTTOWN.

The Friends' Boarding School at Westtown is now one hundred years old. The Old Scholars' Association, recently formed, will celebrate the event with suitable exercises at the school on Sixth month Tenth.

It is expected that one of the largest gatherings of Friends and Friendly people since the time of George Fox will be present on that occasion. Some six thousand people have been invited and acceptances already received indicate that more than three thousand will be present.

The principal feature of the day's exercises will be the presentation to the school of an endowment fund of One Hundred Thousand Dollars by the Old Scholars. Those interested who have not contributed to this fund should communicate with the President of the Association, Samuel L. Allen, No. 1107 Market Street, Philadelphia. There will be other addresses by members of the Westtown Committee and by Isaac Sharpless, President of Haverford College, Francis B. Gummere, Ph. D., Charles Potts and Ruth E. Chambers.

All Old Scholars of the School and their husbands, wives and children are invited to attend. Special trains from Jersey Points and Broad Street Station will furnish ample accommodations for all.

GOOD NATURED BABIES ARE THOSE RAISED ON

GAIL BORDEN

EAGLE BRAND
CONDENSED MILK.

SEND "BABIES" A BOOK FOR MOTHERS.
Borden's Condensed Milk Co., N. Y.

A horse will live twenty-five days without food, merely drinking water.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Soap-sprung

—Pearline. Came from soap—an improvement upon it; a sort of higher development of soap, just as man is said to have been developed from the monkey. Every virtue that good soap has you'll find in Pearline. All the soap is in it that's necessary. Pearline isn't meant to be used with soap, but to take the place of it. Everything that soap does, Pearline does, and does it better.

584

Millions NOW USE Pearline

A traveler in Siberia tells of a remarkable occurrence among the frozen regions of that country. In the intensely cold nights the silence was sometimes broken by a loud report as of a cannon. This was the bursting of one of the ice bubbles on a river, a phenomenon he had neither heard nor read of before. The streams coming down from the hills were frozen on the surface from six to nine inches thick. The water beneath flowed faster than it could escape, and the pressure, on the principle of a hydraulic press, became irresistible. First, the elasticity of the ice was seen by the rising of circular mounds some six to eight feet high. The bursting point came at last with a report like an explosion. The water escaped, but soon froze again. Scores of these ice hillocks are to be seen in a few versts of the river.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

New Guide to Rose Culture, free. The Conrad and Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB'S TOURS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Parties will leave Philadelphia in June, July, August, September and October, for

36 SUMMER TOURS

of Seven to Twenty Days to the Principal Resorts of New England, Canada, and New York, including:—Saratoga, Lakes George and Champlain and Ausable Chasm

The White, Green and Adirondack Mountains.

Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, and the Saguenay. Poland Spring, Moosehead Lake, Sorento and Mt. Desert.

The Maritime Provinces. Great Lake Tours.

July 11. Tour through Europe.

July 7 and 18. Alaska and Yellowstone Park.

July 18 Yellowstone Park, Utah and Colorado.

August 8 and 22. Hawaii, Japan, China and Around the World.

July 7 and 18, and September 1. Yellowstone National Park.

September 1. Yellowstone Park, the Pacific Railroad and California.

Railroad and Steamship Tickets to all points.

Send for descriptive book, mentioning tour desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
1005 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WONDERLAND '99.

The Northern Pacific Railway has issued a very handsomely designed book descriptive of the region tributary to their lines. It is strikingly rich in illustrations, and is an unusually valuable guide to the grandest and most interesting region of the United States. The book has aptly been named "Wonderland" from the country which it depicts. It will be sent to any address upon receipt of six cents in stamps or otherwise.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, First-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A GREAT AMERICAN INDUSTRY.

The well-known New York Condensed Milk Company, of New York city, has just been reorganized and incorporated as Borden's Condensed Milk Company. The capitalization is $20,000,000. The incorporators are H. Lee Borden, Joseph Millbank, William J. Rogers, Albert J. Millbank and Isaac Millbank. The entire amount of stock was taken by the stockholders of the old company, except a portion which was set aside to be sold to some of the prominent and most valued employees of the company.

An advertisement in the column of "Subscribers' Wants" will be read by Friends all over the United States. Five lines, one time, cost only 25 cents, cash with order.

Students, Teachers and Others

Wishing employment in Agency Work for the summer should address the

Union Book and Bible House,
M. Z. Kirk, Mgr. DENVER, COLO.

What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer

By DR. RICHARD H. THOMAS

An Address delivered before the Annual Meeting of Friends' First-day School Association, held at Twelfth Street Meeting House, Philadelphia, during the Session of the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, Fourth month 18, 1899.

Price, 5 cents, postage paid.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia

THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The American Friend is a weekly paper, containing twenty-four pages. The subscription price is one dollar and a half a year, payable in advance.

Discontinuances.—If a subscriber wishes his copy of the paper discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

How to Remit.—Remittances should be sent by Check, Draft, Express-Order, or Money Order, payable to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. Cash should be sent only in Registered Letter.

Postage is Prepaid by the publishers for all subscriptions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. For all other countries in the Postal Union add $1.00 for postage.

Change of Address.—When a change of address is ordered, both the new and the old address must be given. The notice should be sent one week before the change is to take effect.

Letters should be addressed:

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia.

NOTICE.

Friends' Bible Institute, Richmond, Ind.

A one fare for the round trip has been secured for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale July 24 to July 31, inclusive, good for continuous going and continuous returning, until August 5, 1899. Kindly see that your Railroad Agents are prepared for your tickets several days in advance of your starting.

A. H. PICKERING,
Railroad Secretary

Andre Bellesort's "A week in the Philippines," which "The Living Age" has translated from the Revue des Deux Mondes, is the more interesting because this sprightly Frenchman saw the islands in November, 1897, before they had assumed any interest to Americans, but while the Philippino insurrection against Spain was in progress. He writes of them graphically and with a Frenchman's characteristic lightness.

Ladies' clubs are so large a factor in American life that American women will turn with interest to the sketch of Ladies' Clubs in England, written by Eva Anstruther and published in "The Living Age" for May 27.

Two of the latest leaflets issued by the League for Social Service are "The Life History of the Toad," and "Social Engineering." These may be procured by addressing the League for Social Service, 105 East 22nd street, New York city. The leaflets will be furnished in lots of 100 for 35c., 500 for $1.75, and 1000 for $3.50. The League is doing a good work in educating the masses to a higher conception of education and government, and deserves the support of the public.

REUBEN H. UNDERHILL

Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law

Has Removed to

141 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.

OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.

Purest artesian water from private well.

Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.

Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Homelike and attractive. Open throughout the year.

MARY T. HAINES.

Late of Chalfonte

The Archdale, 136 South Maryland Avenue, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view; cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.

MARY J. BUNDY

PRESTON'S SUNNYSIDE Wernersville, Pa.

The highest resort on the Mountain. Magnificent scenery; pure water; excellent table. Booklet.

JAMES H. PRESTON.

BEREAVEMENT OF THE FIELDS.

(In memory of A. Lampman: Died Second month 10th, 1899.)

Soft fall the February snows, and soft Falls on my heart the snow of wintry
pain;

For never more, by wood or field or croft.
Will he we knew walk with his loved again;

No more with eyes adream and soul aloft.
In those high moods where love and beauty reign,

Greet his familiar fields, his skies without a stain.

Soft fall the February snows, and deep,
Like downy pinions from the moulting breast

Of all the mothering sky, round his hushed sleep,

Flutter a million loves upon his rest;
Where once his well-loved flowers were fain to peep,

With adder-tongue and waxen petals prest,
In young spring evenings reddening down
the west.

Soft fall the February snows, and hushed Seems life's loud action, all its strife removed,

Afar, remote, where grief itself seems crushed,

And even hope and sorrow are reproved;
For he whose cheek erstwhile with hope was flushed,

And by the gentle haunts of being moved,
Hath gone the way of all he dreamed and loved.

And now, untimely cut, like some sweet flower

Plucked in the early summer of its prime,
Before it reached the fullness of its dower,
He withers in the morning of our time;

Leaving behind him, like a summer shower,

A fragrance of earth's beauty, and the chime

Of gentle and imperishable rhyme.

Songs in our ears of winds and flowers and buds,

And gentle loves and tender memories
Of Nature's sweetest aspects, her pure moods,

Wrought from the inward truth of intimate eyes

And delicate ears of him who harks and broods,

And nightly pondering, daily grows more wise,

And dreams and sees in mighty solitudes.

Soft fall the February snows, and soft
He sleeps in peace upon the breast of her
He loved the truest; where, by wood and croft,

The wintry silence folds in fleecy blur
About his silence, while in glooms aloft
The mighty forest fathers, without stir,
Guard well the rest of him, their rare
sweet worshiper.

—W. WILFRED CAMPBELL, in the June
"Atlantic."

For Your Skin's Sake

always have Wool Soap in your soap-tray. It's the skin's chaperon—it takes care of your skin, because it is positively pure, just clean, white, unadulterated soap—safe soap for the whole family, for baby and all the folks.

Swift and Company, Makers,
Chicago

The oldest paper in the world is the Kin Pan of Peking. For nearly a thousand years it has been published regularly, first as a monthly, up to the year 1361, when it became a weekly, and for the last ninety years as a daily.

IRREPROACHABLE SERVICE TO THE SOUTH VIA THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

With a total mileage of nearly six-thousand miles, the Southern Railway stands to-day without a peer. It is the most progressive transportation company in the South, as evidenced by the number of fast and elegant trains it operates, affording exceptional facilities, for reaching all prominent cities in the South without change of cars. Three through daily trains are operated from Philadelphia via this great route, namely: 7.20 a.m., The United States Fast Mail, runs solid between Washington and New Orleans, making direct connections for all points in the South. 6.34 p.m., The New York and Chattanooga Limited, running through to Chattanooga Tenn., carrying through Pullman cars to Memphis and New Orleans, via Lynchburg, Roanoke, Bristol and Knoxville. This train also carries through Pullman cars to Augusta, Savannah, Jacksonville and Tampa, via Charlotte and Columbia. 6.55 p.m., The Washington and Southwestern Limited. This train has been in the service for several years and is the most popular, and best patronized train operated south of the Potomac, carries through cars to Nashville, Tenn., via Asheville, "The Land of the Sky," Knoxville and Chattanooga, also through cars to Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, and New Orleans. Dining cars serve all meals on this train. Send for maps and rates, also copy of a beautifully illustrated booklet entitled "The Land of the Sky." Stop-over at Washington not exceeding ten days will be allowed on all through one way tickets between the East and West via the Southern Railway. Passengers wishing to avail themselves of this privilege should deposit their tickets at the depot ticket office immediately upon arrival. For further information and Pullman reservations, call on or communicate with Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

THE COMING VEHICLE.

The motor car, or "automobile," as it is called in France, where it is most popular, has not yet been brought into general use in America either for pleasure or for convenience.

First impressions of the early steamboats and locomotives make odd enough reading to-day, and possibly a few years hence first impressions of the "coming vehicle" will sound no less queer. But certainly it did not please a recent American visitor to Nice, where there is a particularly flourishing and fashionable auto-

INDEX

To "The American Friend."

Copies of the index to "The American Friend" for 1898 may be had by addressing "The American Friend," 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia. They will be sent promptly upon request.

STEAMERS TO WEST POINT.

York River Line to Resume Daily Service Which Was Discontinued in 1896.

Mr. Reuben Foster, President and General Manager of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Richmond Steamboat Company, returned yesterday from Richmond, where he completed arrangements for the running of a daily steamer over the York River Line of the Company, between Baltimore and West Point, which is thirty-nine miles from Richmond.

The new schedule will go into effect on Monday, May 15. The steamer will leave the pier of the York River Line every afternoon, reaching West Point the following morning. Connection will be made at West Point with the Southern Railway, which makes the run from that point to Richmond in an hour and twenty minutes.

Officials of the company feel encouraged to resume the line of daily steamers between Baltimore and West Point, which was discontinued in the fall of 1896, because there are indications that there will be a marked increase both in the freight and passenger business over the line. At present there are only three steamers weekly over the York River Line between this city and West Point.—"The Sun," Baltimore, May 5, 1899.

For rates, time tables, maps and full information, write to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

We invite the attention of all our readers to the column of "Subscribers' Wants" in "The American Friend." This department is constantly increasing in favor with those wishing to reach the great body of Friends with a small advertisement. Five lines of thirty-five words cost only 25 cents.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

mobile club, which even held, not long ago, an automobile parade, in which flower-bedecked motor cars and motor cycles competed for elegant prize banners.

"I met the horrid things first," she writes, "throbbed and pounding along the Corniche Road, whizzing through the loveliest scenes in the world at an absurd speed, and raising small private cyclones of dust for the delectation of their passengers, who did not look happy.

"My carriage raised no dust at all, and there was none to trouble the cyclist or pedestrian. The first of the monsters gave warning of its approach at some distance away, before it rang or tooted, by a curious whirring, panting, drumming noise which puzzled me greatly; then came a blast of the horn, and presto! round a curve of the road, in a cloud of dust, spun an automobile with four passengers.

"Talk of the 'bicycle face' of the scorcher, whose wrinkled brow and staring eyes make him a laughing-stock—the 'motor face,' when you see it, is much more fixed and tragical! You do not always see much of it. Several of the men wore huge dark goggles to protect their eyes, and some of the ladies had on ghastly black half-masks, which were even worse. They may have been enjoying themselves, but none of them looked as if they were.

"As for their automobiles—well, I can say truthfully that the things go, and go fast, and go easily, if ponderously, and go up or down mountainously high hills without difficulty, as required; but they struck me as smelly, dusty, rickety, and wholly uninviting. I would no more care to own one than I would to keep a small private fire-engine for pleasure-driving."

This is vigorous language. But perhaps Mr. Edison or his son, or some other

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOURIST EXCURSIONS TO CALIFORNIA WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS.

Leaving Washington every Tuesday and Friday at 11.15 A.M., the Southern Railway operates Personally Conducted Tourist Excursions to San Francisco without change of cars, conductors or porters. The route is through Atlanta, Montgomery, New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio, New Mexico, Arizona, and Southern California. The cars are the very latest pattern of Pullman Tourist Sleepers, rosewood finish, have high back seats, upholstered in rattan, are sixteen section, supplied with linen, etc., same as standard sleepers, lighted by Pintsch gas, have wide vestibules, double sash roller curtains, lavatory and smoking room for gentlemen, and two retiring rooms for ladies.

Three and one-half days to Mexico and Arizona, four days to Los Angeles and Southern California, and five days to San Francisco. Such service for Trans-continental travel has never before been offered.

The tourist carfare is less than via any other route, effecting a saving of $25.00 to $30.00 for the trip.

All information, maps, and rates furnished on application to Charles L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway Company, 828 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and Heals all Inflamed Surfaces, Cures Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and

Relieves Pain

brilliant Yankee inventor, will modify the motor car into something more attractive before we organize our motor clubs and tours on this side of the water. And it remains the fact, meanwhile, that in France not only men, but women, are enthusiastic amateurs of the new amusement.

No one is allowed to propel an automobile unaccompanied by a properly licensed engineer and stoker, or chauffeur; but on presenting proof of competence the amateur may acquire such a license himself—or herself, for it is an amusing fact that duchesses, countesses and fine ladies of Paris are emulous to learn, and proud to display, their licenses as accredited and responsible chauffeurs, or stokeresses!—"Youth's Companion."

For Abuse of Alcohol

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

DR. E. B. DAVIS, Dayton, O., says: "Very good results in cases of nervous debility from excessive drinking, and insomnia."

JOTTINGS.

President McKinley will be severely criticised for bowing to the politicians when he recently issued an order exempting about 4,000 places from rules which required applicants to pass civil service examinations.

The funeral of Emilio Castelar, Spain's foremost statesman, who died week before last was held at Madrid on the 28th. The whole capital was robed in emblems of mourning, and the obsequies were attended by immense crowds.

An officer of the Chicago Woman's Temple says that $200,000 of the $300,000 necessary to retire the temple trust bonds and secure the legal control of the building has been provided for.

It is now thought that Representative Henderson, of Iowa, will be the next speaker of the house. The division of the west, which Sherman had to depend upon for his election, appears not to exist.

The child Marion Clarke, who was recently stolen by a nurse girl from her home in New York city, has been found, and returned to her parents. The persons who were implicated in kidnapping the child have been arrested and will be tried for the crime. The case promised to rival in interest that of Charlie Ross.

The fourth of this month was observed in Boston as Communion day by the Christian Scientists. The services were largely attended and the growth of the body was very apparent. The annual message of the apostle of the sect Mary Baker Eddy, was read.

Diplomatic relations with Spain, which were severed on the 21st of April, 1898, were resumed on the 3rd of this month when President McKinley formally received the newly appointed Spanish minister, the Duke of Arcos at the White House.

Since Admiral Kautz's proclamation of April 23rd, directing Mataafa and his followers to keep beyond certain well defined limits around Apia, there has been no conflict with the rebels. The Mataafans, however are said to be preparing for an attack, and, should the International Commission order the disarmament of the nations it is said that the Samoan Islands will no longer be safe to live in.

The second annual conference of the American Federation of Zionists will be held on the 18th and 19th of the present month in Baltimore. At this conference there will be elected delegates to the third annual Zionist Conference to be held in Basle, Switzerland, as heretofore, beginning on the 15th of August.

One case of yellow fever has thus far appeared in New Orleans during the present season. The State of Texas has declared a quarantine against the Crescent City on account of this case.

An abstract of the report of the Nicaraguan Canal Commission, as presented on the 31st ult., shows that the cost of the canal will be over $118,000,000. The physical conditions are reported to be better than were supposed to exist.

The disgraceful attack upon President Loubet, at the Auteuil race course on the 3rd, was discussed in the French Chamber of Deputies on the 5th. The Royalist members assailed the President in such bitter terms that their leader, M. Rious de Lagentaye, was expelled. The Chamber by a decisive vote expressed confidence in the Government's declarations.

"ALPHA-DE LAVAL" CREAM SEPARATORS

Save $10.-
Per Cow
Per Year.

Send for new 1899 catalogue.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.

Western Offices:
RANDOLPH & CANAL STS.,
CHICAGO.

GENERAL OFFICES:
74 CORTLANDT STREET,
NEW YORK.

Branch Offices:
1102 ARCH STREET,
PHILADELPHIA.

W. D. Howells in the May number of the "North American Review" in writing of "The New Poetry," has this to say of the Pennsylvania poet, Mr. Lloyd Mifflin:

In the volume of Sonnets, called "At the Gates of Song," this poet makes his appeal to the best in us, with a mastery of his instrument as extraordinary as the sense is high and noble. What strikes one most in this very striking group of poems is the power, both pictorial and intellectual, which represents a new quality of thinking and feeling, or a new way of rendering the serious and significant aspects of life. If such a book were altogether to fail of recognition it would be the most damaging witness against a time which I think has been unjustly accounted prosaic. But a little more courage to know what is undeniably great, although it is our own, seems to me still desirable in our criticism and when that comes, Mr. Mifflin's poetry will have its reward.

PUSSY-WILLOWS.

Across the bridge of winter did lusty March drive forth,
His ice-wrought chariot was drawn by wind-steeds from the north;
From cowl of tattered snowdrifts his storm-
tossed locks hung thin,
And slender filaments of frost made beard about his chin.

But as we shivered, lo! he smiled—for by the garden wall
A clump of willow-bushes was growing,
straight and tall;
We heard that harbinger of May, the first
bold blue-bird, sing;
We saw the pussy-willow blooms—and knew that it was spring!

MARY CLARKE HUNTINGTON.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia
SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York
Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.
Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

THE NEW YORK JUSTICE MARKET: SOME QUOTATIONS.

In New York, Tammany Hall received, in 1890, $10,000 from its candidate for the Superior Court in the city of New York, says Frank Gaylord Cook in the June "Atlantic"; in 1891, $6,500 from its candidate for the Supreme Court, and $10,000 from its candidate for the Court of Common Pleas; in 1892, $5,000 from its candidate for the Court of Common Pleas; in 1895, $5,000 from its candidate for the Court of General Sessions, and $5,000 from its candidate for the Supreme Court.

The contribution need not be called the purchase price of the office. It is enough to state that its payment is evidently obligatory upon the candidate by reason of his acceptance of the nomination. Being under obligation to his party for one of its most honored gifts, he manifests his gratitude by becoming one of its most generous supporters. Even in office his zeal does not flag. He participates in party councils and takes the stump on political campaigns. The faithful servant and generous supporter of his party, he is rewarded with a renomination at the end of his term.

A VALUABLE PUBLICATION.

The Pennsylvania Railroad 1899 Summer Excursion Route Book.

On June 1 the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will publish the 1899 edition of its Summer Excursion Route Book. This work is designed to provide the public with short descriptive notes of the principal Summer resorts of Eastern America, with the routes for reaching them, and the rates of fare. It contains all the principal seashore and mountain resorts of the east, and over fifteen hundred different routes or combinations of routes for reaching them. The book has been compiled with the utmost care, and altogether is the most complete and comprehensive handbook of Summer travel ever offered to the public.

It is bound in a handsome and striking cover in colors, and contains several maps, presenting the exact routes over which tickets are sold. It is also profusely illustrated with fine half-tone cuts of scenery at the various resorts and along the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

On and after June 1 it may be procured at any Pennsylvania Railroad ticket office at the nominal price of ten cents, or, upon application to the general office, Broad Street Station, by mail for twenty cents.

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address

HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY } Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN } Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS } Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK } Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR } Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC } New York.
BRADLEY } New York.
BROOKLYN } New York.
JEWETT } New York.
ULSTER } New York.
UNION } New York.
SOUTHERN } Chicago.
SHIPMAN } Chicago.
COLLIER } St. Louis.
MISSOURI } St. Louis.
RED SEAL } St. Louis.
SOUTHERN } St. Louis.

JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO } Philadelphia.
MORLEY } Philadelphia.
SALEM } Cleveland.
CORNELL } Salem, Mass.
KENTUCKY } Buffalo.
Louisville.

E gains wisdom in a happy way who gains it by the experience of others. In painting why not avail yourself of the advice of those who have had the greatest experience — the painters.

Competent, practical painters everywhere use Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. They know they cannot afford to use anything else.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

EASILY RECOGNIZED.

Charles Dickens delighted to tell stories of John Forster, the writer and editor with whom he was much associated. Mr. Forster had so peremptory and decisive a manner that it impressed all who came in contact with him. His servants were kept in perfect and almost abject submission to his wishes, and yet he showed many kindnesses to them, and they were greatly attached to him.

The story runs that on one occasion a cabman called at the printing office and was unable to give the name of the person who had ordered him to come at a certain hour, without fail.

The office porter asked for a description of his fare, and the cabman stated that he was "a stout gentleman." To this the porter replied that here were several stout gentlemen in the office, and inquired whether this one was tall or short.

"I don't know which you'd call him," returned the cabman. "I didn't take special notice; but there can't be two like him; he's that there harbitrary cove!"

The porter summoned Mr. Forster without hesitation, and found he had made no mistake. When the story leaked out, nobody enjoyed it more than the "harbitrary cove" himself.—"Youth's Companion."

FRIENDS' LIBRARY,

142 N. 16th St., Philadelphia.

Open 11.30 a. m. to 2 p. m., and 3 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Among the books added Fifth month, 31st, 1899, are:

Browning, R., and Barrett, Elizabeth. Letters, 1845-1846. (Two volumes.)

Dunbar, P. L. "Lyrics of the Hearthside."

Fraser, M. C. "Letters from Japan." (Two volumes.)

Gorham, G. C. "Life of Edwin M. Stanton." (Two volumes.)

Hale, E. E. "James Russell Lowell and his friends."

Jones, Augustine. "Life of Thomas Dudley, Second Governor of Massachusetts."

Lounsbury, Alice. "Guide to the Wild Flowers."

Mabie, H. W. "Essays on Work and Culture."

Parkin, G. R. "Edward Thring, Headmaster of Uppingham School."

Van Dyke, Henry. "Gospel for a World of Sin."

Circulation-free to all.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

MASON'S
CREAM OF OLIVES OINTMENT
CURES CATARRH ASTHMA HAY FEVER
" " MUMPS CROUP CAKED BREAST
" " FIRE & SUN BURN CHAFING.
" " BUNIONS & TIRED FEET.
" " CHAPPED FACE LIPS & HANDS
" " SAFE REMEDY FOR PILES
ALL DRUGGISTS OR MAILED FOR 25¢
H.T. MASON CHEMICAL CO. 515 ARCH ST. PHILA. PA.
SAFE · SPEEDY · SURE

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Le Chevalier Capers

Nonpareille Size. Highest Grade.
Bottles contain nearly twice the quantity of ordinary 25 cent bottles. Delicious for Sauce.

30c. Bottle.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.
Window Shades Made to Order.
902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,
118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
305 Cherry Street, Phila.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S Breakfast Cocoa

TRADE-MARK.

Costs less than One Cent a cup.

Be sure that the Package bears our Trade-Mark.

A Perfect Food. Pure, Nutritious, Delicious.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Limited.

Established 1780.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

A SUGGESTION ABOUT WILLS

The time to make a Will is when one is in good health, and in the possession of his or her faculties, then there can be no contest from dissatisfied heirs as to mental condition, ability, etc.

If you want to consult about making a will, or wish to leave one in safe-keeping, the services of

The Union Trust Co.

715, 717, 719 CHESTNUT ST.

Can be had WITHOUT CHARGE.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

Spring and Summer Fabrics now ready.

GUSTAVUS GOLZE,
Merchant Tailor,
123 N. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 il-
lustrations, 5 cts.
A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.
Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.
New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.
Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.
Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A., T. & S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME!

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION,

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.

USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT, 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The American Friend

11-1-99
D Faithful College

Vol. VI

SIXTH MONTH 15th, 1899

No. 24

THOMAS HODGKIN.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❧ ❧ ❧ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

White Goods

Several very favorable purchases have enabled us to begin a special sale of desirable lines of White Goods at prices much lower than usual - in some cases less than half the quotations heretofore prevailing:

Fine White Piques—of a beautiful quality—with woven colored stripes of red, light blue and black; regular prices 25 to 31c.—here at 15c. a yard.

Organdies—70 inches wide—in white, light blue and pink. The white was made to sell at 31 cents, and the colored at 35 cents—here at 16c. a yard.

Fancy Embroidered Swisses—75-cent goods at 37c., and $1.00 goods at 50c.

English Nainsooks—Manufacturer's short lengths; in pieces of one to ten yards—to be sold by the piece only—at 8c., 10c. 12½c. a yard. These goods would be regularly priced at from 12½ to 31 cents a yard.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance, par value $100.

Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually

Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.

Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.

Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

Friends seeking positions or wishing to fill vacancies in firms or families may be helped by using our want column. The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It tells how to obtain, free, the famous Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

An advertisement in the column of "Subscribers' Wants" will be read by Friends all over the United States. Five lines, one time, cost only 25 cents, cash with order.

Students, Teachers and Others

Wishing employment in Agency Work for the summer should address the

Union Book and Bible House,
M. Z. Kirk, Mgr. DENVER, COLO

The Summer Morning Breakfast.

Pillsbury's VITOS, the ideal wheat food, does not heat the blood. It is sterilized, and will keep until used. Fruit, Pillsbury's VITOS with cream, and tea or coffee, form an admirable menu for a summer morning breakfast. Pillsbury's VITOS, being made from hard spring wheat grown in the famous Red River Valley of the North, contains an unusual percentage of gluten, and feeds both body and brain. It is natural nourishment for summer. Write for book of VITOS recipes.

THE PILLSBURY-WASHBURN FLOUR MILLS CO., LTD., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
GROCERS EVERYWHERE SELL VITOS.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED, Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.

All inquiries concerning our city and country have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

The American Friend

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SIXTH MONTH 15, 1899.

No. 24.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
EDITORIALS.—The Mills of God.—The Place of the Home in Civilization.— The Opening of the London Yearly Meeting.—Saloons for Cuba	555-57
General Church Notes	557
Man's Steps to Spiritual Life, Bishop H. W. Warren	558
An Historical Precedent: Stephen Grellet and Alexander I., Edmund Taber	559
POEM.—"The Wind Across the Wheat" Gertrude Roberts	561
INTERNATIONAL LESSON.—Sixth month 25th, 1899.	561
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT.	562

	PAGE
Loyalty of the Church to Christian Endeavor	T. L. S. 563
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	564
Centennial Reunion at Westtown, Pa.	566
MARRIAGES.	567
DEATHS	567
NEWS AND EVENTS.	568
JOTTINGS	574

THE MILLS OF GOD.

"The mills of God grind slowly,
But they grind exceedingly small."

IN the long run justice gets done in this world of ours, and the man who wriggles along his crooked and unrighteous path generally finds a destructive precipice at the end of it. Wickedness will not stay covered up, and the very stars in their courses, which fought against Sisera, fight against any man who leaves God and truth out of the count in the attainment of his ends.

These facts find remarkable confirmation in the recent history of France. The chiefs of the French army decided five years ago to make a scapegoat of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, who was unpopular because he was a Jew. He was charged with selling "secret information" to emissaries of the German army, and incriminating documents were produced against him. He was tried before a court martial and declared guilty; his official badges were torn off, his cross of the Legion of Honor removed, and he was banished for life—or, rather, for death—to Devil's Island, a most deadly climate, off the coast of South America. But there was a slumbering sense in the nation, and a wide-awake feeling everywhere else, that Dreyfus was an innocent victim. Do what it might, France could not keep the question settled. It kept asking to be settled over again, as all things do when they are not settled right. Every fact that leaked out showed that truth and justice had been smothered. The army officers who were responsible grew hysterical, as people generally do when they are wrong. At last Colonel Henry committed suicide, leaving a confession that he forged one of the documents against Dreyfus, Emile Zola, the novelist, who has shocked all finer natures with his depraved pictures of a false realism, won the praise of all good men and women by his noble and fearless effort to establish the innocence of Dreyfus and to right a great wrong. He failed and has since lived in exile. But, after a careful study of the whole case, the French Court of Cassation has ordered a new trial and simultaneously Count Esterhazy has confessed that he forged one of the main documents against the prisoner. As a result Dreyfus is now on his way to France, his insignia and his cross have been restored, and he will have a fair trial which will surely end in his acquittal. The populace is slowly turning to his side, always fickle and pointing the way the wind blows for the hour.

We would not make a hero of Captain Dreyfus, but we do desire to point out the great fact that the eternal laws of God are for righteousness and justice and against the way of iniquity.

THE PLACE OF THE HOME IN CIVILIZATION.

THE Christian home is the highest product of civilization; in fact, there is nothing that can be called civilization where the home is absent. The savage is on his way out of savagery and barbarity as soon as he can create a home and make family life at all sacred. The real horror of the "slums" in our great cities is that there are no homes there, and human beings crowd indiscriminately into one room. It is the real trouble with the "poor whites" of the South that they have failed to preserve the home as a sacred centre of life. One of the first services of the foreign missionary is to help establish homes among the people whom he hopes to Christianize. In short, the home is the true unit of society. It determines what the individual shall be, it shapes the social life, it makes the church possible, it is the basis of the state and the nation. A society of mere individual units is inconceivable. Men and women, each for self, and with no holy centre for family life, could never compose either a church or a state.

Christianity has created the home as we know it, and this is its highest service to the world, for the kingdom of heaven would be realized if the Christian home were universal. The mother's knee is still the holiest place in the world, and the home life determines more than any other one influence, and perhaps more than all influences combined, what the destiny of the boy or girl shall be.

We may well rejoice in the power of the Sabbath School, the Christian ministry, the secular school, the college, the university, but altogether they do not measure up to the power of the homes, which are silently, gradually determining the future lives of those who will compose the Sabbath School, the church, the school and the college.

The woman who is successful in making a true home, where peace and love dwell, and in which the children whom God gives her feel the sacredness and holy meaning of life, where her husband renews his strength for the struggles and activities of his life, and in which all unite to promote the happiness and highest welfare of each other—that woman has won the best crown there is in this life, and she has served the world in very high degree. The union of man and woman for the creation of a home breathing an atmosphere of love is Christ's best parable of the highest possible spiritual union where the soul is the bride and He is the Eternal Bridegroom and they are one.

THE OPENING OF LONDON YEARLY MEETING.

SLOWLY, but yet steadily, London Yearly Meeting is increasing its membership. This year the total enrollment is 17,031, a gain of 179 over last year, while the number of habitual attenders has reached 7,904, a gain of 428 over the preceding year. The attendance at the adult schools for Bible study, conducted by Friends, is reported to be 28,807, which is a slight decrease from last year, though the attendance in the children's schools shows a corresponding gain, the total being 16,734. This gives the total number of persons in membership or closely affiliated with Friends as 80,676, though possibly some few are counted twice in these different groups. In America most if not all of these would be brought into full membership, and we hope the time will come when English Friends will extend its membership over a good part of these "proselytes of the gate."

The reports of the year show that the valuable and efficient service of Caleb R. Kemp as clerk has come to an end, at his own request, and Charles Morland has been chosen clerk. It requires a rare combination of qualities to fit a man for clerk in any Yearly Meeting, but particularly so in London, and it is remarkable how unerringly the judgment of the meeting finds the right man. A weighty concern originated in the sessions of the Yearly Meeting on Ministry and Oversight for "the right development and effective exercise of the ministry," a most important subject for consideration. Many Friends of London Yearly Meeting are feeling that the ministry is not effective enough, and there is a growing sense that meetings for worship and ministry must be made more dynamic and edifying. William C. Braithwaite made use, in an excellent speech, of the words of Dr. Fairbairn, "THE CHURCHES THAT CONVERT MOST MEN, AND USE BEST THE MEN THEY HAVE CONVERTED, BEST REALIZE THE OBJECTS OF RELIGION." Those are great words and they should be deeply pondered by every Friend, not only in England, but in America also. After an earnest and valuable consideration of this vital subject a committee of twenty was appointed to draw up a letter on the subject to be sent to all the congregations of Friends in England. This method of reaching the needs of the home meetings is a commendable one, and we could wish that it were more used for strengthening our meetings in this country. Further accounts of London Yearly Meeting will follow next week.

SALOONS FOR CUBA.

SINCE the United States came into control of Cuba, "American enterprise" has opened two thousand liquor saloons in the island, according to the New York "Tribune." It has been our sop to conscience for the Spanish-American war that we were engaged in freeing and civilizing a race which was suffering under the oppression of a cruel tyranny. We entered into war because we felt it to be our duty to take up "the white man's burden," as Rudyard Kipling expresses it—the burden of carrying our civilization to those who have none or a lower kind.

It is a positive outrage to humanity that one of the first fruits of our success should be the creation of two thousand American saloons there. It emphasizes the brutal selfishness of many of those who demanded the war. They sought opportunities to better their own condition, and their "patriotism" and their "sacrifices for humanity" were too thin to cover the greedy selfishness within. Instead of rushing in to feed the starving and open schools to educate a pitifully ignorant people, we flood them with intoxicating drinks and furnish them with all the privileges of our best metropolitan rum-holes! It is a shame that cries to heaven.

THOMAS HODGKIN, whose picture is given on our front page this week, is one of the leading Friends of London Yearly Meeting, and one of the foremost Friends in the world. He is a man of large scholarship, which has been recognized by a D. C. L. degree from Oxford University, and a historian whose works cover a wide and exceedingly interesting field. "Italy and Her Invaders," in five volumes; "Letters of Cassiodorus," "Life of Charles the Great," and "Life of George Fox," are some of his most important works. He has been a frequent contributor to the "Edinburgh Review" and other periodicals, and he has given many lectures on historical and religious subjects. He is a minister in the Society of Friends, and his voice is often heard in the sessions of London Yearly Meeting.

WHAT MAKES A MAN?

The longer I live the more certain I am that the great difference between men, the great and the insignificant, is energy—invincible determination—an honest purpose once fixed—and then the victory. That quality will do anything that can be done in the world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunity, will make a two-legged creature without it.—Goethe.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

Pope Leo XIII has issued an apostolical letter in which he proclaims a jubilee to close the century. In it he says: "We have gladly determined, in accordance with the custom of our predecessors, to pass a decree which may be a source of salvation to Christian people, and may, as it were, mark the last step of the solicitude with which we have exercised the Supreme Pontificate." But, referring to the power and position of the church temporally in the past, he mournfully writes: "From the memory of those times the mind is recalled with some bitterness to the sad reality of the present day. For demonstrations of which we speak, and which, when carried out without hindrance in the full light of the city, are accustomed wonderfully to foster and arouse the piety of the people, there is now, in the changed state of Rome, either no opportunity of organizing, or the permission depends on a will other than our own."

The Church Missionary Society of England has been celebrating its centenary. This Society dominates missionary thought and action in England and has the largest income of any missionary society in the world. It has sent out over two thousand missionaries, the first going in 1803. This large missionary gathering is interesting as the precursor of the larger Ecumenical Conference to be held in April of next year in New York.

"Not every one on the Yukon, it is pleasant to learn, is devoted body and soul to gold-digging," says the "Literary Digest." "The spirit of religion is making itself felt, and already Dawson City has three churches, while the Methodists are about to establish a fourth. These are fully organized and well supported, and in the long, cruel winter they perform many deeds of Christian charity. The church buildings appear to have escaped destruction in the conflagration of April 26th, the news of which did not reach New York until May 22d."

THE INQUEST.

Not labor kills us; no, nor joy,
The incredulity and frown,
The interference and annoy,
The small attritions wear us down.

The little gnat-like buzzings shrill,
The hurdy-gurdies of the street,
The common curses of the will—
These wrap the cerements round our feet.

And more than all, the look askance
Of loving souls that cannot gauge,
The numbing touch of circumstance,
The heavy toll of heritage.

It is not Death but Life that slays,
The night less mountainous lies
Upon our lids than foolish day's Importunate futilities.

—F. B. Money-Coutts, in New York "Tribune."

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

MAN'S STEPS TO SPIRITUAL LIFE.

BY BISHOP H. W. WARREN.

We are glad to study the works of the old masters in art, architecture, and every great thing.

The greatest events of the universe pertain to the salvation of sinners. Fortunately we have specimen and model cases wrought out and credentialed by the Master Himself. The progress of these model cases can be studied carefully by every worker in the same department, whether the work is in himself or others.

The first essential precedent to salvation is a state of sin.

This is more than acts of sin. It is the condition of soul out of which acts come. Clearly this was the case with Saul and the dying thief. Both confessed it unmistakably.

Next, men must be thoroughly convinced of this state.

This conviction must be wrought by the Holy Ghost. We vehemently resent such accusation from men. No man likes to be called a liar and the rest of the characterizations of sinners by his fellow-men. It does not convict him.

Note the model cases. Saul was hurrying from triumph to triumph. Suddenly a great light shone. It blinded his eyes, but it illumined the heart. So the penitent thief. He was convicted so that he confessed that even such a death was a just penalty. It was not from any process of reasoning, nor from any human accusation. The horrible pit experience has always been a good precedent for the joyful sense that God has planted one's feet upon a rock. No wonder the new song is a shout.

Third. God having begun to deal with a soul, there must be a total irreversible, affectionate surrender of one's self to God. It approximates a mental suicide.

Some test of this thoroughness of surrender is usually presented by the Holy Spirit, actively present. Saul instantly surrendered. He said, "Lord what wilt Thou have me do?" Change of thinking, or to stop doing what he was doing, was not sufficient. He was ready to do differently. The test was a severe one. Go in humiliation into the city you were seeking in authority and pride, and there it shall be told thee what thou must do. Immediately, blind and weak as he was, he conferred not with flesh and blood, but sought hands to lead him, and then waited three days and nights without food, waiting to be told.

The thief was the most spiritually illumined person in the world at the time. How did he know that that naked, bloody figure dying on the Cross was a King and had a spiritual Kingdom? Neither Peter nor John knew it. He alone confessed the sinlessness of Christ, and turned to Him for a spiritual life that should live through death. He bore the test. He rebuked his old comrade, and preached righteousness before he was made righteous himself.

Fourth. Then comes a definite committal of one's self by faith to Christ for salvation. He is seen to be the only and sufficient Saviour.

Paul became the great preacher of righteousness by faith. His only word to the penitent jailer was "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." The thief showed his faith in spite of every possible hindrance. He committed himself to Christ for life, even though the Lord was dying at the time. It was perfectly fitting that the Lord should take such an example of saving faith with Him into glory, as a sample of His saving work on earth.

Fifth. Now follows a change in nature that cannot be expressed in human speech.

A dozen most significant terms and figures have been used expressive of the greatest change conceivable. The new birth, born from above, born of the Spirit, partakes of the divine nature, made alive who were dead, etc., are expressive of a change that no personal effort, no highest culture can reach.

Do the sample cases correspond with these statements? Paul said, "It pleased God to reveal His Son in me." "God hath shined in our hearts." "If any man be in Christ he is a new creation." The dying thief was made fit to be taken into Paradise that very day. As Christ said of the wretched, all-wrong publican-sinner, "he went down to his house made right"—justified.

Sixth. The length of time involved in these processes is non-essential, it varies greatly.

Between the "I will; be thou clean" and the leper's being clean enough for Christ to put His hand on him, was very little time. As little was needed in the case of the dying thief. In Paul's case it was three days. For the strengthening of Abraham's faith sufficiently to obey the command to offer up Isaac it took an equal time of obedience in every step. The time varies as much in modern cases.

Seventh. God takes men into partnership in almost everything.

Any farmer named Paul may plant, and any ditch-tender named Apollos may irrigate, but God must give the increase. No man can breathe without God's sea of air, nor see without His ocean of sunlight. No mill is turned without God's gravitation, steam or other force. So in salvation, Nathan goes to David; Andrew finds Peter; Peter goes to Cornelius.

God has done His utmost. He has no other son to die, the Holy Spirit cannot work with greater endeavor, but man must do his part. Take the sample cases. Ananias must go to his brother Saul. In the case of the thief, the Elder Brother was the only one in the world who could give the human help.

A change from the chief of sinners to the very chiefest of the apostles, from a malefactor justly crucified to Christ's fit attendant in Paradise, is inexpressible. But as great changes transpire to-day. The forces of spiritual life are unwearied and unspent. The laws by which the work is done are changeless and eternal. Human nature in its vast possibilities is the same. The same forces working by the same laws upon the same material must produce the same results.

Swift and wide are the developments of achievements in material realms. Those in spiritual realms should keep pace.

What hints we have of it. A nation shall be born in a day. The knowledge of God shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. The heathen shall be given to the Son for an inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for a possession. Greater works than Christ did are to be done by those who believe on Him. The men on the muster-roll of mighty heroes in Hebrews 11 received not the fulfillment of the promise, God having provided some better thing for us.

These general, world-wide effects are only possible by individual conversions. The laws by which these may be made are clear. To these conversions there is no limit in number, thoroughness or efficiency.

Denver, Col.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

AN HISTORICAL PRECEDENT: STEPHEN GRELLET AND ALEXANDER I.

BY EDMUND TABER.

At the present time, when a congress of nations is considering the pacific suggestions of Nicholas II., it may be interesting to some readers to recall some passages in the life of Stephen Grellet and his interviews with the brother of the great-grandfather of the present emperor, the Czar Alexander I.

Etienne de Grellet du Mabilier was born in 1773, in the city of Limoges, France, and was of a wealthy family, ranking high in that district. His father, Gabriel de Grellet, was for some years comptroller of the mint, and formed part of the household of Louis XVI., and was an intimate friend and counsellor of the king.

The parents were imprisoned and their property confiscated during the period of the French Revolution, and Etienne and his brother were sent abroad, sailing from Amsterdam for Demarara, S. A., in 1793, and from thence to New York. Settling in Newtown, L. I., Etienne changed his name to its English equivalent, Stephen Grellet, and, becoming intimate with an intelligent and cultivated family, his attention was directed to the works of William Penn, in which he became interested. He attended the meetings of the Society of Friends and became convinced of the truth of their principles, and, with changed heart, "heard," as he expressed it, "a sweet language saying, 'Proclaim unto others what the Lord has done for thy soul.'"

Removing to Philadelphia, he there became a member of the Society of Friends, and in obedience to Divine instructions he devoted himself largely to religious visits to communities both in America and Europe.

During his second visit to Europe, in 1813, he visited Newgate, and was deeply impressed with the misery and degradation of the prisoners, especially the females. On behalf of the latter he went immediately to his much-valued friend, Elizabeth Fry, to whom he described, out of the fullness of his heart, what he had just beheld. The appeal to such a pious and sensible mind was not in vain, and out of it ultimately arose that persevering devotedness to the temporal and eternal interests of the poor prisoners and outcasts which has been so full of blessing to thousands in various parts of the world.

In 1814 the Duchess of Oldenburg, sister of the Emperor Alexander, and also the young King of Wurtemberg, were in London and attended one of the Friends' meetings there. The Emperor of Russia and the King of Prussia arrived in London soon after. Addresses to these sovereigns on the subject of peace were authorized by the Yearly Meeting of Friends, and one of them was presented to the King of Prussia by a delegation consisting of Stephen Grellet, Wm. Allen, and two other Friends, and they were received very civilly. His attention having been particularly directed to the great misery, vice and destruction of human life attending war, contrary as it is to Christianity, he intimated his strong desire that the love and the peaceable spirit which the Gospel of Christ inspires might pervade the whole world.

On the 21st of June, by appointment of the Emperor of Russia, the delegation called upon him at the Pulteney Hotel. The interview is thus described by Stephen Grellet: "He came to meet us at the door of his apartment, took us by the hand in a kind manner and said that for a length of time he had wished for an opportunity to be with us. He inquired into some of our religious testimonies, principles and practices, to which Wm. Allen answered in English, which the Emperor speaks well, and he remarked, 'these are my own sentiments also.' He was very particular in his inquiries respecting our views and practices in connection with Divine worship, the ministry, the influence of the Divine Spirit, and made very pertinent remarks on these subjects, particularly on prayer, saying that God cannot be pleased with, nor be acceptably worshipped by, the observance of outward forms and ceremonies, or by the repetition of words which the wicked and the hypocrite could use, though continuing in their sinful practices; but that a worship in spirit and in truth is the most acceptable to God, who is a Spirit. He said, 'I pray every day, not in the form of words, but as the Lord by His Spirit, convincing me of my wants, enables me to do.' He fully assented to our testimony against war, making several other inquiries of a religious character, which having been answered, silence ensued, during which, feeling my heart warmed by the love of Christ towards him and under a sense also of the peculiar temptations and trials to which his exalted station subjected him, I addressed a few words to him. His heart appeared sensibly and tenderly affected; with tears he took hold of my hand, which he held silently for a while, and then said: 'These, your words, are a sweet cordial to my soul—they will long remain engraven on my heart.' In parting he took each of us by the hand and said: 'I part from you as from friends and brethren—feelings which I hope will ever remain with me.'

After we had left, the Grand Duchess, his sister, sent a request to us to furnish her with Friends' books like some we had presented the Emperor. Later, the Emperor and his sister, accompanied by Count Lieven, his ambassador, came to one of our meetings at Westminster meeting-house. Wm. Allen, who knew of their intention through the ambassador, accompanied them. It proved to be a good and solemn meeting and the emperor and his sister, by their solemn countenances and religious tenderness, gave evidence that they felt it to be so.

"I felt much relieved after this service, particularly as I had a full opportunity to lay before them the enormities of war and to direct their attention to the peaceable spirit of Christ; Alexander especially appeared deeply to feel the subject and to be sincere in his desire for the promotion of harmony, love and peace throughout the world; he told us that his concern had been great that the several crowned heads might conclude to settle their differences by arbitration and not by the sword."

Five years afterwards, in 1819, Stephen Grellet was again in Russia, and while in St. Petersburg received a message from the Emperor informing him that he would receive a visit at 6 o'clock in the evening. At that hour another messenger came to show the way to the private apartments of the Emperor, and the interview is thus described :

"We found him alone and he received us with great affability, 'like old friends,' he said. He made us sit down on a sofa on each side of him and recurred feelingly to the visit we paid him in London, by which, he said, his mind was encouraged and strengthened under the trying circumstances then attending him. He made many inquiries of a religious character, which evince his concern to obtain a saving knowledge of the Truth. The influence of the Holy Spirit is a subject on which he appears to delight to dwell, being, as he calls it, one of the corner-stones of the Christian religion; for if man has not the Spirit of Christ he is none of His. He inquired of the nature of our various religious engagements since we have come into Russia, and in what state we had found the public establishments, particularly the prisons. We were glad of the opportunity to acquaint him with the wretched situation of several of these. We alluded especially to the prison at Abo; we showed him the sketch, taken there, of a man with his fetters upon him. The Emperor was much affected, and said: 'These things ought not to be; they shall not continue so.' We also represented the case of a man there who had borne these heavy chains eighteen years for having threatened, in an unguarded moment, to strike his mother. We also told him of our visit to the Lancasterian School, and how greatly pained we had been in noticing there and at the printing office, that their lessons were a selection of sentiments calculated to demoralize the people and bring them into a far worse state than that in which their ignorance places them at present; that on this account we had begun to prepare a selection from the Scriptures, of which we gave him a brief outline. After a few moments of deep thoughtfulness, the Emperor said: 'You have done the very thing that I was anxious should be done; I had for a long time been contemplating how that mighty engine—general public education—might be used for the promotion of the kingdom of Christ, by bringing the people to a knowledge of the dear Redeemer, and to the practice of Christian virtues; send me immediately what you have prepared.' After this he said, 'Before we separate for the present let us spend a short time in religious retirement together.' We felt the Lord's presence and power very near; we continued for a time in solemn silence; after awhile I bowed before the Divine majesty on my knees; the emperor knelt by my side; We had a humbling and grateful sense that the Lord condescended graciously to hear our prayers. When we retired, the Emperor expressed a desire shortly to be with us again."

"Third month 14th, 1819.—We called upon the Emperor, by invitation, at 8 o'clock in the evening. He received us with cordiality, as before, in his own apartment. One of the first things he said was that the chains we saw on the prisoners at Abo were now removed, and that the man we told him of—who had been eighteen years loaded with fetters—was now liberated, and orders were given for the better treatment of the prisoners generally. He requested also that in the course of our journeying through Russia we would communicate directly to him whatever we notice in the prisons or other places that we may think proper to bring before him. He added that the Empress, his mother, had told him what we had said respecting the neglected education of the daughters of the poor, which she had taken much to heart, and he also felt so much the necessity of a speedy remedy that yesterday he made appropriation of money sufficient to establish schools at which they might receive a virtuous and religious education.

"After relating the difficulties attending his early religious instruction, he referred to the Lord's visitation to him in love and mercy in 1812, at which time the Prince Alexander Galatin gave him a Bible, which he had never seen before. 'The Lord,' said the Emperor, 'by His Divine Spirit, was pleased to give me an understanding of what I read therein.' We entered pretty fully into the nature of the peaceable kingdom of Christ, and to what the Spirit of the dear Redeemer, who is Love, would lead all those who are obedient to His dictates; on which he stated how great his soul's travail had been that wars and bloodshed might cease forever from the earth; that he had passed sleepless nights on account of it, deeply deploring the woes and misery brought on humanity by war, and that while his mind was bowed before the Lord in prayer the plan of all the crowned heads joining in the conclusion to submit to arbitration whatever differences might arise among them, instead of resorting to the sword, had presented itself to his mind in such a manner that he rose from the bed and wrote what he then so sensibly felt. He was in Paris at the time he formed that plan. He said that his intentions had been misunderstood or misrepresented by some, but that love to God and to man was his only motive in the Divine sight.

"We had spent a considerable time conversing on these very important subjects, when he said, 'We are then going to be soon separated in this world, but I am a full believer that, through the Lord's Spirit, we may, though separated one from another, feel the fellowship and communion of spirit; for with the Lord there is no limitation of space. Finally,' said he, 'I have one more request to make, that before we separate we silently unite once more in waiting on the Lord, if so be that He condescended to give us a manifestation of his Divine life and presence, as he did on former occasions.' The Lord was present during a solemn silence that came over us. After a while I felt constrained to impart a few words to the dear Emperor for his encouragement, that he may hold fast in the ways of the Lord unto the end, fully relying on the efficacy of his Divine grace to preserve him from all evil and to strengthen him for every good work. He was bathed in tears; then dear Allen, on bended knees, supplicated the Lord on his behalf and that of his people. The Emperor, who had kneeled by him, continued some time thus prostrated after William had ceased utterance. Our separation was solemn. It is very humbling and wonderful to me to see how the Lord has opened a way in these nations where I saw none at all; truly the promise, 'the Lord will provide,' has been fulfilled in a remarkable manner, and, besides, a door towards the further labors of love that may be required of us in this empire is now open, so far, at least, as this can be affected by the good will of the Emperor, but to the Lord alone we must look to give us an entrance into the hearts of those we may visit, and to send forth His help to us and His blessing on our feeble efforts to advocate His blessed Truth."

THE WIND ACROSS THE WHEAT.

Beat high against the headland, dash hard against the shore;
Break into surging, foaming spray with thundering roll and roar!
Boom, O billows, in pitiless rage 'round the rocks off Highland Light;
Strike the triumphant note of power, the awful chord of might.
In the roar and the roll of your organ peal there is no note half so sweet
As the lighter, softer melody of the wind across the wheat.
Sigh soft, O Wind, through the hemlock bending its branches
low,
Moan through the murmuring pine trees in cadence sad and slow,
Sound in the leafless willow the dirge of what is past,
Strike the key of the yet to be, in the highest note of your blast,
In the wail and the sigh of your plaintive cry—there's no note half so sweet
As the rhythmic undulation of the wind across the wheat.
Join in fantastic measure, O Rain-drops flashing bright, Wake the mountain streams to music beneath your touch so
light.
Let the dripping leaves beat time to the melody you make,
Dance to your tripping measure on the polished silver lake.
In the liveliest note of your gayest song there's no note half so sweet
As the rising, falling melody of the wind across the wheat.

GERTRUDE ROBERTS.

The International Lesson.

SECOND QUARTER.

Lesson XIII.

Sixth month 25, 1899.

REVIEW.

GOLDEN TEXT.—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. 1 Tim. 1:15.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 19.—The raising of Lazarus. John 11:32-45.

Third-day, Sixth mo. 20.—Jesus teaching humility. John 13:1-17.

Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 21.—Jesus the Way, the Truth, and the Life. John 14:1-14.

Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 22.—The Vine and the Branches. John 15:1-11.

Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 23.—Christ betrayed and arrested. John 18:1-14.

Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 24.—Christ crucified. John 19:17-30.

First-day, Sixth mo. 25. Christ risen. John 20:11-20.

The lessons during the last quarter have been of peculiar interest, treating, as they have done, of the latter days of our Lord's life upon earth, and conveying lessons of such deep spiritual importance. They have been addressed, more than some, to those who have known something of the spiritual life, and so they have presented difficulties to the teacher of those inexperienced in the practical living out of the principles of the gospel. Few selections from the gospel narrative can be made which would show more clearly the love and compassion of our Lord.

In the "Raising of Lazarus" the tenderness of Christ is shown, and we see Him also as the Resurrection and the Life. In the "Anointing at Bethany," the beauty of loving service is set forth, as well as the spirit of self-sacrifice and self-renunciation. The importance of this principle of service is more fully brought out and established by Christ when He taught humility by himself washing the disciples' feet. "I have," he said, "given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." He taught that "the true calling of a Christian is not to do extraordinary things, but to do ordinary things in an extraordinary way."

Lest the believer should be discouraged and faint by the way, lest he should think the path too hard to find, or too long or difficult, Christ taught his disciples that He was the Way, the Truth, and the Life. And those that come to the Father must come through Him.

The true source of power for the believer is the Holy Spirit—the comforter—the helper, who will take of the things of Christ and show them unto us. The conditions upon which this heavenly helper comes are love and obedience. "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments," and your joy will be full.

Christ is the true Vine, believers are the branches, and our heavenly Father is glorified when they bear much fruit. As a branch cannot bear fruit when severed from the vine, no more can believers when apart from Christ.

For the sake of men Christ allowed himself to be betrayed and arrested; to be carried before the Jewish and Roman tribunals to be unjustly accused and illegally tried. He heard one of his closest followers deny him, though Peter repented when too late.

"My kingdom is not of this world," said Christ to the selfish, time-serving governor, who for his own selfish ends condemned one whom he knew not only to be innocent of the charge preferred, but also to be a righteous and just man.

In the crucifixion is seen the last sacrifice of the Son of Man—He who loved us and gave himself for us, that He might redeem us from all iniquity. In the risen Christ we see the proof that He was indeed the Son of God, and know that because He lives we may live also.

"If then ye were raised together with Christ," says the great apostle, "seek the things that are above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God." If the "old man" has been put off, the deeds of the old man must be put off likewise. Evil desires must be slain, and the proffered grace of God accepted, that the new life may develop and the fruits of the Spirit may be made manifest in the daily walk. So the peace of God will rule in us, and our hearts will be full of thanksgiving and praise to Him who has called us out of darkness into His marvelous light. "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift."

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SIXTH MONTH TWENTY-FIFTH, 1899.

SPIRITUAL GROWTH.

Mark 4: 26-32.

- Second-day, Sixth mo. 19.—The standard of growth. Eph 4: 11-16.
 Third-day, Sixth mo. 20.—Rooted in Christ. Col. 2: 1-7.
 Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 21.—Growing by the Word. 1 Peter 2: 1-10.
 Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 22.—Growing in faith. 2 Thess. 1: 1-12.
 Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 23.—Growing in grace. 2 Peter 3: 11-18.
 Seventh-day, Sixth mo. 24.—Growing in righteousness. Heb. 12: 1-11.

Christian life does not begin full orb'd like the sun when it rises, but like the little child in its ignorance and dependence. It is impossible to overestimate regeneration as an initial point, but a point never gets anywhere. Christianity is not a point, but a "Way," and not even then a way from earth to heaven primarily, but a way upon earth wherein we walk in His footsteps who said He was "The Way."

Child life is largely one of emotions, chiefly self-centered, receiving rather than giving. Christian life begins much the same way and, unfortunately, often never progresses much beyond this initial point. Selfish joys, patronage of the church for what can be gotten from it rather than as a place of service for others' sake, longing for heaven more than for the will of God,—all this makes only for the self-centered life.

What then is growth? There are some Scriptural statements that may help us to understand more clearly this matter. 1 Peter 2: 1 states the preparation for growth. "Wherefore putting away all wickedness, and all guile, and hypocricies, and envies, and all evil speakings." What sort of mixture would it make to retain all these in the heart, and then add a little of the milk of the word? Men are not just like plants. Drummond's famous chapter on growth is beautiful, but only a partial statement of the truth.

A plant needs only to be put in right relation to the material it can assimilate, but a man must put away a lot that he has already assimilated unwisely and ruinously. He needs cleansing. The divine "put on's" are all preceded by the divine "put off's." Yet there are analogies in plant life. Walking through the grounds of a magnificent summer hotel a few days since, I saw the gardeners at work putting out the plants for the summer and autumn blooming. The azaleas were already glorious, but a bed of chrysanthemums looked sickly. Stooping down to examine them, I saw they were already infested with the little black pests that feed on the tender buds. They were in the right place in the beds, the beds were artistic in shape, the soil was duly fertilized, free from weeds, sufficiently moist, everything was in proper order, and the whole effect was beautiful, yet here were plants in the midst of it all that were not growing because something alien to their life was sapping their strength, so that they could not avail themselves of the rich resources at their command. Is that a picture of your life? God's word does not make a soul grow if that soul does not put away evil from itself. All the pastors, teachers, and evangelists that God ever gave to the church cannot bring men to the full stature of Christian life if they will not surrender evil.

1 Peter 2: 1, and Ephes. 4: 11-16, give also the material for growth. It is the sincere milk of the word, and the ministry of the same by pastors, teachers, and evangelists. The farmer who wants his grain to grow puts it in right relation to the soil, the sun, and the rain. His skill lies in knowing how to do that. Put your soul in right relation to the word just as you put your body in right relation to your food. Absorb it, meditate on it, assimilate it, apply it to your needs, manifest it in your daily life.

The measure of growth is taught in several places. Notably in Ephes. 4: 11-16. It is "the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," and the end is "that we may grow up in all things into him who is the Head, even Christ." It is important to know the size we are to attain. The Christ life was the ideal life. The nearer we approximate to it, the larger it will ever seem to it, and we shall always say, with Paul, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended."

The conditions of growth are taught in several of the parables. The man who put out his talents gained other talents. The exercise of our spiritual faculties in the service of others for our Lord's sake is an essential of growth. Spiritual inactivity is spiritual atrophy. The man of only one talent who sought to keep what he had, lost even that. There is no chance to renew a man's muscles except as he wears them away by exercise. It is the same in spiritual things.

Growth must be symmetrical. Some people cultivate chiefly their emotions, some the intellect, some only practical righteousness, some prayer, some faith, some praise, some only criticism, some meditation. A one-sided man is likely to fall over on the side where he is strongest, for the enemy will find his weakest side, and push him over the other way, where even his weight helps him to topple.

LOYALTY OF THE CHURCH TO CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

BY T. L. S.

The subject selected by the committee is one which has been brought to my attention frequently during the past. We shall probably not fulfill the thought they had in selecting it, but shall deal with it from a different standpoint. We will try, if possible, to clear away the spirit of prejudice that seems to be clouding the minds of some of our worthy church people, and see if we cannot enthuse them with a spirit of true loyalty to Christian Endeavor work.

In the first place, let us consider the church as a body, and its relation to the Christian Endeavor, and we might just stop and say that one word "relation" is at the foundation of many of the misconceptions Christian people have in regard to the Society. They speak of the Christian Endeavor as a distant relative, an interloper, seeking admission into the home church—implying that although there may be some connection between the individual church and society, yet they are in no sense equal or identical. We sometimes hear the expression from ministers and workers in revival meetings, "The church will all please gather round the altar, also let the Endeavorers come forward," as though the church was one thing, and the society an entirely different thing.

But to return. What is the church? Is it a select number of older people, elders and overseers, who gather every Sabbath morning to worship God? Let me ask in all seriousness, and with the greatest respect for the old veterans of the cross, is this the church? Is it the mid-week prayer meeting and no other prayer-meeting? Is it the Sunday School; does it consist merely in the monthly, quarterly and yearly meetings, where the business of the church is transacted? The church is all these, but it is more. Our local churches are bodies of Christians banded together under certain forms and ordinances for the accomplishment of the Saviour's work on earth. The morning service is the church at worship. The mid-week prayer meeting is the church at prayer, the Sunday School is the church studying the word of God, and it has been truly said that the Christian Endeavor is the church in training for the practical service of the kingdom of Christ. Is it fair then to assume that the church is one thing, and the Society an entirely different thing?

We have tried to show that the church is not merely one service or one organism, but many. As the human body is made up of different organs, the hands, feet, eyes, ears, etc., each designed for some special purpose, so is the church. Each organism is necessary to give us the full rounded ideal. It takes in the whole human family from the oldest grandfathers and mothers to the smallest child.

A church made up of old people, however devout, would scarcely be our ideal; neither would a church of children. It takes the whole. The older pillars will soon pass away, and then the responsibility of the work will fall on our younger shoulders. Let me ask, then, is it not right that we should be preparing for it? And in what better place can we receive the necessary training than in our Christian Endeavor meetings. Yet it is a sad fact that our motives are not understood, and we are sorry to have to say that a few of our ministers and workers from whom we should expect our greatest support, speak, and even work against us. The Lord judge them according to His infinite wisdom and mercy, and not according to our finite minds.

They say it is an unnecessary organization, and is drawing the young people away from the regular church work. Let me say right here that this is false from the very nature of the society, whose motto is, "For Christ and the Church." The pledge provides that we as active Christians "support our own church in every way, especially by attending all her Sunday and mid-week services." We exhort our members to be loyal to the church to which they belong, to faithfulness and devotion to all forms of church work, and assist our pastors in every way possible. We believe much good is being done in this direction, but just now let us turn the shield around, and ask from all Christian people a more loving and sympathetic acceptance of the loyalty of these young disciples. Give us loyalty for loyalty, love for love, and give this, the youngest child of the church, a chance for its life. We not only ask that our Yearly Meeting stand by and support us, but also protect us from those who from ignorance or some personal motive seek to break down this, our noble organization.

Take the Christian Endeavor out of the church, and what is the result? We have seen the work of these enemies of the cause, where they had succeeded in killing or badly wounding the Christian Endeavor, and in every case the church is left dead spiritually, or so badly crippled that it will take years of nursing to get it back to the same state of spiritual life. Kill the child and the mother is prostrated by the blow. Throttle the Christian Endeavor, and its mother, the church, is sure to suffer from the effects.

You have read at times, with horror, the account of a mother in a moment of insanity, taking the life of the child God gave her to love and protect. Shall we ever hear of the church or individual members thereof, in a fit of spiritual or soul insanity, seeking to take the life of this legitimate child of the union of Christ and the church? God forbid. We believe anyone who rightly understands our motives, and then opposes our movement, is suffering from spiritual disorder, and the pledge which we take, and to which so many of these object, would make an excellent tonic for all such disorders.

We are accused of not being true to the pledge. Let us grant that all our members do not live up to the pledge, do not attend all the meetings of the church as regularly as they should. Is it possible that anyone would ask that we close our young people's meetings? Isn't it better to be found even at one Christian Endeavor prayer meeting on Sunday evening, where they may get some spiritual help, than not to attend any? And yet some of the objections against us are about as one-sided as this.

We are sure a little investigation will prove to the most prejudiced mind, the fact that the regular Sunday service, mid-week prayer meeting, and all other church services, are better attended, meetings more interesting, and the work better done since the advent of the Christian Endeavor than ever before.

Just look into the facts a moment, and tell us where are the young missionaries and Christian workers coming from who are ready, waiting and praying for the church to give them an open door. Only a few years since it was hard to find missionaries for foreign fields. How is it to-day? The church cannot furnish enough money to send the earnest Christian Endeavorers who are willing and anxious to give their lives for the cause of Christ. The Christian Endeavor, it is true, supports many of its workers in the field; but it is only when we receive the united co-operation of the church that the greatest good can be accomplished.

Ask the pastors of our Yearly Meeting where they look for their most energetic and efficient workers, and they will tell you in almost every instance that it is among the church members who belong to the Christian Endeavor. What does this prove? Simply that they are better fitted for the work of the church in this training than they are without it. And yet, let me ask, is it fair to expect more of a church member because he belongs to the Christian Endeavor than of those who do not? Hasn't every church member taken upon him or herself, practically, the same obligations, and should we not expect the same consistent devotion? Let your own hearts answer the question.

Mother church, we have come to stay. We have affirmed our allegiance to Christ and to you. We will work for you, support you, hold up your hands, and do all in our power to help on the work Christ has given us to do; and now is it unfair or unjust to ask, that you give us your loyal, loving sympathy and support?

We do not claim perfection, neither do we mean to judge unjustly those who do not see with us in these things, but with "charity for all and malice toward none," let us walk hand in hand, shoulder to shoulder, fighting the battles of our blessed leader, until that glorious morn shall dawn when, the last battle fought, the last victory won, we shall hear the welcome words, "Well done, good and faithful servants, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

May the Lord bless these few thoughts to our good, and bless all our efforts "For Christ and the Church."

A little bit of patience often makes the sunshine come,
And a little bit of love makes a very happy home;
A little bit of love makes a rainy day look gay,
And a little bit of charity makes glad a weary way.

But it is not enough to possess a truth; it is essential that the truth shall possess us. We must learn to live in a beauty, an earnestness, that shall become a part of ourselves.—Maurice Maeterlinck.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT CHICAGO.

James M. Gray, D.D., of Boston, who, last summer, conducted a Summer Course at Moody's Bible Institute, in Chicago, gives the same course again this season, and in addition will give a new course for those who took last summer's work. Dr. Gray's method, which is what he calls the synthetic method of the study of the Scriptures is said to have proved exceedingly profitable. In the city of Chicago alone, during the past winter, 6,000 people in the churches have studied the Bible in this way. The entire course will cover four months, but it is so arranged that one can take any portion of it.

Particulars as to plans of study, accommodations and other information may be had by addressing D. L. Moody, at 80 Institute Place, Chicago.

News from the Field.

The following communication in the "London Friend," relative to the number of Friends in Ireland in former times, will be read with interest:

Dear Friend: With regard to the statement made in thy report of Dublin Yearly Meeting by a Friend—that 3,700 was probably the maximum reached by the Society in Ireland, it is stated in Rutt's "Rise and Progress," that in 1747, just ninety-four years after the first Friend (W. Edmundson) came to Ireland, G. Hassen paid a visit to 3,000 families of Friends in Ireland, exclusive of those in Dublin. This I look on as representing say 12,000 to 15,000 members, out of Dublin; and certainly judging by the enormous number all through three of the Provinces that can trace their ancestry to Friends, and the fact that in Munster alone there were over seventy meeting houses, as against six now, this is not at all an overestimate. So we see how very successful was the enthusiastic, well-sustained energy of Friends, and would be even now, if the same spirit animated us; for even here there is plenty of opening for rightly called and ordained work. Thine truly,
J. F. BENNIS.

Limerick, Ireland.

The Queen of England has graciously accepted a copy of the biography of "Isaac Sharp, an Apostle of the Nineteenth Century," by Frances A. Budge. The first edition being nearly exhausted, Headly Brothers have a new and cheaper edition in preparation.

We are sorry to learn that owing to ill health Harriet Green will not be able return to America this year. Her many friends throughout this country will regret her illness, and hope for a speedy return to health.

John F. Hanson has been released by London Yearly Meeting for service in Norway. Our Friend's main concern is to press the cause of Peace from a Christian standpoint on the people of Norway. His headquarters will be at Stavanger.

A Friend who was in India last winter gives the following impressions of our late dear Friend and faithful missionary Samuel Baker:

"As the evening drew in with tropic speed, we came on a group of peasants in hot and eager talk. Seeing Samuel Baker, an old man came up and asked him to settle a family dispute. So we seated ourselves upon a charpoy (Hindoo bedstead) as judges, while a motley crowd, growing larger every minute, listened eagerly to the story of the trouble as explained by the chief actors. It appeared (Samuel Baker translated to me later) that a certain young man wished to leave his home to get married. His father, for what seemed good and sufficient reasons, wished to dissuade his son from his purpose, but without success; for the youth, speaking almost in the very words of the prodigal, asked that his share of the inheritance might be given him and that he might go forth. When we arrived, both father and son were threatening each other with angry word and gesture.

"It was a great opportunity for a wise counsellor. Samuel Baker talked long and earnestly. It was quite dark by now, and the people, seated around us on their haunches, were almost invisible. Only a faint, blurred patch of white clothing could be seen; and from the darkness came only sounds of approval, or the reverse, as one lesson after another was drawn. When, at last, we rose to go, the respectful, silent, demeanor of the group led me to think that our friend's wise counsel was taking effect."

President A. Rosenberger has prepared an interesting little volume called "Souvenir of Friends' Schools," being a reprint of a series of articles which appeared in "Western Work." It contains sketches of all the schools and colleges of Friends in the United States, with many illustrations.

Rufus M. Jones is attending New England Yearly, which is the body to which he belongs in membership.

The Quinquennial Educational Conference of Friends in America begins at Friends' School, Providence, R. I., at noon on the 28th of this month. Everybody is welcome. The charge for board at the school will be $1.00 per day.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

The following program shows the exercises of Commencement Week at Penn College:

Baccalaureate Address, by Levi Rees, Sabbath, Sixth month 11th, 4 p.m.

Annual Exercises Preparatory Class, Address, Irving C. Johnson, Monday, Sixth month 12th, 3 p.m.

Alethian-Alciman Entertainment, Monday, Sixth month 12th, 8 p.m.

Class Day, Tuesday, Sixth month 13th, 2 p.m.

Alumni Address, Tuesday, Sixth month 13th, 8 p.m., "The Relation of Philosophy to Science," Boyd Bode, Class '96.

Commencement Exercises, Wednesday, Sixth month 14th, 10 a.m., Address, "Your Point of View," Prof. John B. DeMott.

PYNE POYNT PARK, CAMDEN, N. J.

Friends, either living in or visiting Philadelphia, are invited to attend the regular meeting held in this park during the summer First-day afternoons. The first is 3.40 p.m., and is called "the quiet hour," and is often attended by workers in the Sabbath Schools of the city, and others who want a season of refreshment and time of thanksgiving. The next is a children's meeting at 7 p.m., and is generally very interesting to all attendants, especially when the speakers curtail their remarks. Often as many as two hundred children are present.

The third is at 8 p.m., and is under the charge of the "Volunteers."

These meetings have been fraught with much blessing, but unfortunately Friends have been singularly kept from being present. We would be glad of their help and aid. Those who cannot possibly be present might be very beneficial without any human being knowing it, by their aid in prayer at that and other times. Ellen Woody continues her services, and would be glad to see her friends here, as she is very much occupied.

I. B. WOOD, Secretary.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

Although no reports have been forwarded from this field for some time, the work has nevertheless gone steadily forward.

The two Preparative Meetings have grown in numbers and influence. Two series of meetings have been held: one by Amos Davis, the other by Thomas Hodgkin. They were owned of the good in deepening the work, and leading others to seek salvation through faith in Jesus.

The school taught by Eunice M. Dardus in the Friends' Academy, has been a great blessing to the community. The First-day school and meeting followering has been regularly held, and only seldom has there been a minister present, yet we are glad to state the interest increases, much of which is due the faithful labors of Eunice M. Dardus and Susan S. Roberam, who very frequently appear in vocal service in the meeting, to the edification of those present.

A very pleasant and profitable day was enjoyed by a large company of people, who gathered to witness the closing exercises of the school. James R. Jones preached a stirring sermon, appealing to the young to develop their efforts for personal development of Christian character.

At the close of the afternoon exercises by the students, Mary M. Hobbs of Guilford College, North Carolina, gave a most excellent address on the value of education, emphasizing its importance for young women.

Much credit is due to the persistent efforts of Eunice M. Dardus, the principal of the school, and which could be clearly seen throughout all the exercises of the students. The school has been much larger this year, and has still better prospects for the future.

David Foster very creditably won the scholarship kindly offered by the trustees of Guilford College.

Through the kindness of many friends we have been enabled to carry on this work, the benefit of which no one can tell. The money that has been kindly supplied has been economically used. Our well has cost much more than was expected by having to blast a greater part of the way through almost solid rock. It is not quite finished, but we soon hope to have it completed. We have in the upper story of the building a suite of six rooms, large dormitory for girls, kitchen and dining room, bed rooms for teacher and matron's reception room. Through kind contributions of friends, these are now pleasantly furnished. Susan S. Roberson is matron, and for the encouragement of young women desiring education we offer board at $4.00 per month. For further particulars, apply to Matron, Susan S. Roberson, Augusta, Davie County, N. C.

Terms in Academy, apply to Eunice M. Dardus, the same office as above.

Fall term will commence Eighth month 21st, 1899. Two hundred and twenty dollars has been paid on the property; about one hundred and seventy-five dollars has been expended in fitting up the home department and sundry expenses.

I am needing funds to finish paying for property. Should any one feel drawn to contribute, please forward to J. Elwood Cox, High Point, N. C., stating it is for the work of Friends in Davie County.

DAVID E. SAMPSON.

CANADA YEARLY MEETING.

A Friend writes that the work of Mary L. Goudy at High Falls School House has been much blessed. A number have been brought to Christ, and a better spiritual condition prevails as a result. The people of the neighborhood hope she may return and labor further among them.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Tanganoxie Academy Commencement occurred the 19th of Fifth month. Although the attendance has been small the past year, Prof. A. E. Jones and Evelyn White have done good, hard, faithful work, as shown by the Junior Public and Commencement exercises. The Friends here are very sorry to lose Prof. Jones, but he intends to spend the year in Colorado as General Traveling Agent of the Union Book and Bible House of Denver, and in teaching. Evelyn White, who has served so efficiently as assistant, will spend the summer at her home in Indiana, and then take the principalship of the Academy this fall.

While at Washington, Kansas, the other day, the fact was very plainly revealed that Friends read all of THE AMERICAN FRIEND, for Prof. A. D. Stanton had thirteen answers to his request for a principal for their academy. It is possible that Prof. Arthur Jones shall remain another year.

Prof. Arthur Jones and wife are rejoicing over the arrival of a son—Le Roy Michener Jones.

William Wooton continues his work at Lawrence, and is very enthusiastic over his Book and Tract Committee work in the Yearly Meeting. He is planning an excursion to western Colorado, where he proposes to establish a Friends' colony.

The meeting at Emporia, Kansas, is doing very good work with the aid of the minister, Clarkson Hinshaw. The mission at this place has been very much disturbed by the recent smallpox scare. Morris Moore, the Superintendent of the Sunday School, has been absent for ten weeks on account of a broken ankle. His services were greatly missed.

Denver Meeting was very sorry to lose George Weeks and his wife, who have done so much for this meeting the last few months. We hope to have President A. Rosenberger, of Penn College, with us a few weeks this summer, and Prof. Bevan Binford, of Friends' University will be with us occasionally.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Fountain City, Ind.—New Garden Quarterly Meeting was held the 26th and 27th of Fifth month, and was a time of special blessings. A number of ministers from a distance were present. On Seventh-day the Gospel was preached in all its fullness and with much power by Charles Hiatt, from Winchester, Ind.; by Frank Moorman, from Wabash, Ind., and by Robert Douglas, from Ohio. We were also helped by the presence of these ministers: Esther Cook, of New Castle, Ind.; Joseph Moore, of Earlham College; George W. Hartley, from the Indian Territory; also, Lydia Test, William West, and Eli Cook.

For the Sabbath a new feature had been decided upon in the way of an all-day meeting and a basket dinner upon the grounds. This resulted in a very large attendance, and a day of great blessing. Esther Cook, Frank Moorman, and Ellwood Hinshaw had charge of the services. At the morning meeting Frank Moorman preached an impressive sermon, full of the power of the Spirit. He was followed by Ellwood Hinshaw, who, after a brief talk, opened the way for songs and testimonies, and a very large number responded with words of personal experience and praises to our King. The afternoon meeting was preceded by a short Christian Endeavor prayer and praise service. At the closing service for the day Esther Cook preached from the text, "I shall be satisfied when I awake in Thy likeness." She revealed the deep things of the Spirit and made us long to know more of the higher heights and deeper depths of a religious experience. George M. Hartley spoke briefly of the open field for work amongst the Indians, where he is laboring. The day was felt to have been one of great blessing to many souls.

L. E. P.

CENTENNIAL REUNION AT WESTTOWN, PA.

A sky overcast with clouds, the forerunner of more rain than had fallen at Westtown for twenty-one years, greeted the arrival at the school on the 10th of a vast host of old scholars that gathered to do honor to the completion of the first hundred years of its history, and to launch it with renewed life upon another century of prosperity and usefulness.

The exercises of the day were held in a large double tent, capable of holding about three thousand people. Nearly this number were in their seats when, at 11 o'clock, the President of the Westtown Old Scholars Association, Samuel L. Allen, called for a short interval of silence preparatory to the reports and addresses of the occasion. The Principal of the School, Wm. F. Wickersham, was the first speaker introduced. With a few felicitous words he welcomed the old scholars to Westtown, and bade them to "be for one more day her happy boys and girls." The Treasurer's report, which followed, showed that the total receipts for 1898 had been $2,674.32, and the expenditures $2,542.26, leaving a balance of $132.06. The money expended had been devoted to improvements in the museum, greenhouse and shops, to scholarships, special subscriptions, etc. The Registrar, Albert Bell, in a resume of his work, stated that there remained only four hundred persons whose addresses he had been unable to locate. The President then read the report of the Board of Managers, in which he referred to the subjects which had been the particular care of the Old Scholars' Association. He also read the reports from the six committees who annually expend the Old Scholars' Fund.

As an illustration of the good accomplished in this way, it is worth while to mention that the tuition fees, in whole or part, of twelve students had been paid by the Treasurer during the past two years at an expense of $1,520.

The first regular address was given by Charles Potts, who for over thirty years was an instructor at the school. He rapidly retraced, in a pleasant word picture, the story of the past, relating very vividly and entertainingly his own experience from the time that he first entered the school sixty-three years ago. For fifteen minutes he told of scenes and customs which now live only in history, and carried the audience with him into the halls and neighborhood of "Old Westtown." In closing, he said, "I trust that a long and useful season is still before this beautiful institution, that the principles on which it was founded shall always be upheld by all concerned in carrying it on, and no lower aims be held before the minds of the pupils than those of perfect honor, purity and truth."

On behalf of the Association, the President officially presented to Charles Rhoads, the representative of the Westtown Committee a large manuscript and press-work book, made up of the subscription papers of all who had contributed to the Memorial Fund. In presenting it he said:

"The Association had hoped by this time to have made the value of this unique but modern work at least $100,000; we yet lack over one-third of this amount, but if any person or persons here to-day should be delighted to complete the desired total, I can promise that the Westtown Old Scholars' Association will be even more pleased, and that they will prepare an appendix to this work."

The next exercise was a poem, read by Dr. Francis B. Gummere, of Haverford College, written by himself in honor of the centennial celebration.

After a brief recess, taken for the purpose of giving the members an opportunity to pay their annual subscriptions, the meeting was called to order, and Ruth E. Chambers, of the Class of '88, read a short address. Her paper was a beautiful tribute to the value of life at Westtown.

Under the title of Westtown's Second Century, President Isaac Sharpless, of Haverford College, suggested the keynote for Westtown of the future, pointing to the unique position of the School in the past, its distinctive characteristics, its aims, the dangers which menace its future, and suggesting briefly the policy which must dominate its conduct if it is to stand as a great school in the denomination and the country. In closing he said: "One must be true to his Westtown training and restrain his tendency to glowing words in speaking of the possibilities of the Second Century at Westtown. But let us hope that not many decades will elapse before, in its own way, it will be recognized as one of the great American schools. It may be this and still be true to its own best principles. With the definiteness embraced in its phrase, "a guarded religious education," must come an equal definiteness in the methods to secure it, methods which will accomplish the object desired. With its great material equipment must come a corresponding intellectual one. It cannot be true to early Quaker teaching if it does not take large views of public and private duty. Its graduates, and I violate my own precepts in using the term, should have the sober, earnest Westtown stamp upon them, with a deep concern for the triumph of truth and righteousness—never noisy but always courageous, foremost in every good cause, relieving the slums and sweatshops, reforming the politics, purifying the business, repressing the vice, and lifting up the standards of the country. For this Westtown must give them a profound moral purpose and a real intellectual training. This is all within her reach. I cannot now suggest practical means, but they can be found, and I am not indulging in Utopian dreams. May her Second Century begin with a replenished exchequer, a renewed purpose, and a clear perception of her mission and function. For she has a mission; she can never be a copy of any other school, however good. It is one of the privileges of some men or set of men to work out the beneficent solution of a sober, earnest, strong Westtown, true to the standard of the best of past Quakerism—a Westtown of positive beliefs and influences and of an intellectual fibre the strongest in our land. I trust that the forces are now on the ground to solve this problem. Not among the traditions of the founders, not in the temporary make-shifts, which they adopted in the dim light of their day, but in the eternal principles which underlie their and our best efforts, we will find our guide and build our Westtown of the new Century."

A count taken of those present by decades showed that three survivors of the twenties were in the audience. The full ticket, as brought forward by the nominating committee, was then elected. The officers-elect are: President, Henry W. Comfort, Fallsington, Pa.; Vice President, Edward R. Strawbridge, Moorestown, N. J.; Secretary Jane S. Jones, Germantown; Treasurer, William T. Elkinton, Philadelphia; the Board of Managers, consisting of five members, to serve six years, Thomas K. Brown, Westtown, Pa.; Mary S. Brown, Philadelphia; John B. Rhoads, Moorestown, N. J.; Elizabeth Mellor, West Chester, Pa.; Walter Smedley, Media, Pa.

At 12.45, immediately after the close of the exercises, a luncheon was served to the hundreds present in the tent. The arrangements for feeding the large number of people on the grounds were excellent. After lunch had been disposed of the platform in the front part of the tent was cleared and a gymnasium drill was given, first by a team of boys, and then by one of girls, who are now pupils at the school.

The rain, which had fallen steadily for several hours, gave way to clear weather in the afternoon, in time for a base ball game to be played by two nines chosen from the alumni and the old scholars. A cricket match had also been scheduled for the afternoon, but owing to the condition of the grounds, this was canceled.

During the day an opportunity was given to everyone to inspect the buildings. The main objects of interest were the new gymnasium, in what was formerly the lecture room, the museum, the library, and particularly the exhibits of the handiwork, etc., of the students. The latter included collections of photographs, literature, note books, samples of sewing, biological, botanical, chemical and geological collections, etc., etc.

Ample provision had been made for this Centennial Reunion, and everything had been provided on a grand scale. As an illustration of this thirty-two stages were required to carry the visitors from the station to the school, enough to hold a train-load of 500 passengers. Immense good humor pervaded the gathering, despite the rain, which, beating upon the canvas of the tent, made it impossible for more than a very small number to hear distinctly the exercises of the day. A renewed interest in Westtown will undoubtedly follow this anniversary observance, and the new century of its existence opens most auspiciously. With a constantly enlarging horizon, a raising of ideals, a deepening of culture, and an extension of its sphere of influence, Westtown, backed by six thousand and more loyal old scholars and friends, may yet become one of the great schools of America.

Married.

COGGESHALL—BOND.—Married, Fifth month 30th, at the residence of the bride, at Ware, Mass., by the pastor of the East Congregational Church, Oliver W. Coggeshall and Ellen F. Bond. The bride is the daughter of J. A. and Elizabeth Cummings (the former deceased).

GRANT—CHASE.—Elihu Grant to Almy Chase, on Third-day, Sixth month 6th, at Manchester, New Hampshire.

ROCKWELL—BRANSON.—At the residence of Abner Branson, New Sharon, Iowa, Fifth month 10th, Arthur H. Rockwell to M. Lida Branson. Both are members of New Sharon Monthly Meeting.

Died.

ABBOTT.—Died, at Trinidad, Colorado, Eighth month 31st, 1898, Samuel Abbott, aged 80 years, 6 months and 9 days. Also at the same place, Second month 4th, 1899, Rebecca Abbott, wife of Samuel Abbott, aged 80 years, 9 months and 22 days. They were married Eleventh month 11th, 1838, so that they lived together almost sixty years, and in death they were not long divided. They were highly esteemed members of Pasadena Monthly Meeting, California. For some months both had been quite feeble. They had gone to visit their son in Colorado only a short time before. They were lifelong members of the Society of Friends, and were always faithful in their attendance of meetings and interest in its work. They were fully ripened for the harvest and peacefully waiting for the angel reaper.

BUNDY.—Charles O. Bundy, son of Daniel W. and Amanda Bundy, drowned Fifth month 8th, 1899, aged 30 years, 3 months and 11 days. He was loved and respected by all, was a regular attender of church and Sabbath School and Christian Endeavor and ever ready to testify to the love of Christ. Although death came in an unexpected hour, the bereaved have the consoling evidence that he has entered the haven of rest.

COOK.—Died at her home at Unity, Maine, Fourth month 14th, 1899, Elizabeth T. Cook, aged 89 years, 5 months and 14 days, a member and elder of Unity Monthly Meeting. Being early endowed with a tender and loving spirit, and realizing the responsibility of spending the life her heavenly Father had given her to His glory, and for the good of those about her, she proved herself worthy of her calling as wife, mother, friend, and Christian, ever ready with words of cheer for the downcast and weary, and a heart overflowing with sympathy for the afflicted and mourning ones. Her memory will long be cherished in the hearts of many who knew her. She passed peacefully on to the mansions of rest.

FORD.—Died suddenly, of heart trouble, Fifth month 22d, 1899, Pauline A. Ford of Spencer, Iowa. She was born in Lewis County, New York in 1835, and came to Iowa in 1866. She has been a Friend for twenty-one years, and was an earnest Christian woman—exemplary and careful in all things. She was also an elder in the church. She leaves a husband, seven children, and two brothers to mourn her loss.

GAUSE.—Rachel H. Gause died at her home in Iowa, Second month 10th, 1899, in her 83d year. She was born in Guilford Co., North Carolina, in 1816. She was a birthright member in the church, and throughout her long life has been an earnest and faithful member. She has served the church as an elder for nearly twenty years, and while not able to always attend church, was counted among the true and faithful. She was a member of Lynngrove Monthly Meeting of Friends at the time of her death. She had often said that while it was good to be with her children, it would be far better for her to depart and be with Christ. She was resting in the arms of her Saviour, who had been her support.

MOON.—Charity J., daughter of David and Asenath Newlin, was born near Plainfield, Ind., September 27th, 1853. She removed to Kansas in 1870, and was married to William Moon, of Emporia, Kansas, August 5th, 1871.

She died suddenly, of heart failure, April 12th, 1899, near Burlington, Kansas. The bereaved family consists of the husband and thirteen children, six boys and seven girls. Clarkson Henshaw preached the funeral sermon, and interment was made in Cottonwood cemetery, in which neighborhood most of her life was spent. She was a member among Friends, and was ready to answer the Master's summons, "Come up higher."

PECK.—On the evening of Second month 1st, at Providence, Joanna Peck, of Coventry, R. I., fell peacefully asleep in her 78th year. The daughter of Perez and Joanna Peck, she was a birthright member of the Society of Friends and an elder of Greenwich Monthly Meeting. There are few lives in which the peaceful fruits of righteousness are so abundantly manifest as they were in hers. She was looked upon by her friends as one of those rare souls who enjoy the "peace which passeth understanding," experienced by those who "abide under the shadow of the Almighty." Although her life was a quiet one, yet the purity and gentleness of her character were such that her influence will remain a living factor in the lives of many who were favored to associate with her.

PETERS.—Arthur Peters, son of Jacob and Emeline Peters, of Friendsville, Tenn., triumphantly passed over on the 24th of Fourth month last. He was just entering the prime of manhood, had married a lovely companion, May Hackney, prosperity seemed to be opening before them, when he was stricken with disease. He went to Colorado, where he found a nucleus of Friends who in God's mercy wonderfully helped the soul. But finally feeling that he must succumb returned home to die.

POPE.—Died, Fifth month 4th, 1899, Alfred L. Pope, aged 24 years, son of John L. and Frances E. Pope, of 803 Fairmount Street, Cleveland, Ohio.

PYLE.—Joseph Steddom Pyle, son of David and Esther Pyle, died at the home of his brother, Abijah Pyle, north of Richmond, Indiana, Fifth month 11th, 1899, aged 51 years. He was a birth-right member in the Society of Friends, to which he was greatly attached. Deprived in early manhood of his father, the cherished ambitions of his life were quickly set aside, that he might fill the vacant place to his mother, a younger brother and little sister. Of a modest, retiring disposition, he made no open profession, and only those very near to him knew the depth of his convictions, and the quiet purpose of his life. His last illness was marked by great patience, often during intense suffering, and he was enabled to speak freely to those who lovingly ministered to him of the hope set before him. The twenty-third psalm being a favorite passage of Scripture. He left to his sorrowing wife and daughter Olive, with other dear friends, the comforting assurance that for him all was well.

SHARPLESS.—At his home in Whittier, Cal., Albert F. Sharpless calmly fell asleep in Jesus on Second month 22d, 1899, aged nearly 88 years. He was born in Mercer County, Pa., Fifth month 1st, 1811, and married to Lydia Heald, of Columbiana County, Ohio, the 31st of Third month, 1836, with whom he lived a faithful and devoted companion for the lengthened period of nearly 63 years. He was a lifelong Friend and was devotedly attached to its principles, and adorned his Christian profession by simplicity of life and inflexible uprightness of character, and by a personal experience of and testimony to the saving truth of the Gospel of Christ, and was unfailingly diligent in the attendance at meetings.

WINSLOW.—Stephen R. Winslow passed away at his home in Springfield, Mass., Second month 21st, 1899, aged 75 years and 9 months. He was born in Westbrook, Maine, and was a lifelong member of Falmouth Monthly Meeting, attending the meeting at Deering until his removal from Westbrook in 1895. He left a wife and son and daughter, the last named a teacher in Springfield High School. Our loss is his gain.

News and Events.

The President's civil service order, recently issued, withdraws from the classified service not merely 3,000 or 4,000 places, as was stated in connection with its announcement, but over 10,000 places. A more backward step could hardly be conceived than this, and in the face of the party's declaration in its platform of 1896, the order is positive treachery to the voters upon whose favor the President was dependent for his election. The platform expressly declared that "The civil service law was placed on the statute book by the Republican party, which has always sustained it, and we renew our repeated declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable," and President McKinley, in accepting the nomination for this high office, himself said: "The pledge of the Republican National Convention that our civil service laws 'shall be sustained and thoroughly and honestly enforced wherever practicable,' is in keeping with the position of the party for the past twenty-four years, and will be faithfully observed. Our opponents decry these reforms. They appear willing to abandon all the advantages gained after so many years' agitation and effort. They encourage a return to methods of party favoritism, which both parties have often denounced, that experience has condemned, and that the people have repeatedly disapproved. The Republican party earnestly opposes this reactionary and entirely unjustifiable policy. It will take no backward step upon this question. It will seek to improve, but never degrade, the public service." Secretary Gage has twice endeavored to defend the course of the President in bowing to the spoilsmen, but his apologies are lame and inconsequent. The Civil Service Reform League has unsparingly criticized the action of McKinley, and the lovers of good government and pure business principles apart from petty spoils tactics everywhere, irrespective of party, are decrying his short-sighted policy. He has made for himself a host of enemies, and until he can satisfactorily rectify his blunder he will continue to reap the ill effects of it upon the popular mind.

It looks as though there will be trouble of a serious nature in the Transvaal, unless some unusual event should intervene and prevent it. The negotiations between President Krueger, of the Boers, and Sir Alfred Milner, the British commissioner, have ended in a complete failure to reach any agreement respecting the rights of the Uitlanders, the non-franchised citizens of the Republic. President Krueger declared that he would discuss anything but the independence of his country, and his explanation of his refusal to concede liberal franchise privileges to the Uitlanders would probably be that such a concession would mean the eventful surrender to the Uitlanders, who are mainly British subjects. What few inconsequent concessions that were offered by Krueger were made dependent upon the submission to arbitration of the points now in dispute between the two countries. Sir Alfred Milner refused to entertain such a proposition, and the conference ended. It is hardly to be wondered at that the Boers cling so tenaciously to their powers of government, but it is contrary to justice that so large a proportion of the population should be unrepresented in the state, but must contribute ninety per cent. of all the taxes to support the government.

The insignificance of the recent rioting at the Auteuil races, when President Loubet was struck on the head by an anti-Semite, was well brought out on the 11th, when the chief executive of France attended the Longchamps races and was greeted with applause by thousands of Parisians all along the route as well as at the race-course itself. Cries of "Vive Loubet!" were heard everywhere, and the few hisses that were uttered were drowned by the cheers and shouts of approval generally. The President and his party were surrounded by a large guard of police and troops. Six thousand police, twelve hundred mounted Republican Guards, one hundred gendarmes, and all the troops in Paris were held ready to suppress any hostile outbreak. A repetition of the slight disturbance of the 3d was thoroughly provided against, and had a demonstration occurred it would at once have been quenched. Apropos of the Dreyfus case, it is worth chronicling that Picquart has been released from prison, and thus another chapter in the great conspiracy has been written and another wrong righted.

News comes from The Hague that Dr. Zorn, the German delegate, has spoken against arbitration. This is the part of the program now most prominent in the Conference, and it is discouraging, though not unexpected, to have Emperor William's representative openly antagonize the consummation of any scheme to assist in the arbitration of international difficulties. Dr. Zorn is quoted as saying: "Emperor William would not pledge himself to bow to the decision of judges not appointed by him, on cases that had not yet arisen. These were the objections of principle. The objections of expediency were on the score of expense and the possibility that the tribunal under the rendering of iniquitous decisions might bring the principle of arbitration into discredit."

An aggressive movement against the Filipinos south of Manila was undertaken on the 10th inst. An American force of infantry, cavalry and artillery, under Generals Lawton, Wheaton, and Ovenshine drove the enemy from the isthmus between Manila Bay and Laguna de Bay with heavy losses. The American troops, assisted by the navy, captured Paranaque and Las Pinas. The Filipinos, however displayed their usual tact in withdrawing in time to prevent capture, and thus the Americans have once more found themselves unable to surround the enemy. The rebel losses amounted to about four hundred. The Americans had four killed and thirty wounded. During the action the heat was terrific, and on account of this our troops suffered intense discomfort.

MASTERS MADE SLAVES.

Edward W. Bok, of the "Ladies' Home Journal," says, "One thing that led me to make up my mind never to touch liquor was the ruin which I saw it bring to some of the finest minds with which I have ever come into contact. I have seen, even in my few years of professional life, some of the smartest literary men dethroned from splendid positions, owing to nothing else but their indulgence in wine. I have known men with salaries of thousands of dollars a year come to beggary from drink.

"Only recently there applied to me for any position I could offer him one of the most brilliant editorial writers in the newspaper profession—a man who two years ago easily commanded one hundred dollars for a single editorial in his special field. That man became so unreliable from drink that editors are now afraid of his articles, and, although he can to-day write as forcible editorials as at any time during his life, he sits in a cellar in one of our cities writing newspaper wrappers for one dollar per thousand. That is only one instance of several I could recite. I do not hold my friend up as a 'terrible example.' He is but one of a type of men who convinced me, and may convince others, that a clear mind and liquor do not go together.

"I know it is said when one brings up such an instance as this: 'Oh! well, that man drank to excess. One glass will not hurt any one.' How do these people know that it will not? One drop of kerosene has been known to throw into flame an almost hopeless fire, and one glass of liquor may fan into flame a smoldering spark hidden away where we never thought it existed. The spark may be there and it may not be. Why take the risk? Liquor will never do a healthy boy or young man the least particle of good; it may do him harm. A man who will wittingly tempt a young man whom he knows has a principle

SKILLFUL COOK'S DUTY.

Should Make Food Taste and Look Well.

The true science of cookery is to select proper and nourishing ingredients and then prepare them in such a manner as will please the taste, and incidentally the eye.

The most valuable food will not long agree with a person if its taste is disagreeable. This does not argue that all nice-tasting articles are nutritious and nourishing. However, it is the duty of all food experts to produce delicious food and from the best possible ingredients, and to have a comprehensive knowledge of the laws of digestion and assimilation.

Grape-Nuts, the new food, made by Postum Cereal Co., Lim., Battle Creek, and now on sale at grocers, is thought to be the highest type of scientifically made food thus far produced.

It possesses the delicate sweet of grape-sugar, with a new and peculiar flavor of a most winning character, while the processes of manufacture have brought the food to such a condition that it is absorbed by the system in a most natural and healthful manner.

against liquor is a man for whom a halter is too good.

"Then, as I looked round and came to know more of people and things, I found the always unanswerable argument in favor of a young man's abstinence; that is, that the most successful men in America to-day are those who never lift a wine-glass to their lips. Becoming interested in this fact, I had the curiosity to inquire personally into it; I found that of 28 of the leading business men in the country, whose names I selected at random, 22 never touch a drop of wine. I made up my mind that there was some reason for this. If liquor brought safe pleasures, why did these men abstain from it? If, as some say, it is a stimulant to a busy man, why do not these men, directing the largest business interests in this country, resort to it? And when I saw that these were the men whose opinions in great business matters were accepted by the leading concerns of the world, I concluded that their judgment in the use of liquor would satisfy me. If their judgment in business matters could command the respect and attention of the leaders of trade on both sides of the sea, their decisions as to the use of liquor was not apt to be wrong."

AN OBLIGING HERO.

A woman who visited one of the hospitals in the South last summer has been telling a story since she came back to Washington which is good, if true, and just as good, perhaps, if it isn't true. While going through the hospital in question, so she narrates the incident, a busy-looking, duty-loving woman bustled up to one of the wounded soldiers who lay gazing at the ceiling above his cot.

"Can't I do something for you, my poor fellow?" said the woman.

The "poor fellow" looked up languidly. The only thing he really wanted just at that time was his discharge. When he saw the strained and anxious look on the good woman's face, however, he felt sorry for her, and with perfect sang froid he replied:

"Why, yes; you can wash my face if you want to."

"I'd be only too glad to," gasped the visitor, eagerly.

"All right," said the cavalier, gallantly, "go ahead. It's been washed twenty-one times already to-day, but I don't mind going through it again if it'll make you any happier."—Washington Post.

WHY THEY BURNED ROME.

History is all the time having new readings, and some of the best of them come from the mouths of children. "When Rome was burning, the Emperor Nero was playing a fiddle," so the teacher told Robbie. And this is what Robbie told his mother that evening: "The Emperor Nero was playing a fiddle, so they burned Rome."

ROASTS
ARE GIVEN A MOST DELICATE AND APPETIZING RELISH, IF JUST TOUCHED UP A BIT WITH LEA
&
PERRINS'
SAUCE
THE ORIGINAL & GENUINE WORCESTERSHIRE.
FOR SIXTY YEARS THIS SAUCE HAS GIVEN PERFECT SATISFACTION
THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.
JOHN DUNCAN'S SONS, AGTS
NEW YORK.

A great opportunity will only make you ridiculous unless you are prepared for it.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB'S TOURS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Parties will leave Philadelphia in June, July, August, September and October, for

36 SUMMER TOURS

of Seven to Twenty Days to the Principal Resorts of New England, Canada, and New York, including:—
Saratoga, Lakes George and Champlain and Ausable Chasm

The White, Green and Adirondack Mountains.

Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, and the Saguenay. Poland Spring, Moosehead Lake, Sorento and Mt. Desert.

The Maritime Provinces.

Great Lake Tours.

July 11. Tour through Europe.

July 7 and 18. Alaska and Yellowstone Park.

July 18 Yellowstone Park, Utah and Colorado.

August 8 and 22. Hawaii, Japan, China and Around the World.

July 7 and 18, and September 1. Yellowstone National Park.

September 1. Yellowstone Park, the Pacific Northwest and California.

Railroad and Steamship Tickets to all points.

Send for descriptive book, mentioning tour desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
1005 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

"It is said that when General Grant was in Japan the Japanese premier, desiring to compliment the general by telling him that he was born to command, tried in English with this result:

"Sire, brave general, you vas made to order."

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

THE PROVIDENCE EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE, AT FRIENDS' SCHOOL. PROGRAM.

Fourth-day, Sixth month 28th, 1899.—2 p.m., Opening Address by Augustine Jones, of Friends' School, Providence; Address by Governor Elisha Dyer, of Rhode Island; President's Address by Isaac Sharpless, of Haverford College, Pa.; Secretary's Report by Rosa E. Lewis, of Penn College, Iowa. 8.00 p.m., An illustrated lecture on American Archaeology by James Wood, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y.

Fifth-day, Sixth month 29th, 1899.—9 a.m., "The Work the College has done for the Church," by President Rosenberger, of Penn College; "What Denominational Influence should our Secondary Schools Exert?" by Carolena M. Wood, of New York; "Education and Modern Business Life," by Thomas K. Brown, of Westtown School. 2 p.m., "The Relation of Friends' Academies to their Colleges," by Robert L. Kelly, of Chicago University; "The Importance of Teaching the Principles of Peace in our Schools, with Suggestions as to Methods," by Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore; "High Scholarship and Modest Pretensions in College Work," by President L. L. Hobbs, of Guilford College, N. C. 7.30 p.m., "Sociology from a Quaker Standpoint," by Prof. Cyrus H. Hodgin, of Earlham College, Indiana; "Modern Thought in Friends' Educational Work," by Prof. George A. Barton, of Bryn Mawr College, Pa.

Sixth-day, Sixth month 30th, 1899.—9 a.m., "Literature in School and College," by Prof. Francis B. Gummere, of Haverford; "Friends' University," by President Stanley, of Wichita Kansas; "The Bible in School and College," by Rufus M. Jones, of "The American Friend."

Board can be had at the School, beginning with noon on Sixth month 28th. Friends intending to be present should communicate with Augustine Jones, Friends' School, Providence, R. I.

GOOD NEWS.

Even if you have suffered long, there is abundant proof that Compound Oxygen has effected wonderful cures. We will gladly furnish this evidence. Book of 200 pages sent free. Or call and see us. Skillful medical attention to every case brought to notice, either personally or by letter. Consultation free.

Our confidence in the remedial powers of the Compound Oxygen is the result of a quarter of a century's experience.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,

1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.

San Francisco, Cal.

Toronto, Canada.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, First-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

AT THE GATES OF SONG (NOW IN SECOND EDITION) THE SLOPES OF HELICON BY LLOYD MIFFLIN.

A glorious imagination. A new Poet. He must soon be reckoned among the masters of American song.—R. H. Stoddard.
The greatest poets only have succeeded in producing sonnets of exceptional merit. It is, therefore, high praise to say of these Sonnets that most of them bear the mark of true distinction.—Westminster Review.

Both illustrated by T. Moran, N. A.

DANA ESTES & CO., Boston, and all Booksellers

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

In the midst of a dinner given once by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to a well-known Archbishop of Dublin, the company was startled by seeing the Archbishop rise from his seat, pale and agitated, crying, "It has come, it has come!"

"What has come, your Grace?" eagerly inquired a half-dozen voices from different part of the table.

"What I have been expecting for years, a stroke of paralysis," solemnly answered the Archbishop. "I have been pinching myself for the last ten minutes and find my leg entirely without sensation."

"Pardon me, my dear Archbishop," said the host, looking up to him with a quizzical smile; "pardon me, but it is my leg you have been pinching."—Ex.

ELLWOOD HEACOCK

UNDERTAKER AND EMBALMER

ESTABLISHED 1860 TELEPHONE 5807
Local and Long Distance

1313 Vine Street, Philadelphia

Calls outside of City answered promptly

THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The American Friend is a weekly paper, containing twenty-four pages. The subscription price is one dollar and a half a year, payable in advance.

Discontinuances.—If a subscriber wishes his copy of the paper discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

How to Remit.—Remittances should be sent by Check, Draft, Express-Order, or Money Order, payable to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. Cash should be sent only in Registered Letter.

Postage is Prepaid by the publishers for all subscriptions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. For all other countries in the Postal Union add $1.00 for postage.

Change of Address.—When a change of address is ordered, both the new and the old address must be given. The notice should be sent one week before the change is to take effect.

Letters should be addressed:

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.
OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.
Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.
Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Homelike and attractive. Open throughout the year. MARY T. HAINES.
N. R. HAINES.
Late of Chalfonte

The Archdale, 136 South
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful room; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends. MARY J. BUNDY

PRESTON'S SUNNYSIDE
Wernersville, Pa.

The highest resort on the Mountain. Magnificent scenery; pure water; excellent table. Booklet.
JAMES H. PRESTON.

MORE FAITH.

"I hear men everywhere praying for more faith; but when I listen to them carefully and get at the real heart of their prayers, very often it is not more faith at all that they are wanting, but a change from faith to sight.

"What shall I do with sorrow that God has sent me?"

"Take it up and bear it, and get strength and blessing out of it."

"Ah, if I only knew what blessing there was in it, if I saw how it would help me, then I could bear it. What shall I do with this hard, hateful duty which Christ has laid in my way?"

"Do it, and grow by doing it."

"Ah, yes, if I could only see that it would make me grow."

"In both of these cases you do not see that what you are begging for is not mere faith, although you think it is, but sight.
You want to see for yourself the blessing in the sorrow, the strength in the hard and hateful task.

"Faith says not, 'I see that it is good for me, and so God must have sent it,' but,
'God sent it, and so it must be good for me.'

"Faith, walking in the dark with God, only prays Him to clasp its hand more closely; does not even ask Him for the lighting of the darkness so that the man may find the way himself."—Phillips Brooks.

"An ambitious young writer having asked, 'What magazine will give me the highest position quickest?' was told, 'A powder magazine, if you contribute a fiery article.'"

REUBEN H. UNDERHILL

Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law
Has Removed to

141 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

ODE TO MAY.

May, lovely May, of all the year the fairest—

Ah! must thou leave us with thy rosy train?

Rich flowers are thine, the sweetest and
the rarest,

Gracing with beauty Nature's vast domain.

Ah, must thou leave thy votaries sad and lonely,

Returning not one kind responsive sigh,
As if the heart, so brief thy stay, had only

Time but to welcome thee and say goodbye.

Think not that those who love thee can forget thee;

Hast thou not cheered them even day
by day?

O, no, when thou art gone they must regret thee

And sigh for thee, thou sweet and lovely
May.

Pure was the atmosphere of joy thou gave us,

So calm and placid was thy every smile.
Ah, must thou, in thy pride and beauty,

leave us,

Nor longer stay to cheer our own Green
Isle.

Sweet May, sweet May, how have we cull'd thy flowers

And formed a wreath wherewith to deck
our hair,

Long, long ago, in childhood's happy hours,

'Ere yet our hearts had felt one touch of care.

Bright birds of passage come with thee to cheer us,

Sweet songsters of the hedgerow, wood and dell,

I would that they, with thee, wer't always near us,

'Tis sad to say an annual farewell.

There are no flowers so fair, so prized, so cherished,

As those that are early scattered by thy hand,

We love them even when their bloom has perished,

Because the first to beautify our land.

From off life's hill-top now I look around
me,

But I can see for me no future May;

Should this be so, why should the thought astound me,

Or even cast a shadow on life's way?

EPHRAIM ALLEN.

Grange Cottage, Portadown, Ireland.

The heights by great men gained and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,

But they while their companions slept
Were toiling upward in the night.

Swift's

Highest-grade

Products

Premium Hams, the best hams cured.
Premium Breakfast Bacon, no
other quite so good.

Silver Leaf Lard, all lard and nothing but lard.

Beef Extract, the strongest, the purest, the best.

Jersey Butterine, delicious and wholesome.

Cotosuet, the perfect vegetable shortening.

Sold everywhere

Swift and Company, Chicago

New Guide to Rose Culture, free. The Conrad and Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

Reduced Rates to Richmond, Va., via Pennsylvania Railroad, account
International Convention Baptist
Young People's Union.

On account of the International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, to be held at Richmond, Va.,
July 13th to 16th, the Pennsylvania Railroad has arranged to sell excursion tickets from points on its line, to Richmond, at rate of single fare for the round trip (tickets via Baltimore and steamboat fifty cents more than single fare).

Tickets will be sold July 11th to 13th, and will be good to return until July 31st, inclusive, except that on deposit of ticket with the Joint Agent at Richmond before July 28th, and the payment of fifty cents, the return limit may be extended to leave
Richmond not later than August 15th, 1899.

Stop over at Washington on return trip for ten days, not to exceed final limit of ticket.

For specific rates and conditions apply
to Ticket Agents.

Reduced Rates to Detroit via Pennsylvania Railroad, account Christian Endeavor Convention.

On account of the Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held at Detroit, July 5th to 10th, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from points on its line, to Detroit, at rate of single fare for the round trip.

Tickets will be sold on July 3d, 4th and 5th, and will be good to return until July 15th, inclusive, except that by depositing ticket with the Joint Agent at Detroit before July 12th, and the payment of fifty cents, the return limit may be extended to leave Detroit not later than August 15th.

For specific rates and conditions apply
to Ticket Agents.

DRINK A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

The pulse of pleasure beat more strongly a hundred years ago since than it appears to do in our languid century. There was more amusement and more frolicking, more commerce among mankind; a very great deal more idleness,—so much so, indeed, that one wonders how business was done. I knew a Scotch judge, a famous bon-vivant, who was forced to drink water for two months, and, being asked what was the effect of the régime, owned that he saw the world really as it was for the first time for twenty years. For a quarter of a century he had never been quite sober. The fumes of the last night's three bottles and whiskey toddy inflamed all the day's thought and business. He transacted his business, got up his case, made his speech as an advocate, or delivered his charge as a judge with great volubility and power; but his argument was muzzy with dreams: he never saw the judge before him except through a film of whiskey. I wonder how much claret went to inflame the judgment of the orator and the auditors of the House of Commons which debated the American War? Men dined at three o'clock, and regaled themselves with beer, wine, and quantities of punch after. What business were they good for after such a diet? The best thing they could do was to play at cards, perhaps; and then about ten or eleven, you know, they would be hungry again, and, behold, broiled bones and Madeira, and more punch,—quantities more punch,—and to bed after midnight, and plenty of rest required to sleep off all that feasting; and compute the mere time for pleasure, and there remain but three or four hours for work, with a headache. A lady of little more than my own age has told me that at her father's table—he was a peer of ancient name and large estates in the Midland counties—dinner was served at two or three, the old nobleman sitting with such company as the county afforded; and strong ale went on all dinner-time, then port, then punch, then supper, and so forth. People in those days were continually carried away drunk and put to bed, and I suppose had no shame in meeting their families the next morning. No wonder the pulse of pleasure beat with all this liquor to inflame it.—From Thackeray's Note-Book.

INDEX

To "The American Friend."

Copies of the index to "The American Friend" for 1898 may be had by addressing "The American Friend," 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia. They will be sent promptly upon request.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES

You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently but firmly. Pond's Extract cures Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force; - - - - $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

Agents Wanted.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

THE GIRARD CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.
LIFE INSURANCE TRUST CO.
ANNUITY AND

Executes Trusts,

Allows Interest on Deposits,

Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,

Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.

WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.

NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.

EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.

A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.

CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer.

WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, JR.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENES,

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,

ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS.. PHILA.

The Osage "Public Opinion," Kansas, says that a Santa Fe section foreman, working near that town, recently made the following report to the roadmaster: "Mac-Whorter's bull struck at the long siding, and was killed. We found him alongside the track, and as he was not quite dead then, I borrowed a gun and shot him three times, killing him again. Dennis Sullivan then struck him another blow on the head with a pick, and finished him. The bull is now dead."

If you Lack Energy

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It vitalizes the nerves, helps digestion, and relieves fatigue so common in mid-summer.

JOTTINGS.

Bellamy Storer, the United States Minister to Spain, arrived in Madrid on the 10th inst., and on the 12th presented his credentials of office to the Queen Regent. It seems a shame our government should have been more than a week behind Spain in the exchange of this diplomatic courtesy on the part of its minister.

The steamship Paris has been practically given up for lost. It remains immovable on the Manacles, and there seems to remain for it only one possible use, that of a light ship. Such a vessel appears to be greatly needed at this point in the sea. The American Line which owns the Paris has decided to build a ship to replace the wrecked vessel.

Preparation is being made for the consolidation of the breweries of the country into a vast trust. Three years is the time stated as necessary for completing the deal, and the amount of capital required is said to be $1,000,000,000. The distilleries will all be bought up, and also all the 2200 breweries now in operation.

A provisional boundary in Alaska between the territory of the United States and that of Canada has been established in the disputed Dalton trail. This action will make for peace between the two countries, and it is to be hoped that a permanent territorial division satisfactory to both will result from pending negotiations.

It is estimated that the trusts, by their consolidation of interests and reductions of expenses, have thrown out of employment 350,000 commercial travelers. These men are preparing to fight the corporations through politics, and as a body of resourceful and energetic workers they are to be feared by the soulless trusts.

Two Christian scientists have been on trial in Buffalo, N. Y., on the charge of manslaughter in having caused the death of a seven year old boy. The child, who it seems might have been saved by proper medical attention, was placed under the care of these Christian scientists and shortly died. The defence claimed that the accused had committed no crime, but the prosecution took the ground that the child was not able to act for itself, and consequently those who acted as its caretakers were responsible. The decision has not, at this writing, been given.

M. Charpentier, the special reciprocity delegate from France, is now in Washington engaged in preparing active negotiations for a reciprocity treaty between his country and the United States. It is thought that such a treaty will result in better trade relations between the two countries.

Prof. Schurman, the head of the United States Commissioners to the Philippines, is to return to this country in July. He was perhaps more conciliatory than any member of the commission in his dealings with the natives. In commenting on his withdrawal, the "Springfield Republican" says:

"Prof. Schurman's departure from Luzon means this: There will be no one left to do any conciliating. Dewey has gone home, Denby believes in force, Worcester is a zoologist who happened to have traveled that way, and Otis has only one solution, unconditional surrender."

Frank Thomson, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died at his home near Merion, Pa., early last week. A. J. Cassatt, a prominent director of the road and an experienced railroad man, was chosen to fill the vacancy.

General Maximó Gomez, in an address to the Cuban people on the 6th, bade farewell to the island which he has loved and worked for so long. Various opinions exist regarding his farewell. His admirers say that the address will rank as one of the greatest in history, his opponents insist that he has no intention to retire for more than a few weeks, and that his real object is to gain public sympathy. The Americans consider the address sincere and expressing the real views of the old patriot.

A LEGACY OF PRETENCE.

Just one hundred years ago the Manhattan Company of New York City was incorporated by Aaron Burr. Its ostensible purpose was to supply the city with water. Its real purpose was to open a bank. The reason for the concealment was because there was a popular prejudice against banks.

A tank was built, hollow logs laid for pipes, and water was distributed until 1840. In order to keep its charter, this great banking company, which still exists, is to-day obliged to pump water from its ancient tank. A pitcherful is always in evidence at its annual meetings, and a committee solemnly reports that no applications for water have been refused.

The story has its humorous side, but it illustrates the legacy of pretense and useless effort which roundabout methods always entail. Aaron Burr's mode of seeking one object under cover of another has many followers, but in politics or society or in individual relations it can never be commended and seldom excused. —"Youth's Companion."

Henry Bernard Carpenter once received a request for criticism of the following quatrain—a bit of versification whose vigor of diction and precision of statement cannot be questioned:

"Down by the side of a babbling brook
An elderly gentleman sat.
His hair was all on top of his head:
On top of his hair was his hat."

Carpenter's reply was characteristic, "I should not know how to improve your lines." And the idiotic rhymester wrote in reply, and thanked him for his praise.—"Time and the Hour."

The Prudential

As a Life Preserver.

Life Insurance fills a definite, distinct mission. It is a fact that men live longer when they are insured — when they are relieved of the load of anxiety and worry which afflicts the thoughtful man who has failed to protect his family against want and dependence in the future.

Write for full information.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America

JOHN F. DRYDEN,
President.

Home Office:
NEWARK, N. Y.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

HARVEST HOME

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

EMANCIPATED SERFS.

Prince Krapotkin, a Russian nobleman whose detestation of despotism has exiled him from his native land, tells in the "Atlantic" this story to show what the abolition of serfdom meant for the peasants:

One evening our village priest found a middle-aged peasant, Anton Savelieff, reading a book of psalms. He was reading a psalm of which each verse began with the word "Rejoice."

"What are you reading?" he was asked. "Well, father, I will tell you," was his reply. "Fourteen years ago the old prince came here. It was in the winter. I had just returned home, almost frozen. A snow-storm was raging. I had just begun undressing when we heard a knock at the window; it was the elder, who was shouting:

"Go to the prince; he wants you."

"We all—my wife and our children—were thunderstruck. 'What may he want from you?' my wife began to cry. I signed myself with the cross and went; the snow-storm was blinding me as I crossed the bridge.

"Well, it ended all right. The old prince was taking his afternoon sleep, and when he woke up he asked me if I knew plastering work, and only told me: 'Come to-morrow to repair the plaster in that room.' So I went home quite happy, and when I came to the bridge I found my wife standing there. She had stood there all the time, with the baby in her arms, in the snow-storm, waiting for me.

"What has happened, Savelieff?" she cried.

"Well," I said, 'no harm; he only asked me to make some repairs.'

What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer

By DR. RICHARD H. THOMAS

An Address delivered before the Annual Meeting of Friends' First-day School Association, held at Twelfth Street Meeting House, Philadelphia, during the Session of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, Fourth month 18, 1899.

Price, 5 cents, postage paid.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,

718 Arch Street

Philadelphia

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

JONATHAN DICKINSON, JR., A.M., Head Master.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Spring term begins April 5th, 1899. For catalogues address

HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY
Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN
Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS
Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK
Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR } Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN }
ATLANTIC }
BRADLEY }
BROOKLYN } New York.
JEWETT }
ULSTER }
UNION }
SOUTHERN } Chicago.
SHIPMAN }
COLLIER }
MISSOURI } St. Louis.
RED SEAL }
SOUTHERN }
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO
Philadelphia.
MORLEY
Cleveland.
SALEM
Salem, Mass.
CORNELL
Buffalo.
KENTUCKY
Louisville.

IN your experience with White Lead have you ever been troubled with cracked, pulled or alligatored surfaces, or have you ever heard of such trouble in the use of White Lead?

Never; and these conditions were never known until the introduction of zinc white, "combination lead," and ready-mixed paints, the two last composed largely of zinc, barytes, whiting, etc., very little lead, if any.

—Mr. E. P. Edwards, in "Painters' Magazine."
Mr. Edwards is the senior member of the firm of Messrs. Edwards & King, Painters and Decorators, Elizabeth, N.J.

FREE

By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of colors forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.

ASA S. WING, Vice-President.

JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.

SAMUEL H. TROTTE, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.

DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.

J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.

C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

"That was, father, under the old prince. And now, the young prince came here the other day. I went to see him, and found him in the garden, at the tea-table, in the shadow of the house; you, father, sat with him, and the elder of the canton, with his mayor's chain upon his breast. 'Will you have tea, Savelieff?' he asks me; 'take a chair.' 'Peter Grigorieff,'—he says that to the old one, 'give us one more chair.'

"And Peter Grigorieff—you know what a terror he was for us when he was manager of the old prince—brought the chair, and we all sat round the tea-table, talking, and he poured out tea for all of us. Well, now, father, the evening is so beautiful, the balm comes from the prairies, and I sit and read, 'Rejoice! Rejoice!'"

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

MASON'S
CREAM OF OLIVES OINTMENT
CURES CATARRH ASTHMA HAY FEVER
" " MUMPS CROUP CAKED BREAST
" " FIRE & SUN BURN CHAFING
" " BUNIONS & TIRED FEET
" " CHAPPED FACE LIPS & HANDS
" " SAFE REMEDY FOR PILES
ALL DRUGGISTS OR MAILED FOR 25¢
H.T. MASON CHEMICAL CO. 515 ARCH ST. PHILA. PA.
SAFE SPEEDY SURE

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

"Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S

Imported Piccadilly Wafers

Baked Expressly for us in London.
A Popular Biscuit slightly sweetened.

1 lb, Package 16c.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

A SURE CORN CURE

Removes the corn—and the roots
—without pain or danger—A
CORN Salve, perfectly harmless 15c. a box. At druggists
or by mail.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

The Easiest Writing Pen Made NOTHING LIKE IT. ESTERBROOK'S POSTAL No. 477

Turned
up
Point.

Ask your Stationer.

One Hundred and Fifty other Styles.

The ESTERBROOK STEEL PEN CO.
Works, Camden, N. J. 26 John St., N. Y.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

The Union Trust Company

ACTS AS

Administrator, Executor,
Guardian and Trustee.

It is quite as important to secure to ones wife and children, the results of the labors of a lifetime, as it is to acquire that competence in the first place.

Personal interview or correspondence solicited.

Offices:

715, 717, 719 Chestnut Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

Enameline

when applied, is most
BRILLIANT, and that is the
effect you want when using a stove polish. When an old stove is polished it should look as bright as new—that
is the result when you use
Enameline. It is put up in paste, cake or liquid form.
Remember that every package is guaranteed.

J. L. PRESCOTT & CO., New York

Read These Books

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illustrations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

Mailed free
for postage named.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A., T. & S.F.R.'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION.

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted.

Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.

USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT. 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

SIXTH MONTH 22, 1899

No. 25

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
POEM—Night and Day	579
Chas. H. Battey.
EDITORIALS.—The Outlook for the Twentieth Century.—London Yearly Meeting.—Timothy B. Hussey	579-581
General Church Notes	581
Our Father in Heaven	582
F. D. Huntingdon, D. D.
POEM—Good Night	583
New England Yearly Meeting	583
Rufus M. Jones.
POEM—"Lord, Speak to Me"	584
THE INTERNATIONAL LESSON	585
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	586
Haverford College Commencement	587
Penn College Commencement	589
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	590
NEWS AND EVENTS	592
BIRTHS	592
MARRIAGES	592
DEATHS	592
JOTTINGS	598
POEM—Westtown Anniversary	599
Francis B. Gummere.

TIMOTHY B. HUSSEY.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❖ ❖ ❖ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa*Friends seeking positions or wishing to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*THE GIRARD CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.
LIFE INSURANCE ANNUITY AND TRUST CO.Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President. HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary. NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary. A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer. WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN A. BROWN, Jr., JOHN C. SIMS,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS, PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOHN B. GARRETT, JOSIAH M. BACON,
WILLIAM H. JENES, HENRY TATNALL,

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.
OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47
Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,
Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

DIRECTORS.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,
Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

White Goods

Several very favorable purchases have enabled us to begin a special sale of desirable lines of White Goods at prices much lower than usual—in some cases less than half the quotations heretofore prevailing:Fine White Piques—of a beautiful quality—with woven colored stripes of red, light blue and black; regular prices 25 to 31c.—here at 15c. a yard.Organdies—70 inches wide—in white, light blue and pink. The white was made to sell at 31 cents, and the colored at 35 cents—here at 16c.
a yard.Fancy Embroidered Swisses—75-cent goods at 37c., and $1.00 goods at 50c.English Nainsooks—Manufacturerer's short lengths; in pieces of one to ten yards—to be sold by the piece only—at 8c., 10c. 12½c. a yard.
These goods would be regularly priced at from 12½ to 31 cents a yard.Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.
ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New
England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.
All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(Any subscriber of THE AMERI-
CAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper
sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."

"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SIXTH MONTH 22, 1899.

No. 25.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,

718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.

Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

For THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

NIGHT AND DAY.

'Twas a leaflet rain-bespattered,
But the words I read thereon
Of the paper torn and battered
Made a diadem that shone.

Simple, say you, were the verses?
Ay, but so we all should be,—
Learning from the little grasses
And the breezes mild and free.

We should see as that fond mother
Of whose tender faith I read,
Who, when all the dark did smother
World and sky, and think them dead.

When the room reeled thick with fancies,
And her child with fear did cling,—
Said, "Why fear when right advances?
'Tis the shadow of God's wing."

Grant us faith that sees through shadows
God's kind hand stretched forth to bless,
And beyond the desert, meadows
Of his own full righteousness.

If the night means God's wing o'er us,
Hiding from the things we fear,
Then the day is God before us
With his face brought very near.

CHARLES H. BATTEY.

Providence, R. I.

CHRISTIAN OUTLOOK FOR THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.

WE recently heard George Dana Boardman say the following words as his prophecy for the new century, and we asked him for his hopeful words to print in THE AMERICAN FRIEND. They will seem too full of hope for some, but it is a good thing occasionally to listen to the optimism of our old men who see visions or, at least, dream dreams—and we believe that it is better to cherish an outlook which is too hopeful than to dwell on pictures that are too dark. It is a serious mistake in any case to prophesy about the future without a careful knowledge of the past. These are his words :

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

"The Christian outlook for the twentieth century seems to be very bright. Of course, there will be occasional retrogrades, and, it may be, grave catastrophes; for it is the very nature of life to be subject to crises. Nevertheless, I feel sure that the general trend of the next century will be onward and upward—and this because I feel that the Lord of the Centuries has not lived and died and risen in vain. Accordingly, I believe that the spirit of Jesus Christ will be the dominant force in the coming century. I believe, for instance, that His Mountain Sermon will become more and more the supreme constitution for mankind; that as the church understands more and more His mission and character and teaching and work, her conceptions of God will be more heightened, and her conception of man will be more and more broadened; that the instincts of animalism will be lost in the sense of divine sonship; that agnosticism will melt in the heat of personal Christian experiences; that anarchy against man will flee before loyalty to God; that the kingdom of God will be less in word and more in power; that sectarianism will be swallowed in catholicity; that ecclesiasticism will wane and that Christianity will wax; that character rather than opinion will be the test of orthodoxy; that church and state will dissolve partnership; that church and academy will join hands in glad bridal—the church acknowledging the Bible of Nature and the academy acknowledging the Bible of Scripture; that the standard of ethics—personal, domestic, social, educational, commercial, national, international, Christian—will grow higher and higher; that heredity will gain Christian momentum; that environment will undergo transfiguration; that the sense of individual responsibility, and also of corporate community, will alike deepen; that society will agree that chastity shall be as binding on man as on woman; that life-imprisonment will supplant death penalty; that legislation, whether mandatory or prohibitory, will make way for intelligent and cheerful self-regimen; that office will soar from ambition into service; that wealth and work, instead of quarreling, will co-operate; that culture will become more conscious of accountability to God and to man; that society will tend towards equilibrium of forces and of functions; that egotistic insularity will be merged into altruistic terrestrialism; that the Jew will regain the blessing promised in Aoranam; that Christendom will disarm; that the whole world will become one neighborhood; that human units will grow into human unity—men into Man; that the Golden Rule will become more and more the law of society; that faith, hope, and love will be acknowledged the human trinity—in brief, that the twentieth century will be in very truth a century of Christocracy.”

LONDON YEARLY MEETING.

THERE were this year three main concerns of vital importance before London Yearly Meeting. We can only outline them in brief, though they deserve much more adequate presentation. They were on the following subjects: The relation of the Society of Friends to “Attenders,” the character of the ministry in Friends’ Meetings, and the condition of meetings for worship. Two years ago the Yearly Meeting requested the Home Mission Committee (this corresponds somewhat to our Pastoral and Evangelistic Committees) to consider and report upon some means of bringing about a closer association between the Society of Friends and the “attenders at Friends’ Meetings, of whom there are about 7,000, and also the members of the adult and other First-day schools of whom there are about 45,000. This committee submitted to the Yearly Meeting this year an elaborate report which was adopted by the meeting. This report discusses at length the complexity of the situation, and it considers the advisability of “preliminary” membership, but it does not find that preliminary—i. e., associate membership—can be regarded as a general solution of the problem, since it frequently creates two classes of members, and proves a halting-place rather than a stepping-stone to full membership, though in some meetings this may be the only course open, and in such cases is recommended. The report, however, concludes that in many meetings the best course will be to give to attenders, who have experienced a change of heart and given evidence in their lives that they appreciate our religious principles, full membership and to maintain over them “an efficient pastoral oversight,” so that those who are young in faith and immature in their views may be developed and expanded. Still further, Monthly and Preparative Meetings are empowered to affiliate to themselves such “Christian Societies” as shall in their judgment “tend to promote a closer fellowship of Christian faith and work between such bodies and the Society of Friends.” The report is a very wise one, and opens the way for a gradual solution of the problem in the right direction and along existing lines of movement.

Two sessions were almost entirely devoted to a consideration of the efficiency of the present day ministry among Friends. It is widely felt in England that the ministry to-day fails to speak to the conditions of the time, or at least that it only partially does so. The Friends who spoke dealt mainly with the quality of ministry needed, its distribution to the proper centres, and the way to develop an efficient ministry. It was well pointed out that the young and the more cultured members need a ministry which takes account of their lines of thought and their intellectual difficulties, as well as one which is fresh and virile and persuasive, and that all classes of members need a ministry which leads and teaches as well as illuminates. The day for crystallized phrases has gone by. It was further shown that the helpful minister must steadily grow himself, and be better able at seventy than ever before to help and lead the young people of twenty. The thing we miss, however, in these interesting discussions is an answer to the question how are such ministers, as we need and want, to be developed and brought forward? The same difficulty presents itself in reference to the third important matter which was weightily before the Yearly Meeting, viz., the establishment and development of meetings for worship which shall be of such an attractive and helpful character that they will continually draw persons to the Society of Friends. It is true that “our meetings for worship are our principal organized Christian work, and upon their spiritual attractiveness depends the spiritual attractiveness of the Society,” but how to bring about this condition is a leading question. There is much in the discussions of London Yearly Meeting which is valuable on both these points, but it is not easy to put one's finger on anything which points us to a definite practical solution of these supremely vital questions.

TIMOTHY B. HUSSEY.

FOR over forty years Timothy B. Hussey, whose picture is on our front page this week, has been among the foremost workers of New England Yearly Meeting in its many lines of activity. He is an active and successful business man, and he has put the same earnestness, good sense and faithfulness into his Christian work that has made him succeed in business. He has served the causes of education by giving for twenty years much of his time and thought to the committee work of both the educational institutions of New England Yearly Meeting. He went to Jamaica at the beginning of the mission work there, and he helped materially in laying the foundation of the Jamaica mission. When New England took up the important work at Ramallah, in Palestine, he threw himself into it with a zeal which inspired others, and as soon as Eli Jones was removed from the field of service Timothy Hussey and his wife took up the burden which the former had faithfully carried. Three times they have been to Palestine, and for the last two years and a half they have been at Ramallah, engaged in building a new building and in putting the mission on a substantial and permanent basis, so that it is now one of the most carefully organized and firmly established missions in any country. Timothy B. Hussey was for some years Clerk of New England Yearly Meeting.

CHURCH NOTES.

The annual meeting of the German Baptist Brethren (Dunkers) was held this year at Roanoke, Va., about 6,000 delegates being present. A large part of the sessions seem to have been taken up with the consideration of specific questions from seventeen districts. These concerned conformity to the usages of the Brotherhood in giving shape to the clothing, hair and beard and the non-use of tobacco; whether the sisters should not be required to remove weather clothing (extra wraps), and have their heads covered according to 1 Cor., 11: 5-10; whether all advertisements (except religious) should be excluded from the "Gospel Messenger," the church paper; whether schools under the supervision of the brethren should teach instrumental music; what is meant by "fashionable hats and neckties;" whether members should engage in Sunday work, or in any work requiring a uniform; whether a man who raises tobacco or has tobacco raised is eligible to the place of a delegate, etc. The General Missionary and Tract Committee reported receipts for building meeting houses, $2,281; the World-Wide Fund, $24,211; Book and Tract Fund, $2,359; India Mission, $3,204; Asia Minor Fund, $3,466; India Orphanage Home, $1,355. Total assets of all funds, $409,748.

It is interesting to note that the discussion of the McGiffert case which came up in the late Presbyterian General Assembly at Minneapolis, is still continued in the press of the denominations. This heresy case bids fair to rival the Briggs controversy of six years ago. Dr. Arthur P. McGiffert is professor of church history in the Union Theological Seminary, and is therefore a colleague of Dr. Charles A. Briggs. He refuses to withdraw the views put forth in his book, "History of Christianity in the Apostolic Age," and likewise considers himself too good a Presbyterian to leave that church. His denial that the Lord's supper was instituted as an everlasting memorial is one of the most important points to which his opponents take exception.

Dr. William Garden Blaikie, a distinguished member of the Free Church of Scotland, and a principal promoter of the pan-Presbyterian alliance, died at North Berwick, Scot., on the 11th, in his 80th year. He was a native of Aberdeen, and was minister at Drumblade in 1843, when the "disruption" in the Established Church of Scotland occurred, and he and his congregation went with the Free Church wing. His life work had been in Edinburgh, where he had received many honors. In 1868 he was appointed professor of apologetics and pastoral theology in New College.

About 10,000 members were present at the recent annual meeting of the Christian Scientists in this country and Europe, held at Boston. At communion service 2,550 new names were added to the roll and received into the church. The organization now reports 304 branch churches, and 111 additional regularly established First-day services in the United States and in several foreign countries, with a total membership of 70,000, while the church attendants number more than 300,000. During 1898 there was an increase of 75 churches against an increase of 44 in the previous year.

Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in New York, has resigned his pastorate to accept the presidency of Brown University. Ministers of religion are frequently in demand to fill such positions, and their qualifications not seldom render them particularly desirable as educational leaders. The Fifth Avenue Church is the place where John D. Rockefeller worships. He is in fact the wealthiest and one of the leading members in the congregation.

The municipal authorities of Odessa, in southern Russia, have decided to found three Sunday Schools to commemorate the Czar's peace manifesto.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

OUR FATHER IN HEAVEN.

BY F. D. HUNTINGDON, D.D., BISHOP OF CENTRAL NEW YORK.

A child is crying alone in the night. Precisely what it wants it does not know. Something is wanting, and just now it is the one thing that is everything.

Two longings at least are in it, one for a touch, one for a voice. The touch means protection, safety. The voice means tenderness, i. e., reassuring affection.

In the cry there is fear. The child does not really know of what it is afraid. It is afraid of the dark. Even if there is no pain in any part of its body, it is afraid of what shapes or sounds there may be in the strange dark chamber of the night, haunted with possible harms and griefs. It is afraid of being alone.

This crying infant in the dark is Humanity, not sure of its God, in God's world. For our purpose now the Father stands for and includes father and mother both, as in fact in the divine parentage He does.

Some day—some night, more likely—this child, getting older, coming to a conscious personality, finds that he is an orphan. There is no answer to the cry but a stillness, a hard sinking wonder, a distressing question that makes the little cheek pale, and the room stiller than before. Other children have a joy scarcely understood. Perhaps there is also the more pathetic perplexity of a foster or adopting parentage, faithless, and heartless.

In a brilliant book I read almost a lifetime ago, I remember it was written, "Orphanage is spiritual panoply." The writer meant that, among Christian people, to be an orphan clothes the compassionated child in a defence of pity and awe, so sacred that no temper is cruel enough to break through it.

We know too well that our Christendom is not quite so Christian as that. But taking the world as it is there are these two kinds of spiritually fatherless—those who do not know that they have no father, and those who, living as though they had none, cannot kill in themselves the dream, or quite stifle the waking cry.

We are here to think, as children of the Kingdom, of these two shadows of desolation. Who are the fatherless? Both of them are put in contrast with the first two words of the Lord's Prayer, which begins, as the Christian Creed begins, with a confession of faith. Consistently we cannot pray without believing that we speak to a living Person. The International Dictionary defines hypocrisy as a feigning to be what one is not, or to feel what one does not feel, and especially assuming a false appearance in religion. On the other hand, one cannot consistently say the first article of the Creed without praying. If that false word were spoken with a pledge, or an oath, it would be perjury.

What is the rationale of prayer? We want something that we cannot give ourselves, and something we know that no fellow-creature can give us. We cannot buy it, or earn, or borrow, or beg, or even steal it. We go for it where only it can be got, above ourselves and the world. As we have a sense of right and wrong, this is a moral necessity. When a fugitive slave was held by his master's certificate of ownership in a Northern city, and there was no hope of deliverance for him in court or army, a minister not orthodox and not Catholic, but intensely in earnest, exclaimed: "If there is no God, there ought to be one. Let us pray!"

In what way or words Christ, the Son of God, prayed, we do not know except in a few special emergencies. But He told all His followers by what pattern and in what spirit to come to their Father. "After this manner pray ye." His true followers took it up from His lips, and have never dropped it, never forgotten it, never altered it. We cannot as Christians speak that name "Father" without some thought of the profound and central truth of our religion, that the idea of Fatherhood and Sonship is rooted and grounded in God, in the divine and eternal relation between the Father and the Son.

The prayer itself is thus suited for all nations and all ages, for every family, for all languages and conditions of men. So it has gone up from churches and conventicles, cathedrals and chapels, from legislatures, courts of law, camps, armies, thrones of kings and galleys of slaves, from ships' decks, caverns, prisoners' cells and sick-beds, from the faint lips of the dying, from the joyful parents of the new-born, from altars and fonts and bridal, from closets, from open fields and deserts and mountain tops, as the earth's shadow has moved morning and evening in the brightest day and in the blackest night.

It is the cry of the children—those who know who their Father is "Abba," and those who "feel after Him if haply they may find Him." These have long ago and to this day, discovered that all the literatures and libraries, all the genius, invention, wisdom and aspiration of mankind, have provided for them nothing like this. Some phrases of it were known to Hebrews while yet the veil was on their hearts and the sky was dim. They recalled the old comfort in Genesis, old even to them. They did not forget the heart-broken sob of their Hagar, with the baby pressed to her breast in the wilderness, the bottle of water and the loaf spent, who had learned the appeal, "Thou God seest me." Their prophets, Jeremiah and Hosea, Isaiah and Malachi, had taught them that without presumption they might use the paternal name. Jewish liturgies ventured to repeat it, though the Rabbis went far to bury it out of sight and mind under their vain repetition.

In the order of the world's religious progress this Fatherhood does not come first. First is the crude, faint varying, but tenacious, and, in fact, universal sense of a Power—not only, as Matthew Arnold puts it, "a power not ourselves," but stronger than ourselves, and in that sense at least above ourselves. The ethnologists and travelers and linguists have told us, over and over again, that in all tribes and tongues the glimmering idea of such a power and some word and sign of it are in every corner of the earth.

Polytheism is only the splitting up of this idea of God into a multitude of special providences, each one accommodating it to mortal convenience. The account of the East Indian boy stolen from his mother in Hindustan and brought up by wolves with their own cubs, and so becoming like a wolf, caring for nothing but his animal appetites and sleeping when not feeding, is no exception to the rule, because the environment was utterly exceptional.

The case of Casper Hauser, the German child kept solitary in a cage, as a brutal educational experiment, was equally inconclusive.

When culture comes and men of science avow atheism, that they think there is no God, as a sharp critic of their method says, they really do not think it, but rather think that they think it—their slips of the tongue are their most telling confutation.

Some of us remember the grotesque peroration of the brilliant Parisian eulogist at the funeral of Madam Barron, who, in the presence of an anti-Christian coterie at Pere la Chaise, concluded an eloquent eulogy, which was an argument for pantheism at the grave, by snatching a handful of roses and casting them on the coffin, exclaiming, "Pass on, fair spirit! God is waiting in heaven to receive thee."

Is not the revelation of Him "Good Tidings?" Do you not wonder with me what there is in this one faith that any human heart should discredit or any reason deny? Would it be much less than monstrous to think of mending the bad world by putting Him away from it, or to crucify the Christ who came to reveal Him? Is it strange that when He came from the Father and went to the Father the heavens were opened?

Under those opened heavens we live. Ours is not an unknown God. Now are we the Sons of God. It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him, our Father, as He is.

Syracuse, N. Y.

SONNET.

Written for the Westtown Centennial, 1899.

BY LLOYD MIFFLIN.

Let me, though least of those who sing to-day,—
Whose father trod these floors and held them dear,—
Let me, in this memorable year,
Upon his well-loved Alma Mater lay
My veneration as a wreath of bay
About the feet of Learning. We revere
Her groves illustrious, and her halls austere,—
Oh, that her principles had wider sway:
That Nations, like to brothers, might embrace;
That war be banished from the thoughts of men,
And ignorance, with all its evils, cease;
That right and mercy guide the human race,
And through the world th' angelic spirit, Peace,
Reign in all hearts, as was the dream of Penn!

Our country cannot be for Christ until we are for Christ. We are to win the nation for Jesus by winning individual hearts for him. Only as he reigns over the lives of the people can he reign over the country as a whole. So we see that patriotism's problem is one with the missionary problem—the conversion of our brethren to Christ.

NEW ENGLAND YEARLY MEETING.

BY RUFUS M. JONES.

IN the year 1661, fifteen years after George Fox began his ministry in England, a general meeting was held at Newport, R. I., which was the origin of what is now New England Yearly Meeting. In 1672 George Fox himself was present at the annual gathering at Newport, and the low-roofed house in which he preached to his followers is still standing as a part of the present Newport Meeting House. The Yearly Meeting has been held every year since, though for twenty years it has been at Newport, only once in two years being held on the alternate years at Portland, Maine. The Yearly Meeting this year was held at Portland from the 8th of Sixth month to the 14th, inclusive, the entire first day being occupied with the meeting on Ministry and Oversight. At no Yearly Meeting in recent years have there been so few visiting ministers. Usually there is a long line of "Friends with minutes" from other Yearly Meetings, but this year only three minutes or certificates for ministers were read at the opening.

The attendance of New England Friends was large, the majority being from the State of Maine, as is generally the case when the meeting is at Portland. The sessions are all held "jointly," that is to say the men and women come together in united meeting and the business is transacted without distinction of sex; men and women participating in perfect freedom, and on an absolute equality, though the Clerks are still spoken of as "men's Clerks" and "women's Clerks," which is a curious relic of the past.

EDUCATIONAL WORK.

One entire session of the Yearly Meeting and a public meeting in the evening, were devoted to education. Reports are read from the two schools of the Yearly Meeting—Friends' School at Providence, R. I., and Oak Grove Seminary at Vassalboro, Maine. The report shows an attendance of 165 pupils at the former, and 105 at the latter, with an expenditure respectively of $51,000 and $7,000. These two institutions have exerted a great influence upon the Yearly Meeting, and it is hoped that in coming time they may reach and mould the children of the entire membership. Friends in New England are apparently beginning to realize more clearly than ever before the importance of putting every child at his very best, and of allowing no powers of mind or soul to run to waste for lack of training and development. If this could be impressed upon every family the future power of the Yearly Meeting would be assured. The public meeting on education drew out a large audience which filled the house, and the interest was most gratifying. The reports of the two boarding schools brought out a hearty response, and a good amount of encouragement was given to the work of these two institutions.

FOREIGN MISSION WORK.

It is doubtful if the interest in foreign missions was ever before as great as this year. After nearly three years' absence from home, laboring and superintending the work in Palestine, Timothy and Anna Hussey, were once more in attendance at the Yearly Meeting. Their graphic description of the institution and its work in the historic land of the Bible gave a clear idea of the field and of the work. In fact we have never before heard any mission work presented in such a vivid and luminous manner. Too seldom those who are asked to contribute their money are unable to get any definite or adequate conception of what the mission has done or is doing to meet the situation. Ramallah is ten miles from Jerusalem in "the hill country of Benjamin." The people are ignorant and superstitious to a sad degree. Here in their village New England Friends have built an institution for training the girls of the country round about. They have built up a strong Friends' meeting which sends a valuable epistle to the Yearly Meeting each year. They have a medical department which is an untold blessing to the community for miles about, and the silent influences of Christianity and civilization go into every home which has a child in the mission home. The day schools under the care of Friends reach a large number of boys and girls. It is universally acknowledged that the mission building now completed is the best institution for religious and educational training in the whole of Palestine. The annual expense for the entire work aggregates about $3,700 dollars.

EVANGELISTIC WORK.

The evangelistic work of the Yearly Meeting is under the care of a large committee, of which Charles H. Jones is superintendent. Series of special meetings are held where way opens, families are visited, personal work is done, and there are many indications of definite results upon the lives of those who come under these influences. It is to be feared that many Friends of the Yearly Meeting, perhaps most of them, do not realize the place the church should take, nor the place the individual Christian should take in the evangelization of the communities in which meetings are located. Most country communities in New England are woefully in need of more positive, transforming Christianity, and the "open door" for Friends was never more apparent. This subject was earnestly laid upon the meeting, and we trust there may be a steady increase in the work of evangelizing.

INDIANS AND COLORED PEOPLE.

New England Yearly Meeting has been one of the foremost in mission and educational work among the two dark-skinned races of America. The Indian work is now largely in conjunction with the Associated Executive Committee on Indian Affairs. The work for the colored race consists in the maintenance of a Normal School at Maryville, Tenn. Here teachers are trained, and the little children are brought in for the prospective teachers to have opportunities for practical work. The children are taught, and the teachers trained at the same time.

REFORMS.

An effort is made through special committees to carry on a work in behalf of Peace and Arbitration, and against the saloon. This work is often a discouraging one, and does not show as much fruit or as definite results as one could wish, but it is nevertheless a most important concern of the Yearly Meeting, and it appeals to nearly the entire membership. The time has really come when both these subjects require almost expert knowledge, and the practical worker needs a definite training in his field to be effective. It is much to be feared that neither subject receives sufficient thought or an adequate study of methods.

STATE OF THE MEETING.

There has been a small decrease in membership during the past year, and the list of deaths includes a number of elders who have for more than three score years been honored members of the Society. There is general harmony in the church, a good degree of love and unity, and a fair degree of well-directed activity in the work of the church. There are many men and women who see the needs of the times, and who realize what the mission of the church properly is, though it must be confessed that the number of such is smaller than it ought to be. The real problems of the church and of society are not studied enough, and too much that is said is scattering and indefinite, though we believe that the situation is improving.

The meetings for worship during the Yearly Meeting were weighty and solid occasions and much of the ministry was vital, spiritual and edifying. It was generally felt that the meeting had left a strong and formative influence upon those who attended it.

LORD SPEAK TO ME.

Lord, speak to me, that I may speak,
In loving echoes of thy tone;
As thou has sought, so let me seek,
Thy erring children lost and lone.

O lead me, Lord, that I may lead
The wandering and the wavering feet;
O feed me, Lord, that I may feed
Thy hungering ones with manna sweet.

O strengthen me, that while I stand
Firm on the Rock, and strong in Thee,
I may stretch out a loving hand
To wrestlers with the troubled sea.

O teach me, Lord, that I may teach
The precious things thou dost impart;
And wing thy words, that they may reach
The hidden depths of many a heart.

O give Thine own sweet rest to me,
That I may speak with soothing pow'r
A word in season, as from Thee,
To weary ones in needful hour.

O fill me with Thy fullness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, Thy praise to show.

O use me, Lord, use even me,
Just as thou wilt, and when, and where;
Until Thy blessed face I see,
Thy rest, Thy joy, Thy glory share.

F. R. HAVERGAL.

The International Lesson.

Lesson I.

THIRD QUARTER.

Seventh month 2, 1899.

GRACIOUS INVITATIONS.

Hosea 14: 1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Come and let us return unto the Lord. Hos 6: 1.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 26.—Gracious invitations. Hos. 14.

Third-day, Sixth mo. 27.—Precious Promises. Hos. 2: 16-23

Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 28.—“Come now.” Isa. 1: 10-20.

Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 29.—Proclamation of pardon. Jer. 3: 12-19.

Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 30.—Turning with the heart. Joel 2: 12-19.

Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 1.—The Saviour's invitation. Matt. 11: 25-30.

First-day, Seventh mo. 2.—Confession and pardon. 1 Jno. 1.

The lessons of the second half of the year are in the Prophets and historical books of the Old Testament. In studying this portion of the Bible it is essential to remember that those days were before the full revelation of the Father and his purposes and will, as given by and through the Lord Jesus Christ. On the one hand, we must not attribute to the Old Testament heroes and Prophets and people a light and knowledge which they did not, and could not, possess; and on the other hand, we must read their words and their teachings, so far as they are applicable to us, in the light of the New Testament. No precept of the Old Dispensation can have for us the same force as a precept of the New Dispensation; if the two agree, the New has additional weight from the agreement; if they disagree, the Old is not for us. “God, who in time past spake unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son.”

As is well known, the Old Testament has been the field in which much criticism of the Bible has appeared. It is wholly without the scope of these notes to enter into any discussion of these criticisms, but this much may be said—that questions of date, of authorship, or of text, do not affect inspiration; do not modify the teachings for us; do not lessen the value or authority of Holy Scripture. “The Truth is mighty and will prevail,” because it speaks to the heart and to that inner spiritual consciousness with a weight and force which bears conviction to the soul.

The exact date of the Prophet Hosea is uncertain; it is probable that he prophesied from B. C. 743 to about B. C. 726, or about seventeen years. He was a contemporary of Amos and Isaiah. He was a dweller in the kingdom of Israel, or Northern kingdom. Jerusalem is not mentioned in his book. It will be noticed that he was contemporary with the early kings of Rome.

We have no information as to his outward surroundings, though we have some details as to his private life, if the early chapters represent actual fact, and not allegory, as some suppose.

The kingdom of Israel reached its height under Jereboam II., and after his reign began rapidly to decay, especially in morality. It was at this time that Hosea began to prophesy, and, taking his own household as an illustration, poured forth a strain of prophecy describing what the result of immorality and turning away from the Lord must be.

More, perhaps, than any other prophet he dwells on the love of Jehovah and the necessity of repentance, which, we might say, is New Testament in its character, and like that of the “Prodigal Son. Hosea differs much from his great contemporary, Amos. Amos says, “Come back and live”; Hosea says, “Come back to God, for he is love.” Amos says, “Turn, for in front of you is destruction”; Hosea says, “Turn, for behind you is God.”

As might be expected, Hosea is frequently quoted in the New Testament: compare Hos. 1: 10 with Rom. 9: 26; Hos. 2: 11, 23 with Rom. 9: 25, 1 Pet. 2: 10; Hos. 6: 6 with Matt 9: 13, 12: 17; Hos. 13: 14 with 1 Cor. 15: 55, etc.

Chapter 14, which is our lesson, seems rather to belong to itself, and some have thought that the prophecy closed with chapter 13, and chapter 14 was spoken earlier, before Hosea uttered the closing words of chapter 13, which were fulfilled a few years afterwards. Chapter 14 is in the nature of a dialogue, and has been arranged in the following manner: verses 1-3, the Prophet; verses 4-6, the Lord; verse 7, the Prophet; verse 8, the Lord; verse 9, the conclusion, probably by another hand, as pointing the lesson of the whole prophecy.

1. “Return.” As the Prodigal Son. “Fallen.” “Experience has shown what an evil, bitter thing it is to forsake Jehovah.” Jer. 2: 19.

2. “Take with you words.” Words of true repentance—do not be satisfied with outward ceremonials. “Take away all iniquity, and accept that which is good: so will we render as bullocks the offering of our lips.” This rendering of the Revised Version gives the probable meaning of this rather difficult verse. The words of true repentance and of praise take the place of outward offering. Psal. 50: 13, 14; 69: 30, 31.

3. “Ashur.” Assyria. “Horses.” Thebes, as coming from Egypt, typify the Egyptian power. “Work of our hands.” Idols. Hosea is very severe against idolatry in any shape. Compare Hosea 5: 13; 7: 11; 10: 13. “Fatherless.” John 14: 18.

4. The Lord now speaks. “Backsliding.” The inquiry which their backsliding has brought upon them. “Love them freely.” Spontaneously. The only gifts the Lord desires are those mentioned in verse 2, and more fully in chapter 6:6, the first half of which is twice quoted by Christ (Matt. 9: 13; 12: 7).

5. “As the dew.” Rather, “the night-mist,” that which comes from off the Mediterranean. It is this damp, misty night wind which preserves the vegetation of Palestine during the summer. “Grow.” “Blossom.” Revised Version. “Cast forth his roots.” Probably referring to the spurs of the mountain range. Compare Job 28: 9.

6. “As the olive tree.” Perhaps referring to its usefulness rather than its eternal beauty. “Smell.” The piney, balsamic odor with which the pure mountain air is laden.

7. The Prophet speaks: the blessings which accompany true repentance are stated under various types. "Grow." Blossom, as in verse 5. It should be stated that "by Lebanon here, and almost always in the Old Testament, we must understand not the Western range now called Lebanon, . . . but Hermon, the southmost and highest summits of Anti-Lebanon."

8. The Lord speaks: "What have I to do any more with idols?" They are renounced. "I have heard," etc. "I have answered and will regard him; . I, the Lord, will do my part." To "regard" means to look upon one with favor. Compare Psa. 84: 9. "I am like a green fir tree." The comparison of the Lord to a tree is so unusual that some would assign these words to Ephraim as representing Israel. "From me is thy fruit found." All blessings come from the Lord.

9. An injunction relating to the whole book, addressed to us as well as to the Israelites of old.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. "I desire mercy and not sacrifice.
2. "Repent—change your attitude of soul—and believe the Gospel.
3. "Let us know, let us follow on to know the Lord." Hos. 6: 3. Revised Version.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SEVENTH MONTH 2d, 1899.

OUR COUNTRY FOR CHRIST.

Ps. 33: 10-22.

Christian-Citizenship Meeting.

Second-day, Sixth mo. 26.—A blessed nation. Ps. 144: 1-15.
 Third-day, Sixth mo. 27.—A victorious nation. 2 Chron. 20: 1-30.
 Fourth-day, Sixth mo. 28.—Penitence for sin. Dan 9: 3-19.
 Fifth-day, Sixth mo. 29.—Praise for blessings. Ps. 147: 12-20.
 Sixth-day, Sixth mo. 30.—Praise for victories. Ps. 44: 1-8.
 Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 1.—The nation for Christ. Luke 14: 15-24.

The patriotism required to-day is not so much the patriotism that will fight a foreign foe as it is the patriotism that will face the truth about our country.

America's real foes are within. They are stronger and more to be feared than any enemy from without. Their existence is a menace to our national life and integrity.

Who will dare to go against them? The demand of the hour is for thoughtful, devoted patriots, whose courage is as patient as it is strong, and who are willing to sacrifice personal prosperity for the sake of the country's welfare. There is no lack of patriotic, high-souled, and fearless young people in America, and once they are aroused to the nation's peril—may God hasten the coming of a prophet to arouse us!—their might will be irresistible and the country will be saved.

What are the alarming foes, against whom the American spirit is summoned to arise? They are two, and yet so closely allied as to be almost one. The first is machine and party politics, and behind it is the second—the unscrupulous greed of great corporations.

In name, this is a democracy. The people are supposed to rule. America is pointed to as the crowning success of a system of government, "Of the people, for the people, by the people." The truth is—and patriotism forbids that we should longer shut our eyes to the truth—that national politics, the politics of most States and large cities, and of hundreds of counties and towns, are dominated absolutely by party machines, which consult not the welfare of the governed, but the gain of the governing.

No patriot need be ignorant of this. The truth has been exposed times without number. Again and again the will of the people has been defied with impunity. The political "boss" is the uncrowned king of America. Through him corporations make and unmake laws only that they may fill their own coffers. disregarding the will or welfare of the people.

Party politics in America to-day is supported on the one hand by the bribes of great aggregations of capital, and on the other hand by the mistaken party loyalty of citizens who shut their eyes to the truth that in these days parties stand for no abiding principles, but are merely the tools of designing men. Party platforms are changed almost every four years. The principles that a party affirms at one election it may repudiate at the next. Thoughtful men are beginning to perceive that loyalty to a party is merely loyalty to a name and to an organization of schemers who desire control of public offices for private ends.

Here is the duty of new patriots: The rescue of our beloved country from the grasp of corporate greed and political "rings." May we enumerate a few ways in which this great duty is to be accomplished by true patriots?

First, believe in the people. The heart of America is right. The pure patriotism of the common people may be counted on. Let them see the truth, and the doom of political machines and business monopolies is sealed.

Second, understand the situation. Find out the real condition of things in the politics of your own community and of the nation. Get convictions based on intelligence.

Third, be patient. Do nothing hastily. Begin at the bottom and work for the permanent overthrow of the evils. Expect defeat—a dozen defeats, it may be. But expect also ultimate victory.

Fourth, embrace every means of enlightening your fellow-citizens. Be a leaven. By tongue and pen and example preach the message of personal and political independence. Dare to be singular, but beware of alienating from your cause any but the corrupt.

Fifth, fight the enemy at every point. In your own division, ward, district, or county work as one who is working for the salvation of his country against these twin evils. Be the wisest, strongest, and most industrious patriot that you can by any means become.

Only the self-sacrificing labors of devoted Americans can avail in this crisis. And the duty pointed out is more glorious than the scaling of the heights of San Juan or the entering of the flaming mouth of Santiago Harbor.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT HAVERFORD COLLEGE.

The exercises of Commencement Week at Haverford College opened, on Sixth month 12th and 13th, 1899, with the entrance examinations for the incoming Freshman Class.

At 8 p.m. on the evening of Second-day, the 12th inst., Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor Society, delivered an interesting address to the students and their friends in Alumni Hall.

The Alumni Association of the College held its forty-third annual business meeting in Alumni Hall on the afternoon of Fourth-day, the 14th, Edward P. Allinson presiding.

The election of officers for next year resulted as follows: President, E. P. Allinson, '74; Vice Presidents, William M. Coates, '63; David S. Bispham, '76, and J. S. Stokes, '89; Treasurer, Jonathan M. Steer, '90; Secretary, Nathaniel B. Crenshaw, '67; Orator, John C. Winston, '81; Alternate, Parker S. Williams, '94; Executive Committee, E. T. Comfort, '78; J. W. Sharp, Jr., '88; Franklin B. Kirkbride, '89; John W. Muir, '92; Charles J. Rhoads, '93; J. Henry Scattergood, '96; and A. M. Shipley, '99.

At 7 o'clock refreshments were served on the campus in front of Founder's Hall. In the afternoon there were two cricket matches between the first and second college elevens and two alumni teams.

At 8 p.m. there was another meeting of the Alumni, when Barker Newhall, '87, delivered an address on "Socrates and Christ."

The Class of '99 held their class day exercises in Alumni Hall on the evening of the 15th at 8 o'clock. After the exercises the presentation of the large wooden spoon to the most popular man in the class took place. The man who received this mark of honor was Joseph Paul Morris.

The Commencement Day exercises attracted a large number of visitors. The exercises, which were held in Alumni Hall, were presided over by President Isaac Sharpless. Seated on the platform were members of the corporation and the faculty, and the graduating class, wearing caps and gowns.

After the reading of the Thirty-third Psalm by T. Wistar Brown, President of the Corporation, President Sharpless delivered his annual address:

"The year which closes to-day has been one of general quiet and prosperity. We have apparently found at Haverford a mode of living satisfactory in the main to officers and students, which on the one hand secures a reasonable degree of decorum, a high condition of actual morality, and a fair standard of scholarship, and on the other a large individual liberty of action, much freedom from petty restraint, a scope for high-grade athletics of various sorts, and a large amount of the joy and development of student sociability which enables college life to go on with as little friction as can be reasonably expected.

"Various factors have contributed to bring this about—the willingness of officers to enter into the idea that their functions are social and athletic as well as intellectual, and that the latter extend outside the class room; the willingness of the students to take a manly view of college problems and difficulties, and to enter into conferences with officers in order to solve them—the growing feeling on the part of all that to be a successful member of the Haverford community demands college patriotism of a high order, and a general recognition of college duties, which embrace the destruction of cliques and societies with partial aims and separatist tendencies—and, as much as any, the new life installed by the knowledge of increased endowment and an enlarged and improved future.

"Yet what has been so built up may be easily defaced—a little unwisdom among managers or faculty, a growth of demagoguery among students, and the old alienation will return and the strength of harmonious effort will disappear.

"Faculty changes are not frequent at Haverford. We have found a corps of men of unquestionable scholarship and of the peculiar type our conditions require, and, so far, we have been able to protect them from the insidious advances of unscrupulous universities. They leave us, but after a year abroad they return, better Haverfordians than ever. This summer Dr. Hall begins his first year of vacation and study away from the college, and all who know his work in the chemical laboratory and the wisdom and strength of his general character during the past eighteen years will give him their best wishes for a prosperous and profitable sojourn. His place will be filled by Dr. Baxter, now an instructor at Harvard. There has been added, also, to our Faculty of next year, Dr. Saunders, of Toronto and Johns Hopkins Universities, in the Department of Physics.

"One year ago we sat here in the old Alumni Hall, awaiting the passing of the activities of Commencement Week to begin our new building. Practically all that is left of the old one is the north wing. Something of the hall was to have remained, but it could not be. The south wing, equal in size to the north, but greatly improved in structure and furnishing, is an addition to our library space, which has daily proved its utility. Library and reading room facilities will each year become more and more indispensable to college work, and the generous thought and liberal hand which granted these well-considered advantages—advantages which will always constitute the core and marrow of Haverford opportunities—will receive the thanks of every coming generation of students. A dollar in one place is worth more than ten in others, and nowhere will it count more than in well-selected books and conveniences for using them. The work of re-cataloguing is going on rapidly, but additional funds for this purpose would be especially appreciated.

"During the winter the movement arose among our younger alumni to procure for the college a new gymnasium. It began in true alumni fashion, with a series of dinners which nerved the participants up to vigorous and successful efforts. They surprised themselves by getting together from themselves about $5,000 in comparatively small subscriptions. To meet their ideas $50,000 would be needed, and they would not consider less than $40,000. They, therefore, extended their operations to parents and neighbors, and modestly hinted that older alumni might also stir themselves. Dinners did not succeed so well with these, but still hopeful results followed. More than half the amount is promised and the field is not fully canvassed. Six architects, four of them Haverfordians, are competing for the best plans, but the actual building must be delayed till at least the smaller sum mentioned is secured. It is needless to say how desirable it is to complete this enterprise so happily started. Our old building is so utterly inadequate as to hardly justify the name.

"In the meantime another building secured the right of way. When the choice of rooms for next year was made by the older classes, owing to an influx of day students and a number of admissions to advanced standing, the chances for Freshmen seemed to filter down to a paltry half-dozen. The rest would have to be declined or farmed out among private dwellings. Either alternative seemed fatal, and the Board of Managers found nothing else possible than to begin immediately the erection of a new dormitory. The architects who have had practically a monopoly of college dormitory construction in this locality were set to work. The sectional plan was adopted as being the most comfortable and quiet for students, and capable of being added to as the needs demand. Here will arise during the summer months, to be completed, we trust, at or very soon after the opening of next college year, on the ground north of the senior dining-room, two sections of a two-story Colonial structure for sixteen students. The whole building will be T-shaped, and will contain rooms for fifty to sixty students, with all conveniences for a most comfortable existence of four years. In accordance with its architecture, it may be appropriate to name the hall after the first of Pennsylvania's governors under Penn, the University graduate, minister of the gospel, and wisest of early legislators, a fitting representative of the Welsh settlers who so largely gave their names to the neighborhood—Henry Lloyd.

"We now begin this year to receive students only after examination, a change desirable on various accounts, but made almost necessary to prevent the entrance of a mass of rejected candidates from other colleges.

"We believe our score of graduates of this year are up to the usual Haverford standard. It is said that the president of a neighboring institution, by accident or design, congratulated the College upon the approaching graduation and consequent departure of the senior class. No one feels like doing this with reference to the class that leaves us this year. They are a body of good students and pleasant associates. They have adopted a policy of comradeship and yet of discipline in all their relations to the Faculty. They are and will be loyal to the College up to the measure of their ability. I feel some assurance of this, for I think I know two things—first, that they are going to be true to the honest, modest, solid scholarship for which our College tries to stand, and, second, because we have in the main been true to them and never filled their minds with notions that they have had all that the world could give in their four years here.

"The very best of success in any school is the state of mind of its scholars as to future study. The highest praise is due when all have an unsatisfied desire for more. The greatest condemnation is the existence of a belief that the world holds no more intellectual conquests worth making. To excite action, and keep it excited, is a sure indication of good teaching, and the school that feeds a college or the college that feeds the graduate courses of a university with boys and men alert and expectant is probably doing its full intellectual duty.

"A recent clerical commencement address contained this remarkable assertion: 'I don't think it is possible for a man to go through college without having his religious feelings in some way shocked or destroyed.' If this refers to the crude ideas of boyhood, it may be true, but if the better, deeper feelings, which are dependent upon a conception of spiritual realities, I doubt if it is true as a general statement, and feel quite sure that no member of this class will so assert in his own experience. The honesty, simplicity and validity of the religious life of most Haverford students is, I believe, a matter so easily verified by observation that no one would attempt to deny it. It is hard to find a case to justify the sweeping assertion of the zealous divine.

"I do not care to repeat in public what has already been said in private in the form of farewell advice: what has been indicated during four years of intercourse more intimate than usually falls to the lot of college Faculties and students. The best of all that has been said during these years goes with the diplomas which the College now grants as its last official function."

President Sharpless announced the following prizes:

The Haverford Fellowship ($500) for 1899-1900, to prosecute university studies, to John Darlington Carter.

The Alumni Prize in Composition and Oratory ($50) to William John Bawden.

The Everett Society Medal for Oratory for Sophomores and Freshmen, to George John Walenta.

The John B. Garrett Prizes for Systematic Reading for Juniors, first prize ($60), to Walter Swaim Hinchman; second prize, ($40), Frank Eugene Lutz.

The Class of 1896 Prizes in Latin and Mathematics for Sophomores and Freshmen: Latin ($10), Howard Valentine Bullinger; honorable mention, Ellis Yarnall Brown, Jr., Clarence W. Bankard; mathematics ($10), Walter Hallock Wood; honorable mention, Howard Valentine Bullinger.

The Philip C. Garrett Prizes: For Senior mathematics ($10), John Howard Redfield, Jr.; for Senior or Junior biology ($10), Elisha Roberts Richie; for Freshman Latin ($10), Richard Mott Gummere; for Freshman Greek ($10), Richard Mott Gummere; for Freshman themes ($10), Alexander Cooper Wood, Jr.

The Class of 1898 Prize in Chemistry ($10 in books) for Seniors or Juniors, to John Darlington Carter.

Honors.—Seniors elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society, John Darlington Carter and Frank Keller Walter; general honors, John Darlington Carter; honors in chemistry, John Darlington Carter; honors in English and German, Frank Keller Walter.

The following degrees were then conferred:

Bachelor of Arts.—William John Bawden, Walter Elihu Blair, William Bode, Royal Jenkins Davis, Francis Algernon Evans, Rufus Horton Jones, Howard Haines Lowry, Edward Hough Lycett, Joseph Paul Morris, Herbert Clinton Petty, Malcolm Augustus Shipley, Jr., Frank Keller Walter, and Arthur Clement Wild.

Bachelor of Science.—William Aldrich Battey, John Darlington Carter, Edward B. Conklin, Benjamin Satterthwait DeCou, Alfred Collins Maule, Ralph Mellor, John Howard Redfield, Jr., Elisha Roberts Richie.

Master of Arts.—William Walter Cadbury, Arthur Fernandez Coca, and Ira Isbon Sterner.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Professor Edward Howard Griggs, of Leland Stanford, Jr., University staff, lecturer for the American Society for the Extension of University Teaching, who spoke, among other things, of the importance of striving to do all things with the highest effort. Any action, he said, may be made noble by doing it well. No work is worth doing that is not worth doing well. The commonplace is transfigured by great devotion. It is not only growth, but sanity, that comes to us through earnest work. Even when we fail in our ideal, we keep our faith. Hardly a single pessimist had to earn his living by the work of his hand. If we are idle we cannot believe. If we work we come so close to the hard, yet beneficent laws of nature that we cannot doubt. If you trust to the stars of God that are over the sea of life you will find that you can give to the world the greatest of all works of art—a well-known human life.

PENN COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The close of the year—a year marked by the largest attendance in the history of the college—brought out an exceptionally good series of literary entertainments.

The Annual Musical Recital this year was separated a little from the other entertainments, occurring on the evening of the 6th inst. The Freshman Class gave an entertainment on Friday evening following.

At the Baccalaureate, on Sabbath, the 11th inst., Levi Rees gave an address of much interest before a crowded house. He presented the topic: "Christianity, the Greatest Permanent Force in the Moral Universe," as based upon John 3:16 and Romans 1: 16. Added interest was given the baccalaureate exercises by the singing of four choruses from Handel's "Messiah." The chorus was composed of forty voices from the city and the college, under the direction of Professor Preston, who is the college instructor in vocal music.

At the preparatory exercises, on Monday afternoon, a class of twelve were graduated. Irving C. Johnson, of Class '92, gave the address, on the topic, "Our Privileges," an earnest and practical discussion of some of the more important features of good citizenship.

A crowded house again in the evening greeted the Alcmian and Alethian societies in their joint program. A unique feature in the program was a "business meeting," in which fines, calls to order, appeals and the like, were more than usually prominent.

Tuesday forenoon the many visitors were entertained at the Alumni and Undergraduate base ball game.

Class Day, in the afternoon, was observed for the most part with a program of a substantial character.

At 4 o'clock the annual meeting of the Alumni occurred in Alcmian Hall. A good showing was made in the increase of the "Alumni Fund," started a year ago.

Boyd Bode, of Class '96, who has since graduation spent a year at Michigan University and two years at Cornell, gave the Alumni Address, on the subject, "The Relation of Philosophy to Science." It was generally regarded as one of the best addresses ever given before the Alumni.

Fully nine hundred people were crowded in and about the college chapel early on Commencement Day. Professor John B. De Motte gave the address, on "Your Point of View." Professor De Motte is one of the best-known and best-liked men who have lectured here, and the audience gave him their intense interest throughout his address.

The following were admitted to degrees: Bachelor of Arts, Eva Mildred Coggeshall, Charles Chawner Haworth, Rosella Meredith, Mildred Byrene Seever; Bachelor of Philosophy, Mary Lena Shunate; Bachelor of Science, Francis William Briggs, Charles Wesley George, Walter Scott Hadley, Simon Newlin Hester, Wilfred Wallace White; Master of Arts, William Bode, '98; Gilbert Bowles, '98; Florence Nightingale Hanson, '97; Charles Almet Kent, '95; Sebern Sylvester McVey, '97; Alvah Negus, '90; Gilbert Jeremiah Roberts, '92. Master of Science, Edwin McGrew, Barclay Carey Winslow.

Announcement was made of the awarding of the Bryn Mawr Scholarship to Rosella Meredith, and of the Haverford Scholarship to Wilfred Wallace White.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the College Christian Association served dinner at the close of the exercises. Toasts followed, by Alumni and friends of the college, closing with an excellent address by Professor De Motte, on the subject, "The Smaller Colleges."

News from the Field.

Phebe R. Gifford, of Providence, passed her 96th birthday at Portland, Maine, during New England Yearly Meeting.

Joshua L. Baily, of Philadelphia, is visiting the cities of Maine, studying the workings of the prohibitory law. He spoke at the temperance meeting at Portland on the 13th inst. He took a hopeful view of the situation.

Arthur M. Charles, of Richmond, Indiana, who has been teaching in the Friends' School at Germantown, has been elected principal of Oak Grove Seminary, at Vassalboro, Maine.

William P. Pinkham, of Cleveland, Ohio, was in attendance at New England Yearly Meeting, where his membership still is.

Benjamin F. Trueblood, who has been at The Hague during the Peace Conference, was at London Yearly Meeting. He spoke wisely and well on the subject of the ministry.

The name of the new Clerk of London Yearly Meeting is John Morland—not Charles, as was stated in our issue last week.

Caleb R. Kemp, retiring Clerk of London Yearly Meeting, has been at the Clerk's table since 1872, being assistant from 1872 until 1890, when he became Clerk.

Samuel Rogers, of Canada, was in attendance at London Yearly Meeting. He spoke touchingly of the loss of John R. Harris.

Samuel Miles, of New York, and Eli Parker and wife, of Iowa, were at New England Yearly Meeting and took part in the religious exercises of the meetings.

J. Walter and Emma B. Malone have for some time been deprived of their usual health, and Walter Malone has been obliged to cancel all his engagements for the summer.

New England Yearly Meeting sent a vigorous protest against the seating of Brigham Roberts, polygamist, in the House of Representatives.

John Wilhelm Rowntree and Alfred Neave Brayshaw, after having attended the Yearly Meeting at Portland, are visiting some of the particular meetings in Maine and Massachusetts. They will stay in the East until after the Educational Conference, after which they go to Chicago.

Nathan Douglas, of Durham, Maine, was one of the most striking figures and most interesting personalities in the Yearly Meeting at Portland. He said the only word his deaf ears could hear was "love." Since the death of Eli Jones, he has been "father" of the Yearly Meeting.

At a recent voting contest in England to select a list of the ten women of this century who had most helped humanity, Queen Victoria stood first and Elizabeth Fry third.

The Friends' Freedmen's Association of Philadelphia has adopted the following minute on the death of Captain Charles S. Schaeffer, a devoted worker in the cause of the colored race:

It has pleased our Father in heaven to call unto himself our much-loved friend, Captain Charles S. Schaeffer. Impressed in early manhood with the Gospel message, he in turn sought to deliver it to others. Moved by the wrongs of the negroes, he enlisted in the war which gave them freedom. This service completed he entered the Freedmen's Bureau, and having been detailed to southwestern Virginia, established himself at Christiansburg. As an officer of the Bureau he gave legal sanctity to the relations of many thousand liberated slaves by recording them as married. He spent his life in preaching among and caring for these people, and became their leader and revered authority. His affections were toward them, his home and family not far from them. They made him Secretary of the Negro Baptist Conference of Southwestern Virginia, containing over six score congregations.

To the Friends' Freedmen's Association he has been a constant support and ally. He gave it the ground on which the Christiansburg school house stands. The school has always enjoyed his deep interest, and we have often relied on his judgment regarding it.

His work when he began was a lonely one. Men looked at it askance, and avoided him. But so devoted was he, so sweetly patient, that all came to admire both him and his doings. He walked in all kindly ways, and so closely walked that he grew in the knowledge of the power of gentleness, and is known to have said that he could not again put his hand to war. Such is the friend of whom we affectionately record to have been a brave and wise gentleman, who loved his fellow-men, and humbly served his God.

Captain Charles S. Schaeffer was born November 10th, 1830; entered the volunteer service of the United States September 28th, 1861; entered the Veteran Reserve Corps, October 4th, 1864; was appointed to the Freedmen's Bureau, April 12th, 1866; was married November 28th, 1872; died May 5th, 1899.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Salem, Iowa.—We, at this place, are rejoicing in the wonderful uplift of souls the Lord has sent us through His servants, Dr. Bunce, of Nevada, Iowa, and Lewis I. Hadley, of Camby, Ind., who came to us on the evening of Fifth month 29th, remaining until after the evening service the Sabbath following. As these brothers, in their plain, convincing way, talked to us of how under this, the Holy Ghost dispensation, He wants to come into each one of our hearts to abide, souls were made hungry for Him, and many were led to consecrate their lives to God and ask for Him to come in and take possession of them. His presence and power was wonderfully felt in every session, to the convicting and converting of sinners and the sanctifying of believers. Especially would we speak of the Sabbath morning service, when many souls sought their way to the altar, among which were some who had passed their eightieth mile-stone, who were convinced of their need of, asked for, and received the Holy Ghost. Conviction was deep with all those who did not wholly yield to God. Praise God for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and for those whom He has sent to us that we might know how to know Him better. Our church has been much strengthened.

ALLEN H. BRIGGS.

NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING.

Glen's Falls.—The monthly business meeting held Sixth month 7th was one of vital importance, and those who attended were reminded anew of the privilege and duty as regards members of the church of Christ, in the fervent thoughts brought out by our pastor, H. R. Keates, as he read and commented upon the sixty-second chapter of Isaiah. After songs of praise, brief prayers and testimonies the attention of the congregation was called to the business session. The special committee appointed by the meeting to confer with the pastor, Harry R. Keates, in regard to remaining with us another year reported favorably, which was heartily approved by the meeting. He has been acceptably with us the past three years, and surely our hearts are filled with gratitude and praise to our heavenly Father for this renewed manifestation of His love towards us. We enter the new year with a fervent prayer that the prophecies of Isaiah in every truth may be fulfilled in our midst, that the church may be "A crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God," and the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth.

The church has been strengthened by accessions from time to time both by letter and confession of faith.

A public reception was given the new members at the last Quarterly Meeting.

The church is in a thrifty condition financially, as attested by the amount they have been enabled to accomplish the past year. An approximate summary of expenditure is reported as being very little below $2,000, not including a very comfortable and commodious parsonage now completed on corner of church property, with all modern conveniences.

The Christian Endeavor Society and Ladies' Aid have done much to promote a social spirit among the members, as well as to render financial assistance. J. L. H.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

Deep River Quarterly Meeting was held on Second- and Third-days of this month. Albert Peele and James R. Jones, of New Garden Quarter, were in attendance, and had acceptable service in the ministry. In the business meeting quite an interest was manifest in the work of our missionary in India, and a collection of ten dollars was taken for her work. A communication from the meeting on ministry and oversight was received and read on the necessity of the maintenance of sound doctrine. The paper especially referred to higher criticism as a danger now threatening the church, and elicited much discussion. Prof. J. Franklin Davis explained the meaning of higher criticism, saying, "that he thought the name rather unfortunate, and to some extent misleading. He condemned the methods of Ingersoll and others who are attacking the Scriptures, saying that Ingersoll would not be listened to by learned men and higher critics, and that he, Davis, had been benefitted by the thorough study of Scriptures and by reading the higher critics, and that his faith in the Scriptures had been strengthened. His address was satisfactory to many Friends present. Others spoke on the same line. Mead A. Kelsey spoke in favor of the paper, which was finally ordered sent down to the subordinate meetings. J. Franklin Davis and others were appointed representatives to the Yearly Meeting. It was said by one, not a member of that quarter, that it would be well for ministers to preach the Gospel as they understand it, and not denounce "higher criticism," which they do not understand. The best way to combat error is to preach the truth. On First-day a large company was present, and the Gospel was preached with power.

JAMES R. JONES.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

At Spiceland Quarterly Meeting, Indiana, held from the 9th to the 11th of this month our souls were refreshed by the ministry of William Manly of Richmond, William Harvey of Fairmount, and Sara Hadley of Wilmington, Ohio. William Manly said, "Ye must be born again to know Christ the Son of God, who tasted death and hell for us, and ascended unto the Father with his humanity. All glory is but dross, save the glory of God. We can only know the Father by knowing the Son. Therefore honor Father by honoring the Son. Let your testimony and confession of faith be, thou art the Christ the son of the living God. Sara Hadley closed the service with a feeling prayer. Her desire and prayer to God was for Israel—that they might be saved; commending to God the work of his grace, able to build up and give inheritance to all sanctified.

Knightstown, Ind.—Last week our aged friend and minister, Thomas Miller, of Ohio, made his semi-annual visit to meetings and families through these parts. It ought to be an inspiration to every lover of Christ and his gospel to see the zeal and Holy Ghost fire of that old pilgrim and veteran of the cross, full of faith and the Holy Ghost traveling thousands of miles with horse and carriage through all kinds of weather, confirming the word, telling of the goodness of God, visiting the sick, and so fulfilling the commission God gave him. Let us all breathe a prayer that our Heavenly Father may be pleased to add a few more years to his useful life, that he may fill his century serving his Master.

Samuel Mills has charge of Friends' Meeting at Knightstown. This is largely a mission church where God, in times past, wrought many wondrous miracles of grace, with a church where much labor has been bestowed. Martha A. Fulghum gathered many souls for Christ here. John Pennington garnered a large harvest for the Master. Here Emma Garretson, Frances Reeves, Mary Moan, and Minnie Bassett have reaped rich harvests, and been greatly blessed of God. Later, J. O. Binford, Mary Nichols, Daisy Barr, Charles Staiker, and others have entered into their work; and whether thirty or sixty or a hundred-fold, the appreciation will be according to our capacity, and whether reaper or gleaner, our reward is sure if faithful. We would not exalt the creature, but our Creator, by saying of Brother Mills that he is a faithful servant of God and minister and apostle of Jesus Christ. His messages are rich and full of gospel truth, rightly dividing the word. His message on the 11th was to children: Obey your parents, for this is right in the Lord. A large number received a blessing.

A. M. Kenworthy gave a list of his ministerial labors in Ohio at our last Monthly Meeting. He was taken sick at Cleveland, and was not able to finish concern. He was granted extension of minute and encouraged to proceed when able. His health is now so much improved that he attended his Quarterly Meeting at Spiceland from the 9th to the 10th.

Oliver Coggshele and wife of Kansas City, while on their wedding trip from the east, stopped off at Raysville, Indiana, to visit some old Earlham friends. They were acceptably at our meeting on the 4th.

George N. Heartley, evangelist and missionary, who has charge of all mission work under Friends in Oklahoma, attended Friends' Meeting at Knightstown on the 4th, as he journeyed to Philadelphia. His message was full of instruction, "Bear much fruit and be Christ's disciples; allow the Master to prune and dig about you so that your fruit will be good."

At the session of Marion Quarterly Meeting held on the 11th inst, a committee appointed for the purpose submitted the following protest against immoral advertisements and theatrical performances in the city of Marion:

We emphatically condemn all schemes of advertising that are of a doubtful or immoral character, wherein the name of Friends or a caricature of the founder of our principles is used, such as is being used for the advertisement of tobacco; we also desire to protest against the pushing of the use of tobacco upon the public by men going from house to house leaving sample packages of the same, and likewise the indecent theatricals that have been enacted in our city from time to time, as well as the unclean advertisements upon bill-boards and in street cars, and we desire to place ourselves on record as a Christian body in protesting against all things that ruin the health and morals of humanity.

On behalf of the committee,

MATTIE O. CAMMACK, Chairman.

Barclay Jones, pastor of Traverse City Meeting, has been quite ill this spring, but is slowly regaining strength.

Howard and Mary Moore, of Ypsilanti, have removed to Manton, where they own a home. They will continue to labor as ministers, although Mary Moore's health is so poor as to prevent much active work.

Long Lake Quarterly Meeting will be held at Traverse City in Seventh month. A spiritual feast is being prayed for. Friends from other parts of the Yearly Meeting may be in attendance. Friends who can do so are invited to come and make the acquaintance of this beautiful northern bay region, which is doubly attractive in the summer.

Muncie Monthly Meeting was held at McCowans, six miles south of Muncie, on the evening of the 15th inst. A good number were present and the Master richly blessed our meeting. Several were received into the church and several requests for membership presented.

The Lord is blessing the work in both of the preparative meetings composing this monthly meeting. A spirit of unity prevails, and an united effort is being made to advance the Master's kingdom.

Would not our monthly meetings become much stronger in Christian unity and fellowship if all the workers in the different preparative meetings, who could do so, would visit occasionally as a delegation each other's business sessions, exchange Christian greetings and cheer each other on the way? It would be Quakerly and often prove to be a tonic to our business meetings, which they need.

To this end, should not our preparative and monthly meetings be held at an hour most convenient for the largest number composing them?

W. P. A.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Bethel Monthly Meeting (Sterling Quarter), Kansas.—In Fifth month 28th we were favored with the company of John and Ella Jessup, and Mollie Sibbet, of Hoisington, Kansas. Ella Jessup is Superintendent of Bible School work for Sterling Quarterly Meeting, and Mollie Sibbet is Superintendent of the Temperance Work, and also one of the state corps of W. C. T. U.

Both departments of the church work represented were much strengthened in a time of need by these faithful messengers. At Bethel in the morning meeting, Mollie Sibbet was favored in gospel ministry to speak much to the needs of the church. At Mt. Zion at 3.00 p.m., the usual hour of worship was given her for a temperance lecture. She also gave another lecture at Bethel at night. These sterling appeals for right and reformation were listened to with intense interest and quickened consciences, and some have since quit the use of tobacco. We trust much good fruit may yet be borne for the Master by this earnest seed-sowing, and we will gladly welcome these friends amongst us again.

D. GIDLEY, Pastor.

Stella Quarterly Meeting was held in the Stella Academy building, in Woods County, Oklahoma, on the 2d, 3d and 4th of Sixth month, 1899. The meeting throughout was under the precious favor of our loving Shepherd. Owing to heavy rains, high waters and absent bridges, the attendance was smaller than it would otherwise have been.

Ministers from beyond the limits of Stella were: Josiah Dillon, from Iowa; Wm. Neal, from Emporia, Kansas; Andrew Wooton, from Washington, Kansas, and J. Edwin Jay, of Friends' University, Wichita, Kansas. They all, as well as several of our own workers, had acceptable service in the meeting. Josiah Dillon and Wm. Neal propose to spend some time in gospel work during the summer in Oklahoma.

On Seventh-day evening, at the Christian Endeavor Convention, J. E. Jay gave us a masterly discourse on "War Against War," proving the statement that war has no apology, no excuse, for its existence.

The most important part of the business meeting was the granting of a request for a monthly meeting at Cleo, which is in the extreme western part of the Quarterly Meeting territory. There are now nine monthly meetings in this quarter. Oklahoma Friends are expansionists as regards the kingdom of the Prince of Peace.

In going to quarterly meeting the writer traveled one hundred and twenty-five miles and return, holding two meetings among Indians on the way. I passed through one new town in which I could not find that there is one saved soul; and not a building of any kind in which meetings might be held, and no outward means of grace within eleven miles. Still there are hungry souls in the place. The town is called Bliss. What a paradox in the name!

The quarterly meeting in Ninth month will be held at Cleo, a new point for Friends. The most convenient railroad station is Kiowa, Kansas, a good day's drive from Cleo.

Consecrated men, and especially women, and means are greatly needed in the work in Oklahoma. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that He will send forth laborers into the harvest."

WM. F. LEWIS.

CALIFORNIA YEARLY MEETING.

Whittier Notes.—On First-day evening, Sixth month 4th, the annual sermon of Whittier College was preached in the college auditorium by Prof. Andrew F. Mitchell. The text of the discourse was taken from Proverbs: "A man's gift maketh room for him and bringeth him before great men."

The subject was very ably and helpfully presented. Numerous illustrations were taken from ancient and modern history, sacred and profane, to show that any one desirous of achieving the highest aims of life might do so by untiring and conscientious effort, and that only by dependence upon Him who grants the endowments, can their highest development be acquired and their most efficient employment be realized.

The entire program of commencement week was very successfully carried out; in such a manner, in fact, as to be of much satisfaction and encouragement to all friends of the institution. The program was as follows: Annual Sermon, Rev. A. F. Mitchell, First-day, Sixth-month 4th, 8 p.m.; Annual Exhibition by Athenæum Society, Fourth-day, Sixth month 8th, 8 p.m.; Graduating Exercises, Fifth-day, Sixth month 8th, 10.30 a.m.; Art Reception, in Art Room, Fifth-day, Sixth month 8th, 9.30 a.m. to 1. p.m.

The year just closed has been in many ways the most successful in the history of the school.

As an index of the unanimity of sentiment in Whittier in regard to the school, reference might be made to the fact that a deficiency fund of one thousand dollars a year for five years has just been raised in this place alone. This, however, must be materially increased from other sources before the school can do the work it should and be upon a substantial basis with added equipment.

Children's Day was duly observed at Whittier College and a beautiful program was rendered.

The work of the Sabbath School the past year has been quite successful. One feature of the work has been the interest taken in raising money for the Sabbath School library. Birthday contributions have been made. Each member contributes one cent for each year of his age on the Sabbath following his birthday. This is done with as little ostentation as possible and entered into enthusiastically by all. We hope to raise forty or fifty dollars per year by this method, and have already added some twenty volumes since January 1st. Other schools might do well to adopt the custom if they do not already pursue it.

Birth.

PENNINGTON.—Sixth month 6th, to Bertha M. and Levi T. Pennington, of Traverse City, Mich., Friends' Meeting, a daughter, Minnie Esther Pennington.

Married.

TYLER—MARTIN.—Married, at Downers' Grove, Ill., Sixth month 6th, Joseph Sparkes Tyler and Beatrice May Martin, both of Downers Grove.

HEARD—WILSON.—At the residence of the pastor of Bethel Monthly Meeting, near Clafin, Kansas, Thomas J. Heard, Jr., and Bertha J. Wilson, both are members of Bethel Monthly Meeting.

D. G.

PATTERSON—PARKER.—Married at Lynnvile, Iowa, on the 21st of Ninth month, 1898. George S. Patterson, son of James and Elizabeth Patterson, and Marietta Parker, daughter of Eli G. and Mary M. Parker.

Dead.

BEDELL.—Eva Bedell, wife of J. Howard Spear, passed away at the home of her parents, Ewin and Mary H. Bedell, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Fifth month, 30th, 1899. She is survived by her husband and three children, the eldest of whom is a daughter fourteen years of age.

During her last illness, which lasted from the first of First month, she maintained a Christian fortitude, and manifested a faith which impressed all who saw her. At one time, only a few hours before her death, she remarked, "If this is death, it is sweet to die." The sense of loss and bereavement on the part of those who so dearly loved her, is wonderfully sweetened by the full assurance that she has entered into the joy of the Lord.

HADLEY.—Tempty D. Hadley, daughter of William and Mary Tulbert was born in Surry County, N. C., the 27th of Sixth month, 1836, came to Salem, Iowa in 1851, and soon after joined Friends. She then came to Harden County about 1852, and was married to Henry M. Hadley the 15th of Third month, 1860. Died Fifth month 16th, 1899, aged 62 years, 10 months, 19 days.

STANLEY.—Jonathan Stanley died First month 29th, 1899, in the eightieth year of his age. He was a birthright member of Salem Monthly Meeting at Salem, Ohio, and remained a member till his death. His was a consistent life of active interest in the cause of Christ and the church to which he belonged. He frequently testified to the saving grace of God; and died in the triumphs of living faith.

TOHEE.—Mary, wife of David Tohee, died at Otoe, Oklahoma, Third month 20th, 1899, after an illness of three days. She was a daughter of Pipestem, who was a member of the royal family of the Otoe nation. She was married to David Tohee, of the Iowa tribe, fifteen years ago. To them two children were born, one of whom died in infancy. A son, with her husband, remain to mourn for her. She was converted when a child and lived a devoted Christian life. Her husband told the writer that "she was a good woman, always talking about Jesus and praying to Him. She would pray to Jesus before she lay down to sleep at night, and when she woke in the morning she pray to Him before she cook." She was a member of Iowa Monthly Meeting, having joined with her husband soon after their marriage.

WEBB.—In Windham, Maine, First month 29th, 1899, Olive Stevens Webb, adopted daughter of Stephen H. and Ellen F. Webb. She was a child of unusual promise who had early made the Saviour her choice.

"The light in one of earth's sweet homes,
Grew in a moment strangely dim;
Yet went not out, it was but veiled
By wings of Cherubim."

WEBB.—At Unity, Maine, Second month 7th, 1899, Mary Webb, a member of Unity Monthly Meeting, after enduring a long and painful sickness, with Christian resignation, peacefully departed this life, aged 83 years. In early life she found her Saviour, to the joy of her soul, and believed him to be the Saviour of all who call upon him. She was the mother of a large family of children, and as she watched over these with a mother's tenderness, her prayers were earnest at the throne of grace that they might all be brought to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. Her voice was often heard in the assembly of the people in prayer and testimony. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, yea saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

WHEELER.—In Uxbridge, at the residence of her son, Fourth month 2d, 1899, Abigail Wheeler, in the seventy-ninth year of her age. An elder and valued member of Uxbridge Monthly Meeting of Friends.

News and Events.

The French Ministry resigned on the 12th inst. The fall came as the result of the refusal of the Chamber of Deputies to support the motion demanded by Premier Dupuy as the order of the day. There had been much dissatisfaction expressed on account of the great numbers of soldiers brought out on the 11th to suppress any possible disorders of the populace. In the Chamber, in defending the action that had been taken, the Premier pointed out that the maintenance of the government was impossible without public order. M. Saumande offered a motion approving the course of the government. It was for this motion that priority was demanded by the Premier and refused. This dissatisfaction with the government really appears to have its actual origin in the Dreyfus case. Dupuy, it is said, was not Dreyfusite enough for the Dreyfusards, and too Dreyfusite for the anti-revisionists. His fall was recognized after its event as inevitable.

The position of Premier had been held by Dupuy since October 30th, 1898. Some difficulty is being experienced in forming a new cabinet. The status of Premier is a delicate one, and, recognizing the instability of the honor and the barriers to choosing suitable ministers, several men have refused the task of rebuilding the cabinet. It is now understood that M. Waldeck-Rousseau has assumed the burden at the urgent request of President Loubet, though upon the condition that M. Casimir-Perier and certain sections of the Chamber of Deputies will co-operate with him.

The city of Cleveland, Ohio, during the past week and longer, has been in the throes of a strike of the conductors and motormen of the trolley companies. Traffic on the lines of the big Consolidated Street Railroad Company has been pretty completely held up, while the running of cars is now gradually being resumed much active opposition is placed in the way by the strikers and their sympathizers. The bone of contention is the refusal of the railroad company to recognize the union and its dictation in the question of hiring and discharging employees. The company states that it "does not attempt nor will it attempt to dictate to its employees whether they shall belong to a union or not." "The company reserves to itself the right to treat directly with its own men, to hire new ones as the needs of its service require, and to discharge inefficient men without accounting to anybody except to its directors." The State Arbitration Commissioners have offered to lend their services in the dispute. The strikers are willing to submit to arbitration, but the company refuses to be bound down in this way to an outside mediator. Many new men are being added to the force. Every new employee means an old one thrown out, for while the company holds itself ready to take back as many of its old employees as possible when they quit the strike, the new men are promised steady employment and will not be removed to give way for the strikers. The odds are now decidedly in favor of the company, but the strikers are planning to appeal to the law, and should they secure the sympathy of councils they may win their case.

A fierce engagement took place at a point south of Las Pinas in the Philippines on the 13th. On the night of the 12th, an insurgent cannon was fired three times at the Americans on the outskirts of Las Pinas. The force which General Lawton took out to locate the battery was surprised and nearly overpowered. Re-enforcements, however, came to the rescue, and after one of the hardest conflicts of the campaign, the rebels were routed with considerable loss. A despatch says that this Filipino force was the largest and best organized which has yet met our troops. Other news of interest from the East is the taking of Bacoor by United States troops; the evacuation of Imus with heavy loss by the Filipinos; an unsuccessful attack by the latter on San Fernando; and the unconfirmed, but generally accepted report of the assassination of General Luna, one of the first commanders in the insurgents' army. The Filipinos appear bolder and more aggressive than at any time heretofore. This is probably due to the fact that the rainy season is on and they desire to profit by the advantage it gives them over an unacclimatized enemy. The need of additional troops for General Otis was never more marked. A much larger body of men will be needed than he now has if the towns once taken are to be garrisoned and retained. As a matter of fact, four battalions of the 24th and 25th regiments have been ordered to assemble at San Francisco, prepared to sail to Manila, and it is declared that the President is likely soon to exercise the power conferred upon him by the last Congress, and call for 35,000 volunteers. Thus far he has desisted from this action lest he be misunderstood as following an extreme imperialistic policy.

Secretary Alger has received many reports from army officers in reply to his recent inquiry regarding the value of the army canteen. These reports pretty unanimously favor the institution as promoting temperance and good order. It is not surprising that Alger should find it so easy to get such reports as he may desire. He has had far more difficult cases than this to whitewash, and he has always succeeded admirably. Nevertheless, the people have demanded the abolition of the canteen, and neither the nullification of the law by the Attorney-General, nor the biased reports or army officials, can prevent the exit of the evil.

Kaiser Wilhelm has a recruit in his First Foot Guards who would have delighted his ancestor, King Frederick William I. The man is a Rheinlander, seven feet, four and a half inches tall, and is the tallest man the regiment has had since 1850.

OLD SAWS.

Old Proverbs Don't Always Hold Good.

"Old saws are sometimes broken. A man convinced against his will is of his own opinion still." I have seen that badly smashed. A friend came in to see me some time ago while I was in bed with nervous prostration.

The physician had strictly forbidden me to use coffee, and I had tried a little Postum Cereal Food Coffee, but the way it was served, it tasted so flat that I broke the rules of the doctor and occasionally drank a cup of coffee, although each time I suffered for it. During her conversation, she asked me why I didn't try Postum. "Oh," I said, "I have tried that, but it's no use, I can't drink it." She laughed out loud and said, "Why, my dear, you have been imposed upon. If you once have Postum made right, you will be in love with it from that time on." I listened to her with little interest and much incredulity, but she kept on insisting.

Shortly after, when I recovered a little, I was visiting a friend's house, who asked me if I would like a cup of Postum, and when it was served, it tasted no better than mine had, so you see I had, apparently, a most thorough experience with the taste of Postum and I knew its taste to be decidedly flat and insipid.

However, I found for the good of my health, I must drink it, and so when I got home and was a little stronger, I determined to see if it could not be made to taste better. I looked at the package carefully and found that the directions were very plain, and that the Postum must be allowed actual boiling of at least fifteen minutes. I put it on in cold water. It took about fifteen minutes before it commenced to boil, then I allowed it to bubble and boil fifteen minutes more, and after it had settled, I poured out a cup which certainly was as rich a dark brown cup of coffee as I ever saw in my life, and when cream and sugar were added, I was amazed at the taste. "Eureka," I had found what I wanted. From that time on you can imagine I knew to a certainty when it was served at the table, whether Postum had been boiled long enough or not. There is as much difference as between night and day. Postum underboiled is flat, and boiled as it should be, is one of the most delicious beverages a woman ever tasted. It is strange that people try and try again, and make Postum in so slovenly a manner that they fail to get the delicious flavor from it. I, of course, have no temptation to go back to common coffee, for I have the finest coffee twice a day, and find it safe, pleasant, healthful, and strengthening to the nerves.

Mrs. M. E. Love, Whitinsville, Mass.

INCIDENTS IN A GREAT MAN'S LIFE.

Booker T. Washington was born in Franklin County, Virginia, but he does not know when—no record having been kept of colored children's birth in the days of slavery.

His first memory is of clinging to his mother's skirts while she shouted hallelujah for her freedom. Whether it was under this mother's instruction or that of his teachers in the colored schools, or both, the boy evidently grew up with a conscience and an idea of doing things well.

He worked in a coal-mine after he was old enough to earn his living, but his hunger for knowledge drove him to study whenever and wherever he could get at a book.

Dr. John F. Cowan, in the "Christian Endeavor World," tells how Booker heard of a place where students worked for their education, and how he finally entered Hampton Normal Institute.

He arrived there afoot, shabby, and covered with dust. The faculty did not know what to think of him, and doubted whether they could offer him anything beyond a meal of victuals and a chance to wash himself. But at last they concluded to give him a room to sweep, and accordingly a broom was put into his hands.

He swept the floor once, and looked at his work. It did not satisfy him. He went over it a second time, carefully brushing out all the corners; but another inspection did not convince him that he had done a perfect job. He swept that room a third time, and then he concluded he had done the best he could.

Soon after one of the lady teachers came in and took note of his performance. A quick survey showed her that at least the floor was clean. She touched the walls and chairs with her white handkerchief in search of dust, but if she found any she did not say so. The next day he was admitted as a student at Hampton Institute. His broom was his certificate.

Booker continued to use the broom, and pay his way with it, when not handling the hoe and spade to the same purpose on the school farm, climbing at the same time in his studies till he became the representative man in his class. Every task he undertook, whether in learning or labor, was as carefully finished as his first.

And when, in 1881, General Armstrong sent him to teach school in a Tuskegee shanty, he faced, and felt, as he had never felt before, the helpless ignorance of his race, and resolved that he would try to sweep some of it away. The story of his thoroughness and his success is now part of our national history.—"Youth's Companion."

"What answer did the quartermaster make to the charge that he had fed the regiment for an entire week on nothing but sawdust?"

"Why he said that he had always understood that sawdust was very fine board."—Harper's Bazaar.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB'S TOURS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Parties will leave Philadelphia in June, July, August, September and October, for

36 SUMMER TOURS

of Seven to Twenty Days to the Principal Resorts of New England, Canada, and New York, including:—
Saratoga, Lakes George and Champlain and Ausable Chasm

The White, Green and Adirondack Mountains.

Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, and the Saguenay. Poland Spring, Moosehead Lake, Sorrento and Mt. Desert.

The Maritime Provinces.

Great Lake Tours.

July 11. Tour through Europe.

July 7 and 18. Alaska and Yellowstone Park.

July 18 Yellowstone Park, Utah and Colorado.

August 8 and 22. Hawaii, Japan, China and Around the World.

July 7 and 18, and September 1. Yellowstone National Park.

September 1. Yellowstone Park, the Pacific Northwest and California.

Railroad and Steamship Tickets to all points.

Send for descriptive book, mentioning tour desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
1005 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

WHIP-DOG DAY.

The custom of whipping dogs out of church on St. Luke's day is of very ancient origin; indeed, some have tried to make out that it dates from the time of the Romans, a contention with which Drake does not agree. In the History of York the traditional account of the origin is given, to the effect that at a time long prior to the Reformation a priest, while celebrating mass on some festival in some church in York, dropped the pyx after consecration, and the wafer was promptly snatched up and devoured by a dog which had been lying concealed under the altar. The profanation of this high mystery occasioned the death of the dog. A persecution began, and has since continued on St. Luke's day. Unfortunately, the date is not given on which the priest dropped the pyx, but it must have been in the very remote past, as in the middle of the sixteenth century whipping dogs out of church was a recognized function and the dog-whipper a recognized official. Richard Dovey, of Farmcote, Cloverley, granted in August, 1659, certain premises to John Sanders on certain conditions, one being that he would pay yearly the sum of eight shillings to a poor man of that parish who would undertake to awaken sleepers and to whip out dogs from the church of Cloverley during divine service. Here and there lands have been devised for the endowment of the dog-whipper's office, one instance being near Chislet, in Kent.

It is well known that the custom of tak-

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

HAS NO EQUAL

GAIL BORDEN
EAGLE BRAND
CONDENSED MILK.

SEND FOR "BABIES" A BOOK FOR MOTHERS.

AS AN INFANT FOOD. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., New York

ing dogs to church is a very old one; some of the Dutch artists, in reproducing the interior of a church, invariably introduced a dog, while in Landseer's picture, The Free Church, dogs are in evidence. In Peterborough Cathedral there is, or was, a life-size likeness of Scarlett, who was sexton, and in his waistbelt is thrust his dog-whip, while in a church near Blake-well a dog-whip is preserved. The thong is about three feet long; the short stock is of ash, around the handle of which is a band of twisted leather.—"London Field."

LITTLE BROWN BABY.

Little brown baby wif spa'klin' eyes,
Come to yo' pappy an' set on his knee.
What you been doin', suh—makin' san' pies?
Look at dat bib—you's ez du'ty ez me.
Look at dat mouf—dat's merlasses, I bet;
Come hyeah, Maria, an' wipe off his han's.
Bees gwine to ketch you an' eat you up yit,
Bein' so sticky and sweet—goodness lan's!

Little brown baby wif spa'klin' eyes,
Who's pappy's darlin' an' who's pappy's chile?
Who is it all de day nevah once tries
Fu' to be cross, er once loses dat smile?
Whah did you get dem teef? My, you's a scamp!
Whah did dat dimple come f'om in yo' chin?
Pappy do' know yo—I b'lieves you's a tramp;
Mammy, dis hyeah's some ol' straggler got in!

Let's th'ow him outen de do' in de san',
We do' want stragglers a-layin' 'roun' hyeah;
Let's gin him 'way to de big buggah-man;

I know he's hidin' erroun' hyeah right neah,
Buggah-man, buggah-man, come in de do',
Hyeh's a bad boy you kin have fu' to eat.
Mammy an' pappy do' want him no mo',
Swaller him down f'om his head to his feet!

Dah, now, I t'ought dat you'd hug me up close.
Go back, ol' buggah, you shan't have dis boy.
He ain't no tramp, ner no straggler, of co'se;
He's pappy's pa'dner an' playmate an' joy.
Come to yo' pallet now—go to yo' res;
Wisht you could allus know ease an' cleah skies;
Wisht you could stay jes' a chile on my breas'—
Little brown baby, wif spa'klin' eyes!
—Paul Laurence Dunbar.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

The American Friend is a weekly paper, containing twenty-four pages. The subscription price is one dollar and a half a year, payable in advance.

Discontinuances.—If a subscriber wishes his copy of the paper discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

How to Remit.—Remittances should be sent by Check, Draft, Express-Order, or Money Order, payable to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND. Cash should be sent only in Registered Letter.

Postage is Prepaid by the publishers for all subscriptions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. For all other countries in the Postal Union add $1.00 for postage.

Change of Address.—When a change of address is ordered, both the new and the old address must be given. The notice should be sent one week before the change is to take effect.

Letters should be addressed:

THE AMERICAN FRIEND,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, 1st-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEHEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.
OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.
Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Homelike and attractive. Open throughout the year.

MARY T. HAINES.
N. R. HAINES.
Late of Chalfonte

The Archdale,

136 South Maryland Avenue,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful room; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.

MARY J. BUNDY

PRESTON'S SUNNYSIDE

Wernersville, Pa.

The highest resort on the Mountain. Magnificent scenery; pure water; excellent table Booklet.

JAMES H. PRESTON.

UNCLE SAM'S HOT BATHS.

The Hot Springs of Arkansas, via Southern Railway.

Will eradicate from your system the lingering effects of grip and other ailments caused by the severe winter, and malaria, rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, stomach, kidney, liver and nervous disorders, paralysis, blood and skin diseases, and chronic and functional derangements. The mountain climate of Hot Springs is cool and delightful in summer. 100 Hotels open the year around.

For illustrated literature, containing all information, address C. F. Cooley, Manager Business Men's League, Hot Springs, Ark.

For reduced excursion tickets and particulars of the trip, address W. A. Turk, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Southern Railway, Washington, D. C., or Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

PENNSYLVANIA CHAUTAUQUA.

Reduced Rates to Mt. Gretna via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the Pennsylvania Chautauqua, to be held at Mt. Gretna, Pa., July 4 to August 10, 1899, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell special excursion tickets to Mt. Gretna from New York, Washington, Baltimore, Frederick, Md., Canandaigua, and intermediate points, including all stations on its line in the State of Pennsylvania.

Tickets will be sold June 25 to August 10, inclusive, and will be good to return until August 15, inclusive.

A new style of roller-skate has been designed by a Frenchman, with an arrangement which prevents the wheel from turning backward when a stroke is taken with the other foot.

REUBEN H. UNDERHILL

Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law
Has Removed to

141 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

WEBSTER'S

Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice of U. S. Supreme Court, says: "I commend it to all as the one great standard authority."

It excels in the ease with which the eye finds the word sought; in accuracy of definition; in effective methods of indicating pronunciation; in terse and comprehensive statements of facts and in practical use as a working dictionary.

Specimen pages, etc., sent on application.

G. & C. Merriam Co., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

THE NIGHT-HAWK.

When frogs make merry the pools of May,
A sweet, oh sweet,
Through the twilight dim
Is the vesper hymn

Their myriad mellow pipes repeat
As the rose-dusk hid away.

Then hark, the night-hawk!
(For now is the elfin hour.)

With melting skies o'er him,
All summer before him,
His wild brown mate to adore him,
By the spell of his power
He summons the apples in flower.

In the high pale heaven he flits and calls;
Then swift, oh swift,
On sounding wing
That hums like a string,
To the quiet glades where the gnat-clouds drift

And the night-moths flicker, he falls.
Then hark, the night-hawk!
(For now is the elfin hour.)

With melting skies o'er him,
All summer before him,
His wild brown mate to adore him,
By the spell of his power
He summons the apples in flower.

—Charles G. D. Roberts.

The Seashore Lakes and Mountains

Of Eastern and Northern

NEW ENGLAND, CANADA,
and the Maritime Provinces

Are reached by the

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD.

SUMMER TOUR BOOK

Gives list of 1000 hotels, routes, rates, maps, etc.; will be mailed upon request. Address Passenger Department, B. & M. R. R., Boston.

D. J. FLANDERS,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agt.

The number of agricultural laborers in the eastern counties of England has decreased fully twelve per cent. within the last twenty years. The allurements of the prospect of higher wages in cities is responsible for the decrease.

New Guide to Rose Culture, free. The Conrad and Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

Reduced Rates to Richmond, Va., via Pennsylvania Railroad, account International Convention Baptist Young People's Union.

On account of the International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, to be held at Richmond, Va., July 13th to 16th, the Pennsylvania Railroad has arranged to sell excursion tickets from points on its line, to Richmond, at rate of single fare for the round trip (tickets via Baltimore and steamboat fifty cents more than single fare).

Tickets will be sold July 11th to 13th, and will be good to return until July 31st, inclusive, except that on deposit of ticket with the Joint Agent at Richmond before July 28th, and the payment of fifty cents, the return limit may be extended to leave Richmond not later than August 15th, 1899.

Stop over at Washington on return trip for ten days, not to exceed final limit of ticket.

For specific rates and conditions apply to Ticket Agents.

Reduced Rates to Detroit via Pennsylvania Railroad, account Christian Endeavor Convention.

On account of the Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held at Detroit, July 5th to 10th, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from points on its line, to Detroit, at rate of single fare for the round trip.

Tickets will be sold on July 3d, 4th and 5th, and will be good to return until July 15th, inclusive, except that by depositing ticket with the Joint Agent at Detroit before July 12th, and the payment of fifty cents, the return limit may be extended to leave Detroit not later than August 15th.

For specific rates and conditions apply to Ticket Agents.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,
REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,
REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.
REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.
REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.
REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.
REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,
Chairman Executive Committee.
CHARLES H. BOND,
General Secretary.

HARMSWORTH'S YOUNG AIDS.

Alfred Harmsworth, the London newspaper publisher, whose companies and properties declared several millions of dollars in dividends last year, is thirty-one years old, and was an office-boy not many years ago. He now controls more than thirty publications. Mr. Harmsworth thoroughly believes in the value of youth as an aid to business. Of the four thousand and odd editors and clerks in his employ, it is said not one of them is more than forty years of age. His brother Cecil, to whom he recently gave the full credit for the success of his latest monthly magazine, is only nineteen years old.—"Saturday Evening Post."

INDEX

To "The American Friend."

Copies of the index to "The American Friend" for 1898 may be had by addressing "The American Friend," 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia. They will be sent promptly upon request.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

Poet Laureate Alfred Austin has really done himself credit in his birthday ode for Queen Victoria upon the occasion of the eightieth anniversary of her birthday. The ode is entitled "An Indian Summer"—the title is American, by the way—and draws the parallel of the processes of nature toward the Indian Summer period, and the Queen's progression to the Indian Summer of her life. Two verses of the poem, which is given in the New York "Herald," are as follows:

"Through life's successive labors, one by one,
Still moving on to-day, no more you roam,
Seeking fresh tasks, but fruit of harvest home;
Fruit blent with flowers, warmed by October's sun,
Are round your throne entwined and harvest hymns begun.
"Long may the Indian Summer of your days
Yet linger in the land you love so well,
And long may we, who no less love you, dwell
In the reposeful radiance of your gaze,
A golden sunset seen through Autumn's silvery haze."

WOE TO THE DISCOVERER OF THE NORTH POLE.

"The Nautical Magazine" has been speculating on the embarrassments of the navigator who finally reaches the pole. At that point, the north would be found to coincide with the line of the zenith, that is, would be a point exactly above the observer, and the opposite point, the nadir, would be found to coincide with the direction of the south. Both the longitudinal circles and the circles of latitude, and hence also the meridians of the locality, would coincide, while the equator would coincide with the horizon. The compass, too, will fail, because its horizontal intensity is so slight as to preclude the possibility of its action.

One will not be able to count the passing hours there. There is no criterion for determining the time of day. For six months the sun will neither rise nor set, hence "The Nautical Magazine" concludes that life will be a never-ending torment, and a new meaning will be given to the hymn.

DICKENS TO THE LANDLORD.

Charles Dickens obtained the material for writing "Martin Chuzzlewit" and "American Notes" during his first visit to this country. But there was one incident of his sojourn at Louisville that he did not get into either of these books. A writer in the Chicago "Times-Herald" relates it:

He was a guest at the Galt House, then owned and conducted by Major Throckmorton, a gallant and courtly gentleman of high blood. Thinking to give his distinguished guest an unexpected pleasure, he caused to be spread in a private refectory an exquisite little dinner, to which

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and
Heals all
Inflamed Surfaces, Cures
Sore Throat,
Coughs, Colds,
Bronchitis,
Asthma,
Catarrh and

Relieves Pain

he had invited George D. Prentice, Tom Marshall, Dr. Theodore Bell, Chancellor Pirtle, and a few other prominent men of that day and city to meet Mr. Dickens.

After all the guests had been seated at the table by Major Throckmorton in his blandest and most cordial way, Dickens, who had not learned the difference between the proprietor of a great hotel in America and an inn-keeper in a provincial town of England, remarked to Major Throckmorton:

"There, that will do, landlord. You may retire now."

It was all that the remainder of the assembled company could do to prevent the irate Throckmorton from throwing the mistaken Mr. Dickens out of the third-story window, and the banquet became a somewhat strained affair.

If you have Smoked too Much Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. W. H. FISHER, Le Sueur, Minn., says: "It is a grand remedy in the excessive use of tobacco." Relieves the depression caused thereby, and induces refreshing sleep.

JOTTINGS.

America's new cup defender, the Columbia, which was launched at Bristol, R. I., on the 10th inst., is said to be a model of perfect workmanship. It is designed to be a worthy rival for the boat which England is to send over to compete for the cup which has been so long on this side of the Atlantic.

The War Department has published statistics for the period from February 4th, the beginning of the insurrection in the Philippines, to June 6th, which show that during that time 226 men were killed in action, 69 died of their wounds, a total of 295, while 364 died of disease. It is further stated that 1366 men were wounded during the same time.

Commissioner Robert P. Porter, who has lately returned from Europe, states that the "embalmed beef" controversy in this country has injured the American meat business in Germany to the extent of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 per year.

In a small boat only twelve feet in length, Captain William A. Andrews set sail from Atlantic City, on the 18th, for Land's End, England. He has already crossed the Atlantic three times in small crafts, and he expects to accomplish the present voyage in three months.

The first reciprocity treaty to be framed under the Dingley tariff law was signed on the 16th. It is with the British Colony of the Barbadoes, and is enacted for the term of five years.

George Beauregard Barrow, the principal in the kidnapping of Marion Clarke, has been sentenced to fourteen years and ten months' imprisonment. The nurse, Carrie Jones, who pleaded guilty and turned State's evidence, was sentenced to four years' imprisonment. The trial of Mrs. Barrow will follow shortly.

It is reported that Admiral Dewey has declined the gift of a house which it is proposed to purchase for him in Washington. It is intimated that the Admiral would devote the money which might be given to him for such a purpose to the building of a home for sick and disabled seamen of the navy. Thus far something over $7000 has been received by the treasurer of the fund.

On the 15th inst. a statue of Benjamin Franklin was unveiled in Philadelphia. This was the gift of Justus C. Strawbridge, a member of the Society of Friends, and is the best statue of Franklin that has yet been made. It cost $12,000 and was designed by the sculptor, John J. Boyle. Benjamin Franklin was the first Postmaster General of the colonies, and as such his statue was very appropriately placed in front of the post-office building.

A terrific tornado, accompanied by a rain storm, swept over a portion of Wisconsin on the night of the 12th. The town of New Richmond suffered most, but fearful damage was also wrought to many other towns along the route of the storm. At least 200 persons were killed, twice as many more were injured. In New Richmond hardly a single building escaped destruction. Herman, Nebraska, was almost entirely destroyed by a tornado of nearly equal force that swept the city and country surrounding.

The movements of the Peace Commissioners at The Hague appear to be waiting upon the decision of the Emperor of Germany as to the action which he will take regarding the arbitration scheme which has been submitted to that body. If he finds it consistent with his hobby of "Divine right of kings," he will probably yield. Dr. Zorn, his representative at The Hague, is at this writing in conference with the Emperor, and it is hoped that Germany will fall in with the other nations on this very important subject.

The first session of the High Commission which is to try the Venezuelan boundary dispute between Venezuela and England met in Paris on the 15th inst.

A BOY'S COMPOSITION ON WATER.

Water is found everywhere, especially when it rains, as it did the other day, when our cellar was half full. Jane had to wear father's rubber boots to get the onions for dinner. Onions make your eyes water, and so does horse radish, when you eat too much. There is a good many kinds of water in the world; rain-water, soda-water and brine. Water is used for a good many things. Sailors use it to go to sea on. If there wasn't any ocean the ships couldn't float, and they would have to stay ashore. Water is a good thing to fire at boys with a squirt, and to catch fishes in. My father caught a big one the other day, and when he pulled it out it was an eel. Nobody could be saved from drowning if there wasn't any water to pull them out of. Water is first-rate to put fires out with. I love to go to the fire, and see the men work at the engines. This is all I can think of about water—except the flood.

NEW ENGLAND NOT DECLINING

Says Professor L. H. Bailey, of Cornell, in an article on "A New England Country Road," in "The Outlook": "The common notion that the agriculture of New England is on the decline is a myth. The agriculture is only changing. Rural New England is prosperous. The highway from Springfield to Hartford and Portland runs through as thrifty a country as one could hope to see, and the one industry is farming. It is not a district of summer boarders, nor of suburban residence. The clean, well-tilled fields, snug barns, ample and cozy houses, all bespeak a happy and prosperous people. These homes have been paid for from the land, and they are replete with comfort. No other country can show such kingly farm homes, in such numbers, as America. There is a flavor

Soap Safety

Wool Soap is safe because it is pure, clean, white, and made for skin-use.

Swift and Company, Makers, Chicago

about these New England farmsteads which suggests thrift, frugality, stability, contentment. Economic conditions have drawn people together in the last two generations. Cities have grown. Conditions are slowly changing. People are desiring to extricate themselves from the city. There is a perceptible movement countryward. The country is improving and civilizing. The readjustment must come."

At the sessions of the approaching yearly meetings there will be visitors from every section of the country. These Friends will need accommodations, and in deciding upon places where they can board it will benefit them materially if they can refer at once to the names of those whose houses will be open for such guests. All who propose receiving Friends to board at such times would do well to advertise in our department of "Subscribers' Wants." A notice in this column costs only 25c. for five lines See page 597.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia
SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York
 Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.
Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

POEM.

Written for the Centennial Anniversary at Westtown, Sixth month 10th, 1899.

BY FRANCIS B. GUMMERE, PH.D.

"Let us now praise famous men, and our fathers that begat us."—Ecclesiastes, 44: 1.

Not these the faces, and not these the forms,

Sought by an inward eye, though this
the scene;

Across a century of suns and storms

Another throng behold, with other mien.

Midway they stand between the old and new,

Too near for hero, and too far for friend.
In the long journey of their lives, how few Chasm and peak, perils of chance that lend

Color and outline to each human tale!

How few the jocund words, the voice of cheer—

Not their's the pilgrim's visage, stern and pale,

Not their's the boon laugh of the cavalier.

No Endicott, with that uplifted sword,
To bar their way and wrest the word of might,

Calling up terrors of his vengeful Lord
Upon the simple children of the Light.

Not their's the martyrdom of mob and jail,
Stripes, anguish, fever, death: not their's to prove

In shock of battle faith's celestial mail
And smite whole armies with the sword of love.

No cry of Fox rang down those peaceful days,

No Barclay's wrong to make their pulses leap;

How see them, know them, as they went their ways,

A simple folk, to plant and till and reap?

Faces that watch us from no canvas still,
And hands that fashioned no memorial stone,

And feet that lingered on no muses' hill,
Nor wandered on those strenuous paths and lone

Of old philosophy; no bud, no spray

Of shade or color; hard and pitiless noon!

So this the pit from which was digged our day,

And here the rock from which our lives were hewn!

Nay, strong old fathers of our Quaker breed,

Not this we leave you! Let the higher mood

Bring keener vision, that our eyes may read

That noblest of all records: They were good.

A fillip

remind you that it's time to listen to the voice of common sense. It isn't reasonable to do your washing in the hardest way, when there's nothing to be gained by it.
Compare soap-washing with Pearlinewashing, point by point, and all the gain is on the side of Pearline. Greater ease and quickness, absence of rubbing, more economy.

585

Millions NOW USE Pearline

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds.
For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends.
Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Autumn term begins
September 19th, 1899. For catalogues address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

This entire building,
and two annexes,
are devoted exclusively to the work of the

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

Accessible to musical events of every nature.
The best masters in music, elocution and languages that money can command. George W.
Chadwick, Musical Director. Prospectus free.
FRANK W. HALE, General Manager, Boston, Mass.

Full many a life has won its martyr crown Unscourg'd of mobs and in no prison
hurl'd,
That fought the tyrants of his own heart down,
And kept itself unspotted from the world.

And such were they! And here by hall and grove

The peace, the memories of that spirit brood;

And yonder youth still hear those words
of love:

"Obey the still, small voice: hold fast
the good."

Hold fast the good! When time shall turn its page

A century hence the record new to write,
Be said of us: "They kept their heritage,
And lived not all unworthy of the Light."

In ordering goods, or in making inquiry concerning anything advertised in this paper, you will oblige the publishers, as well as the advertiser, by stating that you saw the advertisement in THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

It is the function of faith, when we have done what he can to put all into the divine hands, giving ourselves no anxiety, while we go forward in peace and confidence to the next duty that waits.—
"Presbyterian Observer."

What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer

By DR. RICHARD H. THOMAS

An Address delivered before the Annual Meeting of Friends' First-day School Association, held at Twelfth Street Meeting House, Philadelphia, during the Session of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, Fourth month 18, 1899.

Price, 5 cents, postage paid.

JOHN C. WINSTON & CO.,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia

Some of the most dramatic episodes that have occurred in the halls of Congress during the last thirty years are told in a series of papers which ex-Senator John J. Ingalls has written for "The Saturday Evening Post" of Philadelphia.

The first paper of the series, entitled "Famous Feuds in Congress," which appears in the issue of June 24, gives an authentic and vivid account of the scenes that led up to the lifelong enmity between Blaine and Conkling, and Conkling and Lamar.

MASON'S
CREAM OF OLIVES OINTMENT

CURES CATARRH ASTHMA HAY FEVER
" " MUMPS CROUP CAKED BREAST
" " FIRE & SUN BURN CHAFING.
" " BUNIONS & TIRED FEET.
" " CHAPPED FACE LIPS & HANDS
" " SAFE REMEDY FOR PILES
ALL DRUGGISTS OR MAILED FOR 25¢
H.T. MASON CHEMICAL CO. 515 ARCH ST. PHILA. PA.

SAFE · SPEEDY · SURE

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S PURE GRAPE JUICE Or Unfermented Wine.

The Pure Juice of the Grape. Free from Adulteration. Absolutely Non-Alcoholic.
Delicious in Flavor.

Nourishing and Strengthening.

25c. Full Pint Bottle.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.
Window Shades Made to Order.
902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,
118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

THE BIGGEST ACHER

A farmer can grow considerable corn on an acre, but if he has a toe corn it is often the biggest acher on the farm. To get rid of it, use A-Corn Salve.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S Breakfast Cocoa

TRADE-MARK.

Costs less than One Cent a cup.

Be sure that the Package bears our Trade-Mark.

A Perfect Food. Pure, Nutritious, Delicious.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Limited.

Established 1780.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
E., Chicago, Ill.

The Union Trust Company

ACTS AS

Administrator, Executor,
Guardian and Trustee.

It is quite as important to secure to ones
wife and children, the results of the labors of a lifetime, as it is to acquire that competence in the first place.

Personal interview or correspondence
solicited.

Offices:

715, 717, 719 Chestnut Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are advised to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

Read These Books

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

Mailed free
for postage named.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A., T. & S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME!

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION,

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.

USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT. 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

SIXTH MONTH 29, 1899

No. 26

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
EDITORIALS.—The Gift of Listening to God.—Temperance Speeches . . .	603-604
Church Notes	604
The Friends' Rally at Detroit	605
Individual Work for Peace John D. Carter.	605
Our Places Kept Alix.	606
A Home for Girls Rosa E. Brown.	607
THE INTERNATIONAL LESSON	609
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	610
CORRESPONDENCE	610
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	611
Bible School Assembly of Western Yearly Meeting	612
POEM—Search for Our Hearts Anne Virginia Culbertson.	616
DEATHS	616
NEWS AND EVENTS	617
JOTTINGS	622

A HOPE FOR THE FUTURE.

O golden age, whose light is of the dawn,
And not of sunset, forward not behind,
Flood the new heavens and earth, and with thee bring
All the old virtues, whatsoever things
Are pure and honest and of good repute,
But add thereto whatever bard has sung
Or seer has told of when in trance and dream
They saw the Happy Isles of Prophecy!
Let Justice hold her scale and Truth divide
Between the right and wrong; but give the heart
The freedom of its fair inheritance;
Let the poor prisoner, cramped and starved so long,
At nature's table, feast his ear and eye
With joy and wonder; let all harmonies
Of sound, form, color, motion, wait upon
The princely guest, whether in soft attire
Of leisure clad, or the coarse frock of toil,
And lending life to the dead form of faith,
Give human nature reverence for the sake
Of one who bore it, making it divine
With the ineffable tenderness of God.
Let common need, the brotherhood of prayer,
The heirship of an unknown destiny,
The unsolved mystery round about us, make
A man more precious than the gold of Ophir.
Sacred, inviolate unto whom all things
Should minister as outward type and sign
Of the eternal beauty which fulfills
The one great purpose of creation, Love,
The sole necessity of earth and heaven!

—Whittier, "Among the Hills."

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❁ ❁ ❁ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS

Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*

THE GIRARD TRUST CO.

LIFE INSURANCE
ANNUITY AND

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.
SURPLUS, $2,000,000.

Executes Trusts,
Allows Interest on Deposits,
Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent,
Cares for Real Estate.

OFFICERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS, President.
WILLIAM N. ELY, Treasurer and Secretary.
EDW. SYDENHAM PAGE, Ass't Secretary.
CHARLES JAMES RHOADS, Ass't Treasurer

HENRY TATNALL, Vice President.
NATHANIEL B. CRENSHAW, R. E. Officer.
A. A. JACKSON, Ass't to Pres. & Vice Pres.
WM. E. AUMONT, Manager Trust Dept.
GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM, Solicitor.

MANAGERS:

EFFINGHAM B. MORRIS,
JOHN A. BROWN, Jr.,
BENJAMIN W. RICHARDS,
JOHN B. GARRETT,
WILLIAM H. JENKS,

GEORGE TUCKER BISPHAM,
WILLIAM H. GAW,
FRANCIS I. GOWEN,
GEORGE H. McFADDEN,
HENRY TATNALL,

ISAAC H. CLOTHIER,
JOHN C. SIMS,
PEMBERTON S. HUTCHINSON,
JOSIAH M. BACON.

BROAD AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILA.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

White Goods

Several very favorable purchases have enabled us to begin special sale of desirable lines of White Goods at prices much lower than usual—in some cases less than the quotations heretofore prevail

Fine White Piques—of a beautiful quality—with woven colored stripes of red, light blue and black; regular prices 25 to 31c.—here at 15c. a yard.

Organdies—70 inches wide—in white, light blue and pink. The white was made to sell at 31 cents, and the colored at 35 cents—here at 16c. a yard.

Fancy Embroidered Swisses—75-cent goods at 37c., and $1.00 goods at 50c.

English Nainsooks—Manufacturer's short lengths; in pieces of one to ten yards—to be sold by the piece only—at 8c., 10c. 12½c. a yard. These goods would be regularly priced at from 12½ to 31 cents a yard.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.
ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED.
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS., 211 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.
All inquiries concerning our city and country have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(A subscriber of THE AMERICAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND when answering our advertisements.

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SIXTH MONTH 29, 1899.

No. 26.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE GIFT OF LISTENING TO GOD.

DEAF children are always dumb. It is not possible for a child to speak human language until he has heard it spoken. We speak because we have heard. The same law is true in spiritual things. It is not possible to communicate until we have heard. The great voices that "cry" to our generation, or to any other generation, the men that are reaching the ears and the hearts of the people, the message-bearers of our time, or of any other time, must first have listened and heard. The word "prophet" means one who "speaks for" God. A prophet is dumb until he hears God; he opens his lips only when he hears.

These are very old truths, and probably everybody agrees that they are true in the abstract, but yet they are very much ignored and neglected in fact. It seems to us that one of the supreme gifts conferred upon man is the gift of listening to God, but it is a gift which is sadly neglected, and through this neglect the spiritual life of the individual and of the church suffers loss.

There has been among Friends a strong reaction from: "silent meetings" because they proved lifeless and profitless to most persons. They seemed dead and formal to all but an elect few, and meetings where there were no vital messages slowly diminished until they ceased to be. The result was that the pendulum swung to the opposite extreme, as so often happens, and silence became "a byword and a hissing," and a synonym for deadness and conservatism. Then, too, there was a practical difficulty. The times of silence gave occasion for all the unbalanced and undesirable speakers "to free their minds" at the expense of the patient congregation. The easy remedy seemed to be to have the time "filled" either with singing or with "profitable speaking." The result is that "the meeting for worship" which our fathers knew is going out of existence, and in its place we are getting "preaching meetings," "prayer meetings," "praise meetings" and "testimony meetings." The great fact remains that there is no greater gift than the gift of listening to God, and that there is no greater spiritual power than that which comes when a whole congregation is fused and melted in silent waiting and soul worship before the living God, when God's presence can be felt and His voice heard so distinctly that no audible words are needed.

There is nothing the Christian Church more needs than such living, convincing worship, and such times of holy hush before the Father of spirits, but it is apparently becoming a "lost gift," and there are many Friends who do not believe there is anything in silence. Of course there is not anything in empty silence, nor is there anything in empty speaking, but it is certain that we shall never get prophets until we learn to listen, and we shall never get mighty, convincing messages which make the congregation vibrate like "harps of God" until we learn to worship together in living silence. Nobody wants to see formal silent meetings. Every congregation needs ministry, teaching, exhortation, interpretation; but the speaker should speak because he has heard, and he should make his hearers realize that he has listened before his lips moved. We have an abundance of prayers in our meetings, and we have much that is properly called worship, but we believe that a new power would come in most of our congregations if we could increase in every member the gift of listening to God, and if every meeting could have seasons of hush and of united worship undisturbed by human voices. While we are eager to cultivate the gifts of utterance, as is fitting, let us by no means neglect the gift of listening to God.

TEMPERANCE SPEECHES.

It is always difficult to keep reform movements up to date. The methods that worked well at the beginning of the movement are continued long after they have fossilized, and "the sling and stone" which the Lord blessed in the first battle with the giant are used long after the giant himself has resorted to gunpowder and dynamite. This is very apparent in the general run of temperance speeches and addresses. They are cut on the old pattern. The speakers go to work much as Charles Dudley Warner did when he tried to kill the bear,—“he aimed at him all over,” and “fired at him in general.” We get a sad picture of drunkenness, a harrowing tale of some particular drunkard, a funny story to relieve the strain, a few statistics, a burst of moral indignation against brewers and rum-sellers, some poetical figures about the “upas tree,” or the “devouring minotaur” who threatens our children, and an appeal to vote as we pray, and to be faithful in fighting this devastating evil that threatens our fair land. Now this is all very well as far as it goes, but the general public has been regaled with this sort of a thing until it is tired of it. People often wonder why temperance meetings are not more popular, and why there is a sigh when a temperance meeting is announced. They are tired of this way of killing the giant, for it never seems really to kill him! Even little children demand change and variety in the stories that are told them, and they will not listen unless they are interested, and we must realize that “men are only lads grown tall.”

The time has come to study the liquor problem, to study it critically, scientifically, and to deal with it with modern weapons. Our temperance speakers ought to be thoroughly familiar with all temperance legislation the world over. They ought to know the latest conclusions of the men who study social economics. They ought to know, not imagine, what place the saloon fills in politics, in the slums and in the higher circles of society. They ought to know what effect the different laws to regulate or prohibit the traffic have had upon the traffic itself, and upon the condition of society where the law is in effect. The moral talk to stimulate public sentiment, the attempt to aim at the giant all over, and the humorous and pathetic descriptions have their place, but they can never get beyond a certain point; they fail to produce practical results.

The question is a larger one than we used to realize, and the evil is so thoroughly entrenched that it must be treated with all the intelligence which can be commanded. There are men now at work who have studied the liquor problem as profoundly and as critically as the great scientific doctor studies the causes and remedies of diseases. When these men speak they are listened to. They have no lack for an audience, and their hearers go home with some “new ideas.” We need some men of this sort for our Yearly Meetings and for work all through the year. It is a field into which our young men should be called. We have passed good temperance resolutions for years, and our sentiments are good and our tracts are readable, but we need now to come up with the advancing procession, and to do this we need some speakers who have modern reform methods, and who know the giant they are fighting, and who know the spot at which he is mortal, and aim for that.

CHURCH NOTES.

A movement has been started to reach the scattered English-speaking population in India with the gospel. Because of the insularity of these people, of whom there are over 5,000,000, the ordinary methods of missionary labor are ineffectual. It is therefore proposed to distribute broadcast thousands of books, which will be selected with a design to reach those in want of gospel truths. There is a great need for the development of a real religious sentiment in India, and as the native must copy largely from the superior race it is particularly necessary that the latter should present a truer form of Christianity than is now exhibited. Sin is rampant, and for the few that profess Christianity there are unnumbered others who have no religion. Feeling sure of a hearty response to an appeal to the public for means to carry on the work, the chief instigator of the movement, D. L. Moody, has already ordered sent on 5,000 books. Contributions in any amount are solicited, which may be sent to D. L. Moody, East Northfield, Mass.

Dr. W. H. Whitsitt, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, at Louisville, has been forced to resign his position as president of that institution. Contrary to the usual doctrine of this denomination, Dr. Whitsitt holds that in the early days of his church the Baptists practised sprinkling. Such teaching is highly offensive to most Baptists, and the trustees of the Southern Seminary have taken special offense on account of it.

The receipts of the American Board of Missions for last month show an encouraging increase, though they are behind 1898. The total amount received up to the close of May was $401,449, against $455,313 for the same month last year.

There is still a murmur of dissent in the Episcopal Church over the ordination of Professor Briggs. Bishop F. D. Huntingdon has taken a decided aggressive stand, and in an open letter to Bishop Potter has severely denounced his colleague for admitting Professor Briggs to the episcopacy.

A free church cathedral is to be erected in Brighton, England, capable of seating 2,000 people. The church will be under the charge of R. J. Campbell, who has suddenly come to the front as one of the great ministers of our time. He is little over thirty years of age, but has already made for himself a remarkable record in the pulpit.

The "Guardian," of London, the largest and ablest Anglican paper in the world, has suggested that at the approaching Church Congress in England some representative Nonconformist should be invited to take part in the proceedings and set forth the Nonconformist situation. This display of kindly feeling is as pleasing as it is surprising.

The books of Charles M. Sheldon still have a remarkably large sale. In England this preacher-author is particularly popular, no less than 6,000,000 of his works having been sold.

"The American Hebrew" says that the latest news from Palestine seems to indicate that the Turkish Government is "backing down" from its attitude concerning the admission of Jews into Jerusalem.

It has been stated that Prof. McGiffert will leave the Presbyterian Church without standing trial for heresy. It is well known that he is a peace-loving, non-combative person, and dislikes the bitterness and notoriety which a heresy trial would bring him. It is said he will join the Congregational Church.

THE FRIENDS' RALLY AT DETROIT.

At Trumbull Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifth-day afternoon, Seventh month 5th, 2.30 to 4.30 p.m. Morton L. Pearson, Sabina, Ohio, Chairman.

1. Devotional exercises, conducted by the chairman.

2. Secretary's annual report, Myrtle Lightner, Sabina, Ohio.

3. President's annual address, Charles Sweet, Des Moines, Iowa.

4. Business session, F. I. C. E. U.

5. Christian Endeavor and Missions, Gilbert Bowles, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

6. Christian Endeavor a Spiritual Force, Richard Haworth, Marion, Ind.

7. Open Discussions on Junior Work, Quiet Hour, Proportionate Giving, Bible Study, etc., conducted by the President of the Union.

All one's life is a music, if one touches the notes rightly, and in time. . . . There's no music in a "rest," that I know of, but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life-melody, and scrambling on without counting—not that it's easy to count; but nothing on which so much depends ever is easy.—Ruskin.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

INDIVIDUAL WORK FOR PEACE.

BY JOHN D. CARTER.

It would certainly be needless for me to address this audience with the intention of convincing any one that peace is desirable. Nor need I quote Scripture to show that war is utterly opposed to Christianity. Nor do you need to be told that peace is practicable. The Quaker control of colonial Pennsylvania and other "holy experiments" have proved this conclusively. On these points I am sure we all agree. The question is: What can we do to make everyone accept our position? How can we forward the cause of peace? It is not my intention to propose methods to this association. I would not do so if I could. Yet I have thought that some of its members might be musing on this wise:

"What can I do for peace? I cannot call a conference like the Czar. I am not sent to reason with the Sultan. I am not appointed to prepare memorials to Congress, nor petitions to Governors and Presidents. I am simply a quiet, inconspicuous person, fully occupied with cares of business or household. All my near friends desire peace as much as I do. I do not see how I can do anything for peace." It is to such as these, if there be any among you, that I desire to extend whatever encouragement I can.

I think we will all agree that the spirit of war and the spirit of love are absolutely antagonistic. Whatever one is the other is not, and cannot be. Not that I mean to say that a man may not fight with some people, and at the same time truly love others. What I mean is that whoever is thoroughly imbued with universal love cannot fight, nor can an habitual warrior be filled with love. War and love are then mutually exclusive.

We often find that the best way to drive out something is to do it indirectly; that is, by letting in its opposite. In such cases we are not concerned at all with expelling the objectionable thing; we leave that to the newly introduced opposite. For example: To dispel darkness we introduce light; to remove ignorance we infuse learning. To make a sour-tempered child more pleasant we do not, or, as I believe, should not, say don't quarrel, don't get angry, and don't do this, that and the other, so much as, do as you would be done by; do respect the rights of others; do what you know to be right. We make our teaching positive, not negative. So then, as I apprehend, one of the best ways to combat war and advance the cause of peace, is to spread the spirit of love, and let it work in its own way.

With this restatement of the problem, it may be more apparent what I mean by "individual work for peace." I believe that before we try to inform others, we should examine ourselves. Few things are more discouraging than to see a man's practice fall far short of his precept. If, then, we desire to spread the spirit of love, let us look within. Many of us, myself certainly included, will find enough there to furnish us with abundant employment. But again a question arises: "How can I make myself love anyone? Love does not come by force! There may be some of our acquaintances—I hope but few—whom we have so far found it impossible to love. I cannot presume to prescribe for such cases, yet I think we often have unpleasant feelings toward others because we fail to distinguish between a person's actions and the person himself. True it is that a man's actions are usually the index of himself, yet Christ could love and does love the sinner, while we cannot suppose that he loves the sinner's evil deeds.

Some years ago (it seems many to me) I saw or heard somewhere a simple statement about those we love. I have often thought of it, and tried to see whether or not it is true. I have decided that it is partially true, but is by no means the whole truth. It is this: "We love those most for whom we do the most." Notice it is not those who do most for us, but those for whom we do the most. May not this explain why the love of a mother for her wayward son so far exceeds his affection for her? May it not show why the negro slave, beaten every day, and enduring the utmost hardships, could often love his master far more than his master loved him?

It is a familiar fact that any piece of work to which we have devoted much time and attention, is dearer to us than one, perhaps really much more important, with which we have not so identified ourselves. By putting our own personality into a thing, that thing becomes, as it were, part of our very being. Any destruction of our cherished work seems to touch us closely; it even seems to be the amputation of part of ourselves. It appears to me that it is an extension of this same principle in a different field which makes us tend to love those for whom we make sacrifice. Certain it is that we grow by exercise, physically, mentally and morally. Therefore, if we wish our love to grow, give it work to do; let it take concrete form in doing something for others. Thus labor for the good of our fellows becomes both the expression of and the means of increasing our love. Those on whom it is bestowed are more likely to regard it in the former aspect, and in some measure to respond; for love is contagious. We have the best authority for the statement that "even sinners love those that love them." If then we can show others that we love them and all men, the chances are that their love will also be increased.

We need scarcely inquire concerning how our love is to be shown. It spontaneously expresses itself. The Apostle Paul's summary is probably the best: "Love suffereth long, and is kind; love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not its own, is not provoked, taketh not account of evil; rejoiceth not in unrighteousness, but rejoiceth with the truth; beareth (or covereth) all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Love never faileth."

Beside these characteristic manifestations, others doubtless are familiar to us all. A person does not need wealth, nor social position, nor wide influence, to spread the spirit of love. We all know people from whom it seems to emanate as light from the sun, even amid the most commonplace duties. Charity in judging others, slowness to take offence, anticipation of the desires of those about us, the kind word, the cheerful smile, patience under wrong, sympathy with the afflicted, love for all; we are familiar with the effect upon ourselves of seeing these things in others, and we know that it is good. I believe that the law of the conservation of energy applies in other realms beside that of physics, and that the kind word or cheerful look given to the bootblack or newsboy, the willingness to assist the poor old woman with her burden, and the thousand deeds, good though small, which we may do if we are on the watch for them; in short, all such expressions of love never lose their reward.

This, then, is the work which each one of us, no matter what our circumstances are, may do for peace; we may strive to increase in ourselves and those with whom we come in contact, love for our fellow-men, love for all things, good and true, and love for God and His Son, the Prince of Peace.

Haoverford College.

OUR PLACES KEPT.

BY ALIX.

Nellie and Ruth had been looking forward with much pleasure to an entertainment where beautiful stereoscopic views were to be shown; but just as they were about to start they were unavoidably detained, until, to their dismay, they realized that it would be almost impossible to reach the hall where the entertainment was to be given in time. "We may as well stay at home," cried Ruth, disconsolately. "The hall will be so crowded that it will be impossible to get seats."

"Do not take such a gloomy view," said her uncle, cheerily; "Did I not tell you that I bought reserved seats for you?"

"Then we are all right," cried Nellie. "Come on, Ruth, do not let us waste any more time."

When they returned, a few hours afterwards, their mother asked them "if they had any difficulty about their seats."

"Why, of course not," said Nellie, laughing; "Ruth fretted all the way for fear we should be late, and when we got near the hall and saw the great crowd about the door, and people being turned away, she wanted to come home, for she said that it was useless for us to attempt to get in. But I told her that I did not feel at all anxious, for if uncle had paid for our reserved seats they would be kept for us, and there would be a way made for us to get to them."

"And when we got near the door," cried Ruth, "there was a little cleared path for us to go through the crowd, and we just walked up the hall and took the seats that we had paid for, and that had our numbers on them."

"But you did not pay for them," answered her mother.

"No, but uncle did, and that was the same thing," said Nellie.

"I hope this night's experience will teach you a most important lesson," said their mother. "Do you remember that in our morning reading I called your attention to the beautiful verse in which Jesus says, 'In my Father's house there are many mansions; I go to prepare a place for you.' Now the only right we have to one of these 'many mansions' is, that our Saviour paid the price for it by his death upon the cross. For those who are his own, he had bought the right to enter in. So if you are truly his little followers you can rest confidently in the thought, 'My place is kept for me, and moreover, a way will be made for me, so that I may enter in.'"

"To-night you saw many being turned away from the door of the hall. They were like the people who say, 'I will take my chance for heaven; I am just as likely to get in as a great many others that I know.' Alas, when it is too late, they may find that the door is shut. But to those who came by the way that Christ has opened up to them, no one has the right to deny entrance."

"Oh, mother," cried Ruth, "how plain you have made it. I understand perfectly. Nellie and I had no money to pay for our seats to-night, and it was uncle's love for us and wish to make us happy that made him secure them for us, and so it is the love that Jesus has for us that has made him pay the price for those beautiful homes above, so that we can be happy forever."—From "Advocate and Guardian."

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

A HOME FOR GIRLS

BY ROSA E. BROWN.

A jester once upon a time,
When asked what meant that word sublime,
Seen everywhere in book and press—
Four letters, W. H. M. S.—
Responded wiser than he knew,
And from his lips this sentence flew—
"Woman's Help Means Something."

A happy thought! a truth well told!
Worthy of being wrought in gold;
For this old world—sad to relate—
Has had six thousand years to wait
For woman's help, as God designed,
In saving man and womankind.

Yes, woman's help means something!

It is a very common saying, and often heard after the commission of some crime, "There was a woman at the bottom of it." We are forced to admit that this is too often the truth, and yet, if the case was investigated and the whole truth known, it would often be found that the woman in the case was the innocent victim of some designing man, who had through her love, innocency, and confiding faith, fallen a victim to his wiles. Some of course, err from pure wilfulness, but others are often taken in their ignorance by some wolf in sheep's clothing. Others are left motherless, and perhaps friendless, at an early age, are thrown upon the world and forced to make their own living as best they can. Housework in the country commands very low wages, so she naturally betakes herself to the city to find employment, perhaps secures a place in some factory at starvation wages. Then she has her board, washing, and clothing to provide for out of the small pittance paid her. She is forced to dress decently, even tidily, and in order to make her money reach around her wants, or rather her needs, she is forced to secure a second or third-rate boarding place. Here she is furnished poor, ill-cooked, unhealthy, and often scantily provided meals. She sleeps in a stuffy, ill-ventilated, barely furnished, and poorly heated bedroom, with none of the dainty appurtenances so dear to every young girl's heart. When she goes to the dining-room she meets all sorts and conditions of people (except the better class) from the poor, ignorant, rough Irishman to the jolly bartender of some saloon. We will acknowledge that our associations and environments have almost everything to do with our conduct through life; so from being shocked at the rude conduct or the coarse jest, she in time begins to hear it with indifference, and because of her loneliness and lack of companionship, she sooner or later begins to join in, furnishing her part of the amusement. This dulls her sense of modesty, and she naturally grows coarse and vulgar, exerting an evil influence on all around her.

Who is to blame? Should her condition be charged to herself? Would we have done any better with her environments? With no mother to advise, and no father to provide the necessities of life, the wonder to me often is that so few girls fall as do under the circumstances in which they find themselves placed.

Then, there is a vast majority of girls, who have good homes, perhaps good parents, but who are unable to support their daughters in idleness. These girls go to the city to find some employment. Honest, honorable, upright business girls with only one desire in life, and that to make an honorable living, and to make of themselves useful members of society and good workers in the world's great bee-hive—to such as these every manly heart turns with wonder and admiration, and every womanly heart goes out to them in deep love and sympathy, and a desire to be helpful to them.

It was such girls as these two last classes spoken of whom the women of Western Yearly Meeting had in mind when they conceived and carried to completion the thought that Friends would be doing a good work to furnish a homelike home for business girls in the city of Indianapolis, Indiana, where these young women could find all the comforts of a real home—yes, even the dainty little belongings so necessary to their happiness, where they could read good books, enjoy the use of a piano, have good comfortable beds and sleeping rooms, a nice parlor in which to receive their company, and suitable associates to whom they might be introduced; where an intelligent, cultured, motherly matron presides in the dining-room, over a table surrounded by from twenty to twenty-five bright, happy, enthusiastic girls, all intent on making the most of themselves in their particular line of work; where the conversation is not only cheery and bright, but elevating in its character.

Such a home is Friends' Boarding Home for Girls, provided by the women of Western Yearly Meeting, at the low rate of $3 and $3.50 per week. Our rent is high, our living expenses heavy. Aid in some cases has been extended to the needy girls. It is needless to say that under these circumstances our home is not self-supporting. It could not be so at the low rate before mentioned.

So far as I know it is the only home of the kind entirely under the care of the Friends in existence, and I feel very sure were it known among Friends how much good is being done, they would gladly help by sending their one, five or ten dollars, and so increase its usefulness. If the women who read this article could visit the home, could see the girls, and talk to them, could sit down at the table with them, could hear them express themselves regarding the benefits of such a home, I feel sure they would help in the good work.

I claim that all the good work being done in the world originates with the young women. Is that claiming too much? I will convince you such is the case. She is the prime mover and the source of all good deeds. She slings the pebble into the filthy waters of politics which causes the ripple that increases into the great ocean wave of public sentiment against some great evil. Who were the quiet, but determined workers in the great reforms of the world? Who kept up the agitation against slavery, intemperance, impurity; against war with all its attendant evils? Of course we all know it was the mothers of our land who were the mothers of our good men. Do we ever hear of a truly good and useful man who had an evil mother?

We are trying to inspire the lofty motives in these young women that will fit them for the great duties of life; that they may bring forth good sons and daughters; that they may all help in the work of overcoming the evils and abuses of this world. So, you see, women are the spring from which flows the living desire for the world's betterment. If she be a good and right-minded young woman, we will always find her helping in some good work.

This brings me to the opening stanza of this article. Woman's help does mean something, and when she attacks an evil something has to give way, for she never gives up while that evil stares her in the face or impedes her progress. Though often weary and discouraged, she is not despairing. She only collects her forces for a renewal of the onslaught. Women are now working for peace and arbitration, and for the gradual disarmament of the world. Witness the call for a mass meeting of women published in all the Indianapolis papers last week to consider this subject. Witness, also, the able sermons preached upon the subject from so many pulpits, all at the request of the women. "Women's help means something." She is marching on. The world will finally fall in line. When the young women of our land are trained in good citizenship, and become good mothers, they will produce good sons, who will make good laws for us.

Do you not all see the necessity for a good home for young women? Remember, some of these young women have no homes, such as we are enjoying. Will you help in providing one for them? If so, send in some money to the Treasurer, Elva Witt Hadley, 2111 Broadway, Indianapolis, Indiana. She will duly acknowledge the receipt of it, and the Board will be grateful to all men or women who will aid in the sheltering of young women, who are determined that women's help shall mean something in the reformation of the world. Is there not some one in all this beautiful land of ours, among Friends, whom God has blessed with a good home and with means, whose heart perhaps is mourning over the departure of a loved daughter, who has gone to her eternal home—is there not such an one, I say, who would, after investigating the work, be willing and glad to endow such a home, naming it after this loved one gone, in this way building a lasting, ever-living monument to her memory? Would not such a monument be worth much more than any marble shaft, seen only by the casual visitor? The other one would be erected in the hearts of scores or hundreds of grateful young women.

We have had young women from England, France, and from almost every state in the Union. So, you see, the influence of this home is widespread. It was opened in 1890, and since that time has sheltered thousands of young girls. We hear from some of them occasionally. Most of them are engaged in some good business, or are the keepers of good homes. "A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband. A virtuous woman—her price is above rubies; her husband is known in the gates when he sitteth among the elders of the land; her children rise up and call her blessed; she openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness." So, if woman is at the bottom of some of the evil of the land, she is always first in every good word and work, and the world is beginning to tardily acknowledge that man cannot do this work alone, that women are their helpmeets, and that "woman's help means something," as God designed it should when He said, "it is not good for man to be alone."

If woman's influence and help is so valuable to the world, let us all unite in giving those who have not our advantages, the needed sympathy, and the means to surround themselves with good influences and associations.

This appeal is sent on its way with an earnest prayer that it may meet a response in many hearts.

Address, Rosa E. Brown, President Board of Managers, 615 N. New Jersey Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Blessed is the man who has the gift of making friends. It is one of God's best gifts. It involves the power of going out of one's self, and seeing whatever is noble and loving in others.—Thomas Hughes.

The International Lesson.

Lesson II.

THIRD QUARTER.

Seventh month 9, 1899.

DANIEL IN BABYLON.

Dan. 1: 8-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself.—Dan. 1: 8.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 3.—Captivity. Dan. 1: 1-7.

Third-day, Seventh mo. 4.—Daniel in Babylon. Dan. 1: 8-21.

Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 5.—Prosperity from God. Gen. 34: 1-6.

Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 6.—The Safe Way. Psa. 1.

Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 7.—The Upright Way. Prov. 16: 1-9.

Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 8.—Temperate in all Things. 1 Cor. 9: 19-27.

First-day, Seventh mo. 9.—The Rechabites Honored. Jer. 35: 12-19.

Few books of the Bible have had so much written about them as the book of Daniel, and it might be added that no book of the Bible has had so much written about it that is unprofitable, and of little value. Too often its valuable moral and religious teaching has been greatly obscured, if not seriously injured by endless speculations, which in themselves have been far from beneficial.

In these notes the effort will be made to avoid all doubtful points and to dwell upon that which is practical and helpful. "The book has exercised a powerful influence over Christian conduct and Christian thought." This is specially true of the six opening chapters from which our lessons are chosen. The date and authorship of the book have been questioned. As regards the former, scholars generally ascribe it to a date later than was formerly supposed; while, among other things, the use of the third person in chapters 1-6, and of the first person in chapters 7-12, rather points to different authors.

The book has come down to us written partly in Hebrew and partly in Aramaic, a peculiarity it shares with the book of Ezra.

The author does not claim to be a prophet; and we never find in it the words, "thus saith the Lord." It is also noteworthy that the Jews did not include Daniel among the prophets, but placed it among the "other writings," along with Ezra, Esther and Nehemiah.

It is a striking fact that Daniel is not mentioned in Ezra, Nehemiah or Haggai, where we should most expect a reference.

It has been well said that "The lesson that the author wanted to teach the people was that God is always in His world, watching over His own; that it is safe to trust in Him; that no earthly power can withstand His might; that the gates of hell shall not prevail against Him." All through the book God is presented as a God of righteousness, and it is emphasized that "He always wins who sides with God."

Verses 1-7 of the chapter should be read.

8. "Purposed." He believed it to be wrong, and therefore he would not partake. The animals might not have been properly killed, or they might have been ceremonially unclean—forbidden by the Law.

"Requested." Ashpenaz, see verse 3. They acted orderly about the matter.

9. We are not told how Daniel found favor and compassion in the eyes of the prince, but it was undoubtedly by his upright life and pleasant manners.

10. "I fear the king," etc. It was no easy or safe thing to refuse to carry out the commands of an eastern monarch. "Children." Youths. Revised Version. "Sort." Own age. Revised Version.

11. "Melzar." Not a proper name, but probably the steward, and so rendered in the Revised Version.

12. "Pulse." A vegetable diet, with water instead of wine.

14. "Consented to them." Harkened unto. Revised Version. The prince or steward connived at the practice. Ten days was as short a time as would show the effect of the proposed diet.

15. The result was all that the young men claimed.

16. "Melzar." Steward, as above. He did not give them meat, but let them keep on with their vegetable diet.

17. "Children." Rather youths, and also elsewhere where "children" occurs. The development of their intellectual powers went along with that of their physical powers. "Learning." This meant much, for the Chaldeans were considered to be the most learned men of their age. "Wisdom." Power to apply knowledge. "Visions and dreams." Great attention was paid to these in antiquity. Note the resemblance between these youths, particularly Daniel and Joseph and Moses.

18. "At the end of the days." Three years. See verse 5. From Xenophon's Cyropædia we learn that seventeen was the age at which young men entered the service of an eastern monarch. "Nebuchadnezzar." The correct spelling of this name is undoubtedly Nebuchadnezzar. See Ezekiel 26: 7; 29: 18, etc.

19. "Communed." Conversed. "Stood before the king." That is, became his personal attendants,—a position of great honor and influence.

20. These young men stood the test of time; they were found on every occasion not only better, but "ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters" that were in the king's realm. It is possible that the magicians were the priestly class, and the enchanters or astrologers the scientific men.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. "Amid innumerable false, unmoved, unshaken, unseduced, unterrified, their loyalty they kept, their faith, their love."

2. They were total abstainers from wine, and all excess. They were altogether pure in life.

3. They lived as in God's sight.

4. "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

Let the soul be turned as strenuously toward good as it usually is toward evil, and you will find that the simple love of goodness will give incredible resources to the spirit in the search after truth. Love with little intellect will perform miracles.—Fénelon.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SEVENTH MONTH 9th, 1899.

A GOOD VACATION.

Mark 6: 7, 12, 13, 30-32.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 3.—Rest. Gen. 2: 1-3; Num. 9: 18-23.

Third-day, Seventh mo. 4.—Ministry. John 4: 1-10, 25, 26.

Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 5.—Revelation of God. Ps. 19: 1-14.

Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 6.—Communion with God. Mark 1: 28-35.

Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 7.—Christian Fellowship. Luke 24: 13-32.

Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 8.—Renewed Strength. Isa. 40: 28-31.

A vacation may be defined as a well-earned rest. A man cannot rest until he is weary. Idleness is not by any means synonymous with a vacation, though one has a right to be idle on a vacation.

Nature takes a vacation. The trees rest during the winter; even in the tropics they have their rest seasons. Even the palm or the rubber plant in your house takes its annual rest. A student must not study twelve months in a year, nor even seven days in a week. He can do better work in six days than in seven, in ten months than in twelve. An exceptional man can now and then break this law with seeming impunity, but you and I are not exceptional men.

What a vacation is depends on what your work is. A farmer's vacation may well be occupied with intellectual pursuits, but he does not need athletics. But a brain worker cannot rest if he fills up his summer with summer schools, Chautauquas and conferences. He had far better play croquet or golf. The American—and I may say the religious—tendency to incessant strain and stress on one line, is destructive to healthful life, both of body and soul. Then rest, to the glory of God. Unstring the bow, relieve the tension, fill up the drained cup of life with nature's restoratives of open air, rest and freedom from care. The vacation is not a time for idle dissipation. Going away from home into a crowd is not a vacation. The discomforts of most summer hotels are notorious. The rest which Jesus offered His disciples was a quiet place apart from the crowds. It was a vacation from giving out to others that they might be filled again with Him. Most of all was it a vacation where He went along. It has been perhaps too true that many people leave their religion at home when they go on a vacation, but cessation from regular Christian work may be the best thing for that work in the future. It is well for us to go apart with the Master for a time, to learn anew His Spirit and His methods.

But the writer cannot forget that he is writing these lines for many who cannot drop their daily toil for even a week; for many who cannot afford to go away from home, even if they could cease from toil. He can only say to these, "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile" with the Master, in a closer fellowship with Him than possibly you have known of late with your cares resting more on your own shoulders than on His. It is blessed to find how truly He carries, not only our burden, but ourselves as well.

Come aside and rest from regrets over the past and fears for the future. Forget yourselves in the new revelations of Himself.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE AMERICAN FRIEND:

San Antonio, Texas, Fifth month 23d, 1899.

Dear Friend.—My attention is called to an article in THE AMERICAN FRIEND of Fifth month 4th, 1899, page 414, under the heading, "A Soldier's Temptation," that I think is calculated to make a wrong impression regarding a class of men who are just now attracting a large share of public attention—the United States soldiers. For a number of years the military post at San Antonio, Texas, has had no post chaplain, and some of the citizens have felt a concern to hold religious services with the soldiers in some convenient room in the barracks. I have been closely connected with this work for nearly seven years, and have made the acquaintance of many soldiers, both officers and privates. The statement in the article noted as made by one of the men, "I am, at home, a church member and a Christian, but a soldier has no business in church; a man cannot live a Christian life and be a soldier; there is not one in a hundred that does not get drunk every three or four days," etc., etc., is too palpable a mis-statement to need contradiction. There are rough characters in all large gatherings of men, but the openly hard cases are the exception rather than the rule among the troops that have been quartered at Fort Sam Houston. The Sixth United States Infantry, who have just left us to go to Manila, had a regimental Y. M. C. A. doing not only a preventive, but an evangelistic, work; and the attendance at the meetings on First-day afternoons and Third-day nights was only limited by the accommodations.

The churches nearest the garrison were also largely attended by soldiers. Just before the departure of the Sixth more than one hundred copies of the New Testament were distributed to men who wanted the Scriptures in easily portable form, and they were very thankfully accepted. In regard to the statement that the troops were generally drunk, I would say that the post canteen never did sell spiritous liquors, and as soon as the "Army Bill" passed Congress the canteen was closed and the furniture sold. Our religious work has had the cordial endorsement of the post commanders, among whom are names made famous in recent days—Generals Stanley, Wheaton, Wade, Copping, and others. General Guy Henry, late military governor of Porto Rico, was a very constant attender at our meetings, and by both example and precept gave assurance of his interest. The soldier has a place in the church; he can live a moral life; he is not a drunkard; he is a man among men.

EDW. B. KAIGHN.

Godliness is gain to a nation as to an individual.

News from the Field.

During the Seventh month the library at 142 North Sixteenth Street, Philadelphia, will be open on the afternoons of the 3d, 6th, 10th, 13th, 17th, 20th, 24th, 27th and 31st days, between 3 and 6 p.m.

The commencement exercises of the "Institute for Colored Youth" in Philadelphia were held yesterday. This school, which is under the care of a number of Friends, is doing excellent work in assisting to uplift the colored race.

Thomas Whitson, of Malvern, Pa., has been engaged during some time past in religious service in certain parts of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting.

Wm. Evans, of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, in company with Joseph Elkinton, is visiting the colony of Doukhobors in Manitoba.

London Yearly Meeting sent a delegation to The Hague Conference, which delegation was remarkably favored in the execution of this important appointment. We can well believe that the influence of this delegation will not be lost. They presented the following carefully prepared address.

"We desire to express our profound sympathy with the work of the Conference initiated by the Emperor of Russia, and having for its object the extension among the nations of the blessings of durable peace. For more than two centuries the Society of Friends has felt bound to oppose the whole system and practice of war, and to plead against the spirit that leads to war, as utterly opposed to the Spirit of Christ and to the rule, simple and practical, that we should do unto others as we would they should do unto us. We therefore greatly desire that your deliberations should be guided by that wisdom which is the gift of God, so that practical and lasting results may attend your labors. That these labors may not be in vain, but may be abundantly crowned with success, and be followed by the blessing pronounced upon Peacemakers, is our earnest prayer."

Aquilla H. Pickering, of Chicago, was suddenly killed by a railroad train at a crossing in Swampscott, Mass., on the 20th inst. He was planning to spend most of the summer at South China, Maine, and he was at the time of his death visiting his daughter, Mary Crosman. He had just returned from Portland, where he attended New England Yearly Meeting. He spoke several times during the meetings, and always sweetly and impressively. He was closely connected with the publication of the "Christian Worker," and he was foremost in the planting of the Friends' colony at Whittier, Cal., which has since become one of the most important centres of Quakerism in the far west. He was a solid and valuable Friend, and he will be much missed by those who knew him. The news will come as a sad shock to many, and the bereaved family will have the sympathy of a wide circle.

NEW ENGLAND YEARLY MEETING.

As previously mentioned in these columns, the two hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Dartmouth Monthly Meeting, Massachusetts, will be observed at Apponegansett, in Dartmouth, Mass., on Seventh month 5th next.

A general invitation is extended to Friends, and all who may be interested, to be present.

Friends of Westport, Dartmouth and New Bedford Monthly Meetings will carry lunch sufficient to meet the needs of those who may attend from a distance.

The hour is fixed at 11.30 a.m. Visitors from away are requested to come to New Bedford, and proceed to Friends' Meeting House, from which point barges will leave at 10.30 a.m., the expense to be borne by each individual.

Lunch will occur after the conclusion of the adjourned Monthly Meeting, and the exercises will begin in the early afternoon.

Dr. E. T. Tucker, of New Bedford, will give an historical address, and the principal address will be made by John H. Dillingham, of Philadelphia. Other speakers will contribute to the occasion.

T.

China Monthly Meeting, held at China Neck on the 21st, was an interesting occasion. A goodly company gathered and worshipped together.

Rufus M. Jones was present, and delivered a gospel message. Alfred H. Jones, who has for many years been a very useful and valuable member of this meeting, ready for service in many lines, was at the meeting, though in feeble health. He has been very far from well for some months.

Eli G. Parker and Mary M. Parker attended the meeting at Westbury, Long Island, on First-day, Sixth month 4th. Their company and services were truly acceptable.

Amesbury, Mass.—At the close of our morning meeting on the 18th, the Friends that had the privilege of attending the recent Yearly Meeting at Portland, Maine, gave an account of the meeting to those that were not able to be present, each one taking up two or three minutes in giving some interesting incident of the Yearly Meeting. It was a profitable occasion.

On the 19th Alfred Neave Brayshaw, from York School, England, spent a few hours visiting the birthplace, home and grave of the poet Whittier.

D. C. MAXFIELD.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Marion Quarterly Meeting was held Sixth month 9th, 10th and 11th. On Sixth-day we had our usual meeting of ministers and elders, with no ministers present except those of our own Quarter. Seventh-day we had the acceptable company of R. W. Douglass, of Versailles, Ohio; Allen Jay and E. O. Ellis, of Richmond, Ind., and Henry Rush, of Jonesboro, Ind.

Meeting opened with song service as usual, after which Brother Ellis read the 60th chapter of Isaiah, with a few comments, and followed with prayer.

R. W. Douglass based his remarks on 1 Corinthians 16: 13-14, exhorting us to be charitable toward those that do not see eye to eye with us.

E. O. Ellis: "Except ye eat flesh and drink the blood," etc., showing that we are weakened or strengthened by what we eat and drink.

Allen Jay was present for the purpose of stirring us up on the indebtedness of our Yearly Meeting. A portion of what he expected of our Quarter was subscribed, and two were appointed from each subordinate meeting to take the matter home and see what can be raised.

The committee appointed three months ago in regard to assisting in the management of Fairmount Academy, made a favorable report, and a committee of four was then appointed to co-operate with similar committees from Fairmount and Wabash Quarterly Meetings—if Wabash should report favorably—to formulate plans.

Sabbath morning, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," were sung, followed by reading the 5th chapter of Romans, by Richard Haworth, after which he offered prayer.

Brother Douglass then spoke from Romans 14: 17. We grow our experiences unconsciously, as much so as a child grows physically day by day, with no perceptible consciousness of the fact; some are saying former days are better than these days, thereby forming their opinion that we have more trials than formerly.

Sabbath afternoon we had our usual temperance address, this time delivered by Brother Reed, President of Taylor University, Upland, Ind. It was a very able production, representing intemperance as a great tree of the forest, known as the tree of intemperance or dram drinking.

In the evening Allen Jay used the text, 2 Timothy 1: 12. After telling Timothy how he had been persecuted and many of his trials, he says: "For the which cause I also suffer these things; nevertheless I am not ashamed, for I know whom I have believed," etc.

The services, we believe, were all owned and blessed of the Lord.

J. R. S.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

Bloomington, Ind.—Bloomington Monthly Meeting was held on the 14th inst. Among other matters of business, the subject of pastor for the coming year was discussed.

Our present pastor, Alice A. Mendenhall, was recorded a minister of the gospel. She has faithfully served us the past year, but goes to Oakwood Seminary, New York, the coming year.

If any feel called of the Lord to fill her place, please correspond with Joseph Parker, Chairman Pastoral Committee, Bloomington, Ind.

N. D. Baldwin, of Westfield, Ind., has taken pastoral charge of the meeting at Greentown for a time.

Westfield Monthly and Quarterly Meetings, which have just been held, were times of blessings. At the former Charles H. Stalker returned his former minute, and obtained another for religious work on the Pacific coast, where he, with his father, are going for the latter's health. Nathan D. Baldwin also obtained a minute for service in the limits of Kokomo and New Garden Monthly Meetings, where he anticipates spending most of his time this summer. The meeting also gave Mary Doan a minute, showing her standing as a member while she spends a short time in the limits of London and Dublin Yearly Meetings in the interests of education.

At the Quarterly Meeting we had the most acceptable presence of John Henry Douglas, of Oregon; Levi Mills, of Wilmington, and John Holding, ministers of the gospel of Christ, all of which had good service at the meeting. John Henry Douglas was largely led out in the ministry of the word with his old-time fervor both on Seventh- and First-days. Twenty-four years ago he and our beloved brother, D. B. Updegraph, held one of the most powerful revivals that has ever been held here, and two years following John Henry Douglas held another one not much less so. Though twenty-two years have elapsed since, yet his presence now has revived in the minds of many yet living those blessed times of refreshing, which gives him a large place in our hearts, and we bid him go on in the blessed work whereunto he is truly called.

N. D. BALDWIN.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Hiawatha, Neb.—Hiawatha Quarterly Meeting was held at this place from the 16th to 18th of Sixth month, and was a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Brother A. L. Knight, of Alda, Neb., was present and gave us precious messages from our God. We pray God to bless him and make him a blessing wherever he may go.

ALFRED W. NEVILL.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT PACIFIC COLLEGE, OREGON.

The eighth year of Pacific College has just closed, and without doubt it has been one of the most successful in the history of the institution.

The exercises of commencement week began on Seventh-day evening, Sixth month 10th, with a reception given the graduating class by the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations. This was the last social function of the student body, and their friends and everyone seemed to have had a pleasant evening.

On Sabbath morning, Sixth month 11th, the Friends' church was well taxed to seat the people who assembled to hear the baccalaureate sermon, preached by President Newlin. Taking as his text, Rom. 1: 14, "I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians; both to the wise and the unwise," he showed most clearly how much we have gained from past generations, and that we can ill afford to be ignorant of what they said and did if we would best serve the people about us. But perhaps more strongly did he emphasize the fact that we must be thoroughly alive to current history and current thought even if it be of those "without" who are to us as Greeks and barbarians, for only by such knowledge can we pay the debt we owe our own generation.

Sabbath afternoon the Christian Associations held their farewell meetings. Both of these were seasons in which the members came in very close touch with one another, and felt very sensibly the bond of Christian love which has bound us together during the year. In the evening H. W. Stone, Y. M. C. A. Secretary, of Portland, gave a very practical sermon, setting forth the needs of Christian young men and women in this great movement in which they have given their hearts.

Sixth month 12th, at 2 p.m., a large company assembled to enjoy the Class Day exercises. These, of course, consisted largely of class jokes and much which only those intimately connected with the college could appreciate.

Sixth month 13th was a full day. In the morning and afternoon were given Sections I and II of the graduating exercises of the twenty-one members of the Senior Class of the Academy Department. In the evening the Alumni held their public meeting. At this H. S. Britt, a member of the Class of '97, produced an interesting and instructive paper on "The Race Problem," and Sadie (Bond) Cash, of the same class, gave a study of "Tennyson's Men and Women." A third paper was given by O. K. Edwards, of the Class of '96, entitled, "The Function of a College Education." All of these were very good.

Sixth month 14th, Commencement Day, was ideal so far as sunshine and heat were concerned. At ten o'clock a class of nine presented themselves to the audience, and acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner. This class is remarkable in that it contains more young women than have graduated from the college in all the seven preceding years.

From four to six in the afternoon President and Mrs. Newlin gave a reception to the graduating class. This was a very pleasant feature of Commencement Day, and during the interval a host of friends and patrons, as well as the students, showed their interest in the institution, and especially in him who stands at its head.

The Alumni banquet in the evening was interesting as usual, affording a happy reunion to the old students, bringing them again in touch with college life.

Having completed a year in which we have enrolled a larger number of pupils than ever before, we can but believe that the influence of the college is being more widely felt throughout the section. We rejoice day by day that this institution has been placed in our midst, and that its work is proving a benefit to the community.

BIBLE SCHOOL ASSEMBLY OF WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

The Thirteenth Annual Bible School Assembly of Western Yearly Meeting met at Thorntown, Ind., Fifth month 30th to Sixth month 1st.

The first session of the assembly was opened by singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed by Bible reading and prayer by John Henry Douglas of Oregon.

He impressed upon our hearts the need of coming before the Lord in a spirit of humility and true devotion in order that we may receive a spiritual uplift. Such an assembly as this is a place where it is so easy to backslide if we are content with the simple pleasures of the occasion, and do not come before God in an attitude to receive the deeper spiritual blessings He has in store for us.

Albert J. Brown, pastor of Friends' Church in Indianapolis, preached the Assembly Sermon from Phil. 1: 27. Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ: that, whether I come and see you or be absent, I may hear of your state, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one soul striving for the faith of the gospel.

The word manner means movement of the hand. So Paul exhorts that the movements of our hands be worthy of the gospel, and as the hand is directed by a mind willing to do God's will, its movements will be worthy of the gospel. Paul wished to hear of the state of the Philippians that they were worthy, stable, standing intelligently on the doctrines of Christ. He wished them to be as the house built upon the rock. He emphasized the necessity of unity of spirit and unity of action. The word striving implies individual action. It lays great responsibility on each one. Each must go forward singing and shouting victory in Christ's name. If we fall by the way others will take up the work. It is our business to let the world know that we are one great army marching up to God, led by His banners and clad in the whole armor. Paul wished to find the church in a state of peace, and not of turmoil. There is especial need now for prayer for universal peace.

In time of trouble God's hand is extended to us. Let us not ask Him too often to do the things for us which we can do for ourselves. When He says to take up any work let us go at it with child-like faith, and if we fall it will be without harm. Let us stand fast and give God the glory as we see the fruits of our toil. Let us ever look unto Him who will ever sustain us and lead us to immortal glory.

A greeting of welcome was given by Dr. J. M. Doan of Thorn-town. Lewis E. Stout of Azalia, responded.

He said every good in life is the result of sacrifice. We have come here at a sacrifice, but we expect the blessing we receive to far exceed the sacrifice. There is not a child in Western Yearly Meeting who would not belong to the Bible School if we wanted them to badly enough. The children are such a blessing to us in every way—let us save them whatever the cost. Don't drive them away by lack of tact and bluntness.

Prof. Elbert Russell, of Earlham College, gave an address on "Why Use the Revised Version." He said that King James' Version was a revision of other revisions of the Bible. Between 1534 and 1604 there were twelve editions of the Bible published, all of which were partially revisions. Only three of these were authorized, and only two translated from the original Greek and Hebrew. In 1611 King James Version appeared as a translation from the original tongues, with the former translations diligently compared and revised. It was never authorized by the Church of England, and for fifty years was a very unpopular edition. The Revised Version is more popular now after a lapse of twenty years than the King James Version was after a test of twenty years.

There are two Revised Versions published now—the English and the American. The latter, which was not published until fourteen years after the English Version appeared, is more nearly a correct translation of the Bible into English as used by Americans. Soon an edition of the American Revision will be published in America.

The English language has changed greatly in the last 300 years, and God's word is obscured by our not understanding the language in which it is presented in the King James Version. Many words which are now obsolete are used, and many others have undergone changes in meaning which entirely change the sense of the passages in which they are found.

In 1,700 whole or partial manuscripts of the Bible 150,000 differences are found, but most of them are not serious. Only 400 of these are such as affect the sense of the text, and none of them affect any of the cardinal doctrines of the Bible.

The Revised Version represents more accurately the Word of God. Scholars have made so much research, and other original manuscripts have been found in the last three hundred years. Increased knowledge of Greek and Hebrew, and of the geography and customs of Bible lands has aided in making the Revised Version more correct than any other version has been. Chapter and verse divisions are an innovation of the Middle Ages, and the Revised Version omits them.

In the discussion which followed several spoke of having received great help from the use of the Revised Version.

In the next exercise of the day John Henry Douglas said, "We ought to be thankful for all the revisions of the Bible, for they all shed light on the Word of God."

Every Bible School teacher should be a pastor feeding the flock. Parents should be pastors in the homes. The necessity of Pentecost as the foundation of the true church was dwelt upon, and the history of the church traced, showing how it has been successful only in proportion as the members were spirit-filled. Paul in his work hunted up the disciples in a place, and ascertained first if they had been baptized with the Holy Ghost, and when they received this baptism they began to lead other souls to the same experience, and there were great revivals in the churches lasting for months or even years. Later grievous wolves entered into the flock and destroyed many souls. When church and state were united all spirituality seemed lost, until Luther broke the fetters and gave back the Bible to the people, and Fox renounced ecclesiasticism and became the founder of Quakerism or "ancient Christianity revived." Later divisions have come in the church because God's spirit has been rejected by parts of the church.

"Be aroused and keep aroused,
Be revived and keep revived."

On Fourth-day afternoon, an address was read by Alice A. Mendenhall, pastor of Friends' Church at Bloomingdale, on "A General View of the Exile Period." This subject is of especial interest as an introduction to the Sabbath School Lessons of the coming quarter. She sketched a brief history of the causes of the exile. There were two principal deportations of captives to Babylon, the first during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar in 589 B.C., when Jehoiachin and all the princes, and the most noble people of the land were taken, and the next eleven years later. She brought before us a picture of the captives leaving Jerusalem and coming into Babylon, and the contrast of their new surroundings and the old. They were under a foreign king in a foreign land, and for five years seemed crushed by their sorrows. Then Ezekiel had a vision which re-inspired them with hope for the future. They began to realize that they were not slaves of a tyrannical monarch, but only Hebrew colonists on Babylonian soil. They were free from religious and political persecution, and had their own laws and kept up their old customs, distinctions of rank, and tables of genealogy. They enjoyed peace and prosperity. They had the Word of God by the mouth of Ezekiel and Daniel, and Jeremiah sent them letters from Jerusalem.

This period wielded a mighty influence on the later history of Hebraism and Judaism. Here was perhaps, the birthplace of the Jewish synagogue, at first informal gatherings in the home for the purpose of studying and explaining the Scriptures. They began serious study of the law. They learned the first steps of worship without sacrifice or ritual. The synagogue which developed from this crude beginning was open to all, the Scriptures and law were read and explained, and they worshipped without any prescribed forms or ceremonies. In looking through the whole stretch of Hebrew history, we might think of this period of 50 or 70 years as the "Quiet Hour" in which Jehovah taught them many lessons. They learned that they could keep the Sabbath on any soil, they could worship without sacrifice. The laws concerning circumcision, food, cleanliness, etc., took on new importance. The Hebrews learned the beginning of spiritual meditation. The immortality of the soul began to dawn upon them, belief in angels and in the resurrection of the body took new form. Here was the birthplace of some of the sects of later Judaism, as possibly Pharisaism. It was the centre of a period of great literary activity. The books of Kings, Obadiah, Lamentations, and parts of Ezekiel and Jeremiah, were written then. Earlier writings were revised and re-edited during this period. All the writings are reflective and distinctively religious, and optimism predominates over pessimism. They strove after correct literary form and finish.

King Cyrus was a friend to the Hebrews, and allowed 42,360 to return and rebuild the temple in Jerusalem in 537 B.C. But many still remained in Babylon. Those who returned were different in many respects from the captives who were taken to Babylon. Their language was greatly changed. They had put away idolatry, and had new impulses in trade and industry. The faith of Judaism was much broadened and more liberal. The issues of the captivity were vital to the history of the Jews, and so to Christianity.

Mary Doan, of Purdee University, read a paper on "The Young men and Women of the Bible School." She said: "As a man thinketh so is he." He lives over and over in mind what he hopes to live in reality soon. He who moulds the mind of the girl of sixteen and the boy of eighteen holds the destiny of the future. It is well to look ahead and anticipate our mission. Christ at the age of twelve had a dream of being about his Father's business. The Bible School teacher has a great deal to do in shaping the dreams of his pupils. Our youths hear too little of the truth of God, and too much of temporal things. It is difficult for them to express themselves, for they are so little used to using the language of the kingdom of God. They often appreciate the spiritual application of the lesson when they can find no words to express their thoughts. If they are to be interested they must be taught practical things. When life is devoted to great aims there is no time for irritation over trivial affairs. Our girls and boys must have higher aspirations than their parents had, for true womanhood and manhood, are broader than they were a generation ago. Life need not be always a struggle for money, nor always a struggle to renounce money and the pleasures of the world. The soul cannot do its best if the needs of the body are neglected. Money, politics, etc., are temporal, and cannot satisfy the soul, it must catch glimpses of the unseen and feed on that. Help the youths to ask the question seriously, which they will choose—the temporal or the eternal.

In the discussion which followed, Albert J. Brown emphasized the need of tact in approaching youth about their salvation. He said you may play with a boy when you can't pray with him. You may pray with him once, but you won't get a chance to again. You may play with him again and again and thus reach him.

Prof. Elbert Russell presented the subject of "The Purpose of Teaching and Preparation for It." He said: "The general principles are the same for all teachers, but the Sabbath School occupies a special place in the life of the children. It gives them their estimate of Christianity. It supplies them with religious knowledge. Since the state no longer encourages instruction in the Bible in the public schools, the Sabbath School and home are their only resources. These resources being inferior to the present needs, the ignorance concerning the Bible among the young people is appalling. To be proper Sabbath School teachers makes immense demands upon our people, and many of them cannot take the time for needful preparation. We need better teachers, who can give more time for the work, or our young people will drift away. The state leaves the ethical instruction of its citizens to the Sabbath School, and attends only to their intellectual development, which increases the responsibility of the Sabbath School more than in former years. The Sabbath School is also the children's church. They do not enter largely into the public worship of the church, so that almost the only spiritual food they receive comes from the Sabbath School. The purpose, then, of the Sabbath School is to feed the child's soul. The truth must be presented concretely, rather than by the use of abstract terms. It must be presented creatively so as to appeal to the child's imagination. Symbols, both natural and conventional, may be employed. It must be presented to the feelings, giving the child joy and confidence in having found it. It must be presented to the will, so that he may incorporate that which he has learned into his daily life and actions.

The teacher, in his preparation, must: first, master the lesson; second, plan the recitation; third, plan what the pupils are to do for the next recitation; fourth, feel that the truth is to be presented; fifth, be positive and not teach his doubts and difficulties; sixth, embody his teaching in his own life and character, so that he may teach by example as well as by all other means.

At Thorntown Mid-Week Meeting on Fourth-day evening Levi Mills, of Wilmington, Ohio, preached a sermon from Dan. 1: 8.

Man is the central figure of the whole creation of God. The purpose of all other creation was man's happiness, well-being, and prosperity. Man alone of all God's creation is invited into the realms of literature, science, art, theology, etc., that he might gather treasures of the soul which cannot be destroyed. Man alone is the great frontispiece of the exceeding excellency of God's power. It is the wonder of the centuries that after man had sinned against God and fallen, God veiled himself in the form of humanity in the person of his son Jesus Christ that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled. Christ was perfect God with all the power of the Trinity. He was perfect man with all the sorrows and sympathies of the human heart that he might lift up humanity. Christ did not come to debase divinity, but to exalt humanity. The man who wants to be an angel has little conception of our eternal redemption and exaltation, which is higher than angels ever dreamed of. We shall be satisfied "when we awake in his likeness." "We shall be like Him." I thank God, Jesus Christ came seeking a bride. His Father is rich, and all the riches of the Father belong to the Son, and he shall bestow them upon his bride through redemption. Christ says, "Come unto me and inherit the kingdoms, prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

Man is the light of the world because he is the only creature in the world who can cultivate the lower creation, and be cultured himself to the highest state of excellence. The highest type of God's divine power is shown in man when the Holy Ghost has fullest sway in his soul. We will not be judged by the measure of what we have done—we'll be rewarded for that—but by what we might have done. God holds us responsible for every opportunity he gives us. Let's get to the place where our obedience is equal to our ability.

Many false notions on education are rife. I'm glad we live in an age of universities, colleges, academies, and public schools. If you want to be strong in the Lord get a good education and use it to God's glory. To be practical the whole man must be educated heart and mind too. Knowledge is intellectual, but wisdom is an impartation of the divine life, nature, and power of God. Wisdom unites mind and heart.

Conscience is not the still, small voice. It is simply that which enforces in one's life that which he believes whether right or wrong. Paul, following conscience, went forth to persecute the church until the light dawned upon him. Those who follow conscience without any knowledge of the Bible and without intelligence cause dissension. Let the whole man be trained body, mind, and soul. They are interdependent upon each other. Let policy die out, and principle be made paramount. Loyalty, devotion, and love are requisites of God's true servants. Ruth in her faithfulness to Naomi is an example of loyalty; the woman who gave all her living an example of devotion, and the woman who broke the alabaster box of ointment and anointed her Saviour an example of love. "He that is faithful to the end shall receive a crown of life."

Fifth-day morning.—In an address on "Lesson Helps," Levi Mills, of Wilmington, Ohio, said:

The object of the church is to save men. The church can only be fruitful when all are consecrated and doing their duty. Like the human body, the church is made up of members each of which must do his own part. The spirit does not create gifts but strengthens and sharpens those already present. Teachers without gifts may use quarterlies, ask the printed questions and read the comments, but they cannot present the Truth. Quarterlies are frequently used to excuse indolence and ignorance. The purpose of Bible study is not only to learn of Christ's good example, of the plan of salvation, of the record of sacred history, of creation, etc., but also to seek after salvation, and to seek and find God. The purpose of the Bible teacher then is to point out the way to God. In order to point out the way of life the teacher must know it by having passed over it. He cannot understand spiritual things until he has been converted. The unconverted teacher is the blind leading the blind. He can teach creeds, but not Christ; religion, but not redemption; quarterlies, but not the Word of God. He is absolutely dangerous to the church when a teacher in the Sabbath School, and the church must rebuke the practice of using such as teachers.

In order to lead his pupils to Christ, the teacher must know his lesson and understand his pupils, so that he may be able to lead them tactfully into the Truth. He should not antagonize them, nor attempt to fasten upon them any set of opinions. He must impress them that he believes the lesson, and knows the way of life. Above all he must live his teaching. The Sabbath School teacher has a sacred trust. The church expects much of him. Let him study the lesson from God's own word, aided by any and all helps to which he has access, but leaving these all at home let him go, after earnest prayer, before his class for the purpose of saving souls.

Ida May Cox, of Darlington, recited "The Tempest Stilled," a beautiful description of the scene where Christ stilled the tempest on the Sea of Galilee.

Alice A. Mendenhall gave an address on "The Attitude of the Church toward Higher Education." She said: I would not exalt education above spirituality. I would rather have a simple child-like faith in God and no education than have education and no faith.

The attitude of the church toward higher education is hardly one of indifference, it is hardly an attitude of sympathy and encouragement, it can scarcely be said to be antagonistic, but rather one of fear and suspicion. We are more or less fearful it may be dangerous. Let us notice some of the tendencies of higher education and the complaints which the church brings against it. First. It tends to rationalism. This is an age of reason, but reason and faith are not antagonistic. They are helpful, they are supplementary to each other. We can't draw a sharp line between faith and reason. God gave us the power of reason just the same as faith. The church needs a more reasonable faith.

Second. It tends to intellectuality. We need a guarded religious education. Intellectuality is not opposed to spirituality. There is a possibility of advancement in intellectuality and also in spirituality. We sometimes confuse emotion and spirituality. The more intellectual one is, the more spiritual he is, or there has been a mistake in his education. The church needs a higher stage of development in its intellectuality.

Third. Higher schools turn out so many skeptics and infidels. The word skeptic used to mean one who searches on all sides for truth, but it has degenerated to quite a different meaning as used at present. The value of an education consists in that it gives one a larger range of vision, a larger and fuller horizon. The church needs a larger range of vision, a larger and fuller horizon, and a greater realm of thought. It enables one to see the many-sidedness of any subject. Truth may be viewed from many points.

The student is taught to think at school, and he will think when he goes to church too. He may find difficulties between what he hears at school and at church. Truth taught at school and church ought to be harmonious. The church needs men and women who are large enough "to see what the other side looks like." Every subject is large enough to admit of difference of opinion. We think it is all right to differ on non-essentials, but even the vital doctrines are large enough to be seen from many points. We may be in harmony with the truth, and not have all of it. Truth is like a sphere and must be viewed from various sides, but it is so large no one can see all of it. The one who sees it from the most sides and from the nearest points of view gets the more correct idea of it. Truth is unchangeable, but men grow in their understanding of it. We may stand firm, and yet grow and change in our ideas of truth. Christ is at the center of the sphere and sees it on all sides, and is the embodiment of all truth.

We need a larger charity. Is the test of Christianity unity of thought or opinion? No, it is unity of charity, sympathy, and love. Let us remember that higher education gives a broader range of vision, that the church needs this broader range of vision, that ministers need it, and that child-like trust is not inconsistent with a reasonable faith.

Ella J. Davis, Superintendent of Bible Schools of Indiana Yearly Meeting, spoke on "Graded Teachers in the Bible School." She said: "We need teachers especially adapted to each grade. One who is a great success as a primary teacher may prove a failure for more advanced pupils. If our Bible Schools could be graded as carefully as our day schools, and teachers secured adapted to each of the grades, there would be much more efficient work done in them.

"The Quarterly Conference" was the next subject which claimed our attention. It was presented by A. L. Ellis, of Phlox, Indiana.

In most our meetings the members do not realize the importance of holding Quarterly Conferences, and those which are held are devoted entirely to Bible School work. Our church embraces seven departments of work: 1, Evangelistic; 2, Home Mission and Temperance; 3, Bible School and Education; 4 Social Purity; 5, Foreign Missions; 6, Christian Endeavor; 7, Peace and Arbitration. Six of these are discussed very little in the conferences, while the Bible School is discussed until the people are tired of the subject and lose interest. If the other departments were brought to our attention more we would probably see greater results in our work.

Kokomo Quarterly Meeting has been greatly blessed by holding two days' conferences in the middle of the week, and having very carefully prepared programs, perhaps considering the work of two or three departments in one conference. Papers on vital subjects are presented, and sometimes speakers from a distance are invited to assist. The Quarterly Meeting pays the general expenses of the conferences, and collections are taken to defray the expenses of the speakers.

Dr. J. Lindley Spicer, of Cincinnati, delivered two illustrated lectures on the subjects "The Book We Study," and "Oriental Side Lights."

He exhibited Oriental costumes, veils, sandals, phylacteries, lamps, and other objects mentioned in the Bible, and explained how they were used in the Orient, and thus the thought of various passages in the Bible were made very clear and forcible. In the light of Oriental customs many obscure portions of Scripture are made very plain.

On both mornings of the Assembly, Devotional Meetings which resulted in much blessing convened at 8 o'clock, led by John Henry Douglas.

A choir composed of some of the young people of Thorntown, Sugar Plain, and Walnut Grove Meetings furnished most of the singing at the Assembly. The children sang a few songs, and solos were sung by Nathan Pickett, Mr. Williams, and Mina Wright.

It was decided that the next Assembly should be held at Watsika in Fifth or Sixth month of 1900, and the acting officers were nominated for another year of service.

At the roll call it was found that all the Quarterly Meetings were represented but two, and the whole number of visiting delegates was 95. There was an unusual number of ministers in attendance. We were especially thankful for the presence of our dear brother, John Henry Douglas, of Oregon, and his messages were very helpful. The Assembly was a season of great blessing to all.

ROBERT E. PRETLOW, Superintendent.
MARY PRICKETT, Secretary pro tem.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE ASSEMBLY.

Whereas, This Assembly has been deeply blessed through the services of Alice Mendenhall and Elbert Russell in presenting the problem of investigation and teaching, and

Whereas, These Friends are in our judgment faithful representatives of the true spirit of Earlham College; and

Whereas, Our Yearly Meeting is jointly associated with Indiana Yearly Meeting in maintaining a high intellectual, moral, physical, and spiritual institution of learning; be it

Resolved, That this Assembly vote a hearty loyal support, both commendatory and financial, to Earlham College.

Resolved, That it be the sense of this Assembly that the custom of purchasing dinner, which has been practical for four years, become a permanent custom of the Assembly.

Resolved, That we express our sympathy and unity with the Czar of Russia in calling a conference of nations for the purpose of uniting upon terms by which all difficulties between nations may be peaceably adjusted, and thereby hasten the day when nations shall learn war no more.

Resolved, That we deplore the opinion of Attorney-General Griggs by which the soldier is exposed to the ravages of the rum traffic. We therefore pray President McKinley, as Commander-in-Chief of the army, that he exercise that power in accordance with the clear letter and spirit of the law, and the enlightened sentiment of the Christian people to abolish the canteen.

Resolved, by the visiting delegates to this Assembly, that we tender our heartfelt thanks to the Friends of Thorntown for the use of their meeting house during the sessions of this Assembly. Also to the members of Thorntown, Sugar Plain, and Walnut Grove Meetings, and other good people of Thorntown, for their hospitality shown in taking us into their homes and kindly administering to our wants, as well as the social and spiritual blessings that have come to us in this way.

Resolved, That our thanks are due to the singers of this place for their efforts in making this Assembly a success.

Resolved, That we most sincerely express our thanks to the Methodists of Thorntown, for the use of their commodious church on this occasion.

The meek, the disinterested, the unselfish, those who think little of themselves and much of others,—who think of the public good, and not of their own, who rejoice in good done, not by themselves, but by others, by those whom they dislike as well as by those whom they love,—these shall gain far more than they lose: they shall "inherit the earth" and its fulness.—Dean Stanley.

SEARCH THOU OUR HEARTS.

Search Thou our hearts, O God, and see
If this our strife be waged for Thee.

Thou gavest in our infancy
The precious gift of liberty.

And is it, then, through Thy commands
We rend the gift from other hands?

Lord God of Battles once wast Thou—
Declare Thyself unto us now!

For since One came, the Prince of Peace,
Hast Thou not bidden war to cease?

Yet, peradventure, now, as then,
Through darkling paths Thou leadest men.

From present ills of war and blood,
Permittest them to work out good.

An hundred years Thy face hath shed
Its light upon the paths we tread.

And all we did was in Thy name,
And Thou hast given us power and fame.

No stronger nation walks Thine earth
Than ours, the one of latest birth.

Since Thou hast given such bounteous store,
What need, O Lord, have we of more?

Then woe to us if we profane
Thy name to cloak our lust of gain!

No sin more hateful, Lord, may be
Than that which cursed the Pharisee.

And Thou, howe'er we cloak intent,
Wilt judge us by the thing we meant.

Search Thou our hearts, O God, and see
If this our strife be waged for Thee.

ANNE VIRGINIA CULBERTSON.

Died.

COBOURN.—William F. Cobourn, son of Nathan (deceased) and Harriet Cobourn, died Fifth month 12th, 1899, aged thirty-one years. He was a member of Friends at Salem, Ohio.

ENLOW.—Thomas Enlow, son of James and Ruth Enlow, was born Fifth month 12th, 1837, died Fifth month 20th, 1899. He was a member of West Branch Monthly Meeting of Friends, Iowa. His close was a very peaceful one. Funeral services at the home.

FLAGLER.—Barnet B. Flagler, of Rochester, aged 73 years, died suddenly in Monroe Avenue M. E. Church, of that city, Sixth month 2d, 1899. About the middle of the services of the evening prayer meeting he offered prayer and gave testimony to a precious sense of the Lord's presence with him in a particular manner during the past few days, and asked for a favorite hymn, "Abiding and Confiding," which not being in the books used, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms" was sung, and he immediately expired. He was a life-long Friend, and greatly loved its principles, but enjoyed the society and fellowship of earnest Christians of all denominations.

The funeral services were held in Friends' meeting house in Macedon Center, the place of his former residence.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

HAM.—F. Findlay Ham, at his home in Wilmington, Clinton Co., Ohio, March 16th, 1899. He was the son of Wm. and Martha Burgess Ham. He was born in Harveysburg, Warren Co., Ohio, February 9th, 1840. Although of Quaker ancestry, he was not a birthright member of the church, but joined Friends at Ogden about 1879, being a faithful attendant at meeting, and cheerfully bearing his part of the burdens of the church. In the last few weeks of his life he talked freely of his prospects, expressing a full assurance of having received Divine forgiveness. He was a member of Wilmington Yearly Meeting.

HAMMOND.—Viola Hammond, daughter of T. E. and Alice Haworth, and wife of R. S. Hammond, died at her home in Belle Plaine, Kansas, Third month 23d, 1899 aged 37 years. She was converted in the winter of 1888. Her life since her conversion has been a consistent walk, and an unwavering trust in Him who gave his life for her.

In the midst of afflictions, trials, and disappointments, she seemed to be exalted into the higher realm of humility and faith. Her life, as manifested in the social circle, in the church, and especially in the home, exemplified in a very marked degree what divine grace can do for a ransomed soul.

HARTSHORN.—John D. Hartshorn, an overseer in Cincinnati Monthly Meeting, peacefully fell asleep in his 76th year, Third month 10th, an earnest Christian, universally beloved.

HUNTINGTON.—Died at his home in Pleasant Valley, Amesbury, Mass., Fourth month 11th, 1899, Moses Huntington, a beloved minister and member of Amesbury Monthly Meeting, aged 89 years, 11 months and 5 days. A lifelong member of the Society of Friends, he was dearly attached to its principles and earnest in his advocacy of them. He was a great favorite with the young people and was warmly interested in their welfare, earnestly desiring their establishment in Christ Jesus. Shortly before his death he remarked: "There is one whom we can perfectly trust—the Lord our Master." During his long life he seldom missed a meeting, either on First-day or in the middle of the week, until the infirmities of age forced him occasionally in inclement weather to remain at home.

JONES.—Lydia Bonine Jones, daughter of Isaac and Sarah Bonine, wife of Nathan Jones, fell asleep in Jesus Fourth month 23d, 1899, aged 71 years, 10 months and 9 days. Early in life she felt the impression of the Spirit calling to a higher life, but did not confess the Saviour until in mature life, since which time she lived a faithful, consistent Christian. She was a lifelong Friend, and for twenty-six years served her meeting as elder, besides filling most of the important offices of the church. During her last sickness, which lasted about one year, there was a marked deepening in her spiritual life. She organized, twenty years ago, a Women's Christian Temperance Union Society here, and has labored with untiring zeal for the cause of temperance until her departure. Language fails to express the loss to her family, church and community, but we bow before the All Wise, believing He doeth all things well. She was a member of Birch Lake Monthly Meeting, Michigan.

KIRK.—Robert Kirk, a member of Cincinnati Monthly Meeting, died at his home in Hartwell, near that city, Fifth month 11th, leaving a wife and one daughter.

LINDLEY.—Mary Lindley, truly called "Grandmother" by very many, peacefully ended her long earthly sojourn at Whittier, Cal., on the 28th of Fourth month, 1899, aged nearly 97 years. She was born a Friend in North Carolina on the 6th of Seventh month, 1802, soon became a Christian, and continued faithful through her life, fraught as it was with wonderful trials and blessings. In 1819 she was married to David Lindley in North Carolina. In 1832, they, with six children, moved West, sojourned one winter in Ohio, then settled near Monrovia, Ind., where their chief life work was done. They followed some of their children to New Providence, Iowa, in 1865. Here, in 1877, after nearly sixty years of wedded life, the husband and father passed away, leaving her to twenty-two years of widowhood. In 1887 she came with some of her children to California, where the sunset of her life occurred. She was the mother of twelve children, nine of whom lived to have families, but of whom only four survive their mother. There are 50 living grandchildren, 71 great-grandchildren and 10 great-great-grandchildren. Total living posterity, 135. A strong character has left her impress on the world and in the church. She was an elder from the age of twenty-six until released on account of age. Her chief concern for many years was that all her children should be real Christians and meet her in heaven. She was lame for about twenty years, by a fall on the ice in Iowa, and blind for the last three years. In all her affliction by day and night, her song was praise. She delighted to be taken to meeting as long as it was practicable to do so. Her mind remained sound and vigorous and her memory was remarkable. Recent events were as fresh as those of childhood. Truly a "Mother in Israel" has left us.

MENDENHALL.—Mary E. Mendenhall, daughter of Nathan and Lydia Jones, departed this life Sixth month 2d, 1899, aged 51 years and 6 months. She was married to Wm. Mendenhall Ninth month 20th, 1876, who survives her. She has been a consistent member of the Society of Friends for a number of years. Though for a long time greatly afflicted, we believe her suffering has worked for her a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

SHECKEL.—Caroline S., wife of James Sheckel, at her home in Greenfield, Indiana, Sixth month 7th, 1899. The deceased was more than seventy years old, and had been for some years a member of Westland Monthly Meeting. She leaves an aged husband and five grown sons and daughters to mourn her loss.

TRUEBLOOD.—Died on the morning of Sixth month 15th, 1899, after a long and painful illness, at a medical institution in Indianapolis, Minnie A. Trueblood, daughter of James and Martha Trueblood., in the 57th year of her age. For several years past she has been a professed Christian and has manifested a practical interest in the work of the church. The cause of missions, the promotion of the principles of peace and arbitration, the prohibition of the liquor traffic, the elevation and development of woman, the rights of the Indian and the negro, and the prevention of cruelty, through the efforts of the Humane Society, enlisted her sympathetic help so far as lay in her power.

For many years a saleswoman, and finally the senior member of a mercantile firm, she was in a position to be an inspiring force along many lines. Public spirited, hospitable and beneficent, many were the hearts she cheered, the needy that she helped, and the struggling, both of men and women, who were stimulated by her encouragement to a larger success.

She was a member of Kokomo Monthly Meeting, Indiana. Deeply interested in the welfare and enterprises of her ancestral church, she took its periodicals and gave intelligent thought to the topics presented, especially through the columns of THE AMERICAN FRIEND, of which she was a diligent and very appreciative reader so long as her strength permitted.

Her career has been an exceptional one, and her death has left a large vacancy in the wide circle of her acquaintance.

WILLIAMS.—Summer G. Williams, at his late home in Lewiston, Maine, on the 15th of Fifth month, aged 53 years and 6 months.

News and Events.

Senator Waldeck-Rousseau has succeeded in forming a new cabinet. It is composed of heterogeneous political material, but is acknowledged generally to be the best that could be devised. There is urgent need at this crucial period in France's career to have a body of ministers who can unite on the leading questions of the day, and this end has apparently been gained most satisfactorily in the new cabinet. The one feature in the construction of the cabinet is the spirit of self-negation shown and the desire of each member to subordinate individual preferences to the stability of the Republic. As an instance of sacrifice of personal advantage, the premier himself, Waldeck-Rousseau, has given up an income of $100,000 as a lawyer to take the portfolio. It is a striking instance of the peculiar complexion of the cabinet that the Minister of War, Marquis de Gallifet, should be noted for his monarchical sympathies. He is, however, an out and out defender of Picquart, and in fact the raison d'être of the entire cabinet is the fact that all the members are Dreyfusites. This is the question above all others in France to-day, and it furnishes the keynote to nearly every political movement which transpires. The Parisian newspapers mostly support the government. Dreyfus, at this writing, is anxiously awaited at Brest, where the Sfax is expected to land. From Brest he will be transferred to Rennes, where the new trial is to be held.

The Samoan issue has been settled for the present. Malietoa Tanu has been recognized by the Commissioners of the three Powers as king, and thus the decision of Chief Justice Chambers in the matter of the kingship has been vindicated. After being confirmed as king, Malietoa abdicated in favor of the Commissioners, who appointed a Provisional Government, consisting of the Consuls of the three Powers, empowering a majority to act in all cases where unanimity is not required by the Berlin treaty. Chief Justice Chambers continues to hold office, and the various municipal officials are confirmed. The report of the Commissioners recommends the abolition of the kingship and the Presidency of Apia, and the appointment of a Governor with a Legislative Council, consisting of three nominees of the interested Powers, assisted by a native House. Not the least important object attained by the Commissioners was the surrender of about 1,850 rifles from the Mataafa party, and 2,000 from the Royalists. This will go far towards maintaining peace between the discordant native factions.

General Leonard Wood, who has recently arrived in this country for a short visit, reports a very gratifying condition of affairs in Santiago province, of which he is military governor. He states that prior to his departure he made a tour of all the towns of any size in the province, and did not receive one application for assistance. Of the few agitators who want to control, and whose ambitions have not been gratified, he says that none amounts to anything. Thus far 3,000 Cuban troops have been paid, and the work now appears to be moving along quite smoothly. General Maximo Gomez is engaged in preparing new lists of the soldiers to replace the old ones, which appear to have been padded to an alarming extent. A few cases of yellow fever have broken out in Santiago, but with the remarkable improvement in sanitary conditions effected by General Wood it is safe to say that the disease will soon be checked.

Little material progress can yet be recorded in the sessions of the Peace Conference, though it is pleasant to notice the optimistic attitude of many public men towards the outcome of the meetings. There is a diversity of opinion as to the results which will accrue, but the opinion is gaining ground in many quarters that something tangible in the way of promoting the world's peace will actually be brought about. It is reported that Emperor William will withdraw his objection to the arbitration tribunal, providing the obligatory clause is removed. There is much opposition to accepting the proposal of the United States to exempt private property from capture on the high seas in time of war. The strongest weapon of war of several nations would be their opportunity to destroy the commerce of the enemy, and these—France particularly—naturally fail to come in line with the suggestion. It therefore appears doomed to failure. Russia is pushing her proposal of checking the increase of armaments.

The strike of the street car employees in Cleveland, Ohio, has been adjusted, and cars are now running on all lines. The company virtually won the fight, as it refused to discharge the non-union men. There is some dissatisfaction on the part of the reinstated union motormen and conductors that non-union employees should be retained, but they are generally glad to get back to work, and no active demonstration of disapproval in made, except that in a few instances passengers have been compelled by a small squad of sympathizers to leave cars manned by non-union men and await one run by union employees.

The chief event of interest in the Philippines last week was the capture by General Wheaton of Perez das Marinas. This capture was attended with a comparatively small loss in killed and wounded, though for a time the attack on our troops was more than usually threatening. President McKinley has great confidence in General Otis, and while he holds himself in readiness to supply as many additional troops as may be needed, he does not intend to act until he is informed by General Otis that there is a definite need of a larger force to suppress the rebellion.

THE TRUE GENTLEMAN.

A writer in the "North American Review" recalls Ward McAllister's definition of a gentleman. "My understanding of a gentleman," said Mr. McAllister, "has always been that he is a person free from arrogance and anything like self-assertion; he has consideration for the feelings of others; is so satisfied in his own position that he is always unpretentious, feeling he could do no ungentlemanly act; as courteous and kind in manner to his inferiors as to his equals."

"Beside this definition," continues the writer, "it is well to place that given by Emerson: 'The gentleman is a man of truth, lord of his own actions, and expressing that lordship in his behavior, not in any manner dependent and servile, either on persons or opinions or possessions. Beyond this fact, of truth and real force, the word denotes good nature or benevolence, manhood first, and then gentleness.'"

A KING'S PLAYTHINGS.

To judge from his sub-titles, "Victorious Lion of the Tribe of Judah, King of the Kings of Ethiopia, Lieutenant of God," Menelik II. should be "every inch a king;" but as a matter of fact, there are several inches of child, and naughty child at that, under the black, polished skin of this monarch of Abyssinia.

The child in Menelik was once easy to amuse. Very little sufficed to entertain him, and Vicomte de Poncins relates in the "Nineteenth Century" that the first sugar-loaf which was presented to him threw him into ecstasies of pleasure, and that he and his consort were discovered with that blessed product of civilization between them, licking it vigorously.

But those good times are past. Europeans have brought Menelik so many toys that he has become critical. When a new traveler is announced he now awaits with impatience the customary present, trying to find out beforehand whether it is to be something new, in which case the audience is speedily granted.

He is much interested in all machinery,

THE AMERICAN FRIEND, publishes in its columns, as frequently as it can find space for the purpose, the location and time of holding Friends' Meetings in the large cities throughout America. Many of our readers have expressed their satisfaction with it. If in visiting the different cities Friends could also find a comfortable home in some Friends family it would frequently be very much appreciated. Our readers who could accommodate such transient boarders would find it of value to keep an advertisement in our department of "Subscribers' Wants." Such a notice would cost only 25c. for each insertion of 5 lines.

GRAVY- DO NOT SERVE IT ON THE DINNER-TABLE BEFORE YOU HAVE ADDED A TABLE-SPOONFUL OF
LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE
The Original and Genuine Worcestershire.
LEA & PERRINS' IS THE FAVORITE TABLE SAUCE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.-SEE SIGNATURE ON WRAPPER.
JOHN DUNCAN'S SONS, AGTS., NEW YORK.

which, including matches, he invariably takes to pieces. Sometimes he deigns to be present at the unpacking of the traveler's boxes, and to appropriate any little object that pleases him. Such informal examinations please him vastly.

"If I had not been a king," he remarks at times, "I should like to have been a custom-house officer."

Vicomte de Poncins pleased Menelik so much with a pair of hastily darned socks that he insisted on unsocking, for his own benefit, a party of missionaries who passed through Adis Abeba shortly afterward;

but nowadays he must receive more costly gifts, and like Oliver Twist, he asks for more.

Sometimes his majesty, tiring of his presents, gives them away, and a silver soup tureen, part of the gift of a European sovereign, has been seen on the head of one of his armed warriors.

Secretary Alger has declared himself a candidate in the Senatorial contest in the State of Michigan. He has Governor Pingree's support.

The Bible Student and Friends' Evangelist.

A sixteen-page Monthly, edited and published by the Cleveland Bible Training School, has the following distinct departments:

Consecutive Bible Study, or helps to understand and appropriate the teaching of successive books of the Bible.

Topical Bible Study, or helps to a clear knowledge of Bible doctrines.

The Higher Life, or helps to a knowledge and experience of holiness, the baptism with the Holy Spirit, the victory of faith, the joyful, fruitful service of God.

The Mission Field, or helps to appreciate and carry out the Great Commission.

The Bible Training School, which keeps readers somewhat in touch with the spirit and work of this young institution, through which so many have received and are receiving blessed spiritual helps as workers for Christ.

The Miscellaneous Department, which has helpful articles on a variety of religious subjects, some of them of great value.

Single subscription, per year, in advance, 50 cents.

Any one sending four names, beside his own, and $2.00 in money, will receive the paper for one year free. Address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
 257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, first-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McLEE & CO.,
 1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,
 257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.
OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.
Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Homelike and attractive. Open throughout the year.

MARY T. HAINES.
N. R. HAINES.
Late of Chalfonte

The Archdale,

136 South Maryland Avenue,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful room; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends.

MARY J. BUNDY

PRESTON'S SUNNYSIDE

Wernersville, Pa.

The highest resort on the Mountain. Magnificent scenery; pure water; excellent table Booklet.

JAMES H. PRESTON.

The Seashore Lakes and Mountains

Of Eastern and Northern

NEW ENGLAND, CANADA,
and the Maritime Provinces

Are reached by the

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD.

SUMMER TOUR BOOK

Gives list of 1000 hotels, routes, rates, maps, etc.; will be mailed upon request. Address Passenger Department, B. & M. R. R., Boston.

D. J. FLANDERS,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agt.

UNCLE SAM'S HOT BATHS.

The Hot Springs of Arkansas, via Southern Railway.

Will eradicate from your system the lingering effects of grip and other ailments caused by the severe winter, and malaria, rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, stomach, kidney, liver and nervous disorders, paralysis, blood and skin diseases, and chronic and functional derangements. The mountain climate of Hot Springs is cool and delightful in summer. 100 Hotels open the year around.

For illustrated literature, containing all information, address C. F. Cooley, Manager Business Men's League, Hot Springs, Ark.

For reduced excursion tickets and particulars of the trip, address W. A. Turk, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Southern Railway, Washington, D. C., or Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WEBSTER'S

Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice of U. S. Supreme Court, says: "I commend it to all as the one great standard authority."

It excels in the ease with which the eye finds the word sought; in accuracy of definition; in effective methods of indicating pronunciation; in terse and comprehensive statements of facts and in practical use as a working dictionary.

Specimen pages, etc., sent on application.

G. & C. Merriam Co., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB'S TOURS.

ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

Parties will leave Philadelphia in June, July, August, September and October, for

36 SUMMER TOURS

of Seven to Twenty Days to the Principal Resorts of New England, Canada, and New York, including:—Saratoga, Lakes George and Champlain and Ausable Chasm.

The White, Green and Adirondack Mountains.

Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, and the Saguenay. Poland Spring, Moosehead Lake, Sorento and Mt. Desert.

The Maritime Provinces.

Great Lake Tours.

July 11. Tour through Europe.

July 7 and 18. Alaska and Yellowstone Park.

July 18 Yellowstone Park, Utah and Colorado.

August 8 and 22. Hawaii, Japan, China and Around the World.

July 7 and 18, and September 1. Yellowstone National Park.

September 1. Yellowstone Park, the Pacific Northwest and California.

Railroad and Steamship Tickets to all points.

Send for descriptive book, mentioning tour desired.

RAYMOND & WHITCOMB,
1005 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

CHAUTAUQUA.

Low-Rate Excursion via Pennsylvania Railroad.

On July 7 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will run a special excursion from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Reading, Altoona, Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre, Sunbury, and Williamsport, and principal intermediate stations, and stations on the Delaware Division, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, and on the Cumberland Valley Railroads to Chautauqua, N. Y. Special train will start from Harrisburg at 11.35 a.m. Connecting trains will leave Philadelphia 8.40 a.m., Washington 7.55 a.m., Baltimore 8.55 a.m., Altoona 7.15 a.m., Wilkesbarre 7.30 a.m., Lock Haven 11.25 a.m. Round trip tickets, good to return on regular trains not later than August 5, will be sold at rate of $10.00 from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, and at proportionate rates from other stations.

Passengers from Atlantic City, Bridgeton, Vineland, Clayton, N. J., and stations on the Delaware Division, will use trains to Philadelphia on day preceding date of excursion.

For specific rates and time of connecting trains apply to nearest ticket agent.

PENNSYLVANIA CHAUTAUQUA.

Reduced Rates to Mt. Gretna via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the Pennsylvania Chautauqua, to be held at Mt. Gretna, Pa., July 4 to August 10, 1899, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell special excursion tickets to Mt. Gretna from New York, Washington, Baltimore, Frederick, Md., Canandaigua, and intermediate points, including all stations on its line in the State of Pennsylvania.

Tickets will be sold June 25 to August 10, inclusive, and will be good to return until August 15, inclusive.

Inauguration Pullman Library Observation Cars on the Washington Southwestern Limited, Trains Nos. 37 and 38—via Southern Railway.

Commencing June 1st, Pullman Library Observation cars will be operated on SOUTHERN RAILWAY'S WASHINGTON and SOUTHWESTERN LIMITED, trains No. 37 and 38, between New York, Philadelphia and Atlanta, Ga.

These trains also carry through Pullman drawing room sleeping cars between New York, Philadelphia, and Atlanta, Ga., New Orleans, La., Birmingham, Ala., Memphis, Chattanooga, and Nashville, Tenn. Dining cars serve all meals on these trains.

The addition of Pullman Library Observation Cars to these luxurious trains affords irreplaceable service between the East and the principal points South and Southwest via the Southern Railway.

The Washington and Southwestern Limited leaves Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, at 6.55 p.m., daily.

For tickets, sleeping car reservations, and any further information, address Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 628 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WONDERLAND '99.

The Northern Pacific Railway has issued a very handsomely designed book descriptive of the region tributary to their lines. It is strikingly rich in illustrations, and is an unusually valuable guide to the grandest and most interesting region of the United States. The book has aptly been named "Wonderland" from the country which it depicts. It will be sent to any address upon receipt of six cents in stamps or otherwise. Address, Chas. Fee, G. P. A., St. Paul, Minn.

The British War Office has requested an appropriation of $20,000,000 to be expended on "defensive works, barracks and rifle ranges, at home and abroad."

YET AM I NOT FOR PITY.

For me there are no cities, no proud halls,
No storied paintings, nor the chiselled snow

Of statues; never have I seen the glow
Of sunset die upon the deathless walls
Of the pure Parthenon; no soft light falls
For me in dim cathedrals, where the
low,

Still seas of supplication ebb and flow;
No dream of Rome my longing soul enthralls.

But, oh, to gaze in a long-tranced delight
On Venice rising from the purple sea!

Oh, but to feel one golden evening pale
On that famed island from whose lonely heights

Dark Sappho sank in burning ecstasy!

But once—but once—to hear the nightingale!

Yet am I not for pity. This blue sea

Burns with the opal's deep and splendid fires

At sunset; these tall fires are classic spires

Of chaste design and marvellous symmetry
That lift to burnished skies. Let pity be
For him who never felt the mighty lyres
Of Nature shake him through with great desires.

These pearl-topped mountains shining silently,—

They are God's sphinxes and God's pyramids;

These dim-aisled forests his cathedrals, where

The pale nun, Silence, tiptoes, velvetshod,

And Prayer kneels with tireless, parted
lids;

And through the incense of this holy air,
Trembling, I have come face to face with God.

—Ella Higginson.

PROMISED HE WOULDN'T.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, in his book,
"James Russell Lowell and His Friends," tells a story which illustrates the seriousness of the offence of writing poetry, in the opinion of some practical people.

An advertisement in the columns of "Subscribers Wants," costing only 25c., recently brought in 13 good replies at once.

INDEX

To "The American Friend."

Copies of the index to "The American Friend" for 1898 may be had by addressing
"The American Friend," 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia. They will be sent promptly upon request.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES

You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently
but firmly. Pond's Extract cures
Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis,
Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

During the last year of Lowell's course at Harvard, his father, Doctor Lowell, spent most of his time in Rome. Young Lowell was, in the summer of his graduation, "rusticated," or sent off to Concord in a sort of studious banishment, under a preceptor, as a punishment for persistently failing to attend morning prayers at the chapel. This fact caused great consternation among his classmates, for he had been selected as class poet, and the rustication forbade his presence in Cambridge until commencement week.

About this time a certain Cambridge citizen went abroad, and visited Rome, where he called on Doctor Lowell, and gave him all the Cambridge news. He went on thus with some of the items:

"The parts for commencement have been assigned. Rufus Ellis is the first scholar, and is to have the oration."

Doctor Lowell expressed interest.

"Your son James has been rusticated, and will not return to college until commencement week."

The father expressed no particular interest in this sad news. It evidently gave him no distress.

"But the class have chosen him their class poet."

"Oh dear!" Doctor Lowell broke out, despairingly. "James promised me he would quit writing poetry and go to work!"

In time of disheartenment give double thanks. First, that the ground of our confidence is out of reach. "Our life is hid with Christ in God." Next, that our Elder Brother is never out of reach. We cannot touch our confidence to destroy it. We cannot lose or miss our Helper and Defense.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE
OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in
enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street,
near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social,
moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men
and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of
financial aid, and contributions sent to the treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Admission Motive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office,
northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where
all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,

REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,

REV. CYRUS D. FOSBERG, D.D., LL.D.

RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.

REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.

REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.

REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,

Chairman Executive Committee.

CHARLES H. BOND,

General Secretary.

GOOD REASONS FOR USING
COMPOUND OXYGEN.

It has been in use for more than twenty five years. It is well tried. Thousands have testified to its wonderful curative powers.
Hundreds of Physicians have used it in their practice, and recommend its use. It can be used at home and without interfering with business or employment. It can not harm the most delicate patient. Treatment also includes consultation. For the cure of chronic diseases. Send for book of 200
pages, free.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,

1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.
San Francisco, Ca. Toronto, Canada

JOTTINGS.

On account of its religious significance, the Persian delegate to the Peace Conference, General Mirza Riza-Khan, has moved to change the red cross emblem to a white flag, with a red sun.

The Court of Dauphin County, in Pennsylvania, where Camp Meade is located, has rendered a decision that the canteen is subject to State taxation and regulation. As a result of the decision the Government proposes to abandon the camp, in order to escape the county's control of the liquor sold in its canteens.

Rear Admiral John C. Watson arrived at Manila on the 20th.

The records of the port of Havana show that for the five months ending with May the revenue receipts exceeded those of two years under Spanish rule.

Admiral Dewey arrived at Ceylon, India, on the 22d, on his voyage to the United States. He intended to remain there for about one week.

The Khalifa is reported to be confined in a narrow valley in Egypt by the Tagallas, a body of tribesmen friendly to the English. It is not thought, however, that the Khalifa will be captured.

The reunion of the Rough Riders at Las Vegas, New Mexico, has been turned into an ovation for Governor Roosevelt.

President McKinley has been taking a much-needed rest in New England. He attended, last week, the commencement exercises of Smith and Mount Holyoke Colleges. The Degree of Doctor of Civil Laws was conferred upon him by the latter.

Now that a reciprocity treaty has been concluded with the Barbadoes, there is a prospect that similar treaties will be made with other West Indian islands. These islands have an annual commerce of $150,000,000.

Members of the young Turkey party who gathered at The Hague for the purpose of influencing the Commissioners to take some action regarding the condition of the Armenians, have been prevailed upon to leave the city. The Turkish delegation

Swift's

Silver Leaf Lard, Premium Hams, Premium Breakfast Bacon, Beef Extract, Jersey Butterine, and Cotosuet, are made in purity, prepared in mechanical cleanliness in open-to-public and sanitary workrooms, all under U. S. Government inspection, and are foods you are sure are pure. Sold everywhere.

Swift and Company, Chicago

took offence at their presence and threatened to withdraw from the Conference if the Government of Holland continued to tolerate their presence.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, of the Belgica Antarctic expedition, arrived in New York on the 23d. Considerable information was gained by the expedition regarding this region, which remains, however, for the most part unexplored and unknown.

The controversy as to whether Schley or Sampson should have the honor of the Santiago naval victory seems likely to result in a court of inquiry or a court-martial.

Dr. McQueston, a member of General Otis' staff in the Philippines, who has just returned to this country, claims that it will require 100,000 to 150,000 men to subdue and hold the islands against the insurrectionists.

The Trans-Caspian region of Asiatic Russia is threatened with famine, owing to the prolonged drought and a plague of locusts.

Rudyard Kipling arrived in Liverpool on the 22d on the steamer Teutonic. As usual, he refused to be interviewed.

The Prudential

Endowment Policies . .

are a very attractive form of Life Insurance. Premiums payable only during the period selected.

Example.

At age 35, nearest birthday, you pay The Prudential $485.80 a year for 20 years. You receive an Endowment Policy for $10,000. At the end of the term you are paid $10,000 in cash and a liberal dividend. You get back considerably more than you have paid, and your life has been insured for 20 years. If you should die before the expiration of the period selected, the full amount of the policy would be payable. In what better way can you invest your money?

Pro rata from $500 to $50,000.

Write for booklet on Endowment Insurance.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.
Home Office: NEWARK, N. J.

Balliol, the most exclusive of Oxford colleges, has among its undergraduates a married Lancashire mill hand, 23 years of age, who worked his way into the university by studying after factory hours, with the help of free libraries and university extension lectures. He passed his Greek examination eighteen months after learning the alphabet, and within six weeks after admission to college won the Brackenbury history scholarship, worth $400 a year for four years. He is trying for an honor degree in history.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

SHORT PARAGRAPHS.

An order for sixty locomotives has recently been sent from China to the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia.

In England a society known as the "Scapa" is doing yeoman service in checking the disfiguration of scenery with advertisements.

The United States is the largest producer of petroleum of any country on the globe, over 2,500,000,000 gallons of it being produced last year. Russia is the next largest producer, with nearly the same amount.

It is announced that some of the Tammany magnates are negotiating for the purchase of the Lakes of Killarney in Ireland. Just what end is to be served by such a coup is not stated. It is to be hoped, however, that Tammany politics are not to despoil the beauty of this world renowned spot.

The manufacture of the tinder box and flint is still carried on in the village of Brandon, on the borders of Norfolk and Suffolk. A large demand for the primitive form of lighting is created by hot, damp climates, such as that of Africa, where matches cannot possibly be kept.

The children of the late Rutherford B. Hayes, ex-President of the United States, have offered their old home, known as Spiegel Grove, near Fremont, O., to the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, on condition that a permanent fund of twenty-five thousand dollars be raised, the income thereof to be used for the proper care and preservation of the buildings and the historical treasures now contained therein.

A truly Christian spirit was displayed by the wife of Captain Dreyfus when she said some time since: "I shall forgive everyone when my husband is liberated. Enough have suffered already in this terrible business. It has left its mark on so many hearts, so many homes, that here shall be oblivion so far as I am concerned." This feeling is in thorough keeping with the undaunted heroism and faithfulness which she has displayed during the awful period of martyrdom which her husband has undergone.

Referring to the recent prize-fight in New York, designated by the authorities a boxing contest for the purpose of bringing it within the pale of the law, the "Springfield Republican" has this to say: "These elegant affairs of the knuckles happen quite frequently in the center of American civilization. A little cock-fighting in Cuba or Porto Rico is now quite sternly forbidden; it is so immoral and degrading, and inconsistent with America's Christian mission. It's a question whether New York doesn't need military rule as much as Cuba. The game cocks of the tropics are quite as elevating as the human roosters of the more northern clime."

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force,

$122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE
AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

Dr. Pierson's article on "Ramabai and the Women of India," in the July number of "The Missionary Review of the World," is one of thrilling interest and deserves a prominent place among the Miracles of Missions. It is profusely and uniquely illustrated from original photographs, and contains a great deal of information not contained elsewhere. Dr. Pierson gives an excellent idea of the deplorable condition of Hindu women—especially widows—tells the romantic story of Ramabai's life, and describes the work which she has done and is doing in behalf of these unfortunate child-widows.

SCHOOL FOR BACKWARD CHILDREN.

Under the auspices of the Civic Club of Philadelphia a school for backward children will be established during the Seventh and Eighth months in the Hollingsworth School, at Fifteenth and Locust Streets. Pupils will apply for admission on the 30th inst, from 3 to 5 p.m., and on the day following from 10 to 11 a.m. The school will be open on the 5th of Seventh month. Manual work and physical culture will be special features in the school. Manual work will include woodwork, wood carving, drawing, painting and clay modeling. Physical culture will be conducted under the Swedish system. Physicians will be at the school on the 30th of this month and the 1st of next month to examine children. Dr. Burr, Dr. McCarthy and Dr. Witmer are the physicians. The teachers and superintendents of the work will also be present. This effort to reach an unfortunate class of children is an excellent one, and thus far the only other city to branch out in such work is Boston, where the experiment has proved successful.

What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer

By DR. RICHARD H. THOMAS

An Address delivered before the Annual Meeting of Friends' First-day School Association, held at Twelfth Street Meeting House, Philadelphia, during the Session of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, Fourth month 18, 1899.

Price, 5 cents, postage paid.

JOHN C. WINSTON & CO.,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Autumn term begins September 19th, 1899. For catalogue address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

MARTIN ACADEMY.

Kennett Square, Pennsylvania.

Under care of Friends' Primary, Intermediate and Academic Departments. Thorough work, liberal course, expenses low. For catalogue, address,
EDGAR STINSON, M.Sc., Principal.

WHY THE LARGEST?

Forty-five years of constant and healthful progress has put the

New England Conservatory OF MUSIC

of Boston, Mass., at the top (both in size and standing) of musical institutions in America. Comprehensive in plan, moderate in price, thorough in practice and famous for results.

GEO. W. CHADWICK, Musical Director.
FRANK W. HALE, General Manager. Send for an illustrated catalogue.

MASON'S CREAM OF OLIVES OINTMENT
HOUSEHOLD	CURES	CATARRH	ASTHMA
	"	MUMPS	CROUP
	"	FIRE & SUN BURN	CHAFING
	"	BUNIONS & TIRED FEET
	"	CHAPPED FACE	LIPS & HANDS
	"	SAFE REMEDY FOR PILES
BICYCLERS	ALL DRUGGISTS OR MAILED FOR 25¢
	H.T. MASON CHEMICAL CO. 515 ARCH ST. PHILA. PA.
SAFE · SPEEDY · SURE

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Imported Trafalgar Squares

A high grade, slightly sweetened, artistic biscuit baked expressly for us in London.

1 lb. Box 20c.

Full Assortment "Pic-Nic" Specialties

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St., and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philad.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.

Window Shades Made to Order.

902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

WILLIAM S. YARNALL,
Manufacturing Optician,

118 SOUTH 15TH STREET, PHILA.
4TH DOOR BELOW CHESTNUT ST.

CORNS and ACORNS.

People who have Corns often wish they were Acorns, but if they will use
A-Corn Salve their Corns will quickly disappear without pain.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

The Easiest Writing Pen Made NOTHING LIKE IT. ESTERBROOK'S POSTAL No. 477

Turned
up
Point.

Ask your Stationer.

One Hundred and Fifty other Styles.

The ESTERBROOK STEEL PEN CO.
Works, Camden, N. J. 26 John St., N. Y.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

THE MAKER OF

A WILL can arrange with

The Union ...Trust Co.

in advance as to its rate of charges for its services as

EXECUTOR.

He will then know exactly what the settlement of his estate will cost, and if he chooses can make this a condition in his will.
Information on this subject will be gladly given by letter or on consultation.

OFFICES

715, 717, 719 Chestnut St.
Philadelphia, Penna.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are invited to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

Enameline

when applied, is most
BRILLIANT, and that is the
effect you want when using a stove polish. When an old stove is polished it should look as bright as new—that
is the result when you use
Enameline. It is put up in paste, cake or liquid form.
Remember that every package is guaranteed.

J. L. PRESCOTT & CO., New York

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 illustrations, 5 cts.

A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illus-
trations, 2 cts.

The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.

Grand Canon of Arizona, 32 pp., 15 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.

Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illustrations, 2 cts.

Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A., T. & S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION.

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.

USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT. 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The American Friend

Vol. VI

SEVENTH MONTH 6, 1899

No. 27

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
POEM—Sometime	627
M. R. Smith.
EDITORIALS.—Christianity and Reform Work.—The Work at Yearly Meet- ing.—The Educational Conference at Providence-	627-629
Church Notes	630
How to Keep Up Good Heart	630
Wayland Hoyt.
An Ancient Epistle	632
Johannesburg	632
Oscar Roberts.
Edwin Markham	633
James M. Price.
POEM.—The Divine Order	634
POEM.—The Man With the Hoe	635
Edwin Markham.
Friends' Bible Institute of Indiana and Western Yearly Meeting	635
Salt and Its Manufacture	636
M. Z. Kirk.
THE INTERNATIONAL LESSON	639
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	640
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	641
MARRIAGES.	642
DEATHS	642
NEWS AND EVENTS	642

TOLERANCE.

Be more afraid of the littleness than of the largeness of life. Seek with study and with prayer for the most clear and confident convictions; and when you have won them, hold them so largely and vitally that they shall be to you, not the walls which separate you from your brethren who have other convictions than yours, but the medium through which you enter into understanding of and sympathy with them, as the ocean, which once was the barrier between the nations, is now the highway for their never-resting ships, and makes the whole world one.

This is true tolerance. Into a deeper and deeper abundance of that tolerance may our Master lead all of us whom He has called to be His ministers!

—PHILLIPS BROOKS.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❁ ❁ ❁ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa*Friends seeking positions or wishing to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*

CAPITAL, $1,000,000

SURPLUS, $2,000,000

Girard Trust Company

CHARTERED 1836

*Acts as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee and Receiver. Financial Agent for Individuals or Corporations. Interest allowed on Individual and Corporation Accounts.Acts as Trustee of Corporation Mortgages. Depository under plans of Reorganization. Registrar and Transfer Agent. Assumes entire charge of Real Estate. Safes to rent in Burglar Proof Vaults.*N. E. Cor. BROAD and CHESTNUT STREETS, PHILADELPHIA
E. B. MORRIS, President.THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.Asa S. Wing,
Phillip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.-FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Washable Summer Skirts

Superior garments, faultless in style, at season's lowest prices:Skirts of Denim, with two white bands, and blue and white Pique
Skirts of fine quality; have been $5.00 and $6.00—now $3.50.Skirts of Colored Pique—in attractive patterns; well made and stylishly draped; these skirts have been $8.50, $10.00 and more—now $5.00 each.Plain Crash Skirts, with wide hem; usual $1.00 value—at 75 cents.

Plain White Pique Skirts—at $1.00.

White Pique Skirts—finished with two rows of insertion—at $1.25Plain White Pique Skirts—at $2.00, $3.00, $4.50 and $6.00.Plain Linen Skirts—of superior make and finish—at $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50.Linen Skirts - neatly trimmed with three white bands—at $2.50 and
$3.50.Duck Polka Dot Skirts, at $1.50 and $2.00; Pique Polka Dot Skirts, at $2.25 and $2.50—all finished with white and blue and black trimmings.Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department CC,"

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED,
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New
England people. MOORE BROS., 311 Nicollet
Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.SPECIMEN COPIES.(A subscriber of THE AMERI-CAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper
sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements.

The American Friend

"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."

"That they all may be one."

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SEVENTH MONTH 6, 1899.

No. 27.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - - Five Cents each.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

SOMETIME.

Sometime when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars forevermore have set,
The thing which our weak judgments here have spurned,
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue;
And we shall see how all God's plans are right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

But not to-day. Then be content, poor heart,
God's plans, like lilies pure and white, unfold,
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And if, through patient toil, we reach the land
Where tired feet, with sandals loose, may rest,
When we shall clearly see and understand,
I think that we will say, "God knew the best."

M. R. SMITH.

CHRISTIANITY AND REFORM WORK.

As there is no conflict between religion and morals, so there is no conflict between philanthropic, or reform work, and Christianity. Some people are afraid of speaking much of mere morality for fear they are dishonoring religion by doing so, and in like manner it is felt by some that there is no place for mere reform work or philanthropy, because it is on too low a plane, our business in this world being to preach Christ and His power to save, and that only.

There can be no doubt in the mind of any Christian that the all-important thing is to present to humanity the Saviour from sin, to induce as many as possible to yield to Him completely, and if they fully experience the cleansing, sanctifying power with which He fills a surrendered life, the questions of morality and of reform are settled so far as those lives are concerned, for in the acceptance of Christ, His standard of life must be adopted, or it is only a half-way step. While it must ever be the supreme thought with the ripe Christian to make it possible for men and women to become "new creatures," there can be no controversy with those who find it their mission to educate, to improve the condition of things by reform movements or by legislation, and who make life purer and easier by removing temptations and the causes of evil.

The half-taught disciples restrained those casting out devils because they did not do it in the name of their Master, but he rebuked them and gave them to understand that it was a victory for Him every time a devil was dethroned, in whatever way it was accomplished. "He that is not against us is for us." We often forget that broad teaching, and feel sometimes that the work must be done in our way or at least by those who have a like faith with us, or it cannot be a service for Christ; but His words are unmistakable, that no work which makes this a better world, which makes it easier for men to live a true life, is to be condemned. A defeat of Satan is a victory for Christ, a removal of the darkness means the incoming of the light; therefore let us not relax any effort to work directly in His name for the salvation of the world through the Saviour, but let us have no word to say against any effort of individual or society for the overthrow of evil, or for the amelioration of suffering and the effects of sin. We can see how inconsistent it is to allow a cause to exist which makes the land abound with drunkards, paupers, criminals, and mentally incapacitated, but while it does exist we must find out how to deal wisely with those whom our imperfect civilization has wrecked. Meanwhile, we ought to devote all our powers, mental and moral, to the conception of some method that will forever remove the cause of the evil. The man or the woman, or the multitude, as the case may be,—who strikes successfully at this root of woe and ruin and crime, will have served God in casting out devils, whether it be done by a political method or a legal act, or by a campaign of education or on a definite religious basis. During the great crusade against slavery the work was interrupted by dissensions between the mere reformers and the churches. The churches would not work with the reformers because they did not put their opposition on a Christian basis, the reformers condemned the churches for not endorsing their methods. When Christ forgives us and makes us His he does not make us less truly, but more truly men than we were before. He does not call us apart from the problems of human improvement and progress. He puts us rather in the forefront of the great battle of Armageddon, and we are under orders "to ride abroad redressing human wrongs," to smite evil and sin and crime, and to aid the right and the truth. We have still living among us two valiant souls whom God has greatly blessed, a Moody and a Parkhurst. One has worked ceaselessly to bring men to Christ for salvation, the other has, with lance in hand, attacked the corruption and crime of his city. Both are knights of God, and they have no conflict with each other. The arrows of both are sharp in the heart of the King's enemies.

THE WORK AT YEARLY MEETING.

THOSE who are acquainted with the work of London Yearly Meeting must have been impressed with the way in which it approaches every subject of vital importance and the profound consideration which such matters receive. Whenever a new movement is under way or some old path is to be left for a new, or some work of broader scope is opening before this body, its strongest and wisest men and women consider the question with the weight which befits statesmen entering upon a new government policy. The greatest diversity of view and of opinion is welcomed; the whole thing is gone over and every phase of it is examined. The speakers give evidence that they have studied the subject and have brought their best wisdom to bear upon it, and in almost no instance has the decision reached, after such consideration, proved to be unwise or mistaken.

Our plan in America has been quite different. We too often let matters drift until they settle themselves or get beyond our control, because we do not like to have questions of vital and profound import freely and openly discussed in Yearly Meeting. We seldom or never have a day devoted to the weighty consideration of some great question of method or to some movement of wider scope, such as frequently occurs in London. We have not learned how to look on every side of a question and to tolerate the frank expression of opinion when it goes counter to the generally accepted view. In fact, we have not seldom blundered into our new lines of work, and have stoutly refused to face altered situations, until we found ourselves moving along aimlessly without any settled plan and without any wise leadership.

The work at our Yearly Meetings is carried through rapidly; one thing crowds upon the heels of another, and it almost never happens that a Yearly Meeting settles down to a profound examination of the issues of the time. We have never heard in a Yearly Meeting a dispassionate and broad-minded and practical consideration of the ministry, of the pastoral work, or of revival work. When we approach the "state of the church" we consider it an opportunity for preaching or exhorting instead of examining the real state and condition of the church, its methods of work, its plan of evangelization, its pastoral system, the character of its meetings for worship. The result is that nothing practical ever results from "the consideration of the state of society." A minute is drawn up which contains many good thoughts, but they bear directly on no one single thing, and they dissipate and are lost as soon as meeting breaks.

We would suggest that the session devoted to the consideration of the state of the church be made the greatest session of the Yearly Meeting as it is now in London; that the consideration of some definite and vital subject be made the order of the day, and the weightiest members of the meeting contribute their best thought to the subject of the year. It should not be a time for glittering generalities or for moralizing or for expounding Scripture, but for practical and clear-minded examination of the real present state of the church in some one definite particular, and everything said should bear directly upon this, so that out of the hours of talk some wise, constructive conclusion might follow that should guide the church in accomplishing its divine mission.

THE EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE AT PROVIDENCE.

THE Five Year Educational Conference of Friends in America was held at Providence, Rhode Island, from the 28th to the 30th of Sixth month. It was attended by Friends from all the Yearly Meetings in America, except Canada, Oregon and California, and three Friends were present from London Yearly Meeting. The Friends in attendance numbered about one hundred and fifty. The Conference decided to publish its proceedings in full as a supplement to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, so that as soon as this can be accomplished our readers will have in detail the entire work of the Conference. In view of this, only a brief bare outline of the sessions will now be given.

The program was carried out to the letter, and the topics presented covered a very wide range. It might be said that the Conference was characterized by its practical trend. There was little academic or abstract discussion, but on the contrary each speaker sought to present something which could be used to improve our methods of education.

Many speakers showed successfully why, from the character of their principles, Friends are bound to stand for sound education and for the development of the whole man. It was peculiarly interesting and gratifying to note from the proceedings of this Conference how deeply our educators are impressed with the importance of upholding and emphasizing the root ideas of Quakerism, while it was clearly evident that most speakers felt that these ideas had prepared us for being interpreters of Christianity to the present age. The work which the colleges and schools have done for the church, and the work which they should do in the immediate future, was ably presented and discussed, and much that was practical came out in the papers and speeches. It was felt by some that, in spite of the gratifying number of our institutions of learning, with their steadily increasing equipment, and in spite of the number of our members who are reached by them, the practical results, in terms of qualified workers in the various lines of activity within the church, are not as apparent as they should be.

The relation of the academies to the colleges was considered in a valuable paper, and hopes were expressed that a closer organic relation between the preparatory academies and the higher institutions might be effected, particularly in the large western yearly meetings, where Friends' academies are numerous.

The session devoted to a discussion of the relation of Friends' educational work to sociology, science and modern thought in general, marked an epoch in Friends' educational work. The transforming movements of the century were briefly but clearly defined, their bearing upon the principles of Quakerism emphasized, and the position was taken that what had at first seemed a destructive movement is now proving a re-adjusting constructive and faith-producing movement under the Spirit of God. All who spoke felt that every educator should keep open to the truth and fearlessly follow the light as fast as it comes, and especially labor to harmonize old truths with new findings.

In considering the teaching of the Bible in schools and colleges, it was maintained that no other literature in the world had so profoundly influenced life and thought and character and modern civilization as the Books of the Bible; that no means or methods have yet been devised for adequately teaching this Book to our children, and finally, that this great literature of the Spirit should be systematically taught to every American child. A plan was then outlined for teaching the Bible from the primary school to the university.

Education in business life, the teaching of literature in school and college, the method of teaching peace in our schools, and the importance of keeping the scholarship in our institutions up to our pretensions, were well presented and discussed. A valuable secretary's report showed the present material condition of our American institutions, and outlined the gains of the last five years, and an interesting sketch was given of the acquisition and present condition of "Friends' University" at Wichita, Kansas.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Conference:

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, We have been profoundly impressed with the importance of our spiritual mission in the world, and with the necessity of mental training in order that we may grasp its purport and successfully disseminate its principles, therefore

Resolved, That we urge upon our schools and colleges the importance of endeavoring to give our students a clearer knowledge of our doctrines and government, and to lead them into the practice of true worship; and

Resolved, That in our judgment the most effective means to this end is to be found in the strong spiritual personality of teachers.

Whereas, The trend of modern thought is bringing many of our fellow-Christians to emphasize the principles, religious, social and ethical, for which Friends have always stood, and is exhibiting in those principles a remarkable power to meet the needs of the time; therefore

Resolved, That we urge upon Friends the importance of fidelity to the spiritual realities of the Gospel, fearless reception of truth from whatever source it may come, and a more faithful endeavor to meet the needs of our age by the use of all the instrumentalities, spiritual and intellectual, which God is placing within our reach.

Resolved, That the principles of peace should be systematically taught in our schools, and, through every proper means brought before the public, in order to counteract the advocacy of war, which is now so general among the people, and to promote the principles of the Gospel of the Prince of Peace. To this end the true lessons of history should be used, and a thorough presentation given of what constitutes the "true grandeur of nations."

Whereas, We are conscious that the development of the Anglo-Saxon character has been largely due to the influence of the Bible; and

Whereas, There is no literature which approaches it in importance and power, which is less adequately studied; therefore

Resolved, That Friends should study to present it attractively to their children in the home, and that more adequate provision should be made to make the Biblical instruction which our schools and colleges give second in quality to no other teaching which they offer.

CHURCH NOTES.

Three colleges, Oberlin, Brown and Colgate, have just installed new presidents, and all of them are ministers of the gospel.

The Methodist churches of America are to be represented at the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, to be held in London in 1901, by 300 delegates.

The Salvation Army in the United States recently set apart a week for self-denial, and as a result raised $40,000. The amount is a monument to the sacrifice and devotion of this body of believers.

During the Third and Fourth months of this year the Army and Navy Department of the Young Men's Christian Association in the Philippines distributed 2,300 papers and magazines, 1,050 Colportage books, and 350 New Testaments.

Bishop Blenk, the new bishop of Porto Rico, is the first American to hold this position in the Catholic hierarchy. He was consecrated on the 1st inst. He has for some time been at the head of the parish of Algiers, in New Orleans.

The second annual conference of the American Zionists, held in Baltimore, elected several delegates to the International Conference at Basle, which will meet on the 15th of Eighth month. Prof. Richard Gottheil and Dr. Stephen S. Wise are among those chosen to represent American Jews.

Through the persecution in Russia of those holding evangelical principles Canada has gained 10,000 strong, industrious, and altogether valuable citizens. Such is the number of immigrants belonging to the Doukhobors who have been conveyed across the Atlantic mainly through the help of Christian sympathy in England and America.

Herman Warszawiak, whose methods of missionary work have been severely denounced, has lately issued a pamphlet claiming to offer a complete answer to his accusers. According to conservative opinions, however, he has wholly failed to exonerate himself, and the "Missionary Review" goes so far as to say that it regards him "disqualified by untruthfulness from any work requiring the support of Christian people."

The tomb of the Maccabees, with the surrounding land, has been offered for sale to English Jews. Half of the required amount for purchasing it—$2,500—has been received in England, and it is proposed that the remainder shall be raised in America. It is the plan of the promoters of the movement to establish on the site "a Jewish colony, agriculture college, or other institution as a living memorial to the national heroes who were both cradled and buried" there. The lands contain about fifty acres in all.

In an interview with a reporter of the Boston "Transcript," Dr. Frances E. Clark, the noted Christian Endeavor leader, has given some impressions of his study of Mormonism in Utah. He calls attention to the fact that the Mormons are a great missionary body, never out of funds, owing to the tithe system which largely prevails. They have a young people's society modeled after the Y. P. S. C. E., of which Congressman-elect Roberts was the originator and is the head. Dr. Clark dreads their assertion of the supremacy of the church over the authority of the state more than he does their practice of bigamy.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

HOW TO KEEP UP GOOD HEART.

BY WAYLAND HOYT.

Sidney Smith said once, "I have gout, asthma, and seven other maladies, but—am otherwise very well."

Said John Wesley, "I feel and grieve, but, by the grace of God—I fret at nothing."

Sings somebody:

For every evil under the sun
There is a remedy, or there is none;
If there be one, try and find it;
If there be none, never mind it.

Writes Thomas Carlyle, "Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness; altogether past calculation is its power of endurance. Efforts, to be permanently useful, must be uniformly joyous—a spirit all sunshine, graceful from very gladness, beautiful because bright."

Longfellow sings:

'Tis always morning somewhere, and above
The awakening continents from shore to shore,
Somewhere the birds are singing evermore.

Robert Southey says, "I have told you of the man who always put on his spectacles when about to eat cherries, in order that the fruit might look larger and more tempting. In like manner I make the most of my enjoyments; and though I do not cast my eyes from my troubles, I pack them in as small a compass as I can for myself, and never let them annoy others."

A blithe spirit, somehow, puts charm and color on the darkest troubles, as the sun does on the storm-clouds.

Surely anybody can see that the one who has a heart in him, in anywise shining with the cheer which streams from such extracts and instances, is the one for doing, enduring, achieving in this world of ours.

Have you ever marked, in your reading of the New Testament, the steadfast cheerfulness of the Apostle Paul? Somehow, he was always in good heart.

They gashed his back with scourgings, they flung him into the inner prison at Philippi, they clamped his feet in the stocks; but he would make the midnight, even in such a place, melodious with praises.

They arraign him before King Agrippa, and so powerful is his speech that even the dissolute Agrippa, his slumbering better nature stirred into a temporary wakefulness, must exclaim—"Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." And the apostle, with the strong cheer in him, can wish for King Agrippa nothing better than to share in his own heart brightness, and with exquisite courtesy makes reply, "I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds."

The winds are out, the waves are dashing, danger menaces on every side; but the one man undaunted on the wet deck of the laboring ship is this apostle with the festival within his heart, as he stands forth to say to the drenched, chilled marines—"Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer; for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me."

The epistle to the Philippians is an idyl of cheer, yet it was written by the prisoner Paul from Rome.

And even martyrdom cannot daunt this Paul. He flings back into the stony face of the martyr's death the jubilant challenge—"For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day."

One reason why the great apostle was always in such good heart, was always in such strong and sunny cheer, was because of his constant habit of thankfulness. Search the apostle's writings a little and notice how steady with him was this thankfulness:

The Epistle to the Romans—"I thank my God, through Jesus Christ, for you all."

The first Epistle to the Corinthians—"I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ."

The Epistle to the Philippians—"I thank my God upon every remembrance of you."

The Epistle to the Colossians—"We give thanks to God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you."

The Epistle to the Ephesians—"I cease not to give thanks for you."

The Second Epistle to Timothy—"I thank God whom I serve from my forefathers, with pure conscience."

Persistent was the apostle's habit of thankfulness, and out of this sprang his ability of so steadily keeping up good heart. For, thankfulness is, literally, think-fulness. We are apt to be thankless because we are so apt to be think-less.

One of the sunniest men I ever knew was Mr. Spurgeon. He was one of the most thankful men I ever knew. He was perpetually praising God. And he was, as perpetually, thoughtfully finding reasons for praising God.

Keep up good heart, you, by being thankful—that is, thankful.

Well, be thankful for the goodness you can discover in others, and so be sure everything is not going to the bad, and so keep up good heart. That was the apostle's way.

Those Christians to whom he wrote his Epistles and for whom he was so thankful were by no means perfect people. They were quarrelsome, stumbling people rather; with much of the smutch of their old heathenism still upon them. But there was some good in them. That the apostle sought out and praised God for.

Said a good deacon once to me, getting his figure from his trade of carpenter, "There are a good many crooked Christians in the church, but they make excellent timber for braces." Be thankfully on the hunt for the good in others, as the apostle was, and you shall find yourself getting into his mood of unwasting cheer.

Be thankful for opportunity. One has sung a good lesson from this couplet:

Ways are not scarce nor chances few
For those who long God's work to do.

This is the lesson:

Said one unto himself: I would
That I might wield some power for good;
That I some wondrous tongue could learn
To speak the thoughts and words that burn;
That I could marvelous colors mix,
Wherewith on sacred walls to fix
The glimpse of heaven, the holy dream,
That should from sin men's thoughts redeem;
And O, that some rare gem were mine
Whereon to carve the face divine.

Another took the self-same words
We use each day,
The words wherewith we chide or bless,
We curse or pray,
And with them sang a song that through
The wide world rings,
And slumbering souls that hear it wake
To nobler things.

Do not stand longing for, or go skylarking after, some big chance for service. Look for the usual common chance right next you; thankfully use that, and your own heart shall win gladness and uplifting. I saw a girl's face beaming just now as she was preparing to carry good dinners to some worthy poor people.

Be thankful for trouble even. Trouble has its remedial side. If you look for it you shall find it. For its benigance thank God, and, like Mongo Park gathering courage from the small flower which he saw daring to bloom among the desert sands, you shall discover that even trouble has nutriment for high heart and strong.

Be thankful for Heaven, and so, though youth may have passed and old age may be hastening, keep up good heart.

"You are on the shady side of seventy I expect?" was asked of an old man. "No," was the reply, "I am on the sunny side; for I am on the side nearest the glory."

Philadelphia, Pa.

I know enough of gardening to understand that if I would have a tree grow upon its south side, I must cut off the branches there. Then all its forces go to repairing the injury; and twenty buds shoot out, where otherwise there would have been but one. When we reach the garden above, we shall find that out of those very wounds over which we sighed and groaned on earth, have sprung verdant branches, bearing precious fruit a thousandfold.—Henry Ward Beecher.

AN ANCIENT EPISTLE.

The following epistle in its original form has been sent to us, and it is an exceedingly interesting document from another century:

From our Yearly Meeting for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and the Eastern part of Maryland and Virginia, held in Philadelphia by adjournments from the 29th of Ninth month to the 4th of the Tenth month, 1794, inclusive:

To the next Yearly Meeting of Friends, to be held on Rhode Island, for New England:

Dear Friends.—You acceptable epistle of the Sixth month last was read in this, our large annual assembly, wherein many minds have been humbled under a grateful sense that the Shepherd of Israel hath graciously favored us with the renewed evidence of heavenly regard, whereby qualifications have been derived to unite in a fervent engagement that He may be pleased to bless our sincere endeavors to promote the cause of truth and righteousness in the earth, and though we have been deeply affected on account of the late removal (by death) of several who have been eminently serviceable amongst us, there are others of the middle-aged and youth, who, laboring to put on the whole armor of light, afford hope of succession in the line of Divine appointment; may such, both amongst you and us, as have happily enlisted under the banner of the Prince of Peace, ever bear in mind that natural endowments, however excellent, or the unsanctified zeal of the creature, are utterly insufficient for the Lord's work, and thereby be induced to wait with patience for the baptizing power of Him who said, "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in Me."

Among the many deficiencies yet prevalent in our religious society, we have been feelingly exercised at this time on the account of some of our fellow members who remain unfaithful in the attendance of religious meetings, and others who for want of a fervent engagement to worship acceptably the Lord of Heaven and earth have manifested a Laodicean lukewarmness by a drowsy spirit therein, greatly to the injury of that precious testimony which we profess to the world and which the living amongst us experimentally witness, that as God is a Spirit, they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth.

May you also, dear Friends, who are favored to offer living and acceptable sacrifices in your solemn approaches before the Supreme Being, be animated and encouraged to a faithful discharge of duty towards your fellow members who in this or other respects minister cause of stumbling to serious enquirers and reproach our holy profession, and when engaged in such intrusting services seek to be clothed with brotherly love, sympathizing with them in their various infirmities, that by a patient continuance in well-doing ye may be made as saviours in Mount Zion, and finally be rewarded with those delegated shepherds who diligently watch over themselves and the flock.

Finally, brethren, we affectionately salute you and remain your Friends,

Signed in and on behalf of the Meeting by

NICHOLAS WALN,
Clerk to the Meeting this year.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

JOHANNESBURG.

BY OSCAR ROBERTS.

(In view of the recent friction between England and the Boers, this article on "Johannesburg" and the surrounding country is particularly timely.)

From Cape Town the railroad passes over a plain covered with small shrubs at first. Farther on the grass grows in tufts like blue grass about a spring, except the ground is bare between the bunches. Still farther in the Orange Free State and the Transvaal, South African Republic, the grass on the prairies is finer and thicker. Slight rainfall. In the 1,014 miles from Cape Town to Johannesburg the line crosses but the two rivers, the Orange and the Vaal. A few vineyards, growing a large white grape. Some corn, or mealies, as it is called in the Orange Free State and here. No trees, except about a pool, but they grow well when planted. Many ranches fenced in, though very few head of stock compared with the same area at home. Sheep, cattle, horses, mules, ostriches, and once in a great while a pig. No native villages to be seen anywhere along the line, except where a few live who may be working for the railroad. Very few houses are seen anywhere.

This prairie is bounded by broken ridges, some of them probably 2,000 feet high. The ridges are miles apart in places, others near together. When the sunlight is right for it, the view across the prairie to these ridges is sometimes beautiful. The afternoon of the first day out from Cape Town the line passes these ridges at the Hex River pass. The train has two engines there as the grade in places is one in forty. In making the ascent it is a beautiful view looking down across the loop the line makes, showing the winding way we have come. It does not seem as if the location of the road was a difficult task excepting this pass. The ridges disappear in the Transvaal. The ride from Cape Town is as interesting as riding over an Illinois prairie except for the changes these ridges make.

The post office, depot, government buildings, hospital, and stores in Johannesburg would do credit to any city at home of 100,000. Streets good, bicycles used everywhere. Sidewalks poor. There are tram cars, but it cost twenty cents to ride three miles. Your humble servants walk. There are newspapers. Waterworks supply the town with water, but there are no sewer pipes. It is very dusty. The altitude is nearly 6,000 feet above the level of the sea. Latitude, 26 degrees south; longitude between 29 degrees and 30 degrees east.

Here live Boers, Englishmen, Americans, Chinese, Japanese, Indians, several thousand Jews, and thousands of Africans working in the mines and in the city.

This place is one of the marvels of this century. It is a strange combination of civilization and heathendom. Every man here from a civilized country will be demoralized by contact with people subjected as these natives are, unless he is here for the avowed purpose of leading men to God, obedience to whom has brought our civilization. It is another proof of the working of the universal law of missions. When we fail to give the knowledge of salvation to the heathen, we lose our own. The measure of the effort put forth to spread the gospel is the measure of the hold that the gospel has on us. Oh, that God may honor us with a spirit of giving of His sunshine and love, the money and the strength of every other of His gifts, in the same measure that men here are possessed with a spirit of gain for selfish purposes.

A native here does not walk on the sidewalks; he uses the streets. There are about 4,000 natives in the Kaffir location. Mr. Waters is the only white man there, and he had to get permission from the authorities to live there. He is working there with no pledged support. The American Board, Mr. Baker, the Wesleys, South African General Mission, have work with the natives in the compounds, where it is hoped our work will be. The compounds are where the natives live who work in the mines. Shafts are sunk some 2,000 feet to the reef; these natives work down there. The houses—brick walls, galvanized roof—are built around a hollow square or rectangle. In each room may be twenty men or more. Holes are punched in the sides of a round powder can, the top cut to hold a kettle, the can answering for heating and cooking. Coal is used. There may be three tribes or more represented in each compound, most of whom understand Zulu. The men work in shifts of eight hours each, so there is some one in the compounds at any time and on any day. Last Sabbath the weather was too cold for them to be out in the compound, but we went into the rooms. These men bring many of their heathen customs; the other day they were sacrificing a lamb to some evil spirit, sprinkling its blood over those there. They smoke a kind of leaf, and it is fearful to see the way in which it is done. There are about 13,000 of these natives working within a mile's radius of Mayfair. These mines extend for miles along this reef. May God send laborers to them.

Box, 3197, Johannesburg, S. A. R., South Africa.

O Thou who canst not change,
While, with the ebb and flow
Of our swift mood, our feelings range
And doubts with changes grow,
In our contentings intervene
And bring us to thy peace serene.

As in the tempest's shock
To the fixed earth we fly,
As in the shadow of the rock
We wait 'till heats go by,
From our heart's tumult and distress
We hide us in thy changelessness.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

EDWIN MARKHAM.*

BY JAMES M. PRICE.

The feeling that with Whittier, Lowell, Longfellow, Bryant and Holmes "the light had (so nearly) gone out in the temple" of American poesy, that this generation could have but little hope of hearing a new burst of American song, was, perhaps, natural enough, as the great poet, especially, is "not made but born,"—and the wearers of that purple are, indeed, spaced widely apart in the steady flow of the centuries. It is therefore, with wonder and surprise that the Pacific Coast awakened in the First month last to a glowing consciousness that the national wealth was greater than men had conceived, not in the material sense of gold or traffic, but in that rare discovery of a new and genuine poet, native to the soil, and yet no mere youth, a "dreamer of dreams" flushed with boyish enthusiasm, which might fade away as rapidly as it had risen into view. To few men, indeed, has it ever been granted to awake from a single night and discern that they had become "famous." The author of "The Man With the Hoe" has had and has justly deserved this experience. For he has spoken out of the fulness of his own heart to the heart of the hearer. The dear Lord tells us, "If any man have ears to hear, let him hear!" To all those, therefore, who will listen to the sorrows of labor crushed, as the best and the most Christian of their predecessors hearkened to "The Cry of the Children" and to "The Song of the Shirt,"—the clarion notes from our Western Coast, of Edwin Markham, in behalf of those who have few helpers indeed among the more fortunate, must surely appeal. The great painting of Millet, himself a peasant who had struggled upwards by the help of that great gift of art with which his Maker had endowed him,—"The Man With the Hoe," which places visibly upon the canvass the lowest grade of hopeless labor in his native France,—by its appalling expression of hereditary hardship and despair aroused the poet to an utterance perhaps as great and unequalled as the painting itself.

Edwin Markham† was born Fourth month 23d, 1852, at Oregon City, Oregon, of pioneer parents, who had removed thither from Michigan not long before his birth. His father, Samuel Markham, was a lineal descendant from Colonel William Markham, cousin and secretary to William Penn, whom he accompanied to Pennsylvania. At a later period, when our founder had returned to England, Colonel Markham was for a time "acting governor." In 1691 he was Deputy Governor of Delaware, and at a still later period was associated with Lord Baltimore in certain public affairs. Colonel Markham was never a Friend, yet he was in sympathy with his Quaker cousin in "non-resistance and the rights of the masses." The Markham family had been noted and influential in England, another member of it, also a William Markham, having been so "renowned for a vigorous mind and profound learning" as to have been appointed Bishop of Chester and Tutor to the Prince of Wales in the time of Edmund Burke. On the side of his mother, Elizabeth (Winchell) Markham, the poet is also descended from noted colonial stock—the Winchells, who had proved their staunchness to the religious principles which they professed, by joining in that exodus to Holland, in times of bitter persecution, in which many Puritan families took part.

*Author of "The Man With the Hoe," "The Desire of Nations," and other poems of recent publication.

† Charles Edwin Markham.

Like the Markhams, the Winchells were never "Friends." They became conspicuous in our colonial history, taking part in the War of the Revolution, that of 1812 and in the Civil War. They have also displayed "intellectual vigor and aggressive activity in the affairs of church and state," many of this family having been "noted as legislators, preachers, scientists, and in other learned professions."

The poet, however, has had but limited opportunity, except of his own making, to attain a superior education. The death of his father occurred before he attained the tender age of five years, and his mother removed with her family to "a wild and beautiful valley near Suisun, California." Here the boy grew up, inured to every labor which attaches to the life of a ranch, with but little companionship which could profit him except that of an elder brother, deaf and dumb, and of his silent and reserved mother, a woman, however, of "strong character and great originality." The poets who were "his first masters" were Homer and Byron.

Upon money which he had earned himself, at nineteen he entered the State Normal School at San Jose, and "then pursued the classical course at Christian College, Santa Rosa, Cal." He read law for a while, but has never practised as an attorney. He has, however, identified himself with the cause of education in California. He has been in various places a principal or a superintendent of a school. In 1899 he is at the head of "The Tompkins Observation School, Oakland, connected with the University of California." This position he has held for some years. "Professor Markham's library is acknowledged (to be) one of the largest and best chosen in the state, and is especially excellent in the departments of philosophy and literary criticism."

"His genius has been well described as 'Hebraic and religious' rather than Hellenic and sensuous." He has written on sociological questions, taking the stand of applied Christianity in regard to the political and social conscience, as shown in a baccalaureate address recently delivered at Leland Stanford, Jr., University."

Edwin Markham's first book of poems has just been published,—"The Man With the Hoe and Other Poems."

It would be presumptuous in me to attempt to assign to Charles Edwin Markham his relative standing among our American poets. I do not assume to be a critic, who should have both native faculty fitting him for his work and that growth and practice in his art which will make what he has to say worth reading.

But I believe the majority of readers who will acquaint themselves with these poems just published in a collective form, will be impressed with the beauty and the fervor of many of them, and touched and awakened to serious reflection by "The Man With the Hoe" and "The Desire of Nations." How far am I "my brother's keeper" is an old, old question which some will repeat to themselves perhaps more forcibly after that reading. There is much in these poems which suggests Robert Herrick and William Morris, but a Morris believing in the Lord Jesus Christ and concerned that "His kingdom" shall indeed "come."

The devotional feeling is strong in Markham's poems. It is the sound of the trumpet, but not to "garments rolled in blood."

"Ringing to the troops of right a cheer,—
Make known the Truth of Man in holy fear;
Send forth thy spirit in a storm of song,—
A tempest flinging fire upon the wrong."

From a letter just received from him, I take these few words: "Those who know me well know my long admiration for the Quaker principles. Good George Fox is one of my ten or a dozen great historic names." I note the entire absence of anything in his poetry which savors of a love for war. In the fresh appeal which our government seems to meditate for thousands more of young men to be sent in arms to the Philippines, there, in the stalwart language of Kipling, to obey its call,

"The ports ye shall not enter,
The roads ye shall not tread,—
Go,—make them with your living
And mark them with your dead,"

I can but remember with a shudder the words of Markham,

"The Toilers scourged on in the furrow as cattle,
Or flung as a meat to the cannon which hunger in battle," whether these be the poor, dark-skinned natives or our own young men.

THE DIVINE ORDER.

'Tis first the true, and then the beautiful,
Not first the beautiful, and then the true:
First the wild wood, with rock and fen, and pool,
Then the gay garden, rich in scent and hue.

'Tis first the good, and then the beautiful,
Not first the beautiful, and then the good:
First the rough seed sown in the rougher soil,
Then the flower blossom or the branching wood.

Not first the glad, and then the sorrowful,
But first the sorrowful, and then the glad:
Tears for a day: for earth of tears is full,
Then we forget that we were ever sad.

Not first the bright, and after that the dark,
But first the dark, and after that the bright:
First the thick cloud, and then the rainbow's arc;
First the dark grave, then resurrection light.

'Tis first the night—stern night of storm and war,
Long night of heavy clouds and veiled skies:
Then the far sparkle of the morning star,
That bids the saints awake, and dawn arise.

—Horatius Bonar.

"THE MAN WITH THE HOE."

Written after seeing Millet's World-Famous Painting.

BY EDWIN MARKHAM.

"God made man in His own image, in the image of God made He him."—Genesis.

Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
A thing that grieves not and that never hopes,
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
Who loosened and let down this brutal jaw?
Whose was the hand that slanted back this brow?
Whose breath blew out the light within this brain?

Is this the Thing the Lord God made and gave
To have dominion over sea and land;
To trace the stars and search the heavens for power;
To feel the passion of Eternity?
Is this the Dream He dreamed who shaped the suns
And pillared the blue firmament with light?
Down all the stretch of Hell to its last gulf
There is no shape more terrible than this—
More tongued with censure of the world's blind greed—
More filled with signs and portents for the soul—
More fraught with menace to the universe.

What gulfs between him and the seraphim!
Slave of the wheel of labor, what to him
Are Plato and the swing of Pleiades?
What the long reaches of the peaks of song,
The rift of dawn, the reddening of the rose?
Through this dread shape the suffering ages look;
Time's tragedy is in that aching stoop;

Through this dread shape humanity betrayed,
Plundered, profaned and disinherited,
Cries protest to the Judges of the World,
A protest that is also prophecy.

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
Is this the handiwork you give to God,
This monstrous thing, distorted and soul-quenched?
How will you ever straighten up this shape;
Touch it again with immortality;
Give back the upward looking and the light;
Rebuild it in the music and the dream;
Make right the immemorial infamies,
Perfidious wrongs, immedicable woes?

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
How will the future reckon with this Man?
How answer his brute question in that hour
When whirlwinds of rebellion shake the world?
How will it be with kingdoms and with kings—
With those who shaped him to the thing he is—
When this dumb Terror shall reply to God
After the silence of the centuries?

—From "The Man With the Hoe, and Other Poems." Copyright, 1899 by Doubleday & McClure Co.

FRIENDS' BIBLE INSTITUTE OF INDIANA AND
WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

The Bible Institute of these two yearly meetings will be held at Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana, from Seventh month 24th to Eighth month 4th. It is the third Institute to be held, both the former ones having proved helpful to the work of the church.

Albert J. Brown, of Indianapolis, will be president of the Institute, and the instructors will include William G. Moorehead, of Xenia, Ohio; Antoinette A. Lamoreau, state secretary of the Primary Department of Sabbath School work in Illinois; Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago; Professor Elbert Russell, of Earlham; P. W. Raidabaugh, Levi Mills, David Hadley, Lewis Stout, Thomas Brown, Elwood O. Ellis, Amos Sanders, and Prof. Cyrus W. Hodgin.

John Henry Douglas and Byron J. Rees will be in attendance to take part in the devotional meetings.

The Institute is open to all who may wish to come, but it is specially designed to meet the needs of ministers, young men and women gifted for the ministry, Sunday School officers and teachers, Christian Endeavorers, missionaries, and other Christian workers.

The Institute offers the advantages usually found at the Summer Assemblies so numerous and profitably conducted by the various churches of the country. The Committee has kept in view the following ends:

- (1) More thorough knowledge of the Bible;
- (2) More efficient methods of studying and teaching the Bible.
- (3) Increased efficiency in Sunday School work;
- (4) To meet, as far as possible, the growing demand in the Church, for more thorough and effective work, by bringing its workers under the instruction of the best available teachers within our own and other evangelical churches;
- (5) The awakening of new zeal and the promotion of higher ideals and standards that come from personal contact and conference among Christian workers;
- (6) The deepening and invigorating of the spiritual life of those in attendance.

Our expectations, our ideals, our hopes and intentions in beginning life are generally all too low. Many and many a one is only indifferently successful in living a strong life, because at the start the standard of what one ought to be, and the belief in what one may be, were set too low.—Charles Cuthbert Hall, D.D.

SALT AND ITS MANUFACTURE.

BY M. Z. KIRK.

When we sit down to the table for a meal we almost always use more or less salt. Perhaps a very small per cent. of the readers of THE AMERICAN FRIEND could give a full account of its manufacture. As the writer has just visited Kansas, where he spent a large part of three years working on the State Geological Survey, he thought it would be of interest to the young people and children to know how our most common and necessary article of food is manufactured.

FIG. 1.

The real chemical composition of common salt has been known but a few years. On account of its great use to man and beast, and its easily-recognizable characteristics, it is referred to in some of our earliest Greek literature. Although salt is indispensable to us at the present time, as an appetizer and for curing meats, etc., it was prized much more highly by the ancient Hebrews. They used it as an accompaniment to their various offerings made on the altar. In connection with such offerings, salt is mentioned in numerous places in the Bible and other ancient history.

The space allotted for this article is so limited that we will only consider the history of salt in the United States.

In the early history of the United States, the salt industry was almost entirely confined to the Atlantic coast, where the sea water was evaporated. A little later the Jesuit missionaries, in making their journeys among the Indians, about the middle of the seventeenth century, in what is now the state of New York, heard of certain springs which were regarded with superstition and were said to contain demons. Several of these springs were pointed out to the missionaries, and this led to its manufacture by the Indians and traders. It was not, however, until 1788 that a systematic manufacture of salt was begun in the vicinity of Syracuse. In the winter of 1789-'90, the total output of this whole region was between 150 and 200 barrels. In 1820 the legislature authorized Benajah Byington to bore for rocksalt on the reservation, offering a premium for any salt produced. It was not until 1879 that rocksalt was found in New York. An immense salt industry immediately sprung up, and great quantities of this article have been sent out from here every year since that date. Rocksalt mining, however, only dates back to 1885. New York now stands as the leading state in this great industry.

SALT MINING.

Several years ago the drill revealed an important bed of rocksalt in the carboniferous area of Michigan. As this was in the heart of the great lumbering region, fuel was very cheap, and Michigan soon took an important position in the production of salt in the United States. Following this discovery, considerable developments were soon made in this industry in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Louisiana, Utah, California, and Kansas.

If my readers will go with me to Lyons, Kansas, we will visit the largest salt mine in the state. In company with the superintendent of the mine, we will each take a little miner's lamp and step into the cage at the top of the shaft. As these cages are built to hoist three tons of salt at a time we feel quite safe. The signal is given, and our cage moves slowly downward for a few feet, then it seems to almost drop for 900 feet, but checks up just before we reach the bottom of the 1,000-foot shaft. To many this has been a new and exciting experience. At the bottom of the shaft we find the men hurrying here and there with their cars of salt. Everything is so new and strange that we hardly dare to move. We find ourselves in a great driveway 10 feet high and 30 feet wide. After wandering around here for a quarter of a mile we find the salt mines in a nice clean room 18 feet high and 50 feet wide. They bore 50 or more deep holes into the face of the room and put a stick of dynamite in each one, and connect them all with a copper wire and they are exploded simultaneously by an electric current from the surface of the ground when there is no one in the mine. The miners then break up the great chunks and load it into cars, and it is hoisted to the top of a tall building and allowed to run over screens which separate it into various sizes. We will now leave the mine and go up to the crushing room. Here the purest chunks are crushed and the nice pure pieces are picked out by hand and sent to the packing houses to be placed in the heads of hogsheads of pork.

bit is then let down, and the hole is extended to the bottom of the salt bed.

A heavy iron pipe is then driven into this hole to the top of the salt bed. Inside of this is placed a two and one-half-inch pipe, which reaches to within 10 or 15 feet, or to the bottom of the well. The two and one-half-inch pipe and the five and five-eighths-inch pipe are then connected at the top, at the surface of the ground, in such a way that there will be no leakage. The small pipe is at last attached to a steam-pump, and the water which has been lifted from a large fresh-water well is forced through it to the bottom of the well. The pressure is increased until the saturated brine is forced to the surface through the larger pipe. When a new well is opened they always

INTERIOR OF PAN ROOM.—FIG. 2.

The large pieces are shipped to the farmers who place it in their pastures for the stock.

SALT-WELLS.

Only a very small per cent. of the salt used in the United States is taken from the mines, but fresh water is forced through wells down into the bed of rock salt and allowed to become saturated before it is brought to the surface for evaporation.

The most of the wells in Kansas are made in the following way: With a large derrick and a heavy club bit drill propelled by steam power, an eight-inch hole is put down below all the veins of fresh water, which in the Arkansas river valley is from 150 to 200 feet; an eight-inch casing is then driven into this hole to shut off the flow of water. A five and one-half-inch try to have the dissolving to be the most rapid near the bottom of the well. It usually takes several days pumping to make the hole at the bottom of the well large enough to be able to supply brine for an entire plant. When properly started, one well will produce enough brine to make several hundred barrels of salt per day for several years, while at other times the shales will fall and break off the pipe and partially or entirely destroy the well. When the brine is forced to the surface it is deposited in large brine tanks, such as those shown in the foreground of Fig. 2. The brine tanks hold in store a supply for future use and the impurities are also given an opportunity to settle. These tanks are always built high enough for the brine to run into the evaporating pans. From Fig. 1 we get a general idea of the exterior of a salt plant.

We see the buildings are broken up into bents, or sheds, which have long ventilators at the top, and usually a smokestack at the end. Each one of these bents, or sheds, covers an evaporating pan, where the water is driven off and the salt deposited. The long shed with a single sloping roof placed at the smokestack end of the bents is the storeroom, or "runway," where the salt is deposited to cure and dry, and where it is barreled and shipped. Near the main building is usually found a small boiler-house, where steam is made for running the pumps, etc. There is also usually a cooper shop near by, where the barrels are set up and repaired for use.

Now let us step into some of these salt plants, or blocks, and see how the salt is made. It must first be understood, however, that there are three principal methods of producing salt—namely, the pan process, the grainer process, and the vacuum process. These are all quite simple in theory, but the plants are so large that the equipment may seem somewhat complicated.

THE PAN PROCESS.

This process is the evaporation of brine by direct heat, and is merely a large pan from 80 to 125 feet in length by 25 feet in width, made of three-eighths-inch steel, and set upon three large furnaces of equal length. Fig. 2 shows very clearly the interior of the shed and the pan of a plant belonging to the Sterling Salt Company. The pan nearest us is empty, while the second one is in active operation. The brine enters these pans from the brine tanks already described, and the heat soon drives off enough of the water for the salt to begin to deposit. The fireman so regulates the furnace that this brine is kept at about 175 to 200 degrees Fahrenheit.

If we watch the surface of the brine a few moments, we will see that, as the vapor continually leaves, minute crystals of salt unite to form a thin film. As this grows larger and heavier it at last breaks and falls to the bottom of the pan. When this has proceeded for about two hours the workman takes a long-handled "skipper" and rakes the salt from the middle of the pan to the side; with a hoe which is about 18 inches wide and perforated with large holes the salt is drawn up to the slanting table or "drip-board" on the side, where it is allowed to stay for several minutes to drip.

On a cold, damp day the steam condenses very rapidly, and one can only see a few feet away. On a bright, warm, slightly windy day the vapor is borne away, and the work is very pleasant. As seen in the above cut, the pans are arranged side by side, with only an 8- or 15-foot walk between them. As great quantities of steam are constantly driven off, the workmen perspire profusely. Except in the coldest weather, they generally wear nothing but shoes and pants, and in many cases the former are omitted, while the latter are very much shortened.

When the salt is removed from the pan, the "salt rakers," as the workmen are called, run their skippers over the pan to feel for "scale," which is a deposit of gypsum, mingled with other impurities.

When the pan becomes very hot this scale falls to the bottom and sticks very closely. It often collects to a thickness of two or three inches, unless very closely watched. It is a very poor conductor of heat, so the pan is unable to transmit the heat to the brine, and the heavy sheets of steel will become red-hot and expand and contract, leaving the bottom of the pan very irregular. As it is a great expense to let the pan cool off and then heat it up again, the men have to push a strong bench out into the hot brine, and with a heavy crowbar pound the scale until it cracks. One of the benches upon which they stand is shown in the empty pan in the foreground of Fig. 2. If the scale is broken when the pan is very hot the steam produced bursts it loose, and sometimes throws hot brine high into the air, making the raker's position a very dangerous one. When an opening is made they run the crowbar under the scale and pry it loose, so it can be removed from the pan and thrown away. These sudden changes make the bottom of the pan very irregular, and this irregularity is called "buckling." In case a hole is burned in the pan the brine is removed and a steel patch is riveted on.

After the salt has dried sufficiently upon the drip-board it is shoveled into carts holding about one ton. It is then hauled into the "runway." At first the salt drops to a floor about 10 or 12 feet below the walk shown in this figure. From day to day the pile of salt increases, until the "runway" presents the appearance of the above figure. It is necessary for the salt to remain in this place from 15 to 60 days to thoroughly dry and cure. At first the salt is usually rounded up above the walks, but by the time it is thoroughly cured it settles a foot or more. Fig. 1 represents the packing room. The salt is shoveled into barrels and pounded down, so they can get in the regulation 280 pounds. When this is done, the barrel nailer puts in the head, nails down the hoops, and puts on the proper brand. The salt is now ready to be loaded on the cars for shipment to various parts of the United States.

THE LIMITS OF THE SALT BEDS.

The exact limit of the Kansas salt beds will probably never be accurately known, but the east line has already been approximately determined for many miles along the eastern boundary of this salt bed. At Wellington, the rock salt is about 50 feet in thickness, while at Beuda Springs saline water is found; so the eastern boundary is at some point between these two places. At Wichita, the records of the deep wells put down show that there is no rock salt this far east, while only about 40 miles west of here, at Kingman, the salt bed is 415 feet thick. At Halstead, the drill record failed to reveal any rock salt, while at Hutchinson the bed is 380 feet thick. At McPherson, only brine was found, but 30 miles west of here, at Little River, the salt beds reach a great thickness. Salina appears to be too far east to be above the salt bed, but at Kanopolis there is an immense bed 250 feet thick as shown by the mine shaft at that place. The farthest points north at which the salt beds have been definitely determined are Kanopolis, Ellsworth, and

Wilson, the farthest points west are Great Bend and Pratt; the farthest point south is Anthony; and from the numerous well records it has been definitely determined that rock salt exists in great abundance throughout the greater part, if not the entire area, described above.

As a single acre of this salt bed will produce many thousands of barrels of salt, the vast territory described above could supply the whole world with this commodity for thousands of years.

The International Lesson.

THIRD QUARTER.

Lesson III.

Seventh month 16, 1899

THE HEBREWS IN THE FIERY FURNACE.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Our God whom we serve is able to deliver us.—Dan. 3: 17.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 10.—The Golden Image. Dan. 3: 1-7.
 Third-day, Seventh mo. 11.—The Fiery Furnace. Dan. 3: 8-18.
 Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 12.—The Fiery Furnace. Dan. 3: 19-30.
 Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 13.—God's Presence in Trouble. Isa. 45: 1-7.
 Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 14.—An Almighty Helper. Isa. 41: 8-16.
 Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 15.—Patience in Suffering. 1 Peter 4: 12-19.
 First-day, Seventh mo. 16. The Lord's Angel. Acts 12: 1-11.

In the present lesson we have one of the most striking pictures of faithfulness that exists in any literature. It sets forth in graphic language "the truth that they who love God and trust in Him must love Him and trust in Him even till the end, in spite not only of the most overwhelming peril, but even when they are brought face to face with apparently hopeless defeat."

Few Bible stories are more familiar than that of the "Three Holy Children," as they are termed in the Apocrypha, and few convey a clearer lesson. It has been a comfort and encouragement to many martyrs for the Faith, and an inspiration to others, whose faith has been about to be tested.

The story is not connected directly with what precedes or follows, though the characters are partly the same.

No date is given for the incidents described, and no definite period is mentioned between chapters one and three. The object of the story is to teach the moral lesson, and exact data are not necessary for this.

In order clearly to understand the lesson it will be needful to read the whole of chapter three.

The image which Nebuchadnezzar set up is represented as being placed "in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon." (Verse 1.) This was probably within the limits of Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar (properly Nebuchadrezzar) reigned from 604-561 B. C. The image is represented as 60 cubits (90 feet) high and 6 cubits (9 feet) wide. The 90 feet probably includes the pedestal, as otherwise the statue would be much out of proportion. While this would be a colossal figure, it has been exceeded. Compare the statue of "Liberty" in New York harbor, which is 151 feet high on a pedestal 155 feet in height. The statue is described as being "of gold," but plated with gold is probably what is meant.

We are not told whom the image represented, but it must have been one of the gods whom the king supposed had given him great victories.

All were commanded to fall down and worship this image, and failure to obey this mandate involved being thrown into a burning fiery furnace.

All are represented as obeying the king except the three Hebrew men—Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego—who are accused of this dereliction of duty by the "Chaldeans" (Magicians). (Chapter 2: 2.) The king, in his rage, orders the three men to be brought before him, and the lesson begins.

The question naturally arises, where was Daniel at this time? but no reference or allusion is made to him in the chapter.

14. "Is it true?" "Is it of purpose?" Revised Version. Is this conduct the result of a fixed purpose? "My gods." "My god." Revised Version. This special god whose image I have set up.

15. "If ye be ready." He will give them another chance. "Cornet," etc. The different kinds of instruments cannot be absolutely identified, but the cornet was doubtless a horn; the flute was a reed instrument resembling our flageolet rather than the modern flute; the harp had several strings; the sackbut had four strings; the psaltery, also a stringed instrument; dulcimer, possibly something like a bagpipe. The words of the king are a direct challenge and defiance of Jehovah. Compare Exod. 5:2; Isa. 36: 20.

16. "We have no need to answer thee in this matter." Revised Version. "Careful" in the Authorized Version has old meaning of full of care or anxiety. As much as to say, our minds are made up.

17. "If it be so." If it be as you say. There is a little obscurity in the language but not in the meaning, which is that God is always able to deliver his children from any trial or suffering, and will do so if He sees that it is best. But they were perfectly aware that God does not always see fit to spare from martyrdom.

18. "But if not." They did not know God's will or purpose, but they knew their duty and were ready to die rather than prove false to their God.

19. This calm, determined reply threw the monarch into a rage, and he ordered the furnace to be heated several times hotter than usual. What kind of a furnace it was can only be conjectured. Some think it was one used for cremation, others for smelting ores.

20. "Most mighty men." So there could be no possibility of escape.

21. "In their hosen, their tunics, and their mantles, and their other garments." Revised Version. This list agrees with the representation on the monuments of the ordinary garments of men of the time.

22. In the Song of the Three Children," in the Apocrypha, the flames are represented as reaching to a height of 49 cubits.

23. "Fell down." Because they were bound.

24. "Astonied." Astonished.

25. "Loose" is contrasted with "bound" in the preceding verse, and "four" with "three." "Like the Son of God." The Revised Version translates correctly, "And the aspect of the fourth is like a son of the gods." This was the impression made on the king, who could not have known of "the Son of God." God will always be with his children though He may be unseen.

26. The king, moved by the sight, and, doubtless, also to confirm the evidence of his eyes, orders the men to come forth from the furnace.

27. "The satraps, the deputies and the governors, and the king's counsellors." Revised Version. It was in the sight of the officials of the kingdom. Not even the smell of fire was on them.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. The righteous are sometimes saved from their trouble; and they are sometimes saved in their trouble.
2. "Though he slay me yet will I trust in Him."
3. "It is nobler to die for truth than to live for sin."
4. Isaiah 43: 2.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SEVENTH MONTH ELEVENTH.

A FRIEND IN NEED.

Luke 10: 30-37.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 10.—Barzillai. 2 Sam. 17: 27-29; 19: 31-40.

Third-day, Seventh mo. 11.—Widow of Zarepath. 1 Kings 17: 7-16.

Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 12.—Elisha. 2 Kings 4: 18-37.

Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 13.—Onesiphorus. 2 Tim. 1: 16-18.

Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 14.—Luke. 2 Tim. 4: 9-12.

Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 15. Ye have done it unto me. Matt. 25: 31-40.

Our greatest need is the need of a friend, rather than of the material aid he may bring. The satisfaction of the soul's hunger for companionship is more important than the meeting of any temporal wants. Self is the best gift that friend can give to friend. To share one's soul is better than to share one's silver. Just to be a friend—that is best.

We love a friend for his inward graces, and not for his outward appearance. A handsome face cannot be a permanent basis for a friendship. The roots of friendship are all in character; it is what our friend is that draws us to him. This is the reason why only true men and women can experience friendship at its best; it is a prize reserved for the pure and the noble.

Selfishness is a canker in the breast of friendship. Where self-seeking exists, true friendship dies. No friend can take advantage of friend. The law of this high life is the law of surrender and sacrifice. The sweets of friendship can be tasted only by him who will gladly go to death for a friend's sake.

The royal law of love is unselfishness. The most friends and the best friends belong to him who spends his life for others. Without unselfishness there can be no friendship.

Friendships that are for the sake of convenience sputter and die out as a candle, and at best their light is dim and weak. But the friendship that is born of love shines with the warm, steady glow of the eternal sun. There is nothing fitful or occasional about it. Constancy is its invariable characteristic. "A friend loveth at all times."

Friendship is one of the rewards of life. It is not a means to an end, but an end in itself. One of the prizes that are won by those who live nobly is this priceless prize of the friendship of kindred souls. The person who travels through the years without winning to himself a true friend has missed one of life's best gifts.

The greater includes the lesser. When friend gives heart to friend there is included in the transfer all the power and possessions of both. Friendship denies nothing to a friend save that which would injure either the recipient or the friendship.

Friendship is too delicate to trifle with. He risks a priceless treasure who submits his friendship to the jars and jolts of petty exactions and criticisms. Like some rare plant, a friendship is to be treated with the most careful consideration.

He is our best friend who helps us to be our best self. The friends to seek and hold are those whose presence is a moral uplift, and in whose company our loftiest sentiments are enkindled.

To be a friend costs. He cannot know the joy of friendship who will not pay its price.

Helpfulness is surest winsomeness. The only basis of enduring popularity is service.

Apparent need is not always real need. He is our best friend who helps our real need.

We may prove ourselves Christ's friends by showing friendship to his other friends.

We go back on Christ every time we turn from one of his needy friends.

We learn how to be friends in the company of our best Friend.

He never was a friend who fails to be a friend in need.

We befriend Christ in every fallen brother we lift.

A good friend makes us dissatisfied with ourself.

The heart cannot be open if the hand is shut.

Jesus helps us that we may help others.

Friendship's chief business is lifting.

Here are a few Bible references on the topic: 1 Sam. 23: 16; Job 6: 14; Prov. 17: 17; 18: 24; 27: 6; Eccles. 4: 9, 10; Isa. 41: 6; Mal. 3: 16; Luke 6: 38; John 13: 1, 15, 34; 14: 18; 15: 13-15; Acts 20: 35; Rom. 12: 10, 15; 14: 13, 21; 15: 1-3; 1 Cor. 13: 4-8 (R. V.); Gal. 6: 2; Jas. 5: 16; 1 John 1: 7; 3: 10, 16-18; 4: 7, 9-11.

THE CONSECRATION MEETING.

Only the other day I heard again that old, old platitude, "Do not be like the Christian Endeavorers, who have to hold a consecration meeting once a month. Consecrate yourselves once for all and stay consecrated. Why, when I married my wife,"—and the rest I need not repeat, for everybody knows the threadbare illustration. Now, that sounds very smart to some people, and I suppose some speakers fail to see the utterly illogical and indeed untruthful character of the statement they are so fond of repeating. Let us hold it up to light a bit and see what it is.

First, it distinctly implies that because Endeavorers hold a consecration meeting once a month, therefore their consecration is inferior, less permanent than that of people who hold no such meetings. As a matter of fact, I challenge the truth of this implication. Ten years of Christian Endeavor work in the Friends' Church has developed as genuine, constant type of consecration as that resulting from any other method of work, if not more so. It has given us more than forty of our best missionaries, as many good ministers of the Gospel, hosts of Bible school teachers, and Christian workers loyal to the regular work of the church, as well as its evangelistic services. Holding a consecration meeting once a month cannot be shown to be detrimental to true consecration.

Secondly, the statement is an unjust discrimination. Dr. Charles Cutler held what he called a consecration meeting every Tuesday afternoon for years in Beacon Place Chapel, Boston, but I never heard anybody accuse him of not believing in "a consecration once for all." But such an accusation would have been just as logical as the platitude rattled off so glibly about the Christian Endeavorers.

In the third place, it is an utter misconception of the purpose of this monthly service. It is not held in order that Endeavorers may "reconsecrate themselves over and over and never get it done either," as I have heard some of these cheap wits say. It is a meeting for the prayerful consideration of matters vitally concerning the life of consecration. John Wesley was accustomed throughout his life to a rigid self-examination each night as to the character of his words, thoughts and acts during the day. He searchingly asked himself the questions, "Have I shown all love to-day? all patience? all self-restraint?" and so on through the list of the fruits of the Spirit. But in these days self-examination has quite passed out of style, and jubilant exultation has taken its place. We must never confess a failure; we must profess by faith our entire sanctification without a break, and some even dare to say we must not pray the prayer our Lord taught His disciples, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," since we now have no need to confess sin. There can be but one result to this superficial teaching—either a cheap, narrow, self-conscious piety, or else an arrant hypocrisy. There never has been any deep, abiding spirituality without careful self-examination and thoughtful consideration of that which we have not yet apprehended. The monthly consecration meeting of the Endeavor Society is intended to promote this thoughtful self-examination. It is intended as an occasion when the simple truth of entire surrender can be lovingly pressed home to those who do not yet understand this secret of a victorious Christian life. It is intended as an occasion when we may think seriously over the past month, and if there have been no sins of omission or commission, then certainly there are lessons to be learned from our experience in Christian work whereby we may do better in future. We may not always have been able to act with a foresight equal to our aftersight, but now our aftersight must become a foresight for the future. Again, it is a meeting to consider carefully the new revealings of Christ and of His will that may come to us. Christian life does not grow only by the imperceptible changes of day after day. Like the corn, it has its time of shooting and then of the full corn. All life has its stages. So in spiritual things. It was while the church at Antioch failed and prayed that its missionary enlargement came. An Endeavor consecration meeting is intended as a time of enlarged spiritual vision, of greater opportunity for service, of fresh attainments in spiritual things.

Now, if some of these good brethren who have been constantly insinuating doubts as to the sincerity of Endeavorers had only looked fairly into this matter, they might have done a world of good where they have only succeeded in wounding young Christian life and closing the door for their own service. That the ideal consecration meeting is not always realized is not the fault of the movement so much as of the imperfect apprehension of its character, and the failure of many ministers to deal fairly with it.

News from the Field.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

Richmond, Ind.—On Sabbath, Sixth month 18th, in a beautiful grove a short distance from the city, occurred the Annual Union Meeting of Wayne Township. It was a precious season of blessing to many souls. These meetings are conducted independently of denominationalism. Several denominations were represented. Ministers Johnson and Davenport and others were present.

At the afternoon session Leonidas Spear, pastor of White Water Meeting was present, and preached, from John 9: 5, a most impressive and excellent sermon to a large and exceedingly attentive audience. His utterances were in the demonstration of the Spirit and with power. Many were heard to testify of the fresh anointing of the Spirit. It was an occasion of great blessing and and one long to be remembered.

OHIO YEARLY MEETING.

Commencement exercises were held at the Raisin Valley Seminary, near Adrian, Mich., Sixth month 23d, at 10.30 a.m. The following are the names of the graduates who did honor to themselves and the Seminary: Vinora Beal, Jessie L. Rawson, Grace S. Niles, and Otis Coffin. The room was tastefully decorated and filled to overflowing. E. M. McMillen, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Adrian, gave the class address, which was excellent. The Baccalaureate sermon was preached by W. E. Burnett, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Weston.

The Reunion exercises were held in the afternoon, and steps were taken to hold, next year, a semi-centennial celebration, the first school having been opened in 1850. If, therefore, this shall come to the notice of any former student, teacher, superintendent, or member of the school-board, they are hereby cordially invited to attend the semi-centennial on Sixth month 22d, 1900, and they will do the writer a favor, as Corresponding Secretary, by forwarding name and address soon to Mary C. Wood, Tecumseh, Michigan.

PHILADELPHIA YEARLY MEETING.

William Evans, of Philadelphia, has returned from his visit to the Doukhobors in Manitoba. Joseph S. Elkinton intended to remain a little longer, and, perhaps, again go to Quebec to meet with those of the fourth immigration, when released from their quarantine.

NORTH CAROLINA YEARLY MEETING.

A series of meetings, lasting nine days, conducted by Thomas C. Hodgkin, assisted by J. C. Iddings and D. H. Kirkpatrick, closed at Providence, Western Quarter, Sixth month 19th.

Notwithstanding that these meetings were held in the midst of wheat harvest, they were well attended and greatly blessed of the Lord. The Gospel was preached "in demonstration of the Spirit and in power."

Indeed, the power of God was manifest in the conversion of many souls and in the unifying of the church. There were between fifty and seventy-five conversions and renewals. Among these were some who had grown old in sin; who confessed that they feared that with them "the harvest had passed."

Many children gave their young lives to the Lord. The older and more conservative Friends aided in the success of the meeting by their testimonies.

Such an outpouring of the Holy Spirit as was witnessed at Providence is rarely experienced.

May the blessings of the Lord abide with our dear brother Thomas Hodgkin. The harvest time is coming by and by. Let him receive comfort from Psalms 126: 5-6.

J. C. WILSON.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING

Emporia, Kansas.—After a hard struggle the Friends of Twin Mount Monthly Meeting have just finished the erection of their church building and have fixed the date Seventh month 16th to dedicate it. Edmund Stanley, President of Friends' University, Wichita, Kansas, will deliver the dedicatory address. We are looking forward to this time as the beginning of a harvest for the church at this place and an ingathering of souls for our dear Redeemer's Kingdom. Pray for us.

REUBEN F. RIGGS.

Married.

PUCKETT—HUSSEY.—Sixth month 21st, 1899, R. Hayes Puckett, son of Hosea and Sarah Puckett, of Stone Mountain, Virginia, to Clara Hussey, daughter of Milton J. and Mary Jane Hussey, Albion, Marshall Co., Iowa.

Died.

MILLS.—Sally A. Mills, widow of Layton Mills, and daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Allen, died at her home in West Indianapolis, Sixth month 1st, 1899, in her 73d year. She was converted in early life and was always a diligent student of the Bible, often speaking of the comfort she derived from its promises, and saying near the end, "Jesus leads me all the way." She was a member of Fairfield Monthly Meeting, Ind.

News and Events.

Though we hear but little of it in the newspapers, Russia is undergoing a famine scarcely less severe than that of 1891-92. Awful destitution exists in seven Eastern provinces of the empire, and letters to London papers state that out of a total population in the famine-stricken district of over 11,500,000 about 5,000,000 are actually starving. While the area is not so large as in 1891-92, the distress is more intense than it was found to be anywhere in the former famine. The government is active in the work of relief, and certain public functionaries, including the Czar, have privately subscribed several million roubles (a rouble being equal to 70 cents). The difficulty of feeding such an immense number of sufferers is greatly increased by the inefficiency of rural transportation facilities. Russia is a country of vast size and wonderful in resources, but there is lacking an adequate net-work of railroads to connect the different parts of the empire, and until the railroad improvements now going forward shall have been much further advanced these famines may be expected to recur from time to time, just as they do in India and China. It is an ironical fact that while one portion of the Russian people are starving others are exporting to the world's markets their surplus of wheat and corn.

As a result of the inability of the American Tin Plate Company and its employees to agree upon a schedule of wages, all of the tin plate plants in the country closed on the 30th, thus throwing out of employment from 40,000 to 50,000 men. This trust is said to be the most complete monopoly in the United States, and while it has been in existence only six months, it has advanced its prices enormously. Its capital stock is represented as $46,000,000, but its real value is thought to be less than $12,000,000. The present difficulty between employers and employed is due to a demand of the workers of an advance of twenty per cent. in wages. A compromise by the company of 11 per cent. was refused, and a shut-down has been the result. The company appears to have the strikers at its mercy and pending an adjustment of the dispute prices will advance and the public will suffer.

Captain Alfred Dreyfus landed at Quiberon on the 1st. He was taken at once to Rennes, where the trial will be held. At no time in the history of the famous case have the French people been so calm and self-possessed as they are now. They are very expectant, however, and deeply interested in the progress of events. It is of importance to observe that if Dreyfus is acquitted, as he almost surely will be, he will have a chance to seek reparation for his unjust condemnation and imprisonment. In this country an unjustly convicted person, when pardoned, has no future satisfaction, but in France it is different. An instance of this was the case of Madame Douax, who in 1887 was convicted of poisoning her husband, and sentenced to life imprisonment. After six years of the sentence had been served it was discovered that she was innocent, and 40,000 francs were awarded her as consolatory damages. It is to be hoped that an adequate reparation will be given Dreyfus.

A much longer despatch than usual was received last week from General Otis in response to the administration's request for information regarding the situation. The cable, like most of those from General Otis, was quite optimistic, and pictures the rebels as scattered and demoralized from recent defeats. He considers that the moral aid given the Filipinos by opposition of the anti-imperialists to the government's policy is responsible for the persistency of the insurgents in holding out against our forces. He reports that twelve per cent. of his command is sick. The prevailing diseases are malaria and typhoid fevers, and internal troubles. As the result of the evident need for more forces, and in order to keep Otis supplied with at least 40,000 troops, a movement is on foot to raise a provisional army of about 12,000 men. This increase in numbers will probably be accomplished by the end of the rainy season, in October, and will then give General Otis a more effective fighting force at a time when it will be most needed.

Belgium is on the brink of a revolution. The casus belli is the introduction, by the government, in the Chamber of Deputies, of an electoral law proposing changes in the present method of representation. The bill is opposed by the Liberals, Socialists and Radicals, and great masses of the people have displayed their opposition by rioting. Brussels, during the last few days, has been the scene of great violence and disorder. The opposition to the government demands universal suffrage as a counter proposition, and a revolution is feared in any event.

IN A DILEMMA.

Doctor Liddon, the eloquent preacher of London, and Mr. Dodgson, better known as Lewis Carroll, the author of "Alice in Wonderland," were once obliged to resort to hieroglyphics in order to be understood by a Russian waiting-maid.

While in Russia the two gentlemen stopped at a friend's in Kronstadt, where one morning Doctor Liddon had left his overcoat.

When departing for St. Petersburg they found it necessary to ask the waiting-maid, who talked only Russian, to fetch it. As the little vocabulary they used did not contain the Russian word for coat, the gentlemen found it difficult to make the girl understand what they wished her to do. Doctor Liddon began by exhibiting the coat he wore, and with much gesticulation took it half off. Apparently the girl understood them, and they were delighted. She left the room, and returned in a minute with a large clothes-brush.

Then Doctor Liddon took off his coat, laid it at her feet, and pointed downward, to intimate that in a lower room was the object he desired her to bring.

Once more the plain features of the girl lighted up. She was absent much longer this time, and returned bringing a large cushion and a pillow, and began to prepare the sofa for the nap which she thought the gentleman wished to take.

Then a happy thought occurred to Dodgson. He drew a sketch representing Liddon with one coat on, receiving a second and larger coat from the Russian peasant. The sketch succeeded, and the two gentlemen went off humiliated by the fact that they had to descend to the level of ancient Thebes before recovering an overcoat.

GRAPE-NUTS.

A New and Highly Nutritious Food.

The odd sounding name is used to designate a peculiar food, made not exactly in the shape of nuts, but having a pleasant, nutty flavor and crisp brittleness that makes them a charming favorite with the palate.

Of yet more value than the taste is the food value of Grape-Nuts. They are largely composed of Grape-Sugar, (your dictionary can tell you about that) and those who use them will find the morning meal has not only been pleasant, but has been quickly and easily digested; for grape-sugar is an article produced in the human body at one stage of the digestion of food, and is at once ready for transformation into good healthy blood and nourishment.

It should not be understood that the grape-sugar, of which Grape-Nuts is made, has been produced in the human body. But this grape-sugar is made by much the same process as the body employs, and is produced by natural treatment of grains without any foreign substance whatever. It is made by the Postum Co., at Battle Creek, Mich. The result is perhaps the most highly nutritious food ever produced. Grocers sell Grape-Nuts.

SHORT PARAGRAPHS.

The greatest depth to which a ship has been anchored is 2,000 fathoms—considerably more than two miles.

The Lieutenant-Governor of South Carolina wears a purple robe of office when presiding over the Senate.

The wine cellar of the old Chaldean King, Argastes II., has been discovered near Lake Van, in Asia Minor. It was filled with colossal earthenware vessels, some of which have been sent to the Berlin Museum.

A decided novelty in the way of newspaper enterprise is announced from Lapland. The first paper in that country has appeared. It is written upon a single sheet of paper, and it is published every Sunday at a town with an unpronounceable name. Up to the present the journal has only half a dozen subscribers, and every issue is welcomed with loud applause.

In two years, at the outside, the strength of the Japanese navy will be represented by about 250,000 tons of displacement.

A curious profession for a woman is that of dinner taster. She is a product of Parisian refinement, and spends a portion of each day visiting houses and tasting dishes intended for dinner. She suggests improvements and shows the cooks new ways of preparing dishes. The duties are pleasant and the compensation ample.

More men have died and are buried in the Isthmus of Panama, along the line of the proposed canal, than on any equal amount of territory in the world.

A cigarette smoker sends into the air about 4,000,000,000 particles of dust at every pull, according to Dr. Atkins' investigations.

Ducks don't need water to thrive. There are many duck-raising plants in this country where thousands of the fowl are bred each year for market, and where there is not even a puddle for them to flounder in. One of these farms is credited with an output of 20,000 ducks a year.

In Prussia only 6,497 of 100,000 attempts at suicide were successful.

Russia, with a population of 127,000,000, has only 18,334 physicians. In the United States, with a population of about 75,000,000, there are 120,000 physicians.

In France, for the privilege of wearing men's trousers the French Government charges women a tax of about $10.

Pins have been made for 450 years, but needles have been used for forty centuries.

The lighthouse at Corunna, Spain, is believed to be the oldest one now in use. It was erected during the reign of Trajan, and rebuilt in 1634.

DELICIOUS IN COFFEE TEA & Chocolate

GAIL BORDEN

Send for BABIES

A Book for Mothers.

EAGLE BRAND
CONDENSED MILK

Borden's Condensed Milk Co., N. Y.

Cleveland Bible Training School.

CONDUCTED BY

J. Walter Malone and Emma B. Malone.

This institution was not designed to be, nor does it aspire to be, a theological seminary. Such a purpose would be contrary to the spirit of Quakerism. It is intended to meet the needs of a large and increasing class of persons who are clearly called to Christian work, and who feel the need of a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, of acquaintance with the various forms of soul-saving effort, and of association with experienced workers.

The School has enthusiastic classes in Consecutive Bible Study and in Scripture Doctrine. It finds for its students abundant opportunities for service in connection with the Friends' Missions, the city rescue missions, visiting the sick and the needy, conducting children's meetings, mothers' meetings, Bible classes, etc.

It has classes in English and in Elocution for the cultivation of proper expression. Also, classes in Ancient History, Church History, and Bible Geography; and short courses in Psychology, Ethics, and Christian Evidences.

It keeps constantly in view, as necessary for effectual service:

I. A clean, pure, fully-justified life. II. Complete consecration to God, including both submission and dedication. III. The baptism with the Holy Spirit for perfection of character and service, and for the proper understanding of the Scriptures. IV. An ever widening and deepening knowledge of the Scriptures. V. Earnest Desire and effort for the salvation of others.

One thought pervades the entire work, viz.: That it is for God, and that His own Spirit must direct it.

The expense of attendance, including tuition, board, washing, heat, and light, is $3.00 per week, or $100 for the school year.

For particulars address

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL,

257 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

FRIENDS' LIBRARY.

Friends' Library, 142 N. Sixteenth Street, Philadelphia. We notice the following among the new books:

Conway, Sir Martin.—"With Ski and Sledge Over Artic Glaciers."

Dow, Neal.—"Reminiscences and Recollections of Eighty Years."

Griffis, W. E.—"America in the East."

Palgrave, G. T.—"Francis Turner Palgrave."

"Pierson, A. T.—"George Müller of Bristol."

Richmond, M. E.—"Friendly Visiting Among the Poor."

Rouse, W. H. D.—"History of Rugby School."

Scudder, S. H.—"Every-day Butterflies."

Steevens, G. W.—"With Kitchener to Khartum."

Yarnall, Ellis.—"Wordsworth and the Coleridges."

CHARMING A LION.

While Rev. W. J. Davis was living in Africa, his little son John, a boy of four years, went too near to a chained lion in a neighbor's yard. It was called a pet lion, but was so wild and vicious that no living thing was safe within the radius of its beat.

The unsuspecting child stumbled within its reach, and the lion instantly felt him to the ground and set its huge paw on his head. There was great consternation among the bystanders, but none were able to deliver the child. "African News" tells the story of his escape, which seems equally due to the lion's love for music and a young woman's presence of mind.

Miss Moreland, seeing the peril of the child, ran up-stairs, seized an accordion and hastened to a window which looked out upon the lion. There, with a shout to arrest its attention, she began playing a tune. The lion at once released its prey, went the length of its chain toward its fair charmer and stood in rapt attention.

The boy, in the meantime, got up and ran to his mother. He never thought of crying till he entered the house and saw how excited every one was; then, quite out of danger, he had a good cry on his own account.

There may be many Christians most like unto young sailors, who think the shore and the whole land doth move when they ship, and they themselves are moved. Just so not few do imagine that God moveth, and saileth, and changeth places because their giddy souls are under sail and subject to alteration, to ebbing and flowing. But the foundation of the Lord abideth sure.—Samuel Rutherford.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, First-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. MCGEE & CO.,

1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Result: Above are samples of "Soft Soap" or "Soap Paste" made with PEARLINE, and with two of the leading powders which are claimed to be "Same as" or "Good as" PEARLINE.

The bottle to the right contains a solid mass of pure, white "Soap Paste" or "Soft Soap," made with PEARLINE—thick enough to stand alone.

The bottle in the middle is one of "Same as" and contents is one-quarter poor, thin, mushy soap—balance (three-quarters) discolored water.

The bottle to the left is a poorer "Same as," and contains simply discolored water, with a sediment (not soapy) at bottom. The middle and left-hand bottles are fair samples of the many powders offered in place of PEARLINE. Try the experiment yourself—directions on back of each package.

Some powders are worthless, some inefficient, others dangerous. Pearline is the standard. The Millions of Packages of PEARLINE used each year proves

Pearline Best by Test
Note. The difference in price between Pearline and the most worthless Soap Powders is nominal. A year's supply would not equal the value of one ordinary garment ruined.

A NEW WORLD.

The Peace Conference at The Hague, in its purpose and membership, affords much material for the play of the imagination, whatever may be its practical results.

Let it be proposed that the delegates of one of the countries represented at the conference were authorized to appropriate a sum equal to the payments of a recent year for the expense and support of its army and navy. In obedience to these instructions, should the delegates select plans and institutions whose advancement would make the world better, and bestow on them the sum mentioned, the ministries of religion, education and charities would be wonderfully enlarged.

The amount would be sufficient to secure the services for thirty years of one thousand missionaries, at an annual allowance of one thousand dollars for each of the missionaries. Two hundred hospitals could be endowed with two hundred thousand dollars each. Two hundred colleges could begin their work with half a million dollars in each treasury.

The disbursements of even one country of the amount it appropriates for possible aggression and defence would work a mighty transformation. Apply the same supposition to all of the countries participating in the gathering; distribute the vast sum to enlighten ignorance and alleviate suffering, and this would seem like a new world!—"Youth's Companion."

Pond's Extract

(Avoid Substitutes)

Cleanses and
Heals all
Inflamed Surfaces, Cures
Sore Throat,
Coughs, Colds,
Bronchitis,
Asthma,
Catarrh and

Relieves Pain

SUMMER.

Now nature hangs her mantle green
On every blooming tree,
And spreads her sheets o' daisies white
Out o'er the gray sea;
Now Phoebus cheers the crystal streams,
And glads the azure skies;
But naught can glad the weary wight
That fast in durance lies.

Now lav'rocks wake the merry morn,
Aloft on dewy wing;
The merle, in his noontide bower,
Makes woodland echoes ring;
The mavis wild, wi' mony a note,
Sings drowsy day to rest:
In love and freedom they rejoice,
Wi' care nor thrall oppress.

—Burns.

Over-Exertion of Brain or Body.

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It is a wholesome tonic for body, brain and nerves. Wonderfully quick in its action.

JOTTINGS.

Arthur Tennyson, younger brother of the celebrated poet, Alfred Tennyson, died last week.

Governor Roosevelt's Western trip amounted almost to a Presidential boom. At several places along the route he was greeted as "our next President." It is said, however, that he does not seek the position, and will support McKinley for re-nomination.

The sloop Columbia," which will compete with England's "Shamrock" for the international cup, has proved itself the fastest boat that has yet entered these contests. The "Shamrock" was launched last week.

The negotiations in London looking to the arrangement of a modus vivendi fixing the Alaskan boundary are said to have again nearly reached a crisis.

As a result of heavy rains in Central and Southwestern Texas, fully 1,000 miles of rich farming land has been submerged. The estimated damage is $4,000,000.

President McKinley has presented to the French ambassador, M. Cambon, a silver loving cup in recognition of his services in the negotiations which secured peace between the United States and Spain.

Prof. Schurman, of the Philippine Commission, has returned to Manila from a three-weeks' tour of the southern islands. He takes an entirely hopeful view of the conditions there.

The International Council of Women assembled in London on the 26th ulto. Susan B. Anthony is a delegate from the United States.

While defending a fugitive of their own race from arrest, last week, three negroes were killed at Birmingham, Alabama.

A trust has been organized to control the world's supply of peanuts. It will be chartered as the American Edible Nut Company, and has a capitalized value of $5,000,000.

A letter purporting to be written by Andree, but having on it the ear-marks of fraud, has been washed ashore on the Norwegian coast. According to this letter there is no hope for believing that the explorer is alive.

The Venezuelan Arbitration Committee was again in session last week. Sir Richard Webster, the British Attorney-General, continued the presentation of England's side of the case.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies, on the 30 ulto., was the scene of a fierce uproar, personal encounters and a general melee resulting from the obstructive tactics of the Socialists and Extreme Leftists.

Florence Nightingale kept her eightieth birthday week before last in her home in London. She is in feeble health, but still follows with much interest the course of all movements for ameliorating the condition of the human family, in which for so many years she was such an ardent worker. It is interesting to notice that Clara Barton, who is yet active in her peaceful warfare, is only a little more than ten years the junior of her English co-worker.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS OF ANY KIND to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Anyone with anything to advertise will find this column a valuable medium for securing buyers. A five-line advertisement of thirty-five words costs only 25 cents, cash with order. Additional lines at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.

BOARDERS Wanted.—At the charming, health-restoring, cool summer resort, on the top of the Alleghany Mountains. Fine lawn, shade trees, broad piazzas, beautiful walks and drives, excellent table. Terms reasonable. Address

Sarah C. Harris, Mountain-lake Park, Md.

WANTED.—A man Friend, as principal of The Oakwood Seminary, the Boarding School of New York Yearly Meeting. Must have experience in governing and in teaching sciences. Address

Carolena M. Wood, Mt. Kisco, N. Y.

DESIRABLE RESIDENCE For Sale.—Seven rooms, cellar, and out-buildings, and large lot fronting College campus. Excellent educational facilities. Near Yearly Meeting House. Inquiries cheerfully answered.

P. O. Box 571, Wilmington, Ohio.

A YOUNG WOMAN Friend, graduate of Miss Hunter's Training School wishes a position as Kindergarten. Address

Annie C. Sherman,
617 W. 147th St., New York City.

WANTED. Principal in Friends' Academy, at Ackworth, Iowa. Desirable lots may be bought near by, on reasonable terms, for those wishing to build. Correspondence solicited.

WM. MORGAN, Ackworth, Iowa.

FOR SALE. My claim, improvements, stock, crops, etc., situated $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles from Stella Friends' Academy, near Cherokee, Okla. Write me, ISAAC M. POLLOCK, Cherokee, Woods Co., Oklahoma.

A YOUNG woman (Friend) of experience wishes to engage to teach young children at their homes by the hour. Good references. Address, S., care THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

STUDENTS, Teachers and others wishing employment in agency work for the summer should address THE UNION BOOK AND BIBLE HOUSE, M. Z. KIRK, Manager, Denver, Colo.

WANTED.—To correspond with a live business man who wants to come South and put his time and money in a paying business.

Address J. R. Y., 202 Lewis Street,
Greensboro, N. C.

SUMMER BOARD in a Friend's family. Pleasant location on a farm four miles from Amesbury, Mass. Rooms large and airy. Terms reasonable. Address, ANNA M. GOVE, Box 88, Seabrook, N. H.

PENMANSHIP. Plain and ornamental of every kind, at reasonable prices. Marriage certificates and diplomas a specialty. Correspondence solicited. JOHN COLLINS

702 North 43d Street, Philadelphia.

FOR RENT.—Large house, for private family of party. Nine bedrooms, recently furnished; open fireplaces, wide piazzas, fine fruit and shade trees, high ground, abundant supply pure water, open plumbing. Electric cars to Beach pass the house. Address, L. A. GOVE, Box 27, Hampton Falls, N. H.

YOUNG LADY.—Friend, (A.M.), experienced teacher, desires a position in college or school, Friends' preferred. Best references. Address F,

AMERICAN FRIEND.

SUBSCRIBERS.—who wish to spare their copies of THE AMERICAN FRIEND of First-month Twelfth and Twenty-Sixth of the current year, will greatly favor the publishers by sending the same to this office. Our issues of these dates have been exhausted. THE AMERICAN FRIEND
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Baldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,
REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,
REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.
RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.
REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.
REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.
REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,
Chairman Executive Committee.
CHARLES H. BOND,
General Secretary.

THE DEAD BEE.

Dead amid the dewy clover
Lies a bonny little rover
Who could shape his course afar,
Without compass, without star.

Nevermore across the azure
Shall he sail in search of treasure;
Nevermore, when day is gone,
Home shall hie his galleon,

From the jonquil's golden chalice,
And the lily's ivory palace,
And the violets' divine
Cups of white and purple wine.

Smile, smile on, thou faithless summer,
To forget thine early-comer.
Say, if thou hadst first departed.
Had he still been merry-hearted?

On the boughs in rapture swinging,
Gleefully the birds are singing.
I, who mourn thee, little bee,
Will pronounce thine elegy:

Be it meetness or unmeetness,
Thou didst garner up life's sweetness,
Wiser than sages wist;
Earth has one less optimist.
—Alice Lena Cole in May "Century."

GENIUS IN DISTRESS.

Homer was a beggar; Terence was a slave; Paul Borghese had fourteen trades, yet starved with them all; Tasso was often distressed for five shillings; Bentivoglio was refused admittance into a hospital he had himself erected; Bacon lived a life of distress; Sir Walter Raleigh died on the scaffold; Spenser died in want; Milton sold his copyright of "Paradise Lost" for £15, three payments, and finished his life in obscurity; Dryden lived in poverty and distress; Steele lived a life of perfect warfare with bailiffs; Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" was sold for a trifle to save him from the grip of the law; Fielding lies in burying ground of the English factory at Lisbon, without a stone to mark the spot; Savage died in prison at Bristol, where he was confined for the debt of £8; Butler lived a life of penury and died poor. Chatterton, the child of genius and misfortune, destroyed himself.—'Church Weekly.'

Wool Soap

It's safe to use Wool
Soap—it keeps the skin
well.

Swift and Company, Makers,
Chicago

Pamphlets, Engravings, etc., issued by "The American Friend."

GEORGE FOX.

AN ADDRESS BY CHAS. H. SPURGEON
the celebrated English Clergyman, delivered to the Society of Friends in Devonshire House Meeting House, Bishopsgate Street, London, on Third day Evening, Eleventh month sixth, 1866.

An attractive pamphlet of 48 pages.

Price, 10c., postage paid.

ENGRAVINGS OF

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING HOUSE

As it appeared in 1844.

An excellent reproduction of the photograph of the original painting. Printed on superfine coated book paper. Size 6 x 9½ in.

Referring to the engraving an elderly Friend recently said: "I am peculiarly interested in having one, as it seems so true to life, as I have often in my youthful days been one of the panoramic medley whose hearts seemed to enjoy a social and religious feast at these annual gatherings."

Price, single copies, 10c.; 20 copies, $1, postage paid.

THE QUAKERS

AS MAKERS OF AMERICA

A SERMON delivered by

DR. DAVID GREGG,

The well-known Presbyterian Minister of
Brooklyn, N. Y.

A beautifully designed pamphlet with deckle-edge cover.

Price, 10c., postage paid.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF

ARCH STREET MEETING HOUSE

In Philadelphia.

By special arrangement with the photographer
we are able to offer our readers a limited number of photographs of this interesting and historic building at a very low price. The pictures measure 4 x 9½ ins., and are mounted on black face, gilt-edged cards 7½ x 13 ins.

Price, 25c., postage paid.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, PHILADELPHIA.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

SUMMER RESORTS.

HOTEL DENNIS.

DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN FRONT.
OPEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Modern in every detail.
Purest artesian water from private well.
Rooms single and en suite, with bath.

JOSEPH H. BORTON

HOTEL MORTON.

Virginia Ave., Atlantic City.
Near the Beach.

Close to the new steel pier Elevator to Street level; steam heat; hot and cold baths. Special rates for Spring. Homelike and attractive. Open throughout the year.

MARY T. HAINES.
N. R. HAINES.
Late of Chalfonte

The Archdale,

136 South Maryland Avenue,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

"An elegant house near the beach; ocean view cheerful rooms; just newly furnished; very desirable for Friends."
MARY J. BUNDY

PRESTON'S SUNNYSIDE

Wernersville, Pa.

The highest resort on the Mountain. Magnificent scenery; pure water; excellent table. Booklet.
JAMES H. PRESTON.

One of the pluckiest of war correspondents is James Creelman, who was wounded at El Caney in the last charge. He gives a curious account in the "Cosmopolitan Magazine" of how certain tunes haunted him in each battle. He says:

In every battle that I go through I somehow get a melody in my head, and hum it to the end of the action. I suppose it is the result of nervous excitement. All through the battle and massacre of Port Arthur, in the Japanese War, I hummed an air from Mendelssohn's "Springtime," and during the shell-fire I found myself actually shrieking it.

When I started in the charge on Fort Caney I began to hum "Rock of Ages," and I couldn't get rid of the tune, even when I was lying among the dying of Chaffee's brigade in the hospital camp. I remember that when General Chaffee bent over me, after I had been shot, and asked me how I was, I couldn't answer until I had finished, in my mind, one phrase of "Rock of Ages."

UNCLE SAM'S HOT BATHS.

The Hot Springs of Arkansas, via Southern Railway.

Will eradicate from your system the lingering effects of grip and other ailments caused by the severe winter, and malaria, rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, stomach, kidney, liver and nervous disorders, paralysis, blood and skin diseases, and chronic and functional derangements. The mountain climate of Hot Springs is cool and delightful in summer. 100 Hotels open the year around.

For illustrated literature, containing all information, address C. F. Cooley, Manager Business Men's League, Hot Springs, Ark.

For reduced excursion tickets and particulars of the trip, address W. A. Turk, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Southern Railway, Washington, D. C., or Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 828 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

According to a paper recently communicated to the Academie des Sciences, Paris, M. Phisalix has found that some kinds of mushroom afford a vaccine against the venom of snakes. The juice of the mushroom renders a person immune against vipers for a month or two.

Inauguration Pullman Library Observation Cars on the Washington Southwestern Limited, Trains Nos. 37 and 38—via Southern Railway.

Commencing June 1st, Pullman Library Observation cars will be operated on SOUTHERN RAILWAY'S WASHINGTON and SOUTHWESTERN LIMITED, trains No. 37 and 38, between New York, Philadelphia and Atlanta, Ga.

These trains also carry through Pullman drawing room sleeping cars between New York, Philadelphia, and Atlanta, Ga., New Orleans, La., Birmingham, Ala., Memphis, Chattanooga, and Nashville, Tenn. Dining cars serve all meals on these trains.

The addition of Pullman Library Observation Cars to these luxurious trains affords irreproachable service between the East and the principal points South and Southwest via the Southern Railway.

The Washington and Southwestern Limited leaves Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, at 6.55 p.m., daily.

For tickets, sleeping car reservations, and any further information, address Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, 628 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

CHAUTAUQUA.

Low-Rate Excursion via Pennsylvania Railroad.

On July 7 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will run a special excursion from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Reading, Altoona, Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre, Sunbury, and Williamsport, and principal intermediate stations, and stations on the Delaware Division, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, and on the Cumberland Valley Railroads to Chautauqua, N. Y. Special train will start from Harrisburg, at 11.35 a.m. Connecting trains will leave Philadelphia 8.40 a.m., Washington 7.55 a.m., Baltimore 8.55 a.m., Altoona 7.15 a.m., Wilkesbarre 7.30 a.m., Lock Haven 11.25 a.m. Round trip tickets, good to return on regular trains not later than August 5, will be sold at rate of $10.00 from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, and at proportionate rates from other stations.

Passengers from Atlantic City, Bridgeton, Vineland, Clayton, N. J., and stations on the Delaware Division, will use trains to Philadelphia on day preceding date of excursion.

For specific rates and time of connecting trains apply to nearest ticket agent.

What Recent Bible Study has done for the Christian Believer

By DR. RICHARD H. THOMAS

An Address delivered before the Annual Meeting of Friends' First-day School Association, held at Twelfth Street Meeting House, Philadelphia, during the Session of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, Fourth month 18, 1899.

Price, 5 cents, postage paid.

JOHN C. WINSTON & CO.,
718 Arch Street Philadelphia

Children have more need of models than of critics.—Joubert.

Mrs. Rakestraw: "So you've finished reading the biography of that statesman. Well, what did he finally die of?" Rakestraw: "Why, of this here new disease that we read so much about lately. I see by the heading of the chapter that the last thirty pages in the book is about the appendix."

A New England school-teacher received the following note of caution from the anxious mother of one of her pupils: "Dear Miss, please do not push Johnny too hard for so much of his brain is intellect that he ought to be held back a good deal or he will run to intellect entirely an I do not desire this. So please hold him back so as to keep his intellect from getting bigger than his body an injoining him for life."—"Harper's Bazar."

EDUCATIONAL.

MISS BALDWIN'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
BRYN MAWR, PA.

Preparatory to Bryn Mawr College.

MISS FLORENCE BALDWIN, Principal. Within eight years more than ninety pupils have entered Bryn Mawr College from this school. Diplomas given in both general and College Preparatory Courses. Fine, fire-proof stone building. 25 acres beautiful grounds. For circular, address the Secretary.

Oakwood Seminary.

A Boarding School for Boys and Girls, under the charge of the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends. Beautifully situated on Cayuga Lake. Large buildings. Terms reasonable. Autumn term begins September 19th, 1899. For catalogues address
HENRY A. WHITE, S.B., Supt.,
Union Springs, New York.

MARTIN ACADEMY.

Kennett Square, Pennsylvania.
Under care of Friends' Primary, Intermediate and Academic Departments. Thorough work, liberal course, expenses low. For catalogue, address
EDGAR STINSON, M.Sc., Principal.

WHY THE LARGEST?

Forty-five years of constant and healthful progress has put the

New England CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

of Boston, Mass., at the top (both in size and standing) of musical institutions in America. Comprehensive in plan, moderate in price, thorough in practice and famous for results.

GEO. W. CHADWICK, Musical Director.
FRANK W. HALE, General Manager. Send for an illustrated catalogue.

MASON'S
CREAM OF OLIVES OINTMENT

HOUSEHOLD	CURES CATARRH	BICYCLERS
	" " MUMPS, CROUP, CAKED BREAST.
	" " FIRE & SUN BURN, CHAFING.
	" " BUNIONS & TIRED FEET.
	" " CHAPPED FACE, LIPS & HANDS.
	" " SAFE REMEDY FOR PILES.
	ALL DRUGGISTS OR MAILED FOR 25¢
	H.T. MASON CHEMICAL CO. 515 Arch St. PHILA. PA.
	SAFE · SPEEDY · SURE

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest menaces to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

"Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S Carbonated Root Beer

Refreshing Summer Drink.
Large—so-called quart—bottle.

12c.; $1.35 Doz.

Case of 2 dozen $2.70, less 45c. for return of bottles and case.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,
121, 123, 125 North Eighth St.,
and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada.

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.
Window Shades Made to Order.
902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

The Book Association of Friends,
20 S. TWELFTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, has for sale and gratuitous distribution, on approval of Committee, several books—and a good assortment of tracts. For catalogues apply as above.

Don't Walk

On the side of your foot,— get rid of the corn. It's easy
if you have A-CORN Salve,
15c. box. Your druggist or by mail.
GIANT CHEMICAL CO.,
305 Cherry Street, Phila.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S Breakfast Cocoa

Costs less than One Cent a cup.

Be sure that the Package bears our Trade-Mark.

A Perfect Food. Pure, Nutritious, Delicious.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Limited.

Established 1780.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

TRADE-MARK.

A UNITED STATES WALL MAP

FREE

A copy of our handsome map
48 x 34 inches, printed in colors and
mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in
postage to pay for packing and transportation.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, C. B. & Q. R.
R., Chicago, Ill.

The Union
Trust Co. invites conferences with parties having business which may require the employment of a

Financial Agent or Appointment of Trustee or Assignee.

All such conferences are strictly confidential.

OFFICERS:

President, J. SIMPSON AFRICA.
Vice-President, THOMAS R. PATTON,
Treas. and Sec., WILLIAM J. CLARK,
Trust Officer, PERCY B. METZER.

715, 717 and 719 Chestnut Street.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are invited to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

Spring and Summer Fabrics now ready.

GUSTAVUS GOLZE,
Merchant Tailor,
123 N. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 il-
lustrations, 5 cts.
A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.
Grand Canon of Ari-
zona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.
Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T. & S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION,

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.

USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT, 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The American Friend

122 South 12th Street
 Mary T. Peck
 PHILADELPHIA
 1899-1900

Vol. VI

SEVENTH MONTH 13, 1899

No. 28

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
POEM—The Dawn of Peace	651
Bertha C. Thorne.
EDITORIALS.—Things Which Cannot Be Shaken.—Friends in Nebraska.— The Proposed International Court.	652-653
Church Notes	653
A Call for a Matron at Victoria, Mexico	654
POEM.—Good Night.	654
Alfred Austin,
Deliverance and Vision	654
Wm. Elliot Griffis.
London Yearly Meeting in 1899. . . .	656
Nebraska Friends.	656
M. Z. Kirk.
Work in Northern Michigan.	658
THE INTERNATIONAL LESSON	659
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT . .	660
California Yearly Meeting	662
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	664
MARRIAGES.	666
DEATHS	666
NEWS AND EVENTS	666
JOTTINGS.	667

THE DESIRE OF NATIONS.

"And the Government shall be upon His shoulders, and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God and Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."—Isaiah.

*Earth will go back to her lost youth,
 And life grow deep and wonderful as truth,
 When the wise king out of the nearing heaven comes
 To break the spell of long millenniums—
 To build with song again
 The broken hope of men,
 To hush and heroize the world,
 Beneath the flag of brotherhood unfurled ;
 And He will come some day—
 Already is His star upon the way.
 He comes, O world, He comes !
 But not with bugle cry nor roll of doubling drums.*

*Nay, for He comes to loosen and unbind,
 To build the lofty purpose in the mind,
 To stir the heart's deep chord ;
 No rude horns parleying, no shock of shields,
 Nor, as of old, the glory of the Lord,
 To half awakened shepherds in the fields,
 Looking with foolish faces on the rush
 Of the great splendor when the pulsing hush
 Came O'er the hills, came o'er the heavens afar,
 Where on their cliff of stars the watching seraphs are.*

*He will arrive, our Counsellor and Chief,
 And with bleak faces lighted up will come
 The earth-worn mothers from their martyrdom,
 To tell him of their grief.
 And glad girls, carolling from field and town,
 Will go to meet Him with the labor crown,—
 A new crown woven of the heading wheat,—
 And men will sit down at His sacred feet,
 And He will say, the King,
 "Come let us live the poetry we sing !"
 And these, His burning words will break the ban—
 Words that will grow to be
 On Continent, on sea,
 The rallying cry of man.*

—EDWIN MARKHAM.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❁ ❁ ❁ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
 AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

Summer Wash Skirts

These very low prices for superior Skirts indicate the reason of our leadership as women's outfitters:

Pique Skirts—of good quality, cut full, and finished down the front with two rows of insertion—an excellent value at $1.25.

Linen Skirts—made of pure Irish fabric; generously cut, finished with deep hem and stylishly draped—at $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00; our own make.

Duck Skirts—with black and white and blue and white polka dots, trimmed with three bands around the bottom—special value at $1.50 each.

Household Linens

—In the Great Summer Sale:

Extra Heavy Unbleached Bath Towels—24 by 52 inches; were 20 cents—now 15 cents each.

A lot of salesman's Sample Towels—soiled, in hucks and damask, with knotted fringe, hemmed and hemstitched—at greatly reduced prices.

17-inch Heavy Brown Toweling—all-linen, the 10c. kind—at 6c. a yard.

70-inch Full Bleached Table Linen reduced from 75c. to 50c. a yard.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate attention.

Address orders to "Department CC."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.*MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED. Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS. & SAWYER, 311 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.

All inquiries concerning our city and country have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance, par value $100.

Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.

Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It tells how to obtain, free, the famous Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Why Most People Eat this Bread.

Pillsbury's Best Flour is the favorite with the two largest classes of buyers--those who want the best at any price and those who want the most for their money. A barrel of Pillsbury's Best will make not only better bread, but also more loaves than will a barrel of other flour.

PILLSBURY-WASHBURN FLOUR MILLS CO., LTD., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

MAKERS OF PILLSBURY'S VITOS.

FINANCIAL.ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers
Have Tested
Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

The American Friend

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

VOL. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, SEVENTH MONTH 13, 1899.

No. 28.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
THE AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,
718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

RUFUS M. JONES, EDITOR.

Price, payable in advance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.
Single Copies, - - - - Five Cents each.

For THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE DAWN OF PEACE.

In the fading gleam of the twilight
I stood by the ocean's sands;
And its voice like a mighty organ rose,
Wakened by unseen hands.

As the long white line of the billows
On the gray shore-rocks was hurled,
It seemed like the throb of a nation's heart
That was echoing round the world.

For War's red tide was ebbing
From Liberty's sunlit shore,
And the blood-bought islands ceased to ring
With the cannon's thundering roar.

The promise of peace was flooding
The gloom with a wave of light.
It shattered the battle's blinding smoke
Like the dawn through the clouds of night.

On soaring pinions an anthem
Of praise to the skies was borne;
For Oppression's night of rule had fled
From Freedom's kindling morn.

But beyond the swelling chorus,
Came the sound of a stifled moan;
The voice of a thousand heart-wrung sighs,
Over life's music thrown.

And I thought that words of thunder
Broke from the storm-dark skies—
"Is there no victory—no defeat—
Save where the soldier dies?"

"Go where life's sunlight is darkened
By the midnight gloom of Despair;
Where the trembling flowers of Hope are killed
In the foul sin-poisoned air;

"Where the Demon of Drink brings a struggle
From which death is the one release;
And the endless battle with want and woe
Mocks at your songs of peace.

"An angrier cloud is lowering
Than war's dread ranks dispel,
And a mightier force, with gathering power,
Will trample these flames of Hell.

"Oh! then, the peace sung by angels,
In the starlight, faint and wan,
Will fall, like a glory from Paradise,
For the world is marching on."

BERTHA C. THORNE.

Washington, D. C.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E.C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THINGS WHICH CANNOT BE SHAKEN.

IN this world of ours all our spiritual truths, all our eternal realities, have to be expressed in temporal, human and changing forms. No matter how pure and exalted the truths, its embodiment must be more or less imperfect. In fact, it is absolutely impossible to find a permanent and unvarying expression for any truth or for any idea. There have been stagnant centuries which have kept unchanged the crystallized forms which they inherited, and they have supposed that faith would cease to be if this particular form of truth should vanish away. The Pharisee could not imagine a true religion without circumcision and the blood of bulls and goats; the Roman Catholic of the fifteenth century could not believe that real religion would survive if the doctrine of trans-substantiation—the real Presence in the bread and wine—should be given up. The Calvinist supposed that his articles of faith were a permanent embodiment of truth and his plan of salvation the only possible one.

They all conceived of truth as something which could be expressed once for all in a form which all coming ages must keep unchanged. As well might we expect to bottle up the daylight to preserve it, or fix this infinite life about us in nature into one unchanging form, to be preserved through all seasons, years and centuries. The moment one tries to "fix" life and crystallize it into a set shape, it ceases to be life. The characteristic of life is its power to make its own form and expression, ever changing, ever developing, ever modifying its form, and yet keeping its essence. Truth is never some dead thing which can be "laid out;" it is living, moving, quickening, outgrowing its old forms, taking on new expressions and preserving itself, as life does, by endless variations and by infinite embodiments.

"The old order changes, yielding place to new,
And God fulfils Himself in many ways."

There are transitions going on in every age. The things that can be shaken are removed, and the things that have waxed old vanish away. These things always bring trial to faith, for it is difficult for most persons to distinguish between the temporary form—i.e., the human embodiment—and the eternal and abiding truth which lives on in the midst of change and vanishing forms.

Here comes the great test of spiritual power and insight. Those who have "short vision" and a traditional faith build on the temporal, and cling to the form which has grown familiar and dear to them, but if anything shakes this their faith is shattered, and they suffer shipwreck. Those, however, who have real spiritual vision look through the temporal and fleeting, through the transitory forms and embodiments, and settle their hearts and their faith upon the eternal reality,—the Infinite Self who abides and works through all changes. Their faith blooms in the midst of transition periods; they look calmly on while "the things that can be shaken" are being removed, and they have no fear when the things which have "waxed old" are vanishing away, for they know that those things which cannot be shaken must remain. There is no safety in this present time of transition and of changing form and expression to be found by closing the eyes or hiding the head in the sand, as the ostrich is said to do. The only safe and sure course is to reach through the outward and find the eternal, to rest back upon the everlasting arms, to have a personal initiation into the riches of the glory of this "mystery" "which is Christ in you, the hope of glory," to get free in the living truth. The things which we see are temporal, the things which the spiritual vision finds real are eternal.

FRIENDS IN NEBRASKA.

MAHLON KIRK's article on the Friends of Nebraska should prove interesting to all our readers, for it is the story of the recent "expansion" of Quakerism. There may be some who do not believe in this sort of expansion, but if so, they are persons who care only for Quakerism as a theory. The fact remains that while some good Friends have been wondering whether Quakerism has a future or not, and whether any mission remains for us to accomplish, a few faithful men and women who believed very much in God, and whose hearts burned for those who were living away from Christ, have been building up scores of meetings and transforming hundreds of homes in the great state of Nebraska. Probably not one of these earnest workers has ever asked whether Quakerism had a future or not. It never occurred to them to ask such a foolish question, because they were too busy doing the work which lay straight before them to bother their heads with abstract theories.

Their business was to proclaim the message, and to gather the people into working congregations and to increase the centres of light and truth through the state, and they believed the future would take care of itself. The expansion of any truth must be made by those who believe in it, never by those who are in doubt about it, and the moment a man believes in a thing with all his soul he finds that he must propagate it, and plant it where it will grow and expand.

We have not yet learned how to extend Quakerism in our great eastern cities, and all our growth, with some few exceptions has been in the country, while the most striking growth has been in countries where the settlement and civilization were new and recent.

The reason for the expansion of Quakerism in these newer regions is that those who have gone with it believed in it with all their soul, and believed that it was a message suited to the needs of the people to whom they carried it. They did not stop to question or to quibble, and they were not afraid of risking their truth in new soil or under new conditions. They sowed their truth broadcast and trusted the Lord, and the harvest has come and is still coming. In the cities and in the places where the civilization is older it is much harder to unbend and to get free from restraints and speak straight at the lives and hearts of men with an earnestness and power which convict and convince. Then, too, there are so many hedges of propriety, and so many walls of custom that the ways to men's hearts are much harder to find. Truth must come in a certain way, or it fails to find entrance. But the main trouble really is that we do not throw ourselves into the work with the same patient zeal, the same determination, and the same unquestioning which have won victories in the last few years in Nebraska and Oklahoma. The time has come, however, for us to meet this situation. It should be noticed that the old Quaker idea of carrying education and religion along together is maintained in both these new fields. The school goes next to the meeting-house; the church flourishes best when it grows up round the institution of learning. This truth has marked our history during this century, and Nebraska Friends have early realized it and started to work it out in their own field.

THE PROPOSED INTERNATIONAL COURT.

THE Conference at the Hague now has before it a very definite plan for an international court. The plan is headed "Draft of Convention for the Pacific Settlement of International Conflicts," and has been drawn up by the special committee to which this subject was referred.

It provides for an International Bureau, established at The Hague and placed under the direction of a permanent secretary. This Bureau will be an intermediary for communications concerning meetings of the Court. It also provides for the establishment of a Permanent Council, composed of the Diplomatic representatives at The Hague, and the Netherland Foreign Minister, who will be president of the Council. This Council will establish and direct the above-mentioned Bureau.

It will notify the Powers of the Constitution of the International Court, and draw up the regulations for the working of the tribunal. It will appoint and fix the salaries of all the employees needed in the operation of the tribunal except the judges themselves. The Council will address to each of the Powers an annual report of its administration and its expenditure.

For the formation of the Court itself each of the Powers shall appoint not more than four persons of recognized competence in international law, and of the highest moral character. The persons thus nominated will be entered as members of the Court, and their names sent by the Bureau to all the Powers. The members are to be appointed for six years, and the appointment may be renewed.

When two Powers have a "case" to be settled they shall select from this list a number of judges, to be fixed by agreement, who shall sit upon and decide the "case." The tribunal will generally sit at The Hague, but may sit elsewhere by consent of both contending parties. The expenses of the Bureau are to be shared by the Powers on a fixed proportion. There are many other details in the plan reported by the committee, but the above outline gives a fair idea of its scope and purpose. It has resulted from a study of the various "plans" which have been previously discussed, and it is as satisfactory as anything which could be adopted at this time. It remains to be seen whether the Conference will adopt it, and then whether the Powers will ratify it; but it is certain even now that the preparation of such a draft by the delegates of the great Powers is one of the greatest events in history, and it is surely the foregleam and rosy streak which promises a day of perpetual peace.

Many a failure to do one's duty might be traced to a failure to realize that there is never but one duty to be done at a time.

CHURCH NOTES.

The eighteenth annual international convention of Christian Endeavor Societies convened in Detroit, Mich., on the 5th. At the opening exercises telegrams expressing cordial interest in the proceedings were read from President McKinley and others.

On the afternoon of the 5th inst., Bishop John P. Newman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of San Francisco, died at Saratoga, N. Y., of pneumonia and myelitis. He was in his 73d year. Bishop Newman had for a long time been one of the most prominent and respected ministers in the Methodist denomination. His ministerial labors were best known in New York city, where he served as pastor of the Metropolitan Church for many years.

Just now several religious papers are discussing, and some are urging, the removal of women's bonnets while in church. Others oppose the effort which is being made in some places to compel the removal of the headgear, but still others wisely refrain from making it a subject of controversy by letting it alone.

In a personal letter to the editor of the "Christian Advocate," J. W. Crake, Superintendent of the Oldham (England) Wesley Circuit, expresses this sentiment: "The outlook is for us Methodists a very cheering one. The interest in our Twentieth Century Fund does not diminish, and we are confident that we shall raise the million guineas. I hope you will be successful with your larger scheme." It will be remembered that the "larger scheme" of the Methodists in America is the raising of a fund of $20,000,000.

The General Association of Congregational Ministers of Connecticut, held at New Haven week before last, passed resolutions on the subject of divorce, in which it declared for uniform legislation throughout the length and breadth of the land, and particularly advised Congregational ministers to exercise great discretion before consenting to officiate at the marriage of any divorced person. This latter caution was called forth by a very flagrant instance not long since of a Congregational minister uniting in marriage a wealthy New York couple on the day immediately following that on which the bride had secured a divorce from her former husband.

Bishop Thoburn, a missionary of the Methodists to India, who is on a visit to the country, says that there is an open door for missionary service in the East. In fact, he considers that the trial of his life has been the constant spectacle of the wide open doors in India, and the inability of missionaries to enter on account of a lack of means for properly carrying on the work.

At the recent meeting of the Lutheran General Synod at York, Pa., 1,545 churches were represented. The contributions for missions and other benevolent purposes during the past two years amounted to $477,- 135. The Lutheran Church is the fifth largest in America of the great family of religious denominations. In 1898 it was credited with 1,517,318 members.

The new board of the Doshisha College, in Japan, is composed of several Japanese business men and pastors. They have unanimously declared their intention to hold all the properties in trust to carry out the wishes and purposes of the original founders.

According to late statistics, there are 148 denominations. Of these only 29 have a membership of 100,000 or over. The Friends, in 1898, stood thirteenth in rank in numerical strength.

The annual meeting of the National Missionary Union has been in session at Clifton Springs, N. Y. Representatives of the Christian faith from all parts of the world and of many denominations were present.

The offer of J. Pierpont Morgan to light the interior of St. Paul's Cathedral has been accepted. It is estimated that the cost of this will be about $25,000.

A CALL FOR A MATRON AT VICTORIA, MEXICO.

There is an urgent need for a matron for the Girls' School at Victoria, Mexico, for the next year. The position affords an opportunity for most efficient missionary work in a foreign land. The matron will be expected to have charge of all the details of the boarding department, the care of fifteen or twenty girls out of school hours, and to assist in the religious work of the mission.

It is the purpose of this school to lead all these girls to Christ and to train them in Christian life and character.

For further particulars apply to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

GOOD-NIGHT.

Good-night! Now dwindle wan and low
The embers of the afterglow,
And slowly over leaf and lawn
Is twilight's dewy curtain drawn.
The slouching vixen leaves her lair,
And, prowling, sniffs the tell-tale air.
And frogs croak louder in the dyke,
And all the trees seem dark alike;
The bee is drowsing in the comb,
The sharded beetle hath gone home:
Good-night!

Good-night! The hawk is in his nest,
And the last rook hath dropped to rest.
There is no hum, no chirp, no bleat,
No rustle in the meadow-sweet.
The woodbine, somewhere out of sight,
Sweetens the loneliness of night.
The Sister Stars, that once were seven,
Mourn for their missing mate in Heaven.
The poppy's fair frail petals close,
The lily yet more languid grows,
And dewy-dreamy droops the rose:
Good-night!

—Alfred Austin.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

DELIVERANCE AND VISION.

BY WILLIAM ELLIOT GRIFFIS.

I remember once seeing a jeweler about to enamel a gold ring. I had seen and tried the effect of fire upon the kind of "diamonds" that are made in Paris—One touch of the flame, and they boiled into blackness and melted into worthlessness. I was to learn that with the true gems it was different.

He first set the precious stones, and then laid the enamel in strips and bands in the surrounding gold. Then he took a long pair of tongs, and, laying the ring upon a hollow mandrel of iron, he, to my horror, set it for several minutes on a bed of glowing coals in a furnace. I gazed at him and it with anxiety, as he also watched with keenness the action of the heat, which converted ground mineral powder of dead hue into permanent bands of glowing color.

As he lifted it out, I expected to see a mass of more or less ruined stone or bubbles of black paste; but no! When the red-hot gold cooled off, there were the brilliants with every facet still gleaming. They had shown themselves adamant, true diamonds—that is, literally, the unconquerable.

Now, while the Bible is in the furnace of criticism, it is well to remember that its substance is adamant. In the literary history of a book—or library—and even in its own statements of history, we must expect revision, which, indeed, every version is. Nevertheless, that which in the Bible best answers to the heart of man, to feed and lift it up to God, is impregnable to criticism and will never be changed or disturbed. Amid the fires of criticism here is a real salamander. Happy they who know and feel this.

Take for example Psalm 146. It stands without title or label or note of chronology. It breathes the joy of return, of enlarged spiritual vision. History requires dates; poetry is undated; this Psalm is perfect poetry. Its beauty is yesterday, to-day and forever. Criticism cannot touch it. It expresses not fact, but truth.

Fact is only of yesterday or to-day. It may be dead, "stranded on the shores of the oblivious years," but truth is not only past and present, but for eternity. It never wears out, and the human heart which feeds upon truth is the one unchangeable thing on earth, the peerless and ancient conservative. No wonder that God gave so much of His revelation in that form of truth which is independent of fashions of speech, or of science, so-called, or of theories that change with the minds that make them.

As the Book of Psalms is "the first among all the records of the experiences of the human soul," so each Psalm is a crystal of human experience. Rather, each inspired poem is as a flower which gathers up out of earthly material and spiritualizes it into color and perfume. The chemist can yield us the facts by analysis. He shows us the earth's components of man's or the lily's body. Only God can give us the truth in the flower's life. Psalm 146 is a pink lotus of poetry springing up out of heart-soil, and the message in verses seven and eight is akin to that in the prophecy of Isaiah 61: 1-3, which Jesus read in the synagogue as the consummate flower of the Old Testament, "The Lord looseneth the prisoners, the Lord openeth the eyes of the blind."

Now it requires the experience of a life to interpret some of the Psalms fully; yes, even the experiences of a race are needed. Then their value and their beauty do but deepen; the harmonies are more felt and appreciated.

Look at these verses again. The Lord gives release and vision. Here is an epitome of the Bible and of religion. Is not most of the Old Testament story one of imprisonment and captivity and of release and return? And is the New Testament very different?

The Bible is largely a prison book, and written in prison by holy men, who were convicts, but not criminals. What were Joseph, Sampson, Jeremiah and unnamed hundreds of others? What was all Israel when in Egypt, when groaning under the Philistines, by the rivers of Babylon, or under Greek and Roman fetters? Look at Peter and John, Paul and Silas in prison. Read Paul's signature, "Prisoner of Jesus Christ." Look at the Lord of glory—a convict, but not a criminal.

No wonder that the keynote of the Bible is deliverance. No wonder the first, simplest, grandest, and still the most appealing, form of the theory of the Atonement is that of rescue and deliverance. Jesus Christ was manifested that He might destroy—that is, unbind—the works of the Devil. The whole Bible is saturated with the idea of deliverance. Jesus got at the heart of the Old Testament when, in the synagogue, He read of proclaiming liberty to the captive and the opening of the prison-house to them that were bound. As in a saturated solution one touch makes the liquid crystal, so Jesus fulfilled at one reading the whole Scripture.

I trust we all visit prisons sometimes, for Jesus is there. He said, "I was in prison and ye visited Me." What an experience—to be shut off from the world! It may be monotony, oppression, living death, "a dead man out of mind." Yet so also is imprisonment within the body, as in blindness and disease. We have not our liberty.

Indeed, is not all unused power, of which we are conscious, a species of imprisonment, and is not liberty not only another name for opportunity? Are not all who are "hedged in," "sailing under sealed orders," "under ban," or hampered by personal or family or national limitation, prisoners? Are not childhood, barbarism, ignorance, bigotry, only other forms of blindness or imprisonment?

Filled with consciousness of power, yet with limitations, ambitions, with lack of opportunity, we have before us "the problems of life." The bird born in captivity of parents inheriting instincts of migration will, at the season of flight, beat its breast bare and bloody in efforts to obey the law of its being. So in human life, noble spirits urged on to a higher career of freedom chafe and fret; or, obedient to the still higher law of faith, they possess the soul in patience.

Shakespeare has pictured "the seven ages of man." Robertson, the Shakespeare of preachers, has discoursed of "the illusoriness of life." By them we are shown that what lures us on from childhood to boyhood does not satisfy us. As our eyes are opened we are led on by other seeming prizes, and thus further forward through the whole race; for "man never is, but always to be blest."

Some would be sad and grief-stricken because this is the law of life. But is not, and ought not, true life to be a series of enlargements, releases and deliverances? Passing out from the weakness of infancy, from the ignorance of childhood, the passion of early manhood, and led on to "the philosophic mind," brought by the years, and into serene old age rich in faith, is there not in all these more light, more freedom?

Even in the upward struggle from barbarism to civilization, it is the Lord that is loosing the prisoners and opening the eyes of the blind. Fettered and limited, with filmed or blinded eye, amid the mysteries of life and of the universe, how pathetic is the record on the face of a venerable savage! What a meaning have the wrinkles on an old peasant's brow! Yet there is One that knows the frame even of the savage and the barbarian, who knows, too, that man is dust, and pities while He yet lifts him up. Looking at the human story of struggle and of triumph, we see it grandly typified in the lion of Zealand, "luctor et emergo," I struggle, but I emerge.

Indeed, is not all science, when rightly so-called, and all education, the giving of sight and release? Prejudices are fetters. First impressions are usually veils or manacles—especially to those who proudly boast that theirs are "always correct."

Look at Paul with a viper on his hand. Do not the Melita barbarians think him a criminal? This is because their minds are under the bondages of prejudice. Ignorance, bigotry, and even tradition may lie upon us in forged links, though we know it not. Some book, some sermon, travel, experiment, may break the fetters and open the eyes of the blind. Above all, the Bible rightly read is the great emancipator and bringer of day. "The entrance of Thy words giveth light." Laus Deo!

Ithaca, N. Y.

In a fable of the Magic Skin, it gave the wearer power to get any thing he wanted, but every time he gratified his wishes, the skin shrank and compressed him into smaller dimensions until, by and by, with the last wish life itself was crushed out. The Magic Skin is Selfishness. It is a great thing to learn to say "No" to one's self, instead of indulging every whim and wish, even though there be nothing sinful in it. There was no necessary wrong to Moses in his inheriting the royal treasures and enjoying the pleasures of Egypt, so far as they were not in themselves sinful; but Moses had a high vocation, and these would have been hindrances; so he renounced them.—A. T. Pier-son, D.D.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

LONDON YEARLY MEETING IN 1899.

Passing by ordinary matters of routine, always a little dry, we mention some of the most salient points of interest, among which we notice the Doukhobors concern as it was finally reported and disposed of. The report of the committee showed an astonishing amount of labor and sacrifice of time and means for the help of this afflicted people. Their removal from Russian oppression to Canada will constitute one of the brightest chapters in the annals of Quaker philanthropy, in which this Yearly Meeting has so long been conspicuous. The Doukhobors have received such sympathetic notices, and their refusal to bear arms for conscience' sake has so often been before American Friends, through the press, that extended notice here is not needed; but as the report came in the same day that the Peace work of the Yearly Meeting was considered, a pessimist would have felt decidedly out of place. Then the deputation to the conference at The Hague gave a succinct statement of their visit, and how cordially they were received by Baron De Staël and the heads of the British and American delegations, and how intensely practical has become the arbitration and peace principles in the eyes of the conference, so long considered Utopian when regarded only as Quaker fancies!

One can imagine how the long list of worthies, from William Penn to John Bright, would be enjoying the spectacle when looking from above, and they realized that their efforts were not in vain as they labored through generations to influence churches, statesmen and ministers in favor of the "Gospel of Peace" as the cure for strife and war.

The ministry, in one form or other, occupied two sittings of the Yearly Meeting on Ministry and Oversight, and much of two sessions of the Yearly Meeting at large. London Friends have arisen to the demand of the hour, and are grappling with the question of the ministry as perhaps never before. The subject was handled in a masterly manner and without gloves. There is only one minister to each meeting in London Yearly Meeting if they were distributed. Over one-half were more than sixty years of age—"one-half minister in prime of life to each meeting." Some meetings have ten ministers, others none.

There have been few inducements for young people to enter the ministry.

Sometimes several years of apprenticeship and much red-tape have been necessary before they could be recorded as ministers.

We are unable to do justice to the calm, temperate, though incisive addresses of W. C. Braithwaite, J. Fife Stewart and others. We were assured that such an arraignment of the conditions of the ministry a few years ago would only have called forth a strong remonstrance, but now they are ready for any suggestion, and are anxious to do justice to the whole question, as it affects the very life of the church. Closely connected with the ministry, the right holding of meetings for worship came in for its share of attention.

Discussing the report of the committee having regard to the relation of adult schools and missions to the regular Friends' meeting, the facts were potent that the meetings having the most adult schools and mission work were those that grew and were most healthy, notwithstanding the ludicrous came to the front when it was seen that many who will not admit of any singing in a morning meeting on First-day will be found at the evening meeting giving out hymns and leading congregational singing, etc., notwithstanding it is admitted generally that the mission meetings are the freest, liveliest and most feeding meetings they have—just such as would help to build up their own young people and keep them in the church.

A long step forward was gained when the Preparative Meeting, now called the Local Congregation, was given authority to manage its own local affairs and admit attenders of missions to such privileges as may seem to them right.

JOHN F. HANSON.

NEBRASKA FRIENDS.

BY M. Z. KIRK.

Probably very few readers of THE AMERICAN FRIEND know that there are over 1,000 Friends in Nebraska. In looking over the records we find that the first settlement in this state was at Pleasant Ridge, in Filmore County. This meeting was set up in Sixth month, 1873, by a committee from Bear Creek Quarter, Iowa. Jesse Griffith was the resident minister, and the following families were among the pioneers: Wm. F. Angstead, David Hadley, Cyrus McPherson and A. J. Thomas.

NEBRASKA CENTRAL COLLEGE.

In 1879 Triumph Monthly Meeting was organized, ten miles east of Pleasant Ridge, in Saline County.

Early in the 80's a number of Friends from Pleasant Plain and Oskaloosa settled in Northeastern Nebraska, in Dixon County. Spring Bank Meeting was set up in 1881. This became a Monthly Meeting a little later.

It has since grown into a Quarterly Meeting, with a membership of 350, and is composed of four meetings, Spring Bank, Elk Valley, Kemme, and Highland. It is 125 miles from Spring Bank to Highland, which is in Boyd County, on the old Ponca Indian Reservation. There is certainly a great future for this Quarter, since it touches such a large area, and it has 140 Christian Endeavorers. Among the pioneers in this Quarter were Aaron Smith, Wm. Ellis, John Bales, John L. Emery, Aaron Roberts and others.

In 1889 the tide of emigration extended to the extreme western line of Nebraska. A number of Friends settled in Dundy, Chase and Perkins Counties. Hiawatha Meeting was set up early in 1889, and a Monthly Meeting was established in the fall of 1889. For some time this was a very prosperous Quarter, and at one time it was composed of eight Monthly Meetings. A few years later Friends, as well as others, found that this territory was better adapted to stock raising than farming, so many of them left. The Quarter is now composed of four meetings,—Hiawatha, Pleasant Valley, Douglas and Greenfield, with a total membership of about 150.

The present centre of Quakerism in Nebraska is in Platte Valley Quarter, at Central City, on the U. P. R. R. and B. M., 135 miles west of Omaha. Benjamin Compton, of Clinton County, Ohio, settled near the town of Alda, just west of Grand Island, in an early time. For some years he worked with other churches, but never felt free to leave Friends. He occasionally had Friends' ministers to preach at their schoolhouse, and had often urged Herbert J. Mott to hold a series of meetings there. Finally the latter felt a call to go to this schoolhouse and begin a series of meetings. He lived at Hastings at that time, and during the hard times money was very scarce. When he received this call he had but two dollars, and he gave one to his wife and spent seventy-five cents of the other in going on the train to hold this meeting. Here he began preaching the gospel in a neighborhood where there was but one Friends' family, but the work was wonderfully blessed, and in the fall of 1894 Hiawatha Quarter established three Monthly Meetings in Hall County,—Alda, Centre and Schauppsville. The great majority of these people have come to Friends by conviction, and have seen but few eastern Quakers. These meetings have been established to fill their particular needs, and they have certainly done so. Some Friends who have been raised in older states and in old, well-established meetings would fail to find all the peculiarities and customs here that they had been used to, and some would rise up and say, "That isn't Quakerism," but we are free to say that these same critics have never accomplished one-fourth as much for Christ and Quakerism with the same limited resources. No man who has not undergone the poverty and privations of the frontier has any right to stand up in his abundance and dictate that because the customs are so and so in old meetings and large cities they shall be exactly the same in the new meetings and on the prairie.

Many of these new members appreciate the real principles of Friends much more than some of our birthright members. About two years after the above meetings were established, Clarks Monthly Meeting was re-established. This meeting was formerly known as Platte Valley Monthly Meeting, of Pleasant View Quarterly Meeting, Kansas. It went down, but was never laid down officially.

Since 1896 Friends have had a very prosperous meeting at Clarks, and Elwood Knight, formerly of Hartland, Iowa, has been the resident minister until recently, when he moved to Central City. Since 1896 Prairie View, North Loup, Pleasant Hill, Belgrade and Central City, all in Merrick, Nance, Valley and Hall Counties, have been established. These meetings form Platte Valley Quarter, with a membership of about 425. The work in this Quarter alone shows what excellent service these self-sacrificing laborers have done. Elwood Knight moved to Nebraska in 1895, and has been a faithful worker at Clark's. Alden Knight has been doing a splendid work at Alda and surrounding country.

Oliver Frazier came out from Pleasant Plain, Iowa, in 1897, and has done a great deal of hard work at North Loup. He and his wife are now in Iowa, raising money to build a new meeting-house at this place.

Turner L. Abel began the ministry in 1895, and since that time he has built up the two meetings at Belgrade and Prairie Valley.

Many others who live in Nebraska, as well as those from the east, have done very acceptable work in this state.

In addition to the meetings already mentioned, Bangor Quarterly Meeting, in Iowa, has two meetings in Northwestern Nebraska—at Haysprings and Addaton.

Walnut Creek Quarter, in Kansas, has two meetings in Gosper County, at Arapaho and Elwood, on the B. & M. R. R. There is also a meeting at Coles, in Webster County. Pleasant View Quarter, in Kansas, has a meeting at Triumph, in Saline County.

It has been very gratifying to note the impression Friends have made recently upon the people in Nebraska. The college building at Central City was urged upon them. The Catholics wished the building for college purposes, while speculators wanted it for a business college. This institution has had an interesting history. At the time of the western boom, in 1885, some prominent Methodist workers decided to erect the building, and then sell enough lots to pay for it. Accordingly they erected the building, at a cost of $17,000. A number of lots were sold, but when the boom broke, and the hard times set in, many of the buyers gave up the lots and quit paying on them. Thus these promoters of the enterprise were compelled to take the property. Some dissensions arose, and about this time the Methodists decided to concentrate their efforts at one place, and thus this building was abandoned. They had conducted a successful school here for five years, and the tuition had more than met the running expenses, but the heavy debt crushed them, and the property was lost under mortgaged indebtedness. James Steven finally became the owner of the whole property. He insisted that it must be used for religious educational purposes, and would not entertain any other propositions. He repeatedly urged Friends to buy it, but they insisted that they were too poor, although they very much needed it. Finally, five Friends met one night at Clarks, and decided to propose to James Steven that they become agents for the half section of land upon which the building stands, and buy twenty-seven acres for a campus, and then sell out the remainder in small tracts of five or ten acres, and give him $30 per acre. As soon as 120 acres was sold Friends were to have a deed to the property, and all they could get above $30 per acre was to go to the repairing of the building. The 120 acres was soon sold and the property turned over to Friends. All of the 320 acres have been disposed of now with the exception of less than 35 acres. While these Friends were deciding on this proposition James Stevens and his wife thought of practically the same plan. Next morning her father came up and urged them to make such a disposal of the property. They were so impressed with the importance of this move that they wrote two letters to Friends, setting forth the proposition. A few hours later Herbert J. Mott and Elwood Knight drove up to explain their proposition to James Stevens and wife. All parties concerned were surprised to find that practically the same proposition had been formulated almost simultaneously in four different places. They soon agreed, and the results have been as stated above.

Sabbath, Sixth month 25th, was set apart for the dedication of this building. S. Adelbert Wood preached a powerful sermon, which was followed with great interest by a large audience.

M. Z. Kirk was then introduced, and he raised $550 to buy more furniture for the building.

Wm. Jasper Hadley, of West Branch, Iowa, the president of the Evangelistic Board of Iowa Yearly Meeting, in a few well chosen words dedicated the building to the service of God, the church and education.

In the afternoon Nora Meredith, of New Sharon, Iowa, preached to a splendid audience at the new meeting-house, which was built at a cost of $1,700, and dedicated a few months ago. The writer presented the claims of THE AMERICAN FRIEND, and a dozen new subscribers were taken.

The Friends intended to call this institution an academy, but the name of Nebraska Central College had such a precedence that they soon found that it would be better to retain the old name. The course the first year will only cover the freshman year, but it is the intention to increase it later.

By the above movements Central City becomes the centre of Quakerism in Nebraska, not only in education, but all the annual gatherings will be held here at the college. Friends are moving in not only from various parts of Nebraska, but from other states. Joseph Joyce, of Atlantic, Iowa, intends to locate there soon, and other Iowa people are talking of it. Central City is a town of about 1,500, and the county seat of Merrick County. From the top of the college one can get a view for miles and miles of the broad, rich Platte River Valley, which at this season is a great sea of waving wheat, oats and corn.

Leading Friends in Nebraska realized that if their members ever came in touch with the best workers of other Yearly Meetings that they would have to bring the workers to them, and for that reason they organized the summer school. It opened this year, Sixth month 20th, and continued one week. They held six sessions each day. S. Adelbert Wood, of New Providence, Iowa, and Edgar P. Ellyson, of LeGrand, Iowa, gave all the Bible readings and lectures.

During these sessions the work received valuable encouragement and help from Z. L. Martin, Wm. Jasper Hadley, Nora Meredith, and Carol Roberts, all of Iowa. Friends returned to their home meetings very much built up, and much better acquainted with each other and Friends' work, and we hope that by this article Friends all over America will be better acquainted with Nebraska Friends.

Business sessions of the college were held each day, and various subjects and plans were discussed.

The following are the officers of the Nebraska Association: President, Elwood Knight, Central City; Vice-President, T. L. Abel, Clarks; Secretary, B. S. Abel, Central City; Treasurer, John Cole, Clarks; Financial Agent, C. C. Schultz, North Loup; Railroad Secretary, John Wilson, Clarks.

Herbert J. Mott will probably continue as acting president and financial agent this year. The college will open in Tenth month, and a great deal of work remains to be done in organizing the faculty and securing the students.

WORK IN NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

About twenty years ago the Friends began gospel labor in Northern Michigan. Since then several meetings have been established, one of the youngest, but perhaps the most important, being Traverse City Monthly Meeting, which belongs, as do the others, to Long Lake Quarter, Indiana Yearly Meeting. This city may be made an important centre for missionary work, both country and city, but this meeting is laboring under difficulties. In 1893 it became necessary to build a permanent meeting-house; this was undertaken with much prayer and careful study in every step. A very desirable site was secured by the help of influential sympathizers, and money and work were pledged in sufficient amount to warrant the work going on. The house, dedicated Seventh month 22d, 1894, is a very attractive, substantial structure. The interior is finished largely in native oak and elm. The entrance into the main assembly room is through a vestibule, 10x10 feet in size. This room, 37x40 feet in its largest part, is comfortably seated with veneered oak benches. Beyond this is a prayer meeting room, 24x28 feet. The two rooms are easily made into one by opening doors that fold and roll back entirely out of the way. A platform, 12x19 feet, is built so that half is in each room when the doors are closed. The large windows are of chipped glass. The building is heated by a furnace and large stove, and, by special effort of the Christian Endeavor Society, lighted throughout by electricity.

The cost of the building was estimated at $2,500, and much more than that amount has been pledged by Friends and others since the work began, but owing to failure in crops and "hard times" many have never been able to pay. A generous business man, who had already helped them several times, loaned the money necessary to fit the building for occupancy, and the little meeting worked faithfully, so that slowly this has been repaid with interest, with the exception of $300, which it seems almost impossible to pay unless Friends who read this will help. The membership is neither large nor wealthy. All that has been done has been by earnest, self-sacrifice, many going without needed articles that the "Lord's money" might be paid. They are faithful in using what they have, but clear of debt a new era of service would be opened to them.

TRAVERSE CITY MEETING.

May the Master open the hearts of His stewards, that they may give an offering, large or small, "according as the Lord hath prospered" them, that these also may carry the Gospel. Surely Northern Michigan needs the Gospel message, and Friends have a distinct place here. Offerings may be sent to the address given below, and will all be gratefully recorded and used in paying the debt.

"In His name,"

WINIFRED E. PRATT WHITE.

Traverse City, Mich.

The best proof of the divinity of the Christian religion is the daily life of the Christian himself—not his words and professions, but his conduct and spirit; not his Sunday garb and service, but his every-day tone; not his church ways, but his home walk.—Bishop Vincent.

The International Lesson.

THIRD QUARTER.

Lesson IV.

Seventh month 22, 1899.

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

Dan. 5: 17-31.

GOLDEN TEXT.—God is the Judge.—Psa 75: 7.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 17.—Belshazzar's Feast. Dan. 5: 1-9

Third-day, Seventh mo. 18.—Daniel called. Dan. 5: 10-16.

Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 19.—The Handwriting on the Wall. Dan. 5: 17-31.

Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 20.—The Temple Vessels. Jer. 52: 12-19.

Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 21.—Prophecy against Babylon. Jer. 51: 47-58.

Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 22.—Herod's punishment. Acts 12: 18-23.

First-day, Seventh mo. 23.—Found Wanting. Luke 12: 13-21.

There are many historical difficulties in the present lesson, but those can be safely left, as they in no wise interfere with the moral and religious teaching. The lesson inculcated is one applicable alike to individuals and to nations, and one which cannot safely be ignored or neglected by anyone.

The whole of chapter 5 should be read, as only in this way can the full meaning and effect of the story be understood. The story stands, with that of the "Three Hebrews in the Fiery Furnace," as one of the most striking in the Bible. Poets and artists have reproduced the scene in language and in color, until the picture has become familiar to all.

Whether the feast was made to celebrate some anniversary, or given in honor of some god, we are not informed. The emphasis is laid on the magnificence of the entertainment, and the abundance of gold and silver dishes, etc. In the midst of the feast the king, Belshazzar, thought of the golden vessels which Nebuchadnezzar, "his father," had brought from Jerusalem; and to increase the magnificence of the occasion, and to show the superiority of his gods, he sent for these vessels; then "the king, and his lords, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them. They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold, and silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone." "In the same hour came forth the fingers of a man's hand and wrote . . . upon the . . . wall." The account goes on graphically to describe the king's terror, and how the magi were summoned to read the writing and give its meaning; how they failed, and how, by the advice of the queen-mother, Daniel was called. To him the king promised what had already been promised to the soothsayers if successful—purple garments, a chain of gold, and to be one of the three great men of the kingdom. With this the lesson opens.

17 "Let thy gifts be to thyself." Keep thy gifts; as the spokesman of the Lord I cannot receive pay.

18-21. "The kingdom, and greatness, and glory, and majesty." Revised Version. It was the true God—the God of Daniel—who bestowed upon Nebuchadnezzar his power and glory. Because Nebuchadnezzar was full of pride, and gave not God the glory, he had a terrible fall. He became insane, fancied himself a beast, and lived with the beasts of the field. Daniel repeats, in a condensed form, the substance of chapter 4.

22. Daniel now brings the lesson home to Belshazzar. Though he knew what had happened to Nebuchadnezzar it had no effect upon him.

23. "Lifted up." Defied. "Vessels of his house." See 2 Kings 24: 13; Jer. 27: 18; Dan. 1: 2.

24. "From him." The Lord.

25. "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin." These words are, literally, "a Mina, a Mina, a Shekel, a Half-Mina," and they are the names of four coins. When it is remembered that these signify weight the meaning is seen. The Mina is repeated for emphasis—"Numbered, numbered, weighed, divided. The days of your reign are numbered; you yourself are weighed and found wanting; your kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

The words are Aramaic, and would be written without vowels except the letter A. Some think they were written from left to right; others right to left; others vertically; others down, up, down. According to the first-named way they would appear M N A, M N A, T Q L, P R S.

26. Mene, from a word signifying to count. Thy kingdom has had its years counted out.

27. Tekel, from a word signifying weight. He had not come up to the standard.

28. Peres. This is the plural, while Upharsin, in verse 25, is singular; it comes from a word meaning divided, which idea is expressed by a half-shekel, though the idea is not of a division into two parts, but of being broken into pieces. "Medes and Persians." Media lay northeast of Babylonia, and immediately southwest of the Caspian Sea. Persia nearly corresponds with the modern country of that name.

29. The king carried out his promises.

30. The denouement stated without comment.

31. "Darius the Mede." This king is, as yet, unknown to history; so far it has been impossible to identify him with any known monarch. He is apparently the same king as is mentioned in Daniel 9: 1.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

1. God is above all.
2. "Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall."
3. Neglect is a sin.
4. "Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall."

Note.—In the notes on Lesson II., Daniel 1: 18, the last two lines should read: "The correct spelling of this name is undoubtedly Nebuchadnezzar."

The permanent purity and prosperity of our nation cannot be secured by changes in our laws. Legislation can do much, but it cannot make people righteous, and we know that righteousness alone exalteth a nation. Thus we perceive that our country can be for itself, its best self, only by being for Christ. When we win our land for Christ, we win it to true national success.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SEVENTH MONTH EIGHTEENTH.

HONORING THE LORD'S DAY.

Ex. 20: 8-11; Rev. 1: 10.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 17.—Holy of the Lord, honorable. Isa. 58: 13, 14.

Third-day, Seventh mo. 18.—Purpose of Sabbath. Mark 2: 23-28.

Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 19.—Rest from labor. Deut. 5: 12-15.

Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 20.—Public Worship. Heb. 10: 19-25.

Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 21.—Doing good. Matt. 12: 1-13.

Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 22.—Lord's Day Offerings. 1 Cor. 16: 1-4.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE FRIENDS' INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION.

We have hung our banners with triumph and song upon the antiquities of cultured Boston. Forty thousand strong we crossed the sandy desert and climbed the lofty Rockies, until we stood within the golden gate of a great city, and spell-bound gazed off into the mysteries of another continent. We have answered to the roll-call at Nashville, and were welcomed with true Southern hospitality by the Endeavorers in the land of "Dixie," but the pleasing culture of the East, the true-hearted sociability of the West, the chivalrous hospitality of the sunny South, all combined, cannot surpass the genuine greeting, the exceeding beauty, augmented by the dazzling display of crimson and white of the "City of the Straits," generous, delightful, Detroit!

The Yearly Meetings are fortunate in having such energetic, faithful secretaries as they now have, for we have never had such prompt replies and such complete reports as this year. It is quite true a number of societies have not reported, but the fault lies with the society, not the Yearly Meeting secretary. All the Yearly Meetings have reported (two being excepted) with a full history of the International Union.

From these letters some of the gleanings are as follows:

In Indiana Yearly Meeting the secretary has been appointed to visit all the Christian Endeavor Societies in the Yearly Meeting during the next three months, and to visit meetings where there are no societies for the purpose of organizing new ones.

Baltimore Yearly Meeting Union (our youngest sister) has printed a neat leaflet, containing a statistical report of each society in the Union, and on the outside sheet is proposed a new article on the prayer meeting, to take the place of Article VII. in the Model Constitution. The new article says: "All active members shall be present, and shall take some part, however slight, in every meeting unless detained by absolute necessity," absolute necessity meaning some reason which can be conscientiously given to their Master, Jesus Christ.

From every Yearly Meeting comes the report of the interest taken in missions.

Western Yearly Meeting Union supports a native missionary in Mexico, aids in sending a member of the Christian Endeavor Union with his wife to Africa, and their Juniors support a little girl in the Mexican Mission School.

Wilmington Yearly Meeting Union has for the first time taken up foreign mission work independently. They are aided most materially by the Christian Endeavor Union, who have been most active in securing pledges for two cents per week; also tithe givers. Alaska is their mission field, to which place Mattie Hadley has been sent recently.

California Union aids in the support of three missionaries in Kotzebue Sound, Alaska, and a fourth is on her way there.

In Indiana Yearly Meeting the mission field is Mexico, Alaska and India. A day was recently set apart by special request, to be observed in every Endeavor Society in the Yearly Meeting for Irving Kelsey and wife, asking God's blessing upon them and their work in Mexico. Their missionary superintendent has instituted several new missionary libraries, and has arranged for and been present at a number of missionary meetings.

Pickering College, in Canada Yearly Meeting, has raised $30, which is used for the education of a native in Japan. The Union pays all their missionary money to the church. Their work is in Japan entirely.

Iowa Union sends their money to Jamaica West Indies.

New York and Ohio Unions, the two who have contributed the greatest amount of money to missions, have adopted the Fulton plan almost universally, together with free-will offerings. None of their money is raised by entertainments or socials.

Ohio Yearly Meeting Union expends their money in Nakin, China, and Nowgong, India, where they have seven workers. They have pledged $1,200 for this year.

The New York Union has for its mission field China, Cuba, Mexico, India, and Y. M. C. A. army work.

North Carolina Yearly Meeting supports Anna Edgerton in India.

Kansas Union gives $100 toward supporting the mission at Douglas Island, Alaska.

Many of the Unions report excellent work done towards promoting the cause of the Quiet Hour, the Tenth Legion, and Sabbath observance.

Iowa Union has 78 societies, 1,915 members, and has raised $899.97.

California Yearly Meeting Union has 19 societies, with 563 members; $321.68 has been raised during the year.

Kansas Yearly Meeting has 45 societies, with a membership of 1,257. They have contributed $300.

Baltimore Yearly Meeting has 7 societies, with 261 members, who have raised $74.25.

Canada Union has 5 societies, whose membership numbers 153, and has raised $81.59.

Wilmington Yearly Meeting has 37 societies, with 1,154 members; $601.64 has been raised.

Indiana Union has 97 societies, with a membership of 3,047. They have raised $1,175.69.

Ohio Yearly Meeting has 36 societies, with 1,228 members; $1,015.25 has been raised.

New York Yearly Meeting has 25 societies, whose members number 1,009, raising $1,620.50.

Western Union has 37 societies with 1,106 members. They have raised $471.27.

North Carolina Yearly Meeting has 9 societies, 217 members, and have raised $90.89 during the year.

No report has been received from New England and Oregon.

From the reports received Indiana Union leads in the number of societies, in membership, number of societies organized during the year (14), in the number of persons who have joined (508), and in the number of accessions to the church from Endeavor Societies (108).

New York Union has the greatest number pledged for two cents per week according to membership (183).

Iowa leads in the number of tithe givers according to membership (164).

Wilmington has the greatest number who give systematically according to membership (99).

New York again leads with the amount of money raised, having a gain of $200 over last year. They give an average of $1.60 per member.

Ohio leads in the amount of foreign mission money. They have raised $1,015.

The society giving the largest amount of money for foreign missions according to membership is in New York city. They have 41 members, and have raised $440.30.

Brooklyn stands second with 63 members, and have raised $340.

In the following summary last year's report of the two Yearly Meetings who did not report this year is included:

Number of societies	396
Number of societies organized during the year	32
Number of societies disbanded	33
Number of active members	9651
Number of associate members	1734
Number of honorary members	858
Total number of members	12,243
Number who have joined during the year	1573
Number of accessions to church from Christian Endeavor Societies	223
Number pledged for two cents per week for missions	1113
Number who tithe their incomes	690
Number who give systematically, not included above	471
Number who pursue systematic missionary or religious reading	360
Amount of money raised for home missions	$900 65
Amount of money raised for foreign missions	3,814 18
Amount raised for other purposes	1,921 80
Total amount of money raised	$6,636 63

Sabina, Ohio.

MYRTLE S. LIGHTNER.

CALIFORNIA YEARLY MEETING.

California Yearly Meeting opened its fifth annual meeting Sixth month 12th, 1899, at Long Beach, contrary to the usual custom of meeting at Whittier. A representative number of ministers and elders were present at this meeting on Second-day afternoon. The only visiting ministers present were Charles Stalker, of Indiana, and Ruth Murray.

The devotional meeting on Second-day evening—the first session of the Yearly Meeting proper—was conducted by Charles Stalker, exhorting from Isa. 6: 1, "In the year that King Uzziah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple."

When the wicked kings in our lives are slain, then will the Holy Spirit be enthroned in our hearts, and His presence fill His temple.

A spirit of praise, thankfulness and prayer seemed to pervade the minds of those present, to which free utterance was given. All hearts went to their rooms from that first meeting thankful for the blessing already received, and for the rich seasons anticipated in the future sessions, in which it was the general prayer that God's spirit might have the leadership.

Third-day morning opened by song, "Leaning On His Everlasting Arms," and a number of prayers. Mary Brown, of Long Beach, on behalf of Long Beach Friends, extended to the visitors present a very warm welcome to their hearts, homes, and all they possessed. This was given in such a manner that all felt that indeed they were Friends among friends, and God in their midst.

Ruth Murray then spoke in very beautiful and inspiring words from the text, 'We would see Jesus,' saying that if those present have come together with this desire God would grant it, as He has never failed to do for those who seek for Him with all their heart. Every need also may be supplied. After seeing we should serve Him, and serve in love, not fear, He came to deliver from all fear. Perfect love casteth out all fear. A song and prayer by Levi Gregory, and Prof. Murray, of Stanford University, asked us that after we have found Jesus we might be faithful in telling others of Him, and bringing them to Him.

In the afternoon of Third-day the first business session of the Yearly Meeting was held. The following visiting Friends were reported present, and were introduced by letter and otherwise:

Ruth Murray, New Bedford, Mass.; Charles Stalker, Indiana; Stuart L. Noble, Goshen, Ohio; Prof. Augustus T. Murray, Leland Stanford, Jr. University, Cal.; Miriam A. Maxwell, Elder (now of San Jose), Sterling, Kan.; Elizabeth Milhous, Hopewell, Ind. A warm welcome was extended to these people, who, by their presence, manifested an interest in our spiritual welfare. Testimony was given to the helpfulness already received from their ministry and presence.

A telegram of greeting was read from New England Yearly Meeting, and we were further brought into a remembrance of the interest and sympathy of our Friends eastward by the reading of various Epistles, which were fraught with instruction and inspiration. Possibly there is a deeper interest taken in these epistolary messages by Friends on this coast than is usual, from the fact that there is scarcely one that does not come to some person present as a message from home.

In the devotional meeting Third-day evening, led by Stuart L. Noble, the text was from 2 Tim. 2, several verses being read from the King James Revised and Armenian translations, the latter being preferred by the speaker as especially clear and beautiful. The two thoughts of studying to show thyself approved unto God rather than man, and of thorough preparation for the work of God, were enlarged upon in a vigorous, devout manner.

At the Fourth-day morning business session the following Yearly Meeting officials were appointed: John Chawner, Presiding Clerk; Charity E. Way, Recording Clerk; R. Esther Smith, Reading Clerk; Curtis E. Way, Announcing Clerk; J. J. Jessup, Official Reporter; David Hare, R. R. Secretary.

An expression was given of entire satisfaction with the efficient, painstaking service rendered by the clerks in their arduous duties.

The annual statistical reports were then read, bringing up the condition of the church for consideration. The totals only are given.

Total number males.....	712
Total number females.....	818
Total membership	1,530
Members non-resident	304
Regular attenders whose membership is in other Friends' meetings ..	52
Regular attenders not Friends.....	205
Average attendance, morning.....	1,033
Average attendance, evening.....	518
Average attendance, mid-week.....	231
Members participating in public service.....	633
Members systematically supporting church work.....	454
Received into membership during year.....	195
Decrease during the year.....	153
Members who have daily periods of devotion.....	737
Members using tobacco.....	45
Members discontinuing its use.....	5

The statistical report of the evangelistic superintendent was also read. The reports, altogether, revealed quite a healthy condition of church life. They also offered food for thought and discussion. The main feature of the reports discussed was the fact that there has been so slight an increase of membership. Thomas Armstrong referred to A. C. Dixon's (Baptist) recent statement of the condition of the Methodist Church, wherein it required two churches to convert one soul last year, and that their own showing was but little better, if any. He thought, perhaps, one cause was the lack of respect shown the person of the Holy Spirit. Irvin Tabor thought it was rather a dark picture, and revealed the presence of the enemy on all hands, but we must arise to more earnest prayer and strenuous efforts. Charles Stalker was called upon, and in response said prayer was very necessary, but, while the church must pray, it must also pay. We must come to the condition when we say "Silver and gold have I none," and "The silver is thine and the gold is thine."

It will be interesting to watch the reports of our own Yearly Meetings to see if this lack of increase is universal among us, and if it is, what reasons may be assigned for the condition.

The report of the Evangelistic Superintendent, Levi Gregory, showed the following points of interest:

Meetings in Yearly Meeting.....	14
Special evangelistic services.....	151
Cottage prayer meetings held.....	136
Union revival efforts participated in.....	10
Amount of money expended in evangelistic work.....	$90 21
Amount of money expended in pastoral support.....	$2,539 20
Value of church property.....	$16,300 00

The report further manifested a very prevalent spirit of unity; some lack of interest, power, enthusiasm, and promptness. Business exactions and invalidism hinder the work materially in some places.

The Sabbath School Superintendent, Mary T. Hadley, made her report, from which the following is taken:

Total enrollment	1,322
Friends enrolled	741
Average attendance	761
Adult class	30
Intermediate	40
Primary classes	36
Teachers' meetings	222
Number of Friends working in union schools.....	50
Amount of collection for use of schools.....	$469 65
Amount of collection for use of missions.....	82 90
Amount of collection for other purposes.....	68 26

Two schools have home departments. Friends' helps as a rule are used.

Dr. Marshburn, in a paper, made some very helpful suggestions as to how to hold the children in the church. More attention should be given them by pastors and ministers; preach to them; be interested in them.

Jeanett Bonnally advised the use of various means, as maps, charts, blackboards, sand boards and objects to make the lesson of the day real to them. Ruth Murray told of the little boy who studied the lesson of Peter finding Andrew, and on the next Sabbath came back pushing a boy along with him, and said, "I've been a Peterin' and here he is." And advised us to all go Petering.

Seth Parson, as superintendent of books and tracts, made a very business-like report.

There seems to be a very open field for this work, and 13,000 pages of literature have been distributed in various places and ways.

The evening session of Fourth-day was given up to temperance addresses. If ever a broadside was delivered upon this subject, this was certainly one. Local pastors contributed to the interest by giving stirring addresses. Stuart Noble spoke very earnestly, and with recitations by Anna Tomlinson and Mr. Comas, with a beautiful solo by Myrtle Bufkin, there emanated no uncertain sound as to the temperance sentiment in California Yearly Meeting.

This was enforced by the report of Mary M. Brown, as Temperance Superintendent, on the following morning. Active work is being done in most of the meetings. Many of the members work with the Anti-Saloon League, and with those who are acquainted with its operation. There is general sympathy with the principles and purposes of this organization as affording a field of practical and efficient effort in restricting the ravages of intemperance until, by some master stroke, the dread monster may be slain.

At 11.20 o'clock Fifth-day the Yearly Meeting entered into a memorial exercise in memory of Dr. William Nicholson and David Lewis, deceased. This was a very touching and blessed service. The review of these consecrated lives, their strong personality, and untiring zeal came as a benediction upon all present.

As a part of the evangelistic report given on Fifth-day morning, a communion signed by Barclay Smith and Richard Pearson, on behalf of the "Silent Workers" of San Francisco, was read, recommending R. Esther Smith and Lillian Abbott as their representatives.

R. Esther Smith then gave a very full and interesting account of said work.

The delegates were requested to recommend that $100.00 be appropriated for the superintendent of the northern evangelistic work, and $50.00 for the Silent Workers of San Francisco.

The Department of Peace was the topic for the evening. After the report of the Superintendent, Ella C. Veeder, Prof. A. T. Murray, of Stanford University, gave an excellent address, showing not only the arguments in favor of peace, but also answered many of the arguments likely to be used by the supporters of the war policy of the nations at the present day. He proved that nothing can justify war with all its attendant suffering, waste of money and demoralizing effects on those engaged directly, and also on the people of both nations so engaged, and that if a tithe of the money and energy wasted in war were turned into legitimate channels of reform in Cuba and the Philippines, war would soon be relegated to the lumber room of the worthless things of the past. After a beautiful solo by Miss Myrtle Bufkin, of Pasadena, Cal., Prof. C. E. Tebbetts stated that never before in the history of the world, had it been possible to hold such a conference as is now being held in the "House in the Wood," in The Hague, and that however far short it may come of accomplishing all that may be desired, it cannot fail to be productive of great good. The nations are beginning to think on this question, which is the first step toward action, and when the action comes it will be on a higher plane than that of the past.

Sixth-day morning session.—Prof. C. E. Tebbetts presented a statement for circulation among Friends at large setting forth the field in the west for church extension work, and our financial inability to meet all these demands. This communication is printed elsewhere.

Irvin G. Tabor presented the plan of Los Angeles Meeting to build a church on the corner of Fremont Avenue and Third Street, to have a seating capacity of 500, at a cost of $3,500.00. Subscriptions were taken for the much needed building. Anyone wishing to contribute to this fund may confer with Irvin G. Tabor, Los Angeles, Cal.

A communication from California Yearly Meeting:

"We desire to call the attention of Friends in older communities to the fact that our interests are developing in the prominent centres of California faster than we are able to provide for them. The expense of securing property and building in cities is a severe burden in the beginning of a work, when most of our members in such places are starting their own business interests with limited means. Friends have secured building lots in Los Angeles near the State Normal School, and at Bentley near the State University. At both places earnest, growing congregations have been organized, and are in excellent condition. At San Francisco an exceedingly interesting mission work in a neglected district is in a prosperous condition. A Friends' meeting is held there, which, though not at present under the care of the Yearly Meeting, may before long become so, and needs our help.

"A fund for building purposes, if available at the present time, would insure permanent centres of influence for Friends at these important places.

"They are as much objects of interest to the church at large as to the Friends on this coast.

"Friends here will do all they can, but in a field where all our meetings are new, we find our hands full in supporting the work. We wish to commend these interests to the Friends of other Yearly Meetings, that they may share with us the burden and blessing of this church extension work.

"There is a present need of $5,000.00 for building purposes."

Sixth-day evening. Missionary—Imelda Tebbetts, as President of W. F. M. S., made her annual report, showing a membership having great interest in the work, which has been confined to the Alaskan field at Kotzebue. The report of the Treasurer of W. F. M. S., Mrs. T. E. Newlin, showed that money to the amount of $430.00 had been raised and paid the Yearly Meeting's missionary board.

The report of the treasurer of the Yearly Meeting Board showed that $123.00 has been expended in mission work in the above-mentioned field.

The report of the President of the Missionary Board then followed.

San Jose Friends are working in the Florence Crittenden Mission in that place.

Pasadena Friends are interested in Chinese work in their city.

Spanish work has been carried on by Whittier, Los Angeles, El Modena and others. Here there is afforded a foreign mission field at our very door.

A full account was given by the Superintendent, J. H. Cammack, of the work in Kotzebue Sound by our faithful missionaries there, Robert Samms and wife, and Anna Hunnicutt.

The sending of Martha T. Hadley by Wilmington Yearly Meeting to assist in the Kotzebue work, was spoken of with special interest and thankfulness.

R. Esther Smith gave a very interesting account of the sailing of Martha Hadley on the three-masted schooner Alaska, the only woman on board for a three months' voyage to this far-away field.

Mrs. Philena B. Hadley gave a report of the work of the Spanish missionary society, organized during the year, and working especially in the San Gabriel valley.

Prof. C. E. Tebbetts gave a report of the proceedings of the American Friends' Foreign Missionary Board, in which we were asked to co-operate in occupying the newly opened fields in Cuba and the West Indies. Prof. Tebbetts and Esther Heath were re-appointed to represent California Yearly Meeting on this board.

Seventh-day afternoon was devoted to the consideration of the subject of education. Mrs. A. C. Johnson, as Superintendent of the Department, gave her report showing the condition of the Yearly Meeting on this subject, calling us all to renewed diligence in educational work and study. Reports of the President of Whittier Educational Association and Principal of Whittier College were received, showing that a very satisfactory year had just closed.

As an endorsement of the work of the institution the Yearly Meeting was asked to make an appropriation of $700.00 toward its support.

Hugh K. Walker, a (Presbyterian) minister, of Los Angeles, addressed the meeting on denominational education. This was a masterful address, and his stirring appeal for Friends to stand by their own schools, and to be true to their history as pioneers in this line of Christian work, called all to a greater loyalty and love for their own institution, so that when the proposition of making the apportionment was considered there was very little opposing sentiment.

At the closing session on Second-day, another matter was considered which it will be in place to mention now, namely, the purchase of the D. J. Lewis library, of approximately eleven hundred well chosen books, by the Yearly Meeting. The sum paid was really only a nominal sum, $300.00. The library is now the property of the Yearly Meeting, and is located at the college building at Whittier. It will be so managed as to be available for use by the entire Yearly Meeting, and is a valuable addition indeed to the equipment of the school, and will afford a splendid nucleus for a school for the training of Christian workers. David J. Lewis spent much of his fortune and earnings in the acquisition of this library, and it was his desire that it might be placed where it could be used for furnishing help to Christian workers.

Seventh-day evening was devoted to the Christian Endeavor Work. A report of the year's work was given by the Superintendent, Virgil J. Trueblood.

There are ten senior societies, seven junior, two intermediate. A total of 544 active members, 83 associate members; 119 tithe their income..

A total of $397.83 has been raised. Kotzebue Sound is the mission field. A very inspiring program was given, during which Tilman Hobson, of Ramona, spoke of the necessity of personal work. Nettie Beeson, of Los Angeles, spoke of the influence of the Friends' church on the present peace movement. R. Esther Smith, one of our "silent workers" in San Francisco, impressed upon us our personal responsibility to those around us. This was followed by a very earnest consecration service.

The zeal and consecration of our young people shown in this meeting and their attendance and interest throughout the sessions is a cause for much encouragement in regard to the future work of the church.

All the senior societies in the Yearly Meeting were represented at the Christian Endeavor meeting, about one-quarter of the membership being present.

The services on Sabbath were largely attended and very helpful. The eleven o'clock meeting was conducted by Stuart L. Noble, of Goshen, Ohio, who also preached at the evening service.

At three o'clock a meeting for Christian workers was held, at which the setting apart of our devoted sister, R. Esther Smith, by Long Beach Monthly Meeting, was confirmed by the Yearly Meeting. For the last two years this occasion has been the most touching and inspiring. The words of Thomas Armstrong and Prof. Tebbetts were very fitting, and full of encouragement to young workers.

The eight o'clock morning services throughout the week were conducted under the ministry of Charles Stalker. His theme was "The Holy Spirit," and many testified to the helpful teaching, and of His presence in their hearts and sanctifying power.

The attendance on Second-day morning for business was large. This was one of the most interesting sessions. An invitation was received from Long Beach to hold the next Yearly Meeting at the same place. This was accepted.

Under deep feelings of gratitude to God for his favors, for the unanimity of feeling, for the privilege of Christian teaching and association, the meeting adjourned to meet at Long Beach, Cal., Second-day, Sixth month 17th, 1900.

Are there not elements of deeper gravity and stability in happiness, in a single moment of repose, than in the whirlwind of passion? . . . Dare the soul only flower on nights of storm?—Maurice Maeterlinck.

News from the Field.

At a recent meeting of the Church and Educational Association of Friends in Nebraska, one Friend drove 190 miles to attend it, several came over a hundred miles. One came from Wisconsin, one from Colorado, and eight from Iowa.

John F. Hanson has arrived safely in Norway, and is at work, with his headquarters at Stavanger.

Minnie Bassett, of Ohio Yearly Meeting, is laboring in Kansas.

A Friend in Indiana writes to express the feeling that women Friends are not used enough in the work of the church. She points out that no women Friends are on the program at the Bible Institute at Earlham, and she wonders if we are not gradually ceasing to maintain the equality of the sexes. We think not.

We are very sorry to report that M. M. Binford is not in good health this summer, and is at present unable to do any work. He was compelled to give up attending the Detroit Convention, and he is forced for a time to leave his work in Brooklyn. He is taking a good rest in the vicinity of Lake George, New York, and we hope it may entirely restore him to health.

All accounts from President J. J. Mills, who is in the Adirondacks for his health, report him much improved, and it is expected that he will be in good condition for his work in the autumn.

The next Educational Conference of Friends is to be held at Earlham College in 1904. J. Frank Brown is to be chairman of it, a position which was filled in the present conference by Isaac Sharpless.

Our English Friends, J. W. Rowntree and A. N. Brayshaw, after a two weeks' stay in New England, where they had a pleasant and profitable visit, have gone to Chicago to spend two weeks. J. W. Rowntree is consulting a physician there in the hope of improving the impaired condition of his sight.

Ellwood Paige, Clerk of the New England Yearly Meeting, sends the following communication for the benefit of Yearly Meeting "Correspondents":

"The failure of correspondents to give their address in affixing their signature to official documents, is a frequent annoyance, particularly when the envelope bears no imprint, and the postmark is illegible. Aside from attesting the genuineness of a document, it is difficult to see what a correspondent without an address is good for.

"Senders of such documents have themselves to blame if they receive no acknowledgement from the consignee.

Lynn, Mass.

"J. ELLWOOD PAIGE."

We have received the following letter from the Pennsylvania State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League:

"RUFUS M. JONES, Editor of THE AMERICAN FRIEND :

"My dear Sir:—I write to express appreciation of the very sensible and up-to-date editorial in the last copy of your paper, under the caption, 'Temperance Speeches.' You will be interested to know that the Anti-Saloon League—I think I may say in all the States—has from its first inception been endeavoring to carry out the suggestions which you therein make. We are endeavoring to be very careful as to the character of men put in the field and the kind of speeches which are made in furtherance of this cause. I think a good deal of the old-time sentiment is very wisely being dropped and we are addressing ourselves particularly to a discussion of methods for overcoming what the moral and Christian elements of the community are quite ready to admit is an unmitigated evil.

"With best wishes and kind regards, I remain

"Very sincerely yours,

"EDWIN C. DINWIDDIE,

"State Superintendent."

Harrisburg, Pa.

Rufus M. Jones is spending the Seventh month at Pleasantville, N. Y. He has been attending the Chappaqua Friends' Meeting.

CALIFORNIA YEARLY MEETING.

Tilman Hobson has removed from Ramona to Clair. He will be pastor of the Alamitos Meeting.

FRIENDS' UNIVERSITY CLOSING EXERCISES.

The first annual closing exercises of the Friends' University at Wichita, Kansas, took place in the chapel on the 15th of Sixth month. On Sabbath preceding the close, special religious services were held, at which a masterful and eloquent sermon was preached by President Edmund Stanley. His theme was "The Evidences of Christianity." A large congregation of students and visitors appreciated the President's strong appeals in behalf of Christian character.

On Sabbath evening Prof. John W. Woody addressed the Christian associations. His central thought was "Following the Standard," in which he held up Christ as the highest standard for young men and young women to follow. Tuesday and Wednesday evenings were occupied, respectively, by musical and literary entertainments. Both these entertainments showed that the students had obtained a remarkable degree of culture and mental strength in their past year's work.

On Thursday morning a large audience convened for the closing event. There were no graduates, but an address was delivered by Hon. W. E. Stanley, Governor of Kansas. This address was eloquent and scholarly. The subject was "The Growth of Individualism through Christian Civilization." The Governor's peroration will long be remembered by that audience, which was held bound by the eloquence and rhythm poured forth by a powerful orator.

To look back over the past year we can but say that it has certainly proved a successful beginning of what we trust is to become one of the great and powerful agents of the church. In all the past year there has been an active, powerful, Christian element which influence has predominated in all the phases of student life and college organizations. To show the extent of this influence one circumstance will illustrate. Besides meeting all other expenses, the two Christian Associations have raised the amount of two hundred dollars for fitting up an "Association Room." They have also issued and paid for seven hundred handbooks at a cost of sixty dollars.

There have been many inspiring events connected with the year, which we cannot mention in detail. One of the special lectures was delivered by ex-Governor Lewelling, on the "Influence of Quakerism in Society."

The outlook for next year is good. The large front entrance of the building is to be completed during the summer. This will add much both for convenience and beauty.

WESTERN YEARLY MEETING.

Louis E. Stout, who has served the meetings acceptably as pastor at Azalea and Sand Creek, will remain in the same relation next year.

IOWA YEARLY MEETING.

Marshalltown, Iowa.—At a recent meeting of the W. F. M. S. of Marshalltown, Iowa, during the study of the regular lesson—that of Cuba and her needs—we were very much impressed with the debased condition of the people of the island, and of their readiness to receive the gospel of Christ. Great numbers of them have renounced their old faith, and will have nothing to do with the Catholic Churches.

Few Cubans have ever seen the Bible. Dr. Diaz, who was brought up in the Roman Catholic Church, says "that he was a man, grown, before he ever saw a copy of the Bible, and then he saw it in the United States."

It came to us—what a responsibility rests on us as Christians of America; what a glorious opportunity to carry out our Lord's command.

Then the question arose, what can we do to better the condition of these people?

Very few of us can go or give very much towards sending others, but we can all give a little.

Look what a magnificent monument is reared to the memory of Lafayette, merely by the pennies of the school children. We thought how many thousands of dollars could be raised so easily if every member of the Friends' Church would give at least one cent towards a fund to be used in procuring Spanish Bibles for distribution throughout the island.

We wish that every pastor, Sabbath school superintendent or president of missionary society would see that every member of their church be given an opportunity to contribute.

We believe this to be of the Lord, and pray that His will may be carried out.

MARY E. EASTMAN, President.

ANNA W. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

INDIANA YEARLY MEETING.

The summer term at Earlham College has an increased attendance over that of former years.

President J. J. Mills, who has been absent from Earlham some weeks for the benefit of his health, is reported much improved, and expects to be able for duties at the opening of the fall term.

Walnut Ridge Quarterly Meeting Christian Endeavorers held a successful meeting on the 4th of Seventh month in the interest of Christian Endeavor work. The Juniors gave some interesting exercises, and Elwood O. Ellis, of Richmond, delivered an address on the "Adaptation of Christian Endeavor to Friends." In other respects it was a time characteristic of the day—held in a shady grove, a picnic dinner, and a sociable occasion.

Elwood Scott's health is again declining so much that he has announced to the meeting at Carthage that he must cease to continue in pastoral work. He hopes by rest to gradually improve.

Gurney and Elizabeth Schneider Binford, who were recently married at Richmond, attended Canada Yearly Meeting, under whose auspices they expect to go to Japan as missionaries this fall.

Fairmount Quarterly Meeting has invited Marion and Wabash Quarterly Meetings to share in the management of Fairmount Academy, and they have accepted, and all have taken the necessary steps towards organizing for management in the new order. The Academy has had a prosperous year, having graduated its largest class, twenty-one in number, and discharged its indebtedness.

The Friends' Bible Institute will be held at Earlham College, Seventh month 24th to Eighth month 4th. Half-fare rates are arranged for those who attend, coming on railroads. Western Yearly Meeting joins in the work, and Wilmington Yearly Meeting has been invited to join next year. There is much interest apparent, and it is expected the attendance this year will be an increase over former years.

It is now hoped confidently that Indiana Yearly Meeting will clear itself of indebtedness this fall. Allen Jay has been doing efficient work visiting the Quarterly Meetings, and his visits have been much appreciated, and several have contributed liberally toward paying the debt. Fairmount paid about $140 more than its estimated proportion. Whitewater will probably exceed its proportion also. There seems to be willingness to help, and many look forward to next Yearly Meeting, anticipating the final liquidation of the debt.

KANSAS YEARLY MEETING.

Independence, Kansas.—Elk River Quarterly Meeting of Friends was held at Elk River on the 26th, 27th and 28th of Fifth month. The meetings were well attended, and owned and blessed of the Lord. We had in attendance a young woman, eighteen years of age, clearly called and wonderfully gifted in the ministry of the word. It was her first knowledge of Friends' Church, yet she had been so largely taught of God the gospel as we espouse it, that she, for lack of harmony with her church, had withdrawn from it. She preached for us on Sabbath in the demonstration of the spirit and with power, and much moved her audience.

I. LINDLEY.

Samuel P. Holbert's labors have been greatly blessed during the past year as pastor of Hopewell, Henderson Chapel, Lindsey Chapel and Humrick. David Hadley, General Superintendent, recently visited this field, laboring in the love of the gospel.

F. H. Tormohlen will remain as pastor of the meeting at Watseka, Ill. another year. The meeting and Sabbath School have increased in attendance to such an extent that another room has been added to their commodious meeting house. The interest is still increasing.

Gertrude Moon has labored to great satisfaction as pastor of the meeting at Haughville. She has greatly endeared herself as a faithful laborer in this field.

Clara Maris of Damascus, Ohio, has been spending a few weeks laboring in the limits of Thorntown Meeting.

Lindley M. Wells is closing up his year's service as pastor of West Union Meeting. He has had very clear access to the hearts of the people, and has a widening range of influence.

John Henry Douglas is still laboring in the gospel in the limits of Western Yearly Meeting. He finds everywhere an open door, and his messages have the old time fire. He has recently been in Laporte holding meetings, and is now at Plainfield, Ind., and will engage in gospel service there.

Willis Bond has served the meeting at Westfield very acceptably as pastor the past year, and will remain in that relation another year.

David Hadley, General Superintendent, has recently visited Vermilion Grove, Pilot Grove, Carol, and Mosier Chapel Meetings; also held a two days' meeting at Poplar Ridge, and has in view holding similar meetings at Walnut Chapel and West Union, Ill.

Married.

PEASE—CARTLAND.—At Beulah Land Farm, Blandford, Mass., Sixth month, 29th, 1899. Ethel Farnum, eldest daughter of Fernando G. and Abbie F. Cartland, to Edwin R. Pease, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

HALL—HOAG.—At the residence of William P. Johnson, Oskaloosa, Iowa, Fourth month 12th, 1899, by President A. Rosenberger, of Penn College, George H. Hall, of Toronto, Canada, and Hannah E. Hoag, a member of Oskaloosa Monthly Meeting.

Died.

NICHOLS.—Abby Nichols, a member of Salem (Mass.) Monthly Meeting, died Sixth month 6th, 1899, aged eighty-two years.

HAMMOND.—John Hammond, son of Ezra and Phariba Hammond, of Randolph County, North Carolina, at his home near Hemlock, Indiana, Sixth month 26th, 1899, aged 71 years 3 months and 18 days. He was a life-long member of the Society of Friends, and dearly loved their principles. "The putting off of his tabernacle came quickly." After an illness of only nine hours the Master's summons came, and he passed peacefully away.

News and Events.

An order has been promulgated by Secretary Alger, at the direction of President McKinley, prescribing rules for recruiting from the country at large ten regiments of infantry of United States Volunteers. The recruits are to be enlisted for the period ending June 30th, 1901, and without restrictions as to citizenship or educational qualifications, and, except in special cases, only unmarried men will be accepted. By this order about 14,000 men will be added to the army. Technically these new "provisional" troops will be volunteers, but in practice they will be treated as regulars. These recruits, of course, are for service in the Philippines. The time taken for organizing and transporting the men to the East will be several months, but as the rainy season prevents important campaigning in the Philippines, it is not thought that the delay in sending reinforcements to Otis will work serious hardships. The volunteer regiments which have been ordered home for discharge will leave General Otis with not more than 10,000 men. It is said that President McKinley will appoint only men of experience and approved ability as officers of the new regiments. An interview, last week, of the President with Governor Roosevelt, for the purpose of consulting as to the proper persons for officers, is considered indicative of the executive desire to put the most efficient commanders over the new troops.

Regarding the condition of the present forces around Manila, despatches state that on account of the severe rains prevailing at this season our men are suffering great discomfort. Bridges that were used for getting supplies at Pasig have been washed away, and some companies are separated by streams six feet deep. Manila Bay is impossible of navigation, and no vessels are leaving the harbor.

Alfred Dreyfus was visited in his prison last week by his counsel, M. Labori and M. Demange. The latter, it will be recalled, defended the prisoner at the court-martial in 1894, when he was condemned to exile on Devil's Island. Both Labori and Demange are said to have been greatly pleased with the condition of Dreyfus, both as to his strength of mind and body. They are very sanguine as to the result of the coming trial, which will be held on the 10th of August. Dreyfus was also visited by his wife and brother, Matthieu Dreyfus. With the exception of his counsel, the visitors to the prisoner are always attended by gendarmes. It is interesting to note, as a commentary on the judiciary of France, that it is reported that the judges of the Cour de Cassation have given out that they purposely framed the judgment given in the late tribunal so as to make certain the acquittal of Dreyfus. Notwithstanding the almost certain innocence of the accused, this seems, according to American standards, a perversion of justice. Undoubtedly the government of France is in strong hands. After getting a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies by a narrow margin of twenty-four votes, the ministry prorogued the Chamber, leaving them untrammelled till November, when it convenes again. It also removed General Zurlinden from the military government of Paris and put General Joseph Brugere in command.

Bishop Grant, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, in an interview with President McKinley, on the 8th, advanced the proposition that the United States establish a protectorate over Liberia, the West African Republic, which is peopled and conducted by negroes. Ever since its foundation, Liberia has had a precarious existence, and in its need of aid it now turns to a greater power. It is said that Germany, England and France are eager to seize the territory. This unique republic has an area of about 14,000 square miles, and a population of about 1,000,000, all of whom are tribal Africans, excepting about 24,000, who are negroes of American birth or descent. The country is very fertile and productive, but its resources have never been properly developed. The climate is practically deadly to white men. Upon a debt of $500,000, contracted in Great Britain in 1871, at 7 per cent., no interest has been paid since 1874, and besides, there is an internal debt, the accrued interest of which exceeds the principal. The colony was formed in 1820 as the outcome of an effort to provide a place for slaves illegally imported to the United States. Its independence was recognized by this country in 1861.

The crisis in Belgium, which threatened to involve that kingdom in revolution, for the time at least, has been successfully averted. Last week, in the Chamber of Deputies, Premier von Den Pereboom, the author of the electoral bill, the introduction of which caused such a general outburst of wrath from Socialists and Liberals, suggested that the electoral laws which had been submitted to the Chamber be referred to a committee in which all the conflicting interests should be represented. Such action has been taken, and now, pending the report of the committee, there is a pronounced lull in the disorders which have so severely shaken the country.

There are about 10,000 American soldiers in Cuba, and 2,500 in Porto Rico.

We acknowledge the receipt of a tastefully designed prospectus of the Misses Shipley's School for Girls, at Bryn Mawr, Pa. The special design of the school is to prepare girls for Bryn Mawr College. Pupils not intending to enter college may receive advanced instruction. The school has excellent references, some of the most prominent leaders in education being included in the list given in the booklet received.

The New Brunswick Tourist Association, a voluntary organization for the purpose of advertising New Brunswick as a resort for summer tourists and others, has issued an illustrated booklet, which excellently depicts the attractions of the region described. To those contemplating a vacation in that part of the country, the booklet will have a particular value. It will be sent free to any address on application to the Secretary, Charles D. Shaw, St. John, New Brunswick.

"How much are these string-beans?"
 "Seventy-five cents a quart."
 "Isn't that rather altitudinous?"
 "Yes, madam, but these are very high-strung beans."

THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Co-operates with the CIVIL AUTHORITIES in enforcing the laws, and with the evangelical CHURCHES in extending the influences of the GOSPEL.

The Chinese Mission at No. 929 Race Street, near a heathen temple, is under the auspices of The Christian League, and seeks to promote the social, moral and spiritual welfare of these strangers in our midst, and invites the co-operation of Christian men and women in this hitherto neglected work.

The Christian League is greatly in need of financial aid, and contributions sent to the Treasurer, Mr. JOHN H. CONVERSE, 500 N. BROAD STREET (Haldwin Locomotive Works), will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged.

For information and literature apply at office, northeast corner Chestnut and Seventh Streets, where all complaints will have prompt attention,

President,
 REV. GEORGE D. BAKER, D.D.

Vice-Presidents,
 REV. CYRUS D. FOSS, D.D., LL.D.
 RT. REV. O. W. WHITAKER, DD., LL.D.
 REV. RUSSELL H. CONWELL, D.D., LL.D.
 REV. W. M. BAUM, D.D.
 REV. C. H. RICHARDS, D.D.

GEORGE GRIFFITHS,
 Chairman Executive Committee.
 CHARLES H. BOND,
 General Secretary

JOTTINGS.

Booker T. Washington is authority for the statement that "during the last year 127 persons were lynched in the United States; of this number 118 were executed in the South, and 9 in the North and West; of the total number lynched, 102 were negroes, 23 whites and 2 Indians. Of this number only 24 were charged in any way with the crime of rape." These figures, which are particularly significant, have never been disputed.

The number of applicants for pensions as a result of the Spanish war is stated to be over 16,000.

Many Finns are emigrating to the United States on account of the repressive measures recently taken by the Czar in curtailing the independence of Finland.

Queen Kapiolani, widow of the late King Kalakaua, of Hawaii, died on the 24th.

There were reported to be 100 cases of yellow fever at Santiago last week. There have been 21 deaths from the disease.

Letters between Admirals Dewey and Diedrichs, published in a German newspaper, indicate that the differences between these commanders were "of newspaper manufacture."

General Joseph Wheeler has been ordered to report to General Otis at Manila for service in the Philippine Islands.

An attempt, on the 6th, to assassinate ex-King Milan, of Serbia, was frustrated.

Admiral Cervera and the other commanders of the Spanish fleet destroyed in the battle of Santiago, whose conduct has been the subject of inquiry by special court-martial, were acquitted and formally liberated on the 7th.

The Spanish Senate, on the 3d, ratified the treaty of peace between Spain and the United States.

A conference of the National Social and Political Association has been in session at Buffalo, N. Y. The object of the conference is the discussion of national reforms.

An outbreak in the island of Negros, incident to the departure of the California regiment for home, was quickly suppressed.

President Cannon, of the Mormon Church, has been arrested at Salt Lake City, upon complaint by a representative of a New York newspaper. The charge is polygamy, the practice of which is contrary to the laws of the State of Utah.

The Annual Council of Education began its sessions in Los Angeles, California, on the 8th.

GAME

IS MANY TIMES TOO "GAMY"

TO GIVE THE NICEST
TASTE TO ALL GAME USE

LEA & PERRINS'

SAUCE

The Original & Genuine Worcestershire.

IF YOUR GROCER ATTEMPTS TO SUBSTITUTE AN IMITATION
SEND IT BACK NONE SO GOOD.

John Duncan's Sons, Agents.
NEW YORK.

The Committee on Mediation and Arbitration at The Hague Conference, having adopted the plan outlined in our editorial in this issue for establishing an International Arbitration Tribunal, it has been sent to the respective governments for ratification, rejection, or amendment. The Conference adjourned till the 17th in order to hear from the Powers regarding the proposed plan.

It is thought that the damage done by the unprecedented floods in Texas will amount to nearly $10,000,000.

WILL KEEP IT.

Healthy Enough to Eat or Drink What He Likes.

While I have an excellent constitution and think nothing easily affects me, I propose to keep it if possible.

I have observed for years the great number of people who complain of the bad effect of coffee, and while I can drink coffee or almost anything I want, without trouble, it is nevertheless true that we do not use ordinary coffee at our house, but for many months have been using Postum Food Coffee. We find it in every way preferable to imported coffee.

We make it strictly according to directions, for we found out early that it could be made to taste very flat when underboiled, but as we make it now, to use a slang phrase, "It hits the spot." I drink it three times a day.

I enclose a list of friends who are regular users of the Postum Food Coffee.

In our family we believe that good health can be used to advantage in doing business or prosecuting professional work, and we propose to keep all the good health we have, if such a thing is possible, and we think one of the most important measures is the abandonment of coffee and the use of Postum. F. W. Bland, 705 Collinsville Avenue, E. St. Louis, Ill.

SHORT PARAGRAPHS.

A remarkable instance of speed on the bicycle was the record made by Charles H. Murphy, on the 21st ult., in New York. He rode on a track made of five wood planks, each ten inches wide, paced by a locomotive with a car attached, at the rear of which was built a log-like structure inside of which Murphy rode—shielded from the wind and dust. In this way he made a mile in sixty-five seconds. A second attempt, on the 30th, brought the record down to fifty-seven and four-fifths seconds. This is the fastest speed yet attained on the bicycle.

It has been reported in the daily papers that the Chinese Government is contemplating the destruction of the great wall that separates China proper from Chinese Tartary. The wall, which was completed about 211 B.C., is 1,255 miles long, and from 20 to 25 feet high. For years a large part of it has been in a dilapidated condition. It runs from the seashore on the gulf of Pee-Chee-Lee westward to Loochow, on the borders of Turkestan, and was built by order of Emperor Shi-Hevang-Ti to protect the empire from the hordes of barbarians.

Henry M. Stanley, the great African explorer, has recently issued a circular inviting contributions to a fund of $25,000 with which a monument is to be erected to the memory of David Livingstone at the place where he died. The Royal Geographical Society, also, has a similar project under way, but it is believed that this will give way for that for which Stanley stands sponsor.

Miles B. McSweeney, formerly Lieutenant-Governor of South Carolina, who succeeds the late Governor Ellerbe as Governor of the State, began to support himself at the age of ten by selling newspapers in the streets of Charleston, and considerably later, with a capital of only $65, he started a newspaper of his own in a small town, and was successful in the venture.

Rudyard Kipling has contracted to write eight stories for one of the magazines next year, for each of which he will receive about £240, or nearly $1,200, on the English serial rights alone. In addition he will receive payment from publishers in America, India, and the Colonies, sufficient to bring the total amount received for each story to about £1,000, or $5,000.

Sven Hedin, the noted Swedish explorer of Central Asia, is planning for another extended tour in the very heart of Asia. He does not propose to return to Europe till the Spring of 1901.

In the catacombs of Paris, under the Jardin des Plantes, a most interesting biologic laboratory has been constructed. Here, in utter darkness, are kept in aquariums, with fresh spring water running through them all the time, various insects, batrachians and fishes, taken from their natural habitats above ground. The changes in the lives of these specimens are being closely watched, and already interesting alterations in color, sense of smell, etc., have been noted. Wire cages are to be erected in the catacombs, and animals, such as rats and rabbits, will be kept in them.

In the darkest hour I give thanks to God that his love is independent of my feelings. In the brightest mood I see how infinitely it transcends my thought.

SUMMER TOURS TO THE NORTH.

Two Tours to Canada via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the Summer of 1899 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged to run two personally-conducted tours to Canada and Northern New York.

The first tour, leaving July 22d, includes Niagara Falls, Toronto, Thousand Islands, Rapids of the St. Lawrence, Quebec, Lake St. John, The Saguenay, Montreal, Au Sable Chasm, Lakes Champlain and George, Saratoga, and Highlands of the Hudson, occupying seventeen days. Round-trip rate, $125.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES

You can get

Pond's Extract

by pressing your demand gently but firmly. Pond's Extract cures Catarrh, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and relieves all pain.

There is only one POND'S EXTRACT

Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Insurance in Force, - - - - $122,735,550

This Company was organized in 1865 to promote LIFE INSURANCE AMONG FRIENDS in the United States.

In perfect security, moderate cost of Insurance, liberality to policy-holders, and in the adaptation of Life Insurance to the needs of insurers, the Company is unsurpassed.

Write for Circulars.

D. W. EDWARDS, General Agent,
Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Agents Wanted.

JAMES W. JANNEY, General Agent,
Marquette Bldg., Chicago Ill.

The second tour, leaving August 12th, covers the same territory with the exception of Lake St. John and the Saguenay, and occupies fourteen days. Round-trip rate, $100.

Each tour will be in charge of one of the company's tourist agents, assisted by an experienced lady as chaperon, whose especial charge will be unescorted ladies.

The rate covers railway and boat fare for the entire round trip, parlor-car seats, meals en route, hotel entertainment, transfer charges and carriage hire.

For detailed itinerary, tickets, or any additional information, address Tourist Agent, Pennsylvania Railroad Company, 1196 Broadway, New York; 860 Fulton Street, Brooklyn; 789 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; or Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

OUR BIBLICAL CHART

A beautiful colored lithograph art illustration, full of instructive Bible truths, sells at sight to every Christian family, First-Day School teacher and worker. All benefit by its teachings. Ladies earn $5.00 a day at light employment. Send for terms and territory. Copies, 25 cents, stamps or silver.

JAMES M. McGEHEE & CO.,
1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

CAPITAL. $1,000,000

SURPLUS, $2,000,000

Girard Trust Company

CHARTERED 1836

Acts as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee and Receiver. Financial Agent for Individuals or Corporations. Interest allowed on Individual and Corporation Accounts.

Acts as Trustee of Corporation Mortgages. Depositary under plans of Reorganization. Registrar and Transfer Agent. Assumes entire charge of Real Estate. Safes to rent in Burglar Proof Vaults.

N. E. Cor. BROAD and CHESTNUT STREETS, PHILADELPHIA
E. B. MORRIS, President.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.

ASA S. WING, Vice-President.

JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.

SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.

DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.

J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.

C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

KNEW THE ROCKS.

I once heard of a pilot who said he could pilot a vessel into Boston Harbor. "Now," said he to the captain, "I'll stand 'midships, and you can stand at the helm. I know every rock in this channel—every one of them—I know them all; and I'll give you warning." By and by the vessel struck upon a rock, and the shock threw everybody down upon the deck. The poor pilot got up rubbing himself, and said, "Captain, there's one of them."

For Seasickness

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. J. FOURNESS-BRICE, of S.S. Teutonic, says: "I have prescribed it among the passengers travelling to and from Europe, and am satisfied that if taken in time, it will, in a great many cases, prevent seasickness."

THE WILD AZALEA.

Sometimes in desert places do unfold
Fair flowers, nurtured in the unkindly soil,
Sometimes amidst a life of care and toil
Supremest fruits of patience we behold.
It may be springtime, or the winter cold,
In quiet spots, or in the world's turmoil,
Beyond the reach of circumstances to foil,
In poverty is seen a glint of gold.
But this was springtime in the mist and rain,
One afternoon in May,—when springing lush
From out a barren waste of arid plain
Sudden there glowed a honeysuckle bush,
Flushed like the dawning, in the twilight gloom,
A roseate wild azalea all in bloom!
—"The Living Age."

Almost all lying is rooted in moral cowardice.

VERY LIKELY.

A gay young sport, of a deistical turn of mind, traveling in a stage-coach to London, forced his sentiments on the company by attempting to ridicule the Scriptures.

Among other topics, he made himself merry with the story of David and Goliath, strongly urging the impossibility of a youth like David being able to throw a stone with sufficient force to sink into the giant's forehead. On this he appealed to the company, and in particular to a grave gentleman of the denomination called Friends, who sat silent in one corner of the carriage. "Indeed, friend," was the reply, "I do not think it at all improbable, if the Philistine's head was as soft as thine."—Exchange.

SUBSCRIBERS' WANTS.

We wish particularly to call the attention of our subscribers to this Department. It has proved frequently to be a most excellent means for Friends to secure desirable positions, as well as to fill vacancies with suitable applicants. We desire to widen its sphere of influence and invite all who have occasion to advertise WANTS OF ANY KIND to avail themselves of the opportunity thus extended. Anyone with anything to advertise will find this column a valuable medium for securing buyers. A five-line advertisement of thirty-five words costs only 25 cents, cash with order. Additional lines at the rate of 5 cents per line. The American Friend reaches 7,000 families of Friends every week.

BOARDERS Wanted.—At the charming, health-restoring, cool summer resort, on the top of the Alleghany Mountains. Fine lawn, shade trees, broad piazzas, beautiful walks and drives, excellent table. Terms reasonable. Address Sarah C. Harris, Mountain-lake Park, Md.

WANTED.—A man Friend, as principal of the Oakwood Seminary, the Boarding School of New York Yearly Meeting. Must have experience in governing and in teaching sciences. Address Carolina M. Wood, Mt. Kisco, N.Y.

DESIRABLE RESIDENCE For Sale.—Seven rooms, cellar, and out-buildings, and large lot fronting College campus. Excellent educational facilities. Near Yearly Meeting House. Inquiries cheerfully answered.

P. O. Box 571, Wilmington, Ohio.

A YOUNG WOMAN Friend, graduate of Miss Hunter's Training School wishes a position as Kindergartner. Address

Annie C. Sherman,
617 W. 147th St., New York City.

WANTED. Principal in Friends' Academy, at Ackworth, Iowa. Desirable lots may be bought near by, on reasonable terms, for those wishing to build. Correspondence solicited. Wm. MORGAN, Ackworth, Iowa.

FOR SALE. My claim, improvements, stock, crops, etc., situated 2¼ miles from Stella Friends' Academy, near Cherokee, Okla. Write me, ISAAC M. POLLOCK, Cherokee, Woods Co., Oklahoma.

STUDENTS, Teachers and others wishing employment in agency work for the summer should address the UNION BOOK AND BIBLE HOUSE, M. Z. KIRK, Manager, Denver, Colo.

SUMMER BOARD in a Friend's family. Pleasant location on a farm four miles from Amesbury, Mass. Rooms large and airy. Terms reasonable. Address, ANNA M. GOVE, Box 88, Seabrook, N. H.

PENMANSHIP—Plain and ornamental of every kind, at reasonable prices. Marriage certificates and diplomas a specialty. Correspondence solicited. JOHN COLLINS, 702 North 43d Street, Philadelphia.

FOR RENT—Large house, for private family of party. Nine bedrooms, recently furnished; open fireplaces, wide piazzas, fine fruit and shade trees, high ground, abundant supply pure water, open plumbing. Electric cars to Beach pass the house. Address, L. A. GOVE, Box 27, Hampton Falls, N. H.

YOUNG LADY—Friend, (A.M.), experienced teacher, desires a position in college or school, Friends' preferred. Best references. Address F. AMERICAN FRIEND.

SUBSCRIBERS—who wish to spare their copies of THE AMERICAN FRIEND of First-month Twelfth and Twenty-Sixth of the current year, will greatly favor the publishers by sending the same to this office. Our issues of these dates have been exhausted. THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Why should you insure your life?

BECAUSE:

- Prudence suggests it.
- Reason approves it.
- Uncertainty of life requires it.
- Duty demands it.
- Economy selects it.
- No investment excels it.
- Thoughtfulness seeks it.
- Intelligence endorses it.
- Affection constrains it.
- Law supervises it.

We will be glad to furnish full information about Life Insurance adapted to your needs and conditions.

Ages, 1 to 70.

Amounts, $15 to $50,000.

Write,

The Prudential
Insurance Co. of America

JOHN F. DRYDEN,
President.

Home Office:
NEWARK, N. J.

An effort, by Ambassador Choate, to secure the release of the unfortunate Mrs. Maybrick from prison has resulted in failure. She was convicted on the charge of poisoning her husband in 1889. It now seems that she must serve out her sentence, which will not expire until 1909.

In the extent of postal receipts the United States is ahead of all other countries, and its revenues this year are expected to exceed $100,000,000, a larger sum than has been collected in the post-office in any previous year.

COURTESY IN BUSINESS.

Courtesy has been called the poor man's capital. While it may not be his entire stock in trade, it is always a large deposit to his credit. A fine example of commercial politeness is to be found in the great retail dry-goods emporium of Marshal Field in Chicago, employing 3,500 people. The keynote of the establishment is courtesy; courtesy from the employer to the employed, from the employee to the customer, and from one employee to another. As a consequence there is no sarcastic aside criticism of an oddly dressed or awkward customer, no clashing between the head of the department and the salesman or woman, no contagious air of friction and low-breeding which makes one glad to get out of the store.

One of the first rules of the establishment is this: "Polite attention, interest in one's duties, and care in waiting upon customers, are important factors. These points, and all others, will be carefully considered in estimating the excellence of employees."

The manager of the store concedes that he cannot require politeness unless he gives it, and the heads of departments are not expected to demand more—or as much—of this commodity than they themselves possess. Rule No. 2 reads: "From the heads of departments especially will a strict performance of duty and a willing compliance with the rules of the house be looked for, as an example to others."

One hour is allowed for lunch, and there is no fine for tardiness. Special leniency is shown to women clerks, as they are not required to be in their places till half an hour after the arrival of the men.

There is no attempt to indorse goods. Another rule reads: "Sales-persons will never misrepresent an article, nor guarantee wear nor color."

A sort of co-partnership exists in advancing the welfare of the business. Employees are paid one dollar each for every available suggestion toward improving the methods, and for every error discovered in an advertisement,—an exaggeration, a wrong, or a misspelled word.

The name of SWIFT on hams, bacon, lard, beef extract, butterine, means purity in product, cleanliness in manufacture, care in handling, U. S. Government inspection, and guaranteed by an annual business of over one hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

Swift and Company, Chicago

As a result of this courteous, high-graded system, Marshal Field's employees "grow old" with the house. The law of promotion is strictly observed. The majority of the heads of departments began as cash-boys or trial clerks. The best help are always retained because of the unflinching recognition of faithful service, and because there is no other establishment in Chicago or in any other city that pays higher, treats better, and advances more rapidly.

Courtesy is not the capital of the poor man alone; it is the rich man's panacea for strikes, and often the secret of the young man's path to success. Though native to some natures, it may be acquired by all, and is indispensable to the youth who would win fame, fortune, or friends. —Margaret A. Sudduth, in "Christian Endeavor Worker."

General Leonard Wood who has been visiting in this country, has returned to Cuba, on account of the recurrence of yellow fever there. He has refused an excellent position as president of the Washington Traction and Electric Company.

THE BUNNELL & ENO INVESTMENT COMPANY

Invest capital in first mortgages (at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, principal and interest in gold), on choice cultivated farms in Montana, Idaho, Utah and Texas, the richest area of country on the American Continent. The Company's Debentures are its direct obligations, issued in series of $50,000.

1878

Capital
Half a Million
Dollars

1898

Investors
never had a
loss

Each series is secured by $50,000 of loans, deposited with the Atlantic Trust Company, N. Y., or Wm. and Arthur McGeorge, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, as collateral. These Debentures are in denominations of $100 and upward. Send for Booklet and List of Loans and look them over.

WILLIAM S. ENO, President, (Home Office) Bullitt Bldg, Philadelphia

SIDNEY E. MORSE, First Vice-Pres., 140 Nassau Street, New York

Address General Officers, or C. S. Hutchinson, Syracuse, N. Y.

Zebulon Rudd, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

M. S. Way, West Chester, Pa.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure
cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food
against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest
menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Highest Grade at Lowest Cost."

ACKER'S KNICKERBOCKER STARCH

One of the Best, Strongest, and Smoothest
Laundry Starches made.

4 lb. Box 25c.

Send for Complete Priced Catalogue.
Mail orders promptly filled.

FINLEY ACKER & CO.,

121, 123, 125 North Eighth St., and Market St., below Twelfth St., Philada

S. F. Balderston's Son, WALL PAPERS.

All Grades. Estimates Given.
Window Shades Made to Order.
902 Spring Garden St. Philadelphia, Penna

ELLWOOD HEACOCK

UNDERTAKER AND
EMBALMER

ESTABLISHED 1860 TELEPHONE 5807
Local and Long Distance
1313 Vine Street, Philadelphia
Calls outside of City answered promptly

A SURE CORN CURE

Removes the corn—and the roots
—without pain or danger—A-
CORN Salve, perfectly harmless, 15c. a box. At druggists
or by mail.

Please mention THE AMERICAN
FRIEND when answering our
advertisements.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(A subscriber of THE AMERICAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.

GOOD NEWS.

Even if you have suffered long, there is abundant proof that Compound Oxygen has effected wonderful cures. We will gladly furnish this evidence. Book of 200 pages sent free. Or call and see us. Skillful medical attention to every case brought to notice, either personally or by letter. Consultation free.

Our confidence in the remedial powers of the Compound Oxygen is the result of a quarter of a century's experience.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN,
1112 Girard St., Phila., Pa.

San Francisco, Cal. Toronto, Canada

The Union Trust Co.

SOLICITS CONSULTATION
REGARDING THE

..Settlement of your Estate..

• • • • •

It is the policy of this company always to retain in its service in matters of Trust business, the Attorney employed by the parties in interest with whom professional relations have already been established.

• • • • •

TRUSTS OF ALL KINDS EXECUTED.

• • • • •

715, 717 and 719 Chestnut Street.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

Any of our subscribers who have anything to advertise are invited to use our advertising columns. A want advertisement costs only 5 cents per line.

The Easiest Way Pen Made of ESTERBROOK POSTAL

Turned
up
Point.

Ask your
One Hundred and
The ESTERBROOK
Works, Camden, N. J.

beef extract,
in product,
ture, care in
nment in-eed by an er one hun-of dollars.

DON'T NEGLECT
MASON'S HEALTH ARE EQUAL TO
FREE FROM CALOR
YELLOW TABLE
BROWN
RED
WHITE
40 TABLE
FOR SALE BY DRUGG
H.T. MASON CHEMICAL

steous, high-employees of

Read These Books

Mailed free
for postage named.

To California and
Back, 176 pp., 176 il-
lustrations, 5 cts.
A Colorado Summer.
50 pages, 80 illustrations, 2 cts.
The Moki Snake
Dance, 60 pp., 64 il-
lustrations, 3 cts.
Grand Canon of Ari-
zona, 32 pp., 15 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
New Mexico Health
Resorts, 88 pp., 45 il-
lustrations, 2 cts.
Arizona Health Re-
sorts, 84 pp., 27 illus-
trations, 2 cts.
Las Vegas Hot Springs
48 pp., 39 illustrations,
2 cts.

They tell the story

of wonderful sights and scenes, and
special resorts for tourists and homeseekers in the Great West
They are published by the

Santa Fe Route,

are literary and artistic, and will
make you better acquainted with
the attractions of your own land.

C. A. HIGGINS,
A.G.P.A., A.T.&S.F.R'y, CHICAGO.
Great Northern Bldg.

"Accidents will happen in the best regulated families."

PROTECT THE HOME

Stempel Fire Extinguishers

UNEQUALED FOR SIMPLICITY, CERTAINTY,
QUICKNESS, POWER IN ACTION,

Tested to 400 pounds and fully warranted. Approved by Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association.
USED BY

Provident Life and Trust Co. Finley Acker & Co. Pennsylvania Hospital. Girard College.
Jefferson Medical College. John Wanamaker. Pennsylvania Railroad Co.
Dennett Surpassing Coffee Co., etc.

H. R. BENNETT. 1217 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The

American Friend

SEVENTH MONTH 20, 1899

No. 29

Representative
and for the sa
Central Book s
years he was p
the gift of eld ministers, as in
ple. As a Bil
age, he had fev establishment of School—afterwa
many years on t
twice in sixty
Yearly Meeting,
a prominent part

GEN
CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE GOSPEL.—God's Weapons	675
Whittier.
EDITORIALS.—Do Our Meetings Develop
Ministers.—The Destruction of the
Liquor Traffic.—Levi Jessup	675-676
General Church Notes	677
The Divine Uses of Beauty	677
W. Garden Blaikie.
Steadfastness	679
Minnie Bassett.
Receiving and Obeying Christ	680
A. Ellen Woody.
Annals of Our Bible Class	681
One of Us.
A Friends' Mission in Cuba	682
Benj. F. Trueblood.
THE INTERNATIONAL LESSON	683
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DEPARTMENT	684
Oregon Yearly Meeting	685
NEWS FROM THE FIELD	687
MARRIAGES.	689
DEATHS	689
NEWS AND EVENTS	690
Jottings	693

LEVI JESSUP

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR ❁ ❁ ❁ PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
AMERICAN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY, 718 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA

FINANCIAL.

ELLSWORTH & JONES,

Home office established 1871. Iowa Falls, Ia.

28 YEARS Our Customers Have Tested Iowa Farm Loan Mortgages

List of Mortgages issued monthly. Will mail to any address. From 5 to 6 per cent. net.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, or
523 Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.
501 John Hancock Building, Boston,

INVESTMENTS.

Prepaid Stock, $50 per share in advance,
par value $100.
Earns 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually
Installment Stock, par value, $100 per share.
Payments, 50 cents monthly for 100 months.
Money to Loan for Homes.

Call or address

INTEGRITY BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION
Room 632, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, P.

*Friends seeking positions or wishing
to fill vacancies in firms or families may
be helped by using our want column.
The price is 5 cents per line, one insertion*

CAPITAL, $1,000,000

SURPLUS, $2,000,000

Girard Trust Company

CHARTERED 1836

Acts as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee and Receiver. Financial Agent for Individuals or Corporations. Interest allowed on Individual and Corporation Accounts.

Acts as Trustee of Corporation Mortgages. Depositary under plans of Reorganization. Registrar and Transfer Agent. Assumes entire charge of Real Estate. Safes to rent in Burglar Proof Vaults.

N. E. Cor. BROAD and CHESTNUT STREETS, PHILADELPHIA
E. B. MORRIS, President.

THE PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST CO.

OF PHILADELPHIA. Office, 409 Chestnut Street.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

Incorporated Third month 22, 1865.

ASSETS, $48,993 945.47

Charter Perpetual.

Insures Lives, Grants, Annuities, Receives Money on Deposit, returnable on demand, for which interest is allowed, and is empowered by law to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, Assignee, Committee, Receiver, Agent, etc., for the faithful performance of which its Capital and Surplus Fund furnish ample security.

All Trust Funds and Investments are kept Separate and Apart from the Assets of the Company. Owners of Real Estate are invited to look into that branch of the Trust Department which has the care of this description of property. It is presided over by an officer learned in the law of Real Estate, seconded by capable and trustworthy assistants. Some of them give their undivided attention to its care and management.

The income of parties residing abroad carefully collected and duly remitted.

SAMUEL R. SHIPLEY, President.

T. WISTAR BROWN, Vice-President.
ASA S. WING, Vice-President.
JOS. ASHBROOK, Man. Ins. Department.
SAMUEL H. TROTH, Treasurer.

J. R. FOULKE, Trust Officer.
DAVID G. ALSOP, Actuary.
J. BARTON TOWNSEND, Asst. Trust Officer.
C. WALTER BORTON, Secretary.

The New Safe Deposit Vaults of the Company, with the latest devices for security and convenience, have been completed and are open for inspection. Boxes rented at $5 and upwards.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel R. Shipley,
T. Wistar Brown,
Henry Haines,

Israel Morris,
Richard Wood,
Chas. Hartshorne.

Asa S. Wing,
Philip C. Garrett,
James V. Watson,
Wm. Longstreth,

Edw. H. Ogden,
Thos. Scattergood,
J. Preston Thomas,
Robert M. Janney.

LARKIN SOAPS

OUR OFFER FULLY EXPLAINED IN

THE AMERICAN FRIEND for Third month 30th, 1899.

AND PREMIUMS.—FACTORY TO FAMILY
Send for a beautiful booklet free. It
tells how to obtain, free, the famous
Larkin premiums worth $10.00 each.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Summer Wash

These very low priced
Linen Skirts indicate the leadership as women
Pique Skirts—of good full, and finished with two rows of excellent value at Linen Skirts—made of fabric; generous with deep hem draped—at $1.50
and $3.00; our Duck Skirts—with and blue and white trimmed with around the bottom at $1.50 each.

Household Linen
—In the Great
Extra Heavy
Towels—24 by 20 cents—now
A lot of salesmen —soiled, in hu
with knotted fin and hemstitched—at g
duced prices.

17-inch Heavy Brown Towels all-linen, the 10c. kind—at 6c. a yard.

70-inch Full Bleached Table Linen reduced from 75c. to 50c. a yard.

Mail orders receive prompt and accurate
attention.

Address orders to "Department C.C."

STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER,
PHILADELPHIA.

FINANCIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS PROPERTY

Bought, sold and handled for non-residents.

ESTATES MANAGED, RENTS COLLECTED,
Buildings improved and reconstructed to produce
increased income. An established conservative business in management of real estate. Satisfactory
references to New York, Philadelphia and New England people. MOORE BROS. & SAWYER,
311 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

WICHITA, KANSAS.

JAMES ALLISON, Real Estate and Loan Broker
Fine Lots for Sale near Friends' University.
All inquiries concerning our city and country
have prompt attention. Address,
JAMES ALLISON, 212 Sedgwick Building.

SPECIMEN COPIES.

(A subscriber of THE AMERICAN FRIEND who would like to have a specimen copy of the paper sent to a friend can be accommodated by sending us, on a postal card, the name and address to which he would like the paper sent.

Please mention THE AMERICAN FRIEND
when answering our advertisements

The American Friend

Representative
and for the sa
Central Book a

*"Truth is the highest thing a man may keep."
"That they all may be one."*

years he was p

PHILADELPHIA, SEVENTH MONTH 20, 1899.

No. 29.

the gift of elde

ministers, as ind

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

ple. As a Bib

AN FRIEND PUBLISHING COMPANY,

age, he had few

rch Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

establishment of

School—afterwar

JS M. JONES, EDITOR.

many years on th

twice in sixty y

ance, - - - - $1.50 per annum.

Yearly Meeting,

- - - - - Five Cents each.

a prominent part.

GOD'S WEAPONS.

Others to their graves have gone;
Strife is past—their triumph won;
GENTLEMANLY trials wait the race
Which rises in their honored place—
The Sultan, in mortal warfare with the crime
And folly of an evil time.

So let it be. In God's own might
We gird us for the coming fight,
And, strong in Him whose cause is ours
In conflict with unholy powers,
We grasp the weapons He has given—
The light and trust and love of heaven.

—Whittier.

DO OUR MEETINGS DEVELOP MINISTERS?

THE Master's beautiful description of the field lily is a perfect expression of the original, primitive, Quaker idea of the development of a minister. "They toil not, neither do they spin," they do not, by "taking thought," "add to their stature." That is to say, the Friend used to believe that the minister should "come on" silently and unheralded, and his preparation should be by a quiet but unfailing obedience to "the heavenly vision," until at length the discovery was made by the spiritual members that a new minister had been produced! There is, even now, in our system no machinery for training ministers—no set course, no uniform standard; but as the lily blossoms and clothes itself with beauty by using the forces of nature, so, according to our fathers, the gifted Friend, steadily obedient, unconsciously finds his gift increasing until it is finally "recognized." This method, however, of the development of a "gift," necessarily requires an opportunity for its exercise. It means that there must be a patient congregation willing to sit under the tentative efforts of the beginner, and ready to encourage the feeble and imperfect attempts of the undeveloped, but promising, "minister." This would mean that a true Friends' meeting should be a "school of the prophets"—a place where the immature and unformed "minister" is wrought out and made more perfect in the exercise of his gift; and it means, of course, that a way should be open for such "practice" speaking, if we dare use the word, under the direction of the Spirit.

Subscribers in Great Britain and Ireland may remit to our agents, Headley Brothers, 14 Bishopsgate Street, Without, London, E. C., England, or directly to this office. Subscriptions and postage, 10s. Payable in advance.

Advertisements, notices and changes of address, should reach the office not later than Seventh-day noon, for the number of the succeeding week. Remittances and letters on business should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FRIEND, 718 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Checks, Money Orders and Postal Notes should be drawn to the order of THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

Now it should be noticed that under our present systems and methods we have no other recognized training place for ministers. We simply let them "come on" if peradventure they do come. If a gift develops in a meeting, well and good; we rise to the emergency and "recognize" it, but we do not exert ourselves at all to make such development possible. In fact, it is plain enough that many meetings do not like to be "practiced" on; they are not patient under a developing but unformed ministry; they do not open the door for the discovery of new gifts. The cry goes up for a finished product, and only the "recognized" minister is acceptable.

The desire is all the time increasing for a finished, edifying and gifted ministry, and at the same time the opportunities for the development of such a ministry grow less and less. Most of our meetings on the Sabbath are not by any means "schools of the prophets;" they are not places for the development of gifts. They are rather places for the exercise of gifts which have been already gained and "recognized;" and yet, where are gifts to be developed? In the prayer meeting? In the Endeavor meeting? Meetings of this class have done much to make it easy to offer public prayer and to give "testimonies," but they have decided limitations in developing the ministerial gift. It can hardly be expected that we shall ever produce ministers who can rank with the preachers of other denominations if we depend on the hit or miss methods of testimony meetings for their development. It is beautiful to see a company of young people holding their meeting and conducting it all themselves, but is it safe to expect such meetings, however good they may be for their purpose, to produce and develop the finished, edifying ministry which is so much desired? It must be evident to every who thinks about it that we are simply letting the ministry question take care of itself! Whether we have a pastoral system or do not have a pastoral system, it is a plain, simple fact that the character of our ministry is our cardinal question, and that we must make it possible in some way to produce a vital, spiritual, powerful, edifying ministry. If it is to be done in the old-time way, in meetings for worship, then let us accept the situation. If not that way, how?

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

A READER of THE AMERICAN FRIEND writes asking us to "stop his paper" because it does not fight the liquor traffic as vigorously as he thinks it ought to do. A letter, coming a day or two after, from the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, thanks us heartily for our strong position on this important issue. The facts of the matter are these. THE AMERICAN FRIEND is unreservedly and unconditionally opposed to the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors for drinking purposes, and it stands ready to strike at the vicious traffic whenever an opportunity appears, as five published volumes of THE AMERICAN FRIEND will testify. This "reader" who stops his paper is one of many persons who think we are not fighting the liquor traffic unless we indiscriminately storm against it each week and tell over and over again how bad it all is and how it ought to be annihilated at once. In fact, the more sensational the articles, and the more hellish the business is made to appear, the better, and to keep such readers satisfied, the editorial fire must grow hotter and hotter and the sensational vigor must constantly rise in degree. We have never believed that anything permanent could be accomplished in this way, and we have not indulged in a method which seems to us weak and rather hysterical.

The liquor traffic is really as much a FACT in the world, as we know it, to-day as the rise and fall of the tides or the pressure of the atmosphere are, and it must be treated as such. Storming and raging and shrieking do not stop the tide from coming in, and they will not stop the sale of liquor so long as the conditions are as they are to-day. The problem is one which demands profound study. What is it that draws men to saloons? What are the social conditions which give the saloon its awful power over the lower classes? Why have all our improved methods proved inefficient to drive the abomination of existence? What is the relation between the saloon and politics? What is its exact relation to poverty and disease? And then, how are these things to be dealt with? The same precision and penetration which have been applied to the other great problems of the world must be met and investigated. Of work has been done in England by Joseph Rowntree in the greatest temperance cause in the world.* Perhaps no Friend has ever made a single contribution to the work of the cause over one hundred than is here made. It is worth ten times the storming sort, and it has already secured the pulpit and the great party leaders to be reckoned with by every thoughtful man. We need just such work in the United States. The AMERICAN FRIEND has so ably done in Great Britain, and THE AMERICAN FRIEND has faithfully labored to induce Friends here to get on to the one line of temperance work which is eventually certain to bring success. The end of warfare is coming in no distant future by means and methods of which we never dreamed as we "kept the faith" in our own quiet way through the centuries of war. We now are having little to do with that great attainment. The end of the liquor traffic is coming some day, too, and the strokes of work which most hasten its end are made by those who deal with it practically, as a mighty, though disagreeable, fact, and who study it as scientifically as our modern doctors study the cancer or the tuberculosis disease, first to find just what causes it and then to find what will cure it. This kind of work we can all encourage and our temperance workers ought to take it up definitely. Meantime every Friend ought to have his hands absolutely "clean" and he ought to do all in his power, as God shows the way, to make the world "clean."

LEVI JESSUP.†

FEW men have held for so many years, such important positions in any organization as he occupied in the Society of Friends. For fifty years he was a leading member, and for several years the Clerk, of the

* "The Temperance Problem and Social Reform," by Joseph Rowntree and Arthur Sewell. Hodder & Stoughton, London, 1899. 626 pages.

†Died "In the Lord," near Lynn, Indiana, on Fourth month 27th, 1899, Levi Jessup, in the 83d year of his age. A member for twenty years of Cherry Grove Monthly and Winchester Quarterly Meeting. He had previously lived in Richmond.

Representative Meeting of Indiana Yearly Meeting, and for the same period a charter member of the Central Book and Tract Committee. For thirty-five years he was prominent as a minister. He had also the gift of elder, and he was very helpful to young ministers, as indeed he was to all classes of young people. As a Bible school teacher from youth to old age, he had few equals. He was very active in the establishment of Indiana Yearly Meeting Boarding School—afterwards Earlham College—and he served many years on the Boarding School committee. Only twice in sixty years did he fail to attend Indiana Yearly Meeting, in the proceedings of which he took a prominent part.

GENERAL CHURCH NOTES.

The Sultan has conferred upon two Jews, M. Naricse Leven and Dr. S. Sonnenfeld, both officers in the Jewish Colonization Society, special marks of honor. To the former he has given the grand cross of the Order of the Medjidie, and to the latter the cross of Commander of the same order.

The Church Army, in its campaign against the liquor traffic in New York city, believes in substitution. It is their purpose to establish tea saloons, the first of which has been opened in a distinctly Jewish district. "The American Hebrew" considers the location ill-advised, since "among the Jews drunkenness is not a vice."

The English Zionist Confederation held a rally in London on the 26th of last month. The hall was packed and Dr. Herzl, the leading spirit in the Zionist movement, was cordially received. He reiterated his belief that in time a Jewish nation will be set up in Palestine, considering this the complete and final solution of the Jewish question.

The Christian Advocate of New York, the leading Methodist periodical in America, says that the attempt to support Methodist churches by the rental of pews has resulted in "diminishing the congregations."

The Salvation Army has a very efficient corps in Cape Town, where it is recognized as the most powerful and practical religious organization.

In a sermon delivered in his church at Liverpool, soon after his return from this country, Dr. John Watson gave his impressions of American religion. The churches here, he charged, were to a large extent conducted as great business concerns, money-making permeating everything. In many districts he found congregations consisting almost wholly of women. He was particularly startled by the power of the secular spirit and the weakness of the church. It is interesting to observe that Dr. Watson took with him from America, $12,000 as his profits from his lecturing tour.

Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, President of Union Theological Seminary, has consented to serve the University of Chicago under the Haskell lectureship foundation, provided for securing lecturers on Christianity in India. He will probably go to India within the next two years to begin his studies. Dr. John Henry Barrows, now President of Oberlin College, was the first lecturer, and Dr. Fairbairn the second, on the Haskell foundation.

The Methodists of Indianapolis have made preparations to entertain 40,000 members of the Epworth League at their annual convention, which begins in that city to-day.

An interesting episode at the Detroit Christian Endeavor Convention, was the effort of Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," to start a "Christian daily newspaper" in Chicago. An impressive silence followed his sudden query, "Who in this audience will give $1,000,000?"

The World's Student Conference at East Northfield, Mass., closed on the 9th its thirteenth annual session.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

THE DIVINE USES OF BEAUTY.

BY W. GARDEN BLAIKIE.

Whatever opinion we may form on the much disputed question of the origin of taste, or the faculty that appreciates beauty, there is no doubt that beauty must have entered prominently into God's plan of the world; for all human beings, even the most degraded, have the power of appreciating it, more or less, in some form or other. Earth, sea and sky are full of beauty; and as if the eye and the ear were still unsatisfied with what nature has provided, and hungering for more, the painter, the sculptor, the musician, the architect and the poet are forever at work to produce it in new forms and combinations. We instinctively feel that a quality so widely diffused by the Creator, and taking such a hold on his intelligent creature, man, must have been designed for important ends.

What, then, let us ask, is the purpose which beauty serves in the economy of human life?

Some would answer promptly and decidedly, It is a most elevating and purifying power.

Unfortunately history belies the assertion: if it were true, Heber could never have written—

Where every prospect pleases
And only man is vile.

Unfortunately, in the history of the nations refinement in art has too often been associated with corruption in morals. According to Mr. Ruskin, who certainly is not likely to bring a railing accusation against art, "You find that the nations that possessed a refined art were always subdued by those who possessed none ; you find the Lydian subdued by the Mede ; the Athenian by the Spartan ; the Greek by the Roman ; the Roman by the Goth ; the Burgundian by the Switzer." More than that—you find "that from the moment in which a perfect statue appears in Florence, a perfect picture in Venice, or a perfect fresco in Rome, from that hour forward, probity, industry and courage seem to be exiled from their walls, and they perish in a picturesque paralysis, or a many colored corruption."

This is not very encouraging ; but we must note that the reason why success in art was followed by such results was, according to Mr. Ruskin, that art ceased to perform its divine function as an interpreter of nature ; that it set up, as it were, an independent sovereignty ; it subordinated religion and morality to itself, and offered to mere Beauty the homage due to Truth and Righteousness.

We must pitch our key lower if we would know the function which beauty was designed to achieve in the life of man. We must take facts, not theory, for our guide.

1. One fact that cannot be contested is, that beauty is a source of pleasure. The famous line of Keats comes home to every one :

A thing of beauty is a joy forever.

A flower, a tree, a star, the blue sky, the blue sea, a rainbow, a sunset, a fine building, a fine painting, an air of music, a line of poetry, a hymn, a verse of Scripture, have not only a power of giving joy to sympathetic hearts : they become fountains of joy ; for as often as they are presented to our attention the joy is renewed. One sip of them does not satisfy, and it does not weary ; the heart returns to them again and again with undiminished pleasure. The pity is that such multitudes are so indifferent that they pay no heed to innumerable beauties.

"There is not a moment in any day of our lives," says Mr. Ruskin, speaking of the sky, "when nature is not producing scene after scene, picture after picture, glory after glory, and working still upon such exquisite principles of perfect and finished beauty, that it is quite certain it is all done for us, and intended for our perpetual pleasure. * * * The sky is for all ; bright as it is, it is not "Too bright nor good

For human nature's daily food."

Yet, who cares to turn his eye upwards and drink in the glorious and ever changing beauties of the sky ? If people generally were more alive to the glory that is so often above them and around them, they would not only appreciate the lesson of beauty more fully, but would have their lives filled more with the sensation of joy.

2. Another fact is that beauty is endowed with a refreshing power. We recall the harp of David, the beautiful strains of which composed and refreshed the troubled soul of Saul. Beauty of scenery has a similar effect. When the nerves lose their tone through unceasing care and toil, what is better fitted to restore them than a tour among beautiful mountains, rivers and lakes ? Color enters largely into this restorative power. What a wonderful gift it is to mankind ! The world might have been colorless, but in that case it would have been almost a wilderness.

It is in this love of color that we have the key to the popularity of flowers. What a boon the flower mission is to our hospitals ! What a difference it makes to the walls when, instead of the dreary, monotonous expanse of whitewash that used to meet the languid eye, the patient sees a colored paper, and the walls frequently adorned with engravings and colored prints. Happy those who have faith in true restoratives ! It is the rush to exciting restoratives that proves so hurtful—such as the drinking-saloon, or the dancing-hall. The service of beauty in restoring exhausted energies ought to commend it very specially to this age of rush and strain in which both bodily and mental energies are often so greatly tried.

3. A third fact is, that in healthy natures beauty is a means of drawing out the affections. How it drew the affection of the old Hebrew to Jerusalem ! "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the north is the city of the great king." Did Sir Walter Scott err in ascribing to "Caledonia stern and wild," but full of beautiful strains and streams, a mighty power over his countrymen ?

Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,
Land of the mountain and the flood,
Land of my sires, what mortal hand
Can e'er untie the filial band
That knits me to thy rugged strand?

And here we see how beauty and love act and react on each other. Not only does beauty create love, but love creates beauty. "Home is home, be it never so homely" ; and being home, with its sweet associations, it is lovely too. It may be a poor cottage in a bleak moor ; and she who has been so good a mother may now be old and wrinkled ; but "the loved are lovely" ; affection has its magic mirror, and sees something of the angel in that poor withered old face.

And is there not a feeling in our hearts that where there is physical beauty—a beautiful country, for example—it is but fit that it should be the home of moral beauty ? We do not fancy any physical beauty about Hell ; it is to our view the most dismal of prisons. And we are shocked when we find that some beautiful region of the earth is, by reason of its inhabitants, a hell on earth. The missionary that gazes upon the beauty of some South Sea island, and is melted by the heavenly tints of the sky above him and the peaceful beauty of the landscape around him, is shocked to think that it is peopled by the most atrocious barbarians, and derives an impulse from its very beauty to strive and pray that it may be speedily transformed into an abode of angels.

But we cannot proceed further now ; another of the divine uses of beauty we must keep for a separate paper.

North Berwick, Scotland.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

STEADFASTNESS.

BY MINNE BASSETT.

For centuries Christianity wrestled with hoary religions, entrenched in the superstitions of men of mighty Romish power; finally the clouds were not only rifted, but rolled away under the blaze of the Gospel. We owe much to the living testimonies of the millions of souls who went so bravely to the stakes and prisons and dungeons, and triumphantly gave their lives for the sake of truth, in witnessing to the saving power of our God.

Such is the type of steadfastness that should characterize Christians of to-day. Alas! this is an age of ease-loving, pleasure-seeking, and of compromise.

Pastors and evangelists, confessing they know their congregations so well and their questionable indulgences, are afraid to declare the remedy or sound the alarm in telling of the dangers that lie hidden along such a pathway, and though they may preach fine sermons, attract by their polish and eloquence, increase their membership, yet it seems the reality of death, hell and the judgment does not possess them, and thousands, sitting in their carved and cushioned pews under dazzling chandeliers of electric lights, are slipping through the hands of such ministry off and down the tremendous slope, with shrieks of woe, and crying, "Warn those who follow us!" One of the mightiest services that Oliver Cromwell did for the human race was to announce to the Pope of Rome that unless he called off his wolves from preying upon the flock of God in Piedmont, the cannon of the Puritan Army should teach him lessons of mercy around the castle of St. Angelo.

Some say, How good it is to dwell in safety to-day; how blessed to be a free people, out from under the hand of such tyranny. But do we remember how we came by such freedom? No other way than by the faithful, unflinching and uncompromising testimonies and ministry of those who lived in that day and loved Jesus better than life, liberty or goods.

The need of the church to-day is to divest herself of envy, pride, jealousy and selfishness, and be powerfully equipped with the equipment promised that should make us witnesses unto Him in Jerusalem, which means homes, in Judea to our neighbors, in Samaria, to our enemies, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth. The days of popery do not seem to be at an end in some parts of the world. We readily admit there are political bosses in the political world, and surely we are as ready to concede that there are not a few who are in bondage more or less to an ecclesiastical popery. God deliver us and set us free to serve Him whom our souls love. We owe the priceless privilege of treasuring in our homes to-day the Bible to the suffering and martyrdom of many souls who, in the early days and during the testing eras of the church's history, were able to triumphantly attest to the veracity and inspiration of the Scriptures.

Martin Luther grew to manhood in ignorance that there were any other Scriptures than those given in the Catholic Breviary. When he found the true Bible and studied it, there arose the Reformation—a movement that rescued the banished New Testament, which to-day is printed in every tongue of earth, and is an open book, spreading light and intelligence wherever it is allowed to enter.

In the beginning of the fifteenth century Waldo, Wyclif and Huss preceded Luther in the attempt to reform the church, but it was only as he adhered to the doctrines and principles of the New Testament that he was successful.

In 1517 he nailed to the doors of the church in Wittenburg his theses, by which he broke caste with Rome.

Constantine favored his mother's (Helena) religion, and concentrated his efforts and marshaled his hosts to overthrow Paganism. As he sat in triumph upon the ruins of six imperial thrones there was great mourning among the enemies of the cross of Christ. They felt theirs was a doomed religion. They were right. In 319, before the final conquest of Constantine, he decreed that the Christian religion should be tolerated, and in 321 he decreed that Sunday should be observed, and as we read of the different battles that were so fiercely fought upon the seven hills of Rome we get a glimpse of what it cost Christians in that day to be true.

We hear people talking about persecution. We do not know the real meaning of the word, but we believe the day is coming on with rapid pace when we shall know what it costs to be identified with the Galilean—what it means to share the fellowship of His sufferings. Have we considered the lesson that comes to us out of the silence of all the past nineteen hundred years? Never since the world began was silence held so long; never was the world so long without a voice from heaven.

May we be victors all the way, and then shall we be ready for the ushering in of that golden period which shall soon break in upon us—the coming in power and great glory of our Lord.

To be ready requires steadfastness, a constant look unto Jesus, and to see to it that His light through us shall ever shine with a brightness and steadiness unhindered by the waves that dash around our souls.

A man and his wife kept a lighthouse for many years. A visitor called one day, and, looking out upon the broad expanse of water, asked the good woman, "Are you not afraid of a night when the storm is raging and the big waves dash right over the lantern? Do you not fear that the lighthouse and all that is in it will be carried away?" The woman remarked that the idea never occurred to her. She had lived there so long that she felt as safe on the lone rock as ever she did on the mainland. As for her husband, when asked if he did not feel anxious when the winds were high, answered, "Yes; I feel anxious to keep the lamps well trimmed and the light burning, lest any vessel should be wrecked."

Let us look ever unto Him who is able to keep that which we have committed unto Him, less concerned about the storms and billows that come at times, but see to it that we be clean and that our spirit-filled lanterns are always burning and throwing rays of light across the dark, treacherous sea of life. The famous Eddystone lighthouse, off the coast of Cornwall, England, was first built in a fanciful way of wood by the learned and eccentric Winstanly. He had boastful inscriptions on its side, and was proud of his own work, and used to defy the storms and cry, "Blow, O winds! rise, ocean! break forth and try my work." And one night the sea did arise, and both tower and builder were destroyed. Again it was built—this time of wood and stone, by Rudyard; 'twas good, but the wood gave way to the elements, and the builder and structure perished in the flames. The third time it was built by Lineaton. He raised a cone from the solid rock on which it was built, and riveted it to the rock. He carved no boastful words, but near the foundation he inscribed, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it," and on the keys, ^{above} above the lantern the words, "Laus Deo," and it has stood the storms amid the great Atlantic rollers, holding up its light to the storm-tossed mariner. Christ must be held up before men, or they will perish amid the waves of sin that beat high. Let us place no superstructure of our works on sufficiency, but building on the Word of God, the sure foundation, and on all our lives inscribe, "Laus Deo." There is a tendency and eagerness in these days to be great lights—prominent lights—but let us remember a clean lantern with a lighted candle makes no noise, and yet wins attention, and the darker the night the more it is valued.

Some minds are like stained glass windows. They shut out much of the light, and the little that does struggle through is colored after their own manner. Better be plain, ordinary glass, so that the Lord's light, with its clearness and delicacy, may come in and shine through as it comes from heaven, with naught of self gathered with it. The streets of Jerusalem (we are told) are very narrow, and no one is allowed to go out at night without a light. Each traveler has a little lamp fastened to his foot to make his step a safe one. The thought suggests to our minds the verse written in that same city three thousand years ago:

"Thy word is a lamp to my feet, and a light to my path."

We are indebted to the faithful souls who have shone with such a true light, amid the darkness, gloom and conflicts of the past, and we love to contemplate their lives and honor their memories—many in our own church—and our hearts are encouraged and inspired to be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the love and grace, and walking in the beautiful light of God.

This is the eternal law manifest in human history, that what men desire and love and worship, the beautiful order that wins the assent of the souls, that they are ready to work for and sacrifice themselves for, till in the fulness of time the first in beauty becomes first in might.—Samuel M. Crothers.

FOR THE AMERICAN FRIEND.

RECEIVING AND OBEYING CHRIST.

BY A. ELLEN WOODY.

There was One who was in the world and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not. He came unto His own possessions, and His own people received Him not. This is the one parable and paradox of all ages.

There is One who is in history and all history is His curious handiwork, and yet historians recognize Him not.

He comes to the age which is of His own framing, and moves amid events which unfold his own eternal plan, but His own chosen ones receive Him not in all His fullness. "But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God," power to be co-workers with God—sharers in the glory of Divine achievement. There comes to the life of every Christian believer a hunger for more of Christ, "a deeper yet." God gives us experiences and then He comes and breaks them up to lead us into deeper experiences. He tries us and proves us and establishes us. It is not by a quick process. "He shall sit as a refiner and a purifier of silver." Yes, He sits down at His work, He takes plenty of time. He will wait years for us, or He will teach at a single lesson if we are willing to take the quicker process and the hotter fire.

How touching is the love that will take so much time with us! How patient the infinite grace that will be troubled with all these little matters! No wonder that Job said, "Lord, what is man that thou shouldst magnify him? And that thou shouldst set thine heart upon him? And that thou shouldst visit him every morning, and try him every moment?" Every moment this Great Refiner is waiting to add a new touch of His strength and power. To those who stand at the forefront He awaits with this touch of fire.

It is God's way to call around Himself His Isaiahs, His servants, those who stand nearest to Him, the members of His church, to lift them up to a new level of Christian living, that from that moment they may be the pivot on which a lever may work to lift the entire nation.

Visit the churches of our cities throughout our nation to-day, and one will be struck with the hunger which exists in pulpit and pew. You make no questioning, for the soul life shines out through the complex and varied organ of the human face, the highest manifestation of the spiritual element, and in that soul life you see a hunger for more of Christ's life within. Listen, and be filled, oh church of Christ! Hear His words, "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled," filled with the fullness of God.

"Each life that fails of its true intent Mars the perfect plan that the Master meant."

We have not reached the "mount that might be touched." No words can tell what eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, nor can the heart of man conceive of the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him. The church of Christ dare not shut its eye to duty. "Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

We, an organized body of Friends, called by that beautiful name, "The Friends' Church," known and honored for that one great doctrine, moved by the Holy Spirit, have glorious possibilities lying before us. Have we received Christ? Have we allowed Him to breathe on us the Holy Ghost? Do we respond readily, cheerfully, and with glad heart and voice, when the Spirit moves? or do we, before obeying the Spirit, question whether George Fox would speak or act thus? or whether by such obedience we would adhere closely to the principles of Friends?

The Holy Spirit will never move us to any service detrimental to our church, but will, if we are living in His light, move us to that service which will give life to the church and hold our young people in active service therein. In this age of progress George Fox would doubtless be led to act differently in many ways were he now an active member with us.

"Obedience is better than sacrifice." Perfect obedience to the voice of the Spirit brings sweetest communion and blessed freedom in service; it removes all fear of the disapproval of the church. "If the Son make you free ye shall be free indeed." It is a sweet service that is prompted just from the gentle voice of the Comforter.

Oh, how we love to do little acts of love just for Jesus, when no one knows but Him!

This is the secret of drawing near, so near that He may enjoy us as we enjoy Him.

Let us thus nestle close to the Father, that He may fill us with His love and power.

ANNALS OF OUR BIBLE CLASS.

NO. XIII.

BY ONE OF US.

Many weeks have now passed since that afternoon early in May when the "Regulars" furled their flag for the season and counted this long and interesting course in the Gospels at an end. While I have never sought to give the continuous thread of our lessons and have aimed rather at giving inside views of a working class, with enough of the teaching to redeem the space for the general reader, I can scarcely conclude the "Annals" without drawing a little further from my note book and reviving impressions that grew more vivid as the term advanced.

Our last exercise was a general quiz, and once more we traced the journeys and grouped events. This not only gave us the framework, putting the narrative, so to speak, within our grasp, but it did much toward fastening the course in the memory. You see a quiz not only gives a comprehensive view in outline, but it is also something like a backstitch at the end of a seam that keeps the thread from raveling.

But it is the filling in of the outline that shows most what the class have really gained and how much they have had of spiritual illumination. To build on to the framework the matchless perfections of the great Exemplar and inform the whole with that divine nature that was in indissoluble union with the Father, so as to see the God-Man in His deity, in His ministry and methods, His priesthood and His atonement,—who of us can say, "I have fully compassed this?"

We have already dwelt upon the perfect attributes of that ideal character, and upon the necessary sinlessness of His being, and we need not stay to emphasize the verdict of both friend and foe. He challenged the world to convince Him of sin, and no accusation has ever been sustained. He was our Paschal Lamb, chosen of God for sacrifice, subjected to the most rigid scrutiny of both ecclesiastical and civil authorities and found spotless. But for our own instruction in holy living we may be allowed to linger over the principles that actuated His earthly life as a man, to see Him as our example, doing the work of the hour in the hour, and saying at last, "I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work thou gavest me to do;" to hear from His own lips this secret of the abiding presence of God, "The Father hath not left me alone, for I do always the things that please Him;" to see Him, and now and then to hear Him in prayer for Himself and for the work. How luminous the links of that chain, and how they reveal to us the girdings of His strength!—the Holy Ghost descending upon Him as He prayed at the Jordan, the transfiguration of His glory as He prayed on the Mount, the victory on Tuesday of Passion Week, when He ceased to pray to be saved from the hour of agony and only asked that the Father would glorify Himself, and the wrestling in Gethsemane from which He went forth in triumph to welcome the cup that could not pass from Him except at the cost of the world's redemption. And then how striking to note the hours of pleading in the crisis of His ministry—"Rising up a great while before day and departing into a solitary place" for prayer before His first evangelistic circuit in Galilee; continuing all night in prayer before He chose the twelve, and again holding audience with the Father from nightfall till the fourth watch before that sharp turn in His ministry that cut off His unspiritual following and weeded out many even of His own disciples. All of these are footprints to be reverently traced by the devout believer who is seeking "to walk even as He walked."

But nothing has impressed us more than the holy mastery of His spirit as evidenced both by His Silence and His Speech. Was there even a bearing so discriminating, so full of forbearance, compassion and strength as that of Jesus Christ before His accusers? Certainly there never was before that time and there never has been since, except by those who have been made partakers of His nature and filled with His Spirit. To the accusations of false witnesses He gave no answer; to the Roman governor, whose mind was not ready for the truth, He declined to reveal His Godhead; to the curious and talkative Herod, who questioned Him in many words, He answered nothing; to the insincere Caiaphas, who asked about

His doctrine and His disciples, He gave evasive replies, and to taunts, insults, mockery, scourging and the crown of thorns, He offered no resistance. But when the Jewish Council asked Him for the last time, "Art thou the Christ the Son of God?" He answered plainly, "I am," though He knew that on that testimony He would be convicted of blasphemy.

Everywhere and always He was the guiltless man. "There was no deceit in His mouth." I can conceive of no greater contrast than that of the intrinsically true and discerning Son of Man and the crafty, treacherous enemies who came with flattering speech to "entangle Him in His talk." To the core of His being and the centre of His character He was sincere. His was a fidelity also that knew no wavering, and that having loved His own that were in the world loved them to the end.

How wholesome were all His words! Of no other person could it ever be said with such fulness of meaning, "Grace is poured into His lips." There were no words of private criticism about the nine absent apostles in His confidential talks with Peter, James and John, who constituted the innermost circle of His companions. Indeed, there is no evidence that He ever spoke to them of the growing covetousness of Judas, though He must have painfully discerned it. The disciples were not yet prepared, spiritually, to restore a lapsed brother, and so long as they were not it could only work mischief to discuss his faults. In the lips of our Lord speech wrought its legitimate end and no word ever went astray. In the quality of His spirit there was not an atom of that virus of cruelty that gloats over the foibles of another—that drop of Cain's blood that has filtered down through all generations to hunt a victim and seize upon the prey.

And yet we must not conclude that the Master was ever even apparently neutral on any question of ethics, or silent when truth demanded a witness, or a dangerous influence threatened His flock.

To Pharisees, Sadducees and Herodians He was outspoken in pungent and incisive rebuke, and so in their absence He could consistently bid His disciples take heed and beware of their doctrines. This was not gossip—not even "religious gossip" (?) but it was warning. It was the faithfulness of the true Shepherd and an example to be followed by the under shepherds of His church. It labeled the externalism of the Pharisee, the broad theology of the Sadducee, and the gentilizing policy of the Herodian, as a leaven to be shunned like poison.

He was a living illustration of the normal life of a holy and perfect man. He showed us how to live socially, morally and spiritually. He translated into blessed deeds the self-sacrifice of His spirit and the perfection of His love. But had He stopped there, had He only set us the copy and not obtained for us the salvation that makes its imitation possible, we would have been more despairingly helpless than before.

But the leverage of His cross has power to lift us Godward, and the baptism with the Holy Ghost has power to burn out unholy tempers and to transform us into His moral likeness.

Some one has beautifully said that "the friendship of Jesus breeds the gentle heart," but even a statement like this is liable to be misleading, so prone are we to disturb the even balance of truth. The twelve apostles had walked with Jesus through the years of His ministry in closest companionship, and yet on the night of His betrayal, and at the sacred passover Supper, there was a strife among them who should be greatest. Uplifting, indeed, His friendship had been; educating, inspiring and valuable beyond price had been His holy example; but to know even Jesus after the flesh was not enough. It needed both Calvary and Pentecost to breed the Christlike heart. There is a point here to be guarded with jealous care. It may be that it is the snare of our modern theology to substitute the contemplation of our Redeemer's character for faith in His blood, to say of His life, "Look and you will become like it," and of His sacrifice, "Look at it and you will love," instead of saying, "Believe, and live." This is the subtlest form of salvation by works, and absolutely fatal to a true experience. At best it can only produce a kind of æsthetic moral culture that is without discernment, clearness of testimony or power.

A FRIENDS' MISSION FOR CUBA.

I write this letter in hopes that the President of every Friends' Mission Board in the United States will consider it personally addressed to him or her. I wish particularly to find out what progress has been made in the matter of a joint mission work in Cuba by the different Boards. If no such union has been completed, it should be done at once. The time has come when we must enter the field or miss the opportunity. The work is of such an extent as to demand our united efforts.

The Boston Fruit Co., now being re-organized into the United Fruit Co., is about to extend its business into Cuba. This company, as is well known, has done very much for the success of the Friends' Mission in Jamaica. The company has taken a large tract of perhaps 100,000 acres of land in the Province of Santiago, Cuba. It expects to begin running its boats regularly some time this autumn.

Captain Baker, the president of the old company, and largely interested in the development of the new business, has just been to see me and urges that the Friends undertake this work immediately. He thinks they are the proper organization to do it. He has asked me to go with him in October to visit Cuba and investigate the situation. Whatever Friends do must be done at once. Unless it has already been done, a small committee of three or five persons with headquarters in the East, and to be supported by the Mission Boards of all the yearly meeting ought to be formed at once. Several thousand dollars will have to be raised with which to commence. Captain Baker thinks there is ample opening for at least twenty-five missionaries and teachers if they can be found and provided for. We shall of course have to commence in a smaller way and grow. The field is a new one and will furnish large opportunity for development.

Whoever goes to Cuba to do this sort of work will have to know Spanish, as all the work for some time, at least, will have to be done in that language. A considerable sum of money has already been pledged for the opening of the work, provided Friends decide to undertake it.

I very much hope that Friends everywhere may feel it right to respond to this opening. No argument is needed to show the importance of missionary and educational work in that desolate country.

I send this letter through THE AMERICAN FRIEND, hoping thus to reach more speedily the officers of all the Mission Boards and other interested persons.

BENJAMIN F. TRUEBLOOD.

3 Somerset Street, Boston, Mass.

The International Lesson.

THIRD QUARTER.

Lesson V.

Seventh month 30, 1899.

DANIEL IN THE DEN OF LIONS.

Dan. 6: 10-23.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Lord is thy keeper.—Psa. 12: 5.

DAILY READINGS.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 24.—Conspiring against Daniel. Dan. 6: 1-9.
Third-day, Seventh mo. 25.—Daniel in the den of lions. Dan. 6: 10-17.
Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 26.—Daniel in the den of lions. Dan. 6: 18-28.
Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 27.—Trust in the Lord. Psa. 56.
Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 28.—God rather than man. Acts 5: 25-32.
Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 29.—Delivered. Tim. 4: 1-8; 16-18.
First-day, Seventh mo. 30.—Be Faithful. Rev. 2: 1-10.

The present lesson is another of those pictures from the book of Daniel, which has become a part of our literature, and which has called forth the skill of many artists. Far more than this, it has inspired many persons to acts of faithfulness, and begotten in them greater trust in God. Many a youthful mind has been encouraged to stretch towards a high ideal from the story of "Daniel in the den of lions."

The whole of the sixth chapter should be read in order clearly to understand the lesson which is intended to be taught.

In point of time, the chapter follows the fifth chapter very closely. We are told that Darius set over the kingdom which he had conquered "one hundred and twenty satraps," and over these "three presidents, of whom Daniel was one." Revised Version. "Because an excellent spirit was in him," the king sought to set him over the whole realm. This naturally roused the envy of the satraps, who sought to find some fault in Daniel's administration. They were unable to do this, and so fell back to his private religious life in the manner described in the chapter. It is a striking characteristic of this story that Daniel's virtue is of a positive nature. It is not that he refused to worship an idol, but that he continued to do that which he believed to be right, regardless of outward law, and of possible consequence to himself.

Daniel must have been an old man by this time—certainly more than three score and ten, and possibly over four score. So far as can be gathered from the book, his life up to this time had been one of prosperity, but now, in his old age, he was to be "tempted and tried."

The lesson begins with Daniel knowing that the decree forbidding any one for thirty days to make a petition had been signed by the king.

10. "Now when Daniel knew," etc. The time had come for him to decide. So strong was he in his consciousness of what was right, that the action of the king did not cause him to swerve from the path of righteousness. He simply went on doing as he had been accustomed. He made no show of his religion.

"Towards Jerusalem." Just as Mohommehans turn toward Mecca. Compare 1 Kings 8: 35, 36. "Three times a day." See Psa. 55: 17.

11. "Assembled." The plot turned out as they hoped.

12. They make their report to the King. "Which altereth not." To alter would seem to be a confession of fallibility. Esther 1: 19; 8: 8. Decree. Better, "interdict."

13. The king had assented to their statement, and the case against Daniel seemed clear, and so they lay their charge.

14. Perhaps to their surprise, the King became angry—not against Daniel, but against himself. "Labored," etc. It seems strange that the King did not do as Ahasuerus did in the case of Esther and her people. Esther 8: 5, 7, 8.

16. "Den of lions." We know from the Assyrian monuments that it was the custom of eastern monarchs to have pits in which lions were kept, to whom criminals, and those who had incurred the monarch's displeasure, were thrown. "Den." Properly a pit. "Thy God." The King is represented as having a high regard for Jehovah, the God of Daniel.

17. "Sealed." To make "assurance doubly sure" that there was to be no connivance at an escape for Daniel, the stone was twice sealed.

18. "Instruments of music." The words so translated are of doubtful meaning, and probably means "dancing girls." See margin of Revised Version.

19. "With haste." Notwithstanding what he said about Jehovah, he was in fear lest Daniel had been destroyed.

22. "His angel." Daniel does not say whether the angel was in a visible form or not, but ascribes his safety wholly to the Lord.

23. "Because he had trusted in his God." This is the lesson intended to be taught by the narrative. God never fails those who put their trust in Him. He does not always deliver from outward pain, trouble, and suffering, but, in all these things we may be "more than conquerors through him that loved us."

The story concludes with the retribution which came to those who plotted against Daniel. It is wholly consonant with the character of the times, but our feelings must revolt against "the destruction of the wives and children for the misdoing of their husbands and fathers"—it is one of those marks by which we measure the defective morality of that day.

Christian Endeavor Department.

All communications intended for this department of THE AMERICAN FRIEND should be sent to M. M. Binford, 261 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR SEVENTH MONTH THIRTIETH.

THAT GOOD PART.

Luke 10: 38-42.

Second-day, Seventh mo. 24.—Lot's choice. Gen. 13: 1-18.
Third-day, Seventh mo. 25.—Esau's choice. Gen. 25: 27-34.
Fourth-day, Seventh mo. 26.—Joshua's choice. Josh. 24: 14-25.
Fifth-day, Seventh mo. 27.—Solomon's choice. 1 Kings 3: 5-15.
Sixth-day, Seventh mo. 28.—Matthew's choice. Luke 5: 27-32.
Seventh-day, Seventh mo. 29.—The young ruler's choice. Mark 10: 17-22.

REPORT OF THE EIGHTEENTH INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION, HELD IN DETROIT, SEVENTH MONTH 5-10, 1899.

FRIENDS' RALLY.

The Friends' Rally was held in the Trumbull Avenue Presbyterian Church, Morton C. Pearson, of Sabina, O., presiding.

After singing, sentence prayer, and responsive reading, there was a roll-call of delegates. All the yearly meetings were represented except California.

The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and adopted. The Treasurer's report was as follows: Amount on hand, Sixth month 18th, $28.97; paid Gilbert Bowles for leaflets, Fifth month 1st, $1.75; interest for one year, $1; balance on hand, Sixth month 18th, 1899, $28.22.

Then followed the annual address of President Sweet, of Des Moines, Iowa.

Among the many pleasing thoughts suggested were these: "In what way does the Friends' Church differ from other denominations? Are our methods of reaching results different? Are our hearts more closely bound together?" He urged the need of more practical workers and more loyalty to the church; that now, as never before, we ought to be glad that we are Friends. He emphasized mission work, and said that the Christian Endeavorers were the chosen people upon whom the responsibility rested to carry out the Lord's last command, that the world might hear the Gospel.

In the absence of Gilbert Bowles, Levi Mills of Wilmington, Ohio, opened the discussion of "Christian Endeavor and Foreign Mission." He said, "If the Christian Endeavorers are ever fruitful and efficient in foreign mission work, they must first take an interest in home mission, and that the support of foreign mission work in the Friends' Church must largely come from the Christian Endeavor Societies. The work will not only benefit those abroad, but increase the courage and zeal of the societies at home."

Ellison Purdy of Portland, Maine, continued the theme by declaring that if the Lord called for foreign mission workers, the church at home must not stop the channel by quenching their missionary zeal, or the church would suffer as well as the cause. He also said that during the last twenty-five years no church had felt the quickening of the missionary spirit as that of the Friends.

Richard Haworth, of Marion, Ind., spoke on "Christian Endeavor as a Spiritual Force," pointing to the energy of young people that must be spent somehow, and unless the church make use of it, it will be exhausted in some less helpful channel. The one who most faithfully serves Satan will be just as energetic as soon as he changes Masters. Christian Endeavor is often charged with frivolity and too little spiritual life. The church is to blame if this is true, the minds and hearts of young people must be employed, and it is the duty of the church to suggest the proper channel of work."

The School of Methods, led by the President, on Junior work, proportionate giving, quiet hour, and Bible study, was ably discussed by the majority of the audience. A business session followed in which the report of the Missionary Superintendent was read and adopted.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles Sweet, Des Moines, Iowa; Vice President, Robert Warder, Washington, D. C.; Secretary, Myrtle S. Lightner, Sabina, Ohio; Treasurer, Lucian J. Thomas, Toronto, Canada; Trustees: Rufus M. Jones, Philadelphia, Pa.; Elwood O. Ellis, Richmond, Ind.

By motion the adoption of a new article in the constitution was deferred until another year.

A very enjoyable social time concluded the rally.

NOTES.

Francis E. Clark said of the Convention: "Without any exception, it is the best arranged and best carried out convention in the entire history of the Society. No one could doubt the fact that Detroit was ready for the visitors. A prominent editor of that city said: 'Our city is noted for its conventions, but most of them represent mere special interest of one kind or another, and, of course, the people of Detroit cannot take an active part with them in their deliberation and work, but the Christian Endeavor Convention represents an interest that is universal to humanity itself, and the consequence is that our entire population has turned out to make it the greatest convention on record.'"

President Clark's annual address on "Going and Growing," was full of inspiration and encouragement. In closing, he said: "Happy is the nation that has no history. This is equally true of a movement, and happy is the Christian Endeavor this year that it has no wars to record, no dissensions to heal, and no greedy friends to satisfy. The spiritual power of our great international conventions, as well as the state and local unions, depends largely upon the fact that those who come together come for spiritual inspiration and uplift, and not to engage in wire-pulling, intrigue, and office-seeking. This same spirit of brotherhood, of blessed international and interdenominational fellowship, of seeking after God and not the things that pertain to office and station, will, I believe, characterize this convention."

Secretary John Willis Baer was ever welcome with his genial, happy smile, and when he announced "That Christian Endeavor lives, and that if any Christian had lost his enthusiasm, these figures should be a source of inspiration: there are 55,813 Christian Endeavor Societies with a total membership of 3,125,000, a gain of 100,000 during the year of 1898."

One of the new features on the program was ten minutes at each meeting devoted to quiet meditation and prayer. The first service, conducted by Dr. Tomkins, of Philadelphia, was one without parallel in the history of these vast gatherings. The silence was impressive and deep, the audience sitting with bowed heads and hearts uplifted in prayer, a fitting preparation for the convention sermon which followed, delivered by Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago. It would be impossible to cull the good things from this wonderful sermon, for it was superior and masterly beyond the power of pen to portray, and was the rarest gem of the convention.

W. M. Paden, of Salt Lake City, delivered an address of especial interest, he laid bare the "Mormon Question" with force and power, in which he denounced the election to a seat in Congress of B. Y. Roberts, the polygamist, as a disgrace and menace to the interest of the United States. In conclusion he said: "In the name of God and the marriage code of all Christendom, bestir yourselves, or you will give sanction to the greatest danger and worst offence against your homes, your domestic sanctities, and the honor and dignity of your country, that can be conceived." As a result of this searching exposure of Mormonism, a petition was formulated to be signed by the Endeavorers and sent to Congress asking for the prompt expulsion of Brigham Roberts from his seat among honorable men.

C. M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kansas, was quite a feature of the occasion. His book, "What Would Jesus Do," making him a prominent object of interest. He gave some very helpful talks upon the writing of the book, and the good he hoped would be accomplished through its influence. He also read a story, entitled "For Christ and the Church," prepared especially for the occasion.

S. P. Henson, of Chicago, was enthusiastically received when he made his forcible address, "Satan in the Cities." He said one of the shrewdest devices of the devil is to persuade the world that there isn't any, and in this regard in recent years his success has been extraordinary. Comic artists have made the whole world laugh at their grotesque portraits of him, and well meaning, but ignorant evangelists have been influential in the same direction by the very extravagance of their language in denouncing him as if he were the author of all evil in the universe, and as truly omnipresent as the Lord of Hosts."

The practical school of methods—"New Things Worth Doing" in one tent, and "Best Things That Can Be Done" in the other—was the first service of the kind that has ever been held outside of a committee conference room at any of the conventions. There was a series of ten minute addresses in each tent, and open parliaments for general discussion. Delegates were to be seen with note books in hand, jotting down the ideas for future reference.

Possibly the most impressive part of each day's service was the early morning "Quiet Hour," conducted by Dr. Chapman, of New York city, assisted by G. H. Smyth, gospel singer. He began by dividing the Shepherd's Psalm into six parts, using one topic for each morning—possession, position, promise, progress, provision, and prospect. These meetings were largely attended, and many persons at every service gave their lives to Christ.

Friends cannot, as a denomination, help feeling a pardonable pride at the noticeable concession and loyal rallying about one of the greatest fundamental principles of their doctrine, "Peace and Arbitration," as displayed at the Detroit Convention. For years this element of our faith has been looked upon with indifference, to say the least, but steadily we have adhered to the Bible truth, that war is not God's way of settling misunderstandings. At the open air meeting at Belle Isle, representatives from England, Australia, America, and Canada gave thrilling talks on "Peace and Arbitration."

A very pleasing and commendable compliment was paid the city of Detroit, when the trustees presented the local committee with a small gold Christian Endeavor badge with guard chain and pin, the settings of the initials, C. E., being pearl and rubies, the red and white convention colors.

For three days the rain descended in floods, causing much inconvenience and unpleasant situations, but in defiance of the adverse elements, the tents were well filled, the meetings enthusiastic, and the songs of "Sunshine" heartily rendered.

MYRTLE S. LIGHTNER.

OREGON YEARLY MEETING.

The seventh annual session was held at Newberg, Sixth month 22d to 28th, inclusive. Visiting members present were Levi D. Barr, of Hoisington, Kansas, who has recently taken up the work at Newberg; and Amanda M. Way, of Boise, Idaho, a member of Kansas Yearly Meeting. William P. Samms, a minister, from Wallowa Valley, a remote place in Eastern Oregon, who has never before been privileged to attend Oregon Yearly Meeting, was also present.

Thomas Newlin was again chosen Clerk, with efficient helpers in Rebbie W. Smith and Chas. R. Scott. Epistles were received as usual from the different yearly meetings, and were felt to be cheering and strengthening, keeping us more in touch with the work of other yearly meetings. Those from London and Dublin especially called forth appreciative remarks as to their helpful tone, sympathy and practical Christianity, and were received much as a letter from a parent. It was felt they were bonds of union, drawing us closer together, and that the recent visit of Thomas Newlin had aided much in the same direction. Friends wishing to hear more of this visit and of the Society there, one evening was devoted to that object, and many interesting facts were noted in regard to the work and conditions there, helping us to enter more into sympathy with them. It was decided to hold the Representative Meeting twice a year, rather in the form of conferences, and to work on similar lines to the Meeting for Sufferings in London.

